Treasure of arrecally and Paragrams times

ΑΡΧΑΙΟ-ΠΛΟΥΤΟΣ.

Containing,
Ten following Bookes to the former

TREASVRIE

OF AVNCIENT AND

MODERNE TIMES.

880

Being the Learned Collections, Iudicious Readings, and Memorable Observations: Not onely Divine, Morall, and Philosophicall, But also Poeticall, Martiall, Politicall, Historicall, Astrologicall, &c.

Translated out of that Worthy Spanish Gentleman, PEDRO MEXIA, And M. FRANCESCO SANSOVINO, that Famous Italian: Asalfo, of those Honourable Frenchmen, Anthony du Verdier, Lord of Vauprinaz:

Loys Guyon, Sieur de la Nauche, Counsellour vnto the King:

Claudius Gruget, Parisian, &c.

LONDON Printed by WILLIAM LAGGARD, 1619.

To the most Noble and Twin-like paire, of truely Honourable and compleat perfection, Sir PHILLIP HERBERT, Knight of the Bath to our dread Soueraigne King I AMES, at his Royall Coronation; Lord Baron of Sherland, Earle of Mountgomery, and Companion in the unparaleld and famous Fellowship, of the

As also, To the truly vertuous and Noble Countesse his Wife, the Lady Susan, Daughter to the right Homourable Edward Vere, Earle of Oxen-ford, Viscount Bulbec, Lord Sandford and of Badelessnere: and Lord High Chamberlains of England, &c.

Order of the Garter.

Orthily might I bee condemned of arrogancie, (most Noble Lord & Lady) because, having past the Pikes in a peece of the felfe-same service (followed with fauour and kinde acceptation) I should therefore prefume vppon the like successe: knowing the inconstant nature of Times, that as they alter, fo do mens humours & dispositions with them. For, that which carrieth liking and allowance to day, falles into loathing and contempt to morrow, Opinions being more various in the case of Bookes, then are the Arguments whereon they discourse, because carping curiofity will have his censure, ... But, as the Last for Hercules, was not fa-Thioned to fit euerie foote, nor his Lyons skinne to be worne by any Ignorance wil base Lout; even so the sublimitie of true judgement (in matters of alwayes be fuch industrious and painfull labor) should be left to the Learned learned la

The first Volume of this

Treasurie, published about 5.yeares

not

The Epistle Dedicatorie.

not to every course and mechanicke conceite, capeable of nothing, but of fuch occasions as are suteable to his owne condition.

I have read of the great River * Euripus, which ebbeth and flow- Anarrow for eth feuen times a day, and with fuch violence; that it carrieth Ships Hauen Aulis vpon it with full fayle, directly against the winde. Seuen times in an Eulers, and houre ebbeth and floweth ralh Opinion, in the torrent of indifcreet and troublesome apprehension: carrying Criticke calumnie, and fquint-eyed detraction, mainly against the winde of Wisedome and Iudgement; because their braines are no better ballast, nor their capacity of further reach or extendure.

And yet, if the faying of Hesiode be true; That nothing can bee more pleasing, then variety, which is the soules cheefest solace: Then (not fearing folly, but speaking to peerelesse Noble nature) give mee leave to tell you, that there can hardly bee any especiall subject imagined, but one Argument or other heere meeteth with it. From Sacred Diuinity (the most solide and supreame of all other) through all other Artes and Sciences what focuer, even to any lowly, and the meanest (worthy)profession; here is some notable marke or Monument thercof (if it be either Ancient or Moderne) stored vp in this Treafurie, for future Ages to delight in, and to receive no meane bene- together. fite thereby.

Then (Honourable Lord and Ladie) all these blessings beeing Yours (as also my selfe, in endlesse dutie and service) when any subiect of great, grave, and ferious confideration (as of Nations, Monarchies, Kingdomes, and People, in their Originall, Rifing or Declining, by Warres, Diffentions, Combustions, or otherwise in the like occurrences) shall seeme troublesome or tedious to you: walke on but a little further, & then you may enter into a spacious Forrest, affording all choise of pleasing Game, either for Hawking, Hunting, Fishing, Fowling, or any other Noble exercise beside.

When those Forrest pleasures shall faint you (as all delights dull, by too much continuance) an Orchard standes wide open to welcome you, richly abounding in the fairest Frutages: not to feed the Eie onely, but likewise to refresh the Heart, inuiting you to plucke where, and while you please, and to bestow how, and when you list: because they are all yours, and whosoeuer else shall taste of them, do enioy such freedome but by your fauor.

There is one especiall recreation more (Gracious Madam) which remaineth foly to your felfe, and fuch as may enter by your admittance in a goodly large Garden, abounding with all kind of the fairest Flowers, that open with the cheerfull mornings Sun, and shut againe at his fad departure, all fweet, and all foueraigne. And, because Ladies of elder times (as many haue had the like delight in our more Moderne daies) were fingularly skilfull in Phyfick and Chirurgery: there is not a vacant place in the whole Garden, but it is fitly furni-

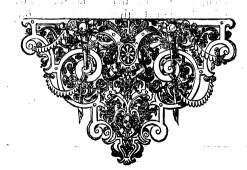

The Epistle Dedicatory.

shed euerie where; the verie common walkes (euen as if they were Bride-like strewed by hand) are couered with the choisest Simples, purest distillatorie Plants, and wholesome Herbes of euerie Vertue: for which, the Garden was purpotely founded, and not for fruitleffe idle vanity.

And were you all alone, without companie, and by your felfe, yet can you not so continue there: For, you may meete with a faire Beuey of Queenes and Ladies, ar divers turnings as you walke, and euerie one will tell you the Historie of her life and fortune (rare examples of Vertue and Honor) as themselves can best, truly & plainly discourse vnto you. Some other also you shall see; fadly sitting vnder Eughe & Cipresse trees, with Garlands of those leaues wreathed about their heads, fighing out their divers difasters: whom your Noble nature cannot choose but commiserate; as greening to see a scratch in a cleare skin, and a bodie beautified by Nature, to be blemished by vnkinde Destiny

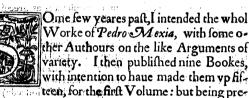

From manie remote Kingdomes and Countries where natural ly they spake those severall Languages) are all these variable pleafures come hither, onely to kiffe your Noble hands. It was no mean infelicitie for them, to find no fitter a Tutor, that might have taught them to speake more eloquent English; which (indeede) also was my fault, seeing none else would tie themselves to so hard a Taske. But howfoeuer it may prooue, your rich judgements, and all-fufficient ability in the Languages, as also my weakenesse; will (Ihope) bury all defects in your fauor, & beare out from feardall my willing endeuour, that I may finish the other (yet remaining)eleuen Bookes behinde, to perfect fo rich and rare a Treasurie.

Hefiod, in Lib 3. Cap. 7.

The Printer to the Reader.

uented by fickneffe, I finished but the first nine Bookes and finding the good acceptance of them, I have adventured now on ten Bookes more, of the like Ancient and Moderne Times: lauing only, some particular Heads but lightly touched, are now (by the same Authors) more at large illustrated. And may this finde equal fauour vnto the former (withoutany harsh censure, or vnkinde discouragement:) the other eleuen Bookes shall follow with all convenient speede, to finish up so faire a Treasury.

Farewell.

A Table of the Authours Names, that alledge and approoue the feuerall Arguments, contained in this Booke.

210 J.J. J. J.

Auenz.oar.

4 o athias Auitus Arrianna Albertus Strasbourg

Auirenne Auerroes Athanasius Antonius Sabellieus Arehytas Tarentinia

Intoninus Annius de Viterbo Annales Constantinop. Annales Treuirensis Autor de Bel. Affric.

Arnoldus Lisiadus Adrianus Imperat. Armonina Áleninus :Nice Agapetus Anlus Gellius

Ægisippus Encas Sylvidis Æschylus

Æ (chines Amillius Villor Etius Ælius Lampridius Amillius (Macer Asberarina Atheneus Asinius Pollio

Apuleius Panisis Alexander Alexandrinus Alexand. Aphrodifens Apolonius Thyaneus Alphraganus Anthony du Lebris

Aristander Antonius Nebricensis Albertus Magnus Aristomachres

Achilles Statius

Aristophanes. Augustine. Andronicus Athenensis. Ausonius Lombardus Aretine Acamathius Antoninus Svi.

Alphonfus Rex Hift. Attalus Accurtius Azzo

Alexand. Trallianus Atteins Capito ... Asconius Padianus Appianus Alexandrinus Archilocus

Arnoldus Ferronius Amain Aristarchus Antoninus Arch. Floren.

Antifthenes Anaximander Albertus (rantzius Alexand. Guaquinus Anaximenes

Abbas Siculia Almadallus Araba Augurellite imp. N. Anthenor Annales I. Stowan Altuarius hand Aurea Historia

Afferins Meneuenfis Alfridus Benerlacensis Adam Merimont h Alliances genealògiques des Rois & Princes de France Annales de Aquitaine

Annales de Bourgoigne Annales du France. Annales rerum Flandricarum.

Biblia Sacra S.Basile S.Bernard Boterus Benelus Baldus Abbat Baldus Doc. Civil. Revolus

Bucchanan Baronius Budaus Bandello

Belforreft Baptista Fulgotius Rartholomeu Boetma Boccace

Bonfinus Barthol.Picenus Rartholus Вечения Barthol Dardanu

Beroaldus Baptifta Ignatim Bellonius

Bodinus Bozins Bachi Anchisia Bucholcerus

Balthazar Castillanois Batins Senermus B. Westmerus

S.Cerill. S. Chry foftome Columella Cedrenus Claudianus Crescentius

Clemens Alexand. Cocil. Toles Capitolinus Cornelius Tacitus Cicero Ciaconius

Chry sippus Cardanus Cleomedes Collenutius Conradus Episc. Cnaus Epidius Cornelius Agrippa

Caclus

Censorinus

Cellus Cleanthes Chalcidiu Caline Rhodiginus. (landins Victor Charles de Molin

Comment. Cafar Constantinus Casar Calmatheus.

Cheremonius Chronerus Pol. Caffiodorus Corninus Mell. Cratinus Ctesippus Alexand. Crantzius

Colophonius Count Balthazar Cælius Calcaguin. Сифіпіапня

Dion

Dicaarchus Diodoriu Siculus Dionif Halicar. Dionil . reopar Diogenes Laertius Dioscorides Demosthenes Democratus Diocles Diogenes Cynic. Damascene D. Pedro Epif. Loon Demetrius Alexand Du Bartas W. ... Dictis Cretenffs Dares Phrygius Damaso.Sigierus Dionif, Lycinus Donatus

Dionif. Caffianus.

Ентепін

Ephorius Ecditins Eulebius. Eucherius Eumenides Epiphanius Estinan de Garibar Egbinbard Enuodius Euripides Eracostbenes Ennin: Eustatius Entropius Erasistratus

Ebu-

The Authors Names.

Ioan Feralden

Ioan de Imola

Ebulus Enclider Eldacus Eitanthes Enicurus Empedocles Era(mus Roter. E Catina Éginus Émpolemus Elpagoras Enpolis Epile.Tyrienlis P.Ereb.de Reip.Ind. Egnatius Енадтіна Enans Estien Pasquier Epilterni Euchirid. Eral. Epicharmus

Froiffard Fortunatus Fanchet Fenestella. Frontinus Fabina Pictor. Flanin Epife. Fasciculus Temp. Fernelins Flores Postar Fran. Georgius Fabianu Pretor Fran Philelphus Funttius Festus Pompeius

S.Gregory S.Greg. Nazianzen Guliel. Tyrienf. Gebinianus Guil de Naugis Gennadisu Greg . Floren. Greg. Turonnenf. Gregor.Papa Gelner Guicciardine Gandentina Merula Geber Glareanus Gontierus Gualt. Monach. Garcias d'Oria

Gaulfrid Monumet.

Gyrald. Cambrensis

Guliel. Malmef.

Gemma Frisius

Guyldas

Galen Galionu de Nargni. Geor Trabezon Gulsel.Budens Galerus Gwrdoniu Guydo Benatus Genebrardus Geor Leontinus Gregor. Giraldus Gregor . Rech. GHEHAT A.

S. Hierom Hist. Missellan. Homer Herodotus Hortine Hermanu He findes Heraclides Ponticum Hermolaus Berber. Hugo de S. Victor Hierocles Heliconiensis Hippocrates Harbocration Hift . D. Villamont Herodianus Horace Hermes Trifmegist. Hermocrates Heliscou Tatius Heraclitus Heraclides Hen. Hunting don Hist Poland Hallian, Chron. Hall Holinshed Hostiensis Негторры Herophilus Hinemariu Hier, Oforing Hinibaldus Houllier Hephestion Grec. Heliodorna Haly ben Razel. Hier Conestagio

Iulius Pollus Inl. Caf. Comment. Innocentius Papa Io(ephus Innenall Inlina Florus Inlius Secundius Iustine Inlim Capitolinus Io.de Sacrabolco Io. Lincolnienfis Io. Agricanus Io. Bale Iulius Frontinus I sidor no Lamblichus Ingulphus Inlins Pelavins Instinator Isaac Rab. io.Ronie Iulian Imperat. Inftim. Martyr Io.Scotus Io. Alexandrinus Iulius Firmicus Io.de Mons Royalis lo. Driodonna I Cens Io. Math. Tierinus Io.Va (ans Io.Saxonisu Io. Magnus Arch. Hispal. Isocrates

Îreneus Io, Capprane Iornandou Io. Monachus lacques Bosins Io. Damascenne Io. Baptist, Egnatine Io. de Ataulmons lacques de Maguntia Io. Boccace Ioachim Vadianus Icel. Med. Alexand. Ioubert Med. Gal. lo: Camertes lo: Carion Io: Cantacuzensu

lo: Fernelius

I (ans. Indaicus

Io: Lastens

lo: Annius.

Iacobus Fabet

Ionianu Pontanu

L Lucian

Lucius Frultiu Leo Imperat Lucius Plotius Latinus Pacasus Lucane Lattan, Firmianus Lupus Episc.Troi Liebondus Lodonicus Vines Lea Affricanus

Lastantine Gramman Leonardus Camellus Laonicus Calchond. Licinius Macer Lucas Tudensis Lazaro Soranzo Lucretine Leo Hebraico Lodonicus Caline Leo Sophift. Labeo Antiflins Linus Lateratisa Lucius Flores Laurentine Surlas Lopez de Castagued Lucas Marinus Sie. Lampridens Lazarni de Paif. Lodo: Valentinus Lee Papa Lucas de Tur Lerus Lyfias

Marcus Spor Marcellus Marcu Varre Molina Hifba. Marineus Sicul Martianus Capellus Martin du Bellay Macrobius Marianne Scotus Martiall Mantues Meffala Augurius Metrodorus Marcus Aurelius Moschiones Marbodena Mestala Corninu Macchianell Morses Bar: Cepha Marsilina Phicinus Matheus Palmerius Martinus Marcus Maniline Marcus Panins Metalthenes Mathew Parist Manethon Masheus Marhew Westminst Munster Marcus Valerius Mathiolus Monsieur de Villament Marcus Damascenus Musaus 1 Monsieur de la Nous Meļuns

THE TREASVRIE

of Ancient and Moderne TIMES.

THE FIRST BOOKE.

Of the ancient Countrey of Gaule, now called France; what Lawes, Customes, Ceremonies, and other manners were wied among the people of that Nation in their first Originall: and how (fince then) they have continued.

An Introduction to the whole Discourse.

The first limits of Gaul

Gaule was enclofed within the limits of the Rhein. of the Alpes, of the Mediterranean sea, of the Pv-

N ancient times.

the Countrey of

renean Mountains, and of the Ocean fea. But after that the Gaules had passed the Alpes, all the Countrey which was from the Mountains, fo farre as the river * Rubicon, along by the coast of the Apennines, Italy, riling out of Apenni and so vp into the high Sea (which at this day is called the Gulfe of Venice) took the w,& running etweene Aname of Gaule : as Galatia did the like, afminum and Rauenna into ter that wee had fubdued fome people; of the Adriatique Alia. That Gaule then which is in Europe. being halfe parted by the Alpes, is diui-The 3.diuifided into two parts; the one on the hither fide of the Mountaines, and the other be-Togata, calld yond. That which is on the further fide, yet concerning vs, was called by the Romanes *Togata: as Romane, in regard of the habit of the Romanes, being commonly called a Gowne, and which they then did finally weare. That on the historifide, was (by themselves) named properly Braccasa (by a certain fashion of garment then worne by them, termed Breeches) and partly " Comata, in regard that the haire on their heads was verie bushy. Brassata in the time of Iulius Cafar, had his extendure from the Alpes, so farre as Rolne or Khodanus bending towardes the Pyrenean Mountaines, where were comprized the Volca, Armoricanes, Rhutheni or Khynteni, and Heluetians, as it is to be feen in the feuenth Book of Calars Commentaries. This country was one while called Prouence, and then againe Narbone, after the name of Narbona, then the chiefe and capitall Citie of the country. In Comata dwelt the Aquitans, which are they of Guienne, euen from the Pyrenean Mountaines fo farre as the river Garana : A river paton the hitherfide whereof are the Celts, lung Celica inhabiting fo farre as the Rivers of Sena lina. and Marna. All the rest of the country extending toward the North, is possessed. The Authors by the Belgians. Now the fearch would bee very great, fence concerand hard to be performed by any ma, that, ning his pur-B would History.

taining Narbö. Dawbhinie. Comata.com rehending Belgica, Celtica ind Aquitane A Riuer riing out of the alpes.

tul Car In Com nent, lib y .

ronence called Narbone.

fpetchesin his owne de-

Nef.

& new Lome

would (with a certaine history of all the | as will bee declared by that which Cafer times) fet downe the fashions, manners, and customes which the ancient Gaules had held and obscrued, untill the daies of Inline Cafar, and their nouell qualities from those dayes to ours. But such as can content themselves with that diligence, which generally may be deliuered by the proofes of good and fufficient Authours, worthy of faith and found credit; perhaps shall finde their expectation well fitted, both with honest pleasure and profite in their reading. And with this intention am I determined to make (fummarily) a collection out of many writers, that have carefully imployed their paines, concerning the manners and behaulour of the Gaules, according as matters might be remembred, in such diversity of distant places. And first, we will select out the most Ancient : afterward (if wee can bring our purpose to full effect, and as our endeuor gently feeke for the nouell customes.

(hall nothing be wanting) we will as dili-

Calar hath comprehended a certaine

forme and femblance of Gaul in her ancient dayes; especially in the fixt booke of his Commentaries, of the warre in Gaul: albeit he hath fowen many other things throughout his Bookes: which I having collected heere and there, and from infinite places in other Authors, so that the whole may ferue to encrease and fully ils lustrate the course of our purpose; wee may the more reasonably accomplish that which shall serue to make knowne our ful aime and scope. Neuerthelesse, I am not to learne, that the Greekes which have followed Cafar, wer it that they understood not the latine tongue, or were it through carelefnesse and negligence; haue declared in many places, that they fearfely vnderstoode the matters contained in his Commentaries. Wherefore we will first of all imitate Celar, as the most great and fingular Author and master of our history: and then purfue others, according as they have borrowed any thing of him, or

as they serue to make the whole subject vnderstood. But in regard that the principall parts of Great Britaine, as also of Germany, haue bene seized by the Gaules, as shal appear in due time and place; and foraimuch as there hath bene great refemblance of the Britaines and Germanes with the Gauls.

hath written : I imagined with my felfe. that it would very conveniently fute with our purpose, to compare such fashions as carried any coherence in these Nations. Confidering that Cafar thought it fit, to compare the customes of Gaule, with IntiCafin com them of Germany. And Strabe, percey- Strabe inline uing the Germanes to be called so by the Romanes, as true brethren to the Gauls, by refemblance of their manner of living, when he wrote the fashions and customs of the ancient Gaules, he reproued them, and began with the Germanes. But although that Tacisus hath fayd, That they cornel Tacitus were named Germanes, by an appellation proper to their Nation, and such as they pleased to stile themselves, yet notwithflanding howfocuer at first they received Resemblance that name, there may be differred in the in customer a great Germanity, or (for our better vn- betweene the derstanding) a Fraternity, both in beha-Gaules and uiour and customes, answerable one vnto another.

For our better beginning then, we will conclude on certaine kindes of manners. to the end, that each thing may be carried as may be most convenient. Plato sayeth, delegib. There are three principal parts in the body of Man, wherein are lodged the three principall powers of the foule; Concupibodie. icence in the Liuer, Anger in the Heart, and Reason in the Head, as in a Citadell. In like manner, there are three feuerall kinds of vertues that do command & gouerne them : Sobriety or Temperance to ver ueto go ouersway Concupiscence in the Liner; werne the po Courage, against Anger in the Heart; and foule. Wisedome, in thinking and judging with Reason. The common consent & agreement of all which, is the faithfull dutie of each one, euen as it were with diners voices, & worthily may be called Inflice. Cafar and Diodorus, Titus Liuius, Strabo, and others, who are as interpreters of Cafar, do declare many things of the Gauls wif I wouldhave for down sol wif I wouldhaue fet down at large in my terpretersof Discourse, according as they are written by them: I should rehearse one and the fame matter too many times. Wherefore I will rather imitate their intention in each place, then bee constrained to alledge their multiplicity of words.

CHAP.

CHAP.I.

Of the Temperance in eating and drinking Wed among the Gaules : as also of theyr Marriages and lingle condition of life.

The Authou beginneth with Tempe

Chap. 1.

O enter then on the behalfe of Temperance, wee might speake of their abstinence in eating and drinking, refort to women, theyr manner of speech, their modesty in Garments and lodging their foortes, delights and afsi-

stance which they affoord to one another in such things as they have. Concerning the eating and drinking of the ancient Gaules, they lived for the most part (according to Diederus and Strabe) on white meats, and divers kinds of flesh, & principally on Porke fresh and salted. They v-fed to have standing by their fires, pottes

full of boyled flesh, and spits well loaden

with roafted flesh; the better part whereof

they would give to men of worth, to doe them honor: as Homer writes, That the Grecian Captains did to Aiax, when he had won the victory against Hetter body to body . Cafar granteth the felfe-fame manner of life to the Britaines, and to the

The eating drinking of the Ancient Gaules Diador in lib. Strabo in lib.

Hom,lliad,lib

comment lib. 6

doth fet apart fuch as are Masters, & ver= tue docth anough and make them to bee knowne. Their viands are fimply dreffed or prepared, being of wilde fruits; fometimes of fresh Venision or curded milkes without any dainty cooking or dreffing. So much for their manner of eating.

As for their drinke, that amongst the Gody the an-Gaules, and termed Zythum: This (fayth cient Gaules Diodorus) was made of barley and water, Diodor in libit hauing paffed thorowdiuers honicombs. intib.4.cap. 2. Tacitus writeth almost the very same of the Germanes, They make a drinke faith he) ofwater mingled both with barley & wheate, disguised into some resemblance of wine. They which dwell on the Seacoafts, do buy wine. The most part of the Gaules (as Diodorus & Strabo doe both Strabo in lib. 4 write) yied to fitte on the ground and to eate their food, fitting on the skinnes of Their manner Dogges or of wolues: being ferued with of earthen veffelles, which were ftrong and massine, and wrought about with branches of flowers; and they were alwayes attended and ferued by their young children. In like manner Taciens recordeth, Cornel, Tacitu That the Germans fo foone as they were of wathing awake and rifen (which they vied not to their body in do till it was day:) they laued and washed warme water. themselves with warme water, because winter continued in their region for the most part of the yeare ; and at comming foorth of the bathe, they went vnto theyr foode, each one having his table and feat alone by himselfe. Thus then was their ancient and rude simplicity, which caused corpulence & the Germanes to be fo big membred and big flature of corpulent, whereat Tacitus feemeth to the Germans and Gaules maruell greatly. And thence likewife enfued the felfe-fame greatnesse of bodye which was among the Gaules, vvho for their huge corpulency, and regarding only their owne bignesse of stature, held the imaller constitution of the Romanes in contempt, as may be seene in the 2, book of the wars in Gaul.

But Plate reprehendeth the Gaules for their intemperance and drunkennes with wine; and Diodorus writeth the very fame. neffe amongst They affected Wine fo excessively, that the Gaules. when the Merchants brought it to them, they dranke it wholly new as it was; and then becomming drunk, by having taken ouermuch, they lay downe to fleepe, or behaued themselues like mad men. And this was the reason that many of the Ita-

Intemperance

Germanes. The Britaines (faith he)which dwell furthest vp into the Countrey, the most part of them do not sowe any corne but live onely vpon milke and flesh. Neuertheleffe, they hold in deteftation (by what religious opinion I know not) to tafte of an Hare, of an Hen or Chicken, and of a Goofe. Hee faith also the very fame in his feuenth book, speaking of the Germanes; That they do not addict them felues to any kinde of labour, and that their very greatest nourishment is vppon white meats, cheese and flesh. But Tacitw hath written much more amply concerning the manner of life amongst the Germans. Each mother (faith hee) doth nurse her childe with her owne brest, and neuer trusteth it in the hands of their feruants or other Nurses. Thou canst not know the Master from the Varlet, by any kinde of more delicate feeding. They line nakedly and flouenly even amongst their Heards or droues of Cattle; & lying vpon the ground, vntill fuch time as age

Corn, Tacitus is

Dimers other compared with Calar.

2

Errorsin Greeke Au-

Cæfar follow ed as Father of the history.

thors that fol

The cheefest placesin Great Britais and Germany poffeffed by the Gaules, for nower in Italian Marchants brogh winc to the Gaules

Dioder in lib.

The Gaules hazarded their lives vp on fodaine quarrels.

Corn Taitus it

& night fpeni

mongeft the

Germanes.

lib.a.cap:5.

lian Merchants for the gaine which they of them, what might be their natural difgot both by sca and land; brought wine in great plenty thither, and for a smal vesfell of wine, receyued (in exchange) foure times the value. And the same Authour not onely blameth their drunkennes, but alfo the quarrels which accompanied this excelle. They observed (faith he)as a custome, at their feeding, for the least debate of words, to rife presently from the Table, and defie one another to the combate, hazarding their lines without any discretion. Thus you see how the Greeks haue reprooued the ancient Gaules; and Tasitus calleth the Germanes theyr Brethren in the same vice, accusing them equally to bee drunkards and quarrellers. They ysed not (faith he) any such temperance against thirst. For they held it no difhonor, to spend the whole day and night in drinking, fo they might bee fuffered to drinke their fill, furnishing them with so much as they would have: you shold find them no leffe cafe to bee conquered by their vices, then by armes. The quarrels which rose very often among them, as among people subject to Wine, was no fooner mingled with injuries of the mouth; but (for the most part) did end with blowes by the fword to the expence of their blood, yea of their liues. Such was the blame which the Germanes received by making no more account of fo bad a custome; euen as if this vice had bene no

An Order av mongest the Gauls against this badde cu-

Cafar in com-

Most valiant

& fierce peo-

But the Gaules vsed themselues in bettermanner: for by a publicke ordinance this vile behaujour (in particular persons) was verie greeuously and rigorously punished. Let vs heare then from Cafar the cause of the magnanimity of the Gaules: which was, by knowing how to keep thefelues from this diforderly kinde of life. The most magnanimous of all faith he in his first Booke, speaking of the Belgians, Celts, and Aquitanes) are the Belgians, because they are furthest off in the countrey, which is carefully husbanded, and strangers doe but sildome trafficke with them, to bring them that which serueth to no other end but to effeminate their

vice among them, or did any way shame

In the same book speaking of the Neruians, as of the most couragious of al the Belgians, he faith : Calar making enquiry position and manners, hee found, That Merchants did not trafficke with them,& that they would not fuffer (by any means) that wineshould be brought among the, or any thing that ferued for delicacy. For they held (as an infallible opinion) that Wine & wanfuch things wer the cause of abasing their hinderers of courage, & that their native vertue would manly corage thereby be much weakned. Whereby we may perceive, that the intemperance of some particular men, was condemned by a generall and publicke decree; and that fobriety & temperate carriage was greatly respected and honored in those parts. Strabe fayeth, That by the perswasion of Cenus, a graue and wife man, the Getes Strabb in lib. rent and pluckt vp all the Vines in theyr country, yet vied some wine in the time of their childrens nurfing. But our Anceftors did much better, because they would No vines plineuer permit or suffer, that any Vine ted amongst should be planted among them, or wine to be brought them from any other place. Wherefore Diederus had good reason to fay, that in his time there came no vvine at all into Gaule Comata. Cafar in his fourth Booke, maketh the Intagar in Sueues, a people of Germany, equall in comment Lib 4 Sucura, bottemperance to the Neruians that were in Gaule. For they would not fuffer that any wine should bee brought into their Rheine & the countrey, because they were perswaded, Alpes. that it made men lazie, effeminate, and vnapt to endure any labor. Thus we may obserue then, what was their sobrietie in eating and drinking, wherein their greater part of vertue is commended; for abstinence from lewd and wanton women. And albeit that Diodorus, Strabo,  Barde, grapher of famer; according as Eufebius reported; Baylon being all of them Grecian Authors, haue reproued this vice as frequent and common among the Gaules, and which is as innated (if credite may bee given to Ariflotle) in warlike actions; whereby the fa- drift: in lib. 4. ble was fained, of conjoyning Venue with de Anim cap. 9 God Mars: yet notwithstanding, Cafar speaketh nothing therof, but giveth great commendation to the Germans for their temperance, contrary to them that have written otherwise of them.

Such as haue continued in virgin estate Offuch as lithe longest while among them, and with-out the knowledge of any other but their of life. owne body, received the very greatest re-

Hered, in Terp Of the nature of Children.

> The younger men amongst the Germans

Chap. 1.

qualled theyr fathersstregth Iulius Cefar is omment.Lib.C

Young men

children e-

ued in marriages amongest the Gaules,

Offulpition concerning

The doctrine
of the Philo. phers concerning the huf-bands power. spect and praise. For they held it as a most | dren as a King. The Law truly may apvillanous thing to haueknowledge of a woman, before the age of twenty yeeres. In all which time they did not hide themfelices, but bathed daily together in the riuers. And this is the reason rendered by Herodotus, speaking of the nature of children, wherefore haire commeth much fooner to fome then it doth to others:because the vse of Venus maketh the flesh more loofe and flaggy, and openeth the skinne, which affordeth the eafter passage to the haire; contrarywife, such Children as are gelded, have never any haire at all. Tacitus hath not omitted the felfesame attribution of praise to the Germans. Youg men are long time before they have any knowledge of women : and that is an especiall reason why they lose no part of their yourhfull strength, and therefore make mothers, being yet maids. So much alfo no hast at all of parting with their virgin condition . Young Laddes, and fuch (of like stature) as are gelded, do make triall of their agility together, and their children do (commonly) partake of their Parents ftrength.

Marriages do appertaine to the rule of the fame vertue : but Cafar hath not written carefully how the Gauls observed it. The husband (faith hee) laide downe the valew of fo much goodes, as his wife brought with her, and a just account being taken thereof, the whole stocke was put together. The party that furuined, enioyed the others portion, with the reuen-newes of all that had past. The husbands are masters and commaunders of their wives lines, and also of their Childrens. When any Father of a Family (of note) dyeth, the nerest of the kindred do assemble together; and if any suspition be concevued concerning his death; the VVife is committed to tortures, as they doe theyr flaues, and if the prooue to be conuinced; after they have tormented her with fire, and all other kinds of paines, they put her to death. This law may feeme hard, that giueth the husband fuch like power ouer the wife and children, as he hath ouer his flaues. For, according as the Philofophers have taught vs: the father of the family giueth command to his wife & children, as vnto free persons. Yet this is not all as one kinde of command: for hee giueth command to his wife as to one of & fuch as are of most forward disposition the same Commonwealth, & to his chil- the Father hath care of that they may re-peare to be hard, and yet it is Roman, euen the like as Romalus made, Ordayning; That the fonne should bee in his fathers power all his life; and that the father may fathers. chastife, beate, put him to any busines in the field, fell, or kill him. The fame King also appointed. That a man might punnish his wife, if the had drunke any wine. Cafar speaketh all this in his fixt booke: and in his fift hee declareth divers other fashions of behaujour in marriages, speaking of the Britaines.

dred are present thereat, and allow of all presents passing between them. And they are no presents denised for delicacie or delight of women, nor to repaire a new owne behalfe) presenteth him with some weapons of warre. This is the great marriage bond, these are accounted facred mysteries, & these are the conjugal gods ceined and taken to be her husbads companion in all paines and dangers, and that

(be it either peace or warre), thee must of necessity runne the same fortune. And these are plainly signified vnto her by the coupled Oxen, the furnished horse, and warlike weapons. She receiveth what the

is to bestow on her children after that she hath worthily and holily nurfed them vp:

that they hold in reuerence.

Ten or twelue together (faith he) do pally brethren with their brethren, and amongst the hold their wives in common, and princifathers with their daughters. And fuch as are born of them, are anoughed for children of them that have espoused their

he relateth of the English . But Taciones Cornelius Taciwriting of the Germaines, glueth them In praife of most noble commendation in this point. the Germans, The wife (faith hee) neuer offereth anie dowry to the husband, but the husband to the wife. The parents, coufins, & kinintended marriage: but they are a gift of Oxen yoaked, a horfe brideled and furni- Prefents give flied, & a Buckler or Target, with a fword vnto the new and Iaucline. For these presents the hufband taketh his wife; who likewife (on hir

And to the end that the wife may not Aduertifethinke her felfe exempted from vertuous wifefrom the deffeignes, nor the hazards of warre: from day of hir mathe very beginning of her marriage the is riage. continually advertised, that she is thus re-

Education of

| femble (in good quality) others of theyr | 3, And Casar speaketh thereof in his seachastity well defended; not being corrupted by any occasions, nor the fight of wanton pastimes, or beeing present at

fhed by theyr husbands for adultery

No pardon dultery.

Vices not ie-

Commendation of marri age making,

Against mu thering of Children or Kindred.

Diodor in lib.4 of speaking a-mongst the Feafts or bankets.

There are very few adulteries commit-Women puni- ted in so great a Nation; for the punishment thereof is very speedy, and the hufband may lawfully do it . After hee hath thauen and stript her naked, the husband bringeth her forth of his house, in the prefence of all his and her neerest Kindred . and beateth her with a bastinado thorow all the streetes; for there is no allowance of any pardon after that a wife hath blemithed her honor; and neither her beauty, youth, or riches can afterward winne her another husband. Vices serue not there to be laughed and iested at: & one m w well (av. That (there) is fuch a world. as neith a permitteth the doing or induring of any diffolutenesse. Those Commonweales are the best ordered, wherein is such permission, that the Maides onely finde themfelues husbands, and mariage confifteth in mutuall accord(for a long while) in goodhope, and that the Bride may have her hearts defire. For in this cafe the taketh her husband as one & the felfesame body, and one life is allowed by them both: because they can have no contrary thoughts, neither theyr defires any way wandering, but their affections doe fo simpathize, as not in either to husband or wife, but to the fanctity of marriage. It is helde as a very great offence to procure the death of any of their children, or of their kindred : And there good customes do beare more sway, then good Lawes and Ordinances doe elfewhere. Hitherto haue wee continued the writing of Tacitus, concerning the Ger-manes marriages. Diodorus reprehendeth the Gaules for a certaine kinde of difordered behaujour in their speaking, saying; They vse a shore kinde of speech, somewhat hard to be vnderstood, and without any deliberation; speaking great store of doubtfull things, yet deliuering many bragging and vaunting words; much to commend thefelues and in the contempt of others. They are threatners and bad speakers, and full of ouerweening. This vauntery of theirs hath

likewise beene reprodued by Strabo in lib.

diuers examples in his other books. Such is that whereof hee speaketh in his first booke, of Divisionus the Heluctian, who Divisionus the highly extolled and vaunted the vertue of Heluetian the Heluctians, and reproached the difcomfiture of the Romanes, admonithing Cafar by menaces to beware of any further attempting; for feare, least the place where the Romanes miscarried, by a further loffe of their people, after the foiling of their whole Army, should take name thereby, and so remaine as a memorie of their diferace.

Such also was Arionistus, King of the Arionistus K. Germans, who answering litle or nothing mans. to matters which Casar demanded of him; spake wonders of his owne valour, and that he neuer buckled with any man, but he was ruined. And Cafar might com to fight when soeuer he pleased, but he should learne of the Germaines, that they were a people neuer vanquished, and skilfull enough in actions of armes. Vercingetorix also vanted in his oration, that hee would make a League with all the Gaules, and then all the world durft not make head against them. This is sufficient concerning this matter; I come now to speake of the care which they had of their

CHAP.II.

How the Gaules veed to weare their Haire and what kinde of garments they wied. with the painting of their bodyes, their Coines & c.

Gaules, fayth; Albeit, that How the naturally they have good-ly lockes of hayre, yet doe they helpe the naturall colour thereof, by an instrument properly denised for that purpole. They twine and twift theyr bushie lockes together, and suffer them to hang dangling downe, cuen from the forchead to the necke : so that they resemble Satyres, and young vnshorne boyes. They haue practifed by Art, to make their haire

Iul.Caf. in com.

Strabo in Lib.

Chap. 1. thicke and hard, that little difference ap- | all paint themselves with an hearb, called peareth betweene theirs and the haire of a horfe. Taciens speaketh (wel-neere) the cornel. Tacitus

Died in Lib. 5 How the Gaules wore their beards. and fome o ther apparre ubisupra. How the Sucues did weare their

Of the Lords

amongst the

haire.

fame of the Sneues, a people of Germany. But the especiall note of that Nation is, that they turne their haire croffe or ouerthwart, and then binde or truffe it vp in a knot. In this manner are the Sueues knowen among all the other Germaines, and free-men of the Countrey from flaues. Some of the Samues do weare their havre long, and briftling backward with a bending downe, and so they go till they bee hoary or white; and then (oftentimes) they binde it together on the crowne of the head. The Lords are no more respe-Ctiue of their own persons, and yet without any proud or bad intention: For it is not done in regard that they affect or couet to be affected; but they doe onely fo decke themselves, to appeare the more fierce and terrible vnto theyr enemies, when occasion calleth them foorth to Diedorus proceedeth on in this maner, concerning the behautour of the Gaules. Some of them (faith he) doe vie to shaue their beards but others do weare them of fome length. The Gentlemen do cutte fuort the haire on their cheekes, & fuffer their beards to grow to fuch length, as it will couer all their bodie. They weare alfo a kinde of garment, which is all hairie, to feeme the more dreadfull and terrible. confifting of diuers colours, and tearmed by them Braccates. They have long skirted lackets or Cassockes, rewed or streaked, beeing of the very courfest Cloath, which they vie for winter, and the most simple or flenderest for summer. Diederus The reason o speaketh thus of the Braccates, as the reacalling Gaule fon whereby the Romans called that part of Gaule Braceata, and by which garment the fame Authour affirmeth, That the Gaules were more terrible to beholde. Strabe likewise writeth in his fourth book concerning their haire, their Cassockes, their rude and hairy garments, their long high breeches, & their short open cloaks which hardly conered halfe theyr Buttockes. All these Authors do agree together, as touching the haire of the Gaules Tilus Liui. dec. and Germaines, and to be of a redde cothe Germains, writing trus. 1 doubt with Gorden com. doru have written. Calar speaking of the specific contrary, because they denied them of the contrary, because they denied them.

by them*G/aftum, which caufeth a blewish 1 The Hearbe or azure colour: and this made them very dreadfull to looke on, when they went to any fight. Moreouer, they wore their lockes of haire very long; shauing off all their other haire except that on the head, and on the vpper lip.

Diodorus purfuing his purpose concerning the Gaules, figureth them forth (asit No shuerin al were with golde) in this manner. The the countrey whole Countrey of Gaule is without the of Gaule, but mettall called Silver : but nature hath giuen it gold without any labor or cunning endeauour. For, in regard that the most part of the rivers have their courses verie troublesome, vneasie in passing, & wheeling or circkling in wide compasse: the waters which descend from the hilles and mountaines, by dispersing themselves abroad in the valleyes, do featter a fand on the fields, which is mingled with golde. How they ga Afterwardes, kneading or tweaking the therebeir clods together, wherein they difcerne the gold amongst golde to fine, and permitting them to adorne thembecome hard they then breake them in felues there peeces, and when they have washed it in with. water, and the earth is quite taken away. they hurle the rest into a furnace, and so melt it in that manner. When they have thus moulten and drawne out the golde pure and cleane, the women and men do adorne themselves therewith: for they weare it in rings on their fingers, and in bracelets about their armes, and in Carcanets on their brests,& in chaines about their neckes, and about their middles as golden girdles. Polybius also maketh mention in his fecond booke, of their Chaines and Bracelets. And Serabo in his 4-booke Strabo in Lib.4 fpeaketh of their Mines of gold, whereof the cheefest are in the Country of "Thre of Gascoigne, bells: and hee attributes this Ornament neere to the only vnto fuch as were in honor and dig-Pyrenean Mountaines nitic.

But Cafar and Tacitus do speake of an- Iul. Cafar in other manner of want or pouerty (of this Com.lib.7 magnificence) amongst the Germaines. They vie (faieth Cafar) skinnes in their garments, and short cloakes made of furred skins, having the greater part of their body naked. But Tacitus speaketh more Corn. Tacit. amply, concerning the whole manner of in lib.6.c.3.

Woade, view by Dyers.

the

Chap. 3.

among the

Their Caues

uer held in no more accoun then the like

The Serrati 8

Bigati wer mo

the ancient

Romanes.

the mettals of gold and filter. Notwithstanding. I will not set it downe affuredly but that there may bee some veine of gold or filuer in Germany: yet who (at any time) hath made fearch for it? They haue no fuch affection thereto, as to apply it to any feruice. Som veffels of filuer haue beene found amongst them (which haue bene giuen to their Ambassadors.or to their Princes) and ver to be held in no more esteeme or reckoning, then those that are made of earth. Neuertheles they that dwell much neerer to vs, in regard that they have trafficked with our people: do make more esteeme of gold and filuer, allowing and commending fome pecces of our monies. They that live further off in the Countrey, doe deale more fimply, and (according to the most ancient manner) make their trafficke by exchange. They receive the old mony, and fuch as they have had longest knowledge of, as the Serrati and Bigati. They loue the coin of filuer better then that of gold; not that they beare therto any particular affection but because the filter money is cafiest for them in buying things common, and offmallest price. The viuall habit or garment to them all, is a long skirted lacket or Cassocke which they fasten together with a buckle, but (for want thereof) with a great pin. The rest of the body is not conered with any thing, and they fit the most part of the day vpon the hearth, somewhat neere to the fire. Such as are of greatest wealth, doe differ from the other in their garments, which are not fo ample or large as those of the Sarmases, or of the Parthians : but justly fitted to the body, and fuch as maketh apparant thew of enery meber. They wear the skins of wild beafts, and fuch as dwell neerest to the rivers, are most curious of their habit: but they of more remote abiding, vie no great curiofity, as being leaft carefull what they weare, because they live so far from strangers. When they have made choise of their beasts skinnes, they do the like of fithes, taking fuch as are the greateft, or as the Ocean and most vnknowne

Seas do yeeld, and fullest of spots, and so they fowe them together. The Women are no otherwise habited then the men:

but that the women are oftner conered

with a garment of linnen, inter-wouen

with a scarlet colour. They care for no fleeues on the height of their armes, but are naked downe from the very shoulders and part of the breaft (neerest adjoyning) is as nakedly discouered. Thus you see the gayest brauery of the Gaules, & how simple the Germans are in their garments: it remaineth now that we fav fomewhat of their houses and dwellings.

CHAP. fl.

Of the houses and dwellings of the Gaules: their Townes and villages, and of what manner they were.

He habitations of the Gauls (according as Strabe fayth) Of their hon. (according as Strabo fayth) Of their boal are wide and spacious, made of earth and planchers of strabo in the wood,&couered with strong reeds arched on the top together in form of a vault : for fo Cafar in the fift booke of the Gaules warres faith. That the Lod- Iul Cafin com gings of 2. Cicero in the fields, were co- Lib.5. uered with straw and reeds, according to the manner of the Gaules. And in his fixt booke he sheweth, that the more part of Lib.6. the Mannor-houses appertaining to the gentlemen Gaules, were in the woods, or on the riners. Speaking of the house of Ambiorix, which was altogether engirt with woods; As were wel-nere al (fayth he) the houses of the Gauls are, who to thun the heate do dwel in woods, and neere to rivers. Cæfar deliuereth plainly, that the Aquitaines, Celts and first Belgians, had their Cities and Townes enclosed both with Of their first walles and ditches; but it may be doubted Townes. whether the like provision was vsed among the Gaules further off, and fuch as were necreft to the North; as the a Morini, b Aduatiques, c Menapians, and d Ebu-

Cæfar declareth, That the most part of in France. thefe Belgians, are descended of the Ger- c Inhabiting maines, and faith, that the Germains had not their Townes and Villages made aft to the Vbii. ter our manner : as may bee obserued by that which Tacitus hath written according to the custome which they had in Luke, beyond his time.It is fufficiently known (faith he) Brabant, that the German people dwell not in any mib.5.

and storehou les of Corne under ground

Iul.Cafar in Com.Lib.6.

Corn. Tacit.

Towns.

by the British

Of the Mort. i, that made war, contrarie to all the o-ther Gaules.

Oftowns belonging to the Belgians

to have their houses necre vnto one another. They dwell diftant on apart, feattetheir building ringly. where wither rivers, fieldes, or woods do best content them. Their Villages are not after our fashion: for their houses do not touch or joynembere each other. Euery one leaueth a great wide distance or compasse about his dwelling: either to avoid the difastrous fortunes of fire, or elfe because they know not how to build better. They vie neither Morter nor Tiles : but the matter which doeth them feruice, is very rude, and is not prepared either for beauty or pleasure... They plaifter some places much more respectively. with a kinde of earth fo cleane & thining, as it feemeth to contend with painting & portraitures of colours. They were wont to make caues vnder the ground, and couered them with thicke clods of dung. to withdraw themselues thither in the winter time, and therein also to hide theyr Corne because in such places, the colde weather had not fo great power, & when the enemy came, hee could make pillage of nothing, but what hee found readily discouered. As for that which was thus hidden or buried, Theeues not knowing thereof, would bestow the lesse paines & fearch, in further enquiry after it . Calar speaketh (almost) as much of the Britains. They tearned it a Towne (faith he) when they had enclosed some tuffy wood with ditches and pales; whereinto they were wont to retire themselues, to shunne the courses of their enemies. And whereas Cafar speaketh sometimes of certaine Townes of the Suenes: in mine opinion . heeis so to be understood.

> Returne we now to the townes of the Belgians, which are vp higher in the contry, and heere my question is: VV hether they had any such Townes as the Britains or no? We will first of all speake of the Morini, who (according as Calar writeth) beganne to make war, but in a quite contrary manner then the other Gaules. For they having heard, that the very greatest in the security of the place, withdrew Nations which had hazarded battel, were quite defeated and conquered : withdrew themselues & their goods into the strongest places, which were great and long forrests, encompassed with fenny or marthy grounds. Cafar being come vnto the entrance of some such forrest, and having sage, gaue them assault three severall owne negli-

Townes, neither that they could endure | concluded there to tortifie his campe; as the komanes were feriously imployed about their busines; the enemy (of whom they had no doubt at all) fallied forth vp. on them unprovided, at most places of the wood, and charged the Romanes very tharply. Heerenpon, they berooke them to their Arines, and repulfed them backe Romanes and into the wood, and having flaine a great were repulled number of them, purfued them thorough many vneafie places, yet with very little loffe of their people. The next day following, Cafar determined to fell down the Forrest, and suspecting least some harme might be done by the Flankers to Soldiers vnarmed : he caused al the trees which were hewne downe, to bee made as ram= piers against the enemy, and to serue as defences on either fide.

> Hauing made a great spacious countrey (in few dayes) by incredible diligence, after that the Romaines had made themselues Maisters of the cattle & baggage which was in the rereward; they Casar & his gage which was in the recewant; withdrew themselues into the thickest of men pursue the Mortalinite for the Forrest the men and them to the Forrest themselves the men and themselves the forrest themselves the forest themse wood of the Morini, which ferued them as a Towne or Village. And the yeare after; in regard of the drought which had dried up all the Marishes (as is to be seene Int. Cafar in. in his fourth booke) they having no more Com, lib.4. refuges to flye vnto as they had the yeare before, were (almost all of them) (ubdued by Labienus. In these two warres hee maketh no mention of any other Townes, then of woods and marithes.

The like is affirmed of the Menapians, Of the Menain those Countries where the Romaine pians. Legions were broght, under the conduct Int. Cafar in of Fabius and Cotta, as it is fet downe alfo Com. lib. 4. in his fourth booke. They made fpoyle in the fields, destroyed the Corne, fet the houses on fire; and all this happened, because the Menspians had hid themselves in the thickest Forrests. Afterward Cafar himselfe came to them with fine legions. But they (as Cafar faith) not having gathered any forces together, trufting only themselves into the woods and marishes, and carried thither their goods alfo. Ca far having divided his powers with C. Thefratagem Fabius, who was his Lieutenant, and M. of Caffus Treaforer of his wars, and hauing sinfth the mapian, tho also sodainely prouided bridges for past- rough theyr wayes:

skins of wilde beafts, and of

They weare

What garmen did wear

amage that

Of the Nerui-Com. Lib. 2.

10

The Neruian had no walled townes or v lages of de-

1ul_Cafin com

Cæfar againft

wayes, and burning their houses and vil- | or villages in those times , but like them lages, made himfelfe Master of a great number of men and cattle. The Menapians feeing themselves in this diffresse: were constrained to send Ambassadours, also there is no name of any village, or pregnant appearance that there were any but fuch as wee haue alreadie fooken

By due observation of this discourse. appear to be even the like. The Nervians (this speaketh Casar in his second booke) from all antiquity, not having any power of horsemen (for even to this day they do not addict their mindes thereto, but all the strength which they have consisteth onely in footemen) to the end they may impeach and withstand the horsemen of vpon them, to rob and spoile them, cutting downe yong trees that had shot forth strong branches, they twined them together, and interweauing briars and thorns among them, they wrought them fo artificially, that thefe hedges or fences ferued them as a wall; wherein not onely a man could not enter, but also he was vnable to fee or difeerne any thing.

In the fame warre of the Wernians, the women,& fuch as(in regard of their age) were not feruiceable for bearing armes, had neuer any Village or Town for their fafety, which was engire with wals; but in fuch a place where there was no coming or entrance for an Army, because of the marish grounds, which were the onely hinderance.

Now, in this first warre agaynst the Neruians, wee may plainly perceive that they had not any Towne enclosed with wals : and we may well credit it by that which is in the fixt booke. For Celar hauing affembled foure Legions with all possible diligence, entred (vnawares) into the Country of the Neruians, and before they could either draw their strength together, or tell how to faue themselves rafter hee had furprized a great number of men, and heards of Cattle, and dispersed the booty to his Soldiers; he layde waste their fields, and compelled them to yeeld and deliuer him hostages. This passage likewise of the Nerusans, yeeldeth great coniecture, that they had no other towns of the Britaines.

It may appeare also, that the Aduati- Of the Adua cases (by that which Cafer writeth in his tiquer. fecond booke) have had the like townes. humbly to entreate peace. In this place | Hauing for faken (faith he) al their townes | Com.lib.2 and Castles, they brought all their goods into a village, which was wonderfully ftrong by naturall fituation. For, having (on al fides about it)huge rocks & downfalles of exceeding height, it had but one perhaps the villages of the Nervians will onely comming to it, which was hanging or descending downward, yet in a sweete and gentlemanner, being in breadth no more then two hundred foote. This way or paffage they had fortified with a double wall, of very great he ight, & the fame was strengthened in many places with mighty huge stones, and sharpe-pointed beames or pyles. Heere Cafar describeth their neighbours, if they make any inrode nothing but a wall onely, and on one fide of the Towne. And the like may be eafily prooued in the Nation of the Eburones: who are also called Germaines by Calar Of the Ebuin his fecond booke. These men, under the last of in con. conduct of King Ambierix, had ouercom Lib. 2. Sabinus and Cotta, with fifteene Companies, neere to Vatuqua, as it is fet downe in the fift booke. Cafar who had never receiued a greater iniurie, determined to mination for be reuenged for this loffe, and vtterly to abolish and ruinate the nation of the E-the Eburenes burones, as we may reade in the 6. booke. Therefore he fent Bafilus on before with the whole band of horse, and leaving alegion for guard of the baggage; he divided the other nine into three Regiments, to ouerrunne and make spoile of the whole Countrey. He caused Labienus to march The seuerall with three Legions along by the Ocean, Legions committed to Latoward that part which joyneth vnto the bienus and Menapians. Hee fent Trebonius with the Trebonius. fame number of Legions, to facke that Countrey which was neerest to the Adu. atiques. Himselfe, accompanied with the three other Legions, stayed to go toward the river Sabis, and the vemoit parts of the Fortest of " Ardene.

The Eburones not having any certaine miles in Army, neither garrison, or any Towne length, reach wherein they might defend themselves ing from the by Armes, and the whole popularity be- to the City of ing fcattered enery where abroadiretized Tourney. themselues to such places as were obscure valleyes, or wilde and fauage, or vyhere the moorish Fennes made a troublesome with fome imaginary hope, that thus they might defend and faue themselves. Calar The great de-fire of Cæfar, to be reuenin this fiery heate of reuenge, perceyuing the great danger which might enfue, by ed on the E having thus separated his Legionaries; called all the neere-neighbouring Citties (in hope of booty) to come and make pillage of the Eburones, to the end, that the race and name of them might bee veterly confounded. And because he could not (as yet) appeale his thirsting soule by such spoile as he had made, which indeed was very great, he put himfelfe once more on his way, to give further vexation to his enemies, affembling infinite troopes of people from all the Townes & neere adioyning parts, and fo fent them outward by fundry wayes. They burned all the villages, and enery house that they could finde standing . The selfesame defire of vengeance (as is to bee seene in his eight booke) enflamed him the third time, and the like waste he made : neuerthelesse, he speaketh not of any rampier, or of any ditch belonging vnto Towne or Village. Whereby may justly bee obserued, that the Belgians as they were descended of the Germaines, fo in like manner they had the same order of dwelling.

Thoght now obe the

The Bellouafi, or Bellouafians in like fort, albeit that they were the very principal of the Belgians, as wel in regard of their vertue and authority, as for the great number ofmen amongst them: yet it appeareth, that they were no straungers to this cuftome : for in the first warre, he speaketh not but of one Towne or Village, named * Brattufpancium; in the other warres, hee maketh no mention of any one. This may feeme to be spoken sufficiently enough, concerning the habitations of the Belgi-

Of sports and ecreations a

CHAP.IIII.

Of the Humanity, Liberalsty, Hospitality, & Courtefie of the Gaules to Brangers, and care for benefiting each other equally.

Finde nothing written in Cafar, of the playes, fports, & pastimes of the youth among the Gauls. As for the Germans, accesse to them; these presented them | Tacit is writerh thus. They had but one onely kind of spectacle in every aslembly yong boies that conceined delight in this fport, would run or leape forth violently (and flarke naked) before fwords & lauelines directed against them. This exercise grew to be an ort, and Art made it verie gracefull in them: yet what they did, was not for any lucre, gaine, or wages; but the onely recompence of this their audacious gallantry, was, to bee pleafing in their eyes that beheld them. They would Deforate & play(being in very stayed and setled judge dangerous ment) at fuch desperate games of hazard and dangerous aduenture, as would make a man blush to stand and looke on, and they performed their intentions in fuch carnettest earnest manner, as if they were at strife for some matter of great moment: yea, fuch was their affection to the gaine or loffe, as after they had nothing els to con tend for : they would ftrine about the very last hazard, laying downe their own liberty and persons in pawne. Whosocuer loft himfelfe, would yeelde to the others feruitude, with his ownekinde confent: And albeit hee were never fo young and strong, yet (in regard of his losse) he wold fuffer himselfe to be bound and sold. For fuch was their wilfull obstinacy, that they would lay down faith vpon the very leaft occasion.

But who focuer would take note of the Humanity, li great humanity, liberality, and courtefy, berality, and courtefy both as well in the Gaules as in the Germains, in the Gaules let him read what followeth. They would and Germans inuite ftrangers(this speaketh Diodorus of the Gaules) to feast with them. And after nature was fufficed, they would enquire what people they were, and what occasion drew them thither. But Cafar and Tacitus gineth this commendation vnto the comment Lib s Germaines, by writing much more am. Corn. Tacit. ply. They make it a matter of great Con- in lib.7. science (saith Casar) to offer any outrage to strangers, who, be it for what cause soener they come amongst them, yet they will defend them from all injuries, and thinke them to be facred people, each one allowing them part of his house, & yvhat-focuer he had to live on. Taritas writerh

Iulius Cafar in

to any commer; for each man will Feast | gers.

in this manner. There is not any Nation | The love and more addicted to make good chear together, and feast strangers. They doe make which they afgreat conscience in denying house-room ford to stran

No differenc betweene a known friend & a stranger

he hath no further meanes, he that is the Hofte, enftructeth him to another mans dwelling; and thereinto (without any further bidding)they enter both togither, euen the neerest house they come vnto; where their entertainment is vovde of all difficulty, and vsed with extraordinarie courtefie. As concerning the rites of hofpitality they make no difference between him that is knowne, and another that is vnknown. At his departure, if he defireth any thing, it is their order and custom to grant it : as they will doe the like when it falleth to their turne. They take great delight in giuing gifts : but will receyue no recompence for whatfocuer they give, or think themselues indebted or beholding for any thing that they receive. This is a testimony of their worthy hospitality, & I am of the minde, that fo great an honor descrueth not to be forgotten, as Germany iustly deserueth in regard of this Ver-

Arist intib.4. Riches & pouerty the twe principall plagues vnto mankinde. Plato in Lib.d. Legib.cap.9.

Inl.Caf. in con

The order of the Germain holding of their Landes.

Inlius Cafar in Com lib a him according to his power: And when Phaleas the ChalceJonian, did first publish in the Commonwealth (as Aristotle affirmeth) that goods might bee equally divided to the end, that the two principall plagues to mankinde (which are ri= ches and pouerty) might be banisht from the Citty. And this is that which Plate (most of all other) wished for the grounded estate of a happy Commonwealth. But the Germains neuer fixed their imaginations on fuch a most fortunate Commonwealth, by disputes and discourses onely; but accomplished and brought it to effect by their owne good customs and honest examples. For some of them (as Cafar anougheth in his fixt booke, fpeaking of the Germaines) had not any certain measure of land, or any particular limitation: but the Princes and Magistrates affigned enery yeare (both to kindreds and parentages, who were acknowledged and placed together) somuch ground or land, and fuch a fite or fituation, as vnto them feemed best and convenient; & the yeare following, they were constrained to seeke elsewhere. In his fourth booke, hee fayth as much of the Surues, another people of Germany. They had no land which they held in particular, or divided among the: neither were they permitted to tarry longer then a yeare in a place, to Til or make it husbandable. This is the equality of goods, which then was among the Ger- | Equality of maines.

And they rendered great store of reafons for this equality, as the same Author witnesseth in his fixt booke, viz. Fearing maines, for least beeing retained by an accustomed their equality continuance in one quarter, they should The first. forfake the profession of warre, & follow the other more beneficial kind of life. Fea- The fecond. ring, least they should withdraw their minds from the enlarging and extendure of their bounds or limits: and growing to be too potent in strength, they should oueraweand expell the weaker from their goods. Fearing also, least they should be ouer curious in building to defend themfelues against cold and hear, and so proue to be starke Cowards. Fearing beside lest The fourth. a wicked couetous desire should arise among them, of scraping and gathering goods together: wheron (custommarily) insueth threatnings, differtions, & blood.

Also, to the end that the popular fort The s, and last might bee contained within a reasonable contentment of mind, when the meanest perceived his goods to be cough with the most powerfull. This is (in effect) the words of Cæfar, touching the qualitie of goods vsed then among the Germaines: and when the Greekes come to compare of with him, in commending this manner of with Cxfars behauiour either in the Cretanes or La- words. conians; all that they could auouch or fay, was; to terme this worthy and extraordinary vertue, to be no more then meer barbaroufneffe.

Scruitude or bondage was in vie aswel among the Germaines and Gaules, as in other Nations. Many men (10 speaketh Cæsar in his sixt booke, discoursing on laukes, and suckers in the same of the same o the Gauls (finding themselves to be char- comment Lib 6 ged either with debts, or taxations, or iniuries of the mightier fort) did veild them felues into feruitude or flauery of Gentlemen, who had the felfefame right ouer them, as Masters had over their slaves. It should seeme, that this Masterie or command was cruell, as well as that whereof Titus Liuius recounteth in his 2. booke, Titus Liuius in to be vied in Rome, after that the Kings Libra. dec. 1. were expelled thence, when the commotion of the bondmen was on foote. For they were then controlled and handled by their Masters, as the bodies of debrers were by their creditors, who were parted (as Quintillian writeth in the fixt chapter

The reasons

The third.

The humani y and libera lity of the yond that of he Romaine

Chap.5.

The Roman

12. Tables.

Dieder in L.

Corn,Tacitus

Of the flaues

Of feruices

of his third booke) or divided betweene the creditors, according to the law of the twelve Tables. And that Law(as himfelfe faith) which naturally was not to bee allowed, and yet (notwithstanding) permitted as in right, was reprehended by publicke custome, and oftentimes (to remedy the same in meere pitty) the Commonwealth granted Letters of respite, abolithing extorting interests, and making a new obligation for the principall.

But the Gaules vsed much greater humanity and liberality then the Romaines did : because the Masters kept in honourable place, and about their persons, such as thus stoode obliged to them, and they vsed their seruice also in their warres. Wherefore it appeareth, that that which Diodorus wrote, differed not from this purpose, where he faith: They employed as guards and defenders of their bodyes, fuch as (among freemen) were poore and needy, and they ferued them as Esquires and Armor-bearers in the warre. Tacitus reporteth almost the very same custome as was yfed by the Gaules, when he focaketh of the flaues among the Germaines. They do not vie their flaues (faith hee) as we do ours, appointing them certain offices in our houses: for every one serveth himfelfe, and gouerneth his houshold affaires. The Mafter chargeth his flaue with certaine measures of Corn, or with some Cattle, or with some kinde of cloth: euen as we do our Farmers or Husbandmen, and the scruant obeyeth him not but in fuch bufineffe. If he would have any matter done in his house, his wife and Children performeth it. It fildome or neuer hapneth, that a mafter doth beat his flaue or bindeth him, or enforceth and constraineth him to any businesse. They had a custome to kil them, yet not by any maner of rigorous or seuere chastisement; but in choller, as an enemy, and done in the case of some reuenge. Freemen had they were to bear Armes, neither in what Case, no more aduantages then feruants. Sel-

house, and neuer vuto the managing of Commonwealth affaires: except among fuch Nations, as were in obedience to a king, and there they mounted higher then Freemen, or then Gentlemen. Among other Nations, libertines being not receiued into the like dignities as the free, made distinction of their liberty.

nefit then ferdom or rarely were they aduanced in the CHAP. V.

How the Gaules wied to educate and bring vo their children. Of their corage, manhood, and valour in Armes and martial exerciles.

of their admirable stature : whereat Cafar was much amazed, when hee beheld the

Hese then were the maners and temperance of the ancient Gaules, which fertued of the from their difpolitions which fertued their difficulty to maintain their difpolition & ftrength of body, and (doubtleffe) was the caule of their admirable desarrange.

Gaules which were flaine in the warres of Affrica: you have also heard some part of their liberality, in the administration of their goods, for the relecte of others ne cessities. But there remaineth much more to fay, if wee would enter into discourse, concerning all the parts of their mahood The manand valiancy: were it in confidering the hood & valor exercise of their youth, or their earnest & of the ancient violent defire in following armes, and the Nations which have beene conquered by them, and the Colonies established thoroughout the world, onely in the name of the Gaules. The Gaules (thus faith Ca- cafar incom-(ar in his fixt booke) helde this as a difference from others, in their manner of behaujour, to wit; That they would never permit their children to come openly before them, vntill they were of able yeares to beare Armes. And they held him to be a villaine, whose some (being vnder limited yeares) should be found in publike must make search into other Authors. Tacitus, speaking of the Germaines, Corn. Tacit. would have vs to know at what time they in lib. 5.c.7. came vnto the service of the Commonwealth. They observed as a custom (faith At what time he) that no one should undertake the profession of Armes, vntill the Common-monwealthin wealth had approued and allowed his fuf-ner.

before his fathers face. Cafar speaketh this

neuertheleffe hee giveth not fufficiently Somewhat oexercise their infancy was imployed, vntill this date of expectation, therefore we

A Garment which the Ro maines did al in peace.

Arift in Polit. Lib.8.cap.2.

barbarous

propie.

This was the * Toga or Gown which they tooke, and this was the first degree of honor, wherunto their yong men mounted. Before, and till this dignity was done to them, they were but as a member of the house onely: but afterward, they appertained to the Commonwealth. Aristotle, who wrote long time before Cafar, declarethypto vs this manner of education of children (for it feemeth in the 8. Booke of his Politicks) that hee learned this instruction of vs. It is necessary (faith he) to accustome and vie the very yongest children to indure cold weather: for it profiteth maruellously, as well, for the disposition of the body, as for manly cariage in war. Aristotle cal-And this was the reason, why some barled the Celtes barous people (as the Celts) observed it as a custome, to plunge their young Infants (fo foone as they were borne) in the coldest water of the river, or els to cloath them in light garments. For, to whatfoeuer thing youth ought to apply it felf, this is the best courfe; to accustom them there to (by little and little) from their yongest houre, and when they are tender; because of the heate which is naturally in them, & therefore the first thing to be done, is to be carefull in this one point.

Aristotie in this place calleth the Celts themselves after their manner. I know our, when in the first booke of his Go-uernment of health, and instructing how which he writes of is neither for the Germaines, or for any other fuch fauage and barbarous men; no more then for Beares, wilde Boares, Lions, or fuch other beafts.

Iknowe (Ifay) that Galen reprehendeth

this custome severely; but I know likewife, that the yong nice delicates of the Greekes, whom Galen striueth to please,

in prescribing them an order for theyr health: haue beene quite deuoured by these Lyons (as he tearmeth them) and that the Gaules and Germanes, if they be the yong man with a fhield and a Iauelin.

Aristotle com barbarous, and yet hee accounteth not mendeth the Celes customs their customes barbarous; in regard that to the Greek hee appointeth the Greekes to fashion that Galen sharply reproueth this behaui-

Galenin Gub.

Galens reprehension of the Germains compared with the Greeks, may in good ficiency. Then, in the martiall Confistoright be called Lyons. rie, either some one of the Princes, or his Father, or els his neerest Kinsman, armed

And truly, Lacedemon, which was the Lacedemon most noble of all the Grecian Cities, was shaped it selfe principally renowned for being fludious in hardning it felfe to trauaile, after the office Celea. true manner of the Celts. For the youths of Sparta, did dayly imbolden themfelues against al manner of paines and exercises: neuer entering into the especial assembly, before the age of twenty yeares, as Plu-tarch recordeth in the life of Lyeurgus. Plut in vit. 13. Wherefore, not onely the power of this carg. vertue, which was in the Gauls and Germaines, but (ouer and belide) the authority of Aristotle, as also of Lacedemon (if any man be regardfull thereof) may well ferue to answer the reasons of Galen. VV e may also inferre (to this purpose) that which Strabe hath written, when he faith The Gaules held this as proper and peculiar to them, to refuse no taking of pains, Strabo in Lib. as fearing to becom fat and fwoln bellied by ease : therfore they punished and condemned vnto some pecuniary fine, such ous & painful yong men as grew groffe through floath and excesse. Whereunto that ordinance of the Romaines was conformeable; that depriued any fat or corpulent Knight, of Knights had publike Horthe Horse graunted him by publique al- fee allowed Now it is further to be confidered, that The German

teth in his fixt book) they addicted them felues to paines taking, and imployed (al-

their hornes to publicke view, as a testimony of their diligence, received both reward and great praise. This yeeldeth fufficient demonstration, how the young men prepared their spirits, to endure all to order health, he saith. I am not of the most) their whole life time, either in hun-minde, that Children should onely bee ting, or seas of warre. They had diuers this exercise was not onely proper or pe- brethren to culiar vnto the Gaules : but it was in like the Gaules, common vie with the Germaines theyr brethren, as Galen himfelfe hath elfwhere declared, Let vs listen then to Cafar, who Jul. Cafar in heerein giueth them sufficient commen- Com. Lib.6. dation. From their infancy (this hee wri-nursed among the Germaines. Also, that kinds of wilde beasts, in the Forrest cal- woodin Ger led*Hercynia: as wilde Bulles, *Alees, but many, in especially Buffles, which they tooke with bredth nine great labour in their dens or ditches, and and in length which had flaine most of them, bringing low Deere.

Of the Ancient Gaules. Chap. 6.

paine and labour, and fell not off for any I ther cause of their valor, that continually danger: as having learned, though not of great and skilfull Doctors, which were best able to give them instructions ; yet (at least) of their owne selues, and so put it in effectuall execution. Let vs now obserue what they were in actions of warre, and as the Poet faveth; The brane workemanshippe of Mars, be-The Gauli wer alwayer in accause the Gauls were perpetually in warion of arm.

For, before Casar came thinher (as hee hath written in his fixt booke) it hapned cuery yeare, that either they affailed o-thers, or else were glad to defend them-

sclues; and it was casily knowne, that by a custome among the Gaules, age was no excuse to any man, as appeareth by diuers passages in the eight booke. Vertifeus, a chiefe Commander of the * 3hemi, albeit People of he could very hardly keepe himselfe on horsebacke, because he was so farre gone Belgia,next to the Leuci and Madioma in yeares : yet notwithstanding, according to the manner of the Gaules, hee would pleade no excuse by his age, in vndergoing fuch charges as were imposed on him; and he was very vnwilling, that any fight (hould bee performed without

him. Likewise, in the warre of the Parisians, the whole charge (as is to be feene in the fenenth Booke) was given vnto Camulogenus, an especiall man of the * Aulerci, * People of who was well-neere wholly spent with | security, in being delinered from al dread Roane in No.

age: and yet for all that, the great experience which he had in marriall affaires, adnanced him to the highest degree of Honor. Answerable to this, Straho faith, The Strabo in lib. 5

Gaules were rather men of warre, then any way addicted vnto Tillage or husban-Ariftot e writeth, that the Celtshelde

stift in Polit the vertue of warlike actions in most singular respect and commendation. And it carlefnesse, to winne that by sweate and was well noted, as Cafar affirmeth, that the cause of valour (both in the Be gians labour, which a man might purchase with and Heluctians) grew through their conti-nual exercise of armes, for he saith: The the price of his blood. Cafar faith likewife of the Germanes, the fame that Diedorus doth of the Gaules, that they were m oft valiant people of al the Gaules, were nment, lib, 8 addicted to rapine and thefts. Robberies the Relgians.

(thus speaketh Cafar in his fixt booke) did Now, as Temperance was the first and formost in ranke, as being the Mother, or not make men any iot the worse esteethe Nurse (at least) of true valiancy: so med: fo that they were done out of those the fecond cause which Casar rendreth, was; That they were neighbours to the Germanes, which dwelt on the further fide of the Rheine, with whom they were continually at warre. This (I fay) was ano-

they exercifed armes, and by the fame reaion, the Heluetians furpaffed (in this ver- exceled at the tue) all the other Celtes: As it might daily be discerned in regard, that ordinarily they fought with the Germanes, eyther in repulling them from their frontiers, or making war on them in their owne coun-esteemed it to bee proper and naturall to vertue, to compell their expulsed neighbours, to forlake their Lands and Territories, to that few or none durft dwel nere neere to the vnto them. And by this meanes, they made into their Country.

Tacifus fpeaketh of the same exercise corn. Tacifus in into their heads, any order for husbandry No care of in their grounds, or carefulnes for gathe- husbandry, or ring their fruites, and corne, as to go affaile the enemy, and to returne back with earth but alto wounds and maimes. Morcouer, it appea- affaile the e-limits, which appertained to each Citty. beries thoght And it is faid that they vied their courses : not discomenonely to exercise their youthes, and for dable, but allowed & followed & followed the anoyding of ydlenesse. And when lowed withno fome one of the Lords would deliner his meane affectiminde on.

Iul.Caf.in com

there flew them. The yong men hardned forty.

themselves to this trauell, and euermore

*A wild beaft exercifed this manner of hunting: & they in fathion and

the Mother Of

ib.8 cap.6.

Nutle of vali-

try. In this place also might be alledged, their often and frequent skirmishes, to deliuer true faithfulnesse of their valour. Moreover, the Gaules for want of warre. to the end that they might ftill be in exercile of armes : gaue themselves to thefts The Gaule wer and robberies, as Diodorus faith, purloyning the goods of others, without any beries, prouision of their owne. What were the Diodor in lib. 6 Germanes ? faith he. What participation had they in this vertue? All their life, as hath beene already declared, was no way imagined themselves to be in the greatest of courses, which suddenly might bee imployed but in deeds of armes. And as The greatest he hath further written in his fixt Booke, honour of a the very greatest honour that any Citty the German. could have was to have a great Defert & foacious Country round about it. They of armes. You could not fo readily put 116.6.cap.4.

red to them, that it was meere floth and nemy.

in li.6.cap. 2

warred with

ftrange nati-

Concerning

the birth bree ding, and edu cation of the greatest anti

Gaules of

quity.

minde in an open affembly, that he wold | part of the yongest Gentlemen went (vp. be their guide, and that fuch as would follow him, should shew instantly themfelues. Such as gaue confent to his opinion, and (allowing him for their Leader) presently arose, and promised him their vttermost assistance: the people present would both commend them and their enterprize. As for fuch among them, as neither followed nor gaue allowance to the attempt: they were reputed as traitours, and neuer afterward durft any man repofe any credite in them.

Tacious addeth yet moreouer, that the Corn. Tacit. Germanes made war among strange people. If the City (faith he) wherein they The Germane were borne, grew flothfull and ydle, thorough long peace and repose; the most to honour Italy.

on their owne motion and good will) to finde out such Nations as had any warre. For rest and ease was no way pleasing to this people; and the dangers which they essayed and made proofe of, made them also the more famous: and they could not maintaine any great matter of worth, but ning their bounty and liberality. by power and warre, for thus they compaffed meanes to be bountifull and liberall, onely by warre, thefts and pilla-

Thus we may perceive, how the auncient Gaules made continual exercise of armes, and well deferued those commendations, wherewith the first and cheefest of all the Romaine Poets thewed himfelfe willing

We are hardly bred, Babes are no fooner borne, But we to Rivers beare them hurle them in ; To harden them against both wet and colde. Heere our young people give them felues to hunting. And haunt the Forrests. The pastimes they affect. Is saming wildest Horfes draw the Bowe. Sometimes our routh imboldened to labour Make (mall account of husbanding the ground: But to besiedge Strong holdes. Each age we passe, Managing flurdy yron turning our Staues To pierce the hides of Bulles. Slowe sardy age, Cannot abate our versue daunt our hearts. With fnow-white heads we enter Arms, and flill Seeke for fresh pillage, living on the booty.

Of the Ancient Gaules.

Especiall ob-Scruations concerning the auncient Gaules, omit ted by Cafar in his writing of their warres.

Oh, would it had pleased God, that Cafar, discoursing on the fashions and customes of the Gaules, had bene as willing in describing much more amply, what vie they made of Armes; what reasons they followed in their preparation for warre; what diligence they vsed, beeing in the fielde; what their strength and valor was in fights & combates: it would have caufed an extraordinaty pleafure, to remember continually, the ancient custome of our auncestour in their warlike actions. But Cafar (principally) sheweth nothing of all this : neuerthelesse, we will pursue each matter, infomuch as possibly wee may, and diligently collect fomewhat out of divers passages of his, (as wee can follow any traces, though greatly obscured) in such things as are agreeable to our purpose, not forgetting (in meane while) the udgement of other Authors.

CHAP. VI.

How the Gaules made choice of their Generals and Commanders for their warres. with a true description of their Military Services and discipline.

HE wars which Cafar made cach yeare, deliuereth fome on they made testimony, how they elected of their Generalles, and other cheefe Leaders in their martiall employments, whereof wee are able to speake fomewhat more largely. But the troupe or heape of particular Soldiours, was alwaies made in a publike affembly, & how euery man should behaue himselfe in armes. Induciomaras Prince of Treues,

Chap. 6. published an assembly in armes against the Romanes; as is to bee seene in the fift booke of the warres in Gaule. The Gaules began their warre in this manner, & followed one common Law among them. All their youngermen vsed to meete together in armes: but he that came lateft, in the presence of the whole assembly (after hee had beene tormented with all the tortures could be deuised) hee was afterward put to death. The felfe same custom is declared in the feuenth booke, when Vercingesorix; being elected Generall for the warre of the Gaules; was befiedged in * Alixia. For he tooke counsell, to difcharge all the troupes of horse which he had with him, and at parting, he gave the charge, to returne each man to the City, whereof he was a member, and there to affemble or muster for the warre, all such às were of age to carry armes. Neuertheleffe, the Gattles having published the afsembly of their Princes, did not thinke it meete to draw al the together, that were ble meanes of prouision for them. By this manner of ordering men for their warres.

we may well perceive, that the Gaules were studious in military affayres, considering, that all fuch as were about fourteene yeares of age, did carry armes.

The Gaules armed themselues quite contrary to the Romanes, as is to bee obferued in the fewenth booke, where hee speaketh of the * Hedui, that came to the feruice of Calar, who very greatly aftonihed the Romanes, by vling their armes after the Gaulish manner. And yet I can-or foine, fo faieth Diodorus; notwithstanding, Polybius and Titus Liusus doe deny their thrusting or foyning with the point.

of age to beare armes, according as Vercingetorix had ordained:but rather apoin-The Gaules ted, that each City should be furnished with a certaine number of men; it could getorix, and not otherwise chuse but breed confusion by beeing vnable to command them, or knowing one from another, or any possi-

The Gaules Audiousin martiall afaires.

A feuere cu-

ftome among

Iul.Caf.in com

Auffotsin Bur-

go)ne.

the Gaules.

Sometime people of that Bourgundy.

Their Target or Shielde was large, and Oftheir auniwerable viito each mans flature or wordshields constitution: and, according to their securification of pleasure, so was it enriched with Imagerie of brazen Beafts, mounted vp into boffes. Their Ianeline had a head of yron or fleele, conthyning a cubite in length, and two fingers bredth Calar in his third book faith; that they likewise caried a staffe, which he lulcof in comtearmeth Geles, & another, called by him Meris, which was a certaine kind of fmall lauclin. Their heads were couered with a Of their Sal-Sallade or head-peece of braffe, a little lades, Headexalted or railed vp, whereon was figured Corflets. Images of Birds, Beafts, and antique shapes. Their vsual Corfelet was of yron.

Many of the Gaules were wont to fight naked, fo farre as the nauil: as Tiens ngnt naked, 10 farre as the naun: 28.71816 Gault fought Liuius faieth, in the battaile at Canbas, naked so farre and Polybius fpeketh as much of the fame as the nauil. fight in this manner. It was a verye dreadfull fight, to observe the behavior shewing an excellent beauty, and vndauntable strength. In like manner, Titus Liuius faieth, that in * Gallogracia, A Countrie the Gaules fought naked, and than was the Gautestought naked, and than was Affa, joyning the reason, why they were our come by to Phrygia and ry strongly. The Gaules likewise vsed Bowes and Slings, according as Strabe Strabe inti.s. faieth; for he writeth, that they hadde a oftheir bowes fomewhat refembling the Figge-Tree, Of a ftrange which carried a fruite, that had some likeneffe to the chapter of a Corinthian pil- poilond their ler. This Tree being cutte, did yeeld a Arrowheads.

ueth verie pregnantly in his seauenth Gaultwers Booke, where hee speaketh of Vercin- great Archers getorix. Hee commaunded (faieth he) Iul. Cof.in com mer.liby. that all the Archers (which were a very great number throughout Gaule) should appeared not perceiue (throughout Cafars difcourses) what those kinde of armes were: therefore we will collect that which Polybius, Diodorus, Strabo, and Titus Linius Polyb. in lib. 4. Diodor, in lib: 3 have noted to vs. The fword which Tit Lin in lib. 4 they vied, was long, and the man wore it (hanging in a chaine of braffe) on his right fide: and it served not onely to Smite or flashe withall, but also to thrust of naked men, who marched on floutly,

off with their Piles, which were a kinde

of fmall Iauelins, and darted at them ve-kinde of Staffe, which being throwne by the hand onely, without any string or other holde, would imite further off then an Arrow, and with this they did (most commonly) shoote at Birds. It is also very certaine (as the same Author affirmeth) that they hadde a Tree in Gaule.

deadly inyce or liquor, wherewith they vsed to impoyson the heads of theyr Arbe leayed, and fent voto him, as it will

Some of the Polyb, in lib. 4.

the Romanes, who smote them afarre Lydia.

rowes. That it was fo, and that the Gaules were great Archers, Cafar proo-

A Towne of

wim the At-chers fought

mong (t the

Of the Sucue

A fhort Glau

Of the horfe and foote Sol-

No brauerie on their gar-

A league made by the Gauls againf

Betweene Belgia, & the b People of that place, now called Xantong in Aquitaine.

The horfmer had the high eft honour of he watres.

appeare much more fully hereafter in better place.

This was the Armor and Munition of the Gaules, whereunto that of the Germaines, which Tacitus describeth, was not altogether agreeable. They feldome defended themselves with swords or long staues: for they carried Iauelines, or (to vie their owne proper word) Framées, the blades whereof were straite and short, but yet fo keene, and fo apt for their feruice, that they could vie them with or against a staffe, according as they had occasion to fight, either before they came neere to one another, or when they were at handy gripes. The Horseman contented himfelfe with his shield and I aueline: but foot foldiers had many darts each man, which they hurled or darted infinitely, being naked, or lightly cloathed with a fimple Caffocke or Mandillion. They had no brauery on their accourrements: onely, they would decke their shields with some curious choise colours. Very few of them did weare any shirts of Maile, or scaled coats: fome one or two might haue (perhaps) a Caske or Morrion. These are the Armes which the ancient Gauls are credibly faid to weare.

It remaineth now to speake how they employed their men of warre, as well on foote as horsebacke. The horsemen were in most estimation among the Gauls, and had the principall managing of all affairs for warre, as Cafar hath faide in his fixte Booke. And in the League which all the Gaules made against Cafar, one while hee speaketh of the number of eight thousand horse, then againe of fifteene thousand, which was that part of the army, wherby the Gaules made themselves strongest, as plainly appeareth in the scauenth Booke. Neuerthelesse, no assurance can bee collected heereby, concerning all the cities in their feuerall forces. The people of Trenes, or the 2 Treniri, were the very strongest of all the Gaules in horsemen, as is to be seene in the fift book. ThebSamtones, according as wee reade in the third booke, had likewise very great store of horsemen : but the Nerwians (in the verie fame place) are faid to have the most foot fouldiers. Notwithstanding, if you regard them generally, you shall finde, that the Cauallery had the cheefest honour of all the warres among the Gaules. And these were the horsemen, wherewith Cafar vvas | Iul Cafin 1.de most assisted in his civill wars. For so him felfe testifieth in the first booke of his Ci-

uill Warre, that when Affranius came with great forces to affaile the Cæfarians The comming who were but a few in number: fodainely of Afranius a the horsemen of the Gaules were diligent gainft the Cain making head against them; and (so long his Ensignes

as they could) they maintained fight, alof the legions beit they confifted of fo few, and endured against a great multitude of the enemie . But so soone as the Ensignes of the Legions began to approach; with verie little loffe of their menthey retired vnto the neighbouring Mountaines. The time of the fights continuance ferued sufficiently for the Cæfarians fafety: for, in that while, they had leyfure to gaine thefelues the highest parts of the hils, & there sheltred themselues securely. Likewise, in the warre of Affrica, when The enemies the enemy (with powerfull forces) came fetting on Carfars hoad to deale with the hoast of Calar, and to attache them in the reresfuddenly the Legionaries stayed them, and the horsemen (although they were but few in number) made very stout resistance, yea, and with vnconquerable hardiment, against that great troope of the enemy. And a matter almost incredible happened, That lesse 30 herse of then thirty horse of the Gaules, repulsed two thousand horse of the Moores, and put them into rout. Such was the stregth the Moores. of the Gaulish horse. Hence ensued that exclamation of Cicero, in his 5. Phillippick. Cicero in Ovinion was conceined (faith he) that some Phillip. 5. appointed that there fould be gine to Mark Against Marke Anthony the government of that latter part Anthonies go of Gaule, which Plancus holdeth at this in- Gaule. flant : Is there any other wifedome in fo dooing, but to lend our owne weapons to an enemy, to make a ciuill warre upon us? For firll of all, the nerues or finewes of warre, which is countlesse (ummes of money, and whereof hee flandeth now in neede; and next, the power of horse, which valeweth as much; what can he desire more then both these ? Behold. in what account and estimation the horf-

men of the Gaules were. Sometimes it was thought conueni= ent, to entermingle amongst the horse amongst the fome of the foote fouldiers, which were worst armed, and the Archers. And this was (as appeareth in the feauenth booke) lib.7-when Vereingesorix went with the Horfe, and certaine foote (least charged with

of the Ger-

Armes) to prepare an ambuscado, where he imagined that the Romaines intended to come and forrage. At another time, (in the same booke) speaking of himselfe, when they were neere to "Gergouia, Cafar Guyenne ftafaith: It was not fully breake of day, when ding on a hye in the skirmishes, the footemen beeing mingled among the horse, we were forced to approoue how hardy and vertuous our owne men were. Sometimes, the Footemen, being lightly armed, accompanyed with the Archers, fought amongest the ccompanyed Horfmen, as was observed in the encoun-

Souldiers in old time, that marched in Waggons, but fought on foot Dieder in lib, 6

Their maner

The fuccour giuen to eac

The fwiftne

ter neere to Alexia. The Gaules (among fome few of their horse) flanked their Artroopes what foeuer, if they were Horfechers and lightest armed footesto the end men, and rode on faddles. that they should succour the horsemen, and fustaine the violent affault of the Romaine Cauallery. Ancient Gaule had * Esfedaries, who were warriours that rode in Waines or Waggons, called Effednes: and Diodorus giveth vs affurance hereof in these words. Passing thorow the Countrey in time of

If they met with the enemy in warre; first of all, and while they were voon the waggon, they would let fly their darts at him. Afterward, alighting from the waggon and being on foote, then they fought together with their fwords. Thefe two maners of fighting, are much more at large

warre, they yied Carres or Waggons which two Horses drew by a fit prepared furniture: the Waggoner, or he that had the charge thereof, being the only guide.

described by Cafar, when hee speaketh of the Germaines and the Britaines. Of the Germaines in the first booke, where hee reckoneth vo the forces which Arioniftus had. They were (faith hee) fixe thousand Horsemen, and as many foot, of the very strongest and best disposed, which each man had made choise of particularly, as for his owne succour and safety. If they were to fet on to the warre, they mingled on all fides, and hurle their Darts, and ofone among another, and the Horsemen tentimes it happeneth, that by the terror also retired when they did. If any great of their horses trampling, & by the noise

occasion happened, the foote souldiours fought with the horsemen. And if any one being wounded, hapned to fall from his

they would mount up, and run as swiftly horse, the other gaue present succour. If they were to march on further, or to retreate voon expedition; exercise had enftructed them in fuch celerity, that onely by fastning hold on their horses Maines, as they did. In another passage of the 4. [Int. Cafin com Booke, speaking of the Suenes, hee fayth. In those skirmishes which they made on horsebacke, they would oftentimes dif-

mount and fight on foote: having taught and invred their horses in such manner, that they neuer stirred from the place where they left them, returning to their horses againe, when occasion required. According to their custome, they esteemed nothing more base and idle, then to ride on Saddles. And this was the reason, They hated to that although they were but few in num- ride on Sad-

Whofoeuer (faith he) wil confider them power confisteth in their footemen : and therefore (in fighting) they ranke them among the troopes of horse. For the footmen which they choose among all their

was now giuen as an especiall name, and was honourable to them. Thus serued the Horsemen of the Germaines, and were mingled in this manner among the foote

of their Waggon wheeles, they trouble the rankes extraordinarily. But after that they are mingled amongst the troopes of ber, vet they durft boldly affaile any

This is that which Cafar hath written; The Gaules whereby we may gather, that heerein the contrary vnto Gaules were contrary to the Germaines for their footorder: confidering, that the Germaines men. placed their stregth in their men on foot; which Tacitus relateth more apparantly.

in generall, shall finde, that their cheefest libid, cap. 1.

vouth, to put to the point of any danger; are men of wonderfull fwiftneffe, apt and fit to fight among the horse. They are an Vpon what hundred chosen out of cuerie Towne or Village, and thereon were tearmed Centenders or Comments of Contenders or Co teniers, or Centurions: for that vvhich ferued(before)but to fignifie the number.

Now, as concerning the behauiour of Jul. Cafar in the Britaines, Cafar in his fourth booke, Com. lib. 4. describeth it in this manner. They have a Of the Britmanner of fighting on Chariots or waggons, which is thus. First, they skirmish fighting they horsemen, they descend from their wag-gons, and fight on soote. During which while, the Waggoners withdraw themselues somewhat out of the fight, and arrange their waggons in such fort, that if

Chap.6.

Their order

Of the Hel-

The Gaules

Com.lib.8.

& in lib.1

Vaggons.

of martial dif

The notable managing of in their fwiftell running. number of enemies, they can make an eafie and speedy returne to them . The adreffe and direction of their horses, the order observed among their sootmen for fight, and their aptneffe thereto, by dayly vie and exercise was such: that when they lifted, they could fodainly fray their horfes, even in the middest of his swiftest courfe, although it were in descending downe a high hill. There could they readily mannage and turne them, running mainly by the bridle among the horse; & thence againe returne lightly vnto theyr Chariots. This manner then of fighting, whereof the Effedaries made vie, was fomewhat also mingled among the horse and foote. Moreouer (as is to be seene in the sea-uenth booke) a great number of VVaggons attended on the Gaules, especially fuch as were vnarmed. Next of the Archers of the Rutheni, and the horsemen of Gaule, which had followed Cafar; there came into Spaine with a great number of waggons, all filled with baggage, according to the custome among the Gaules. Befide, there were of men and women, about fix thousand with their feruants and children : and because they took delight, in having beafts for portage and carriage. they were glad to pay deerly for them, as Cafar hath recorded in his feuenth book. Heereby wee understand, that not onely the men, but their children also, yea, the whole Families in Gaule, went to the war when occasion required . Tacitus writeth alfo, That the women followed the Germaines, and accompanied them to theyr warres. But this is sufficient, concerning fuch leuies and preparations for warre, as was vied among the Gaules.

Waggons in vie among the Gaules. Iul_Cafar in comment, Lib

Now it would be knowne, with what eafe they could endure the fearfity of victuals, by the temperature of their nouriture, having formerly avoided the delicacy of wine: and Calar giveth vs to vnder-fland (in many places) how they wer prouided of victuals. The Heluctians departing from their houses, carried meale(that was formerly ground with them) to ferue for 3 months. And Vercingetorix to take away from the Romains all meanes of recouering foode, perswaded the Gauls to burne the Towns and Villages on all parts

where the Romans might make any inua-

Their enduring fcarfitie of food.

The whole fa milies of the

Gaules went to the warre

Of the Helu

Percingetorix his aduice gi uen vnto the

their mafters bee preffed with any great | fion. Whereupon more then 20. Townes (belonging to the * Bieuriges) were burnt *People of in one day: and the like they did vnto the old Aquitaine Cities in the neighboring countries. But, at the instant intreaty of the Biturigeans, who required that * Auaricum (which was the very goodliest City in all Gaul) might nor be burned : it was granted by Veremgetorix, who first had debated for the contrary, yet after yeelded, as well in re-'gard of their earnest motion, as also in meere pitty and commiseration. But the The pittying pitty afforded to this one Towne, caused most cruel ruine of all the other cities and truction of Townes in Gaule. For Cafars armie, that many other had bin very mightily tormented with famine, and had endured divers daies with out power of recouering any thing to make bread of: after the furprizing of Anaricum, was now not onely stored with plenty of food, but being fleshed as it wer with hope of like following fuccesse, it made them to denoure vp all Gaule.

At another time, Vercing etorix (by vertue of the fame counfell and aduice) con- his aduice ftrained Cafar to forfake Gergouia, and ha- againft Cafar uing taken all the victuals which the Romans had then in * Nouiodunum, brought him into fuch diffresse, that had it not bin Towne for shame, tediousnes of the way, and ab= Noyonof Bel fence of the 4. Legions, Cafar was fetting gia in France, forward to go into Prouence. Vercingetorix, being elected captaine Generall thoroughout Gaul, vied(at a third time) the Vercingctorix felffame advice; when in a publike affem- his third adbly of the Gauls he faid, that he wold not uice against tempt his fortune, & giue his enemy bat. tel because he was strongly desenced with horsemen, wherby he could easily hinder the Remans from food and forraging. And it behooued enery man (of his own good will) to destroy his Corne, and burne his house; confidering, that by this litle loffe, which each man might well endure in his own particular, he should perceive, that their empire and liberty, would (for euer) be the furer maintained. And vindoubted Cafars purly, Cafar being moued by these occasions, purposed to withdraw himselfe into Prouence, thorow the country of the * Seque- France, which ni when Vereingetorix (100 inconfiderately) condemned the good counfell given him, & would not tempt fortune, by hazarding the battel, & turned all his intentions stil to the worst: wherby may be obferued what care the ancient Gauls had for provision of food. Now

"The City Vi rey in France.

Of the Ner-

was vsed among them in the field, either for marching. lodging their armies, or cipline in the observation of military discipline; it seemeth that they were not therein any iote curious. The Heluetians effaying to paffe a river, fome tied divers boates together; others would leape into fuch places, wher the Rhone was most easie for passage, oftentimes in the day, and more often in the night, but Cafar cuermore gaue them the repulse. The Gaules not having (as ver) learned the manner of making bridbridges made of Boates. ges, could not (in the space of twenty dayes) paffe the third part of their army, by fuch boates as they had fastened together: and this was their want of knowledge, in the arte of making Bridges. If Their fortifiwe look you the feating of their armies, cations in the and their fortifications in the fielde, they were as flenderly skilfull therein. They would make choife of a valley, that had no other Rampier or Ditch, but Heauen and Earth to fuccour and defend it. For the custome among the Gaules, was (as we may reade in the eight booke) to re-Iul Cafar in fuse and forfake high places, and to order their Campe neere vnto Riners. Soit appeareth in the first booke, that the Hel= uctions encamped at the foote of fome hill euen as the Germans did the like; but the Romanes cuermore elected the highoft places. The feating then of the Gaules campe in the Campe was in this manner, without any highest places kinde of fortification. The Campe of the The Campe of the Belgi-Belgians (as is to be seene in the second ans, and they booke) according as might be indged by beit rampier their fires and smoake, consisted of more Chariots & then eight miles in largenesse. And when they declared most care & warinesse; they would onely plant their Chariots and Waggons formost, which serued them as their cheefest Rampier. In like manner, the Germans would engirt their whole army, with their Waggons and Chariots. At length the Gaules began to imitate the Romanes, in fuch matters as they perceived to be best behooving for the or whatfocuer they did for the best ad-

> The Neruians (as wee reade in the fift booke) enclosed that place, where Cicero bestowed his winter abiding, with a rampier of eleuen foote in height, and a ditch of fifteene foote deepe. They had learned this by their practife of warre against

Now if we defire to know, what order | the Romenes, and by the helpe of fuch | The Neruian prisoners as they had taken. But wanting fortifying of tuch tooles and instruments, as were ne- the Romanes ceffarily required in this bufinetie: they were constrained to cut the greene turffs or fods with their Swords, and to carry both them & the earth, in the long skirts of their Iackets. Afterward, they began to raise Towers on the tops of their ram. Towers and piers, and to make mounted roofes and Tarraffes. Tarrafes, according as their prisoners had enstructed them; infomuch, that Ca-(at length) wondred, to fee what To- Gauls fortiliwers. Tarraffes and Fortifications they enterprifed and performed. These passages of Calar do fufficiently declare, that the Gaules were not wanting, eyther in naturall disposition, or in care, to performe what was necessary, but only came thort of orderly discipline.

In the fenenth yeare of the Gauls wars, after great flore of loffes had happened; | line comfort Vereingetorix comforting the Gaules, de- eingetorix, to. clared vnto them, that it was reasonable the Gaules. & expedient (for common fafety of each one) to begin to fortifie their campe: to the ende that they might the more cafily endure the fudden affaults of their enemies. For in those times (faith Cafar) was it, that the Gaules began first of all to fortifie their Camp. And therefore Cafar Iul. Cafar in did especially marke and nominate it in Com, lib. 3. that place. And the first fortification which they vied, was at Gorgonia, when The first mathey made a wal about their camp, which king of wals was fixe foote high, of great thick stones. Afterward, neere to Alexia, where they made a ditch and a wall, containing fixe foote in height. The Latine word 2 Mace: 2 Made infled ria, which fignifieth a wall of stones, heaped together without mortar or lime, & whereof Cafar maketh vie in the second place: declareth what manner of walles they had, which were rudely conftructed, and without any cunning. The Gaules then (aunciently) had fo little knowledge or discipline.

But what valour or manhood did they vie in fight? Was there any fuch matter of worth in them? Vndoubtedly they repoied a very great affurance in theyr owne strength. The Gaules, as was noted in the warres of Affrica, were naked or vncouered, and vling no kinde of furprizing: had a custome to fight onely by valiancy, and not by any fleight or cunning.

Mounting of Cæfar admired

The comfort

of a Mound.

A people of the Heluettans by the Riuer Ligamus, whose head-City is called 46.1. 0 inti.

The resolute affurance of the Belgians

The manly vertue of the Neruians agair ft the Romanes.

A Towne of Batica in Spair

The words of Hertius,con cerning the vertue & ma hood of the

And this was the reason, why Diniconius the Heluetian, spake so to Cafar, who had furprized the " Tieurines at vnawares, faying. That they had learned of their Fathers and Auncestors, to fight more for manhood then arte, but he made himfelfe strong, onely by surprizes. And for proofe of this military vertue, there are very fingular examples in many places of Calar. In the battaile of the Heluctians, albeit that from the feuenth houre (as is to bee feene in the first booke) they had fought till darke night; yet no man could euer fee the enemy to turne his backe. The Belgians in like manner (as it is written in the fixt booke) neuer being daunted or terrified with the flaughter of fo many of their owne fellowes, cruelly flame before their faces: in resolute affurance essaved boldly to march oner their dead bodies. The Neruians likewife (as appeareth in the same place) ene in the latest hope of their fafety, declared an extraordinary figne of their vertue. For, albeit such as were the very cheefest among the, lay butchered on the earth before them: ver they kept neere still to them, and fought standing vpon their bodies. Yea, and that in fuch manner, as they which remained aline, making hilles of dead mens coarffes; threw their Darts against the Romanes, as from the top of a Butte, and cast also their leffer Iauelins at them, to long as they were able to reach them. This agreeth with that which he fpeaketh of the Gaules, who were in Cafars feruice, when * Munda in Spaine, was round about engirt with the bodies of enemies, that had beene flaine, and lay there in their armes. In flead of turffes of earth (faith Hirtims) they piled and layed dead bodies one vpon another, and for the service of a Palifadoe, they couered them with theyr Shields and Iauelins, and their fwords, with the heads of men, were all placed & turned towards the Towne of their enemie: To the ende, that they should apparently behold the true Enfignes of their valiancy, only to affright them, while thus they were circled in, as in a rampier. Thus the Gaules having made a round wall of their enemies bodies, and mounted theron they began to affaile the Towne with violent deliuery of their Arrowes and

They had learned this manner of making a rampier of dead mens bodies, fro a custome vsed in their owne Countrey. and heerehence (in mine opinion) grew the conjecture made of the Gaules, wherof ArtHotle writeth in his Ethicks to Nicomachus: That they feared not any thing in the world neither foorchings burnings or any torments what focuer. And to this effect, was that which Strabo writeth of Strabo in Lib. the Ganles, concerning their answer to A- wer to Aixlexander, who demaunded of them, what ander. ir was that they feared most? Nothing (faide they) if the Heavens tumble not downe vpon vs. I perceine also, that they were even as neglect and careles, in chufing the advantage of place for fight, as they were in the feating of their Campe, Aduantage of which may enidently bee different in all place for fight the Commentaries of the Gaules warres. When the Heluctians and Neruians affailed Cafar, it was in a place very difad- ans and Noniuantagious: but if they lighted on any o. ans affailed ther, that might declare them to bee any way better aduifed; it was by fome former patterne of the Romanes, and obseruation of their discipline. And the fust time that they entred into any good order, vvas, vvhen the army vvhich they had vvas rallyed out of divers Countries, and the Souldiors then were generally diffributed, according to the Countries wherof they vvere, and so placed (separately) the forces of each City in his due rancke or degree. So in the battaile of the Nerusans, the * Atrèbetans vvere ordered on trosin Fisit the left fide, the Neruians on the right, & the * Veromanduans in the middeft of the * People of battaile. Lik wife in the feuenth book, vermandoile where hee maketh mention of the forces Germany. of Vercingetorix. The Gaules after they had broken the bridges, kept themselues firmely on a little Hill, confiding in the scituation of the place, and beeing generally divided, according vnto the Citties whereof they were, and placing Guards ar enery Foord & Thicket of the Marish; they impeached them to their no meane difaduantage. In the fame place againe, Julius Cafar Vercingetorix having planted his Campe in Com.lib 3 on a Hill neere to the Towne, lodged feparately also the forces of each Citty; yet discipline of leauing some vvide and spacious roome percingulars. about all their lodgings, and being pofferfed of all the finaller hilles that neighboured the greater, vyhence any aduantage might be had for looking dovvnvvard; he Arift in li. a.ds Ethic ad Nico.

Division by ed among the German Cornel. Tacitus

f Bands of Souldioss

And every day, even from the point or breake of day he caused the chiefe Commanders of fuch Cities (as he had chosen to be of his counsel) to come before him. whether it were to conferre about some matters to be done, or execute any thing that depended on their charge: to that no one day might escape him, but some esfay or other was made of his courage, & of the vertue that lined in his followers: making out many fallies of horse, mingled with the best and choysest of his Arty of the Helmesians, all the other three

Iul.Caf.in com

A notable car

& prouidence

The River Sagona in France.

nlib.3.cap. g.

Bohemia. b Of Halfatia of the Citty Wormes in germany,now culled Vorma cienfes. d Neere to Rome. e The Citie Sion in the

a People of This place is

ded by the au

In the first booke likewise, the people called Tienrines, which were under the cicompanies having passed the River Aby themselves. And they of the Borrough Verbigena, because they fled away with the other; being afterward brought before Cafar, they were received as open enemies. The Germanes obserued the fame order, to divide themselves generally by nations: as Tacitus delivereth more plainly, where he faith. And that which principally did encourage them, was; that not hazard, or an affembly made at aducture, or a troope, or a fquadron; butthe families and alliances laboured together. One example heereof in the Germanes, is noted by the that followed Arionistus, who in the end (as we reade in the first booke) were compelled to fend their forces out of the field: and made a generall ordination (by equall internalles) of the Marcomani, Triboci, Vangiones, Nomentani, Segulians and Sueues. Wherefore I conclude, by the words of this passage, that in regard the Army of the Gaules confisted of many Cities; the Souldiers (generally) did divide themselves, according to the number of the Cities.

The Gaules vsed the Phalanx in theyr battailes, as the Romanes did their Legions. The Phalanx, subtilly explicated by Aelianus, both in parts and parcels, to bee of an equall number, eight times divided into equall parts; the fummary whereof, I thus comprehend. The Phalanx armed with weighty armours, confifted of foure thousand, ninety fixe men, each ranke whereof, contained in length fixteene Phalangearies, and was tearmed f Decuria: in which bands, the formost man was na-made a thew verye dreadfull to behold. med & Decurion, and the lafth Tergiductor, gThe Captains of Lea that is to fay, hee which conducteth the der. Rereguard or hinderpart. Thefe formost h The Guide me wer also cald Prafites of the seconds, of the Rereby reason of their marching before, and fo the third men of the fourth. Contrariwife, the fecond men were tearmed sub- i Voder-Subflites to the former; as being under them. like as the fourth under the third. Thus the Decuria was composed of Prastites & Substites, the one following the other. The fecond Decuria was called & Condeen - & Coniunes ria, that is to fav. conjoyned to the Decuria in such manner, that they all answered both in place and number : Decurion to Decurion, Prastites to Prastites, Substites to Substites, and they which accoasted, or went along by , were tearmed ! Astites. The ordinary space or distace of the Pha- helpers. langearies, was foure cubites, but whe they closed, two & when they went in crowd. one onely. This was the manner of the Phalanx, observed by the ancient Ganles. The battaile of the Heluctians (as is to lut cef. incom be seene in the first booke) kept it selfe ment.lib. 1. strongly lockt against Cafars horsemen, and when the horsemen were repulsed. the Phalanx, which was prepared under the first barrailion, advanced it selfe, and fet forward. But the Romanes (by the po- The Philanx wer of their Iauclins) brake the Phalanx of the Helueof the Heluctians, by reason that they wer by the Rotoo ftrongly lockt together : And then to maner. defend themselves against their Iauelins, they began to disloynt their vniting, & to combine their Targets and Shields. the one with the other, which were in the forme and shape of the shelles of Tortuisses, to receive and resist the Iauelins darted at them. In the fame booke alfo, The Phalanx the Germanes having fuddenly (accor- of the Gerding to their custome) prepared a Pha- mans. lank: withflood the strength of all theyr Swords. And I perceive, that this Phalanx was ordered in fuch manner, not to ferue as a defence for their heads; but rather as a Rampier for their brefts. But on the Heluctians day, the " Boij, or Boians, and the Tugi, or Tulingians, who came that part of thither for their fuccour; enclosed the France,now barraile round about with Chariots and a Auncient baggage, and guarded the rereward. And people among as the Heluctians (who had the worft, & the Heluctians, of whom the greater number were fore Internal. wounded) retired, and withdrew themselves into the neerest neighbouring lA(siftants or

The retire & re-affault of the Helucui

or Faggott,

Sanldiare that were alwaies let in the rereguard frongest me and bowing fome what or their knees,a iFthey would rather dye, from their places.

Mountaine: they affayled the Romanes 1 at ynawares on the Flanks, and engirt the round about. Which the Heluctians beholding; they returned againe, began to recharge them, and fought valiantly with

Thus wee have heere fet downe fome forme of that fashion, which the Gaules observed in preparing their battaile, and that which Harrius hath spoken thereof, is not much diffring from the purpofe. That the Gaules, being in battaile, had a custom to fit downe vpon Faggots of Vine branches and finall twigs, which they placed in the ground. Now albeit he reporteth, that Cafar hath declared the same in the first book of his Commentaries, yet notwithstanding. I finde no such matter. But forasmuch, as the Gauls (in their battails) are faid to fit downe on Faggots: it was a kinde of discipline observed among the, like to that of the Romane " Triary, who being ranked in the third battalion, which was the rereward, yfed to kneele down on and were the their knees, which was termed by the Latines, Subsidere, whence ensued the word they tought euer flanding Sublide as they named it. This commeth fomewhat short of the order observed among the Gaules: but many matters more might be related, concerning the encouragement they gaue to one another for war-feruice, which principally imployed their mindes, and boldly animated them on to vertue.

CHAP.VII.

Of the Shours cries, & strange noises denised and vied by the Gan's, to comfort and encourage shem felues and so affright or difmay their enemies. Alfo of their signes of contentment, peace, mercy, their Barit. Songs and Rithmes.

their weapons; to make a cry in the loudest manner that they could, & to enflame the Souldiers mindes with the founde of Trumpets. But the custome of the Gauls, was not onely with cry of the voyce, and found of Trumpets: but with a Song, a Dance, loud yelling, clattering of their armour, and brandishing their darts, to make a noise so terrible, as nothing could appeare to be more horrible. The Gaules (faith Diederus) had loud big and rude voyces, & their Trumpets (according to cuftom) were barbarous. & made a rude har fb found. But Polybius (in his fecond booke) fayeth Polybinlib. moreover. The brauadoes & noises of the Celts, were dreadfull to the Romanes : for they had an infinite number of Trumpets and Hobois, with the found whereof, the frighted the Romanes, whole Army cryed out aloud, making fo great a clashing and noyle; that not only the Clarions & army ecchoed the found, but all the places likewife that did round engirt them. And indeed, the novie which customarily was made by the Gauls, hath oftentimes beene noted by Titus Linius: Titus Linius in but yet hatefully and iniuriously, as (for the most part) he was wont to speake of the Gaules. The Gaules (faith he, in his fift booke) by finging fauagely, and crying out confusedly; filled the agre with an horrible found. And in the fame place: Immediately there were heard fongs and Titus Livius no noyfes difagreeing, as when the Gaules fiend to the walked (by troopes) about their walles. Gaules. And afterward in the foure and thirtieth Tit, Liu, in li. 34 Booke he faith. The Gaules went marching forward, howling or yelling strange ly, and finging according to their confufed fashion. shaking their Targets ouer their heads, and brandishing their Dartes in their hands. Then againe in the foure the and fortieth Booke, speaking of the Gauls which were in Asia, he saith. Beyond all how they be the rest, their singing, when they began haued themthe battaile, and their howling, yelling, felues in batand dances, covering themselves with their Shields, after the manner of theyr Country, with the horrible clattering of their armour: all thefe things were done on deliberate purpose, onely to procure affrightment and terror.

Cafar toucheth this tumultuous beha- Inlins cafar in uiour more lightly, in his fift booke, after The overthe ouerthrow of Sabinus & Cotta, where throw of Sabinus & Cotta, where throw of Sabinus & Catta keth thus of them. Then, according to their wonted custome; they cryed the victory together, and howled loudly. And Jul. Color in at another time, in the feauenth Booke, Com. Lib.7. speaking of the Gaules necre vnto Alexia. The Gaules (faith hee) perswading them-with great numbers on all fides: they that were within the Fort, and they that came, in their assistance, with a loude cry and yelling, affured the courage of their peo-

The battaile

Chap.7.

tion among the Gaules,

In Lib.7.

But perhaps these thinges may seeme

the Germanes, whether they were of like felues to be the ftronger part, and perceicondition, or no. It should seeme that uing the Romanes, that they were preffed it was the Barrit of the Germanes, whereof Tagitus maketh fuch mention. They of their Barrie had certain pleafant Songsand Rithmes, inlib 4.cap. 2. at the found whereof; that which they ple. Morgouer, that which gaue greatest tearmed Barrit, enflamed their courages;

and by the Song, they prefaged the ende and fortune of the future battaile. For they were cheered or difmayed, according as the Army made the novie; and this accord in finging, feemed not to confift fo much in the voyce, as in vertue.

They did principally respect the rudenes of found, and confusednesse of the noise; by holding their Targets before their mouthes, to the ende that the voyce (being made thereby the greater and fuller) might resound the louder and stronger. Such then was the noyfe of the Gaules, cheefely when they came to the shocke or brunt, and when they would enflame hearts, were appealed and quieted swhen their Souldiers courages : for the women Of the wome they defired peace; and when they were Gaules (alwaies) had fome part in this enwilling to yeelde themselues. The figne couragement. You wil hardly credit, that how they en mens harts would bee more enflamed, by couraged the the exhortations and teares of their dea- husbands.

rest wives: the they could be by the found Int. Caf. in con of Trumpets and Cornets. The proofe ment. Lib. 7. their right should is were scene to bee hereof, is to be seene in the 7. Book, when at Gorgonia, the mothers of the Families naked: it was their accustomed figne. thereby to declare, that they were conbegan to pray with earnest affection, and to thew their haire ditheucled, after the tented. The figne of desiring peace, was to extend or stretch out their hands: Gaulifb manner, and to make prefents of their young infants. Such was the exhoras hee speaketh in the second Booke, diftation at the fiedge of "Masylia, after that A Country courfing on the Bellouafians. The woall the Ships on the Sea were readily pre- in Affrica, amen and children (beeing on the walles) pared at the inftant entreaties & teares of westerne according to their wonted behaviour the old men of the mothers of the fami- Moores. would fretch foorth their hands, therelies and their daughters, who defired the to fuccour the Citty in extreme necessity: by desiring peace of the Romanes. Which he farther relateth in the seuenth Booke, they had no leffe heart and refolution, to mount into those Ships, then they had beforein fighting the battaile. Then might eafily be differned, both from the Camp of " C. Trebonius, and all the places of 2 One of them highest prospect in the City; how all the that afterward youth that remained within it, and all the murdred Ca.

oldest men, with their wives and young children, stood as publike guardes, and (vpon the walles) helde vp their hands to heauen, or ran to the Temples of the immortal Gods, where prostrating theselues before their Images, they entreated victory of the Gods. This hath some resemblance with that which) the Romines might come foorth, to admit them partie or conference. It may appeare now as conucnient, to speake somewhat of those signes which Signes of elpe the Gaules yied, to fignific, when theyr w.Caf.in com.

Dioder in lib

How they re-quired parlie.

which they vied to make, when theyr hearts were contented and quieted ; was, to shew their right shoulders naked. Cafar speaking of the Hednans, in his scalul Cafin con uenth Booke, faith thus. Whenfoeuer lib.7. The ligne of terror to the Romanes, was, the loud cry that they made at their backs, in the time of their fighting, It was likewife a custome

among the Gaules, to require parlicor conference, by making a loud cry, as by a Trumpet: according as Cafar in his fift

Booke, speaking of the Eburons, saieth.

Then after their viuall manner, they made a loud cry together : to the end that some one of

The figne of

Gergouia

by that their lives might be faued. to bee of flender account: therefore I will conclude the noyfes made by the Gaules, and fearch into the behautour of speaking of the women of Gorgonia: who baring their breafts, and stretching our their hands upon the walles, required mercy of the Komanet. In the fame place

alfo, hee declareth what figne they vied,

when they were willing to fubmit them-felues. The Heduans holding up their hands; gaue notice thereby, that they would veelde themselves. And holding downe their armes, they requested there-

Observations

found most

ter observed in Military difcipline,&

A viuali mat-

Percingetorix to the Souldi-

ers beliedged

140 5

. h = ;

.....

d mer

a land

Courage na-

turall and hereditary to

the Gaules.

Carfar had fix

Legions of

the Gaules 8

but foure of

A certaine

legion among

the Romanes

Titus Liuius

reproved by the Author, t his own coun-

ry, & the law

of Hiftery,

Romanes,

in Alexia.

Of the Gera man women.

An observati they wer ready to light.

Quailed battailes ra-en forced by the meanes of women.

Cærars double dealing with the Ganles, IM M. ERfar in comment Lib coin Lib.8.

Titus Linius a reproduer of the Gaules.

In lib. g cap. 4

In lib. 10.cap.

their cheefest commendations. They wold bring the wounded persons to their mothers and Wines, and they feared not to number and fucke their hurts; carrying food to them, and any thing that might harten them againe to the fight. Some fay, that ditiers battels, which began fuddenly to quaile and breake off: were as fuddenly re-enforced and purfued by the women, even through the constancy of their praiers, beating their hands on their naked breafts, & fetting before their eres, the danger of their neere ensuing captiblity, which they feared the more impatiently, in regard of their Wiues and Children. Wherefore the wines of martiall minded men, did declare themselves also no leffe valiant and refolute. But Calar, in attributing very great courage to the Gaules, doth yet (I know not how) reproch them, with a quite contrary negligence or cowardife. For, like as the hearts of the Gauls (faith he in his third Booke) are prompt and deliberate, for the attempting of warre: euen fo is their courage dull, and weake in refistance, to Support any mischances. In briefe (as we may reade in the eight Book) a man cannot well judge, whether the Gaules are more infolent, when their affayres do go neuer so little successefully with them:

with fuch infolence, as euery where hee

ceaffeth not to taxe them with formwhat fauouring of the fame nature. As in the fift Booke concerning the gowned Gauls.

The Gaulish nation are accustomed to colde and raine; but they cannot any way endure eyther dust or heate. In the tenth Booke. The bodies of the Gaules, which first booke. And the women, holding vo their hands to the Souldiers, which were going to the warre with teares entreated

them that they would not fuffer them to fall into the fernitude of the Romanes.

Therfore when the Germanes were ready to fight, fuch things as were in theyr deereft efteeme (as Tatitus reporteth)

they would have in some place neere vn-

to them? where the out cryes of theyr wines, and lamentings of their children,

might coficft be heard; thefe ferned them

Int. Cafar in which is written of the Germanes, in the) cannot abide transfe or heat, do yet melt themselves with sweating. They enter fight like more then men; but their fille is leffe then women. In the 37. Booke. Their big bones that'can fuffer no labor, will toile with weighty Armour on their backes. In the 40. Booke. Heate and tra- In lib. 40.cap. uaile are yrkoforme, to the Callesquaggy bodles, because they are not able to endure thirst. In the 48. Booke, speaking of In Ub. 48. capa the Gaules of Alia. If their first affault be endured, which they ruth into with boyling courage, and blindfold fury their lazie members will melt themselves into as most facred witnesses, and these were sweare, and the weapons will fall our of their hands. The Sun, duft, and drought, without imployment of any weapon against them, doth dul their foggy bodies, and abate their steamest courage, if theyr hot rage and fury be once oner-paffed. Tacism giveth the felfe fame dull difpo- com.Tacismin > dies(faith he) that have no other ftrength, disposition of then (at the first on-set) to fliew theselues the Germans. forward: are not accustomed to support (with any patience) either paines, bufines, thirst heate colde or hunger. How doth this hold together? According to the indgement which Cafar hath given of the Gaules? Are they both most valiant, and yet foggy fellowes also? Vndoubtedly, al the natural the Gaules are reported to bee (even national inclination of turally) martiall and valorous, and being the Gaules exercifed in military discipline they are the more hardened against any trauel but wanting exercise, they grow the more foggy & ydle. Custome and vse do teach mento support any toyle, and to hold essence against all danger; for the men apraid tranaile of warlike discipline, admitteth valiant. neyther finerie orfoftnelle. If we meete with some old Souldier, who, because he is expert in warre, is fearelesse of blowes: If likewife a new fresh Souldier be broght Cicero in in that hath his hart as frout and refolute, Tufculan, 5. & as yet vnexperienced; yet his best conthen they are easie to be affrighted, when rage will appeare to be but womanish; so neuer so little harme befals them. This is writeth Cicero in his fecond Tufculanes. that alfo, which Titus Linius reprehendeth Tendernesse and softnesse is reprehended in the Gaulish Souldiers; as namely by Vercingetorix, and Critognates, one of the " Aruerni, in the feuenth Booke. For there he faith, that the Gaules defired to the River fight, in regard of their foft and tender Leyre in disposition, because they cannot long endure any toyle. The fame man at the men. lib?. councell fition to the Germanes. Their great bo- libit capi.

In li. 37.009 9

councell which was holden among them, that were beliedged in Alexia, and stood in great diffresse, through want of victualles : against such as were of the minde, to hazard all at one fally he faid. This is indeed meere cowardife, weaknesse, and no hone of courage or any acte of vertue, to declare your felues amable, to endure dearth or fearfityfalbort a while. Proofe may bee produced of more men that gladly offred themselues to death then could patiently fustaine greefe or annovance. It is not then tobe doubted, but prompt & fout courage, especially in warlike enterprizes, was hereditary (both by nature and race) to the Gaules nation, and that this foft or render complexion, grew through lacke of exercife, in military discipline. For if a Gaule had beene once well enftructed, by a Mafter, skilfull in the arte of warre: where was any Souldier to bee found, that could more ably endure all labour ? If thou doe inferre any doubt in this cafe, proofe thereof was made by Cafar himselfe: For Oufar levied fixe Legions of the Gaules, because he could raise no more then foure of his owne Common-wealth. Cafars horfe-men were knowneito be Gaules, and thereupon, after he came to the head of all his enterprizes: hee naturalized all those Legions. which not onely were Gaules by Nation. but they retained (beside) the name of * Alauda. Wherefore, this foftnesse in the new or young experienced Souldiers was as common to the Romanes as Gaules; and was no otherwise proper, eyther to the Gaule or Germane Nation.

But Titus Liuius, with I know not how many Greekes, is too injurious and insupportable against the name of a Gaul, and offend against forgets withall, the kindnesse which hee ought to his Country, and to the law of history. For, although hee much better affected, to make the Venetes or Venetians, to descend from the traitor Antenor, then from the Nobility of the venetian Gauls. as Strabo hath done and the Romanes approue the fame, placing the Venetes or Venetians in Gallia Togata; yet thereby hee maketh himfelfe to be a Gaule. And the law of history doth command that in the relating of a history, he shold stand cleare from suspition of being touched with fanour or hatred. But whereas he reprocheth the gowned Gaules and Afians, with the ydle matter of cold, because they dwelt in the hottest Countries, and such as were neerer to the Sunne, then the * Men of Pa-Patauines or Patauians, among whom Ti- dua in Italy. tus Livius was borne; doth he not mocke himfelfe as foolifhly as can bee deuifed? As for the Gaule Souldier which Cafar had, and who was the very branest man of all other whatfocuer: this man belynthe him manifestly. And it appeareth Apparant probably, that Gasar had to deale with proofe of the those men onely in that Gaule: but in the other partes of the world, hee fought and dier of Gaule gainst women, in regard of those men hee found in this Nation.

alur

CHAP. VIII.

Of the difference betweene the Souldiers of Cafar and of Pompey, being the valiant. Gaules, in comparing them with the Romanes : As also of the Spaniards and the Gaules, and what cunning they learned of the Romanes.

prehendeth in the Souldiers of Gaule ;

himfelfe theweth the foftneffe and affection of his owne spirit, which cannot 4:

ny way abide equity, the grauity of hiftory foundnesse of judgement, and trueth.

and discipline.

Action in

O W., to speake of C.e. fars Souldier, against the Soldier of Pompey, that is to say, the valiant Gaul, what was hee against the Romaine? In the third book of the civill warres, Cafar faith : The Ar- Jul Caf, in com my of Pompey was not accustomed to paines mens, lib. 3. taking. Why then Titus Liuius, by the purity of his eloquence, which Quintillian compared to the whitenesse of milke, Quintil im lib. hath drawne the Spaniards and Gaules fro 3.cap.9. the corners of the world, onely to make himselfe listened vnto, according as Saint Hier, in Profat,

For to be foft or hardened against toyle, is not any thing that proceedeth eyther and hardreffe

Concerning the gowned

Hierome writeth . Notwithstanding, in this delicacy or fofmesse of not enduring paine heate thirst nor dust, which hee re-

from Nation, or race, but by breeding against labour

Cafar

Want of dif cipline in the Gaules.

Strabe in Lib. CAY.7.

which remai ned in the Gaules.

thecues.

Strabo in Lib.7

Example of the Helucti-

Example of & Aquitains

All Gaul con to Alexia

men of Gaule a great courage, & truely warlike : and yet neuerthelesse, he discouereth in this great minde or spirit, a certaine want of discipline, or much rather hereproueth a kinde of fimplenesse, and an ill aduited affurance of their strength, which was the fault that was most noted in their warres, according as Strabe wrireth in his fourth Booke.

:: The Gaules very eafily affembled togerher in great number, because they wer simple of fpirit, stil followed inflice, right and trueth, being moued and affected by the loffes of their neighbours. Whereupon it happened, that the more easily they were chased out of theyr Country: because in affembling all their forces, or rather their whole families and friends, they were throwne out by them that produced the stronger. The Romanes did much more easily subdue them, then they could do the Spaniards: for the wars in Spaine were begun long time before theirs, and yet notwithstanding, they were brought to end after theirs. And betweene both these times, they conquered all the Gauls, that were betweene the Rheine and the Pyrenean Mountaines: for in comming to the field fo many together, they were querthrowne by multitudes together. But the Spaniards managed their battailes more sparingly, and, even as if they had a defire to some affected kinde of monies: to did they preferue them from one time to another, and from Country to Counery making their warre stil cauteously like vnto thecues.

And that which Strabe hath written, may fufficiently bee perceived by the examples of Calar. The whole City of the Heluctians, there being all the people of twelue Townes, and of forty Villages: did fight all at one instant, and in one instant also were all ouerthrowne. Such was the league of fifteene people of the Belgians. Such was the renolting of the Armoricans in the warre of the Venetes , or Venetians. Such was the conspiracy of the Aquitains against Crassim, In briefe, did not all Gaule put it selfe in Armes, and was it not wholly conquered in one warre, neere vnto Alexis? The Gaules in the eight yeare of fault, as Hirtim faith, and that in regard of fome great numbers, which still were af- sides) enuironed by the Foote-men

Cafar then did but right, in giving to the | fembled in one place; it exceeded possibility to refift the Romanes. But if divers Cities (at one selfe same time) had made warre in divers places: the Romane Ar- of the Gaules my could neither have had fufficient fuc- in their fight cour, leyfure or forces to vndertake all at ling.

Neuertheleffe, the Gaules were not alwaves of fo simple and open spirite thut at some times they declared more tunning and holpe themielues by fome fur- wayes filly & prizes. Cafar, (as Suetonius faith) neuer fimple in their fuffered any one occasion of warreso boe loft were it never fo vnindifferent, fetting as foone on the allied and leagued, as on enemies: and yet notwithstanding, all the warres which he made, hee still paliated with good & fufficient colours of reason. The Eburone-Gaules payed Cafar with TheEburones his owne vnfaithfull dealing. For thefe cunning in o-Gaules aductifing the Romaine with the conspiracy, which all the Gaules had as greed on together: made him beloeue, that if hee would come, and leave the fielde, they would gine him free passage. Through this deceit, a Legion, and fine Cohorts or Companies (with Cotta and Sabinua, which ledde them) were all vanquished. And albeit, that the Romane was then alike in number and strength to the Gaules (as Cafar confesseth) yet was Cafar repaied he foyled by the Gaules fubrilty, who had learned this craft of Cafar, and therewith repayed him.

Hirtus recountern the like ambufca- Hirt. Int. 3.6.3 does of the Bellonafi, or Bellonacanes, who having understood the lodging of the Romaine horsemen: tooke anumber of light and nimble spirited footemen, and en-ambushed them in a place thickly conered with wood. On the morrow, they fent certainehorfes thither, which fians circummight allure the Romanes out, into the uented the compasse of the ambushment, and when they were once in it, they prefently charged them. And the fortune of this mifhappe fell on the men of Rheimes, who The Rhemi were appointed as Guards there that foiled throgh day. For they having feene (too fud-fault, with the denly) the enemies horse-men, and losse of their knowing them felues to exceede them Prince Vergreatly in number, making no account of fo fewe as they feemed to bee: they their warre, both well felt and knew this rushed foorth, and ouer-hotly pursued them, euen vntill they were (on all

Cafar fulpec ed the deceit of the Bellouafians, aud

with coyne of his own stamp

Romanes.

Cunning oftentimes deeines it felfe.

Many harmes

done to the

the Gaules.

to their no little aftonishment, which / ties which they had learned of Cefar. And caused them to retir much sooner, then skirmifies of horsemen were wont to do; having loft Vertifeus, Prince of the Citie, The Romain and cheefe Commander of the horfmen. This shewed no simplenesse in the Gauls, instruction. but meere quaint cunning dearned of the Romaines.

In the very fame place, Hirtius decla-reth the like cunning stratagem; as that which Hannibal vied, to deceyue Fabius.

The Bellouafians (faith he) perceiving that the Romaines were ready to pursue them.

and that they could not (without daunger)

passe the night, or solourne longer where they were : they delivered (by Oath) from had oreat store in the fielde, all which they placed before their Army : and at the ending of day-light (upon a figne fod inely given) they fel them all on fire. So the flame, which followed it felfe in great length, immediately hindered, that the enemy could not discouer their Forces : and which being doone, the harmed by

heir owne

Chap. 9.

The night fa- hand to hand, the Faggots and small bushes uourethmany whereon they veed to lit, and whereof they Gaules very speedily withdrew themselues. Casar, albeit he could not perceine that the enemy was gone in regard of the fire fo made before them: yet notwithst anding Supecting that they had done this deuice to the end that they might flye caused his Legions to march would not be on, and fent out troopes of hor femen to purfue them. And yet being mistrustful of some Surprizall, of doubting left the enemic might still lurke there with intent to allure the Romanes to some disaduantage, hee marched on the more adulfiely. The Horsemen, fearing to enter the smoke, and if any one (by ouer-Suspition is the hinderer much forwardnes) did enter he could not fee of the brauest any thing before or behind him: grew all fufpitious of some secret ambulb of so gane leyfure to the Belloua fians to retire thence. Thus the enemy, by meanes of a flight (full of feare > feated their campe in a very strong place." Oftentimes thenceforward, & by many ambushes both of horse & foot, they did great damages to the Romaines, in their wandering abroad, itealing and foraging: whereby it should appeare, that these attempts fauoured rather of a Punick (pirit then of a Gaulish. And yet neuerthelesse, when all came to al (as we vie to fay:)they were furprized by the hands of their maisters, & by the selferame deceits & subtil-dy craft) having marched about ten miles of the country, without (ust aining the left loffe, to the end it might bee noted, that the Gauls had no more cunning or craft then what they learned of the Romaines: the Heluctians (as Orofins writeth in his fixt booke) (urprized the Confull Caffins, with orofin lib.6. all his army, by an ambufcado. But I haue cap.4. concluded with my felfe not to omit one maner of ambushing, which was the most maruellous of al those that ever I read of, or heard reported; whereby the Prætor Pathumius Posthumius was ouerthrown of the Bojan vanquished Gaules, as Titus Linius reporteth in his by the Gaules 33.booke.

Of the Ancient Gaules.

While matters went on in these doubts

uei thi own by

and vncertainties, tidings came of another losse, according as fortune (in that yeare) ftill re-charged one vpon another. And thele were the Newes that Lucius Posthumius, designed Consull, was ouercome in Gaule, both he and his Armic. There The manner was a verie great Forrest, which the Gauls how Posthucalled Litana, thorough which Forrest, mins was ohe was to passe his Army. The Gaules, we the Boians. on both fides of the paffage, had cut and hewne the Trees of the Forrest in such fort : that (yet notwithstanding)they parted not from the trunke or bodie, but must endure hard thrusting and enforcement, before they could possibly get the to fall.

Posthumius had two Romane Legions. and had leayed fo many people, allyed vnto the Romaines, that hee brought into the enemies Countrey, well neere the number of fine andtwenty thousand men of Warre. The Gaules, who were ambushed in the Forrest, when the Armie was entered within the Vyood; threvy effectually downe the aforesaid hewne vnder-grow- performed. ing braunches, which were apted fo for the present purpose that falling stil thickly one vpon another, without any poffible meanes of restrayning them, they ouer-turned (pell-mell) both Men and Horses, in such manner, that (very hardly, and with much paines taking) tenne men of them escaped. For the greater part were flaine by the falling of the huge braunches and armes of Trees on them; and the Armed Gaules, that held poffeffion of all the VVood, put the rest vnto Astrange con death, vvho vvere not a little affrighted at this fo strange misaduenture. Veric few (of so great a number) were taken;

Dį

who in going to the bridge of the riner,

The figuralical ty of mind:

The spaniard not lo foone Subdued, as the Gauleste the reason

The Spaniard

the Belgians Armoricans.

quered neree

Hirtius in lib. 2

were impeached by the enemy, who for= merly had gotten the mastery thereof. This is all that Titus Linius hath written, concerning this notable accident to the Gaules.

CHAP. IX.

In what manner the Gaules fortified their Citties and Townes: and what Engines they implayed for their owne defence.

After what manner the Gaules fortifird heir Townes and Citics.

VT this is enough alreadie fpoken, concerning the ma-ner of behauiour among the Gaules, as well in ranged battails, as in ambuscadoes :

it remaineth now to speak, how they forrified their Cities and Townes, and contrarywife, how they were belieged. How was it then that the Gaules strengthened and fortified their Townes, and what Engines had they whereby to defend themselucs? There neede no wonderment bee made, at the fortification of the Morini. Neruians, Menapians, Aduaticate, and Eburones, because they had no Townes at all. And thence entued it, that the Aduaticate maruelled fo ftrangely, to beholde the warlicke Engines of the Romaines; whereof it is thus written in the fecond Booke. Beeing fortified with a rampier of twelve foote high, which had fifteene thousand Towers and strong Bastils nere to each other; the Romaines kept themfelues within that Fort. Afterward, when the trailes and platformes were readie prepared, mounted aloft, and a Tower to be raifed some long distance off: at the beginning of these vowonted workes, the Gaules beganne to laugh on their walles, and lowdly to mocke at then, maruelling what they did undertake fo farre off, and with so huge an Engine, or how it should bee possible, that the hands and strength of men (especially of so meane stature) could promife any hope to themselues, of comming neere to their walles, with a Tower of fo great a composition. But when they (foone after) perceyued, that this mighty frame mooued from place to place, and approached neere vnto thevr walles: beeing aftonished at a matter of fuch nouelty, and fight vnaccustomed; they sent their Ambassadors vnto Ca/ar, to entreate peace; who answered them, fent by the That they must thinke that the Romaines Gauls to Cz. neuer made any warre, without the spe- far, and his an ciall fauour of the Goddes: feeing they fwer to them could advance (and in fo thort a while) an Engine of such height, to fight both farre off, and neere at hand; and therfore they should submit themselves, and all their goods to his mercy. Thus fpake Cafar . It would require fo much freech (faicth Cicero in his fecond Tufculanes) cicero in Tufa concerning the new fouldier, & the old: that if wee make comparison of one that, hath not beene exercifed with him which is tried and skilfull; he will appeare no otherwise, then meerely as a woman. All foldier. which notwithstanding, the very selffame Gaule, beeing enstructed in the Discipline of Cafar, feemed as a God to another Gaule, that neuer had knowledge in that Art.

But let vs leaue these Belgians which dwelt fo farre off, and come vnto fuch as were more civillized, as the Swessiones, Belloughans, and the Belloualians. The Swessiones (faith Cafar in his fecond booke) when as the Jul. Caf in com. Treiles vvere prepared against Nouiodunum, one of their cheese Townes, and that the platforme was mounted together with the Treiles : as men amazed at fo great an enterprice, and fuch straunge workes, which the Gaules had neuer feene or heard of, yet fo speedily, performed by the Romaines; they fent their Ambaffadors toward Calar, to entreate that they might yeeld themselves. The Bello- Engines to usfians alfo, having not (as yet) feen fuch batter cities and Townes Engines, wherewith Townes were bat- withall. tered, but onely hearing report made of them, furrendred the Towne of Bratufantium. Wherefore, if the Gaules Yas Cæfar affirmeth) had neuer either feene or heard focech of fuch inftruments, vitill that verie time: vvhy then should vve make any maruelling, That the Gaules, who had not yet learned fuch conning, yvere conquered by other Gaules, that had knowledge in them? Now, whether this place in Casfar, which treateth of A doubt conthe Belgians, vvas purposely vvritten, or cerning the (at the least) may seeme not to bee vvritten according vnto trueth, there the question remaineth. For, the Gaules made geft defences that the Gauls then had about all thei Cuies and Townes.

Ambaffides

Chap. 9.

Of the Swell

luruay of his their or . lerin build ng,& what hicknes their walles contai-

All the Gauls were not ig tifying their

Marcus Craf

lis beliedged

How the Gaub | their walles with strong beames of wood, | till they came to the great planted platwhich were not planted vp on one ende: but couched downe, & joyned together, with spaces of earth betweene each two beames, whereof Cafar speaketh thus in Int. Cafar in his feuenth book. All the walles (faith he) Com. lib. 7. of the Gaules, were (well nere) made after this manner. They layd beames of wood straite out along on the ground, and fol-These walles lowed after stil in the same order, making equall diffance betweenerhein, about the space of two foote in bredth. These beams or plaits, as some terme them, were reuefled and bound within, with ftrong forced earth; and the equall distances (whereof we have spoken) were filled vp with great flones, which fronted the wall forward. After that this rowe was all along thus ranged and ordered; another like frame was laid thereon, after the fame manner; vet fo, that the beames betweene both. did guard and keepe the maine Timber from touching each other. And being distanted alto by the selfe-same spaces; they were knit and flut fast together, by great stones castin beiweenethem. And so, confequently, all the whole worke shaped it felfe in this manner, euen till the Wall was perfected to a reasonable height.

Now, concerning this kinde of building, ouer and befide, that it was no way mithapen, by the order kept in the leuelling, and fitting both the beames & flones aptly to each other: euen fo it was greatly commodious, in scruing for the defence of their Townes. For the stones were apt and proper to impeach the force of fire. and the beames and other matter, brake and refilted the blowes of battery. Because, they being bound together inwardly, and knit to the Timber beames running all along contayning (for the most part) in thicknesse, the measure of forty foote could (by no meanes) be forced to finke, or be otherwise dismembred. Hereby then it may appeare, that the Gaules knew fome-what for the fortification of their Citties and Townes; yea, and how to defend themselves also, by such meanes as were yfed in the warres.

In the third years of the warre in Gaul. the Sintone-Áquitaines were befiedged by Craffes and his men, both with Treitles and Towers: but they refifted him valiantly, one while, by making faillies out vpon them, another while, by vndermining, forme, which formerly had beene prouided by meanes of the treilles. To which vndermining (faith Cafar) the Aquitains Int. Cafar in were well inured because they had Mines Com. lib. 7. of Copper and Braffe in many places. So much Cafar wrote, approning, that the Aquitains knew well enough how to defend a Towne or City; because they had Copper Mines, which made them therein very skilfull. It is faide also, that the Celtes (for the same cause) knew well The Celtes how to defend themselves at the fiedge skilful in their of Auaricum : because they had very deep Mines of Iron in their Country. For Auaricum being couragiously assayled by the Romanes, the Gaules found out all forts of inventions (as Cafar fauth in his feuenth Booke) wherby to give impeachment to the most fingular enterprizes of The natural the Romane Soldiers: as having (by na- inclination of tural inclination) a very ingenious and the Celis. fubtile spirit, apt to follow and counterfeit all things, and whatfocuer they fawe done by others.

gaine hurle it downe with their Engines.

fuddenly furprize the amazed Romanes;

or by vindermining, ouerthrow the maine fortification. Whereunto (indeede) they were the more apt and ready; because they had great yron Mines in theyr

Country, and knew (befide) all kindes of deluing into the ground. By leaving their Mines open, they impeached and tardy-ed the Romanes preparations: mingling fire with pitch and other matter made apt

to burne wherefoeuer it fel, and tumbling downe great stones also, to keepe them from approching neere to their walles.

owne defence

First, for the Romane Falx, they could Of the Roma ouerthrow it by a fnare or grinne, and engine Fals. when it was remounted, they would a-

They couered all their walles with towers made of skinnes, and equalled the height of those towers made by the Romanes, gainst the Rowith masts made in their owne turrets. In their accupts making their faillies abroad; eyther they of war against would throw fires into the platforme; or them.

By these cited places it appeareth cuidently that the Gaules had attained vnto the Mines yn fome indifferent knowledge, how and der ground, which way to defend a City: but to speak foready in truely, it was more through their conti- defending nuall exercise in their Mines, then by any cunning they had learned in the arte Mi-Iu!Ce(.\n Con ment lib 2.

Diners people that had no

Townes or Villages,

The Gaules had neuer feene fuch ad mirable Engines as were tramed by the Romaines

The words of Vercingetori at the taking of Auaricum. Int.Cefur he

The confta cy of the detence of their Cities & Townes.

2 People that inhabited Denmark an Norway. People of Germany, cald Allemaignes

Some others rearme him Critognatus.

Other Gaules milliked this counfell, yet yeelded it fit in cases of ex tremity.

The Gaules ful of courage

And this is that whereof Vercingetorix complained, comforting the Gaules at the taking of Auaricum. That the Romains had not wonne the victory, either by vertue or battaile: but by a kinde of science and cunning, which they had in the battring downe of Townes, wherein the Gaules had no knowledge. By which words, that place of Cafar which concerned all the Gaules in generall feemeth to be true: That the Gauls had neuer feene, or heard any report, of Platformes, Treslles, nor Towers. But bee it fo, that the ancient Gaules neuer knew any fuch Art, as the Romaines did; yet there was no want of courage in them. For, it is a matter very maruellous, which Cafar himselfe speaketh of them in his seauenth Booke, in remembering their constancy, for guard and defence of their Cities and Townes.

The Gaules, in the warres of the *Cimbrians and * Tentones, being wholly constrained to retire themselves into such places as were strongest, and being there also oppressed with great famine & lacke of victuals: they did yet maintaine theyr liues by feeding on the bodies of fuch, as both appeared, and were not able indeed to do any further fernice in the warre, & would (by no meanes) yeeld to their ene-

Critegnates, who was a man of great ranke among the Aruernians, held a verie strong opinion in councell, that it was good to put the same in practise for the defence of Alexia; and although hee had made no vie thereof before, yet hee ear= nestly maintained the fitnesse and necesfity thereof, onely for liberty, and that it was worthy to bee left (as a memorable custome to posterity. This opinion helde fuch account amongst the other Gaules, that they were of the mind, to affay all other meanes whatfoeuer, then to doe according as Critognates had aduifed. And yet notwithstanding, if there wer such vrgent necessity, and ayde tardied too late in comming; that it was most behoovefull to credit his judgement, rather then to yeeld, or liften to peace-making, vpon enforced or violent composition. Such was the courage of the ancient Gaules.

Now this kinde of defence, which they vsed for safegarding their townes, thogh it proceeded from no meane Vertue in them, yet it did not rellish of any great discipline. In what manner also they asfailed Townes, was vvithout any craft or fubile denice. For they never holp themselues, either by Platformes, Rampiers, Treilles, or Towers, as it is described in the second booke. The Gaules and the Belgians, had both one manner of affaulting Cities, fo faith Cefar. For after they had ringed (after the order of crowding together) a great number of men about the Town; they would hurle heaps of stones vp on the wall, vntill they had left it naked of men. Then, winding and turning, according as occasion served, they approa-ched to the gates, and vndermined the walles. Thus then their whole manner of making war in places fortified with ram- Townes, piers and ditches, doeth give vs to vnderstand, that the heart and courage of the Gaules was very great; and yet very little or no discipline at all vsed amongest them. Let this then suffice, to acquaint ve with the order of their land feruice.

CHAP. X.

Of the service on the Sea, or other waters, vfed by the Gaules : And what Ships and Vessels they had among them. Also, into what farre remote countries they extended their name.

Oncerning that which they performed on the Sea, as it is described in the warres against the Britaines and *Ve- *People now performed on the Sea, as it netes, it appeareth to tafte of called Venvertue, although it was fimple, and without any great cunning. Cafar describeth it in all parts, with the matter and maner Inline Cafe of fuch thips or veffels, as the Gauls then vsed speaking thus. Their Ships were made and armed in this maner. The keeles of them were much larger then tho feef the Romaines Ships: to the end, that they might the more in vie. eafily fustaine the obling and flowing of the Sea. Their Prowes were highly rayled, and their Poupes alfo: because they wer the more apt to hinder the power of great Waves and Tempests . All their Shippes were made of Oake, to indure all injury and violence that could happen. The bankes were made of timber beames, about a foote in thickeneffe : and

A description of the Gaules ships, which they had then they were toyned or fastened together with iron mules of great bigneffe. Their Anchors (in stead of Cables) were made fast with chaines of iron : and for want of other failes. they made wee of skinnes and hides, which were foft and pliable with currying and paring: And either through the want of hempe. or knowledge how to weet (which is the more likely) they imagined, that if they wied other failes, they could not refist fo manie tempests of the Ocean, and such impetuous windes as daily arafe, neither fo commodioufly conusy such great burthens as they caried in their neffelsen.

In another paffage of the fourth book

ly preffed by the Britains, on the shore of the Ocean; Gefar commanded, that the gallies (which these poor barbarous people were not wont to fee, & which could be managed most readily in any busines)

should be fet apart distant from the other thips, and that they thould be moved by the strength of Oares : to the end, that Engines, flayed their proceedings, and

Int Cafar it he sheweth that the Gallies, whereof hee Com. tib. 4 himselfe made service, both against the Of Cafars Gaffies a Britaines and the Venetes had not beene gainft the Br vied on the Ocean, vntill that inflat time. For the Romanes being fomewhat hard-

Hempe not known to the

the vie therof

Chap.:0.

Cæfars command for imployment of his Gallies.

they might be ranged against the flanke of the enemy, which was discouered; and do. whence they might repulse and recoil the enemy by the dint of their weapons, and Engines of warre, which availed the Romanes very greatly. For the ignorant peo-ple, being amazed at the fashion of those lgnorance is the mother of much errour, vessels, and the mooning of their Oares, especially in as also the manner of their vnaccustomed warre feruicus (foone after) retired.

Thus farre we have heard the ancient fashions and behaujour which the Gauls vsed in actions of warre, and vyhich haue bene collected out of many places:declaring them to be much greater in naturall strength, then in the course of Martiall discipline. Whereby wee may perceine (in regard that their yvarres were managed by vertue, & not by any flights, cun-The Gaules made them. ning, or trumpery;) they were the maifelues mafters fters of all or most nations. For they purof al other nafued their purpose, euen as Geographers were wont to doe, to make all the Earth habitable, euen from the Suns fetting, fo farre as his rifing . Britaine, Spaine, Italy, Germany, Illyria, Pannonia, Greece, Maccdonia, yea, Asia it selfe, can declare the Empire of the Gaules. For Britain, which was along the fea coaft (as Cafar faith in Iul. Cafar in his fift booke) had beene conquered by them that passed from Belgia, going thi-ther for pillage, and to make warre; and they named themselves according to all the Cities titles from whence they iffued; and having made warre there, there they inhabited, and began to plough and hufband the grounds. VVhat thall we fay of *Celtiberial Doth it not deliuer sufficient pledesended testiunony, that Spaine was subdued by of the Celtes, them ? For, to what purpose else thould that came out Lucane (av ?

The Celts departing from the ancient Gault, river Iberus. Renowned their name as fante as Iberus.

But it may be, that Italy dathe not wir Italy fibie &der the gouernment of the Gaules : Yes ed vnto the that it did foundly, and at the fame tiene Gaules power when Tarquinius Prifeus reigned. The Tarquinius biturioes, Aruernians, Senones, Heduans, Prilcus. Ambarrians, Carnutes, and Aulertes, vinder conduct of the Sollumans, Bosans, & Lin- People of gones, preuailed fo farre, that that Italy, Langres in France. which reacheth along fro the Alps, coasting still to the Apennines, and so farre on as the river Rubicon, became Gaule. And finally, after that they had ouerthrowne the Romanes necre to Allia, they tooke Rome and burned it; and having agreed for a thousand pounds of gold, they folde Rome surprithe Capitoll (which they kept befiedged) by the Gaules to the rest of the Romaines which yvere enclosed therein. And both not furious Germany borne the yoake of Gaule? In elder times (faith Cafar in his fixte Booke) Iul. caf in com. the Gaules excelled the Germanes in vertue. lib.6. For the Volca and Tettofages, vnder the People of concuct of Sigouesus, possessed themselus, Nanbone, beof the most fertile places in Germanie, e. yond Rhodauen those which were negrest to the For- now called rest Hercynia, as Titus Liuius also rela- Languedoc, Tacitus maintaineth, that the Colonies mountaines. of the Heluctians & Boians were brought into the same place. But those Gaules, the conquerors of Germany, being made bold Sparedyet and hardy by fuch simplicity in diet as the made the Germans viech extended themselves much Gaules course further, and the renowne of theyr name, went (with great honor) thorough Illyria, Pannonia, Greece, Macedonia, Thrace, and Afia, according as Instine (following Tro) gus) declareth more at large. And the

Com, lib. c.

of France, and felues by the Kings compelled to buy their peace of the Gaules.

Prolomy flain by the Gaules

The Temple of Apollo fac-ked by them.

Cruel people of Scythia in Europe,East-ward by the fea fide. b People of M.rfia.betweene Danubius and Aenius. Titus Linius i 46.48.44.9.

e People of Gaule, that did win part of Paphlago nia & Mæonia

d People that cald Mysians. e A Region in Greece, betweene Cari and Eolis. f A riuer rifing out of Taurus, and running tho-rough Cappa War guided no guile.

name of the Gaules was fo much feared. that Kings (not constrained, but on their own meer motion and good will)bought their peace of them, with great fummes Beeing conducted by Belgeus, they flew Ptolomy, King of Macedon. Led by Brennus, as making small account of the spoyles of men; they sacked the Temple of Apollo, which was in Delphos. Afterward, a new Armie of the same Gaules, which vvere dwelling in Germanie, hauing formerly driven in rowte the Getes and Triballes, and inforced Antigonus King of Macedon, to forfake the Fielde: thence they passed on into Asia, vyhere they made furth a dreadfull terrour(as Titus Liuius, the great blamer of the Gaules name, (arth in his eight and forty booke) amongst all the Nations, which were on this fide the Mountaine Taurus, that not onely they among whom they came, but fuch with whome they never were (both neere and farre off) did ranke themselues altogither under their obedience and fubicction.

Not long after, because they confisted of three Nations, to witte, Tolistoboges, Trocmes, and Tectofages, they divided Afia into three parts, to the end, that each Nation might hold his share tributary to himselfe. The coast of the Hellespont was assigned to the Troomes. The Tolistoboges had the & Aplides and Ionia for their part. The Tectolages had the Countrey which was in the middeft of Asia, and raised all their fouldiers pay, at the charge of that whole Afia, which was on this fide Taurus, making their abode neere to the river Halys. And their name was so much feared (in regard of their great number) that they became (afterward) a people of no meane parentage: infomuch, that the Kinges of Syria refused not to pay them Wages. Thus hath Titus Linius written, concerning the entrance of the Gaules into Greece and Asia. Whereby, I haue observed, that, in regard (as I have formerly fayde) their warres were managed by vertue, and no craft or guile: the due commendation of the Gaules valiancie, was iustly comprized within those limites and Countryes, as the Sunne obferued his course, from his rising, to his

But in following time, thorow lacke

of Military Discipline, or else (much rather) by reason of discords, which grevy among themselues, the & Cenomanians, has using difference with the Togates, the Mass (ylians with the Bracchates, and & Heduan) with the Comates: they holp the Romans, to bring their owne Countrey into thraldome; betraying all Gaule, to subject it Gaul berray to the Romane Empire. And that which & fubicated is much more, to the end, that in this cale | Empire. we may more admire the Gaules Vertue, they being well instructed in the Art Military and all together hauing encountred Cafar, who was a most excellent Maister The Romane in actions of warre; within the space of throwne ma foure yeares, ouerthrew the whole Ro- yeeres, onely maine Empire, which had ferled it felfe by by the valour fo many warres, and multiplicity of ages. For heerein Cafar had the confent of the Gaules, onely against whom, (as Vareingetorix prophesied) not all the inhabitable worldknew how to make refiftance: yet, the only confent (I fay) of the Gauls, and Gaule onely, stoode against all the other Provinces of fo great and mightie an Empire. Why then, thou Man of Gaule, thou deseruest highest honour for this Vertue; for encreasing the dignitie and glorie of thy Countrey, and not the tyrannie of a ftranger . Thou (euen of the Gaules thy felfe) hast subdued Italy, Spaine; nation in the Greece, Egypt, Asia, Affrica, yea, and Spaine againer in briefe, thou haft conquered the whole Empire of the Romane

But this may seeme sufficient (if not too much) to be fooken concerning their man-hoode and valour : Now it is fitte time to speak of their prudence and wife-

CHAP. IX.

Of the Learning and wifedom of the Gaules: Of the disciplines instructed by their Druides or Priests, to the yonger people. Also of their Bards, Poets, Sarronides, Eubages and profession of Languages.

THE study of disciplines (whereby the Of the wifeiudgment of man maketh it felf most dom and learfirme, for the better entertainement of wisedom)was most notable amog the an-amongst the Gaules.

Chap.10.

ned Priefts in

Gaule, who estimation,

that the deter

controuerties was commit-

red to them.

it is supposed.

that they firft

same out of the lie of Bri

The Gaules

capeable of all

nent lib 7 .

Diodor in Lib.

Strabo in li 🔩

Certainler | cierte Gaules. The Druides, or Druide,

made profession in each of those Disciplines. First of all, Cafar faidr, they wold nauermen to beleeue, thar their foules

could not dye but after death they paffed

from one body to another And they were of opinion, that this beleefe ferued greatly for an encouragement to vertue;

tempt. Moreouch, they discouered verie many things which they taught to youth:

concerning the Starres, and their motion tof the greatnesse of the world, & the earth softhe Nature of things vof the might and power of the immortall Gods.

Cafar writeth, of the Learning of the Gaules but in few words, and fleightly;

theifare we must enquire after more ample relation. That the Gaules had a cape-able understanding of all disciplines, Ca-far hath affirmed in his feuenth booke, by that which wee have already alledged.

They are a kinde of people of very great vnderstanding, and who are most apt to follow and counterfet all things which cabe taught them. And Diodorus writeth thus . Although their Beech be Comewhat obfcure and doubtfull; yet are they not any fuch men, as do estrapae themfelues from Learning. Alto Strabe agreeth there-with, faving. The Gaules are easily quided to learn such things as may do shem feruice, because they addict

From the beginning of the world, which Father Noah re-established all sortes of Disciplines were taught to fuch spirits, as appeared to be defirous of thom: For according to Berofus, if that which now adayes is generally read, be true: Dis, who was the first Author of the Gaules Nation, is faid to bee most famous for know= ledge, and thereon was called Semnothes, or Samothes, and (after his name) fuch as made profession of Learning and knowledge, were termed Semnotheans, or Sa-motheans. But this place of Cafanteemeth to confirme the history of Berofus. The

For this cause, they marked all the cour-fes of times by number, not of dayes, but frome, by observation of their birth daies, and fo from the beginning of months and yeares; that still the day followed the themselves to Arts and Disciplines.

when men held the feare of death in con-

add ftein

1100

Old Father Nosh re-efts blished the

*Pluto the God of riches Demigr.gen.

Berof.ant. Ct. Gaules (faith he) do report them elues to bee descended of their father Dis: and say beside, that the Druides gaue them that instructio.

The courses f times note ynumber of of nights; and that they kept fuch a cunights, & no night. Now, concerning this point, that day alwayes enfued after night : the Germaines also kept the same course, & made not their account by number of daves as of accounting wedo (faith Factors) but of nights giving an apt rearme therefore, and vied their alfiguations among themselves accordingly, as holding, that night was still the guide to day. It may bee, that this was a thing in vie to other people alfo, to take the beginning of the houres, from the inftant of midnight. in But let vs come againe to Father Da and the Semhocheans , or Samotheans, whereof Beroface (peaketh; with whom the opinion of variationle consenteth: for hee writeth in his Magitian (according as Luertius reportech) That Philosophy receywed originall from the Semnotheuns of the Gauls. The fame Berofus writeth, that Sarron the third King of Gaule, to reftrain the wilde fierceneffe of the first men; established publicke Schooles of learning: but hereafter we shall speake more at large of the Sarronides. The fourth King was Druis, of whom came the Druides. & who were full of all things, as Cafar affirmeth. The fift King was Bardus, of whom wee celebrate the honour, in speaking of Bardes, Poets, and Orators. Thus then weeperceine the ancient professions of the Gauls disciplines, which maketh it selfe venerable, cuen in the image of antiquity. Marcellinus in his fift Booke, doth very neere agree heerewith; writing the Original of ble diftiplines the Gauls, where he faith, Thofe that have of the Gauler anciently written, doubting the first original of the Gaules, did leave their knowledge halfe full of trouble. But fince then, * Timagenes the Greeke, both out of diligence and diuers Languages, collected fuch things as were vnknown for the space of long time; to whom giving credit (all doubt & scruple taken away) we will deliuer the fame notes distinctly and cleerely.

Some are of opinion, that the * Abori-Some are of opinion, that the * Aborithese Countries; and that they did name themselues Celts, after the name of a king whom they deerely affected; and Galates (for the Greekes do call the Gaules fo) after the name of his b Mother. Others do affirme, that the Dorians, which followed ancient Hercules, inhabited the borders about the Ocean. The Drufides recount (for a truth) that there was a certain part he a people of observation by night.

Berof. Ant.lib.

Arist in Mar.

*A great the. lexandriagin who taughtin taines, whom Saturn broght into Italy.

b Galata, or Galatea.

c Fepured to

Com. lab. 1

A Letter cari-

ed by a Gaule

Amius de D

Scrip. Brit. Cent.1.

Two bloodic

a People of Phocis, a little countrey of Greece, by the gulfe Criffeus Lucania, in the gulfe P Stanus. c The Cittie Marfilesin France-which

The begin-ning of the fludy of Lerwas astamous

for Learning,

as Athens

Galatea got with childe by

the Ancient

elder dayes

The Lerning vied amongf maticke, Physick, Theology. Grammar Gauls in those Countrey: but were chased and expelled from their dwellings by another people, in regard of their continuall warres, and thorow the inundations of the Sea, they landed on the hither Islands, and in the Countrey on this fide the Rheine. Some alfo holde, that after the destruction of Troy, a finall number of people which fled from the Greekes, wandering all about: cam at last into this country, which till then was empty. But the inhabitants of this land (more then any thing els can) do affure this, which wee have also scene engrauen in their Monuments: that Hercules, the fon of Amphitrio, made all pos-I. Bale forip. lible speeds to ruinate the cruell Tyrants Brit. Cent. 2 Gerian and Taurifess, one of which over-Gerion and Taurifcus, one of which ouergiants conque awed Spaine, and the other Gallia. After sed by Hertu- he had conquered them both, he had priuare knowledge of some women of noble race; by whom, he had many Children, that flyled (by their owne name) all those places where they commanded.

It is likewise further maintained, that the * Phocenies which lived in Asia, flying from the cruelty of Harpagus, Lieutenant to King Cyrus, betooke themselues to sea, and came into Italy; one part vvhereof, founded the Towne of b Velia, and the other . Massilia in Viennoys . Within some while after, when their forces were increafed; they fortified a great number of Cities and Townes. But we must breake off this variety, which gladly would keep company with pleasing satiety. Afterwards, when these places were (by little and little) civillized, and reclaimed from rudenelle by men : the study of learning (which is most commendable) began to appeare in some splendour, by the Bards, Eubages, and Druides. Marcellinus reporteth this of Hercules, agreeing therein with Berofus. For Bero-(w faith, that Galatea (by confent of her parents) was begotten with child by Hercules, at his returne out of Spaine, and that of her was borne Galata, of whome the Gauls received their name Galates. Therfore, the antiquity of the Gaules Discipline and Learning, maketh it felf known by thefe testimonies.

But in what Discipline and Learning perhaps) thou wilt aske me? I answer in Grammar, Rhetoricke, Logicke, Mathe-

of a people, which were Natives of the instructed to reade, and frame Letters: and this Art was fuch from those times, when as the tongues were in their entire condition: and that the neighbouring ftragers had not (as vet) corrupted them. For fo Plate in his Philebens grounded the Greeke Grammar. Heere (me thinkes) I understand in this place, that which many good and learned foirits have questioned to wit, what were the Letters of the Ancient Gaules? Cafar, in his fixt book confirmeth, that they were Greeke Letters. They thought (faith he) that it was ill done, to fet down their disciplines in writing:how- Of the letters best, that almost in all their other affayrs, as Gaules. well common as particular, they vied the Greeke letters. In this place, Gafar fpeak- Cafar in cometh not obscurely, but disertly and plainlv : that the Gaules made vie of the Gre- The Gaules cian Letters, that is to fay, thefe Charra- vied Greeke Gers a. f. y. &c. He deliuereth fom proof Carraders. heereofin the first Book, that in the camp of the Heluctians, there were found little Table bookes, written with Greeke Let- Greek letters ters. Most true it is, Cafar calleth those found in the Greeke Letters, which the Gaulesthen campe of the Heluetians. vied : but I call them Gaul Letters, & will Inl. Cafaria maintaine, that they never came out of Com, lib. I. Greece into Gaule; but on the contrary, that they went out of Gaule into Greece.

As concerning the man, who is fayde to be the first inventer of Letters, verie Of him that great question had beene made thereof: | was the first and Plane hath debated the matter by di- Letters. uerlity of opinions. So that the invention of Letters, is not proper or peculiar vnto any one Nation, according as hee thinketh, but (from all antiquity) they had bin vied. Cadmus (if the booke be true which Cadmus reis allowed to one named Kenophon) as is ported for to bring Letter affirmed by form, was the first that broght from Phani-Letters (to the number of fixteene) from cia into Phanicia into Greece, the which were ve. Greece, and ry like to the Caracters of the Galates and that foundou Maons. Hereby may be coniectured that the calling of Letters came from the Galates vnto the Greekes. Now, finding not onely a verie likely coniecture, but a certaine proof alfo, by the report and account of Times; maintaining, that the discipline of the Theantiquing Semnotheans, or Samotheans, Sarronides, of the Gaule disciplines Druides, and Bardes, did flourish in Gaul for fo many yeares before Cadmus event into Greece: there neede no doubt to bee made, but that the Gaules caracters vvere in vie in Gaule, for so many yeeres before

Chap. 11. And this is that, which Varro (in his fea- | could fpeak it in any mean measure, Heruenth booke of the Latine tongue) maketh openly knowne. For Crates & Greek, had formerly made a Grammarian queftion in Greece, demanding what was the reason why Alpha might not be called Al-The demaund Crates the phatos? The other grammarian Greekes answered: These wordes are none of ours, but are wholly Barbarian. In this place then the Greekes do plainly confesse, that these Letters were none of theirs. And confenting heereto, Aristotle confesseth to his Magitian (according as I have alreadic fayde) That Philosophy received originall Arist in lib. from the Semnotheans, or Samotheans of the de Mag suc-from the Semnotheans, or Samotheans of the cessible 22. Celts. And last of all, that Gaule had bin

I know very well, that Strabo speaketh of the Gaules, that they affected the Greeks: infomuch, that whatfocuer bar-gaines or convention was made amongst them, they wrote thereof into Greece,& that they addicting themselves to the fludy of cloquence, & of Philosophy, as the Greekes did, kept in pay or wages, professors of the liberall Artes, as also they did the like by Physitians. But Strabo wrote this of the Masylians, and of their neighbours, at fuch time as Tiberius held the Empire, and when the great Lords of Rome (as himfelfe writeth) caused theyr children to bee fent no more to Athens,

then they did to Marfeilles, there to follow their studious exercise. It must needs then be very certaine, that we learned the Gaules do Ctrine of Dis, Samothes, Sarron,

Druis, Bardus, and those other ancient masters, when Greece did not fo much as one-

Some may conceit, that we speak of Paradoxes, against all reason: but I cannot coprehend, why fuch men as have beard fo many Authours speake, that carry cre= dite and authority (among all) in other things, should reproach theyr praises of their owne Countrey, by a peruerse opi-

understand the Greeke tongue, that they

the Mistris of all Greece.

Mars y erre

Strabo in lib

The aucient famous Vni-uerfity of Marfeilles in France.

Authours of found autho.

> nion of judgement. But it may bee, that al thefe things do ferue vs to no purpofe, in regard that (concerning this matter) wee may bee preffed with nouell Arguments : because the Gaules (as some will Whether the fay) did fpeake Greeke, therefore did they ly thinke on Letters.

Gaules Spake Greeke or no make vie also of Greeke Letters. But let me much rather tel them, that in & from the time of Cafar, the Gaules did motfo in I have Cafar for my warrant : for thus he writeth in his fift Booke. Wee preuailed To farre ((aith hee) with one of the Gaules horsemen, onely by powerfull promises: shat he undertooke to carry a Letter to Cicero, which he had written in Greeke Carracters, to the end, that if it happened into the nemies hand, they might not know our fecrets. Cafar (peaking this, I conclude thereby, that the enemies of Cafar and the Gauls, understood not a letter written in Greek, nor the language thereof.

And hee that will looke a little neerer, That the ponot Grecke.

cannot probably proue to himfelf (thogh | pular Gaules fome others hold it for most certain that vnderstoode the popular Gaules understood any thing in that language; but that the cheefe and principall Heads of each Commonweale knew the Greeke tongue, as now adayes they do the Latine. I fay moreouer, that whofoeuer maketh heedfull observation. will finde, that this cannot any way bee prooued for truth. Because it is most certaine, that in fo great an army of enemies, there must needs be some men of marke, of Townes good store, Nav. that which is more. I have learned of Cafar himselfe. that the woorthy Draides, who were the mafters and Doctors of the Gauls youth, Greek tongue did not know the Greeke tongue. For Diuitiacus, one of the Heduans, according to the testimony of Cicero, was the most learned man amongst the Gaule Druides . The great affection in this Divitiacus, towards the Romane people, the extraordinarie good will which they bare vnto him, the fingular fealty, inflice, tempes rance (as appeareth in the first booke) in this man, was very well knowne voto Car Car. To Cafar I fay, who understood the Greeke tongue fufficiently, and had a de- Gafar fuffici. fire to communicate feeretly (for feare ently vnderleft any thing should be discourred) with Greek tongue Dinitizens, concerning his brother Dumnorix, who was supposed that hee would betray Gafar to his enemies.

Wel then, if Dinitizens had understood the Greeke tongue, as well as Cafax did: could not the one have holpen the other with prinate instructions, in whatfocuer they would have had imparted? But foorning to ferue his turne by ordinary Interpreters (asit appeareth in the verie fame ordinary in hill Booke) Cafar fpake with Damitacus, terpreters. by the meanes of Valerius, Prince of a In'.c.f.in com-

Coun- ment, ub. 1.

Diuitiacus the learnedft man of the Druides

ن الناد،

mo.

Countrey in Gaule. Then there is no ap- | take S. Hierom for their Authour, who gipearance, that Dimitiaeus (although hee was one of the principall Druides) did vnderstand the Greeke tongue, or that it was any way knowne to the Gaules.

Heere I may be demanded, what was What the language of the ancient Gauls wasan regard it was not Grecke.

The Gaules

compel d to fpeak the Ro

mane tongue.

Lcg:b.4

the speech of the Ancient Gaules, seeing it was not Greeke? I may, and must anfwer, that it was Gaulish : but to render a certaine reply, where the Language of the Gaules hath beene preserued, it requireth the Divination of a Pythian Apollo. Because it is sufficiently knowne, that the Gaules have had time long enough, whereby to vnlearne and loofe their owne Natiue tongue. For not onely Lawes, but the Romane Legions established in Gaule, constrained the Gaules to speake the Romane tongue. And, according as Plate fayth: Ordinarily all other Citizens do follow the manners of them that command them. Therefore, the Romane Lawier, and the Romane Warriour, did quite abolish and extinguish the Gaules Language.

Moreover, the Emperours of Rome, appointed wages ynto fuch men, as made publique profession of teaching the Latine tongue. So that, to this very day the bookes written in this corrupted tongue; fome whereof wee haue yet to fhew, are vulgarly called Romaine, and not Gaulifb.

Some in debating this matter, are of enough, that thele Suiffes were not the true Gaules of the Country, neither are : considering, that the ancient Heluctians (thut vppe by Cafar within their owne mountaines) were afterward expelled thence (according to Entropius) by the * Quades; and finally, the Quades them-selucs, thrust out by the Allemaignes . At length the *Vites, a people amongest the Saxons, possessed themselves of the Heluetians Countrey whereupon the Suitois

(that is to fay) Suiffes , were called , according to the opinion of Beatus Rhena-

That the Suif opinion, that the Language of the Suiffes yet fpeak fes, that hold (at this day) the dwelling of the ancient the Heluetians, are they that speak the an-Language of cient Gaulish tongue. But we know well pu likely, re-warded.

Teaching the

Of the ancieng Helueti-

"A people of Bohemia.

A Saxon people.

> nu, by a Name somewhat neere vnto the Vitois. Others are of the minde, that the language which the Germaines now adayes speake, is that of the ancient Gaules, and ueth affurance, that in his time the Galates or Galatians of Afia, spake the same language which the Treuirians (dwelling on the Rheine) now doe. But Cafar feemeth to avouch the contrary writing in his first Booke, that Arionistus King of the Arionistus K Germaines, by long vie(as fome have conicctured by this place) of fourteen yeers, did speake the Gaulish tongue. And in the time of Saint Hierome, there were other Treuirians in Gaule, that were subiects to the Romane Empire: and now in our time alfo, there are other that speake the fame speech, as the other Germaines doc.

There remaineth yet another opinion amongst learned men; who do judge, that Gaule Armothe language of the ancient Gaules, is that Britaine. which was vied in Gaule Armorica, that is Britaine at this day. But they do not hold the French History to be true, that makes the Britaines to come out of the Isle of Britaine, into Gaule Armorica: confidering, that Cafar (as I have already faide) maketh great Britaine it felfe to be a Colonic of the Gaules, and that Strabo maketh mention of a Towne or Cittie, called Britaine, which is in Amorica; and Plim (though verie confusedly) numbereth | Plin, in Lib. 1: the Britaines in Gaule : and Cornelius Tacitus in the life of Agricola writeth, That the necrest shores of the Ile were impeached by the Gaules, & that their language was but little different. Finally, the learned men of this Isle, imagined (for this Of the welft reason) that the Welshmen of England, land. had fome conninence in speech with our Britaines. Therefore this is the only opinion, which (as yet) I know, to holde any good reason, or descruing to be approoued. And this is the Grammar of the Gaules, both in writing and speech.

But what was that of the Britains, and O. the difeithat of the Germaines? The Discipline of Britains, and the Gaules (faith Cafar) mus first invented Gaules. in great Britaine, as hath bene esteemed : and Iulius Cafa from shence transported into Gaule. And at this day, such as would know it most diligently, they go thither (oftentimes) to learne It. This passage sheweth sufficiently, that the discipline betweene the Britaines and Gaules, was al one. If we understand also, that Cafar maketh great Britaine as desceded of the Gaules, & that they of the Brittains were most human which were Gauls.

lul.Lafar in comment. Lib 1

rilme

Great Britain affirmed by Cafar to be a

Corn Tacitus in lib.2.cap: 1.

> Of the Bard and Poets amongst the Gaules:and in what reue were efteen > > Strabe in tib.

The studies of the Rhetorick

Diedor in lib.

The discipline it is verily to be credited, that Discipline of the Britain parted from Gaule, to come thither. This place may suffice generally for al the do-Ctrine of the Britaines. Concerning the Germaines, there is scarsly any one word . The men and Women (faith Tacitus) were equally ignorant in the fecrets of Letters . The Germaines then wholly, had not any Letters or Dif-ciplines. Eneus Sylvius gineth affurance, that in the time of Adrian, civility and Letters came into Germany. The Germaines themselves do hold, that it is not vet eight hundred yeares, fince their langnage began to be written; and that (with Christian Religion) the Muses came into Germany; where both in publique Schooles, and by learned professors, they haue so prospered, that the nation (which all Nations else had formerly in detesta-tion for fauage barbaroufnes:) hath fince

then, in all civility, in all gentlenesse and humanity of all disciplines, conferred with the most learned and best lettered

Nations whatfocuer, and for the priority

But what were the studies of the Rhe-toricke Gaules ? Affuredly, they were very highly and honourably effectived:

yet more for a fetled speech, confishing of measure, then in profe. The Gaules had (faith Diodorus in his fixt Booke) Poets of melodie, which they called Bards. Thefe men, with a Musicall instrument, as with the Lyre or Harpe, fang some mens prai-fes, and others imperfections. He further ffiarmeth in the same place, that Poets

were in fuch reuerend respect amongest them, that when Armies were in ranged battaile, hauing their Swordes and Bowes ready drawne, and approaching to finite one another: not onely friends.

but meere enemies (if these men once did steppe betweene them) were faine to make an end of all fighting. In like manner, among the most fauage Barbarians, anger was compelled to yeelde to wife-dome, and Mars gladly renerenced the Muses. Likewise, Strabo in his fourth

Booke, speaketh of the Bardes, as being

Poets, and fingers of praifes. The Poet Lucane alfo. in the first of his Pharsalia. speaketh thus in commendation of the Gaulith Poets.

in this commendation.

Of the Germains. Cornelius Taciins, ubi supra Eners Sylvius

and Gaules al

Chap.11.

concerning the Germans and their for mer barba

You Poets, Bards, that of those valiant souls, Dring in warres, do Caroll their renowne. Know how teternize to perpetuall worlds Their endlelle praile: Many (weet sones you (fing.

Morcouer, Marcellinus in his filte Macel. in lib. 1 Booke, speaking of the Gaules, hath these words : The Bards fung to the Harp, which they touched very pleasingly : declaring the famous actes of illustrious men, their Songs being composed in heroycall verses. The Romaines followed this example of the The Romains Bardes, and they (according as Cato hath initated the written in his Booke of Originals) had a lards in fingcustome to fing at banquets, the vertues of famous and renowned men, euermore conforming their voices with fuch as did play on Instruments.

Heereby therefore, we may wel perceyue, how highly Poelie was honoured and authorized by the Ancient Gaules. This argument putteth mee in minde of Greece, and other Homer and Heliodus, thee vaunting of them, that they were in as great honour and estimation amongst Bards and the Greekes. This then was their Rheto- Poets. ricke, and (as Pomponius Mela fayeth) This was the eloquence which the auncient I baseps. Gaules had.

But what was that of the Germaines? Although they were ignorant (as hath bene formerly declared) in the mysteries and fecrets of Letters; yet notwith flanding, as Tacitus anoucheth, they celebrated in ancient Canticles and Songes, the memory of their Gods and Kings. And this was the only maner of their Annals, & of the Antiquity which they had : for I finde nothing more, concerning the Difcipline of the ancient Germaines.

Now, what was the Logick of the ancient Ganles? I finde in Calar one only que- The Logicke flion, concerning the meanes & manner Gaules. which ought to be followed in the inftru- Int. Cofar in Ction of youth. All the noble and liberall Com. lib. 4. Arts were to be learned in written books: the maisters of those Arts, interpreting the to their schollers, & the schollers pra-Clifing to vaderstand them. Many times Difficulties fome great difficulty would arife, about arifing about the entertaining of mens authority; whole men of autho-Bookes were propounded to youth: be- written works cause those men, although they were more excellent then other men, yet notwithstäding being no more but men, they

Greece te-

The Rheroricke vied among the Germeines, in lib.5.c.9.

vvould

That the Ger maines Language was the olde Gaulish tongue.

The memory

Arts taught by voice or tongue, without writing.

Inftructions giuen vnto youth by wordof mouth Inl.Cafar in Com. lib. 6

Two especials ged by Catar concerning influction.

a.Reafons of the Druides.

Pithagoras 8 Socrates lefte nothing writ would sometimes dreame, and quite forget themselues. Whereby ensued, that their writings passing as valuersall, they proued many times vocafie to be explained. Contrarywife, without any writing, but by the voice onely, an infinite number of Arts and Sciences (belonging to Mechanicall men (as Laborers, Maions, Marriners, and fuch like) were foone apprehended: and there arose no repugnancie or doubt of their words, neyther any difficulty of their intention when as they were vnderstoode. There was no other maxime of these Arts, but what vse and profit had approoued. Then those Doctors and professors were not woont to write of any discipline : but al that they delinered to youth, they taught onely by word of mouth. Yet notwith Handing, being guided by other reasons, they made Conscience (as Iulius Casar sayeth in the fixt Booke) to fet downe their disciplines in writing.

Well then, if we vrge a question (in this case) to Casar, thus will he shape vs an answer. It appeareth to me, that for two reasons, they established this decree among st them. First because they would not have their disciplines imparted unto popularitie. Next least fuch as learned them, trusting to writing only: would make the leffe account of retuning them in their memory. For many times it happened, that the more part, by vfing continuall recourfe to books became flothfull in Learning truely, or kept retention of any thing thewn voto them. And thefe two reasons were likewise alledged by the Druides, for not committing their Disciplines to writing, & thefe causes have beene approoued by the very cheefest Philosophers of Greece. For, in ancient time, this was the aduice of Pythagoras; and (after him) of Socrates, both which left not one Letter in writing. The opinion of Socrates, to this purpole, is amply declared by Plato to Phadrus, in this Conference which So= crates had with Phadrus.

CHAP. XII.

A Dialogue or Communication between Socrates and Phadrus, concerning what great difference there is between the excellent Art of Memory, and matters reeistred downe by writing.

Ocrares. It remaineth now to speake of the fitnesse or Of the fitnes withings of writing. Vyhether the doing thereof bee well or ill, is not that the question? Phadrus. Yes, that is our argument.

Socrates. Knowest thou, that in dooing or ordaining it, as concerning present acceptable to speech, thou mayest thereby be accepta- the Gods. ble to the Gods?

Phadrus. Not I, but thou doeft. Socrates. I have heard of our Elders, that they knew the trueth, and if wee out felues could finde it, ought we not henceforward, to bee verie carefull of mens opinions ? Phadrus. This is to laugh at thine owne demands but tel vs that, which thou favefl thou haft heard. Socrates. I have heeretofore heard, that neere vnto " Naucratis which is in E- knownen B gypt, there was fometimes one of the an- gypt. cient Gods, who was named Theuthates, and to him, the Bird tearmed Bis or Ibis, was facred. Moreover, that hee was the first inuenter of numbers, and of Icat, as alfo of Dice and Letters, and of Astrono- bers, let, Geo my and Geometry. At that time, Thaumas was king of all Egypt, making his abi- and Letter. ding in a great City of the higher Countrey, which the Greeks called the Egyptian Thebes, and that Ammon or Hammon was then their God . Theuthates beging come to this King, he shewed and declared to him, that hee must instruct the Egyptians in difciplines. Whereon the King demanded of him, concerning the the Egyptian profite that would enfue thereby to any one; and according as Theuthates (hould feeme to fpeake ill or yvell, fo would hee blame, or else give commendation. It is favde, that betweene Thaumas and Theu-

Whether wri

*A City well

The inventi-

Chap..12 thates many things were debated, which wold require too long time to discourse, but when they came to diffute about Letters. Sir (faid Theuthates) this discipline will make the Egyptians very wife, and prompt of memory : for this is the onely Medicine found out for memory and knowledge. Whereto the other replyed: O most ingenious and fubtle Theuthatec, the one is most apt to performe the workes of Art, and the other knowes best how to judge. what harme or benefite their vse may bring. But thou, the Father of letters, being carried by thine own affection, maintained the contrary of their effect. For hast not then found out a medicine for Letters enemy to the me mory & the reason why.

*A Citty in which was a ted to lupiter

Concerning the custructi-

on of letters

or benefit

might enfuc by them.

letters caufeth forgetfulnes in the mindes of firch as learne them, because they make no reckoning of fludying by memory; for they trusting to the marks of exterior writing, doe forfake inward recordation, which is the very foule of memory. Thou memory, but for forgetfulneffe, and thou can't not teach thy Schollers the truth of knowledge and vinderstanding, but of Opinion. For, they having comprehended great store of things, and vvithout a Matter, they will perfwade themselues to know enough; and yet notwithstanding Diffrence be-(commonly) they are exceeding ignotween know. edge an to pinion therof. rant in the greater part, proouing to bee offensive and troublesome in mens company and frequentation, as beeing more full of opinion of knowledge, then of true knowledge indeede. Phadrus. Thou canst easily (O Socrates) imagine the humor of the Egyptians, or of any fuch nation, as feemeth good to thy felfe.

Socrates. My friend, it is held by fome, that in ancient times, Oakes did speake those prophetics which were in the Temple of Inpiter * Dodonaus. For through Chaonia,nere the rudenesse and ignorance of old men wood dedication those times, who had not then attained to the knowledge which now your yonger dayes haue done: it was fufficient for them, to heare an Oake, or a Stone speak, fo long as they fpake trueth. It may bee thou conceineft, that fome peculiar interest should bee placed in judgement, how, or of what country he was, that hath spoken any thing of this nature, without confideration, whether it were for or

Phadrus. Trucky, thou haft very juftly reproued me: but for the order of disciplines, I am of the same minde as Thau-

Socrates. Then whofoeuer thinketh, that Arte can fo well fette downe it felfe, hath exceeor comprehend by writing, as if there ded all matter fee downe in writing, or affured writing. by writing; that man should ill learne, and bee ignorant in the Oracle of Ammon, making more effective of reasons fette downe in writing; then of knowing and retayning that which is writ-

Phadrus. Thou fayeft very well.

discourse set downe in writing, should speake of it selfe. But, if having a defire to learne, thou come and demand fome-

thing of it, concerning that which it should say; it continueth filent, yet fignifying one and the same thing. For after and for fuch as vnderstand it not; and no one can fay, to whom it is most convenient, and to whom not. And if it happen to be injuriously dealt withall, it will alwayes stand in need of his fathers help :

because it is not able to revenge any Socrates. O Phadrus, writing hath a great matter in it, and (in very truth) carrieth fome refemblance with painted Writing comcreatures, for fuch works feeme as if they ted figures or had life : but if thou demand any question portrainures of them, they hold their peace with great that can freak modelly. They inspected all and the modelly such instance and and the modelly such in modesty. Thou imaginest also, that a that a discourse is set downe in writing, it Writing is in carrieth it felfe alike equally to all men: it felfe equally to all men: and alike to both for the learned which understand it, all men.

wrongs received, nor yet to right it Phadrus. Hitherto thou hast spoken most trucky.

Socrates. Doe wee not then perceiue, how another discourse maketh it felfe, pated the brewhich is Brother to this we talke of, and much more it excelleth both in power & dignity ?

Phadrus. What is thy meaning ? And what is that which (thou faich) maketh it felfe?

Socrates. It is that, which (with know - The excellenledge) writeth it selfe in the spirit of him that apprehendeth: for it can after reuenge voon it felfe, knoweth it felfe, and when and how to speake, or to bee

Phadras. Thou speakest the lively and foule-like discourse of him that knowes &

Speaking rether to writing

42

Writing the image of fpe

A pleafant witty quefti.

ry good pur

The feedes of

wifedom haue

their due fea-

Matters fet

ing,cannot atterward be holpen with words,

downe in wri

vnderstandeth; and (by good right) that \ which is written, may tearme it felfe (in fome refrect) to be his image.

Socrates. Tell mee then, in good fadnesse, if a wife husbandman take delight to beholde his feedes, whereof he is carefull, and defireth to gather fruite; will he fowe them at Spring time, in the Gardens of Adonis, where hee shall see them budde foorthat eight dayes following; or, when hee goeth about fuch bufineffe; shall he scatter them iestingly, as after the manner of a holy day sport? When hee hath taken paines to fowe his feede, according as hee ought to do, and answerable to the Att of Husbandry: he suppofeth it sufficient for him, if in the space of eight moneths after the feed time is past, they doe thrine, and come to their matu-

Phadrus. The wife Husbandman, (O Socrates) will doe as thou haft fayde; but the idle and negligent foole hath no fuch care.

Socrates. Shall we then fav.that a man who hathknowledge and experience in that which is just, honest, and good, will be leffe carefull of his feede feafons, then an Husbandman?

Phadrus. No.

Socrates. He will not then write down the feedes of his penne with Inke, fovving them there amongst his Discourses, as if he did a matter of great importance: because hee cannot then helpe them with his wordes, neither can hee demonstrate the truth so exquisitely as it should Phadrus. Nor can they make any proof of themselues.

Socrates. No truely : but he shall foweand verite (as it is in reason) in meere sportfull manner, and vyhole Gardens of Letters. But, when he maketh memories, as certaine Treasures, to the end that they may not fall into Oblinion, as well for himselfe, as also for the first that will followe the same example: hee taketh delight in beholding their tender byrthes; and, while others doe addicte themselues vnto other Recreations, as to Feafts, sports, and the like pleasures; leauing all these heedefull matters behinde them; hee shall passe on all his leysures, taking great delight in his owne discour-

Phadrus. O Socrates, thou speakest of a most true pastime indeede, in steade of that which is of finall valew, and woorth nothing: when a man delighteth in ferious Discourse, he shall ruminate on Iunister of iuflice, and all those other especiall matters flice. by thee remembred.

This was the opinion of Socrates, which was much more sweete and humaine, then that of our Druides. Socrates alwayes preferred knowledge, confisting in memorie and living wordes, before that of the dead Letter : neuertheleffe, hee allowed veriting to bee but as help to forgetfulneffe.I could wish that this Opinion had beene as pleasing vnto the Druides; for then, wee should have had no neede of straungers goodes, as to borrow any thing of the Greekes, but continued fatisfied with our owne countryes aboundance. Neyther by meanes of the Latines and Greek, sshould we have learned disciplines by paine and studye, after studies of the nature of other straunge Languages: but with great pleasure and contentment ofminde, wee should have suckt them as elsewhere. milk from our nurses brests. All the youth of a man, albeit study were sharpe thereto should not so hardly have spent it selfe in learning Grecke and Latine Letters; yet seeming but as an enterance into the common rode way of liberal studies, whe we rather should have runne out our full course so the end. A long and laborious guage., irketime of studye year required in apprehending the Greeke and Latine tongues, to understand Homer, Demosthenes, Virgil, Cicero and others: whereas contrary-wife, without trauaile, and with exceeding delight, we might have fung the Hymnes & Poems of our Bardes, having(naturally) the true vnderstäding both of their words

The loue which they bare vnto theyr countrey, and to vertue it felfe, was ouerabounding in fenerity. For, our Druides fought all meanes, vyhereby to make their countrey Gaule surpasse all other Nations, not only in actions of Armes, but in the honor of Disciples, and in coueting to banish idlenesse from the Gaules mindes; they disinherited their posterity, of their most rich and vnualewable patrimony of ancient disciplines. In the doing wherof they buried in perpetuall oblinion, the Gaules rare Arts and Doctrines, which they had and fense.

Serious Dif-

Chap...3

The Gaules

& disciplines

Iul Cef.in com-men. lib y

Dis,Sarron,

la(eph,in lih,1 de Autiquit,

Two Pillars

The Gaules their owne. without need

ftrange Lan-

The Druides affection to and vertue, a hope, should have lived and flourished for euer, only by the meanes of hindring writing. But in vaine do we now make our complaints: neuerthelesse, sorrow remaineth still with vs. to wish (how vainely foeuer) that it had beene fo. And vndoubtedly (in this case) they might justly accuse the vilenesse of the Romane ambition, which vtterly ruined the Schooles of the Druides. Wee may therefore fay with the Poet.

We ought to mourne, or all these mortall things May touch their hearts.

CHAP. XIII.

A further addition to the Artes and Sciences, taught among the Gauls, by their Druides, Bardes, and learned men, according to the instification of diners, good Au-thors: and what religious Ceremonious orders they observed.

VT let vs come to the Mathematicall Artes, whereof Cafar speaketh, when he saiteth. They made very many disputes of the Starres, and at their motion; of the greatnesse of the world, and of the earth, and concerning the nature of things. Queftionleffe, thefe were their ancient disciplines, left from the father to the fonne by Dis Sarron, and Druis: which they themselves preserved carefully, hauing received them (from hand to hand) of their grave Auncestors. For Infephus, in the first booke of the Iewes Antiquities, testifieth, concerning the ancient Fathers before the flood, that they had obferued those Mathematicall considerations. And because they would hinder the loffe of fo noble inventions, or perifling by the inundations of the waters: they engraued them voon two Collombes or Pillars, the one whereof was of moulded engraue with Mathematical earth, and the other of stone. And this was thus done, that if that of earth should chance to be defaced by the flood: yet the other of stone might remaine intire, and yeeld men means to apprehend what was engrauen thereon. The same Author witneffeth, that the fame Pillar of stone was to bee feene in Syria, in the time of Velbafian. Eulebius likewise reporteth. Eufeb. in Hift. how the Egiptians learned them of Abray Ecclelib. 32.5 ham; and that the Greekes afterward, did fet downe those Artes in writing, & then published them . But our Drudes (as I have formerly faide) gave them to posterity, according as they had received them. from the hands of their fathers; disputing many matters, touching the Starres, and their continuall motions.

Mela alfo writeth, that the Druides Pomponius Memade profession, concerning the motion lambia scapes. of Heauen, and of the Startes. Astrology was fuch a thing, as it could not any way be taught or learned, except (before of Afrology, hand) a man had fludied Arithmeticke & andhouse Geometry. For the calculation of the ted by the motions, they flood in neede of the ac- Druiden counts of Arithmatick; and the distances and intervalles of the Starres, must needs passe themselves by the figures of Geometry. Therefore the Druides, making profession of enstructing Astrology; taught (first of all) Arithmetick and Geometry, which are Arts that make Astrologie to be understood.

Berofus theweth, that there was fome mulicke in the Hymnes and Poems of the Bardes. Among the Celts (faith he) a Barde was much renowned, for the innention of Sones and Mulique. The Druides difputed many things, concerning the greatnes of the world and the earth: This was the greatnesse and forme of the world and earth, which Mela fayeth, the Druides Pomponius Me. taught: This was their Cosmography & Geography, and the Druides diffuted diuers things of that nature. As, what was the length of the world, from the Sunnes fetting in the West, to his rising in the disputation red among the Druder. Equator or Equinoctial circle, to both of the world the one and other Pole: how great were carth, & beathe distances of the fine Zones, from the Pole, to farre as the imallest circle thereof even to the Tropick, and then from the Tropicke to farre as the Equator, which is in the midit: what were the Zones of the earth, which are assigned and subjected to the Celestiall Zones: which of the were inhabited, and defert, by reason of cold or heate, and which were temperate:

And how Europe, Afia, and Affrica were divided, and separate one from another. Their questions of Phylick, were con-

Berofus in lib. 1.

Bardesamone the Celts.

The divers the Druides,

Memories are faid to be the rich treasures of mans life,

and the best

to be learned

The questions of Physicke, among the Gaules.

Strabe in Lib.4.

Marcel:in l.s.

Two famous Philosophers among the immortall by Cicero him-

Cicero in lib. 4.de offic.

A fearthing out of natura things,or a realoning of the nature o any thing.

* A king of Galatia, who Cicero defen ded, being acconspired Calass death

Cicero in lib. ubi supra, cerning Principles, that is to fay, the matter and forme of things: as Fire, Ayre, Water Earth. Whence all things were engendred; how they perished, augmented decreased altered and moued. The professours (among the Gaules) of these fo feuerall doctrines : are called by Strabo. Poets, or Prophets, who, ouer and befide other things, concerning Phylicke, principally taught this Oracle, proper to the Country: That the world must sometime perilb by fire and by water. The fame Do-Cours are called (by Marcellinus) Eubages. The Eubages (faith hee) feeking into the very highest or deepest parts of the earth; laboured to discouer the secrets of the. These thy a testimony, he preserved the memory to Cicero. noble disciplines then, were wont to bee taught of the Gaules, and in the Gaules language onely.

Heere we may not omit, to remember two most excellent Philosophers among them; that were commended, yea, and confecrated to immortality, by the words of Cicero . The one was Dinitiacus, (of who wee have fooken already) Prince of the Heduans : the other was Deiotarus; King of the Gaules in Afia. Speake then noble Cicero, and remember vs of our famous Druides. In Gaule there were of the Druides among whom, I my felfe knew Diuitiacus the Heduan as the man that received me into his house, and made account of mee. This man made his vaunt, that hee knew the reason of Nature which the Greekes named Physiologia; and could speake of things to come partly by Augurie, and partly by coniectures. This Divitiacus (as it is very likely) was the Holle to Cicero, by reason of the Druides knowledge which was in him. But what doth he fay of * Deiotarus? How is it that this Oratour commendeth him? But wherein (faith he) /hall I make mention of king Deiotarus, that most famous dy right worthy personage our Hoste, that never did any thing, but with preface? For, when hee was returned from a volage, which hee had formerly purposed and resolved to make : the Chamber wherein hee should have lodged (if he had continued his journey) fell downe the might enfuing. And therfore as I have oftentimes heard from himfelfe, hee made many pauses and returnes from that one voiage albeit he proceeded in many other beside. Cicero fpeaking further of the fame man, faieth. Hee performed one very notable actithe Tetrarches, wherof he was dishostested by Cafar and condemned to pay a great funime of money. He faide, hee did not repent him-Celfe for not crediting fuch Auguries as happened to him when hee went towards Pompey, having maintained with his forces, the authority of the Senate, and liberty of the Romane people, with the dignity of the Empire. And that the Birds (to whose augurie hee gaue faith) had well councelled and aduited him : yet nat with standing , hee made much to Deiotarn more precious and decre esteeme of his honour, then he did of all his goods and posses ons. These are the words of learned Cicero. to whom both Gaule and Galatia are Gaule & Gafor euer beholding: because, by so wor- latia indebted of 2. fuch famous Philosophers of theirs. But what shall I most preferre in this place if not our fighes and teares, as true witnesses of our misery? Hecretofore, Gaule com-Gaule commanded ouer the Italians and Grecians, and, insted of the goods of Fortune, which are but of small worth, and gine to men as stipendary wages: the gaue them the goods of the minde in recompence, which were (indeede) much more precious. Greece and Italy vaunted very proudly, because they had Mathematirians and Philosophers : but that glory was (formerly) ours; those praises distilled from our Fountaines: which did meerely dry vp themselues, because they would not rampier and defend their owne power by writing. For Gaule might hauchad Gaulish Euclides, Ptolomies, Platoes, Aristotles, and others befide, farre more excellent men then all they were. But let vs ceasse our bootlesse complaints, & come now to the Theology or Divinity of the

The Druides (about all things elfe) The Divinity would have men to beleeve, that their vied among foules could not die: but that (after death) the Gauliffi they departed out of one body, & entred mens foules into another. The reason of this their opi- could not die nion was that it was the only encouragement to vertue, because seare of death was thereby held in high contempt. I fet downe this their perswasion of immortality as the principall foundation of the Gaules Religion and Theologie, which the Greekes and Latines did enviously celebrate. The Gaules (fayeth Diodorus) Diod in Libis, after their repaltes and feeding, had a cu- cap. 3. on when he came backe from the kingdome of Stome, to defie one another unto the Com-ters cast into fires that burned dead bo car.7.

manded over

The pride of Italy, yet prothe Gaules.

bate, without making any reckoning of their | Cafar also held, to wit: that by the conlines, for the opinion of Pythagoras premaiimmortall and that after the death of the body, within a certaine while they came againe into other bodies . And for this cause, some Written Letwould cast written Letters into heapes of wood, prepared as bon-fires to burne mens bodies in, as if the dead were there to reade

Strabo in Lib. 2 them. Strabo affirmeth as much. They were perswaded (sith he) that mens soules were not subject to corruption or mortality.

Pomponius Me-Lin lib.4.64.1.

Death freely

and voluntarily imbraced

The words of

oules immor-

The error of the Greekes

and Latines.

concerning the Gaules,

which were o

more antiqui ty then Pytha

by the Dru-

Chap.12.

eternall, and that the dead lined another life. Whereupon, when they burned dead bodies, or buried them, the whole account of their former lives negotiations was interred with the, was to be redemanded of them. Some were found, that voluntarily, and with their owne good will, would throw them felues into flaming fires and burned fuch things as neerest and deerest appertained to them, even as if tempt of death, the Gaules might make led with them: That the foules of men were themselves the more couragious, and valiantly disposed to warre: and it is very likely, that the contempt of death, whereof we have formerly spoken, proceeded from hence.

Valerius Maximus, in his second booke, Valerimanin maketh this relation. I bethinke me (faith lub.s. he) of the ancient manner of the Gaules, who are faide to have a custome, to lend out monies, to be repaied them againe when they wer Pomponius Mela writeth thus. There in the lower regions. For they held it as a was one thing which the Druides helde and | matter most infallible, that the foules of men maintained, to encite men (thereby) with the were immortall: and I (bould have reputed better will to warre: That mens loules were thefe men feolifh but that the Bracchates likewife held the fame opinion, which Pythagoras * Pallium did . Such a number of Authors then, doe confent with Cafar, con- the Latine cerning the opinion which the Gaules word Palliaespecially, if any thing had beene borrowed, it had, of immortality. And heere I may not negligently let passe, that these Authors (about all things elfe) do refuse to confesse, that the Gaules were the first fathers of Philosophy. Pythagoras maintained, that the foules of men were immorthey were to line with them . Mela reportall, and Plato (following him) faieth the weare. teth thus of them, wherein we may note fame. It is also the opinion of the Phithe fame reason of this perswasion, which losopher, which Ouid remembreth.

> Mens foules are exempt from death, And leaving their first lodeines : Live alwaies in new dwellings, Where they have fresh entertaiment.

This (I fay) was the judgement of Pythagoras, from whence enfued, that the Gauls (by report of the Greekes and Latines) were made Pythagoriam, and fo meerely borrowed this opinion of immortality. But to thew of what great ambition this error is. the filliest indeement may cafilie apprehend: in that, for a long time before Pythagogorus was borne, this opinion of the Druides lived among the Gaules . Wherefore, I may very well affure that which hath formerly beene proposed: that Greece was not Schoole-miffreffe to Gaule, but rather her scholler. Neuerthelesse, the Gaules did not allow of that " Metemplycholis, that is to fay, the changing of foules, which Pythieoris tionor pallage maintained as passing out of humane bodies, into other of brute beasts: For they of the foule did not believe, that of men they became beatts, but that they were made men again, de to another in other bodies. The Poet Lucane affirmeth the fame.

> - According as you fay. Those hadowes goe not into the filent dwellings Of deepelt Erebus, or the pale Country Of King Pluto beneath, The felfe fame (pirit enters Into another body : And of long life Led in another world, you fine most truely.

Other points f the Gouls religion.

Proceede we now to other points of the Gaules religion. They disputed very much, concerning the power and might of the immortall Gods, and made profession (as Pallium, for lay, as clothed with a Robe, um,& which phers vied to

Transmiera-

I wean: n lib. 3.

Chap. 14.

comment Lih

Strabo in Lib.

Ротренім Ме la in libi 4 £ 19.

Mela faith) to know what the Gods would have them to do. They adored the Gods. Mercury, Apollo, Minerua, Jupiter and Mars, holding almost the very same opinion. which other nations did to wit: That Mercury was the inventer of Artes, and a guide to men on their wayes and voyages: That he could helpe much in the gayning of monie, and in the affaires of Merchandize, being such as the Poet feigneth him.

Mercury reputed to bee the God of Meffages, and the inventer of Artes,as to trauellers in their journice

He spake the word, and the God Messenger, Immediately was ready to be gone. He fast ened to his feete his light wingd plumes, Which at his heeles do beare him through the windes, Mounting and falling with their nimble flight: One while on Land, and then upon the waves. He tooke his Rod and with that powerfull Rod. He Summond up aloft pale meager Ghosts, From the fad bades, or elfe doth fend them thither. And therewithall he doth controle our forts. Waking or fleeping, he commandeth all: And some into eternall sleepe to fall.

Marcel: in lib: S £4P.7.

For this Rod of his, was taken to be the power of Artes, the guide to trauellers on the way, and the rich gaine of Merchants. Iulius Cafar made his prayers to Mercurie. (and as Marcellinus faith) he was reputed to bee the most sudden fense in this worlde. that moueth our thoughts, according to the doctrine of those Divines. This was the power which the Druides gaue to Mercurie. As for that of Apollo, he was faid to cure & helpe diseases and sicknesse; as the God testifieth of himselfe in Ouid.

> Physicke is mine, and through the Vniuerse Men call to me for succour in distresse. The vertue of all hearbs to me is subject.

morph.Lub.4

Onidiin Meta

Minerua the Goddeffe of all ingeniou deuiles

The power lupiter and Mars in thei feuerall con ditions

Diedor, in lib.

Cruelty exemplified by rhe ancient Romanes.

thus: That thee gaue the determination of all workes and cunning deuifes. Whervpon the Poets feigned, that the was bred and borne in the braine of her father Iupiter. They were perswaded also, that Jupiter had command ouer all the other Gods, and that Mars gouerned in warres: to whom oftentimes they made vowes (when they had determined to give the enemy battaile) of all fuch things as they should take in fight. And if they won the day, they would facrifice all fuch Beafts as were taken, and bring away all the rest as booty. Diodorus relating almost the very fame, faith farther; that they facrificed their prisoners and captines to the Gods. But you wil fay that this example was too cruell. I confesse as much but must answer ve withall : that it was borrowed from the ancient Romanes, who wold put to death in their prisons, the very brauest & most valiant Captaines of their enemies. And many times for a publike spectacle, and before the common people, they were

The might of Minerua, they held to be I woured by them in cruell manner. Some of the Gauls did burne in their facrifices. fuch Beafts as were taken for booty, and (with them) did put the enemy to death, or elfe torment him with other paines. The Celts had an admirable and particular observation in their Temples, to cast or spreed abroad a great deale of their of the Celto in their Temples. tion very greedy and couctous: vet notwithstanding, there was neuer found any man, among the rudest inhabitants of the country, that durft fo much as touch one pecce thereof, fuch was their respect and reuerence to Keligion . Neuertheleffe, fuch offrings may (perhaps) feeme more proper and convenient for Mars : beeing proper and contenent for Mars: Deeing Names gluen called (in ancient times) by the Greeke to Mars, by Poets, The plague of men, or the Murderer, the ancient And yet fuch ceremonies also were common, and yled in the facrifices of other Gods. The whole nation of the Gaules. (as Cafar affirmeth) were greatly addicted to Religion, and by this occasion, such men, lib 6. as were vexed with any greenous difeagiuen as a prey to wilde Beafts, to be de- fes, or they that were in warre, or in any their oblations & offerings, or else made vowes of fuch facrifices. For they held a seuere opinion, that if for the life of one man, the life of another was not justly rendred: it was impossible to appeale the anger, or fatisfie the will of the immortall Gods. And fuch manner of facrifices wer Religious fa-crifices inftipublikely instituted, as truely declaring admirable Religion, and meruailous perfwasion of the Gods might and power; whereof the Greeke Authors made not a iote leffe account and estimation.

An especiall

Apollo taken to be the God of Physicke.

CHAP, XIIII.

Of the Diunation wied by the Sarronides, who were a kinde of Philosophers among the ancient Gaules their manner of oblations and facrifices : As alfo of their fels, charmes and incantations.

tuted pub-

Philosophers and Divines called Sarro-

A firange ob-the Sarro.

lodorus further faveth, that Diuines, were held in great honour & reucrence among them, whom they tearmed Sarronides, that yfed divination: and because they fore-tolde things that were to come, as well by auguries, as facrifices: they were highly effected of them, but especially of the common people, who performed great reuerence to them. And when they held any councell, concerning matters of import and confequence: they observed a very admirable custome, and almost incredible. For they would cut the quired. throte of a man, and when he fell downe; eyther by the manner of his fall, or feparation of his members, or fluction of his blood by a long and ancient observation) they attained to the knowledge of future things. Their custome also was neto their Gods, they yfed an impiety anuer to make any facrifice, without the (werable to their beftiall nature. For after presence of some Philosophers: as holthey had kept (for the space of fine whole ding opinion, that facrifices ought to bee yeares) fuch as were attainted and conperformed by such men, as participated ninced of notorious crimes: they would in the divine nature, and came neerest to foir them on flakes, from the fundament the Gods. For by the prayers of fuch men, they were perswaded, that good fortune and fucceffe thould be defired of the Gods, and their councell also to be ehigh piles of wood, and putting fire to specially vsed, both in the times of peace them; this was the manner of their inother perill of life: did facrifice men as 1 and warre. Heereto may be referred that which Cafar faith, in the fift Book of his warres in Gaule . Wholoeuer came latelt to the affembly made in Armes; beeing first afflicted with divers torments, was afterward put to death before the whole multitude. Moreover, Strabo faith, that they would fasten a man vnto a Crosse in their Temple, and there shoote him to death

med of Twigs and Ofiers, which beeing they dyed most miserably. Beside, they imagined, that the punishments of such as were apprehended for robberies and thefts, or any fuch like offences; were most pleasing to the immortall Gods, & these they made most vie of in those Idols. Nouertheleffe, for want of fuch offenders.

they made no difficulty, in putting honeil

and innocent persons to the same atflicti-

on, whenfocuer neede and occasion re-tues, laying. They builded a Colopius of wood, many parts whereof, were enterlaced with Straw: and therein they burned all kindes of Realts, and men alfo among them. But Dio-with Arrowes.

The fame Author, agreeing with Pof- Peffidonius in fidonius and Artemidorus, faith, there were Lib. 2 certaine Bacchanalles, which dwelt in an ib.4. Island, neighbouring to the Riner of Loyre, and of certaine Auguries done by them, according as two white Crowes mooued their right wings, which neuertheleffe is reputed to be fabulous. There-ans oblerued, in the honour of Ceres and that part of Proferpina. Cafar pursuing the felfe-tame Thrace, wher Hebrusicaleth occasion, saieth, that there were others, into the Acwho had Idols of immeasurable height, grum Sea. the members of whose bodies were fra-

filled with living men,& fet on fire; there with living

men in them

Strabe writeth the fame of their Sta- Strabe intib. 3 of their Stadorus faith, that in making their facrifices Diodo in Lib. a to the mouth, and so facrifice them vnto their Gods. Then placing them vpon the Turket.

molation.

The manner of their facrifices in the prefence of hilolophers.

fore that which Artemidorus faith, I hold more agreeable to reason, that in an Iland neere to Brittaine, fuch and the like facri fices were performed, as the * SamothraciDyonif. Ha-

Pomponius Me Lain lib. 3.44.7

molation. Pomponius Mela focaketh thus of the Gaules. They are a proud Nation, Superstitious and cruell sometimes: for they verily beloeue that men are the best and most acceptable facrifices to the Gods.

Neuertheleffe, wee thall not thinke

strangely, that the Statues of the Gaules

Gods were of fuch excessive height: if we but remember only what Pliny faith,

Of the statues of the Gods of the Gaules Plin.in lib. 34.cap.7.

in 34. Booke, and feuenth chapter. We beheld (faith hee) huge massie Statues of new inuention which they called Colosses, dr were no lower then Towers, but of equall height. In the same place hee speaketh of a num-Of the height ber, among which he nameth Apollo Caof diuers Co pitolinus, being of thirty cubites in height: loffes in un. dry places of the world. Inpiter Tarentinus, which was forty cubites high: The Rhodian Sunne, seventy; the thumb wherof, few men were able to embrace. Apollo of Tuscanie, which was in the Lybrary of the Temple of Auguftus, contained fifty foote in height, from the feet vpward. That of Nero, was an hundred foote high. But ouer and beside, Zenodorus faith that in his time there was one made in the space of ten yeares, sur-The Image of passing all other Statues in height & big-Mercury,exnesse: beeing the Statue of Mercurie, of ceeding all o inestimable value; and made in Autorgne, ther Statues.

a Common-weale belonging vnto the Gaules, and it contained foure hundred foote in height. Those Statues then of the Gaules Gods, were of wonderfull and extraordinary greatnesse, according as Cafar faith, which they filled full with living men, and so made offerings and sacrifices of them.

But you will obic tvnto me, that this manner of religion was cruell and abhominable: whereto I must answer that such cruelty was common vnto all other Natidamons, & familiar spirits of each country. Titus Linius writeth, that fuch facrifi-ces were made at Rome, after the ouer-throw at Cannas. He faith moreouer, that in the interim while, certaine extraordinary & vnaccustomed facrifices were performed, by confultation had with divers fatall Bookes, wherein a Gaule-man and a Gaule woman, a Grecian man and Grecian woman, in the market appointed for Oxen at Rome, were laide along vpon the ground aliue, in a place round engirt with ftones, which had never before beene ful-lied with humane offerings or facrifices,

zul. Caf in com

A crucil and abhominable kinde of Re ligion.

A Towne is Apulia, where the Romanes had a great ouerthrow.

Humane facrifices performed at Rome.

and there they were facrificed after the Romane ceremoniall manner. This is the affirmation of Titus Linius, and therfore Titus Linius in I shall neede to make no further mention Libio.cap.11. evther of the Arabians, Thracians, Scythi. ans, Egiptians, or Grecians: confidering, that Dyonisius Halycarnasseus sheweth in the first Booke of Romane Antiquities, licar in An. that Jupiter and Apollo, (because the tenth Rom. Lib. 1. borne of every male childe was not facrificed to them) fent great and greenous calamities throughout all Italy. Diodorus, in the twentieth Booke of his history, decla- Diod in Lib. 10 reth, that (in his time) there was at Carthage, a Statue of Saturne, and fuch like Carthage. facrifices. Andit was thought (faith hee) that Saturne was offended with the people, because that in (former times) they were Children fawont to facrifice to him, the most worthy and wont to jacrifice to mm, the most worthy and crificed to the best borne of their children. Furthermore, Gods. that by the successe of times, instead of their owne children, they bought and entertained others, fecretly nourifhing the, and afterward facrificed them vnto their Gods. This being closely and diligently discouered, & an infinite number of these supposed found out, which in that manner had beene facrificed, they were eafily perswaded to beleeve, that for this occafion onely, the Gods beeing displeased, An entireperfent enemies to take and facke their Citties, because they had not continued people.

wasion to a war of the continued people. those honours, which from all antiquity had bin done to the Gods. Wherfore, the better to appeale them again; they facrificed publikely 200. yong men, fuch as were the choyfest & best borne among all their Nobility, and found out three hundred more, which (with their owne good liking, because they perceived themselves to be suspected) gaue their lines freely to ons, or rather proper and peculiar to the be facrificed.

They had a Statue of Saturne, made of Braffe, which was of wonderfull greatneffe, the hands whereof were extended of admirable in round circling manner on the ground, greatnesse, and children beeing followed with eager pursuite were enforced to enter into the roundure, and then fell into a very deepe pit, full of fire. If any man be defirous to. have more ample and certaine testimony heereof: Eufebins, in the fourth Booke & Bufeb, in Hill feuenth Chapter of his Ecolofiafticall hi- Hatefilb. 41.1 ftory, recounteth many examples of this Religion, observed then in divers Nations. Affirming further, that in the time of

Sonne to

Teuron.of whom the

Allemaignes

Mercury their

elcended.

trine began to appeare in some bright fplendour: those abhominable cruelties were commonly abolithed; albeit they remained still among the Celts. Neuertheleffe, Mela writeth, that they tooke ena in lib: 3 ,cap.1 ding in his time. Moreover he faith some markes of this brutish cruelty, formerly abolished, vet notwithstanding, whe they brought their offerings to their Altars, which were confectated and dedicated to be facrificed, they would make an effay or proofe of them, and with much deliberation. These then were the finister & wicked facrifices of the Gaules, whereof Luwan: n lib. 1.

You Druides, after you for fooke your Arms You fell to Cauage and barbarous customes Of wicked facrifices. Only to you was given, To know the Gods, and holineffe of Heaven. Or not to know them.

cane speaketh thus.

Of the ceremonies obfer ued among & Germans. Iul.Cef.in com men, lib 4.

This shall suffice, for the manner of facrifices observed among the Gauls. What shall we now fav, concerning the ceremonics of the Britaines and Germanes ? Already we have related, what was the manner of behauiour, as also the disciplines of the Britaines. The Germanes (laith Ca-(ar) were farre differing from thefe customs and orders : For they had not their Druides to command in divine matters, and to take care of their facrifices. They held opinion of fuch as they beheld, and by robofe aide they conceined themselnes to be succored manifest ly ; that they were worthy to be ranked in nuber among the Gods : As the Sunne, Vulcane, and the Moone, of others they never heard any speech. These are the words of Cafar. Corn. Tacitus in But Tacitus, ouer and beside these, speaking of the Germanes Gods, nameth Tuiston, or Teuton, a God borne of the earth, and of his Sonne * Mannus, who were the original and beginners of their Nation. Then of the Sonnes of Mannus, by whose names, the neerest neighbours to the Ocean, called themselnes Ingenoues; and they that dwelt neerer to the middle region, Hermiones; and the other Istenones. Among other Gods, they worthinped Mercury, in the honour of whom, it cheefelt God was permitted them (on certaine dayes) to offer humane facrifices. They also appeafed Heroules and Mars, by the facrifi-ces of beafts, which likewife was permit-

Adrian, and when the Evangelicall doc-1 ted vnto them. A part of certaine number of the Swenes performed their facrifices to * Ifis; and yet, the cause and originall of fuch facrificing is not certainly the River Ina knowne.

Cefar, in his first Booke, attributeth charmes feels, & incontations to the Germanes which were performed by women of Speller, Charmes, and ner, wherefore Arrows would not bid him battaile: he found it to be a custome the Germane among the Germanes, that the mothers in women. their feuerall families, did declare by foels and varicinations, whether it were profitable to offer battaile, or not, and they would fay that it was not possible tor the Germanes to be Conquerers, if they gave the battaile before the new Moone, Tacitus fpeaketh much more of thefe dipinations, & among the rest, relateth the prefages and incantations which they most observed. The very simplest and most wat gar manner of their diaining (faith he) was,
by taking a branch cut off from a fruite tree, nation, by an) which they would cut into diners peeces, with branch cut certaine very knowledgable markes made vo. from a fruite on them, and afterward throw or feaster the Tree. (cafually and without any regard at all) voon some white garment. If the matter were to be consulted publikely, then it was done by the Priest of the City. But if it were in prinate or particularly; the father of the family. having made his praiers to the Gods, and elenating his eies up to heaven, taketh the peeces of the branch by three and three and when he hath lifted them aloft, he maketh his interpretation, according as he findeth the marks that were formerly engrauen. If he finde the cafe to be prohibited he maketh no other confultation (concerning that matter) that day : but if he finde it to be permitted, then he feeketh further for the truth thereof, by other kindes of predictions, which gineth perfect knowledge in that place, both by questioned woices, and alfo by the flight of Birds.

Moreouer, it was proper and particular which publikely had been bred in their Woods, by Woods and Forretts, and were all the manner wholly white, without any spotte vp- of their neigh pon them, and had neuer beene labored or employed, or vied in any fernice of man .. The Pricit, or the King, or elfe the Prince of the Cittie, fastening them vnto the facred Chariot,

*Daughter to Inline Cafer in Incaprations nerformed by Cornel Tacitu in ub.a.cap.z

ing & noyle.

A prediction

for the fucces

of their dangerous wars.

braced fuch

Physicie at-fully regard their neighing and noyfes. And there was not any other prefage. whereto the people(but especially the very principall persons in the Citty, yea, and the Priests themselves) did give more credite, then to this: as perswading theselues that they were the Ministers of the Gods, and came necrest in councell to the. They had another observation of presaging, whereby they could foretell the iffue of their warres how cruell or dangerous foeuer they were, and how they should succeed. They would take a prisoner of that Nation with who they intended to make warre, and he should combate with one of the brauest and most gallant spirits of all their owne people, & with those weapons belonging to the Country. After-the vanquished, and of his Nation. CHAP. XV.

ward the victory of the one or other, turned to the prejudice and difaduantage of What Ceremonies were observed among the Gaules at the times of their Burials, or Funerals dre.

The manner & ceremonie of their Fune

HE manner and Cerémo-nies of their Funerals, are fet downe in Cessar. Their Funerals (latish he) are (after the Gaulish brauery) magnificent and sumptuous, with throwing all those things (what (ocuer) into the fire which they imavined that the dead person (during his life time) most esteemed and affected, especially his Beast's. And fome short while before this memory, such seruants and domesticke attendants, as were judged to be dearely loued of their Masters (tomake the Funerall Ceremony the more intire and compleate) were burned together with the other things. Cafar having affirmed this, methinkes Paufanias descrueth to be laughed at, when hee faith in the tenth Booke of the warres of Brennus: That the Gaules contemned, and held the buriall of their dead in disdaine. because, that by the opinion of such cruelty, they might affright their enemies, not having any more vitty on the dead, then on other living persons. In this point Cafar refuteth Panfantas and Titus Limus alto, where he fpeketh of the Gaules befiedging Rome, his

and going along with the: did very heed- | words, in the fift Booke of his third Decade are these. They heaped and piled men Dec. one upon another, and so burned them indifferently together: because they would not bury them each after other, whereby they ennobled the place magnificently in imitation, and answerable to the name of the Gaules sepul

> As for that which Cafar faith. That all that which was pleafing to the dead person, Such things was cast into the fire with him: At Rome, as were burned with the into the fire made for Iulius Cafar himfelf, dead person the Trumpetters threw their torne gar- at Rome. ments; the Legionaries, their Armes; the Matrones their Chaines and Iewels, yea, and the precious purple deckings of their children. Cafar doth not declare apparantly, whether the feruants & domesticks were throwne into the fire, living or dead: but that he meant the living, may eafily be conjectured by that which Mela faith. Ther wer fuch (faith he) as voluntarily wold Pomponius Mecast themselves into the fires made for their lambacaps. parents kindred and masters, holding opinion, that so they were sure to live with them. We have fuch another example, in the s. of Ciceroes Tulculanes, wher it is faid: That Cicero in the women of India when their husbands di- Tusculan.s ed, had a custome of combate and indgment, mongthe woto make proofe thereby, which of them was menoi India, best beloued of her husband, for one man had to try who many wines. She that carried the honour of her husband the combate, being followed and attended by her other companions, was (with great toy) placed in the fire and there burned with him the other that had fought and loft the day returned home mourning, and disconsolate to her house. This cruell manner of behaujor, may wellkeepe company with the other > humane oblations. Tacitus speaketh in this manner, concerning the Funeralles of the Germanes. The manner of the Ger They bring the bodies of their companions in- mans Functo doubtfull battels, and that there may bee lais, according found no ambition of glory among them, for interring of their dead: they onely observe, that the bodies of the most noble, or of greatelt apparance, may be burned with certaine wood. They do not heape upo the pile of wood, neither their garments, or any odours: but only allow to each man his proper Armes, dy into the fire of some they make addition of their horfes. One only fod or turffe of earth is building sufficient for the Sepulcher, they contemne pompous workmanship and honourable ceremony, of immolating or facrificing

Chap. 15.

Plin.in lib.

His accularion

Druides, con cerning the

Magick Art.

ocolour to

Cornelius

against the

3.CAP. 1.

the dead. Complaints and teares are foone ouerpast with them but greefe by sadnesse is of longer continuance: for women to weepe is honest, onely men are to remember.

But Pliny in his thirteenth book & first chapter, speaking of the Sacrifices, & the whol discipline of the ancient Gaules; frets himselfe against the Magick Arts, as fraudulous and deceitfull feeming to reproue and accuse the discipline of our Druides with the same crime. Let no man meruail (faith he of the Art-Magicke) if great authority be given to fuch discipline. Because it onely will comprehend and redigest the three Sciences all into one, which have most command over our humane First of all, no one doubteth, but that it receiveth birth & beginning from Phy-fick, and that vnder pretence of yeelding helpe by little and little : it hath viurped the place, as feigning it felfe to be more high and healthfull, then Phylicke, and with fuch entifing and defirous promifes, makes addition of some strength and power of Religion, whereby men (yet to this day) do abuse themselves. And ver to fatisfie them better, they have interming-The Matheled the Mathematicks , because there is maticks made not any one but he is very couctous, and their deceidefirous to vinderstand future things concerning himselfe, and of his fortune, as beleening viidoubtedly, that fuch knowledge commeth from Heaten. Thus the reason and understanding of men being furprized, and feriously busied in this manner: the discipline is fortified with a triple bond, and growne to fuch an encreasing greatnes; as even in these dayes(in most parts of the world)it beares away the reputation from all other, commanding ouer the Kings and Princes of the East. From whence issued the Magicallfaction, Perfian, Mofaicall, and Ciprian. Finally, the fixe hundred, fixty & feuenth yeere from the building of Rome. Cnens Cornelius Lentulus, and Publius Li-Lentulus, and cinius Craffius being the Confuls, an Edich nius Craffus, was made, that no man was to be offred in Confulles of facrifice, and affuredly, the celebration of fuch prodigious facrifices vanished away. But contrariwife, the Gaules kept them, cuen till our memory: For Tyberius Celar wholly abolished the Druides, & fuch kind of Prophets & Phylitions. What menti-

labor about Monuments, as being offensive to 1 on shall I make of this diseipline, which hath out-stept the bounds of the Ocean. entring into Britanny, where (at this day) it is celebrated with all reverence, & fuch ceremonies, as it feemes that they have fauage behataught it to the Perlians? It hath attained wour equal to fuch confent with the whole vniuerfe, with the (although it can grow to no agreement, or can well know it felfe:) as we do little conceine, how highly we are beholding to the Romans, who ytterly abandoned al fuch monftrous behaujor:being formerly fauoured (as a charitable work) to kill and facrifice men, yea, and a very wholesome thing to eate them.

So far extend the words of Pliny, wherby oner and beside the Arts formerly remembred he attributeth Physicke also to tributed to the Gaulith Druides . But he greatly bla- the Druides meth the frauds therein concealed, & deferuedly commendeth the Romanes, for excluding fach monftrous qualities out of their Empire. But would to God, that they had onely abolished the frauds and deceits in fuch Arts, and not the true Arts themselves nor the Schooles and profetfion of them: For then vndoubtedly, wee thould in duty thanke them, and crowne them with honour. But Pliny faith, that Tyberius wholly ouerthrew the Druides. Notwitstanding, the same man discouered Magicke, by fome example of the Druides, as in the last Chapter of his scanenth Booke, speaking of Glew, or a certaine Gumme, hee hath thefe words. We may not omit (faith he) in this cafe, one Plin, in li.17 admirable matter of the Gaules. The Druides cap.vir. (by fuch name they terms their Magitians)e- Concerning theeme nothing more precious then Glew and Guns citee Gum, and that the Tree where it groweth, during the time it bath vigour:they themfelues do then make chaife in their Woods and Forrests which have fuch power to nouriff that's Gummes, that they will not offer any facrifice, without the leanes of fuch a Tree. And it may be very likely, that from the Greeke interpretation, upon this occasion, they were called Druides. In briefe, they hold opinion. that that which taketh birth or originall with thofe Trees, is fent from beauen in fiene that fuch a Tree is cholen of the Gods Such a Tree is very rare to finde, but being found; they take it with great ceremony and religion, 4- At what time hone alother, at the time of the Moons fextile, the Drudes or first Moon, which is the beginning of their vied to gather the Druides.

Monethy Glew.

Paufan.inli.z de Bel.Bren.

The ceremo nies in the 1a crifice of the Druides.

A prefent re medy agains and poyfon.

Plin.in lib.

2 I .cap. 1 I

* A hearb v-fed much of

the Druides,

for all eye-foreshedge

hylope

thirty yeares. Because that then she is in her strength not being in diminution of her moity, and they terme it by a word in their lanquage, fignifying : To be helping in all things. They prepare the facrifice and a banquet under those Trees bringing thether two Bulles wholly white, the hornes whereof are as yet Carle able to be bound. The Priest, cloathed in a white Robe, mounteth up the Tree, and cutteth the branches with a Sickle of Gold, and such as fall are received in a white cloth. Then they offer their facrifices, making their prayers that God will make their gift proferous and happy, for them to whom they intend the etuing. They are of opinion, that such things being given in drinke to any sterile or barren body, either of women or beafts; will make them fruitfull, and belide that it is a foueraigne remedy against all poilons. Thus somtimes a Religion is made among men in matters meerely friuilous, and not of any impor-

Thus you fee what Pliny faith, concerning the mysteries of the Gaules Magick, wherein he findes the greeke etymology of the name of the Druides (although that it is a Gaulish name to wit of Druyon, as already hath beene faid) as in all languages you may finde infinite words, which (by fome conninency) feeme to be deriued from another tongue: as in like manner the Mathematicians, in their moneths and yeares, and the Chronology of their ages, do declare sufficiently, that the Mathematicall disciplines, albeit after the Greekes descriptions, do not alwaies fall out to be one and the fame. But let vs purfue fome other examples of Pliny.

In his one and twentieth Booke, and the eleventh Chapter, heespeaketh thus. There is a certaine hearbe like unto Sabine, called " Selago which is gathered without any yron weapon, by the right hand, thrust into somelest-handed glove or sleeve, in manner of a theefe. And the party must be cloathed with a white garment having his feete naked and cleanly walhed: and facrifice must bee performed with Bread and Wine, before any offer of gathering, and modestly brought thether in a new Napkin . The Druides of the Gaules have written, that this hearbe is very Soucraione against any perill or dreaded danger and also that the smoke thereof is profitable for the discases in the cies. They have al-

To another hearbe, which they call Samola,

Moneths and yeares, and of the world after | which groweth in moist and waterish places, Another and they vee to gather it alwaies with the left heard for the hand: it ferueth against al difeases in Swine help of cattel and Kine and who foeuer gathereth it, must not (by any meanes) be seene, neither must be bring it into any other place, then a gutter or brooke, and there breake or bruise it in the water, that the Beafts may swallow it in their drinking.

> In the same place is recited another Magicke of the Gaulish Druides, whereunto (in the third Chapter of the twentieth Booke, written by the faid Author) there is another very like enery way. Moreouer (faith hee) there are a certaine kinde of the Egges of Egges, wherof great account is made in Gaul, Serpents. and whereof the Greekes have not made any mention. Summer caufeth an infinite number of Serpents to heave themselves together, writhing and embracing in a kinde of artificiallhugging : when either by the moisture iffuing from their mouthes, or slimy scumme of their owne bodies, that which they call the Serpentine Egge is engendered. The Druides (ay, that (by their hissing or whiltling) it is The Druides exalted up into the Ayre, and in the meane Serpentine while it must be received downe in some robe Egge. or garment, because it may not touch the earth. But he that receives it must make oreat (beed away upon an horfe, because the Serpents will purfue him (wiftly, untill they find hinderance by some River or Water. The proofe and experience thereof is, when it floateth against the wvater, especially wwhen it is enchased in gold. But as the cunning of Magitians is well contriued, for the more ingenious covering of their fraud: fo they fay, that it must be taken in a certaine Moone, as if it were lawfull in humane judgement, to accord such an operation of Servents. Verily, Thave Seene this kinde of Egge, of the bionesse The Author of an indifferent round Apple, bearing a cruft haur frene or (hell like a gristle, feamed with little such an liggemouthes or openings, like to them wwhich are on the armes of the Polypus or Pourcontrell. and the Druides holde it for a most notable thing. It is highly esteemed, as for giving victory in fights and combates, and to have accesse to Kings of Princes : by such an abuse, and no other reason that I know, a Romane A Romane knight of the Vocontians, was put to death Knight put by the Emperor Glaudius, andy in regard of fighting, for he alwaies carried fuch an Egge in his bosome. Neuerthelesse, the embracing time lags. and colligation of Serpents, and the alliance of the most cruell creatures, feemeth to have

Plin,in li.20

No force or

preuaile a-

violence can

ainft vertue

flame be roo

Partiality in

ted vp.

Chap. 16. Of the Ancient Gaules. beene the cause, whereby strange Nations (as \ an argument of peace) made a Caduceus of Serpents writhed round about, and it hath beene a custome alfo, that they bould be crea-Red on the Caduacus.

Thus hath Pliny noted the Serpentine Egge, to proceede from the Gaules Magicke, and that for this cause onely, the Knight was thine by the Emperour, who stood in feare of this Magicke. Finally, the Romanes, to abolish veterly the discipline of the Druides, tooke occasion by this Magicall fuperflition: but though impiety, fuperstition, magicke and vices may be rooted out, yet vertue will continue still found and intire. Would to God that the Romanes had maintained in like place, and in like number, the Gaules as the Greeks. The Empire hath bene fnacht from the Greeks, but Learning and Arres was left with them ftill. Grecke hath bene constrained to make way for the Latine tongue: but yet continually Grammer. Rhetorick and Philosophy hath benesand yet is taught in grecke. What greefe then was it to the Romanes, to expulse not only the Gaulish Judges from their seates: but the professors also, yea, the very sciences & disciplines of the Gaules out of their Schooles Immortall Gods, the Gaules authentick race, You thought to hold true eminence and place. And so should still, were gifts in equall grace.

But we connert our affections too caraffection, can neftly, to the glory and honour of our nruer be an vpright Iudge owne particular, which honour we may bemoane, being too greedily carried away with a mighty spleene against the name of the Gaules. But let vs now proceede to finish the rest.

CHAP, XVI.

Of the Iustice exercifed in Ancient Gaule, compared with that of the Romanes, by diuiding the chiefe men into two degrees, of Druides and Knights, and two kindes of Magistrates, with the punishment of difobedience to Superior Officers.

Itherto wee haue gone tho-rough three parts of the pro-posed labour, to wit; The pru-dence of discipline; The entire knowledge of truth; and likewise of prouidence. There yet remaineth the fourth course,namepart namely of luftice, which is Princeffe Iv of the luftice of the and Mistresse of all other manners. It be- Gaules hooueth vs then, to feeke for the principality of ancient Gaule, and what it was: what power the people had, and what policy was maintained among them; that which we terme the Platonicall good and benefit of Temperance, Fortitude,& of Prouidence, whereby each man hath that belonging to him, without viurping on any thing appertayning to another.

The Common-wealth, at least that The common of Gaule, whose lockes of hayre beeing wealth of long enough in Cafars time; was meerly Gaule in the Timocraticall, and in many parts very like time of Cx. vnto the Roman liberty, as by that which followeth, hee which will examine things particularly, may eafily perceiue. Let vs then obserue what Cafar hath said, and especially concerning customes and behas Int. C. cfar in uiour. In all Gaule, or Gallia (faith he in his Com, Lib.6. fixt Booke) all men that are of any marke, or made any account of, are divided into two forts : to wit, into Druides, and into Cheualiers: for the common people is of no other rec-they admitted to councell in any matter. Behold what partition Iulius Cafar hath instituted of himselfe, albeit it is not altogether true which he speaketh of the people. as shall at large bee delinered hecreafter, in place more convenient for the purpoîc.

koning, but as warlets and flaues, not daring

(of themselves) to do any thing, neither are

In this partition of Cafar, There is one (faith he) that Prefideth, or is as Primate o. Int. Cafar in ner all the other Druides, that hath cheefe Com. Lib.6. command and authority of the rest. He being vi Sup. dead, if there be any one among the other that bath the aduantage in worthineffe or defert : he is to succeed. If there be many of equallyarity and condition; he is to be chofen (by volces of the Druides) from among the reft. Diuers times they contend for the fourraignty or

Masterfhip by weapons, and fo firme who Shall have the prime place. Here Cafar proposeth two distinct kinds of Magistrats, one to rule or gouern in diuine things, yother in fuch as are humane and civill. Among the Druides, he inflitu-

The Gaules

discipline o

the Romaines

lib.4.c. 9.

Two windes | teth one, to be as the high or cheef Prieft, of Magifrate proposed by and he defineth his election, to bee eyther Cz'arinGaul by Dignity, or by Suffrages, or by Arms. And there is no great difference between the institution of the Roman high Priest, and this other man: but onely, that at Rome he is annuall or yeerely, & in Gaul it seemeth he hath beene perpetuall. That the Druides have beene spread over all Gaule, euen in Cities, Townes and Burroughs, their estates have shewne sufficient manifestation : for the Druides did euer command ouer the three principall parts of the Common-wealth: as in profession of Artes in judgments pleading; and ceremonies belonging to their facrifices. All the younger fort (faith Cafar) have their recourse to them, to be enstructed by them, and to learne sciences, as also a great number of verses: so that some continue there twenty yeares, only to learne knowledge. And furely, an honest stipend or recompence, can neuer want Masters to giue enftruction.

The Druides (faith Cafar) are not wont to goe to warre, but stand exempted from it, and immunity of all other taxations of char-

The Druides exempted from war & taxations.

iudgement

The yong me

Druides,to

learne of the

ges. So that in regard of such faire acknowledgements and freedomes, there are many that come to bee ranked among them, and to follow the study of their disciplines, they are Sent thicker by their parents dy kindred. Let me now entreate yee, and (euen in honest charity) but to obserue well this place alledged by Cafar. Can there be any thing more excellent, or more magnificent, the when the Primates of a Country, or the Gouernors and very greatest Princes in a Common-wealth, do make profession of disciplines? Perhaps, some will consider fweatingly on this point, as though wee would have the cheefest men, and those that are the grauest in our Citties, to keep Schooles, and apply their paines to enstruct other. Notwithstanding, let me tell ye, Plato would have fuch men (and no o-Plato, his ad ther) to take the charge of enfructing, & deliuering the knowledge of Sciences: uice concerping men of because such a place should be as a Seminary or feed-plot, of great, judicious, and learned men, meete to administer and beare authority in a Common-wealth: wherein the grafts and plants must needs be the more rare and excellent; by how much the grafters and planters are most vertuous and honourable.

I wonder at the opinion of Pliny, in many paffages alledged by him, and efpecially in this, where he writes : That with the ancient manners and falhions of Rome. the Land abounded, & did daily bring forth double encrease. What was the cause (saieth he) of fuch aboundance? The earth was then husbanded by the hands even of the chiefelt warriers, and, as it is credible, that the earth loyed and reloyced, to be honoured with a share or culture crowned with Laurell, and by the labour of a victorius triumphing conqueror : even so did it travaile and endeuour it felfe the more industriously, to produce the feed sowne in that nature, as to prosper their other warlike proceedings. And the like diligence, for well husbanding the ground, as al-fo to order and direct a potent Army, or elfe in all other things, which are performed by noble and honest hands : do encrease the more Good and aboundantly, and become so much the more fertile by how much they are the more carefully executed. But now adaies, this faire and honourable mystery, is exercised by foule, infamous, and condemned hands, by men that are either theeues, or banisht, or have lost their eares, or branded with some such other wicked imputation. Notwithst anding the good earth is not deaffe, who being called Mother, and bids herfelfe to labour and frustifie, by a Latine word, called Coli, which fignificth al-(o to do honour, as beeing thence derived: whereby it plainly appeareth, that what soeuer (he now doth or produceth, she doth it but in meere disdaine, and against her owne liking. And therefore we must needs meruaile, that no such profits arise in the times of these labourers, as in the famous daies of those florithat it is as convenable for vs, to speake of The Authon which concerne the earth? Euen fuch Batton of Pilwas the fertility and aboundance of the ning the flo-Gaules disciplines, when in the times of rising conour Druides, the Schooles of the Muses, dition of Rome. became the Pallaces of Kings; the chaires of Masters, were the seates of Princes, the number of Students, was the company & following of honorable Lords. Then Pal-Las delighted to be in a royall Colledge, vfing one & the fame Rector & gouernor in the common-wealths affaires, & to declare the Sciences and disciplines, explicating those enstructions in one self-same

Plin.in lih 22.cap.4. Of the anci. ent manners and behauiours of Rom

The extremi

ty of the Roagainst the Gaules Lear-weales. And by the same discretion and prouidence, they instituted the rules of Arts, Lawes, and Ordinances: wherein all things increased the more prosperously, and more aboundantly (by honest labours) as they were the more diligently and respectively followed. There were many in those dayes, who being spurred on by fuch recompences, and the expec-The voluntatation of those proposed honours, addiry inclination of the Gaules cted themselues (gladly) to apprehend in former those disciplines, being sent to the same end & purpole (from the remotest parts) by their parents and kindred.

Hereupon, and for the same occasion.

Lucian was the more willing to have the Gaulith and Ogmian Hercules depicted;

not onely covered with the despoyle of a

Lyon, and a maffy Club: but also decrepite, bald, aged, wrinkled, and meager; drawing a great number of Conquered men after him, in chaines of gold faftned to their eares. Their tongues also vvere pierced thorow, and at them hung little

Chaines of gold, in fuch fort, that those valiant disposed and conquered gallants, followed the Hercules that drew them,

he turning eftloons his face and looks to behaujour. And what elfe was all this.

but the eloquence of the Bardes, as also out any more regarding) caused such ad-number of Students, which submitted themselues under their charge, onely to learn their disciplines and goodly knowledge in fo many noble things : figured

Schollers, hung by the ears at the mouths

as by the Romaine Empire, the falary and honour of Learning was taken away and abolished, even as sodainly was the pro-

Lucian hi spi Aure of He cules among the Ganles, the allusion thereof.

Chap.16.

manner, for gouerning their Common- hath approoued the faying of the Orator to be true: That Honor is the Nurse of arts, and all hearts are enflamed with the love of the Sciences, onely in regard of their glorie . For neuer thould any account bee made of fuch things as are misprized and condemned by cuery man.

Thus the loffe and burying of the Gauls disciplines, are due to none but vnto the Romaines, by whose tyranny the honour of their profession, and their liberty togither, was violently taken from the Druides. Wherefore Mela (who flouritht vnder Claudius faith. Now are not the brane and worthy Schooles of the Druydes; because they are become clandestine, and suppressed by other, banished into the deepest of furthest off Forrests. So that the Discipline of the Druydes, was not onely robbed of her former honour, but compelled in meere feare of danger, to hide her felfe in caues and thickest woodes. Lucane seemeth to take knowledge thereof with Mela, fpeaking thus of the Druydes.

-Your dwelling now, Is in the strongest and profoundest Forrests.

Cafar also in his fift booke. The Gauls Iul, Caf in com behold them, with very milde & affable (faith hee) perceiving from whence the bes libs, & lib.7. ginning of warres came, held their confultations in the night time, and in defert places . the wisedome of the Sarronides and Dru-Likewise in the seuenth booke. The Prinides? which even at the first fight (withces of the Gaules, in their Councels (appointed in Woods and concealed places) complaymirable affection to the same. The great ned amongst themselves of their servitude. Neuertheleffe, we conclude not, neither by the authority of Mela, nor of Lucane, nor of Cafar, that the Colledges of the Druydes, that the affembly of Councell. those Chaines of golde. And even so the and deliberation of their men of Warre, were in the woods: for that wold appeare of their Master, as being taken & bound rather to be a figne of fernitude and conby his rich words, and the fweet doctrine fraint, then of crudition or confultation. Of the wages flowing thence. Then did al disciplines | But proceede we on to speake of the fallaflourith, in regard that the professors of rv? wages, and honest prefents, viually gi- Druydes. them were rare and excellent. But fo foon uen to the ancient Druydes. The Druydes (faith Cafar) doe not enely take the reward of their honest profession, but over to beside. the Gaules give them great honor and reuefession of those Disciplines esteemed and rence. All cases in controver sie, bee they eyheld to bee but a feruile and mechanicall ther publike or prinate, are referred to theyr thing. Which was the onely occasion, indecement. If there happen any thing to bee that (necessarily as it were) those honest done amiffe, or any murther committed: if and liberall ftudies languithed for a long there arile any diffention, concerning inheritime; and by an ouer-tedious experience, tance, Succession, or bounds of Landes: they

Thing Captaines. So farre extend the words of Pliny. But by your fauour, do not we conceine,

InlaCalar in

are thomen that give fentence, and constitute the reward of well doing, and punishment of mildemeanors. Strabo addeth heereto (I know not how) that by their Magical fuperstition, they judge of the fertility of the yeare, according to the multitude of criminall causes.

But proceede we with the rest of Ca-

Cas. in con ubi supra. from their fa aifices, far. If there be any man, either a private, or publique person among the common people. that wil not obey their ordinances of decrees: he is interdicted from comming to the facrifices which is the most greeuous punishment in all their Nation. They that stand so interditted from the facrifices, are reputed among the number of lewd and wicked people: All men flyes from them and cuery man stands in feare to speake to them, or to keepe company with them, as dreading some Contagion or Plaque (bould happen to them by fuch frequetation. And if they demand Law or Iuftice,it is denved and may not be granted them, neyther may they enior any preferment or honor, or the least reverence done unto them by amy. But what manner of fentences or judgments do the Germaines obserue? What penalties and punishments are amongst them . It appertaineth to none but Priests, who have the full power of commaunding (faith Tacitus) to impose silence in publicke Corn, l'acitus in consultation. Moreover, it is not permitted but to Priest's onely, to chaftife, beate, or bind them, not as the paine or punishment of the offence, nor by the commaund of the Prince :

but even as by divine permission, & as a commandement given by God, whom they make account to be then in presence, and to be asi-

Stine in their fights. In Warre alfo they carry certaine Pictures and Images, wwhich they bring away from their hallowed places. The difference of punnishment is answerable onto the delict, Traytors, and fuch as forfake their Captaines of their Nation, to doe any Prieffs onely haue the preheminence to inflict punish-

The observation amongst the German

lib.4.cap: 2.

Service vnto a Stranger-enemy, are hanged up upon the Trees. Vagabondes, Roques, vale liners, and all such as are noted of foule infamie, are drowned in mudde, or in some Marilb place, & congred all oner with filth. The variety of punishment is much respect-Punifiment ed there to the end, that the enormity of the inflicted ac offence, may be knowne by the qualitie of the cording to the infliction, and that vice may by no meanes be quality of the offence. concred. But in crimes of leffer nature, the parties which are continced, are condemned in Fines, of a certaine number of Horffes, or other Beast's, whereof one part of the forfeite is given unto the King, or to the Cittie: and the other part is given to him, for whom the penaltie is done, or to his neerest Kindred.

Returne we now again voto the Druides of the Gaules: for, Cafar deferibeth in Com.libs the times and the places, where they did vie to keepe their Seffions. The Druides (faith hee) wpon certaine dayes in the yeare, and upon the Borders of the Caruntes (the People about which Countrey is reputed to bee the verie Chartres in Celtica. middest of all Gaule or Gallia) do vee to keep their oreat dayes meeting, in a certaine confecrated place, where all fortes of men, that hauc fuites or Controversies, make their Af-(embly, being obedient unto the fentences & iudgements of the Druydes. Cafar doeth not distinguish the times of the yeare, but onely the place, which was on the Limites and Confines of the Caruntes, as being the Center and middle of Gaule, where the Druides of all the Countries of meeting or all Gaule (euen as of all the world) were wont the Druydes to meete together . Neuerthelesse, the of Gaul obgether. Cittie of the Caruntes, named Chartres, was (in those ancient times) of much larger extendure_then now it is; and it is very likely, that it contained not onely the Chartrain Diocesse, but that also of Orleance. For before that Cafar arrived there, it was a Realm, which afterward was put by Cafar into the power of Tafgetius the Ind. Cafin com-Carunt, as himfelfe hath written in his 5. ment, lib 5.

booke. In breefe it feemeth that the Realme of Orleance, which afterwards was a long time maintained to bee a Realme by the Franconians, was the very fame of Chartres : Confidering withall, that Genabium or Genaba, was one of the Townes in the Caruntes Kingdome, and scated vpon the River of Loire, beging in the time of Cafar beyond Orleance, a farre off by a great many Miles, and which hindered him in his way, when hee went from a Agendiaffembled themselues together in that place from all partes, as in the Center of Gaule, according as Cefar hath spoken. If ay then, that in all Gaule, and in the law them the same of the Citties, Townes, and Villages of Gaule, there were Druydes, who gouerned in fuites and Controuerfies, and likewife in the Ceremonies of Religion: Inbreefe, the care of all things was committed to them. The Druydes were then dispersed thoroughout Gaule, as now adayes are

Booke

Inline Cafar

The generall

aA Towns of

Iul.Cafar in Particular fadions throuin enery City, Towne, and Village, the men of the Church: notwi hstanding the Princes were wont to refer to a common Councell (at certaine times of the yeare) all the fintes of their Citizens and Subjects, wherein the chiefe Priest of the Druydes gouerned onely.

generall mee ting for all A noble Councellin Greece, lo na med of Am-phictyon the

on to Helenus.who ap-

ointed the iame. Pauf. in lib

de Phocis.

The royal po wer and au-thoritie of the

Gaules Druy-

common

Councell, or

Such (in elder times) was the Councel of the * Amphictiones, which during the liberty of Greece was kept in Delphos (as Paulanias report thin his Phociques) & in the middeft of Greece. Whereby appeareth, that the Druydes of the Gaules, were like to the Amply tuns of Greece,& their place as facred in the Chartraine Countrey, answerable to the Temple of Delphos, made fo famous by the Oracles of Apollo. The marter would have beene a little the more noble, if Cafar had called the place Delphos, which was confecrated within the limites of the Countrie of Chartres. Heerein is thewen the authority, and (almost) royall power, which the Druydes not onely held in prinate and particular, but intirely ouer all the people. The profession of Disciplines was in great reputation; the estate of judgment a most famous authority; the power to performe facrifices, and to speake of Di-uination, appertained vnto royall Maie-

The first degree of the Gaulish Commonwealth, was that of the supreme Ma-The order & giffrate, next, the Princes, then, the Cheualiers; the people made election according to his aduice, and for his benefit, and the commodity in generall, the Princes gaue him order how to make his warres; and fuch as did not well by their inftruction, they would expulse and banish the. But you may demand of me, how this is who fpeaketh thus in his fixt Booke. In not onely in all Cities, Burroughes, and quarthe Princes or Heads of fuch Factions, are they whom they conceine (in their indement) to be proued? I will answer from Cafar, Com. lib. 6. Gaule (faith he) there are certaine factions, ghout Gaule, ters, but also in enery particular Housbold, to be the worthiest persons for authoritie : by whose aduce and determination, the verie greatest matters of waight or importance, either for publique affayres or Councell, are wholly differed. Vpon which occasion it feemeth, that this matter bath bin thus ordered from reverend Antiquity, that none of the meanest should be destitute of helpe, against a rich or potent Superior . For there is no man, that will indure or fuffer, that fuch as aypertaine or depend woon him, shall any way be oppressed or circumvented : for if he offered to do otherwife, hee fall not beare any Iway among the people.

Of the Ancient Gaules.

Thus you heare what C.efar faith, wherby may be vide if tood, the Timocraticall tical governgovernment of a Commonwealth, which ment of a Plato and Aristotle fo much commended, Commonand which Greece (being in her libertie, edby Plato 8 and Italy alfo) did keepe fo carefully: Ariffode. wherein, all the kinds of a just and equitable policy are comprehended. Note the felfcfame reason, in the whole charge of the affaires of Gaule; for there was royalty in the annual Magistrate, whereas Aristocratic was differented in the Senate. and briefly, Timocratie in the plaine power & authority of the people, by whom the Senators and Magistrates were created. And therefore let vs goe fomewhat necrer, and examine the testimonie of cafer in com-Cafar a little more narrowly, speaking of ment ub. 6 the Common-wealth of our Ancestors.

Such was the freedom and liberty of Gaul

(faith Cafar) that in every City. Towne, and Burrough, and almost in every bouse, there were certaine factions, and it was in such fort, that every one was permitted to deale closely and underband by voices and suffrages: fo that the very meanest and simplest, had power to give their fentence, and deliver their voyces. Heere then we are to vnderstand, that the Electors of the Magistrats amongst the Gaules, were such kinde of Authority of men. And heereby wee plainly perceine, the people a-mongh the that the authority of the people was not Gauls in crea fmall in their Commonwealth: in regard tion of their Magistrates. that by voices and fuffrages of the people, the Magistrates were then created. But what was hee that had the power to make election of thefe men ? He that was reputed to be in the greatest authority or befide, all the affayres of consequence, and the whole deliberation of the Councell came onely to him. But why was it requisite, that so much authority thould be in one Magi-Strate & Cafar himselfe makes answer vnto this Obiection. Recause (uppon this accusion) it (cemed that Antiquity (venerably) had foinstituted it : to the end, that no man among the people (how meane or poore foeuer) [hauld fland in neede of syde against the richeft oppreffor. For he might not indure that any of his faction (bould be oppreffed or circummented. This then was the end of duans, and their neighbors the Secusians,

Ambinarets, Aulerkes, Brannouikes, & the Brannonians. The like number was appointed to the men of Auuerne, together with the Cadurcians, Heluterians, Gaballes, and Vellaunians, who were vnder the dominion of the Aunermans. To the Se-quanes, Senones, Biturigianes, Santorigeans,

Ruthenes and Caruntes, were appoynted twelve thousand men. To the Bellouacanes ten thousand, and as many to the Limofines. To the Poicteuines, Tourangeans, Parifians, and Heluetians, eight thousand to each. To the Swessiones, Amiangeans, Mediomatricians, Petrocorians, Neruians,

Morines, and the Nitiobrigrians, five thou-fand to each. To the Aulercians and Ceno-manians as many. To the Atrebatians four thousand. To the Bellocassians, Lexobians, and Aulerks Eburones, three thousand to each. To the Rauracians and Boians, two thousand a peece. To all the Citites that border vpon the Ocean, and (according to their manner) are called * Armorica fix

Councell, vniuerfally observed throughout Gaule, and one felfesame manner of behauiour, and answerable to the Amphy-ctiones, of assigning by a Councell publique, the estare and revennewes of every Citty. Notwithstanding, one onely man did not command ouer all these Companies: but there were foure captains, with whom were joyned some Councellors of these Citties, Cesar in the same place saieth . That the whole charge of thefe affayres of the Empire, was given to Comius the Atrebatian, to Viridomarus, to Eporedorix the Heduane, and to Vergafillanus of Aunerone.

Cofine Germane to Vercingetorix by the mothers fide : and onto them were assigned certaine other chosen persons of the Citties, as Heere we have a view of the publique

Landriguer in

e Ot Londul

Of Nauntes

gOt Cornwell

in Britaine

in little Brit-

The voyce of the people in election of their Magiftrates.

58

The punnishment of one that beginneth well an neglecteth h care of the weal-publike

The political the people.

Strabo in l 4.C.ID.7.

"Marsiles in France, a citic famous for Learning as Athens. Strabo in li cap.9.

the Magistrate, and the reason why the | people faid: We will not have this man, except by his wertue, and by his authority he do defend that no man offer vs iniury . We will not have this man, because he is both bad and

But if a good Prince, who (at the beginning) hath made proofe of his vertue. happened afterwards to change his manners; and, as one that hath no longer care of the weale-publike, proposeth his owne particular profit before the publike, and carry himselfe otherwise then the Ordinances of the people have commanded: he is excluded and banished, and (as Ca-(ar (aith) Deprined of all power and authority among his owne people. And to the end that this might not be imagined to be obferued in some one Citty only, The felfe-Same course (faith Cafar) is kept thoroughout all Gaule, Heerein then may be noted, the politicall authority of the people, when Magistrates are not onely chosen by the people, but also deposed & expul= fed. But Cafar faith nothing, whether this principality was constituted in the authority of many, or of one onely, neither for how long time it continued. Neuertheleffe, Strabo (in his fourth book) defineth both the one and the other, faying: There were many kinds of Aristocratical policy, in ancient times they elected every yeare a Prince, as the people elected a Chiefe or Commander for the warre. Thus wee fee. what Strabo faith : but a matter fo goodly and commendable, should bee enriched with fome examples.

Cicero hath so highly extolled the commonwealth of the Massylians, that before the people of Rome, in the defence of Fonteius, hee fayde: That the Discipline and gravity of the Citty of * Marfiles, deferued not onely to bee preferred equall to Greece, but almost with all other Nations of the world. In that Citty (fayth Strabo) there were fixe hundred Senators, whome they tearmed Timouches, as men honourable, and who (all theyr life time) enjoyed that honour: from foorth of which number, were elected and chofen fifteene Princes, to judge fuch fuits & causes, as happened day by day amongst them. And questionlesse, these were the fixe hundred Marsilians, and the fifteene cheefest men among them, whereof Cament.Lib. 1. far fpeaketh in his first booke. But let vs go on with the words of Strabo. Out of thefe fifteene (faith hee) they elected three. which had the most authority and power. In this manner Strabo describeth the Common-wealth of the Massilians, which neuertheles I alledge not as a name of Gaule onely, because it was better beloued and esteemed to be Greekish, rather the Gaulish : but also, because none of those Ti- The nature mouches was to bee elected, that had not the timoucher bin a childe borne there, and had not bene eledion aa Cittizen, even to the third race or defcent, as the fame Strabo faith . Vpon this occasion, Aristotle (and very desertfully) calleth the Common-wealth of the Maffilians Oligarchia, and not Aristocratia: for this declareth her Oligarchie, that Princes were not elected by their vertue, but in regard of their race.

I doe not alledge (I fay) this Commonwealth, as an example of the Gaules The Commo. Common-wealth: I defire to deliner wealths trulie their owne true estates indeed, and those that truely were of Gaule, and first of all the that truely were of Gaule, and first of all they were in in generall of all Gaule enext, of the Na- the revealed tions, and then particularly of euery Cit- the Gaulian warre, tie. The seauenth Booke of Iulius Cafar, shall serue as a sufficient Testimonie in my common example, wherein Gaule is intirely described, both in orders, and all revenuewes : albeit in the seauenth yeare of the warres in Gaule, great store of the afflicted Townes and Citties, had diminished much of their reuennues. First (by a Common Councell) Vercingetorix was elected for cheefe Commaunder, as Cafar himfelfe faieth, when the Heduans fought, that the Empire might bee given to them, as the matter came then in controugrife. The whole Councell of Gaul (faith hee) was called at a Bibracte or Beaulne, where arrived a great number of men, and Towne of the Election was appointed to the most voy- Bray, in the ces : but by generall confent it was concluded Rochell in that Vercingetorix (bould be Emperor, or the France. chiefe Leader of their Armies. Onely Cafar faieth, that the men of Rhems, bthe Linb A Towne is gones, and thed Treuraines, were not prefent at this Councell: but hee maketh no mention at all of the Aquitaines.

Afterward, when Vercingetorix was befiedged neere to alexia, the Gauls then d Tries, and called another Councel; wherein was or- the Countrey dained, that a certaine number of martial c Now called men should command ouer enery towne. And it was concluded, that five & thirtie

Chap. 16.

ded ouer the

feueral towns

and Citties.

a The whole

little Britaine

Captains to ther Coun-

Artois in

Belgica. Int. C.efar in thousand.

a Bibrax the

in Belgica. c Langresin on of Tull in Celtica:

The Celts did differ from the Gaules in the ceremony of Councell.

we may obserue, if in all the Gaulish Nations, the same estate of commonwealth left for their Captaines, certain men that had was kept, as among the Celts, Belges, and ferued (all their time) with .Q. Sertorius ... Aquitanes. uer hapned, that the Celts kept the like apparant by the places before alleadged; ceremony of Councell 1 for the greater that the policy proposed by Cefar, vvas part of them wer affociated with the Romaines, either by amity or alliance, or by what kind of dutie elie, I know not. Notwithstanding, in the war of the e Venetes, a conjuration was made of the Armorican | d People of Citties, the Venetes, the Ofifines, the Lexobians, the B Nannets or Nannetians the h Diablinters, the 'Curiofolites, thek Vuellians, the Ambiliates, and the Eburones. Suddenly were Amballadorus fent (faieth Julius Cafar in his third booke) and by aduice of their Princes de Noblemen, in little Brie they conferred together . to do nothing without Councell, and to abide such disasters as Fortune fould fend onto them, Solliciting in lite Britthe rest of the Cities, to choose rather to continue in the liberty which they had receyved Belgica. from their Ancestors, then to endure the feruitude of the Romaines. Neuertheleffe the cheete Head or Commander of all the Army, is not named by Cafar in any part whatfoeuer. And yet in the publike councell of the Belgians (whereby was plainely and openly determined against Cafar, the intire liberty of all Gallia:) the maine and eminent charge of the affaires (by the wil and consent of all men) was put on Galba King of the & Swessiones, as well in regard of his owne good deferuing, as for his Belgica. wisedom and prouidence.

In this warre at that time, the ! Bellouacanes contributed to the number of three in Celtica. fcore thousand armed men; the Swessions fifty thousand; as many the Nermans, the Atrebatians fifteene, the Ambians ten; the Morines fine and twenty; the m Menapians m The people feuen; the Caletines ten; the Velocassians & & Cleucland. Veromandians as many; the Aduaticians nineteene: the Condrustans, Eburones, Ceresians, Pemanians (which al by one name are called Germanes) forty thousand. Here is to bee feene a Common Councell indeede, and therby likewife, the intire power and authority of enery Cittle. Such a conjuration also was amongst the Aquitaines, of whom Ckfar writeth thus. Then the Aquitaines began to fend foorth Ambaf-Sadors, and to enterchange Hostages, to mu-Councellors for the warre. Neuertheleffe, fer men of warre; and to crave ayde of the Cantabrians their Neighbors: as alfo to elect for their Captaines, certainment hat had Spaine, therefore were reputed to bee most expert in In the time of the warre in Gaul, it ne- the actions of Armes. It is then plaine and not onely common to all Gaule:but likewife generally in recommendation to all the Nations.

CHAP.

Int. Cafar in

CHAP, XVII.

Of the forme of Gouernment obserued in the Common-wealths of the feuerall Citties and Nations: and what their Rulers and Magistrates were : as also how they at= tayned to their authority.

The particular gouernement in every Commonwealth of the Nations.

The fituation of the Heluetime in they and villages.

The Canton of Zurich.

Orgetorix cheefe in the confpiracie a gainst the which hanned to be reuealed, and hee impriloned.

ZE T vs now particularly illustrate the Gouernments in the Commonwealths of the Nations and Citties of the people. And first of all, let vs speake of the Celts, among whome the Heluetians have beene reputed to be the most braue and valiant Nation. What administration & government of Commonwealth hath beene obserued in their cheefest City ? The City of the Heluetians was fituated betweene Rhein & Rhone, as also the Mountaine Jura, in a triangular forme or shape having twelve towns, and foure hundred Villages, & the whole divided into foure Regions: yet not for warre onely, but likewise for Instice, and for doing right to all men. There were two, named by Cafar himselfe, * Tigurine and Verbigenia . These Regions were as one Parliament, that had the whol charge of the affairs of the Realme, and for matters of confequence, were wont to come into a publike Councell; where for the Election of a Prince, hapned a conjuration amongst them of the Citie, to burne all their Townes, Burroughes, and Villages, to forfake their own limites, and by force to feize and furprize the kingdome of the Gaules.

For the better execution of this enterprize, Orgetorix, one of the most apparant and Noblemen was made choise of; and this act declared at the first, even a meere and certaine Timocraticall affliction. Orgetorix ouercome with a couetous affection of Soueraignty and reigning, imbraced this Confpiracy : but the iffue requireth observation, after the matter came to be discouered. This happening to the knowledge of the Heluctians, by some prefunptions and conicctures Orgetorix was taken prisoner, and they would have compelled him (according to their manner) to confesse the truth; which if it fell out to be approued, their Law condemned him to be burned with fire. Orgetorix fummoned to this Sessions al his friends. kindred, and alliance, who were in number ten thousand men, together with his Support; the fernants and debters, who were a great bad cause by company, that they might assist in the power. case of judgement. Hee prevayled so well by this multitude of men, that hee freed himselfe from answering to his enditement, or disclosing uppon what occasion hee was incited to this matter of con-

In the meane space, while the Cittie (being offended) fought to maintain the execution of their Lawes by the fword & the Magistrates mustered men from all parts: Orgetorix dyed in prison, not without suspition (as the Heluctians imagi- Orgetorix ned) of murthering himselfe. Kingdomes thoght by the (faith Cafar) were bought in Gaul, by fuch kil himselse in as were most potent and abounding in riches, and fuch as had the meanes to command most lib. x. men at their pay. But what these kingdoms were, is easily to be coniectured . by the example of Orgetorix, and by others beside, whereof we are to speake hereafter. The Commonwealth then of the Heluetians, was parted in this manner by Regions, as at this day that of the Switzers is, who viurp and make vie of the borders of the Heluctians. Next, there were three great Cities of the Heduans and * Aruernians : let vs now furney these Commonwealths, and first that of the Heduanes, France who were the very brauest and most valiant people, when Cafar made his warre in Gaule. Let vs make a good obsernation of this Common-wealth, and how(in three kindes of a just and commendable gouernment) it was judicially ordered & maintained.

By a yearly election of Priests, in a certaine place, at a certaine time, & of divers | The election descents, amongs the Heduanes was cho- year by year sen one called a Vergobret, who had full power as a King, and absolute authoritie of life and death; but he was not permitted to go forth of their inrifdictions . Cafar in his first booke, making mention of the Heduanes, speaketh in this maner. Af- lul.cafar in ter he had summoned together the chiefe No- comment. Lib blemen and Princes in his Campe: amongst whom were Divitiacus and Lifeus, who at that time was the cheefe Magistrate, and by | of a few, privily congregated together in the Heduanes called Vergobret, created yeare by yeare, & having power of life and death.

Chap.17.

Booke, where is declared how the Senate and people of the Heduanes, were in a great sedition about their Magistrate, for the appealing whereof, Cafar was called:

these are his own words. The Princes Am-balladors of the Heduanes, came to Calar de intreated him, that he would come to succour

their Citie, especially in a time of such necessity, when their Common-wealth was in great danger. For whereas (in former time) they were wont to have but one Magistrate yearely, who had authority Royall: now there were two that bare that Office, yet both making their vaunt, to bee created by order of Law.

One of them was called Convictolitane, a man in the floure of his youth of great power,

and well allyed: the other named himselfe

Cottus, of a most ancient race, and one that was able to doe much: whose brother, named

Valetiacus, hadborne, the fame Office the yeare before. Moreover they fayd, that all the Citty was up in Armes, that the Senate and the people were divided, each holding apart their leverall factions: And if this mu-time should bee suffered for any long time among them, and no other means of help were affoorded, they would make prize and bootie and they also among whom the strife had happened. When the whole Cittie was (wel-neere) affembled together, and hee

was fully informed, that by the confent

The rest is reported in the seauenth

Of the Ancient Gaules: 10

The Heduans about theyr Magistrate Iul. Caf. in com ent Lib. 7.

Two Marifrares inflead of one Con-uictolitane &

prifon.

"People by the River of the Hedmans

Cæfar goeth in perfon, to appeale the diffention amongst the an vnmeete place, and at an vnlawfull time; understanding withal, that one brother had subrogated the other in his place; contrary to the lawes, which plainly did prohibite, that two of one Linage and family (being both lining) (hould not onely bee difabled from creation in the Magistracie, but also not admitted into the Senat : Cuttus was compelled to give ouer his Office, and Consisteditane (who according to the custome of the Cityayp on the ceasing of the former Magistrats, had bene created by the Prieftes) had the full authority appointed to him. Cafar ning this imwrote all this himfelf, about the commo- portant diffetion of the Heduanes, whereby most clearly appeareth: that the royall dignitie was in the Vergobret, and the authority of the Seigneurie in the Senate; and finally, the Democraticall power in all the people.

But to know what, and how noble this City vvas, vve need no more then to look

vpon fo many Towns, as were in the protection of the Heduanes, whereof Cafar speaketh in his Commentaries. Among them of greatest note in this Common-far (as he writeth in his first booke) meant Bibracte a wealth, is Bibract named, whereunto Cas to go (as to the principal place of the He-anong the Hedusnes, & Biturigias, where in elder times were the Macon. ancient Kings of the Gaules ; the Senones, d Legere, and Loyie.

Great dågere grow out of duanes. And to this place (as it is recorof one another, and all must goe to generall ded in his featienth booke) Litauicus had made his re-Cafar, though he knew it to be a danwithdrawne himfelfe, because this yvas a treate. gerous matter, to forbeare his wars, and Citie highly authorized among the Hedepart from his enemy : yet, in regard he duanes, and there the Magistrat Connictowas not ignorant what great inconuclitane, with a great part of the Senat came niences do grow out of fuch diffentions: vnto him. Thither also were all the hoand fearing withall, that fuch a Cittie, fo stages of Gaule brought, when Cafars well allyed to the Romane people, which Guards were flaine at Nousedunum. And he had alwayes maintained, and furnished there likewife year assigned the Councel with all things he could deurfe; leaft alfo of all Gaule, against Cafar: and thither althe part that was most distructfull of him. fo (finally) Cefar, after that he had recoshould fend for ayde to King Vercingetouered the Heduanes, betooke himselfe to rix, he refolued to go thither, & prevent winter for that scason. This Citty (I say) the perill betimes. And because, by the was the very principal of the Heduanes, & /as the ambaffador faid in the Panegyrick a The Towne Lawes of the Heduanes, the cheefe Magifrate might not ablent himself out of the of Constantine) it was after called Julia, Po- of Chalons in countrey, as doubting thereby, that hee lia, Florencia, Flauia. Moreouer (in his 7. Burgundy. should diminish any part of their right & book) Cabillone, & Matifcon on Larar, Soane. Lawes ; hee went himfelfe in person vnto are named among the Heduanes, and Wo- c Matifeon, them, and called before him al the Senat, wodung on Legere. Thefe that I havena- city of Celtimed vvere their Tributaries, but their honors were the greatest in all Gaul. For the Malconor

6The People of Beauuoy-fine in Celti-

Inl. Casar in Com. lib. 6

aith is 7.5

absolute authority in all Gaule anciently: according as hee hath written in his fixt Booke, but as wee may fooner fee in his first booke : at all times it had the principality throughout Gaule, especially before it had alpired to the friendship of the Romane people. But after that the Heduaneswere called Cofins and Brothers to the Romaines: what decrees of the Senate, how many times, and in what ho-.50.7. nourable manner were they pronounced on their behalfe? VVe fee then, that fuch and fo great a City of Celtick Gail, hath had this Democraticall Common-wealth, Plin in Lib.o. cap.17.6 18 butaries, but among the Cities allyed to-

The Com monwealth o the Aruerni ans, and the extendure thereof.

Straba in li 4.CAP.7. 4 ...

The two famousbarels o the Gaules.

Titus Linius is lib.61.64P.10.

Int. Cafar in

(who were in the protection of the Senones) and the Bellouacanes, are called by Cafer their Clients, as being under their protection. So then, the City and Commonwealth of the Heduanes, had the most and Plin numbers it not among the Tri-

Now, concerning the commonwealth of the Aruermans, it was sometime the cheefest of Gaule; for (anciently) there were two leagues throughout Gaule, as we reade in the first booke: the Heduanes were the ring-leaders of the one, and the Aruernians of the other. And Strabe hath related in his 1. booke, that that of the Aruernians, was more potent the the other; extending their Seigndury to farre as the confines of the Narbonians and Massilians to the Pyrenean Mountaines, to the Ocean, and to the Rheine: In like manner he foeaketh faithfully concerning two cruell battailes of the Gaules, given vnder the conduct of Bituitus the Aruernian: and Strabo reporteth them in the fame place. & Titus Liuius in his 61.booke. Theone was against Domitius, at the confluent of Sulve and of Khone; and the other against Fabiles at Tifara & the fame Rhone: whereby we may plainly perceive, that ther was the same forme of Common-wealth, as formerly we have spoken of.

For the Romane Senate, as it is in the Com. lib. 1. first booke, being willing that the vanquifhed Gauls, or repulled (at least) from the confines of the Roman Prouince, should continue in their franchises and liberties : nay, which is more, to the end that Gaule might remaine in the greater libertie; ordained, that Bituitus himfelfe (King of the Arvernians, according as Titus Linius ter= and (by the same meanes) the Parisians | meth him in his 61. book) who was gone Bitunus & his to Rome to purge himselfe, shold be kept fen Congenin guard within Alba : but Congentiatus Rome to the his fon was taken and brought to Rome . Senate. Afterward, Celtilus the Father of Vercingetorix, although he had held the principall place of all Gaule in a warre, yet notwithstanding, because hee pretended to make himfelfe King, as it is the 7. booke, the City put him to death. Vercingetorix, by the meanes of his own people, was faluted as King of the Arnernians, and likewife it is faid in the fame book, that all the Gaules called him King: neuertheles, vppon the fame occasion hee was charged rix and his ta with treason, and hoe came in judgement ther both put before them as loueraigne Iudges, and in to death, the end, couetouines in defire of rule, pro. ued alike to the father and fon.

Thus the Kings were excluded out of king expelled the Commonwealth of the Aruermans, & out of the Aruermans companies companie they remained at liberty, even to the time nonwealth. of Cafar. And Pliny (in his time) remembreth it amongst the Cities of the Celtes, which were at freedom: and then it hadno leffe protection then they of the Heduans as is already made manifest by the numbring of military forces formerly declared. The city then of the Arnermans hath anciently bin the Lady over that of the Heduanes, and after that the Heduanes affected rather to bee brethren and cofines of the Romanes, then of the Aruernians : they became like vinto them in habits and manners. And when arthe laft comming of Gafar, the Heduanes were ouercome & spoiled by the Germaines, yet were they The Hedunis then far greater in forces . Finally, when ranfacked and (by the courteste and favor of Cafar) the spoiled by the Heduans were not only replanted in their former condition, but it plainly appeared that they had more countenance and authority then ever before: yet the other were equall to them, and alike in wealthic possessions. But in fauour and esteem thoroughout all Gaul, they were much greaterias the election of Vercingetorix hath fifficiently showne: V Vherefore we may perceite, that the liberty of a Common- The freedom welth remained in these two cities of Cel- wealth, in we tike Gaul. For the remainder of the other Caltike Gaul that were of meaner ranke, hee fpeaketh Cities. not fo much as of any one King, or of a Prince: but only we heare no other name. then of the people, and of the City.

The city of the Senons, was accounted Sensin Celli among ca.

Cauarinus K, the Senon butexpulled

Villenufin

Chap.17.

The common wealth of the

The Citie

Chartres in bare vnto him.

Celts Cities.

Tafgetius K. nuces flain by his cuemies.

The commor

wealth obser-

ued among the Belgians,

People of

rity among the Celts. Of some store of Towns that were vnder it, Cafar hath named two, Agendecum & Vellaunodunum. Cefar wrought by certaine meanes, that Cauarinus was their King ; because Moritaleus, brother to Canarinus and his anceftors, had held the fame authority in that realme for Cafar had undertaken this colour only to establish a singdome there Neuertheleffe, the Senones, although Cafar was prefent, effayed by a counce I publike to put Cauarinus to death. And as he (having intelligence thereof) fled away, they purfued him to far as the Frontiers, expelling him from his house & kingdom The commonwealth of the Parifians was the like, by that which we reade in his 7. Booke. For the Parifians, by a Common Councell of divers Citties, vindertooke warre for the liberty of their country, ele-Cting Camulogenss to bee their commander by reason of the experience he had in actions of Armes, and the good will they

Carnutum also was a great City, as already hath bin shewn, & Cafar wrought the like meanes to establish a kingdome there. Among the Carnutes there was one Talgetius, a ma descended of a great place | they had a field (apart) of great largenesse, and whose Ancestors had held dominion in that City. Cafar (as he faith himfelf) in regard of his vertue, and for the good wil he had found in him, because he had bene a great helpe to him in all the wars, planted him in the fame place which his An-ceftors had held. He had reigned but 3. veeres, when his enemies being authorized by many men of the city, openly flew him. These Cities then had their Bruti, as well as Rome. So Cafar named the Senate of the Eburones, Lexobians, and Venetes. At the fame time, Teutomatus vvas king of the Nitiobrigians, but by a publike rity & number of people. For their exten-Councel of Gaul, hee yeelded obedience | dure was from the limits of the swessions, against Cafar. This may serue as suffici- & also fro the Wormans, so termed at this

What then is to be faid of the Citties of the Belgians? By what manner of Empire were they particularly gouern'd? The extendure of the men of Rhemes was very great: because it iouned with the Sequans, Mediomatrices, Treuirians, Veromanduans, and the Swessiones. Notwithstanding, in all these parts, he nameth but two towns

among the principals, and of great autho- | or Cities, Durocottorum and Bibrax. In | The City of the fixt Booke, the councell of Gaule was France. assigned at Durocottorum; and in the fecond booke Bibrax was befiedged. Concerning the men of whemes, in the time of Cafar, they hadde the managing of the Gauls, and held the fecond place in dignity, next to the Heduanes. Cafar nameth their Senate, and the Prince and Prouoft. of the city, as that Vertifeus, whereof wee have already tooken.

In the time of Cafar, the Swelliones had Divitiacus as their king, who was the most ones, and held powerfull man in all Gaul, and who opened a great part on this fide of the country which he helde, holding also the Empire of Great Bretaigne. After Galba (of whom he hath fooken)he fucceeded. But vve may vvell perceine hereby, what manet of kingdome this was in regard that the Swessions (who yvere brothers & coufines to the men of Rhemes) yled the fame course of authority, and the same lawes, having one and the same Government. and one Magistrate, as they had. For such are the words of Cafar himfelf, by whom one only Magistrate was allowed in their cities. But yet notwithstanding the Sweffiones, although they were brethren, yet and very fertile, and twelue towns, where of Gefar nameth onely one which is Nouiodunum, and which Cafar (after the Belgians vvere retired to him) palsing tho- to P ris calle rough the countrey, essayed to surprize. Noyon. But hee could not compaffe it, by reason of the deepnesse of the dirch, and heighth few people to defend it. We come now to the Bellouscanse, what kind of commonwealth years kept among them ? These men vvere highly esteemed with the Belgians, for their vertue, authoent, concerning the government of the day(even there where the river of Seine, throvves it felfe into the fea) fo far as Calete, known by the name of Callice. Cafar nameth Bratuspantium, a city of the Bello- dy. uacanes. But by vyhat forme of commonvvealth did they gouern their city? They chose their Princes, as (among other) Corbus, who though his Army had bin defeated; yet vould he neuer for any discomfort happing, or possible to befal hm; nei-

of the wall: and yet there were but verie

the borders of Langres, and low Bourgun-

Belgart.68.dif

A Towne in

The Senate & of the Bello. uacanes.

woods, but fought valiantly, & in wounding many, compelled his conquerors to runne in vpon him, and so to kill him in mention of the Senate of the Bellouocanes, and authority of the Comminalty:whece enfued the excuse, which the Senate of the Bellouacanes made to Cafar : That during the life of Corbus the Senate had never the like power in the City, as the common ignorants had.

But now concerning the most potent Cittle of the * Neruians, after what man-*People inhabiting about ner of order wer they gouerned? The bo-Tournay in dy of the Wermans, is divided into mem-Belgica. bers of divers names, as of Hannonia, Fladers, and Brabant, and the name of the Wermans fignifieth no more then a Citic or Towne, including (as now adayes our words arc) of Hannoyers, Flemings, & Bra-Hannovers, banders . And why you may aske mee? Flemings and Brabanders. Whereto I can make no other answere, then as already I have done, when as the Wermans had neither Towne or City: but I will discourse the bounds and limites of that fometime most noble Citty, according as Cafar himselfe hath described it; obserue then what I shall say vnto you. When the Ambians had fubmitted

Country, runneth now through the middest of Henault: wherefore the Countrev of the Hannoyers, is comprehended within of the Neruians. Of Cafar himselfe wee may learne the limites of the countrey of Flanders, which is in firme land, and also of Brabant, for there is a passage in the fift

book, which maketh well to this purpofe.

VVhen Ambiorix (after that Sabinus and Cotta, Lieutenants Generals, were ouer-come with a Legion and fiue Companies

neere to Vatuca, which is in the Eburones land) exhorted the Weruians to doe the like to the Legion that passed the winter

feafon to their country, vnder the charge of Quintus Cicero . Hee per swaded eafily

(faicth Casar) the Neruians, and therethemselues, Casar went thither, to goe to iourny to th the Neruians which were theyr Neighbors. And having made three daies iournev into the Country of the Neruians, he found by report of some that hee had taken : that there was no more then tenne miles distance from his Campe to the riuer * Scaldis . This Scaldis, which passed thorough the middest of the Neruians

*The River Skeld,running through Tornay & fa ling into the Cæsar his

Neruians.

Iul.Caf. in co ment.Lib. 8.

ther forfake the fight, nor retire into the upon dispatched messengers immediately to the Centrones, Grudians, Leuakes, Pleumofians and Gordunes who were all under their obedience, and joyned together the greatest their rage and fury. Calar also maketh forces that they were able to make. These are the very words of Cafar. But the Grudians & Leuakes were enskirted with Louane, in the Countrey of Brabant; and the Gordunes (as much to fay as the men of Gaunt) were in the Mediterrane countrey of Flanders. Likewise the Pleumosians, whom fome doe hold to be them of Cortroy: And they that are of this opinion, do plant the Centrones in the Diocesse of

> This so great Commonwealth of the Nerusans, and which was of fuch large ex-The Prince & tendure, elected a Prince, fuch as Boduog- Neruians. natus was in the first warre of the Neruians. It had also a very great Senat, for Cafar reckoneth up fixe hundred Senators of the Neruians. After that the Atrebatianswere vanquished, Casar give them Comius (who was of the fame countrey)to bee their King : that is to fay, that of a Prince, which was but for a time, he created one that should continue. Hee mainrained the franchifes of the City, & gaue to them their laws and rights, and annexed the "Morines to his Empire. Neuertheleffe, this King enjoyed his authoritie of Tirwinin no long while, for after that the AtrebaBelgica, of attach had put themselves vnder Casars o. losephus Mobeyfance: his fway ceafed, & Comius bare let fayth) the Armes against Cafar again. The Eburones then also had two Kings, Ambiorix & Catrunleus; but their authority was fuch that the commons had no leffe commad ouer them, then they had to contradict them:

The commonwealth of the Morines was answerable to that of the Heluctians, althogh it was divided by divers villages,& had extendure farre off from them: as to Callis, and all along the coast of Piocardie euen fo far as the * Menapians, who dwell of Geiderland vppon the confluent of heine, as also of & Cleucland, the Meuze or Maze, and who were their in Belgia neighbors, as is to be seene in the Teuethers war, in the 4.booke. But the Treuirians, as well for a kinde of gouernement, (wherein they were very skilfull) as also for the occasion of tumult and sedition, very frequent among them; refembled in quality the Heduans. Cingetorix and Indiciomarus quarrelled for the principalitie, Grudians.Le uakes, Pleumofians and Gordunes.

Aquitaine.

Soldurii (as Cafar fayth) were in the Gaulith Language,fuch kinde of men, as deftinied & owed themfelues to the mity of any. to take part in all their good

Cefar in comment lib. 4.8c

> Great Brirain had the fame gouernement as Gaule, and

orn.Tacitue in .4.cap: 7.

euen as did y other two, Connictolitane & Cottus but Cafar feated again Cingetorix as he had done Connictolitane. Thus the gonernment of the Belgian Citties, were mingled with three formes of estates. The Santone Aquitaines seemed to bee

The people of Santone in

Chap. 17.

gouernedby fuch a kind of comonwealth. For that City, when the made proofe of her own vertue, by fighting both on foot and horseback, and well to sustaine all asfaults in her own defence: the rendred hir necke to fuch authority. But Adcantuanus their Prince (of his owne power) stept in to do his duty and fallied forth with 600 *Soldures, or Soldury. Wherefore I think that the gouernment of the Gauls Commonweales, hath bin already fufficiently explicated, and by fo many examples, as we may well conclude, that the principalities of the Gaules (according to Cafar) were fuch as wold not fuffer that the fubiects (hould be oppressed or circumuented but if any Prince did otherwife, hee helde no authority amongst his subjects. VVe have spoken then enough of the gothe ancient Gaules. Let vs now liften vnto the Commonwealth of Great Britaine, and that likewife of the Germains. There is mention made in the fourth Book, concerning the Princes of the Britains, with their conferences and confultations held among the felues, for the common good of Great Britaine. And in the fift booke, the common councell is observed by Casar; and that the whole charge and command of warre against Casar, was put into the power of Casibelane, and the diucrsity of Kinges which were subject vnto that common Councell, doe sufficiently declare, that Great Britaine vied the fame kinde of gouernment that Gaule did, Cafar also dethe Gofmains livereth (almost) the very same governevery little dif-fering.

wealth (faveli he) either endured war made vponit, or attempted any, Magistrates were elected to undertake the charge of the war, and they might alfo take or faue life. In times of peace, there was no common Magistrate, but the Lordes of the Countries, and of the Burroughes, who exercifed law to their vaf-fals, and appealed all their contentions. In the time of Tacitus, Germany had fome Kings : but they were fuch as had more honor then power; in other matters they were like to the Gauls manners. They made Kings (faith he) for their Nobi- Concerning lity, and Captaines for their vertue. Nor had taines among thole Kings any undefined or free power, or the Germans the Captaines were obeyed more by example, and the Com the Captaines were obeyea more by example, panions of then by command: either whether they were winces. deliberated; in fight, or doing their denoyre woon the point, making wonderfull proofe of their prowelle. As concerning the Captaines or Princes (as the fame Author relateth) & likewife for them, termed companions of the Princes, thus it follow-

The Princes also they elect in the publike Councels, which doe hold the jurifdiction of The election Burroughes and villages. Every man hath of their Prinan hundred Companions , who are of the po- ces. pularity, and doe give affistance unto them in Councell together, and also in their Authority. A Noble or generous flock of fame, whose high deserts of theyr Fore-fathers, doe challenge to have the dignity of a Prince. 4. mone st the younger fort of people : They are accompanied with other of more robust complexion; and such as have had (long time) uernment and authority observed among | good proofe made of them : and yet, they bluft | weaker. not a totte, to bee feene amongest fuch Companions, albeit there are some degrees in this companie, according to his indeement whom they follow. VVhy then I may fafely fay of the Germaines (according to Tacitus) that their Magistrates have bin answerable to their Kings, Captaines, or Princes, and likewise to them called the Companions of Princes. I come againe vnto the Knights of the Gaules, which (in the times of warre) have the managing of the affayres . And thefe Int. Cafar in Knights (thus faith Cafar in his fift book) Com. lib. 6. when there is neede, and any warre hapneth: The knightes they are all employed, and according as each of the Gaules man hath authority and meanes, fo hath hee Cafar himfelf most fernants and clyents about him, or this is the onely fauour and power that they doe know. Heerein is continued the ancient Gaules manner, for election of Magifirates, and we may learne by a new argument : that the Gaules Princes were chafen for their Vertues, and for their deferts towards the Common wealth, and that this eminencie came from Vertue ones ly . For every Prince would not fuffer his Subjects to bee oppressed, nor deceyned (So hath Indus Cafar formerly faid) but if hee Should to otherwife, he must beare no authority among his people. And hereto doth this

The stronger qualit alwain to helpe the

liufly make answer: That this is the onely fauour and power which the Knightes knowe, if according as they have most meanes and authoritie, fo they shall have the more servants, and the more Clients about them.

The differece betweene fer uants and cli

By feruants or vaffailes, are meant fuch as frand obliged or indebted (of whom I haue formerly (poken) and who, vppon that occasion are dedicated to the service of those Knights : for, these vassals serue as Waggoners to their Masters, and carry their thields. And the Clients (as it is in the seauenth Booke) neuer dare, euen in the extreamity of all misfortune, forfake or leave their Lords. Thus then the vaffals or fergants, do accompanie theyr Knights and Masters in warre, and the Clients doe attend on their Lords, and these are the companions of the Germans, whereof Tacitus (peaketh, as already hath bene faide.

Strife for po pularitie, and eminency in the Princes

Princes and their follow ers fhould b alike in they

Corn. Tacit in l.5.c. 11

There is great lealousie amongst these companions, who shall have the cheefest place about his Prince: and amongst the Princes, who shalbe followed by the most and best companions or attendants. It is held a high dignity, to bee dayly rounded with a great troope of young and choyle men : it is an honour in time of peace, & fecurity in time of warre. This honor, and this glorie is not onely in eueric Nation, but even in the neighbouring Cities, coueting as much to be accompanied with fuch a company of men, as with fo manie vertues. Whereof practife is made by Ambassages, and plenty of presents sent; nay, oftentimes, they will vndertake Armes, for the bare name to be termed a fouldier. When a man is in the fight, it is shame to a Prince to be surmounted in vertue: and it is a more shame to his follower, if he doe not equall the Vertue of his Prince. It is a most infamous & shame full thing, and not to be washed off in a mans whole life time, to return from the battell, his Prince being there flaine. The principall Oath that he takes, is to defend and sustaine him, and if he doe any braue or worthy acte in his owne person, to referre it to his Princes glory onely. Princes fight for victory, companions and followers fight for their Prince. Tacitus writeth : The Prince recompenceth Such as follow him : for they receive (faith he) from the Princes liberality: this Horse of service that victorious and bloudied Sword: for (uch Bankets, although they are not properly ferued, yet are they sumptuous to them, dy men are well contented with fuch wages.

But can you tell me, what were the re- Recompences compences of the Knights amongest the to the Gaules Gauls, and who managed this other part theinferuses of their Common-wealth? As for the recompence of the Druydes, it hath bin fpoken of already, which was honor, the greatest payment that could be, and only proper to vertue. Neuerthelesse the Common-wealth it selfe could not be ingratefull towards them in recompences:confidering that there were Imposts & Tolles. which appertained to each Cittie, as is to be seene in the first Book, and their greatnesse of Tribute, in the fixt Booke. Tacitus hath declared among the Germaines, what worthy recompences were performed to Princes. Citties had a custome to Recompense collect (with their owne good living) by the poll or head, either of their cattle, or Germaines. of their fruites, to give to their Princes: which being received as an honor, ferued alfo to supply necessity. About all, they tooke delight in presents given by theyr neighbouring Nations, not onely by particular persons, but in general; as of choise Horses, faire Armours, trappings for seruice, and also of Chaines. And since then they have taught vs to accept of mony. But let vs pursue other manners of the Gaules Common-wealth. Cafar doth often accuse the infirmity of the Gauls, be- Cafar his ble caufe in aduice they were fodain and mu-table: but especially in this place of his 4. Gaules for their varia-Booke. There is a common custome (fayth blenes arish he) amongst them, to compell pallengers or neffe. way-faring men, to stay whether they will or Inl. Casar in no, and to enquire of them, what each man hath heard, or knoweth of every matter what foeuer. The popular and common people, they flocke about Merchants in the Citie and constrain them to tell, out of what countries they come, and what things they knowe, or have heard of there. The ancient Gauls, had not onely this wonderful defire, to know matters of nouelty: but besides, that they should be imparted, and made knowne to them and theirs.

I will fet downe two examples of some admiration, the first is in the fift booke, of the victorie which Iulius Cafar had against the Neruians. During the bruite of Cafars victory(this he writes himselfe) uians. Iul Callin com and noifes obferued among the Gaules.

Chap. 17.

the men of Rhemes (with incredible (wiftneffe) carried tidings thereof to Labienus, in-Comuch, that where is he was about threescore miles from the Garrison of Cicero, and that Cafar cam: thether after the nmth hour of the day; yet not withstanding, there arose fuch a cry or noise before the gates of the Campe, and before it was midnight; that the men of Rhemes (onely thereby) gave under-Standing to Labienus of the victory, or made a signe of their reloyeing with him. But the other is an especiall, and most notable cry or noife, when the Romanes were ouerthrowne at Genahum before Sun-fetting: yet before the first watch was set. the cry was heard to the Arnernians, the noise running through all the Townes of Gaul, as Cafar affirmeth in his feuenth Booke. For fo foone as any important matter happened, by a cry they made it knowne in the fields, and fo along thorough the Countries, and still as it was heard, others fent it in like manner to their neighbours, and according as it came to them. And that which had bene done at Genabum before Sun-ferting, was knowne in the con-fines of Aruerne before the first watch, &

vet the distance was aboue an hundred & fixty miles. So faith Cafar, and haply it may feeme, that that fingular description of Fame, which is fet downe in Firgill.

Fame, an enill, vnmatchable in swiftnesse, Is sudden, moving, gadding with rashnesse.

tooke hence the first originall.

Virg.in lib.9.

ling lyar.

Cafar describeth the like celerity and effect of this cry, as Virgill doth of Fame. This concerneth the bruite and cries among the Gaules, whereby being moued, they often held Councels of important faires. And they do not make their account by tingfor genematters : wherof (not long after) they re- the daies, as we we to doe, but by the nights . pented themselues, in regard they gave The fault ensuing on their liberty, is, that they credite to vncertaine novies, and found them in the end to be nothing but fables, But hee that thus reproued the common | flacke to come. people of Gaule of lightnesse; commended their conftant & politicall wisedome. Iulius Cafar in Those Citties (faith he) which are accounted to gouern best their Commo-weals, have their Lawes, which ordaine, that if a man that bath heard any thing of his neighbour (eyther by report or otherwife) concerning the estate of the Common-wealth: he is to impart the fame to the Magistrate and not to any other whatfoener. Becaufe it hath bin ofte feen that rafbs beaded men, and of small understanding, A good obare affrighted by falle noises, or prouoked on to whappy attempts, and (dreadlesse) enter into important enterprizes. The Magistrate concealeth what he thinkerh fittest; and difconcreth to the Commons any matter needfull to be knowne.

This last passage of Cafar, refuteth (ve-Popular ferrv (frongly) popular feruntude, for it testifieth, that even in those Cities, which go- und by Cafar uerned best their Common-weales? that ver the Commons have their authority, because the Magistrate imparteth to the people, what is necessary for the to know. Strabe auducheth in his fourth Book, that Strabe in Lib. this was also yied in the Councels of the cap. 7. Gaules. If any one (faith he) did interrupt him that bake : the publike Minister flept up with a drawns (word, and ving threatnings to the party, commanded him to hold his peace. If he would not do it, he advertised him in the same manner a second and third time. In the end, he would cut off fuch a peece of his garment, as the rest sould afterward do him no feruice. Tacitus expressent it more plainly, as hee doth many other things ; concerning the manner of electing Magistrates, and the Councels kept among the Germanes.

The Princes (faith hee) hold a Councell wherein matters of meanest importance, and such also as are of greatest consequence, are handled together : And yet in fuch manner. that those affaires which appertaine unto the people, are managed and ordered by the Princes . They assemble together (if there happen no (udden accident or aduenture) on certaine daies, either at the new Moone, or the full of the Moone: For they beleeve that those seasons are most happy to treate on ther afare not altogether on the day assigned: but two or three daies is lost to attend for such as

The same Authour declareth another strange thing of the Germanes, affirming, that many times they deliberate at Ban- Banquets by quets to reconcile enemies, to make alli- the Germans ances, and to gaine grace of Princes, yea, euen then to confult of peace or warre: because as then (rather then at any other time) they have their spirits most open, cyther to fimple thoughts, or more earneft to them of greater importance. This

Nation,

Corn. Tacit. in li.5.cap. 3

daies of mee-

Matters con-

Chap.17.

n open field.

Nation, which is neyther fubrile nor cautelous, will discouer the secrets of their foules in iesting manner: for the minde being naked and discovered, bethinks it selfebetter on the day following, & then hath more regard to eyther time. They deliberate when they know no dissembling, and determine when they cannot erre. Such also was the custome of the Country, when the Gaules helde their chiefest consultations: as hath already bene declared in the leuving of their men for warre.

Titus Liunes, speaking of the Gaules, reporteth the fame in his one and thirtieth Booke laying. Then is feene in them

Tit, Liu.in li.31 Decad.6.

Gaules can armed to

Councell.

a new and terrible apparance, because (according to the custome of their Nation) they are armed when they come to Councell. VVhv then the Pallas of the ancient Gauls, came The ancient herselfe armed to the Councell: and because they would not do any thing, but it should expresse the courage of the Gauls, their affemblies were alwayes made by found of Trumpet. For Hirtius writeth fo of the Bellouacanes Senate, having knowne their misfortunes by all contrary things. Corbus being flaine, all their Caualiery ouerthrowne, and the very valiantest of their foote-souldiers, when they thought that the Romans drew nere

The garment of the german fitting in couand Hostages to Cafar.
What shall wee say of the Germanes? What garments did they weare whe they came to councell? They did not any thing (faith Tacitus) neither in affaires publike or particular, but all in Armes . They went armed about their daily negotiations, and came in the fame manner to their Banquets . Blame not then the councels of the Gaules to be done in Armes: for the Romane Oratour could fay in his owne Language.

vnto them then fuddenly they affembled

a Councell by found of Trumpet, crying

all with one voyce, to fend Ambassadors

Let Armes give place to Gownes. Because Armes are the accoustrements of Warre, and the Gowne is the habite of

The habits o Warreand Pcace.

Peace, followed and attended on by Eloquence. And when the Court of Rome was enuironed with fouldiers of Armes, at the pleading of * Mile: the spirit therof was not onely terrified, but the whole body also trembled with feare. But Eloquence vnited it felfe with the Armes of the Gaules, so that there wanted not at one time and place, both Commanders of warre, and learned Orators: for the Gaules Orators (by the irradiation of Armes) were encouraged to speake the more brauely. Princes were pleading Orators in the Gaules councels, where (in generall) all might heare, that had intaror. tereft in the case in question, as is enident by the examples of Cafar.

Among the Germanes (faith Tacitus) in publike Councels, the King or Prince, according to his age, according to Nobility, according to the place for warre, and according to his readinesse in otterance: was much rather heard for authority in perswading, then any power in commanding. It was also permitted in a full Councell, to accuse of crimes deferuing death. The cry or noise of the people, by liftening fauourably or otherwise: fignified to the Romane Orators, that their Oration had found good or bad fuccesse. But the counfell of the Gaules, which was made in Arms, as it was reasonable; made a figne by their Arms (although the clattering of weapons was a figne among the Gaules) how they tooke liking of that which had beene faid. Cafar writeth fo in his 7.Booke, speaking of the Oration of Vercingetorix: All the people made a cry (saith he) and according to their custome, made a clattering with their Armes, as they do, when they approve the Oration of any man.

Marcellinus declareth in his 21. Booke, that after Iulian had made his Oration: the Army of the Gaules applauded him, and mingled dreadfull cries, among the loud clashings of their Targets. The Gaules consultations were in Armes; their Orations were approued by Armes, and the oath they take, was voon Armes. The Caruntes (as it is in the 7. Booke) promised in a full councell of the Gaules, that they would be chiefest in the warre against Cafar, and because they could not in fielde against Casa: giue assurance by the meanes of Hostages, fearing how matters might come aboutsto the end that all might be certaine and fworne, after they had brought together al their Enfignes of warre (as alwaies they yied to do in very ceremonious manner) they requested that they wold begin the war, and the other would not forfake them. And in the same Booke there is a most holy oath, to assure the battel given

Corn. Tacit. m li,q.cap.q

tulius celar is

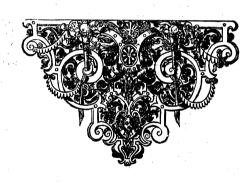

The Carun-

by the horsemen. They on horse cry alto- | ners and customes of ancient Gaule, the | The Authors gether, that this holy oath may be impofed on enery man: Neuer to be received into his house; neuer to goe backe to his parents, nor to his wife, vntill hee haue twice thwarted ouer the enemies armies. Whereo that of Marcellinus conformeth. speaking of Iulian: All were commanded to sweare in his Name, & setting solemnly the points of their swords vnto their throtes, made execrable oathes and curfes on themselues, if they brake their

But now it is time to finish our discourfe. Hauing thus reported the man-temperance of the peoples lines, their affurance in dangers, their wifedome in artes and disciplines, their instice, in ruling and establishing the best meanes, for good ordering and governing their common-wealth: There remaineth now no more, but if we can recover the like levfure (having finished some other studies already entred on) we hope to proceed in the manners and customes of our new Gaules or Frenchmen, which will yeelde the more delight and pleasure, because the fubicct is of a farre more excellent na-

The End of the first Booke.

his long labor

"The Roman that was defended by

THE SECOND BOOKE.

CHAP. I.

Of the new Gaules, or those that are called (now adaies) Frenchmen or the people o France Succeeding after their Predeces fors the Ancient Gaules.

S among all parts of the Earth, Europe, (though it is the least) holdeth the verie cheefest rancke, as beeing the principall, and most worthy: So it is not to bee doubted, but that among all the Countries of Europe, France muft needs be the most excellent in al respects. The people of Arabia that now are, have a customary kinde of faying, that if the world were a Ring, the Citty of Ormuz mustbee the Beaziell, Colletor Head, wherein the most precious Stone is to be enchased. By much better reason then. may it lawfully be faide of France, and a true faying:

Romfard in try of Europe

It is the leffer eye, & the Pearle of the world.

As one of her owne Poets formerly hath fung. Which no way can be accounted strange, when consideration is justly made, of the great blefsings, commodities, and graces of Heauen, wher with the Land is and hath beene endowed. For there is nothing else found to be comparedtherewith; be it if we regard the fertility and aboundance of all things, not onfertility of all ly necessary for the life of man, but also for all forts of pleasures and delights. Bec it alfo, for the iweetnesse, temperature, & amenity of the Ayre: not having any other, more graciously regarded by the eie of the Sunne. No leffe commendable (for valour) is the courage and spirit of the people, which have inhabited there to this present time, who not onely have extended their renowne through all Lands habitable: but also have excelled in whatsocuer can bee applied to the height of Aboue all (as most admirable) is the dignity, greatnesse, and Maiesty of their The Maiesty Kings, redoubtable and exalted (for their the Kings of vertues truely heroycall) aboue all other, France. on the earth. In this excellency then, ther on the earth. In this excellency then, ther three are three things to be discoursed: the first guments of is that of the Landit felfe; the fecond is this infient of the People, and the third is of their discourse. Kings, which refult as well from the two Precedents, as from their owne proper

Concerning the goodnes of the Land, it were an infinite labour to expresse to The goodnes many blefsings, and all things elfe which and excellenit produceth euen of best vie for the life Country. of man, and that in such aboundance, as fufficeth not only for the people; but alfo are imparted and dispersed to other Nations, without any incommodity to it felfe, and (in a manner) not to bee difcerned. The fat fields, covered with good wheate and all graines elfe of any kinde, filles the Graunges & Garners enery haruest season. The Mountaines and Hilles. cloathed with goodly Vineyards, which wines. bring foorth most healthfull and delicate wines : & almost enery where stored with Fruites. all kinde of fruite trees. There is not a jote of vnprofitable Land, all is laboured and husbanded, or ferues for pasturage for Pestures. feeding beafts, which caufeth fuch plenty of all forts of flesh. There ye may likewise behold goodly VVoods & Forrests, filled Weods and with all kinde of game and Venison. Most Forrests. excellent Flax & Hempe, wherof cloth is Flax & Hemp. made in great aboundance. Dyers woad alfo, Scarlet holme-oake, Saffron, with

Cornes.

Cicero pro 1-on-

Plin,in lib. 18.cap. 7. Nitidifsimi panis reddere.

uam far alind

Of the Country of France.

onely for Medicine, but also nourisha-Nauigable &

Chap.1.

ithing riuers.

Houses, Cit-

tics, Townes.

and Village.

The great

Of Wheate &

Heereto I may adde, the admirable fight of great and goodly Rivers, both nauigable, and abounding with fifth, difperfing themselves through France, as veines in the body of man: making the mid-land Regions as apt for commerce. as those on the Sea-coasts. Beside a great number of other waters, great Pooles & Pondes, Fountaines, and cleere running Riuers, all meruailous and delectable. Then have yee goodly houses and buildings; an infinite number of rich and great Cities, Townes, Burroughs, Villages, Caftels, and other Edifices. Moreouer, greater plenty of people, then in any other Region of the world. This is that which is so much wondred at by strangers, who haue thought France to bee a terrestriall Paradife: making more account (in this case) then Frenchmen do themselues, because it is so ordinary and frequent vnto them. But to fuch as have fayled into farre | lumella makes his moane, at that which are Roll, Pin.

felicity of France fo farre beyond other, and therby to know their owne good. All these graces might much better bee acknowledged, if we did but feuer and confider them particularly. First, for Wheate and other Corne, it a happinesse to themselves, to see the

which is the principall fustentation, to maintaine and strengthen the bodye of man; it encreafeth and aboundeth fo in France (and that of the best that can bee) more then in any part of the world, and likewise all other forts of graine. It is not a time now to acknowledge fo great a happinesse, for wee see that our Elders have better knowne and felt it, when the Land was not, throughly fo well husbanded and tilled. As wee discerne by that Strabo in lib. 4. which is written by Strabo, Julius Solinus Popponius Mela, who speake hintib, 3, ca, 2 thereof expressely. Also Cicero reporteth, that (in his time) was brought to Rome and into Italy, great quantities of Corne from the Gaules. Pliny the Great hath alfo obferned the fame, for fpeaking of the Corne of France, he faith: That is was most cleane Corne, and that it yeelded foure pound of Bread, more then any other.

many fingular Plants and Hearbs, not I furnisheth herselfe with the Wheate and Graine of France and that it is to her as a nurfing Mother. And Portugallit felfe, which is described to bee one of the most happy and fertile countries of the Spains, hath recourse to France: as we may see by y which Ozorius faith, a Portugall Bithop of Sylues; & the same is reported likewife by others, who have written of Relati-

And for Wines, the country is no leffe of the plenty fruitfull, in producing such as are very good, and in great assumence. This hash alto beene confessed by our Ancients, ac- Plin, in li. 14 cording to the testimonie of Solinus and cap.2. Pliny, who renowne Bituricam witem. Pet- Bituriges Vihaps this may be interpreted not of Bourges: but of the wine about Bordeaux, wher- 14.cap.6. of the people are called Biturines Viui/ci. He speaketh also of the wine of Feziers, whereto hee gineth the cheefest place among all them of Gaule. And Iulian the In Milphogome.
Emperor said, that there were good vines The Lumber in the grounds of Paris. Behold how Col appelation 1. remote strange Countries, or otherwise the Italians did, for planting of Vines: demias condihauchadintelligence of them: they hold for faking their owne country, they were Cycladibus ac to feek in the delicate grounds of France, recionibus Galin the Ifles Cyclades, and those of Ande lies Betteift louzia. Whereby we may perceine, that he equalleth the grounds of France and their wines, with them of Muscadella. Greeke, and of Spaine.

Pliny faieth, that in Italy they highly e- Plindib. 14.0.8 fleemed the Grapes of France, making Mirum voique mention also of a certaine kinde of admirable Grape there growing; which daily que ob id Stree turneth it felfe to the Sunne, like as the in Italia Galli.
Heliotropium doth, and therefore is called camplacere in after the Greeke word Streptos. Wine is trans Alpes vetransported from France to Rome, which is there accounted very delicious: efpecially that which is gathered in the grounds of Vienna, which they call Picatum, as Plus Plut, Lib. 5. tarch declareth in his Sympoliaques. Not quell 3. withflanding there is a difficulty found in these words, as namely that which Popiseus faith, in the life of the Emperour Probus. That he had permitted to the Frenchmen to have and plant Vines. Notwithstanding, it appeareth that they were in France before his time:

The residention of this dependeth thas that by the Edict of the Emperor Domini in he had enjoyned to the inhabitants of It is well known in these dayes, that Spaine the Provinces, to cut all the Vines, fowe

Plin.in lib.

France abou

view taken, that fome yeares there was abundance of Wine & fearfity of Corne: he conceined, that the eare-able Landes were left barren, in regard of the Vines. Afterward, the Emperor Probus tooke off those inhibitions in Gaule, permitting them to have Vines. And fo to this day. the wines of France are transported by great quantity into England, Flanders, Holland, Germany, Denmarke, Sucden, and into other Notherne Regions.

Of the plenty of fruit-trees, fruite Trees, bearing (in abounding affluence) most excellent, dainty and delicious fruites: as well stone-fruite of all forts, as those of other nature. And yet notwithstanding, Italy and Spaine cannot vaunt to have any that come not into France: as Oranges, Citrones, Pomegranates, Oliues,&c. For though the Land doth not produce these eucry where: yet notwithstanding, Provence & Languedock, which is the Narbone Gaule of our Ancients, do beare the same fruites, yea, and much better, as hath beene noted by experience. Also Strabo observed it well enough. The Country of Narbone (faith he) produceth all the fame fruites as Italy doth.

Moreouer, France produceth store of Our Ancients have also given thereto another commendation, to have great ftore of pasture grounds, and so (by confequence) plenty of beafts to feed in the. Strabo testifieth as much, making so good esteeme of the woolles and clothes of this Country : that they are carried thence to divers parts, and therewith all Italy is fufficiently furnished. But ouer and beside the great commodity, enfuing bythe flesh of domesticke creatures: there are Deare in abundance, as also all kinde of game, &

And to the ende that nothing should be wanting, in necessary matters for support of life: the Country is not destitute of good, proper and profitable horses, as well for ordinary trauell, as also for com-bates, fights, and battels; bred in the Nation, and continually nourished. The Ro-manes were thereto addicted, but principally to the horses of France: as is to bee feene in Trebellius Pollio, who faith, That the Horses of the Celts were renowned about allother. Pollux the Grammarian, interlaceth (among the rest) dogges of a good and gallant breede, apt for the Celts

Fowles in no meane plenty.

Deare and ther game.

Strade in Liv.4.
The Jauvet
implese esperade il Napulatire a muous Gamp i Irania

Plenty of Pa

Strabe in Lib.

Plenty of

flurages.

Plety of good

In Claudio. Quid equaru quas fama no-bilitat Celtica rum? Gnomaft, lib.5 CAP.S.

excepted.Induced fo to do, because vpon | hunting, or such dogs as the Gauls vsed.

This may ferue sufficiently for terrestriall creatures, because to number the particularly, would require an infinite labor: let vs come now to them that live in the waters. It is apparantly knowne, that the coasts of the Sea which enuirone France, Abounding are richly stored with fish, and the fish alfo to be delicate and excellent, better the elsewhere is to be found. And as for the mid-land Regions, where Sea-fish is wantings the fresh and sweete waters are most copiously stored. For the Rivers, Streams Pooles, Ponds and Rivolets have most dainty fresh-fish, and countlesse in number. Daily experience makes proofe therof, Strabo auoucheth it, and Aufonius fings strabo in 15.4 it, making mention thereof in his worke Aufonius in called Mosella.

There are many other commodities, which come and encrease vnder this ayre, for the necessity, vtility and ornament of Ofthe Flave mans life. Among other, Flax and Hemp, and Hemps. and the cloathes made of them, are labored and fought for by strangers: whereof great traffique and transportation goes to other Nations, & returnes home store of money to France: In briefe, it is one of her best wealths and riches.

In this place to ftay no longer on a matter fo frequent, and ordinary in vie, as cloathes and other works, it may appeare lawfull (with Pliny) to enter into confideration (it may bee) of one of the most | Plin, Lib. 19.lin admired things that is in nature: To fay, that so small a plant should beethe cause, berbam essentially berbam essentially. that the Sea cannot bound men within que admived limits, nor separate their Countries, but Egiptum Italia fuffers herselfe (thereby) to bee vanquithed. This is that hearb that drawes Syria Parus simine neere to vs. Egipt to Italy, and Affrica and hom terrava America to France . In a word, it is that vitro citraget which makes man tread under his feete, porter. and trauerfe ouer that dreadfull gulfe, the heape or pile of the whole Element of water, the vafte and profound Ocean; wherein principally appeareth the admirable workes of the high and Soueraigne Creator of all things. And the same Pliny wondreth not a little, that (offo small a graine) fuch a matter (hould come, as carries men through all the Cantons of the world. Which onely is by the meanes of Sayles & Cordages, the principall helpes and wings of nauigation. Such workmanships are performed in France in mighty quanti-

Chap.2.

quantities, and thence transported to infinite other Countries: especally into Spaine, where they have greatest need, to arme and prepare their Ships for seruice. And this is that & hath fo often ferued them, and yet daily doth in their greatest nauigations : beside their very finest clothes, and others of all fashions, broght thether to them. Pliny also recordeth, that (in his time) the Gaules were efteemed and renowned for this revenue.

oap. 1. Habe Gallie muerfa Gal-

A Mount of old in Au-

France hath no need of

Of Woods &

Strabo in France produceth also Woad, apt and needfull for al good Dyers; and the grain for Scarlet dye, anciently called Gocque, which groweth in the Country of Narbone, and Saffron likewife, with infinite other farubs & hearbs of great vie, especially in Physicke. Boterus, Benefus, and other ffrangers have observed and reported, that there is a Mount in Auuergne, called the Mount of gold, full of an infinite number of rare and fingular fimples, proper for Phylicke, which nature there produceth liberally, & without any conftraint. So that to fpeake no more then truth, France hath no neede of the rich East & West Indiaes. It is a little world, a collection and an abridgment of the happinesse and felicity of all Lands: not onely for necessity and profite, but also for the delicacy of life. And if we goe so farre as medicaments themselues, such Simples are there to be found, as equall the drugs of strange Countries, which yeeld nothing elfe. Ther are also goodly Thickets, Woods and Forrests, to furnish whatsoeuer is requifite (befide fewell) for building, engines for warre, fabrication of thips, and other vessels, as also for mooueables and houshold-stuffe. Heerewithall one of the cheefest considerations which causeth France to be esteemed, is, that it is wholly inhabited and well husbanded : not a jote of defert or waste ground, no place empty, nor any thing but hath his vie. Heare what Strabe acknowledged in his time, vnder the Empire of Augustus. There is not any thing unprofitable (laith he) nor any idle grounds: except fuch as are hindred & vied with Pooles and Forrests. By much more reason maywe now say y al grounds there are better tilled and husbanded, the in those times they were: & that y Pooles and Forrests yet remaining, are not a jote the leffe beneficiall, but rather more then fome other grounds be.

Of the People of France.

But no man can better breefely figure foorth the felicity of this goodly neece of Landship, seeming heere to bedone but in diffemper or dry colours a then ichath bin already wrought by two removes the Soling popular lun Solinus Polyhistor, and Pomponius Asses Felices proping gubus glebs. Gaules, in fatted Lands, wholl's proper and accomede pro commodious, in bringing the revenues of tuaru:plere que fruites: A great part planted with Vines, confre vuibus Brubs and fruit-trees. Most happy and rich, mad view and to produce all kindes of creatures, and that mantium futu which is needfull for them : walked with beatifume. Ri cleere waters of Rivers and Fountaines.

Pomponius Mela (peaks thus Terra eft tium. frumenti pracipue de pabuli ferax de amana la in libi 3 cap. lucis immanibus : noxio genere anamaliŭ minime frequens. It is a land principally fertile, and abounding in Corne & past we grounder pleasant and delight full for youdly and great Woods and wherein few living creatures are to be found hurtfull, or doing any harmes

In like manner, Mefsire Michell Suriana, a Venetian Lord, and one of the Clarifsimies; having bene Amballador from the high and honourable Common wealth of Vente in France, in the time of King Charles the 9 left ys this figure, of his own skilfull handy-worke. 110

Fu sempre riputata la Francia richisima, dy piena d'ogni commo dita, dy abondantisima ditutte le cofe ne effarie alla qua huna : perche effenda quafi nel mezzo della peu nobil parte del mondo, che è l'Europa, bail cielo molto temperato de benigna libero da quel freddi grandissimi di Allemagna & de gli eccessiui caldi di Spagn. L'acre benche sia atquanto ventofo, é però falubre, de fottile, de non ha del groffo & paludofo come la Fiandra vicina. Il paese è amæno & piaceuole pieno di fiumi, dy tutti nauigabili : non ba monti a-Bri, Saluo nel estremità de confini : ma nel mezzo per tutto sono colline & pianure, tutte fertili de lauorate. Et fa tanta copia di biade de do vini di lini és cancpe, di guadi de di altra cose, che non solamente bastano per vlo del regno ma ferue ancora a mandarne fino in Spagna, Portogallo, in Inghilterra, Soria, Danemarka & altri paesi piu lontani.

France was alwaies reputed to be most rich and full of all commodities, and abounding in all those things necessary for the life of man. For (becing as it were) in the middest of the most noble part of the world, which is Europe: it hath the heavens very temperate

Sol in poly.c.22 nensibus frucgue aquis flu-minum & fon

noth through Paris,& diti-

Welethat cure very ftrange dife-fes, onely by and benigne, free from those mighty coldes of Germany, and the excessive heates of Spaine. The Aire although it be Comewhat windy, is therefore healthfull and Subtile, and bath no proffe of paludus moistures, as nere neighboring Flanders hath. The Country is milde er pleasing, full of Rivers, and all navigable. It hath no harpe Mountaines, except on the extremity of the Confines: but in the middeft, every where are little hillocks & plaine champaione orounds all fertile, and husbanded or tilled And yeeldeth (nich plenty of Corne & Wine of Flax and Hempe of Wood, and of other things: as not onely serve for the wfe of the kingdome, but also sufficeth to send into Spaine, Portugall, into England, Scotland, Denmarke and other Countries farther off. The same Suriano, having bene (before that time) Ambailador in Spaine, & made therehis Relation: speaketh not in the fame manner, but in other tearmes farre

Among the causes of this fertility, and delicious aboundance in so happy a seating : one part of this felicity may beereferred to the temperaturo of the Ayre, & the Climate of Headen, vnder which it is schulated: Being justly the midst of one of the temperate Zoanes, to wir, the 42. degree of Latitude, about which is Marfeellis and the coast of Prouence and Lanpuedock, fo farre as about the 50. degree towards the North; which is the breadth of France. Whereunto in like manner do contribute, the great number of waters wherewith it is bedewed: which ferue as well for the generation of fruites, as pleafure and amenity, befide (in greater manner) for commerce and traffique. For Gaule hath beene alwayes (throughout) furnished with sprightly Fountaines, and cleare running Rivers, with some of small and greater current, yet very nauigable, for the carriage and recarriage of Merchandizes, and communication of the Prouinces one with another; a mighty commodity, and (then which) there is not a greater in the world.

This is that alfo, which makes the midland Regions, and the Cities & Townes there feated as Merchantable as the Sea coasts, as strangers themselves have both knowne & reported; that there are more great and nauigable Rivers in France, the in all other parts of the earth; & though they speak it as an hyperbole, yet nothing of Niter, Sulpher, and Allum, which are commeth neerer to truth. For in all Italy, hardly can any nauigable River be found beside that of Poe: and likewise in Spaine almost as few at lest that have any course (how little focuer) in length. Strabo hath Strabo in is faide, and that in every Country heere; are Rivers, which come and returne to all parts, coaffing the very principall places. But (aboue all) that of * Seine is to be admired a fweet River, the most profitable fing necrethe and commodious for nauigation, & this and commodious for naugation, a configuration only (among all those in the world) is best languages. bounded and reftrained within his bed, gundy, in the country of Alcet, It run fildome or little overflowing and when it oueffloweth, doth little or no harme at all, yeelding (befide) a most cleare water, and fit to be drunke; abounding also with ding Celia from Belgia, fallethinto the British plenty of fifb. Which moued the Emperor Iulian to fpeake in this manner. Very fildome (faith Oceanby he) doth this River exalt or abale it felfe, de it keepeth(almost) one or dinary course in win- In Misopogie ter as it doth in summer : furnishing generally with a most neate water, sweet & cleare to the eie, and wholfome to be drunk by fuch as will. And although this should not be alwayes certaine: yet notwithstanding, there are few to be spoken of concerning other Rivers to be seene, in comparison of this. Whereto may be added, that an thefe archis owne words. It beareth caufe dutage full free Ships, and fust aineth fo mighty dexo dut call bush on the state of the s which is fpoken by Botero Benefe the Italiburtbens, as they that fee it, will not beleene Porta nauigh it and there is no River, that (in proportion) gouernes an equall weight: fo that although tanto grand, it exceedeth not mediocrity, yet admirably it supplies the businesse and the necessities of neressars

I might also make some reckoning of eccedata medi diuers waters there, producing effects admirable and prodigious: but because it would be a labour long and infinite, to a slight with the slig stand upon all their particularities; I will Parigi, ex. fatisfie my felfe to touch that which concerneth matters wholesome and medicinall, wherewith the fauour of Heauen hath in like manner graced this Region, to the ende it shoulde not faile in any

Ther are many Wels or Springs, which Wels and are found in divers parts of France, that Springsof fundry ver haue certaine properties and vertues, as tues, receiving a juyce & tafte, by the mixtion vnderneath, and entred into their fourse: of the most learned Philosophers. And in regard whereof, they have power to remedy many great diseases, indged o-therwise incurable; as dropsies, and the stone in the reines, and others, the causes whereof are voknowne, and ordinary remedies veterly upprofitable for them.

Qualitaque nocent artes, cessere magistri.

Such are the famous Wels of Pongues in Nivernoys, and of Forges in Normandy. Such also are many other, especially towards the Pyrenean Mountaines, which have the vertue to flav the bloody flixe: to foften and make come forth (in forme of paste) the stone that is in the bladder or reines; to fetch again fight almost lost; to warme and strengthen the nerues; and to cure the gout. In the time of Pliny, he had then discouered something, for hee makes mention of a certaine Well, in the Towne of Tongri among the Gaules ; the water whereof fauoured like vron (as all other Wels almost doe) which healed Tertian Feuers, and the difeafes of the stone, as also the running of the reines.

Now, to speake of Mettals and Mine-

Of Mettals ralles, France cannot be destitute, neither end Mineral can other Nations make vaunt of any aduantage aboue it if due fearch might bee made. Strabo declareth, that in his time. the Gaules affirmed themselues, to have the best in the Cemenes and Pyreneans; and that therefore they would not give place to any other people, especially the Spaniards, who made their glory, in having great quantities. Gold, which is held and esteemed to beethe most precious, shining, resplending, and domineering aboue all other, yea, qualifying the Sunnes bright beames, is to bee found in France. Strabo in Lib.4 For Strabo testifieth . that there was excellent Gold, and in great quantity, in Ce-A hil by the menus. To which purpose, we reade in Alpes, not far from the Ri-Procopius, a Greeke Historian, that the Kings of France caused mony to be sta-Procep.in lib.3. Belli Goth ped of Gold, with their marke and charaeter, found in France: reporting withall, that other barbarous Kings had not that prerogative, no, not the Kings themselucs of the Perfians. Gold in Ri-

In like manner, France hath Rivers, among whose sandes, gold is mingled, as being excorlated from the Mines vnder their current, according to the opinion they further fay that this gold commeth. as being derived by continuall agiration of the waters rowling, and maketh it fo much the purer, about the Marcassity or Rocke yea or that in the earth. Among other Ancients, Diodorus Siculus affureth Diodor Skulim vs, that there are many of these Rivers in France. Aufonius (by his verfes) celebrates Aufonius. his golden Tarne: and (euen now) it is a matter most certaine, that there are such Rivers in Gascoigne, which descend, either from the Pyreneans, or the Cemenes. Let the Cappadocians cease the, to make vaunt of their Pactolus; the Thracians, of their Hebrus or Mariffa; the Colchians of their Phasis the Italians, of their Eridanus or Poe; and the Spaniards, of their Tagus,

And as for Mettall, whereunto the fecond value is given next to gold; Strabo worth next affirmeth, that there are many Mines in to Gold. France, as Cafar himselfe also doth the Cafar Bel, Gal. like; and (at this day) good proofe and lib.7. experience hath bin made thereof. Cafar faith, there is found Copper and Braffe in large aboundance. But aboue all there is great plenty of excellent Iron & Steele: Iron & Reele. whence it came, that reverend Antiquity fo highly commended the Swords and Courtelasses of the ancient Gaules. Let Onomas Ilib. 1. the skilfull Iulius Pollux be credited, who capio. faith; that the Emperor Marcus Aurelius made his choyfe of fuch a man to bee Schoolemaster to his Sonne, who preferred the Gaules Courtelasse, among those other weapon that were most excellent. This Mettall highly aboundeth there, & is the most common in France. Beside, it best agreeth with the Frenchmens gene- men have erosity, who have enermore made them- uer bin worfelues famous by Armes, and bin knowne thy fouldiers. by their manhood, to all the vemost parts of the world. Gold and Siluer, fo much effected a- Gold onely emong vs to be precious, are no more apt Reemed for for Armes, then other instruments and the rarity. vtenfilles for the commodity of men, and the great account we make of gold, proceedeth onely from the rarity thereof. But we ought rather, to value things by their vtility & vse although they be common, as Aristotle faith; among which is I- Arift: in Ethic, ron the most profitable Mettall of all other & not by the to be furmounted: fo y (without it) with great difficulty can gold (more harmefull and leffe beneficial) be 4b g.cap.7.

Batero in Rel at.

Small fling-

The infelici-

Ifle De Los

The French

were neuer

concrous of

gold or filuer

To get gold,

lotle of many

. 76

Herodot, in 1.3.

tus) contemning gold, doe value copper beyond all other; and at this instant, siluer is made more account of in China, the gold is. The people dwelling in the Ifle De Los Ladrones, in the Sea called Su, although they have no more store of gold, then of other mettals: yet notwithstand ding, they couet not, or demaund any of paffengers Ships fayling by them; but call to them with loud cries, to let them haue yron, which they acknowledge to be most necessary.

It is to be credited, that there are no leffe store of Mines (both of gold and siluer) at this day in France, then formerly hath beene knowne, and spoken of by our Ancients: as daily might bee discourred, if men would give their mindes to fearch and breake open the ground for them. But the French wer neuer affected to fuch greedy defires, the earth yeelds and cafts them vp commodities sufficient, goods & treasures in abounding plenty: without violencing or deluing into the earths entrailes, and very profoundest deeps, euen (as if we should say) to burye men aliue, renting and tearing hard Rockes in peeces leuelling high Mountaines, to melte and fine them, with the loffe of an infinite number of lines. Day and night is spent hath benether in these extreme passions, to get this vile mettall, and then to adore it as a God, being the true cause & originall of the greatell miseries that can happen to man: albeit Nature (in her purity of wisedome) placed it to be trodden on vnder our feet, and hid it close in the earth, as a thing vnworthy to be scene.

There are many other treasures & gifts of Nature, which are affoorded vs by France Quantum apud nos margaritis Indicis precium est, tantum apud Indos in Coralio: gignitur in Rubro mari, laudatissimum vero in Gallico sinu ad Stæchades. Looke how much (in thefe quarters) we esteeme the Pearles & precious Stones of India, as much reckoning there is made of our Corall. And though it encreaseth in the gulffe of Arabia; yet not with standing, the most excellent comthe Isles of Ieres; fo faith Pliny.

Among so many benefits and commodities, Salt likewise is one, the best & most wholesome that can be in any Country: in which regard, it is fought for by ftran-

obtained. The Ethiopians (faith Herodo- | gers, euen whence commeth great store of gold and filuer into France, befide that which is of her owne ordinary vie. Botero ranketh it among the foure things which Inlib. 1. della aboundeth in France, tearmed by him Adamants, as drawing to them the gold of Strangers countries. These foure Adamants (faith he) are Corne, Wine, Flax and Hempe,

In divers parts of France, are the ma- Of hard flone terials fit for all kindes of building. Hard stone and other matters, wherof infinite are to be feene in goodly, great, and rich buildings, Castles, and publike Edifices, wherewith the Country is wel filled and cities beautified. Nor is it destitute of the fairest Marbles, in which respect, wee may Marbles. not omit that which hath beene observed by our Ancients, as a thing particular giuen to Gaule : that those Stones and materials do encrease in the Quarries, how a drin. liberally foeuer dispersed abroad, as Vlpi. an the Lawyer hath left vs in writing.

It was not then without great reason, that the Poet Manilius calld France Rich. And Dion tearmes it Florishing in riches. Dion inlib. It feemeth alfo to be knowne to loscphus, who declareth how King Agrippa deliuering to the lewes, what inconveniences might come vnto them, by revolting a gainst the Romanes: demanded of them if they could speake of more wealth then the Gaules had; more strength then the Allemaignes or Germanes; and better vnity and vnderstanding, then among the Greekes, all which (neuerthelesse) were under the dominion of the Romans. And the better to perswade them, in the commodities and advantages of all those peo-ple, being vinder their yoke & obedience: he faith of the Gaules, that they were (in multitude) three hundred & fine kindes | mar mit 3 mit multitude) three hundred & the same of people. And had among them (by his mather of fleaking) Welles and Springs of all virgination and felicity, watering and bedewing in the same of the the whole Land habitable, with riches and good blessings. He addeth beside, that ther were then in Gaule, aboue twelue hundred Townes and Cities.

In like manner, Cafar having bent all Cafars intest meth from the Isles Stoechades, now called his hopes, one day to make himselfe Ma- to make him fter and Monarch of the whole eftare, power and dignity of the Romane Empire. and finding himselfe in want of money, charged with great debts, and yet (necesfarily) to lay out greater largesse and expences, Suction in Iulio dezzo dilleun Exomni pro unciarum copia Gallias potifit-

Chap. 1.

mum elegit, cu-ius emolumento

& opportunita-te idonea effet

naeria trium

The fairest

The counting

of Carlar to that which he compatie

avmed at.

Plut in vit. Cafar. Un Kalgaeye m Tahamah mi Farannes nhime dijin di julio defiatro sain rele reshe-mondyine, The bounty

Sueton in Iulio

Pro.M.Marcello.Gente: omni copiarum genere abun-pences: to compasse the maine Masterpecce wherat he aimed ; Among the multitude of mighty Prouinces, hee chofe principally the Gaules (faith Suctonius) whose profite riches occasion, and opportunity, was to him Subject of matter Sufficient, apt & conuenable for fo great triumphing. Shewing thereby, that it was the goodlieft, richeft, most potent, and worthy Prouince of the Romané Empire, & thought it there the. fittest, to exalt himselfe to the Maiesty of Rome. Which acordingly came to paffe, for by themeans of the Gaules riches, not onely he discharged himselfe of his great debts: but enriched likewife al his friends, practifing with divers, & winning an infinite number of Lords in Rome, yea, they that wete the cheefest Magistrates

In briefe, hee omitted not any kinde of bounty as well publike as particular,

Among other matters, hee attempted the building of a Pallace, for the judging of causes, the meere place costing him abone 1400000 crownes, and althis came from the pillage of the Gauls. He feafted all the people of Rome, which was a thing (well neere) impossible and infinite. He doubled the pay of his Legions & companies of foldiers, to perpetuity; curiching the rest with good gifts, beside great distributions, as well of monies as slaues, as also lands and victuals, which he caused to be given to every Citizen of Rome,& likewise to his Captains & Soldiers. For Plutarke faith; He emptied out of his owne. Coffers, the riches of the Gaules, to such as holp him to the publike government of Rome, euen what they would have. He acquited Curio the Tribune, of a great fum of mony, which he ought him: And gaue to the Confull Pau-

Crownes of french coine. All this bounty, all these goods & treafure, were taken in Gaule, & (as Suetonius faith) without any spare of the Temples, which he knew to be rich in gifts: & many times facking Cities, rather for the greedy defire of booty, then any other iust caufe. And Cicero faith : That he had ouercome Nations, abounding in allthings & in all the feneral kinds of power; this he meant of the Gaules. For not only was that true which Procopius faide : That Gaule is much more powerfull then Spaine : but also aboue Ctions. Fire falles fro heaven there vivally Fire from all the other Prounces of the Romane, Empire, according to the judgement of not only it embraceth & confumes partial lus, 1500. Talents, amounting to 900000.

Cafar. So then it may justly be faide, that Gaule, as well for riches, as for the me that he found there gave entrance to the great power of Cafar & was the cause, means, and inftrument of his defignes, & obtaining the Empire of the world, which hee enjoyed, in despight of so many Romane Lords his aduerfaries and competitors.

But among fo many profeerities, it is No marrer of a matter both rate & admirable, that ther discommodiare to be found few or no discomodities ty to be found at all whetwith the land should be annoied. There is not any Region in the world. how goodly or happy focuer it may bee faid to be, but is subject to fundry inconueniences, that make a counterpoile to the felicity therof. Arabia, which carrieth the furname of Happy, wherein, beside in The inconus many blessings it affoordeth, the odors & are in Arabia perfumes there growing, maketh the aire Folix. all embalmed, as it were: yet in counterchange, it hath two very great discommodities. One is, that in those Forrests of most odoriferous trees, throughout in er nery place, are found a great number of finall and short serpents, of the same colour as the earth is that fubtilly fling and byte men before they have any power to perceine it, or defend themselves against it; and being thus bitten, they cause their death in a million of torments. The other is that these so happy people are subject to a strange discase, proceeding fro their ouermuch ease, and hot persumes of the country: fo that to helpe themselves, they are enforced to find out all kinds of stinking and infectious finels, euen the foulest Diod. Sic. in lib. that can be, fo faith Diodorus. So that ther 3.cap. 18. is no happinesse in any part, neither any fuch pleafing sweetnes; but it is conjoyed & neighbored with one greefe or other.

The Regions of Affrica, those that are the most delicious of al, are ordinarily affailed with an infinite number of wilde Dragons, Serbeafts, horrible Dragons, Serpents, & other venomous creatures : beside Lions, Beats, 1 20 Leopards Panthers Ounces, & prodigious monsters, which Affrica producethe from time to time, often rayling fiedge against the inhabitants, compelling the to fecke out new dwellings . China, which The afflictiis described to vs to be so fortunate, and one of China abounding in all things : hath many affliand fuch wonderfull rauage is made, that heauen.

Plin. lib.32

Of Salt.

Inundations of water.

Earthquakes

People of

Libya abidin

on the fand

Syrts. Herodot.in li.e

Seldome is ny delight without dan

neere the great Cities altogether, yea, many times whole Provinces. Deluges and inundations have also wrought there strange effects, spoyling, ouerthrowing, and defacing whole Countries, & that very often Earthquakes, ingulfings, and impetuous showres of raine, are (as a man should fay) there daily: thus you fee what delight and happinesse, is in the greatest & most renowned kingdome of the East.

There are Countries, which fuffer colds and insupportable freezings: as other are meerely burnt and wasted with heates. Witnesse the * Nasamones, who in regard of this heate (they dwelling beyond the Torride Zoane) do curse the Sunne when it paffeth ouer them. Thus then other Regions, being effeemed fo happy for perfumes, odours, & fueh kinde of delights: doe sometime pay very dearely for their pleasures; perill is euermore neighbour to iby, and contentment is close followed at the heeles, with some or other mishap.

Whofoeuer thinketh to gather the (weets of their fairest flowers, or the invee of their most delicious plants; may as foone meete with deadly poyfon, and in stead of sweetnesse, finde such bitternesse, as quickly will bring him to his graue. Either by the Aspicke lying close hidden, whose pricking causeth sudden sleepe, & procureth dea h in that fleeping. The Snakes byting bringeth a deadly drought with it. The Viper filleth the whole body full with venome, by his buting. The Bafilike flayeth by his very fight onely. The earth by quaking, endangereth to swallow men vp, or ouerthrow and kill them in their houses. A deluge suddenly carrieth away, and couers all with water. The Lyon or the Tyger comes onely to deuoure. Strabo having related the goodnesse of Batica in Spaine, which is now Granada & Andalousia, saith withall; that the country is perfecuted with an afflictio very strange ver reputed to be ridiculous. It is by the great and immense multitude of Conies or Rabbets, which feede on, and confume their feedes, plants, and rootes of trees. He also saith, it hence ensueth, that almost throughout Spaine, yea, and the neighboring liles, are thereby afflicted. Adding beside, that the inhabitants of the Isles Gymnasiaes or Baleares, now called Maiorque and Minorque, sent Ambassadors, to cular houses; but Villages, Burroughs, & 1 request and of the Romanes, against these hurtfull creatures, and to chase them out of their country, as beeing vnable to endure their multitude. And succour was necessarily required in so great a warre, which doth not alwayes happen (faieth he) but when the country is subject to be infected with some plague of pestilence, famine, or fuch other affliction and punnishment sent from Heaven.

> Marcus Varro writeth, that a Towne in Spaine was wholly undermined, and ruined by those Conies, & another in The/- cap.29. falie by Moales. Some that have bene dif- cap. 1 3. peopled & forfaken in regard of the great multitude of Frogs. Another in Affrica; by Locusts: Also, that the inhabitants of the City * Gyaros, now called Gura, in one of the Cyclades; were expulsed thence by the Acquir Rats: and that in Italy, an ancient Citty lea, one of the called Amyclea, was vererly ruined and loft Sporades. by Serpents. There is a Region in Affrica, where a great extendure of the country is become defert, the people which dwelled there being driven to all extremities, and quite exterminated, onely by Scorpions and Piffemires, which are a kinde of venomous Ants. Theophrastus reporteth that others were expulsed by " Scolopendraes. | * A worme And Strabo faith, that Spaine was ordina- that hath me rily infected with a strange multitude of is very vero-Rats: whereupon (oftentimes) followed | m contagious diseases. The like happened | Strabo in lib.3. once to the Romanes, when they were in the countries of the Basques and Astures: fo that they wer glad to hire men to chafe them away, the Rats came fo fast vppon them, and hardly could they faue themfelues from them . An ancient Philosopher named * Dicaarchus, wrote a Book, of the ruine of men, and had collected to- Philosopher, gether, how many ruines had happened Scholler. in divers countries, by reason of the inopinate multitude of beafts: by whofe imperuous violence, he sheweth that some Nations have bene loft and confumed.

France, on the contrary (God be praifed for it) neuer was subjected to so many compare wit miseries, & there is not any Region found in all the habitable world, being fo hap- whe world py tasteth lesse inconveniences. Deadly poison cannot deceive him that gathereth there her wholesome flowers & hearbs, or perfumes. The Lyon or Tyger, the rauenous Beare or Panther, cometh not to fet vpon the traueller, or drive the husband-

The flesh is sourraign for diseases. Bald. Ang. Ab batins lib.de

Chap. 1.:

all France.

in France

In lib.x cap. 2.

None of thef nouelties are in France.

France may

man from his home. The Serpent cannot annoy the paffenger or haruest Reaper by his byting, because there is none at all to be found there. A man may fafely take the Eucning or Mornings benefit on the greene graffe, without dread of any venomous creature, which are most dangerous in other countries. But admir that | the time of the Punicke warres, the peo- Plinta sap. 84 there were fome kinds of Serpents or Snakes in some peculiar parts: yet are they very few, and no barme at all difcerned to come from them. No Egyptian Aspicke is there to bee found, and that Of the Aspick which is termed in France an Afpicke: it is no Aspicke at all but rather a Viper, as is verified in the Observations of P. Bolonius. Neuertheleffe, it is rare or fildome to be seene there, and benefit (rather then any harme) is to be received therby. And fay that this Serpent were very venomous: vet notwithstading, it serueth most commodiously for the life of man, and Treacle is compounded thereof. The verie learnedst Physitians do hold, that the flesh thereof is soueraigne for many difeafes; and, that which is much more, it hath power to lengthen the life of man, in fuch as make ordinary vie of it, as manie

of our Ancients did, and other healthfull

people yet living, who have heretofore referred the cause of their so long health-full continuance. Thus our Ancients.

Morcouer, France is not subject to the and especially the learned Egyptians, v-The Egyptian fed the Snake as an Hieroglyphick, marke and figne of health: presenting it to theyr Goddesse Sanitas, rouled about with other creatures.

miseries and horrors of earth quakes. Neuer shall ve there heare the earth grone, bellow, then tremble, shake, and swallow vp houses, Burroughes, & whol Townes, making groweth of Mountaines, by leuelling and plaining other places, to drie vp waters and rivers, and then fodainly to let loose Flood-gates of Nouelries; to stay their violent course of a streame, and then to make it run directly against his curret: to let foorth flaming fires, to finish that with greater defolation, which the former Earth-quake had left behinde it . By an especiall priviledge of heaven, France stands exempted from all these; experience hath made it apparant, & Pliny long ago witnessed it, when he saide: That the Gaules were not shaken by tremblings of the Lib.7.cap.80. Gallie terre: motu minime quatiuntur.

To know the quiet condition and felicity of Prance in this cafe, wee may compare and confider other Nations & Prouinces, and what great afflictions and ru= ines have infued to them by fuch harmes. in most part of the worlds Regions. We finde, that in Italy and other Countries, in ple were tormented with Earth-quakes. feuen and fifty times in one yeare. VVho would not be amazed, to heare that two hilles thould approach neere each to or mountaines ther, to iustle (as it were) together then, met together. to retire and anancer on againe, after the manner of fight, stirring and mouing furioufly, with an horrible noise and breaking? A great fire and smoake rose vp betweene them : and by this their rude encounter houses and villages (seated in the valley)were bruifed and beaten downe,& both men and beafts (mothered to death: euen as it happened in the Territorie of Modena, in the yeere 622, and in the City of Rome, in the time of the wars of Marius and Sylla. This was scene in broad day Plin.1.2.cap. 82 time, by a great number of paffengers &

spectacle, from the necre-neighbouring

Romane Citties, who beheld this wofull high-way, or bill ascending to the Capi-The It was a strange thing, that trembling or Earth-quake, which happened under the Emperor Tiberius, and in the 5. yeare of his Empire (to the end we may not, as Orofine doth, confound it with that which chanced twelve years after, miraculoufly, euen at the passion of our Saujour:) Tacitus reporteth, that in this yeere (which danalis. was the 770. of the City of Rome) in one night, twelue great and famous Cittes of Natolia, were ruined and vtterly ouerthrowne , fuch as was Ephefus, Sardis, Cu- Plinin Leap 84 ma, Philadelphia, and other of the fame ranke. And that which yvas most terrible, they had not the meanes of open flight. an ordinary fuccour in fuch misfortunes: yet thereof they were deprined, because the earth shrunke and opened vnder their feete, and swallowed them vp immediarely. Herewithall grofe flunings and flames of fire among the ruines; a .d that which was plaine champaigne grounde before, was exalted to Mountaines, and contrarywise, Mountaines became euen and levell ground. Heere might also bee alledged, the v

Perill of the Aspicke.

The Snake.

The Viper. The Basilisk Earthquake.

Deluge. Heredot.in l.

The misery Patica in Spaine. Strabo in Lib

fian Iflands o Balcares pla gued with Conies.

quakes at Con stantinople. Mifcellib. 14.

ced in some yeares before, in the City of Nicea in Natolia, which was ruined; and the dreadfull effectes thereof are particularly written by Amianus Marcellinus, and Marcel lib. 17 under the reigne of the Emperor Constantines Zonarus reporteth, that thirteene great Townes of Champaigne ground in Italy, or in the foyle called Terra di Lanora, were veterly ouerthrowne. But among other, the City of Antioche was wonder-fuall and frequent earthquakes at Constantinople, and whereto it hath bene alwayes fublect. And in fuch manner, as during the reigne of the Emperour Theodolius, there happened fuch an Earth-quake, as lasted soure moneths continually: the people beeing constrained to flye out of the Citty, not daring to return in againe.

There was another as strange, which cha-fully afflicted. In the reigne of the Emperor Iultinian, it was ouerthrowne; and an infinite number of men therein swallowed. Soone after, it was re builded by the liberality of the Emperor, and two yeares

were not fully expired, when this goodlie

It is likewise a happinesse particular to France, that the sweetnesse and temperature of the Ayre is fuch; as, in comparifon of that in other Prouinces, there is neyther excessive colds, nor insupportable heats. And if in some yeare it happen otherwise, it is but once in an hundred veeres, and of so small continuance, that it is onely but as a scantling : therby to let the Frenchmen know, the sharpe rigour and discommodity that other people endure, to the end they may the better vn-derstand their owne felicity, and shape their comforts answerable therto. Length of Winters, and of Nightes; the bitter

North-east windes of Scythia; Moun-taines of Ice and Snow, neuer hindereth their Commerce, nor their Voyages at all feafons of the yeare. Theyr Seas doe not freeze, as often it dooeth in Pontus

Euxinus, or Mare major, even so farre as the streights of Constantinople. On the contrarie fide, extreamity of heate con-

Paul Disc. bift Misclib.t g. & Cedrenus.l. 16 and flourishing Cittle had beene newly finished : but againe in like manner it was wholly ruined, and the greater part of the inhabitants buried in the downfall. This was in the beginning of Justinians empire. Such miferies neuer hapned in the King-Plin.lib.7.c.60 dome of France: Gallia terr amotibus mini-me quatiuntur.

The tempemildnes of the

No Mounraines of Ice and Snow in France.

firaines not men to keepe them a long while hidden under ground, without daring to come forth but in the night time : neyther to fleepe in the water, and like the Amphibi or halfe Fishes, to devel | That line there the most part of their time. That which is reported of many people, & par-water. ticularly of the dwellers in Barbarie, Ormuz land them of Taprobane, now called *Samotra: not any thing heere is like vnto them, but all most remperate. From so in legit 1000, fweetean Avre, can proceede nothing miles, and in but healthfulnesse; the Heauens being no bredth 625. way subject to ingender frequent and irkfome Difeases. Therefore did Cafar deferuedly fet this commendation on Franco: To be a. Countrey most [weete and healthfull. And so the English-men likewife, in the recitall of Froisard, doe note France, To be a most safe Country, and very Frois in vol. 3. sweete, a courteous Country, with mild aire, and delicate Rivers. It is an admirable matter also, that

France produceth fuch diversity of things and in fuch aboundance : there being no France. Countrey throughout the World more commixed, and that hath leffe meanes of subject, for recourse vnto other. It is by a priviledge and particular right, and against the Law which Nature hath giuen vnto other landes ; but to speake vprightly of France, it is proper to all, and in fuch fort, as there is not any thing particular to other, which is not common in

it. In regard whereof, and confidering what hath formerly bene faid, there needs no doubt to bee made: but that which Virgil meant to fay in commendation of his Italy, was much more fitting for the Land of France.

Hîc ver assiduum,at gʻalienis mensibus astas, Bis granida pecudes, bis pomis viilis arbos, Ac rabida Tigres absunt of Sana Leonum Semina, nec miseros fallunt aconita legentes : Nec rapit immensos orbes per humum neg, tanto Squamen in spiram tractu se colligit anguis. Adde tot egregias vrbes operumá laborem.

Beside, that which he could say concerning the amenity or delectablenes of Italy, was but for some certaine places; & the Italians themselves do know wel enough. that vyhatfoeuer they do admire or commend, in any particular part of Italie, it is to be found every where in France, and is meerely common there.

Lib.z.Bel.Civil.

Virg.Georgic.

Herfal.part. 2.

How France s feated for Nauigation.

Moreouer, the Kingdome is most abfolutely feated for Naugation: because on the one fide it hath the Mediterranean fea, and the Ocean fea on the other, enuironing it by a long extendure, and wherein are many goodly and commodious Ports and Hauens. As for the Land it felfe, it is as in the very middeft or hart of Europe. Suriana, in his relation of France, hath well observed it, and makes great reckoning of the commodiousnesse

of the lituation vling thele very words. Il regno di Francia, come quello che è in mezo de la Christiantia de commoda en opor+ tuno piu' d'ogn'altro per voure de dividere a (ua volonta le forze de i piu gran Principi, & de i popoli pin bellicofi, penche à dinanzi l'Italia, og l'Inghilterra ale palle, a man destra la Spagna, da sinistra è la Germania, di qua Suizzeri, di qua Flamenghi, & oltra di questo è fra due mari, il Mediterraneo dell' una parte, og l'Oceano d'all'altra : onde per mare de per terra puo facilmente fauorire eutte le imprese de tutti li disegni di ciascun Principe & Potentato del mondo. Et quanto a se è sicurisimo di ogni banda de per Natura, & per Arte.

The Kingdome of France, as that which is in the midst of Christendome, is opertune of commodious (more then all other) to unite and divide (at her owne will) the forces of the very greatest Princes, and of the most warlike people. Because it hath Italy before it, England to (houlder it, Spain on the right hand, Germany on the left : on this fide the Switzers, on that side the Flemings. And beside all this, it is betweene two Seas, the Mediterranean on the one part, or the Ocean on the other : so that by sea and land, she may easily fauour all the enterprizes, and all the deseigns of every Prince and Potentate in the World. And as for her felfe, she is most secure on enery side, both by Nature, and by

Let no man then thinke strangely of it, if France be endowed with so many celestiall graces and fauours, and so wel peopled and inhabited, that any thing can be compareable thereto, in all other Countreyes what soener. There is not a jotte of voyde or waste ground; the goodly and great Citties and Townes, are all well filled with inhabitants, and very neer neighbouring one to another. Trauailing upon the common high-wayes, from any part whither you pleafe; you shal finde them bordered with great villages; faire Hour fes and Castles, and the people swarming cuery where even as if al France were but one City.

It is not fo in other regions, for in some there are immense Forrests, Lakes, and Marith grounds, taking vp immeasurable roome as in Germany, and in the Low that are ino-Countries. In other places, are great and ther countries sterile Mountaines, which take vppe no different from meane part of the Countrey: as Botero acknowledgeth, that the Apennines viurpe a whole quarter of ItalyiThere can you not behold (as you may in France) fmall hils and dales, fweetly cloathed and flourishing with delicate fruite trees, or vvealthie Vineyards, orelie employed to some other profitable vie. As for the Alpes and Apennines, for the most part, there is nothing to be feene but sharpe and craggie rockes, bearing their heads up vnto the clouds, couered with Mosse & Saltpeter, and having very dreadfull downefalles. There is nothing but hardnesse, rocks full of horror, places vnacceffable, vnprofitable, and fruiteleffe, eyther for Men or Beafts.

Concerning Spaine, so much as it is far off from this happineffe of France, euen fo (in comparison) is it as slenderly peopled. Behold the perspective thereof, according as Straba hath drawne it downe for vs. Spaine (faith he) for the most part is torvs. Spaine (laith he) for the mois part is creating inhabited. For the Mountaines, For-rels, and Plaines (wherey the earth is dried, meager and barren, being but [lenderly holpen with waters) takes up too much ground.

The same Author saith in another places, the cannot beleeve that there hath bin so many Citties or Townes in Spain, as some haue reported, or else they counted Villages for Townes. 1 or (faith hee) ted Villages for Townes. For (faith hee)
The Nature of the Countrey cannot recepte any number of Townes, in regard of the bargrennesse of the ground 2 to being farre off. 6:
retired from one of the worlds corners: and six a kammatakenses. also the ayre breathing not gracious & agree- brush to antiable. Thus you fee the true description of Spaine, and this hee fayeth, because it is found in foin Authors of Antiquity, who haue tearmed it to be happy and fertile: What happiness it is to be vnderstood of the Sea shores, tility is in and some Countries, where (in trueth) it Spaine. is fo. As in Betica, containing nowe the

The sharpnes

of the North

Froif vol. 2. in part of Portugall, whereto Strabo giueth the fame commendation.

But hee omitteth not also, to describe the rigour, hardnesse and sharpenesse of the very greatest part, which turneth towards the North: aniwerable to that now still there to be seene. For Andalouzia is knowne to be fertile; but the Spanyards thefelues do tell vs, what store they have (befide) of Mountaines and final deferts, w they terme Sierras, as keeping fill the ancient Arabian word. Froiffard relateth, that the English, who had bin at the succour of the King of Portugall, under conduct of the Duke of Lancaster : would returne no more thither, faying: In Castile there is nothing but Rockes, which are not good to bee eaten with Veriuyce : verie high Mountaines, a hard Avre, troubled Rivers or grosse victuals, the people poore and slowenly, ill nurtured, and worse habited, beside great dearth of all wholesome viands.

uer-frequent among them, so that they are enforced to feeke helpe in France, by the hands of the most Christian King. Befide, France hath alwayes had the prayfe

to be well peopled, and to produce men at due scalons. Casar himselfe speakes it, saying; A most fruitfull mother of men.

And Strabo writeth, That the women are apt to beare children, and to nourish & bring them vp. In another place hee confesseth,

That there is a certaine kinde of vertue and propriety, particular to the women of France, both in their teeming, and giving fucke onto Botero and other Italians, being defirous to make a curious inquifition (fo nere as poffibly might be) to know what number ofmen each countrey contained althouh

it is a matter (from time to time) fubiect

to change: fetteth downe, that in France were fifteene millions. In Germany, with the Lowe Countries, and the Switzers

Cantons (although they exceeded France twice or thrice in extendure of ground) they grant no more. In Spaine, which is very great, they number but three Milli-

Heere is to be observed, that Spaine must needs give place (by ods) to France Spaine inferiour to France for healthfulneffe, when the ayre is there for healthful so hard, the rivers troubled, and the waters naught: whence infueth the inflations, swellings, and enils in their throats, commonly termed the Kings euill, and o-

Inlib.2.Bel.Gal Fertilisima beminum genetrix Strab. in lib.4 Tord the ay your are any thoses ayabus. Item apara sur your any oppers क्षेत्रकार मुख्य बस्या हो क्या करेंद्र सामग्रीयतः Botero in Relat.

Number of people in diuers Counprouinces of Granado and Andalouzia, and | ons : whereby appeareth one of the principall prerogatives of France.

The glory and honor of any kingdom, and of the King commaunding ouer it, confisteth (to speak truely) in the peoples multitude. The Emperour Adrian faid; That he defired to fee his Empire amplified Debondaman with multitudes of men, rather then with abundance of money and riches. This was it Proudant also that mooned the wife King to say; In multitudine also that mooned the wile King to may 3 populi dignina Inthe multitude of the people, is the honor of Regue, in pass a King: and for the want of people commeth citate plebu is [hame and ignominy to a Prince. The King nominia Prince dome of Indea! which hath heretofore beene so famous, and made choise of for the inheritance of Gods people, it vvas not in regard of her great extendure; for there was none finaller; containing not aboue forty miles in length, & in bredth much leffe in many places.

Likewife, the promise that God made to Abraham, was; That he would make him Gen. 12,2. the cheefe of a great people : and his feede to Gen. 13,6. be as the dust of the earth: so that if one could number the dust of the earth, so likewife shold Genesis, his feede be numbred. At another time hee favde vnto him; Lift up thine eyes to Hea- Genef. 28.14 uen, and tell the starres, if thou bee able to number them; in such number shall thy seede be. The same promise he reiterated againe to his yongest fonne lacob. And this yours it, that excited the hatred and enuy of the Egyptians, against this people of Israel; because they saw their number to multiply, and for that reason they oppressed them : but the more they were oppressed so much the more were they encreased and multiplyed. But David exalting him- Reg.2.cap.vla felfe beyond measure, and glorying in the number of his people, would needs have them counted, to knowe their iust number: whereby he prouoked God to anger against him, there beeing found in Israel eight hundred thousand strong men, able to beare armes and weapons, and in Iuda fine hundred thousand fighting men.

In the Romane history, when wee obferue the encreasing of that Common- ling of the Ro wealth from time to time: it was by the mane Comnumber of the Cittizens, which were downe registred by the Cenfors . Kings are Kings of men, and not of Lands. For no account is made of a King, by possesfing a large length of vaine lands, barren, walte, vnprofitable, and vnpeopled; nor for his multitude of high Mountains, de-

L.Cum ratio D.

23.Bifhopprickes, & 14 Archoyshop-

other Inhabitants but fauage beafts. But rather, by commanding infinite numbers of people, that acknowledge him as their The true dige nity of a king

The plentic of copicamon he ancient Gaules, and the new.

Chap. 1.

Sourraigne, willingly obey him, and reuerently respect him for their own good. This is that which maketh his ftate affirred, and maketh him dreadfull to neighbours or enemies. Moreouer, owhat great numbers of people Gaule hath produced at all times, veelds pronfes (whileient, as well by the troopes heeretofore parting thence, the Countreybeing vncapeable to containe them; as also others, that have gone and filled all other regions on the earth, aswel by Colonies andiplantations in their coming thither, as fome other Countries still inhabited by them, whereof we shall haue cause to speake more particularlie This great number of men'is the cause and goodly Cities, as alwayes it hath bin, The number and at this day more then ever . Iofephus or Cities wh far inuaded Gaule, there were then aboue ded Gaule.

The Author

modestie, in peaking of the City of Paris.

twelve hundred. Among them that are now at this present, there are three hunz dred; wherein there are three and thirtie Byfhops Sees, and fourteene Metropolitane or Archbyshopprickes; besides, an infinite number of other, a great company whereof are so potent in extendure & dignity, as they equall the verie capitall Citties of strange Nations, sparing here (befide) to speake of their strength.

that France is adorned with fo many faire

maketh mention, that at the time as Ca-

I forbeare also a matter remarkable in France, that there hath beene (and some fay now is) feauen and twentie thoufand Burroughes or Townes, being Parishes, and having Steeples, and amongst them Villages so great and wealthy, as may compare with good Townes in other Countries, not bringing within the Lifts of this account, all the Hamlets, Graunges, and particular houses, because they are innumerable.

Heere give me leave to fit downe and rest, as not knowing how to bee filent, or in what manner to speake, of the great, puissant, and opulent Cittie of Paris, which hath exalted her head about all other of the world. To forget it, I cannot; to speak worthily, or to describe and prefent it to the life indeede, it is impossible fere rockes, wild Forrests, which have no , for me. It is the feat of the Kings of Frace; it is the principall residence of their Maiefties: it is the dwelling of their Soneraigne Iustice: which is there rendred & distributed by the Court of Parliament, being called the Court of Pecres; from whence all other are derived; the same is the Chamber of Accompts or of the Exchequer, and the arrivall for all the revennewes of the Realme what focuer.

Of the Country of France.

Also in this Citie, is that most ancient Vniuerfity, fo famoufly renowned tho. rough the world. All there is admirable, vniuerficie either in regard of the greatnesse and ex- Paris. tent, or for the infinit ftructure of fo many buildings, both publike and particular : but aboue all, the prease and throngs of people wherewith it is inhabited, and which commeth thither from all parts fo that the like can hardly be spoken of in any place else. Beside, it is seconded with aboundance of all things, that can be defired for happinesse of life.

Paris est en scauour vne Grece feconde, Vne Rome en grandeur Paris on peut nomer. Vne Afie en vichesse on le peut estimer, En rares nouveautez one Afrique (econde.

Paris in knowledge may be Greece , as wife; A Rome for greatnes, Paris may be nam'd: An Asia in wealth it may be found: A second Affricke, for rare nouelties.

Heereto might be added the grace of The fituation the fituation, the fairest and fittest that is of the City to be seene: for being as pleasing and de-lectable, as commodious and profitable. In the very middeft of rich Prouinces, enuironed with many Nauigable rivers that come and render their riches to Seine: passing thorow the middle of the Cittie. to gather and bring thither commodities from all the Countryes round about, coming from, and into an Ayre fo good & healthfull. In which respect, though hauing fuch mightie accesse of people : it is leffe subject to contagious diseases, then other the greatest Citties are ordinarily afflicted withall. And when any do happen the effects are much more moderate, of far leffe danger and contagion, then is to be seene in other places.

It is reported of the Citty of Constantinople, that from three yeeres to 3. yeeres, (without tayle) it is most strangely tor-

Hiff.Mifed, lib.

pleafant and

greatly dispeople it: to the no meane amazement of many that have made deep fearch into the cause. So it is in like man-

*A Spring

neere to Ha-

A morall Al

ufion of the

Frenchmen

are truly bor

warriors.

nople, and in the Graund Caire.

ner affirmed by divers, that the Grand Cairois enery yeare afflicted with the Pestilence. Vndoubtedly, when I confider with my felfe, that great Lougs, vulgarly called Chlouis, stayed his opinion, and made Paris the feat of his kingdome, leauing many other Cities which were then far greater: and that before him, the Em.

Lib. t , Delle caufe della grandzza delle Cita.

peror Julian (being come into France) e-Stablished there his ordinary aboade, and called it Amiable or Louely. I am compelled to admire therein, their great Wifedome and understanding, in choosing a place so commodious, so pleasant and anfwerable; although then it feemed to bee one of the least Citties of Gaul. It would require an entire volumne to speak thereof, and yet none will credit what it is, except they have the happinesse to see it : & the fight may much better fatisfye them. then all that can be fayde or written of it. Therefore I wil end this discourse, adding onely that which is fayde by Botero Parigi, Città che di popolo, dy di abbondanza d'ogni cofa, auanza di granlunga tutte l'altre di Christianita. Paris a City that in people and abundance of all things, goeth farre beyond all the rest of Christendome.

CHAP. II.

Of the People dwelling in this fruitfull Land of France, what they were being ancient ly Gaules, and afterwards Frenchmen: their Manhood, Valour, and Successefull Fortunes.

He proceedhis fecond dif-

Land it felfe in all things: let vs now fee (according vnto our intended purpose) what the people have beene and are in their condition. Such as have heard of Strage plague mented with a pestilence, which doeth foextraordinary selicity, perhappes may in Constant or early dispense it to the no meane as a quickly condemne mee. by alledoing it as amatter impossible : that in a Region so pleasant, gracefull, and abounding in all kindes of goodneffe: the inhabitants can any way be vertuous, valiant, and couragious. Great Cyrus was of that Opinion, The wifedon when his victorious Perfians laboured to of Cyrus a. change their Countrey, in regard it was gainst the folfharpe, rough, rude, and Mountainous; ers, for one of them which they had conquered, that was more pleafant; confishing of goodly plaines, and even Champaigne grounds. Which hee would not fuffer them to doe, but shewed them, that like vnto feeds and plants, fo are the lines of men made conformeable vnto those Regions where they abide. As if hee would haue fayd, that in a fair & fortunate count trey, the mindes of men alter, and quickly become effeminate.

Hanniball, not onely inuincible bythe Armies of the Romaines, but also by fo many victories ouer them bringing them neerer to their viter ruine, then ever they were or had bene : was ouerthrowne and confounded, by the foft and eafefull delights of Capua. The sweets of his winter foiourning there, did eneruate and weaken both him and all his army, which the rough Alpes and freezing fnowes, had formerly made vnconquerable. Euen fo we may fay, and very truely, that the high Alexanders and mighty courage of Alexander; was formed by the luxury, fumptuousnes, and diffolutions among the Persians. It is a matter verie frequent and ordinarie, that the Provinces of greatest happinesse, become a prey to others, in beeing voluntarily destitute of couragious men, For, a more warlike people coming to inuade them, after they have continued there for some time: they forget their former generolity, as if they were wholly changed, and with the very avre of the countrey, had deriued to themselues the verie same Nature. Sicily hath alwaies bin the butte and ayme of all warlike people, Sicily the aim as of the Grecians, the Carthagenians, and of warlikens the Romaines, and of many other beside. tions.

Also in Egypt, which is one of the ve- The fruitfulrie choisest, fertilest, and richest Nati- nes of Egypt, ons of the worlde: the most martiall peo- and hurrin ple that come to ftay there, doe after enter into fuch a lazie condition, that they stand in neede of chasing thence, even as

2. Booke

Hanniball vi Corious against the Re maines, loft al his honor at

Zozim in vit, Imp.P alentin

Of the People of France

they did to the first inhabitants. The like great and frequent changes have bin often obserued, as well in ancient as more moderne times; and namely, vnder the Mahometane Calvifes. It is reported of the Wel * Salmacis in Caria (which is one of the regions of Watolia) that fuch as drinke the water thereof; of men, doe immediately become women. But the truth is, according to the relation of Vitrunius, that it is a place fo goodly, pleafant, and where the people live in such delights and diffolutions; that the courages of men, after they have lived there any long while, becommeth altogither effemmate or womanith which gave such a subject to the Fable, as if they had beene changed into women, and receyued into another Nature. Some haue attributed (to the felfefame reason) the vnmanlinesse of the latter Grecian Emperors of Constantinople. through the ouer-much delicacie of the Countrev.

All this is contrary in France, for amidft fuch a great affluence, and even among a world of pleafures; generous fpirits are borne, truly warriors, and of men excelling in all vertues it yeeldeth withall the like abundance of every other thing yea euen among those Frenchmen as suffer themselves to be led into all pleasures, in peaceful & undisturbed times; yet are they not thereby foftned a jotte, neyther loofe any of their courage, valour, and addresse to actions of Armes. But euen, as if they were meerely borne thereto, nor euer learned any other kinde of exercise : beeing euermore readie to gine ouer all pleasures, to follow the warres, march to fights, and throw themselves first into the mouth of danger. This is their true exercife, their naturall inclination, which they knowe not how to forget or give ouer: and whenfoeuer they delight in hunting, yet are they more readie to returne to Armes.

The like naturall disposition is described by Zozimus, of the Emperor Valentinian, who although hee was a man given to much pleasure, and addicted himselfe thereto at due seasons : vet notwithstanding, when occasion required, he was alwayes readie to vndertake Armes, whereof as patiently hee endured all the paines. toiles, and incommodities, euen asif hee had taken a great pleasure and felicitie therein. Such a man was Demetring King. of Macedon among the Grecians, and Marcus Antonius among the Romaines, and Scipio gives very little ground vnto them in martial disposition. Cafar also, speaking of his Army (composed for the most part of Gaules) saide: That his Saul diers, how focuer they were perfumed, yet they left not (for all that) to fight valiantly and couragiously. Milites (nos etiam onquentatos, bene pugnare. The like account yvas heretofore made, that the Belgians were the most hardiest and valiant amongst the Gaules; because, they would permit no Merchandizes to bee brought into theyr Countrey, that any way might ferue to fosten the naturall inclination of Men. But he knew well enough foon after, that valiancie and Militarie vertue was fo natural, voto them that were borne and norished under the ayre of Gaul, as it could not by any meanes bee quailed in them, or feparated from them, by the plentie of any thing feruing vnto voluptuous

Some haue held opinion, that the rigour and aufterity of the Persian youths, and their continual manner of living in mongeft the fo ftricte a kinde : prooued to be the onely cause, that they were much better men dred at amonofwarre, then their neighbours. And geft the Lafurely, the Lacedemonians differed not from this coniecture of them, when they faide: They made no great meruaile why they went so boldly to warre, and expofed themselues vnto death; considering, what finall delight and contentment they tooke in life, in regard of the haifh and rigorous discipline of their lawes. But the Gentlemen of France, although they be borne and bred delicately, they domener fayle in generous courage: Armes, and verie hard Trauailes in Warre, are vnto them as sportes and pastimes; and, to speake inftly, they are born thereto, without neede of fo much cunning and inftruction, as others have to exercise and prepare them.

Those people that Fraunce hath bred The Romains and veelded, have alwayes bene redoubtable for their Armes, to all other Nati- hoode of the ons of the world. The Romaines well their coit. felte it, when they were hewed in peeces by the Gaules, on the day at Allia. And afterward, when (vpon their fodaine coming on them) they were constrained Sucton in Inlie.

Men aldict

Cap.67.

The frice forme of life young men of cedemonians.

teltihe man-

The errour the Romane historians.

Polyb.bift.in l.

Suet in vit.Ti-

berio cap.3.

In Lib. I.

Cicero in Oral

which yet was not fufficient to faue them till (in the end)they were gladde to pay a great quantity of golde and filner to the Gauls for their ransom. And although their historians labour to make men beleeue . that Camillus the Dictator exterminated the greater part of the Gaules, & brought back againe that which was given for ranfome; yet notwithstanding, Polybius a very ancient Author, neere enough to those times, well experienced in the history, & being an excellent writer beside, hee declareth the contrary, faying: The Gaules went away victorious, having granted peace to the Romanes, by meanes of a great fumme of gold, which they brought thence with the. Which is moreover confirmed by Suetonius, who fayeth; One of the house of the Neroes, Ancestors to the Emperor Tiberius, having made warre on the Gaules called Senones, descending from them that surprized Rome: brought backe the gold of the ransom which had bin payed them, or that it was not recovered by Camillus, as the rumour ranne. And beside, those very men that sacked Rome returning thorow Italy, made alliance with the elder Dionifius, the Tyrant of Siracusa, and aided him with theyr troopes against the Locrians and Crotones his enemics, as it is auouched by Trogus Pompeius. 🖈 If the loffe of the Gauls had bin so notable, as Linius hath described it: they could not have peopled a greater country in Italy, & made war so often on the Romans, as at divers times they did . Wee had enough to do (faith Cicero) to resist them er to defend our selves being continually asfailed by them. And our Captaines and Commanders in war perpetually accounted that it was fitter to defend of beare off their blowes in such a war, then to set on or assault them. It is wel known of great Marius, when he opposed himselfe against the effortes and stratagems of the Gaules, that hee neuer durst attempt to enter their Lands. They to whome all other war was easie, lost all their fencing trickes against the Gaules. Hitherto (faith Salust) the Romans evermore conceived that all things gave way, and were to be yoaked by their vertue. But only against the Gaules when they were to fight with the not for honour and glory, but for defence of

Nor did they tearme this warre but tu-

to hide themselues in their Capitoll; the \ mult & insurrection, because that by the promptitude of the Frech, in vling arms; they had not the leifure to beate their drum to raife or call their companies; but fuddenly, without any choife, tooke fuch for foldiers as could carry Armes. They An Exchechad a particular Exchequer or Treasurie quer in Rome by it felfe, destined to be imployed onely onely for the about the charges of the Gaulish warres, whenfoeuer they hapned: as being one of the greatest & most extreame necessities belonging to their City. And though in all other wars some stood exempted from going to them, as fuch as had front their time in war being called Veteranes, or ancient feruitors; yet (in fuch a cafe) they much needs march without any regard at all of fuch exemption. Vt oportet bello Gal- Cicciopro Fa lico vt maiorū iura more[ģ, pra[cribunt, nemo est Ciuis Romanus qui sibi vella excusatione vtendum putet. According to the Lawes of our Ancestors (laith Cicero) and according unto ordinary custome, there is not any Romane Citizen shat must think onely to propound any exemption, when there happeneth any war with the French.

Nav that which is more, the Romaines quitted and gaue them freely the honour In Coniurat.Co. belonging to actions of arms. Cato volun-tarily confesses in Saluft, That the Greet-belli Gallos Reans had gone beyond the Romans in eloquece, manos ante fuand the Gauls them, in the glory of war. And this is the reason, why they alwaies stood in feare of the country that brought forth a people naturally warriors, & in fo great a number. When they named that Prouince, they would fay, It was too fearefull cicer.de proninfor the Romaines. Neuer was any speech of cits Confalant. the least ftir or tumult in Gaule, but they acco timenda. would all tremble. And thereupon, immediately after the death of great Cafar the Dictator, it was propounded to the Senate to giue ouer Gaule, leauing it to full liberty, although it was formerly conquered and affired. These are the very words of Appian: There was (faith hee) made a In lib.3. de Bil. Decree and arrest to the Senate, concerning Gaule: all the Senators being poffeffed with feare. A little lower hee faith : Some amongst them were of the minde, That they must needes give over, and for fake all the whole Countrey and People, leaving them at libertie, and to enfranchise them from sub= section unto the Empire. So much they stood in feare and dread of the Neighbourhoode of

And

Chap.2.

munierat ante nstura, non fine lerum immanitati multitudini eue patuisset, nunquam bec vrbs summo Imperio domici

lum 4: sedem

ting them-

*A Citic of

by the Ro-maines,

Called alfo

ta,and Citeior Gallia,

now named Lombardie.

orabuisset.

And Cicero faith; Nature bath munited | Italy with a rampier of Alpes, not without divine providence. For if that entrace (fayth he) were laid open to the fury and multitude alique dis no numine: nam & of the Gaules: euer would the Citty of Rome, numine: nam je the seate and dwelling place of the Empyre, onely Soueraigne of the worlde, bee besied-· It is not to the Romains only that the French haue made knowne their vnconquerable corage, and to feel the ftrength of dreadles armes, what Canton? what quarter of the world is there, where they haue not planted their conquering Enfigns ? The Celts (for fo the Grecians termed the French) are found to dwell in most parts of the vniuerse, as having lefte France, in regard of their ouer-great multitude, to seeke new countries elsewhere, which they conquered with their fwords, and became Maftersofthem. They are difperfed ouer al Europe, and hardly is there any quarter, where they have not left the markes of their victories, and records of their name. Spaine is full of fuch Colonies, whose names would bee considered out of divers countries, according as ancient Geographers have stiled them. And first to speake of the "Celtiberians, who are People of the proofe sufficient to our purpose, and accounted to be the most valiant people in France,plan-Spaine. No doubt, as they stil retaine the felues by the name, fo doe they (in like manner) keepe Ruer Iberus the vertue and valour of the Gaules their Ancestors, that came to inhabite there. and also to make a Plantation of theyr

Some fourethousand of those Celtiberians, defended most couragiously the city of Numantia, and fustained the fiege Celtiberia in for fourteene years, against the Effortes Spain, befiedof many Roman armies, yea, and of theyr ged 14 yeares very cheefest Captaines, vntill such time as they were inforced to fend their Scipio thither. In the end, the fo long befiedged Celtiberians, chose rather to burn themselues and their Citty together, then to yeeld to their implacable Enemies, vnto whom they left nothing to adorne theyr triumph, but their very name onely.

At this very day, Portugal and Gallizia do carry the names of their first founders the Gaules. They entred also vpon a great | by the same Trogus, and heere you may Trog. Pomp. List part of Italy, comprehending (in the same | reade his owne verie Words. Gallorum Gallia Togarespect) the name of Gallia Cifalpina, wher they first entred in the reigne of Tarquini-

Of the People of France. us Prifew, King of the Romaines, about the year of the world, MMM, CCC.LX. There they founded Millam, & afterward Brescia Verona and other Cities: this cour ragious, hardy, and warlike Nation (I vie the very wordes of Trogue) the checkeft next to Hercules, and justly deferuing to 100,24. be called immortal, they (I fav) ouerwent the tharpnesse and bitternes of the Alps, ynpalsible for the fnowes & colds, They are found to dwell thorowall Germanie, where are the Boemes and Carnes , in Pannonia or Austria, and Hongaria; in Tran-Cyluania, Valachia, and Albania; in Thrace, the Celtes. where they have reigned a fufficient legth of time. This may be the reason, why som of our Ancients named Europe, Celtica, Ptolomliba. Kelriav, because that the most part of the Quadripert. inhabitants, called themselnes Celtes ot Gauls, as is plainly auouched.

For the fame respect, an ancient Geographer faide, that the Northerne part of the earth, was inhabited by the Scithians, the Eastern by the Indians, the Southerne by the Æthyopians; and the Occidentall The foure or Western by the Celts or Gaules:each the world, and place and part of the world taking first de- how inhabinomination, according to the excellency ted. of the people that were the principal and most renowned in eueric part. The verie fame Gaules have made all Macedon and Greece to tremble, and have folde peace to all other people, who came to buy it, before they were any way affailed, as affrighted with the name of the Gauls onely. Trooms reporteth it in this manner: Tantus terror Gallici nominis erat, Ut ettam Trog Pomp. La Reacs non lacelliti. vltro pacem ingenti pecunia mercarentur. Such was (faith he) the terrour of the Frenchmens name, that Kings neuer beeing encountred, came of them-selues, and by theyr owne meere motion, to purchase their peace with great summes of Money.

All the leffer Afia were as flenderly able The leffer A. to refift them. for it hath bin, wholly fub- fia fubdued dued by them. In like manner, fuch ac- by the Frech count was made of their man-hoode, that there hapned not any war in the East, but they were the forwardest partakers therein. It was euermore to them, that afflicted Princes fled for fuccour, as it is declared ea Tempestata tanta facunditatis inuentus fuit, vt Asiam omnem velut examme

Trog.Pemp.in

Many Lands

In fine Bel. Iug ~ [que ad nostra mani sic babue virtuti fue pro-ue esse că Gal-lis pro falute ,no pro gloria certa- their lines.

Mellobands The affection of the Empe-tor Gratian to the Gauls for his own good

Gallo-Greci fo named of the valiant

Gaules, that declared their valour there.

fine mercenario Gallorum exercitu vila bella gesseriut, neg, puls regno ad alios quam ad Gallos confugerint. Tantus terror Gallici nominis siue armorum inuicta felicitas erat, ut aliter ned, Masestatem suam tutam, neque amissam recuperare se posse, sine Gallica virtute arbitrarentur. Denig, in auxilium à Bythinia Rege inuocati, regnum cumeo parta victoria diuiserunt, eamá, regionem Gallo-Graciam cognominauer unt. There was then fuch an aboundance of youthfull French, that they filled Asia, even as if it had bin swarms of Bees : in fuch fort, that the Kings of those quarters of the East, attempted not any war, wherein they had not Frenchmen under pay. And if they chaced to be expulsed from their estates, they had no other recourse, but to throwe themselves into the armes of the French. Such was the terror of the Frenchmens Name, or the inuincible felicity of their Armes; that Kings knew not howe to prouide, nor conserue their Maiestie, or to recouer it againe being lost, without the valor of the French. To conclude, being called by the King of Bithinia, to lend him fuccour, after they had parted away with victory; they also parted or divided his kingdom with the, and surnamed the Countrey Gallo-Gracia, or French-Greece.

Those verie Gaules whereof we now fpeake, were come away from Thrace, where they (before) had established a Kingdome: which continued afterward, till the time of Clyarus their last king, according to the report of Polybius . The people of Thrace, of Bizantium, and of Cherrone (us, being then their tributaries. All this is affirmed and maintained of the Nowe, as concerning fuch as haue caried the name of Frenchmen or Gauls, ancient standers, and dwellers in partes neerer hand, as well on this side, as beyond the Rheine: they long time made warre with the Romanes, pursuing them with their Armies, and ouer-labouring them by fo many courfes; that at length they expulsed them quite from amongst the Gaules. They were first observed to appeare vnder that name of French-The valour of men, in the time of the Emperor Galien; the Gaules in and from thence onward, the Romane the Emperor Galiens time. Histories are copious, how manie times they passed and repassed the Rheine, to make warre with the Romaines, vvhen

aliquo implerent : Deni g, neg, Reges Orientis | they thought to teare away Gaule out of their hands. Panegyricall Authors, exalting those Emperors with praises to heauen, that had in any encounter (how filly focuer) got any advantage against the French, do yet make it sufficiently known what great account was made of this people and generous Nation, yea, more then of any other, as being most fearefull to them, and to whome (for this cause) they veelded themselves tributaries.

Vnder the Emperor Claudius the I I. they inuaded Holland, and other neighbo- of Holland, ring Countries, and made thence theyr other placeso courfes and wonted expeditions, as well by Land as Seasyntill they extended their power fo onward, that they entred fomewhat farre into Spaine. Zozimus and the Rhetorician Eumentus, doe report a cer= taine voyage of theirs, and a chance well deferuing memory. The Emperor Probus hauing made warre on them, and wonne the voper-hand in some encounter; hee tooke divers of them prisoners, which he led away into Afia. Soon after, they made an escape. & being imbarked in certaine final veffels, which they found fitting for The fucceffe their purpose: they ouer-ran and rauaged of the Gauks the coasts of Greece, and the Isles of the prisoners into Ionian sea, besieging and taking Siracufa, and afterward passing the straites of Gebaltare, returned home againe into theyr owne country. The verie greatest affairs, that euer the Romanes had with Straungers, were alwaies against the Gaules, or French, who neuer would fuffer them to liue in quiet.

In the end, the Emperors well vnderflood their valour, and made vie thereof The warre of to their service. Constantine the Great, in | Constantine the warre hee made against Licinius: had great store of them in his Armie under his, and fer great store of them in his Armie, vnder wice of the French to him aonduct of a verie valiant French Captaine, named Bonicius, whose manhood is well noted by Ammianus Marcellinus. At the same time, partly by conquest, partly by conniuence of the Emperours; they extended the Gaules name very farre, and did fo great feruices to the Romains, that they filled whole Legions of them. Especially, under the Emperors Conftans, Constantius, Valens and Valentinian, as is to be feene in Ammianus Marcellinus, Zozimus, and divers other Historians of those

Afterwards, Gratian, having fworne

out a Mellobands, Prince of the French, beside many other Captaines and Soldiers: by whose meanes he assured his owne estate, and carried away great Victories from the Germanes, whereof thirty thoufand were flaine in the field . This Prince did so highly esteeme of them as they ferued him in all occasions : yea, they filled up the Army which he gaue to Theadofine to make quietnesse in the East; and to repulfe thence the Gothes. Moreover, he favoured and advanced them to great charges of his Court, and even (as if (in respect of them) he began to grow in distafte with his Romanes; fo prooued it (partly) to be the coule of death. It is most plaine and apparant, that for the space of about 200 yeares, they were the threshing Flaile, the terror & amazement of the Romane Empire; whertofto vie the fame words that Claudian fayth of them) They folde peace and quietnesse at the prizes of money, and tooke great recompences to cease their fights. The Epithets which the Authors of those times gauethem, were the names of Terrible, dreadfull, and redoubted Warriors as being the onely nation, that (more then all other elfe could do) amated, bruifed, yea, & veterly brake in peeces the Romane forces.

After that this Monarchy of the French in Gaule was fully established: they could then vndertake other great enterptizes & voyages. How many times did they passe in Armes, both into Asia and Affrica, to chase thence the Infidels, Sarazens, and Turkes, to deliuer the Holy land, and the Christians that were there in their seruitude? There hath not bene any expedition in Christendome, wherein they have not bene heads and conducters, yea euen the better part it felfe. Many times have they fuccoured & re-established the Emperors of Constantinople. And in the end. to revenge the death of Isacius Angelus, (whom they had reseated som short time before) cruelly murdred by the Tyrant Mur fuffle: they took in their affault) that great City, where they commanded (almost) fourehundred yeares. They made themselues so knowne thoroughout the East and South parts, and have so lively engrauen there the memorie of theyr name that (even to this day) all the Orientals terme the inhabitants of Europe, more first alliance with them, could find | by the word Franks, as thinking that name to be vniuerfall. As in like manner the Arabians and the Abyffines, who call Europe by the name of Frankia.

Ozorius, the learned bythop of Sylad reporteth, that the Indians when the Poitugals make warre against them: they call them by no other name then Francki 1 38 confessing naturally, that since the brane expeditions of the French : against the Turkes and Sarazins, this name (full of admiration among those people) had so foread it felfe thoroughout all Affa and Affrica, that alwayes afterward, the fame was to be attributed ento all the Western people, marine a managrafing to man mak

But to deliberate no longer at this time on all the expeditions of waire and vovages attempted by the French for the chri-Itian name, for the defence of religion & the Church, against Moores, Sarazins, Turkes, and other Mahometanes, in diuers Countries of the world and the glo- the French rious and goodly actions thereby them of the Holy performed: Can any thing bee tearned Land. more hardy, valiant and denerous; then that which they did for conquest of the holy Land? Vindertaking for long a Voyage, croffing fo many Countries & with fuch flore of difficulties: Nothing could dant or turne them , nothing feemed impossible to them, beeing altogether inflamed with a zealous & diuine defire. They exposed themselves to allkindes of dangers, inconvenience of places and paffages, famine, thirst, pestilence and warre: meerly prodigal of their lines, for religious zeale. In whatfocuer we read concerning antiquity, yea cuen of the fabulous ages, neuer are to be found fuch deedes of proweffe, as they did in that conqueft.

Let Godfrey of Bullen fer himfelf before you, with his gallant French troopes, tra- Guliel Tyrim in uerfing al Germany & Hungaria, & arining De Belle Sarre at Constantinoples there is affailed bydiners ambuscadoes on the Emperors behalf, yet ouercoming them al, euen as if it were against his wil to preuaile. Then looke on him passing the straits of the Hellebont, be fleging the city of Nicea, one of the strongest in all the East, munited with al things fustained and defended by a people resolued, as wel for affaults given, as fallies repulsed, or by any cunning to bee circumuented. During this fiedge, the Army of Soliman, confishing of 500000.men, Claudian his words of the Gaules.

6700 t

The paffage of the Gaules into Afia and

The Gaules gaue great Emperors of Confrantino-

Nicet Chonia

The ancient Gaules inhabiting on ey-Rheine.

Polyb.in lib.4.

A brave an-

wernfihe

French to A lexander the

Nicea taken by the Fréchi againft Soli-

man and his

Turkes.

comming expressely to rayle the siedge. is ouercom, broken, and cut in pecces, & the City furprized in the end.

A battell glud by the French in Caramania

A worthy ftr tagem of Godtrey of Bullen, in an vrgent necel

The sharpe & jeuere beliedging of the City of Antioche by God-frey of Bullen

After this, behold another battel giuen in Gicilia or Caramania, by thirty thousand French onely, against an Armie of tyvo hundred thousand Turkes and Mahomecanes, led by the fame Soliman, and the Sultane of Persia. These two hundred thousand Turkes, having (at theyr first charge from farre off) couered all the Christian Army with a cloud of Arrows; and making a counterfet flew of flight, fenr another hower of thafts in the fame maner, and then a third, they not having any meanes to joyne or come nere them. So that there was fearfely one man amonothe Christians, but was wounded with sheir steeled Arrowes, some in the armes, others in the legges, and many in diners parts of their bodies, notwithstanding the helpe of their Targets: euenas if we famithedike Army of the Romanes led by M. Craffin against the Parthians'. Vntill fuch times a Godfrey refolued to make apretonce of flight, and (indeed) retyred; as if he had bene no longer able to endure them Which moued the Turkes to purfue after them out of order, as if they were altogether overthrown and diffiartned. But when the French behelde them within their compasse, that they might deale with them by handy stroakes: all wounded as they were, they give fuch a couragious charge voon the Infidels, that they foiled and vanquished the whole Armyi So proceeding on, the Citties of Tharfus and of Edella, and all the other betweene them, were likewise taken. ... Antioche besiedged by a long siedge, the besiegers being incessantly assayled, as well with the villuing foorth of an Army that was within as by the ambuscadoes of many troopes at liberty abroad, befides cutting off victuals, and all other commodities from them. In these extremities they were also oppressed with conragious difeafes, famine, and other kindes of necessities and miseries, every thing being opposite and contrary to them, and the Emperor of Constantinople, doing his very vttermost to endamage them. All which notwithstanding, they lost not a

iot of courage, or became any way at all disheartned in this theyr enterprize, although to make their mifery much more:

there came also on them another dreadfull Army, containing all the powers of the East, and appearing impossible to bee refisted. But the Christians conducted by The happie Godfrey of Bullen, ouer-spent and wearled the Child as they were, having given the battaile, ouercame the great Armies, and drone them to flight.

Her paffe an infinire number of particular charges, encounters, combates, fights, ambushes, surprizes and assaults, to come to the fiedge of Ierusalem, where they metwith all resistance possible, both by force and cunning : which neverthelesse (in the ende) after infinite famous actions of Armes, was wonne by lively force, and in a generall affault. All this was done in lefte then two yeares, from of Bullen the yeare 1097 to the yeare 1099 .- when Ierusalem was wonne and in the Moneth of July: Then was Godfrey chosen King of Ierufalem who yet refused the crowne of gold, faying; It fitted not him to weare that pompe where his Lord and Sautor wore one of tharpe pricking thornes. Euery one of the other Princes& French Lords, which made up the body of the Army were also rewards of for partakers in the chiefe poffession of Cit- great deferties and Prouinces thereabout; & there uing. was not a man among them, but was capable of holding the Empire of the world, and by farre greater reason, then is reported of Alexanders Captaines. And this may justly be the cause (in part) that the fuccesse was not so great as it might haue bene: they beeing able to haue paffed on, fo farre as the extremest parts of the East to conquer all the Country and plant their Enfignes on the banks of the Indian Seas. In briefe, there was neuer any thing comparable thereto, neither for religious piety, nor manhood in Armes.

It was also a matter admirable in Godfrey, that being Souldier; he should bee culpable of fo great prouidence, inflice, and moderation of spirit. It is reported of him, that although he was King, yet he cloathed himfelfe, and lived fo fimply, as the very meanest Souldier about him So that you a certain day divers Lords of the Country being come vnto him, to present him with gifts, but (to speak truly) to espie and take knowledge of what they could: being brought before him, they found him fitting on a Sacke ful of straw, & vpon the ground. After they had well

the Christias

Chap.1.

The admirable humility

and modera

tion of God-frey of Buller

& his answer

to certaine

edicario s de bes

Strabo in Lib. 2

observed it, beeing driven to no meane | courage; there remaineth very sufficient admiration, they made enquiry; how fo proofes in antiquity. Some haue attrigreat a Prince, beeing a Lord of fuch matchleffe merit. hatting shaken all the East, and seized on the very greatest kingdome, should be feated to poorely, without any pompe, no rich hangings, nor any Guard about him to make him dreadfull to fuch as should some neere him. But he demanding what they had faide, replied thus: It is the belt feate for a mortall man and by good right the earth foodld Suffer and ferne to beare him for a time . in regard that (afterward) it must be the house for his body to dwelling Which when the Lords had heard; admiring his answer. humility and wifedonie, they returned thenco Taying This is (indeede) fuch a man, as bught to rule oner all thefe Regions; and to him (in equity of defert) it belonveth. to command over all other people Whatfo-'euer. เดาละยาเปลาการเทีย

Thus the kingdome of Jeru (alem was How long the for the space of about sources & held the king tenne yeares by the French, who (in the dome of te meane while) made warre voon the Infidels; being succoured from time to time by the Kings of France: among whom. Lewesthe leuenth called the young, and Philip Augustus went thither in person. But afterward , this kingdome was conquered by Saladine, first Souldan of Egipt : And then the French, vnder conduct of their Kings, ceasied not alwayes to attempt voyages and expeditions, as shall be declared in place more conucnient. Heere I forbeare to speake of the great

warres and goodly exploits in Armes; of the French against the Allemaignes,

Hunnes, Danes, Normans, Saxons, Sar-razins, Gothes, Lombards, and English, very ftrange, and rather blame worthy, which are to be discoursed hecreafter. There is not any other people, that The apparant fingularity of haue caused themselves more to bee spothe French, a- ken of, to foread their renowne fo far, and enterprise matters more great, goodly, & all occasions, whereby they might bee redifficult, then they have done. Other Naouted timorous. tions never could come neere them, no, not the Spaniards, of whom Strabb Veeldeth testimony, that they never did or ever durst vndertake great occasions. They beeing (faith he)exercifed and inured to slender exploits, or lowe or bale enterprises; as some light ambuscadoes, courses, and brigandages or theeueries. But concerning the valour of the French, and the greatnesse of their buted this quality to them, to be voyd of feare, and boldly to cast themselves into the midft of dangers. Strabo reporteth Strabo in lib. 2. that certaine Frenchmen beeing brought to Alexander the Great; when hee demanded of them, what it was they most feared : made this answer : Nothing at all, except the Heavens (bould fall on our heads. Signifying by this manly reply, that feare had no power to freeze their blood, or vflitted any place in their warlike foules.

Great. In like manner, they nouel knew what it was to flye, or turne their backs in the most dangerous fights; fieither to give fo much as the least inch of ground: as the Emperour Leo declareth in his Art Mill- Leo ImpinTee. tury or Tacticks, and Chalcondilus the Chalcona in Grecian, in his Turkish History. Both of Hist. Turk, these Authors do affirme, that they hold this the heaviest sinne, which can happen to be committed by them. The selfesame is also anouched by Aelianus, who delinereth thefe very words. Among all men, they Aclian. De var that most affect dangers, and most valiantly Hift.lib.11. expose their lines to perilles : Londerstand them to be the Gaules. The whole Subject of their Songs is of such men of vertue, as died valiantly in foughten battels. Crowned they combate, and adorned with Markes & Trophees of their victories: as well to honor the worthy act's which they have done, as to ferue for memory to posterity, according to the manner of the Grecians. But above all, flight is held fo dishonest and shameful among them,

that very many times, they will not get them

gone; or make escape away from a tottering

house though it be ready to fall uppon them.

or all on a flame, and themfelues in immediare danger to be burned. This may feenie then commendable: yet it is done in no other regard, but only to fhew what their

refolution hath alwaies bene, as shunning

In like manner, the Emperor Iulian, fpeaking of his followning among the Gaules, faieth; That it was with the most warlike, and onely couragious people of all other Nations. Paufanias declareth, that although they were wounded quite thorough their bodies with the fword, and even cleft in twaine with axes sharpe slices; yet notwithstanding, not a jote of

Paulan Phoci

Vnconquera-ble resolution in the French and what opi nion the Greekes had of them-

Arift.in Ethio

No diftincti-

on of yeares

among the

Gautes from marching in

Marcelin İ.34

One that

Armes

their courage abated. And when they wer \ shot through with darts and arrowes, fo long as any respite of life remained, or the very last gaspe or breathing; they fought stil manfully, and made a massacre among their enemies: yea, there were many among them that fnatched the Arrowes & Darts out of their own wounds. and thor them backe against the Greeks, or being neerer hand, flew them with the fame Arrowes and Darts, even by meere stabs. Whereat the Greekes being amazed, to behold fuch wilfulnesse in fight, fuch courage, consempt of death, & prodigality of life; not knowing whereto they should attribute it, nor (to speake truely) what to fay of it, (beeing wont to commend no men but themselues) they faide: This goes quite beyond the nature of men. .

In the same case and respect, Aristotle, imagining that fuch firength and valiancy was without example, and aboue the capacity of any humane spirit: attributed this viuacite of foule, to a kinde of furious and naturall infensibility, not fearfull of any thing; neither earthquakes, nor the roughest stormes or tempelts : Euen like (faieth hee) as it is reported of the Celts or Gaules. Warre was their true trade & exercife, there was not a man among them, that would excuse himselfe from marching to the field, without any distinction of ages. The olde man, wearied and spent as he was went to it as cheerefully, as hee that farre greater force and vigor. A yong lad, euen in the first floure of his time, found therein no difficulty at all; he made offer of his youthfull members freely, to be hardened by colds, and inured to trauailes, alwayes disposed and ready to support most difficult occasions, yea, and the very dreadfullest accidents of wat. In briefe, as it is confirmed by Martellinus, a faithfull Author, a Souldier or mã fit for the warre, who hath lived any time among them; shall neuer be there mette withall, as among the Romanes: where there were forme, that to fhun the warres, wold cut off some member of their owne, especially their thumbs , Whom we termed (faith he) in derision and mockery, * Murci. To men of fuch base and seruile condition, as will thus cut off a joynt, to make themselues vncapable of being Soldiers, may bee referred that injurious French difgrace, Poltron, và police trunco : A knaue bath his thumbe cut off.

This generofity and greatnesse of courage, is likewife familiar among the wome The spright of France, whereof we have testimony in the fame Author Ammianus Marcellinus, who writeth thus. If a man of Gaule enter into a quarrell, his wife being with him, there is not any troupe of strangers able to refift or Stand against their strength. Especially, when the women are moved or enflamed with choller , firetching fourth their brawns armes, oriping their strong knit hands todether great and white as fnow : fo that both with feet & fifts they discharge blowes as liberally, as if they wer stones from flings, or quantels from Croffebowes. And as they are thus excelling in magnanimity, fo are they as complete in other perfections: but cheefely in providence, discretion, and good advice.

VVe reade, that before the Gaules paffed into Italy, a strong fedition happened to grow among them, which dispersed it selfe into a civil warre. But the women,euen as the two Armies were ready to Plut in De meete each other; threw themselves into the middest betweene them, and questioning the reason of their difference, drew them to fo great equity, and fulneffe of content on cyther fide; that they begat admirable and reciprocall love and kindnesse among them, not onely betweene the Townes and Citties, but also in the houses neighbouring together. Wherup-pon, after that time, they continued all confultations of their affaires (as well concerning warre as peace) with theyr wives, and pacified all quarrels and differences with their neighbors and kindred, onely by their meanes. And therefore, in the composition which they made with Hanniball, when he passed by the Gaules, The compose they concluded (among other Articles) in this manner. That if it fo came to passe tweene Han that if the Gaules pretended any wrong miball & the to be done them by the Carthegenians the Carthagenian Captaines and Gouernours (which were in Spaine) should be the Iudges thereof. Contrariwife, if the Carthagenians could alleadge, that the Gaules had offered them any injury; the women of Gaule should bee Judges therein. And therfore Plutarke had great reason, to ranke those Ladves in number. among them reputed to be vertuous wo-

The Gaules called their wines to con-Cultations and ouncels.

Kingdomes in India where

Noble men

admit not mariage.

Of Bertrand

du Guesclin.

and his noble

Behold what generous words of a woman can

Chap.2. The Gaules ever called them to their | Barre of his body, against the hottest incouncels and confultations, as well for warre as peace, because they knew their naturall disposition to be such; as not a woman among them, would feeke any to foften and weaken (willingly)the boldeft or most couragious enterprize her husband could vndertake. And this may be the cause, why the ancient Romane Soldiers would not be maried: As now at this day there are certaine kingdomes of the Indiaes, where the Noble-men will by no meanes admit marriage. But the Gaules knew well enough, that this fexe were fo farre off, from any way hindring their Martiall defignes; that they would by no meanes permit the very least inclination to negligence or cowardife; they rather ferued as sharpe spurres to their vertue, to excite, encourage, and animate them more and more. To this purpose, I may not omit a notable example though not of the ancient Gaulish women; but of a French Lady, as vet recent and fresh in memory. Bertrand du Guesclin had beene alwayes a most valiant Knight, and one highly renowned in all Histories . After he had performed nesse, in winning honour by Armes; and many worthy enterprizes, euer to his fame and honour: he maried with a beautifull Lady, named Tiphania, descended of a noble family. After which mariage, he growing to leave, and discontinue his former exercise of Armes; as he sate difcourfing with his Lady, the gently began to blame and reproue him declaring that (before their mariage) hee followed the warres, wherein hee had atchieued the cheefest reputation. And that it neyther futed with the nature, nor duty of a true Gentleman, to lofe the least repute of honour wonne before, by ouer-much affecting a new made choise. As for mee (quoth face) who ought to faine by the bright radiance of your fame, I shall account my felfe too low dejected, if you giue ouer a course so well begun, and lose your spirits in doating loue, wer it to one more worthy then my felfe.

These words did so neerely touch the Knight, that hee began againe to follow Armes, wherein he carried himselfe so valiantly, that they did well and worthily attribute it to him, to stand as a stout Rampier for France, in the very sharpest times of warre, and euermore made a meere uations of the English. By vertue of his valour. King Charles the fift, having reconquered most part of those territories, which had bene infulted on in the reignes of the precedent Kings: alwayes helde head against that valuent Edward, surnamed the Blacke Prince, and Prince of Wales, and disappointed all his hopes. It was he that re-established Henry the II. King of Castille, in his kingdome, in defpight of all the Armies and English forces. Hee was also made Constable of France by King Charles the fift, who helde him in such endeared affection for his valour, that having bestowed great gifts on him in his life time; after his death, hee did him fo much honour, as to let him be buried at S. Denis, at the feete of the same Toombe, which this King had prepared there for himfelfe.

Whatfocuer is heere fet downe, con- All the Ladies cerning this honourable Lady Tiphania, of France are hath beene, and is as familar to all the La- equall to Tidies of France, who partake in the felfefame affection; and couer rather to enflame, the freeze their husbands forwardthe like they are (in all respects) to their children. For whofoeuer will but aduitedly well confider, on the admirable generosity, and greatnesse of courage in the people of Gaule; they will make no meruaile at all, of those bolde words yied by the braue Souldier Vercingetorix. If could (quothhee) write together all the In Cafin som French: I should compose such an Army of lib.s. men, as if the whole world did consure, and bend all force against them, they were not able to withit and them. Take it as a vaunt or brauado who will. The very proofe of their fights and conquests, made but by some part of their people, may yeeld sufficient testimony, that if the words spoken by Vercingetorix had bene put in exccution; they would have prooued true, and the fame effect must needes have followed.

And to speake truely, if we conferre them with other Nations, we shall apparantly perceive, that the French have gon beyond all in Military vertue. So many expeditions, and yet info farre remote Countries, so many warres attempted, & fortunately finished; so many foughten battels; and so many actions of Genero-

The honora-ble actions of Bertrand du cutteth off his thumb,be cause he will

Chap.2.

breeding and

The negligence of the

Spaniards in

tilling their grounds.lca-

uing them to be done by their willer.

alwayes flood in feare of the to the world. The Greeks and the Romanes (albeit their sworne enemies) doe render but too true testimonies thereof: not speaking (in the like tearmes) of any other people whatfoeuer. But especially the Romanes, who never feared any Nation fo much as they whom they acknow ledged to be farall to their City, and the greatnesse thereof. So that when the Gaules of Italy, but particularly those on the hither fide of the Alpes, made but a countenance of remoting themselues; or designed any enterprise: they were immediately possessed with terror, and in a continuall apprehension, omitting no needfull provision of all things, even as if their City were to be befiedged againe, or halfe furprized. Polybius faith. They verily perswaded themselves, that they should never become Masters of Italy; no, nor conferue their owne lands sufficiently; so long as they had the Gaules to be their neighbors. They felt againe the force of the warlike Gaules in the fecond Punicke warre.

when Hanniball went to encounter them through Gaule, and made alliance with the Gaules, whose valor was well enough

knowne vnto him: and hee conducted them into Italy, where they did him great service against the Romanes. And notain that great day at Cannas, there were flaine 4000. Gaules in the fielde on the Carthagenian fide: That were (faith he)

the principall instruments of the victory, wonne by their blood for the Carthagenians, which was the most deadly day for the Ro-

manes, next to that of Allia, where the Gauls ouercame as many. I forbeare to speake of all the other encounters, battailes, and most signale warres, which this couragi-ous Nation had against the Romanes, for the space of about two hundred yeares.

It is easily discerned (euen out of their ownereports)how many times the Gauls had the vpper hand of them, and what difinal feares and amazements they have put them to. Alfo, where they have no-fity have made them fufficiently knowne

Punick warre

Polyb, in lib.2.

Hadleagued with the Gaules, & le them into bly doth Polybius remember them, when Polyb, in lib. 4.

The Gaules had war with the Romane aboue 200. VEATER.

ted downe any conquering of the Gauls, it may be well observed, that it was compaffed onely by some stratagem, deceit or cunning, wherby (according to their own cuning, argue the least part faying)they brought all their purposes to

In a word, after that the Gaules of Italy were emptied of men(by continual wars) and brought into Subjection, Polybius reporteth. That there was the end of the Gauls war, the like wherof was never heard or feen, be it for courage boldnesse, and resolution in Souldiers ; be st for greatnes of fights ; be it for numbers of flaine men, or multitudes of their troupes. Further he proceedeth on in the accidents of their wars, by way of giuing some encouragement to weake mindes against the dreadfull attempts of the Gaules : Who made foizure (faith he) on the Greeks not only before, but also in my time. Of any other nation, he findethnone but the Grecians & the Romans, that can deliuer any such true testimony of them: which rendreth faith fufficiently on their fide v (among al other people) they neuer could be fellowed. Albeit Cicero in his cicarere PE time, speaking of the Spaniards and the tio Hilpani m French) (aith: That the Spaniards exceeded dine Galli. in number but the Gaules or French in valiancy. Wherby is enidently feene, that in the comparison of these two Nations, he giueth the honour to the French, attributing to the other nothing but number. in Iraly. That great Captaine passed then

And yet me-thinkes it is strange to be eredited, that the Spaniards should exceed the French in multitude of men, cofidering, that Spaine (as hath bin fpoken heererofore) is described to be but badly inhabited, even by ancient Geographers, habiting of and them more moderne: whereas contrariwife, that France is so filled with me, and fo greatly inhabited, as it is wonderfull to behold. But it may bee, that the mighty numbers of the Gaules were not (as then) knowne, Gaule beeing not subiected to the Romanes, as Spaine was, which they held almost wholy. For whofocuer shall consider, what Armies the Gaules gathered from time to time, to make warre vpon the Romans, according to the recital of Cafar himselfe: wil judge 141. Caf in can that Spaine, nor any other Province of Lib.7.

Europe, could not be fo fully furnished. Moreouer, it would not be much differing from our purpose, if wee should set The Romans downe, what troups of ftrangers the Ro- had more manes then kept at their pay: & namely, inercinary Soldiers from that they had more mercenary Soldiers Spain: then out of Spaine, then euer they could get from France from France. Because those people beeing more barbarous, lesse civilized, & polished with good cariage; gaue the-

Polyb , whi figns

Learned ftudies among the Gaules. Concerning

Cicero pro M.

Subject to the fpoiles of

All Countries

der at randome among the Mountaines, there to pilfer and rob from one another, or elfe to ferue as mercinaries, partly to the Carthagenians, and partly to the Romanes, after they had once got footing there. On the contrary, the Gaules (of whom no question was at any time made to be all warriors, excelling in valour and greatnesse of courage) in regard that they were much civilized, neuer lived after fo base a manner. And although they had fuch plenty of warlike people, yet wanted they no meanes of freeing themselues from vdleneffe, when their grounds were to be tilled and husbanded or other Arts and Trades vsed, necessary for the life of man, as well in times of greatest turbulence, as feafons of more fecurity. For no where can it bee read of them, as it is of the Spaniards, that they left their Lands barren because they would not till them. but referred them wholly to their wines to take that paines, who both before and after their times of childing, were feigne so to toyle and movie themselues.

Other of our Gaules imployed themselues in the studie of Letters, and exercifes of Religion, and contemplation in celestiall matters: witnesse so many skilfull Druides, and fuch befide as followed after them, renowned for their Learning through all the parts of the world. So that the Gaules dwelling beyond Gaule, ferued but very flenderly to the Romans, vntill fuch time as they had conquered Gaule: then they found the fufficiency of their assistance, and acknowledged not only their vertue and valiancy, but also their infinite number of warriors. And this was the reason, why Cicero, speaking afterward to Cafar, concerning his victories in Gaule, faid: That hee had ouercome Nations, inumerable in multitudes.

Now, to speake of all other Countries, there is hardly any one of them, but it hath bene as a prey to strangers. Italy, fometime the Conquereffe of many people, with her Rome, calling her-felfe, cheefe Lady of the world : was shee not reach. (for long time) exposed to the rauages, irruptions and pillages of the Vuifigothes, Herules, Gerpides, Ostrogothes, and Lombards: who intirely tacked and rent her in peeces (each after other) and droue the people out of their dwellings? Spaine

felues to no other exercifes, but to wan- | became inuaded in the fame manner, and | Spaine in the afterward was cantonned by the Vandales, Alanes, and Swenes: yet were they also expulsed (in following time) by the Vuiligothes, who established their owne abiding there. Next to them.came the ofrogothes, who held the Country powerfully to long, till the Sarrazines ouercomming them, were viurpingly possessed of well neere all Spaine. Allemaigne, or Ger-many, was not it likewise made subject to or Germany the inuations of those people which dwelt more Northerly, who at length odher. uerthrew the whole Romane Empire? I fay nothing of some other quarters of the world, where the like fortune hath many times happened: yet this is most certaine. that thorough all the Prouinces of the earth, there have bene changes of people, and of frequent Colonies.

But to speake more particularly of Spaine, at the first it was filled with people of the French Nation, as along the River * Anas or Ana, now called Guadiana in * The River Castille, so farte as the Promontory Artabrum, or Cabo de finis terra, in Gallicia in deth Granada Portugall. Alfo the Celtiberians in Castille, from Portugal by the testimony of Strabo Ptolomie Pom- Strabo in Lib.4. ponius Mela, Pliny and Appian. Fro whence it ensueth, that some ancient Geographers as Ephorus and others, have comprized them vnder France. But be it howfocuer, Spaine hath continually beene taken held and commanded by ftrangers : Divers ftrage as by the Ionians, Lydians, Thracians, Rho- Nations com dians, Phrygians, Cypriots, Phanicians, Egip ... Spaine. tians, Phocenfes, and Carthagenians, accor- value Tading as their owne Historians have ac- rapha. knowledged. Since then, by the Vandales, Alanes, and Sweues, that inhabited there for a long time: and afterward by the Vuifigothes and Ostrogothes . At laft. wholly filled with Moores and Sarragins who held it in possession about senen hundred yeares. And there they remaine vet to this day (according to fome VVri- Moores and ters) in the Mountaines of Andalouzid, Sarrazine yet called Alpuxarras, whether the Armies Spaine of Conquerours could neuer come or Heereby may bee gathered, that they, are a mingled people, and composed of The Spanifo many feuerall Nations, as have dwelt compounded there in the countries from time to time. people, As their very language it felfe (euen the best pollished and most frequent) suffici-

A Rhetori-

andria, reach-

Marcel, in l.15.

Marfeilles in France, built by the Phocenies.

Marcel:in 1,15

The Bretons expulled by the English

Cornel, Tacitus in vita Iul.Agricola.

Colonies plá red in Armorica or Bre-ently theweth, confifteth (for the most) part) of the Gothish and Arabick. It would aske an infinite and wearifome labour, to make fearch for all the mutations that have ther happened. But France is a Country, which hath least bene that way ill entreated : as having kept herfelfe more pure entire, and neate from rauage, and incursions of so great numbers of

* Timagenes, an ancient Greeke Author cian of Alex- that flourished in the time of Augustus, cited by Ammianus Marcellinus, faicth; That according to the opinion of his Nation, the Gaules were Autocthones, that is to fay, Originaries and borne in and of the felfefame Country. Declaring thereby, that they were not come or derined of any strangers Colonies; which the Athenians al-To attributed to bee a matter of great honour. I know well, how it may be obie-Eted to me, that Marfeilles was builded and inhabited by the Phocenfes ! yet there was none other but that onely Colonie, beside that which is reported of the children of valiant Hercules, which he had by the women of France, and who there comanded for sometime, as is testified by ancient Monuments and Anciquities of the Gaules, which Ammianus Marcellinus faith, That he himfelfe had feene in Gaule.

As concerning the Britannians or Bretons, who being expulsed out of England by the English Saxons: they withdrew themselves into Bretaigne, the called Armorica. I hold, agreeing with the judgement of many learnedmen, that they being ancient Pillars of the French. parting from the firme land of the Gauls, to dwell in the Isle which was before it: comming backe afterward, to refuge thefelues in France; did but re-establish their owne ancient Country, and returne to their true orginall. Naturall reason, for the neighbourhood both of the one and other, doth apparantly shew it selfe. The fame is confirmed by Cornelius Tacitus, & by the common opinion that then was, as also by the similitude and likenes, both in faces and manners of the inhabitants. And beside, there is to bee seene in the Geographicall description of that Island (according to Ptolomy) the names of many Gaulish people, who undoubtedly had planted Colonies there. Such were the Belgiaus, the Parisians, the Atrebatians, & the Cornabians.

As for the French, they were no strangers, they entred among the Gaules, not of the French as enemies, but as friends and brethren among the to the Gaules: to deliuer them from the Gaules. tyranny of the Romanes and Gothes, who had expulsed them, and were (in that maner) restored to their former freedome. and fo the Gaules and French became but one people, as shall heereaster more plainly be declared.

The Gothes, having fo long time kept The Gother their reuels in Spaine; to speake truely, came among the Gauler came also among the Gaules, but yet for a very thort while:nor was there any Enfigne or remarkable valor in those Goths. making comparison of them with the French. It is faid, that their property was to be fearefull, and foone put to flight: fo reporteth S. Gregory Florentius, Arch- S. Greg. Floren Bishop of Tours, who lived somewhat in lib. 2. cap. 27. neere to those times. And Saluianus, that eloquent Priest of Marseilles, acknowledged the Gothes to be the most feeble and syaginm iran flothfull, among the generous Nations Francoum is of the North parts. When they were in current, of Gaule, and stood to encounter with the French: they durst nottarry, or make a vindiam legals ny head against them. The Kings Mero- tradidit, End l. ueus, Chlouis, and Childebert, beheld them feeundam ento passe ouer the Pyrenean Mountains, settleding Giller yet they affailed and ouercame them in battaile, euen in Spaine, hard by Toledo, 6.67. their capitall abiding. The Burguignons and Germanes, who had inuaded fome finall parcels of France, were foone cut off, and quite extermined.

So the French and Gaules, conferued themselves within their own limits, without having any stragers mingled among them. And as (in former times) they filled the world with their Colonies or troops of people, so did they continually the like afterward: hauing againe peopled Germany and Italy, vnder the Emperour Charles the Great, and his successors. So that it is not without good reason, that fee of Ger-(at this instant) the very greatest houses many derived of Germany, derive their original from Herman.com. the French : as is declared by Hermanus, de Nutar in E Count of Nuear, in an Epiftle which hee pift.ad car.s. fent to the Emperor Charles the 5.on the the Annales of Pepin and Charlemaigne.

True it is that the Gaules have beene ouertaken by the Romans: but what people knew how to relift them; confidering their admirable order, and exact Military discipline? Tofephus, very fitly to this purpose, attributeth thereto all their great conquests and large extendure of the Romane Empire. So that after he hath de-monitrated the forme of their Campe. their ordinary exercises for Armes, and a fumonary observation of all their behauiour, he concludeth. All thefe being well considered, wee neede make no doubt to say: that the possessions was much lesse then the

Moreouer, of the Westerne Prouin-

The words of Iosephus con-cerning the possessors. Adding withall, that hee extended To farre in declaring all this not as any commendation to the Romane's power; but rather as a comfort to the conquered;

France last conquered by the Romans.

None of the

Romanscoule

Prance, but

onquest of

Chap.2.

ces. France was the last conquered by them whatfocuer is elfe faide to the contrary. Whereas (on the other fide) Spaine came among the first into their hands, in the time of the wars against the Carthagenians. France was that Country, that longest of all resisted, and against which (to speake no more then truth) their inuincible Armies, yea, they that were victorious throughout the whole world; became meerely edgeleffe and blunted, as not able to beare off their blowes. All other Romane Captains veterly loft their labour. Cafar onely excepted. Which is no meane honor to the Gaules, to yeeld themselues under the yoke of so great a Prince: who is acknowledged to be the most wife and perfect Captaine that ever was. And yet for all that, France was not was honour enough to their generous conquered at the first onset, neyther made mindes, to carry Cafar fafely away from furrender of her spoyles, without sweate danger, when they had him in their powand blood. That great Commander in er and could have flaine him , Satis eft prowarre, tooke intollerable paines, and trastraffe. The Grammarian Servius citeth uelled for the space of ten yeares conti- this example out of the Ephemerides or nually, with all the power and strength of the Romanes, which then held the more part of the wide world. And vet (euen then) he had not prenailed neither, if hee the other fide) experimented the dulnes of the Easterne people, in the war which he had against * Pharnaces, King of Ponhad not ferued his turne with Frenchmen France it felf. themfelues, & made a conquest of France, and in a time by France. Divisions and partialities. tus Saide. Most happy was Pompey that he when they were at diuisiwhich were then on foot among them (an had nothing to do with the resolute French. ordinary and fatall ruine to the most pobut with the faint-harted men of the East or tent kingdomes) called him thether wher got the furname of Great at fo cheape a Marfinding all to bee divided in divers facti- ket. In briefe, the Gauls were never joyned ons, ciuill warre kindled among them, alto the Romane Empire, by any power in lied with many, and fortefied with their the Romanes, but thorough their owne troopes, as namely them of Authun and proper forces: as a great Captaine ipea-

others it was fo much the more easier to be furprized by him, and in such an opportunity of aduantage.

All which notwithanding it is an admirable matter, and well worth the obsernation that in the relistance made against him by people to difformed & perplexed: vet in ten whole yeares, the Gaules fought thirty ranged battailes, wherein, according to the account made by Appia, according to the account made by Appia, Appianinhiba, there were flaine well neere eleuen hundred thousand able fighting men. And in Celicis. befide himfelfe teftifieth in his Memories fufficiently, with what manner of people they had to deal: w they likewife could no way performe, without receiving great loffes as there he feareth not to confesse.

faith: He pacified them, after many great lof-fes on either fide sustained in tenyears war.

And as touching his owne person, it is recorded that in a certain encounter he was relected (notwithstanding all his Greatneffe and goodly Armour) by a Gaule, who having remounted him vppon his cos Cafar in the ancient Gaulish language which is as much to fay, as I et Cafar paffe,

& this was the reason of his safe patsage.

Wherein they worthily declared, that it

If wee had but his Ephemerides, or particular Iournall booke, we should see Diary booke other matters of his owne confession; of all actions confidering, that Ammianus Marcellinus, in Armes. speaking of the conquest of the Gaules, owne horfe, bare him away through all the ued by a Gaul throngs. But there came another Gaule, ingreat exwho brauely cryed to his companion, Ce- tremity.

lournals of Cafar, which wee cannot come by in these dayes. In like manner, In home versum Cafar knowing them wel, and having (on ab eque.

keth in Tacitus. Vere reputantibus Gal- Hiflor.Lib.4.

liam (uifmet viribus concidisse. And 2. Booke de Bel.Indai.

De Bello Galico lib.8.in fi.

much conque

red, as louing

ly leagued.

Gaule could endure no apparant de

One winters kindneffe in Cæfar wonne more then all his Legions could do in ten yeares

And as King Agrippa declareth in Iolephus. It was not through want of courage or any dull neglect, that they were ouercome: confidering the Romanes them felues faid, it was fourescore yeares, before they could fasten hold in one (mall Meridionall or Southerly Province of Gaule. In afterward fought So much against Casar: But rather it was by the frugall managing of their owne felicity, wherein they pacified both destiny and fortune: whereby they plainly faw that the Romanes got the upper hand rather by force the otherwife, and (in a word) by the divine permission or providence. Nav. and that which is much more, after fo long warre, against fuch power, and fo great a Captaine, yea, and after fo many loffes: yet notwithstanding, Gaule fell not into the Romans hands, as being subjected, but rather as allied, and in farre better fashion then all the other Prouinces.

He that continued Calars Commentaries, faith: That while hee wintered in Belgia he had a carefull eye onely to maintain the people in amity without giving to any one either will or occasion, to rife or take themselves to Armes. For that which hee most of all defired, was, that you his departing, there might happen no occasions to flay him: or if hee had cause to bring an Army thither againe, yet that he should not bee troubled with any long warre, whereunto Gaule gaue listening with very good attention, when the faw her selse out of apparant danger. Wherfore, causing the Citties to come before him, with his best respect, and greatest honour he embraced them, and gave very goodly gifts to the principall and most apparant persons: not imposing on the restany charges, or extraordinary subsidies, wherby he contained them in peace, and the better disposition to obedience throughout all Gaule. And so by this cunning, Gaule (at last) gaue place, and became mildely quieted. For the affability of Cafar, and the courtefies he extended towards them, did more conquer them in one winter, then all his Forces, Legions and Armies could doe in ten

Ouer and beside, the titles of Alliances, of Peace, and of friendly conference, are so frequent in the Romane Authors, ener where they speake of Gaule; that it plainly testifieth on her behalfe, that shee was not conquered by Armes, but rather | Gaule not left at louely liberty, by friendly parlances and confederations. Which Ammianus Marcellinus himfelfe also confirmeth, for he faith, that Cafar; After many losses on bellimities the one fide of other fust ained during a war clades succession of ten yeares continuance: in the ende (by e- iunxil etens ternallpactions and agreements) ioyned the Gaules to the Romane Society and alliance. We fee also that they left some people in Gaule wholly free as (among other) the men of Auuergne; who termed themselves as Noble as the Romans, and called them their brethren; the men of Authun, the Plin. lib. Marfellians; them of I ionnois, Forests, and cap. 19.

the round neighbouring Countries.
Now as concerning Sublidies & Contributions, a Romane Gouernour, named Cerealis, (heweth plainly in Tacitus : That | Corn.Tacitis fuch tribute was but for maintenance of the Hiflor lib 4 Legions, and for preferuation of peace in the Provinces: which could not bee continued without Armes nor Armes without wealth. As for the rest (faith hee, speaking to the Gaules all is in common with vs. oftentimes. you give command to our legions your selves also governe in the Provinces, as others do in our Empire. By the felfe-fame reason, that which bound them most to duty was the entire amity of the Romanes to them. Cafar made a great number of their Cittizens Romanes, and August us in like man. Gaulish Cite ner though in more sparing fashion, with zens Romans. some restriction fro vulgarizing so great an honour of the City or Bourgeship of the Romanes. Afterward, the Emperour Claudius gaue the right of Senatours to Idem. Hiffm.in the principall of the Gaulish Lords. And lib.1. in the ende, Galba, for the fignale fernices which the Gaules had done to him and the Romane Empire against Nero: hee made them all Cittizens, without excep-

The like was neuer done in, or for Spain. where there were but some Colonies & had the fame right, and no more then to any other Prouince of the Empire: who obtained that priviledge, but by generall Linorbe Ro Edict of the Emperour Antonius Caracal- Statu bomin la. Nor was it without great reason, that they made fuch great account of this Province: confidering, what great aduantages at gaue vnto them. For, were it in respect of treasure, rich Gaule the Gaules furnished them with more revenues; then (by vfing the common manner of courtefie.

Chap.2.

Velleyus Pater

Soldiers for the wars out

Cæfar made

Plut,in vit. Pompey was aftonished at he bread Gaules fed on Czlars victo-

ic against

Pompey,a(-cribed to the

The Gaules lent to fuccor M.Craffus against the Plut in M. Crasse.

The admirayong Craffus

faving) all the rest of their Empire, as it is | were befide , who for faking their owne. recorded by Vellevus Paterculus, Were it for leaving vndaunted Souldiers, and for fuch as they mustered from thence : therin confided the maine ftrength of al their troopes. And that Cefar knew well cnough; and published it sufficiently abroad, as having made choise of them aboue all other, and (by their meanes only) came to possesse the Empire of the whole world. For ouer and befide what hath formerly beene faid concerning the wealthy treasures of France: the valiancy of the Gaules holdeth the most eminent place by whose courage he was especially and principally ferued, to gaine that greatnesse, whereunto hee had so long time aspired.

great Pampey, ought to bee attributed to the valour & warlike vertue of the Gauls. And if he had not bin furnished with such men, valiant and ftrong, not onely againft the enemy but also to endure famine, and all other kindes of necessities, even to the feeding on bread made of graffe & roots; he had bin loft in his hopes, and veterly defeated by the long & lingering delaies of his enemy. This was that which most of all amazed Pompey, who gaue expresse charge, that fuch bread should not bee scene in his Campa for feare of disheartning his Souldiers, or driving them into detellation of their paines, whe they confidered, the sharpe extremities suffered by their enemies, with whom they dealt fo cruelly, that they left them nothing to

The victory which he wonne against feed on but even as brutish beasts. Moreover, Cafar having fent a small number of Gaules, for great fuccour to M. Crassus against the Parthians these were the men, who (in that most vnhappy day for the Romans) performed most strange exploits of Armes, and shook the enemies victory very sharply. These were the men, in whom young Crassus reposed most confidence, as being the warriours, with whom he performed admirable actions of prowesse. For they received (with their bare hands) the sharpe points of the Parthians Pikes, and cloting with them body to body, threw them to the ground among their horses feetes where they lay all along stretched out, vnable to relecue themselves, onely through the maffiy weight of their Armor. Many ther

horfes, crept under the bellies of the belonging to their chemies to pierce & flab them with the points of their Swords: which caufing the horfes to bound aloft, by extremity of the anguith they felte. trampled under their feete both their masters & enemies together, and to fell dead without any rescue.

The fame Cafar, prepared a complete Cafars Legi-Legion of Gaulith Souldiers, which hee on of Gaules tearmed by called the Larke, and added it to the Ro- him the Lark mane Legions, and whereto (at length) Sucionia Inlia-he gaue the honour of Bourgeship. Nay, Suctionia Inliaand that is much more, hee not knowing 649.76.6 80. how he might worthily enough recompencethe Gaules: made a great number of them Senatours, to the great discontenting of many Romanes. And as for the Cauallery or horsemen, wherin the Gauls euermore excelled all other Nations in warre: Cafar had (almost) none other. but continually ready at his feruice ten thousand Gaulish horse, according as it Appian. De Bel. is declared by Appian. These were the cimiblib.2. French horse, that affoorded so many great fernices to Cafar: as well in Spaine against Affrinius & Petreius, Lieutenants to Pompey; as afterward in Affrica AN her it is faid, that in one fight, lefte, therethir, faute Bello, Ci ty Gaules in number, fought against two milis. thousand Mauritanians, and droug them

Nere to Munda in Spaine, Cafar fought against the sonnes of Pompey, where all had bin veterly loft for him heeknew not any meanes for helpe or redreffe : till the Cafar fuces any meanes for neape of readers all and ready the Gaulet on a was the cause, that the day (beeing desperate day before reputed for desperate) came folic to Cafars His fuceffors found themselves alwayes well ferued, both with ordinary horse and soote of the Gaules . Tacitus maketh mention of a Cohort or Regimet Corn. Tacit. of the Sicambrians, which did many re- in Annal.4. markable deeds; in the warre against the Thracian Mountaincors : Who were (faith he) prompt and hardy against dangers, and no lesse dreadfull far their Armes and order of marching in buttaile aray. This I do the more willingly feste downe, because of those Gaulish Sicambrian Nation, the French are properly descended.

The Poet Claudian auoucherhacthat as De laudib Seother Prouinces furnished the Empereur Dat Gal-

1.31 ücibsi Since on H

Greece spoy-led & wastess by the Goth

The Ganles

hated to be commanded by d ffolute

Emperors.

warres. The same Author saith in another place, that vinder the Emperors Arcadius & Honorius, about the time of the infurrection and revolt of Gildon, a great Army composed (for the most part) of Gaules, was brought to fuccour Greece, then rauaged and spoyled by the Gothes: and they performed there such deeds of valour, as holpe the Country to recouer her right. So that being (for long time) wel entreated by the Romanes, partaking in the honours and administration of the Empire: it was no matter of maruaile, that their peace should be of so long cotinuance. One onely thing also was irkefori & burdenous to the, in regard wherwith some stirres and perturbations, the Gaules being naturally addicted to vertue and seuerity. And therefore they hated to be commanded by fuch Emperors as were negligent, diffolute, and quite giuen ouer to all vices : which made them despise subjection to such as was Tiberus, Nero, Domitian, Commodus, Heliogabilus, Galien, and other fuch like moniters of their names. They would endure none but vertuous Princes, and fuch Gouernors were the fittest men to confirme and keepe them continually in peace.

Tzebell.Pollifiæ In xxx. Tyrannis. De Posthu-

Popifius in

The Gaules were neuer truely fubic Emperors.

France alwayes fit them with men for the of, they troubled the Romane Empire

Heereupon was it that the Emperour Valerian, in a Letter of his faid; That hee had made a certaine man, named Posthumius Gouernor of Gaule. A man (faith he) well worthy of the Gaules Severity. A word sufficient to reject the objection of leuity. wherewith some would have reproched them. Another Author, writing the life of the Emperor Carus, confesseth: That to command the Gauls there needed an Emperour very constant and vertuous. So that being ynable to fuffer the detestable vices of many Romane Emperors, they departed (at every occasion) in this respect fro their obedience: whereby it may be inftly faid, that they continued alwayes free, and being not truely fubicated, gaue their feruice to no other Emperors, but fuch as themselues reputed worthy. Vntill such time. as youn the declination and fall of this great Empire, by the infatiable auarice of Romane Gouernors, and other insupportable charges: they altogether fell off from them, and gaue ayde to their compatriots the French, and so wholly did roote out the Romanes name.

But to examine a point (heeretofore handled) formewhat more particularly, it France not handled) iomewhat more particularly, is conqueredly cannot bee faide with any reason, that the Roman France was conquered by the Romanes before Spain before Spaine: neither that the Spaniards made any more relistance, or continued longer time from fubduing or fubication. For on the contrary, it appeareth, that the Carthagenians possessed themselves (in few yeares) of a great part of Spaine: euen at fuch time as the Romans fell likewife on it, and carried away their share without any difficulty. Witnes the treaty of peace, made betweene the Romans & Haldruball, chiefe Captaine for the Carthagenians, wherein it was couenanted, that the River Iberus, now called Ebura, should bee the bound of the Empire for these two people, and that the Saguntines, free people originally of Greece, who were between them both, should conferrus and a mile derate with the one and other.

After this, it is fufficiently knowne, that the Romanes had long time made warre against the Carthagenians in Spain, who gaue them there many valiant fights. During which while, no estate, or fewe, made mention off among the Spaniards; who food but as fpectators, in expectation of the yffue, to fee which of those two people should have command over them. This was at the beginning of the second Punicke warre, when the Scipioes (after The fecond they had spent eight yeares in war) were wherein the flaine by the Carthagenians. And after- Scipioes were ward, Great Scipio, Surnamed Affricanus, flaine, & the being fent thither, after divers encoun- great Scipio ters, and taking Townes from the Carthagenians:expulsed them wholy thence, & first of all made it a Romane Prouince, in the yeare of the Citie of Romes foundation CCCCXLIII. All the busines which he had with the Spaniards, was for fome revolts of particular people, whom he likewise as soone suppressed. So that very truely Ammianus Marcellinus hath Marcelin has faide: That all the Provinces of firme Land in Spaine, were the first conquered of made one Province by the Romanes.

All Historians agree together, reportingalfo, that in the yeare CCCCLII. two Pretors were created at Rome to gouerne Spaine, which was then divided in two parts, and termed Ctterior & Viterior, to wit, on this fide, and beyond Ebu-

Plut.in Catone Tit.Liuius in 3 1. Anti.de Vir. 1 Hull. c. 47

Atwhat time

he Romanes

first en:red inwabo in Lib.4

Chap.2.

Cato Senior

from the S

A defeatine kinde of making warre.

People of Boetica in Spaine.
* People beweene Gallicia and Porquallifie the revoltes of some people. When he had ouercome them, & made prouision, that no more rebellions might afterward happen : he fent his Letters & command to enery City in particular, to this effect, that they should cast down to the ground their wals and fortefications, & disposed the action so orderly, that his command was obeyed in the Cities, and he arrived ther at the fame time. So they being verily perswaded in each City, that this command firetched but to that place onely: veelded the more willingly, which otherwise they would not have done. Whereupon enfued, that in one day, all their Townes were difinantled, and their wals raced. In regard of which fuccesse, Cato made his vaunt; That hee had taken more Townes in Spaine, then there were daies.

Now, as concerning Gaul, the Romans

neuer had footing there, but in the yeare IVCXXII.& in Prouence only: about an hundred years after that Spaine was wholly conquered. Nor had they there but a very finall parcel, which was a nere neighbor to them: all Gaule being neuer made a Prouince, but by Cafar. By what likelihood of truth can it the be faid, that Spain was brought under the power of the Romane Empire, after France? Neuerthelesse, it is very true (as Strabo faith) that the difficulties which the Romans had in Spaine, to make it peaceable, grew onely through the reuolts of some particular Townes & people, and by the incursions of theeues gathered together in troopes, and these (of necessity) were to be chastifed.So, making war, not in groffe, or with a body of iust Armes, but by peeces and parcels, one after another, in imall courfes and furprizals: the Romans had more trouble to finde out then conquer them. Againe, although Spaine was held & comanded wholly by the Romanes, yet notwithstanding, there remained some people, dwelling in difficult, (harpe & mountainous places, as * Bafques,& * Astures: who afterward, in the time of Augustus, were wholly vanquished, and added to the rest of Spaine. As also (about the same time hauing conquerd Aquitain)he made it a Province as the three other of Gaul.

Moreover, there cannot bee found fo great a number of worthy Captaines, af-

ra. The elder Cato was also fent thither, to | foorded by any country, like vnto France. What famou As were among the ancient Bellouafians Captaines and Sigonafians, chiefe of the first & fur. France hath thest-off expeditions among the Gaules: yeelded from Brennus, that furprized Rome, and another Brennies, who afterward fubdued the most part of Europe and Afia Dumnorix, Diuiconus, Ambiorix, Dumnatius, Vercingetorix, Divitiacus, and many more recorded by Cafar. And to fet Kings afide, who care count all the Dukes, Earls, Barons, Lords & Gentlemen, that have excelled in the Art of wars. They are not to be numbred fuch as haue beene in later times, as God-frey of Bullen, king of Ierufalem: befide fo of Ierufalem many Princes and Lords, as went in the expeditions to the holy Land, the wars of Spaine and Affrica, against the Turkes, Moores, and Sarrazins at fundry times. The Marshall Bouciauant, in the daves of king Charls the fift, as also John de Saintre, knight; Bertrand du Guesclin, Constable of France; Enguerrand, Lord of Coucy; the Conte de Dunois cheefe of the famous house of Longueutle, the right hand and maine helpe to King Charles the '7. for expulsion of the bolde English. La Hire, Pothon de Xaintrailles, Tanneguy du Cha- One of the stell : Gaston de Foix, Duke of Nemours, best Soldiers one of the Ancestors to great K. Henry. hee, that after he had conquered a great part of Italy, bare away the renowned vi Grory of Rauenna, trampling (vnder his feete) all the forces of Spaine and Italy conjured against him. Odet de Foix Lord of Autrec: the Captain Bayard: the Lord of Chamont : Louis de la Trimouilles: Guillaume and Martin du Bellay; Charles de Bourbon, Constable of France; Frances de Bourbon, Duke of Anguyen; Charles and Timoleon de Colle of the house of Brillac.

> What shall we say of our Kings Meroneus, Chlouis, Childebert, Chlothaire, Charles Famous war-Martell, Pepin, Charles the Great, Hugh France. Capet, Loys le Gros, Phillip Augustus, S. Louys, Phillip the third, Phillip le Bell, Charles the fift, furnamed the wife, Lewes the twelfth, Frances the first, and the valiant Henry the fourth, Father to the King now reigning?

and an infinite number more, most honourably remembred by the best Histori-

On the contrary, Trogus, speaking of Spaine faith. In tanta feculorum ferie, nullus liba. illis Dux magnus, prater Viriatum fuit, that cuer France bred.

Trog.Pomp.in

Viriatus the hardy Lufita

Strabo in Lib.4.

iaui annos decem Romanos varia victoria fatiqauit. Adeo feris propiora quam hominibus ingenia funt Inlong fuccesse of ages they neuer had any chiefe Guide for warre befide Viriatus Lustanus, who laboured the Romanes for the Bace of ten yeares. So that (laieth he) they came neerer in nature to fauage beasts, then to men. And addeth further, that they followed fuch a Captaine, rather by occasion, then out of any judgement, hauing not made any election of Nor can there be defired a better, and more certaine testimony of valour, and generous nature in the French, then that which Strabo deliuereth in these words. All those people whom we terme Gaules, are Martiall couragious of ready (of the felues) to fight: And yet notwithst anding they are very simple, and no way wicked or euill inclined . Heereto he addeth. That they bring nothing to the fight but vertue and courage, without any craft, superchery, or brauing. And although (faith he) they are full of heat to fight; yet are they (for all that) capable to understand reason, and easie to bee per-[waded Willing to undertake the quarrell, for such as they see to be injuriously wronged and offended.

The Author of the Commentaries on the warre which Cafar made in Affrica. be it Hirtius, be it Oppius, or whofoeuer elfe, faith. That the Gaules were men openhearted and no way deceivers whing to fight by vertue and not by subtilty or fraud. The fame Strabo auoucheth in another place. faying: They are all warriors, and principally good Knights, for the best Cauallerie of the Romanes was composed of the Gaules. The Romanes alwayes made most especiall account of the Gaulish horsemen, for Cafar found himselfe to bee best served with them. And Cicero hearing that the gouernment of Transalpine Gaule should be given to M. Anthony; cryed out. Eft enim opinio decreturum aliquem M. Anton. Galliam vltimam quam Plauius obtinet: Quid hoc est aliud quam hosti arma largiri primum neruos belli pecuniam infinitam.Deinde equitatum quantum velit? Can any thing elfe be done heerein, but onely to thrust Armes into the hands of an enemy? First of all infinite summes of money, which are the nerues and finewes of warre: And next as many men well hor fed, as he wold have with him. This passage is sufficient, whereby to conceiue and certainly obserue, the wealthy treasures of France, and the opinion held thereof.

The exercises of these people, spake fully the matter of war fo much by them affected, alwaies louing a manly & cheerfull disposition of the body, and contemning groffe corpulency: fo that they condemned(in very great fines)all fuch yong men, whose bellies exceeded the ordinary measure of their girdles, according to the auouching of Strabo. Moreouer, the Strabo in French haue bene reputed to surpasse all other Nations, in these two noble and warlike exercises, hunting, and ryding Hunting and great horses. Hunting, which is nothing elfer riding great but a lively image of warre, and an assiduate horses. meditation thereof, as Xenophon faith. Egin- Xenophon. hard, the nursing-childe of Charles the In vita cardi Great, and his Secretary, writing his life, Magni. fpeaketh thus. Exercebatur af sidue equitado ac venando quod illi gentilitium erat auia vix vlla in terris natio inuentur qua in hac re Francis possit aquari. He exercised himselfe daily to hunting and to mount on horsebacke. Wherein (faith he) he rellished of the whole Nation. For there is not any people in all the world that can heerein surpasse, but

But before I can finish this discourse, concerning the warlike vertue of the French. I cannot forbeare to fay formewhat of that which they performed on the day of * Nicopolis against the Turkes: where a man may well fay, that a finall thynia. handfull of French Gentlemen, excelled (in prowesse) whatsoeuer wee reade in Histories of all the braue exploits in war that euer were done. Not Leonides of the Greekes at the Thermopyla, nor Caditius Froiffardin of the Romanes in Sicily, is any way wor- vol.4. thy comparison with them: the history followeth in this manner.

onely may endeuor to equall the French.

Charles the fixt reigning in France, the The history King of Hungaria fent Ambaffadors vn- the few relol to him entreting that fome fuccor might ued French be affoorded him, against Baiazeth & first, fought at N Emperor of the Turks, the most remark- copolis. able warrior that ener was of the house of the Ottomans. The King confenting thereto very gladly, many Lords & Gentlemen of France prepared themselues to be seene in this voyage, to the number of about a thousand or twelve hundred. A mong others, there was the Conte d'En. Constable of France; the Conte de la

The exercises

A City in B

500.hundred French Lances, fet vpon & their fucces fewe of the rench.

Chap.2.

The greatest

iuer in Eu

Arnoba in lyricum it

ecciueth 60

ther rivers

nto it, where

tis cald Ifter

and there is broadeft.

A far vnindifferent army of Turkes,to meddle with Marche; the Lord of Concy; the Lords of the verie midft of the bodie of the maine Trimouille, and John, Conte de Neuers, Son to the Duke of Burgongne, who was chief Commander. When they were joyned with the king of Hungariaes army having past the river * Danubius, they bare away rope,rifing out of the hill (in affault) the honor of divers Townes: and at length came to lay fiedge before Germany. In the City of Nicopolis.

VVhile the greater part of the Army befiedged the City, Enguerrand Lord of Caucy, taking with him fine hundred Lances: made vp into the Countrey, to feeke fome enemies that they might fight withall, and it is credibly reported, that (verienere vnto them) there was a troop of Turkes, of about twenty thousand in number. Now, albeit this multitude exceeded their finall companie beyond all measure : vet notwithstanding, they refolued to grapple with them. And hauing first of all drawne them beyond a wood, wherein there was an ambufcado; they came and charged them in the rere. The number) wearied with killing the Turks. fight was (for all that) cruell, and of long continuance, wherein the French, although they were so few against so great a number; yet they did performe wonders that day. So that in the end, the Turkes being disheartned, faintned extraordinarily, & more then fifteen thoufand lay flaine in the field.

Some thort while after, Baiazeth being come with a dreadfull Armie, confifling of more then three hundred thoufand fighting men : they aduanced themselues to deale with the enemies armie, being not worthy to be termed any number, because they were (in all)but seauen hundred, when they beganne the fight. The French small troops, made a goodly fight to behold, beeing all well armed and appointed, in rich glittering and gorgeous Armors, wanting no cost of golde and filuer, and brauely mounted on gallant horses, most sumptuously barbed & caparassoned; so that such as saw them, might well have tearmed them an Armie of Kings. But (beyond all the rest) vvith what force, ardour and courage they fought, although they were meerely thut vp, and round railed or ringed in with innumerable enemies. At the first onset, they wholly defeated and ouerthrew the auantgard and first battell of the Turke, army, where was Baiazeth himfelfe.

Many there were, who perfourning manhood demeer miracles of manhood in fight, cleft or hewed out their paffage thorough the French and ir prease, and very thickest of all the Turkith a time of most Army, compelling them to make them extreme trisll way, both for going on and returning backe again, even to two or three feuerall times of enforcement. And yet no one man among that poore fmall troop, who feeing the vnauoydable danger of death, was desirous to take hold on any aduantage, or flew fo much as a countenance of retiring, albeit their enemies (gladly) offered them many meanes. All resolued to loofe their lines, but yet the enemie bought them at very deere rate, filling the field with mountaines made of their dead bodies: even till fuch time as the fight having held a great deal of the day. the most part of the French lying dead on the ground, and the rest (avery small and pierced through with wounds, being ouerwhelmed with multitudes, were (in the end) taken prisoners. But it was generally held for truth that if the great body of the Hungarian army (beeing wellncere the number of an hundred thousad able men) had feconded them, or vfed ne- gence in the uer so little resistance, in making but a straight affine of the Hungarians, to faile the der the French from beeing fo enclosed/, men which (by any forwardnesse in redeeming them, fought for the and not fearefully fly away on heaps thorough the valley as the Hungarians most cowardly did, fuffering themselues to be murthred without any offer of fight) the day had remained to the Christians, And I dare speake it, that the power of the Turkes, which afterwards to great enlarged it selfe (meerely thorow our divisions) had then bin veterly ruined from the top to the bottome.

Then you plainely perceive, that of But few prifethis small troope of resolute Champions, ners taken of the greater part of them lay dead in the finall French comfield, having made a flaughter of infinite pany. enemies, more by fifty times then they were, and fought to their latest drop of bloode; but verie few of them remayned prisoners, But on the next day, Baiazeth going himself in person, to view the fielde ofbattell, and take acknowledgement beating them on still before them, even to of the dead, when he found that for one

Most admira-French, and in Great negli-

los bomines ape tos minime que instalioses, qui non per dolum dimicare con euerunt. Cicero in Philip.5.

In Lib. . Copias babebat

in Gallia bella

re confuetas, lo

cis can pellribus

& contra Gal-

Chap 2.

Words of more power

then weapons

Suet.in vit.Ca-

Beiazeth had but little ioy in his deare victory.defi ring to deale no more with the French.

Concerning

matters belo

ging to iustic

Agatbias in l. 1

The French great louers of justice.

Frenchman slaine, whole heapes and piles the person of a stranger, he is punnished of Turkes filled up the field, and all his Ar- with death: for the paine is augmented in my left in such pittiful condition, he tooke consideration of the stranger, to whome it fo defortefully, and entred into fuch out- the more eafily the injury may be offred, ragious choller, as beeing vnable to consi- so much the more (they hold) that the ofder on his loffe, or take any means for con- fence which he hath done, ought to be fetentation, hee commanded a passage vinto uerely punished and renenged. It may be A Stranger death thorough the army, of all the prifo- thought fomwhat hard, that a straunger and defended ners, except about some twentie of the should be fauoured and defended, more then a Cini ereatest Lords: as the Conte de Neuers the then a Citizen. To cut off which difficul-Generall, and others; who being knowne, ty, we see by the divine law, ordained on were faued and put to their ransomes. Ba- the strangers behalfe, that he is so ofteniazeth complaining on so sadde a victory, times repeated and defended, that a man which cost him so deare, could not depart must very carefully keepe himselse from thence but very penfiuely; and in plain tru- harming him, and that justice must bee eth, such another ouerthrow woulde abso- rendred him equal with a Citizen. And lutely haue confounded him altogether.

cie of the French. But form may obiect, that world, where a stranger is more humanefuch warlike people, accustomed to line a- ly entertained, lesse offenced, and more mong Armes and Martiall exercises, shold desended in all right of justice, then abee voluntary disdainers of matters apper- mong the people of France. taining to Iustice, acknowledging no other right then that of armes. Forbear (faid Pom- histories, that (very often times) Princes Strange Princes pey) till to morrow, to alleadge your Lawes to and straunge people haue referred their est people vs, who haue our fwords by our sides. This is differences to the institute of France, aswel haue referred. quite contrary to the French, who are no of the Kings, as of the Parliaments. A- trouerly w ons of armes, and have evermore bene ac- into strange Nations, that the Hungaricounted to be true louers of Iustice. Aga- ans, the Sclauonians, and other people thias a Grecian authour, who lived more neighboring about, defired him to be the then a thousand yeares since, hath prayled | Iudge in their differences. And more the and commended the French for their Iu- Sclauonians faid, that if ever he cam into stice. Whereof (faith hee) they are verie dest- their countrey, they would acknowledge rous, as also great louers of their Country. He & obey him, as if he were their King. further addeth, That because they possesses Furthermore; let it neuer be said or ima-most assured estate, they have (as their bases gined, v batbarisin at any time had enterand (upport) many goodly principles engrauen tainment among the Gaulis. Continually the Gaules. in the hearts of their Kings and People. Why they were most human, having milde and then let mee vindoubtedly tell vee, that a- wel polished spirits by nature, & being ad without any passion. number of goodly institutions, and divers of in welfpeaking. The proof hereof apea- militarem, of examples of their lustice, it may well ap- red in that Hercules of Gaule, so much re- argui logui. peare by this notable custome, which both nowned by our forfathers, figured in such Greeke and other ancient authours have fashion, that from his mouth hung dangobserved among them. To wit, that if any ling downe at his tongue, manie small one haue flaine a Citizen or Bourgesse, he chaines of fine gold, wherewith he tied & questionles it may be truly said, that (euen This may feeme sufficient for the valian- at this day) ther is not any country in the

In like manner, wee finde by probable way to be leffe commended for their inflice mong other, the reputation of their Iu-the Inflice of then for their valor and excellency in acti- stice in King Dagobert, was spred so farre Suntin like.

mong all other Nations, the Gaules & the uantagiously shaped or fashioned for the French haue most highly cherished and lo- study of al arts & Sciences:especialy they ued Iustice, and haue alwayes religiouslie studied eloquence in such fort, that the honoured it, yeelding themselues thereto, elder Cato in his originals cited by Chariand making continual exercise thereof, fine, hath rendred this testimony of them. Charistus. ithout any passion.

That they wer quick conceited by industrious Gallia dustry

And not to make repetition of an infinit principally in two things; in the Art military, before the principally in two things. hath no other infliction but banishment; bound the people by the eares, leading whereas, if hee commit the like offence on them whether so ever he pleased, & with

An answer to

ued opinion.

Suet declaris

Suet, de illuft.

their owne good wills, free from al con-Graint. Declaring by this figure, what precious account they made of wel fpeaking, and what power wordes had: no leffe (but rather greater) then that of Armes, to subdue people, & cause thembecome obedient willingly.

Vnder the Romane Emperors, there was a combate of eloquence in the City of Lyons, fought in Greeke and Latine; wherein, fuch as were vanquished, gaue the prizes to their victors, and were confirained (belides) to write in their commendation. And as for such as performed no matter worth the effeeming they were bound (by necessity) to wipe out what they had done with a Spundge, or with their owne tongues; except they better affected, to be either beaten with rods, or throwne headlong into the Riuer. Wherto may be referred that which Iuuenal faith.

Palleat vt nudis presit qui calcibus anguem Aut Lugdunensem Rhetor, dicturus ad ara.

And the same Author makes mention alfo concerning the Eloquence of the Gatuls, which they instructed vnto other péople.

Gallia causidicos; docuit facunda Britannos.

I am enforced to extend my felfe fomwhat further in this discourse, by making report of a few more testimonies; to ouerthrow the falle conceined opinion of fome, who have effected, that the people of France (in their first times) vvere not addicted to Sciences, erudition, nor the study of Letters, wherin they are very greatly deceived. For on the contrary, it is plaine to be proucd, that (as in all other thinges) so therein also they have most fingularly excelled, and raught the fame to the Romans. He that first instructed the Art of eloquence or well-speaking in Rome, was one Lucius Plotius , a Gaule borne, under whom Cicero (beeing then but young) was fome yeares with his Brother Quintus alfo. And about the fame time, or not long after, another Gaul was highly renowned in Rome, named M. Antonius Gnipho, beeing endued with a mighty fpirit of fingular memory, and infinitely skilfull and eloquent, as wel in Greeke as in Latine, and verie liberall (wherefoeuer he came) to teach what he knew. So that for these goodly and commendable qualities, hee bare fuch fway in those times: as his house was much frequented by the very greatest Romaine

It cannot be denied alfo, but the the great Oratour Gicero went often thether schoolemaftet when he was Prætor. But that which (a- for eloquence boue all other) may make him most Famous, was, in being Teacher to the great Dictator Cafar himfelf. Surely, not without some especial providence therein, to the end that this Prince might hold wholy from Gaule(not onely the encreasing and establishing of his Greatnesse) but alfo this honor, wherein (not a jot leffe) hee excelled, then in actions of armes. Gaule hath euer fince kept her felfe in this reputation. Quintilian, vvho vvas a vuintilian, Spaniard, made great reckoning of the cloquence which was taught in Gaule, and about the declination of the Roman Empire, Symmachus Gouernour of Rome at Symmac in lib that time, in one of his Epifles, fayeth; 2 Epifl 94. That if he would performe any worke woor- caudie bauftus thy of memory, he must go of necessitie, and require. dreine it out of the Gaulifh knowledge and elegancie. The fame man also acknowledgeth, That what soener was in him either of eloquent or polished beaking, ought the due thereof to the aire of France, where hee had learned them . And in another place hee faith, That Mount Helicon, facred unto the 66. Gallied-Mufes, was transported from her owneplace, dux Helicons. into Frante.

Saint Hierome writing to a certayne S.Hierome ad Father, who was very carefull for the in. Rufticum Mee stitution of his sonne in well-speaking, faith ; Post studia Galliarum que vel florentissima funt, misit Romam non parcens Sumptibus ot obertatem Gallici nitoremá Sermonis gravitas Romana condicet. After (faith he) he hash performed his studyes a. mone the Gaules where they are most flouris fling, for fending him onto Rome, make no - spare of expences, to the end, that the aboundance delicacy, and lufter of the Gaulifhlan- Proem Epift. 2 guage may be scaloned with the Roman grauity. The fame author faveth in another place. That France is fertile in Orators. In another place also he faith. That shee hath alwayes abounded in most eloquent men. As illustrating under that title Wotienus Montanus in the time of Angustus, afterward

Á Gaule was

Duintil, in lib

A notable ex ample of lu-flice among the French. Stobem.

Corn. Tacitus i in Annal A.

Tacit. eod. Lib. Eufeb in Chron. Quint.in lib. 5 Trog.Pomp. üb.

Nazarius and his learned daughter Eu-

Claudian in Druydes,Vges,& Bardes. The learning of the Bardes.

Strabe in lib . 4.

relegated or exiled into the Islands Baleares. Domitius Afer of Nifmes, who came with great charges to Rome, being generally renowned for the cheefest Orator of his rime, and effected to highly by Quintilian, that he acknowledged him for his Master. Next, the father of Trogus Pompeiusehe historian, of the house of the Vocantians: who kept in his hand the ring of the Emperor Califula, as beeing the keeper of his feales. Then Gabinianus, M. Aper, Julius Florus, Julius Secundus, verie famous Oratours under Velpalian, and many more whom I omit, to come to more moderne times, wherein Aquitaine onely hath more furnished Rome with Senators and Orators, then all the rest of the world

A testimony heereof was the Learned Nazarius, Author of some Panegyricks, yet remaining with vs. And that which is more admirable, was the daughter of this Nazarius, named Eumonia; the miracle of her age, who was not a jot inferior to the very worthiest Orators. Beside an infinite number of others, mentioned by the authors of those severall times, too troblefome for vs to rehearfe but one halfe of them. Heereto apperraineth the writing of Claudian: That Gaule with her Learned Citizens, did ordinarily guard the Emperor, and served him in the most part of his affairs Moreover the greater part of the Roman Senate, and a number of the Magistrates beeing great and famous persons of that age, are especially noted to bee Gaules. So that wee may very well anouch that. which Aufonius fung in his Mofella: It is no longer Rome, that onely made flew of her Catoes, in regard that Gaul did enery wway equall her.

Other Sciences also have carried as ful faile there. In the first times shee had her Druydes, Vuates or Eubages, & Bardes, of whose learning we have yet lefte some remaines and memories. The Bards composed in Verses, and conserved to all posterities, the names and commendable actions of vertuous men, aspurre sufficient to animate the very dullest corages. The Eubages, called also Vuates by Strabo, applyed their studies to the contemplation of celestial things; as also vnto Naturall Philosophy. As for the Druydes, they are fufficiently famous, and although wee haue spoken to good purpose of them in the former booke of the ancient Gaules : yet some especiall things there omitted; may the better in this place be remembe= red in larger manner.

They instructed and taught aboue all things essentially of the feel taught by the tall: which is the foundation of all religi- Druydes, on and the very frongestbond of human fociety. They discoursed also on the stars, and of their course and motion; also of the greatnesse of the world, the earth, the nature of things, the power of God, & gaue instruction in al these to their youth. This is auouched by Ammianus Marcellinus; cap.14. Mela, and Strabe, who fay, That the most Pomp Mela, is of them held the world to be immortall. An Strabo in list. opinion furely (after many great disputes and alterations) found to be most true by the verie best Philosophers and Dinines, framing a distinction thus.

Affiredly, the world is of eternal and incorruptible matter, in regard of the celestiall part, which receive the no alteration, neither shall receive any at their conimmortality. fummation: but by § adjunction of light and whole perfection. But what is vnder the caus of the Moone, composed and mixed with Elements for the vie of man, shal perish by fire, and returne into theyr first essence and Elementary quality. The course of heaven shal stay, and by consequent, al motion and corruption cease; according as it was held by Peter Lombard long fince Bishop of Puris, & called Ma- Senient diff 41. Theological Scholaftickes, and the Angellical Doctor, Thomas Aguinas. gellical Doctor, Thomas Aquinas.

They beleeved also, that (one day hereafter) the water and fire thal have Dominion; wherby we may perceive that they had notions comming necre to truth and our beleefe, albeit altered and confused. For that which they conceined of the water, they faide was alreadie come, and for the matter of fire we doe credite the like, & expect the confummation of the world thereby. Why then it is no matter of maruel, if having imparted their knowledge to other people; Arisiatle should con-fesse. That Philosophy received her originall caspud Dist. from the learned Gaules, whom hee calleth Semnotheans, and anougheth France to bee the Mistreffe of Greece. All the Gaulish Philosophers were in such reputation : Strate militie that the people conceyued the goodnesse of the yeare, the happinesse and honor of

of them.

This shal suffice to shew that such men were not well informed, as have written, that the French did not adica themselves to Sciences; ponfidering, that they have alwayes continued in the exercise of Letters and Learning. And for that purpofe they had (from time to time) many famous Schooles, established for the enstruction of youth. Mar feilles equalled 4thens in learning; so that very oftentimes the Romaines sene their Sonnes to that France equalled Athens in Academy, rather then to Athens, as it is reported by Strabo, who wrote in the Strabo in Lib. 4. time of the Emperor Tiberus. We reade moreouer, that the Emperour Augustus, fent thither Julius Antonius; the youngest fonne of his Sifter, to fludy there. And Tacitus reporteth, that the probity, integrity, and knowledge of Julius Agricola, his Father in Law, came by the nouriture & instruction, which he received at Mar-

Ceilles in France. About the same time, Austune also be came famous for the study of letters and liberall Arts, whereof wee haue the testimony in Tacitus. And againe, after thefe publike schools, who were established by the Emperor Constantius, faiher to Constantine, who to that purpose sent thither the Orator Eumenius. There is a Law in the Code Theodofian, of the Emperours Valens, Gratian, and Valentinian, wherein is declared, that there were a great number of Townes in France, which florithed by

That then issued from the hand of one onely

Doctor, Nector Mineruius, a thoufand Famous Aduocates or Councellors at law twice

These Fountaines of all erudition, haue

not dryed up in France under the reignes

of their Kings, but rather have encreased and abounded more and more, by multiplicity of Schooles, publikely established in many other Citties, wherto they fince

have given the right of an incorporated body or vninerfity. And by this occasion, fuch Vniuersities, in fauour of the studie of Letters and Sciences fo founded and as many Senatours or grave Statesmen.

Lib, 1 1. Cod. the excellency of Masters, Oratours, and Theed De pro Grammarians, in the learning both of Greeke and Latine. Among which towns alfo, were them of Bourdeaux; Tholoufe, Narbona, and many other. Aufonius likewife speaking of that of Bourdeaux, fayth,

Theencresse

Marfeilles in

Cornel Tacit. in

Corn, Tacit,

Annall 3.

Orat.Eumenii

Int. Agricol.

of Schooles & for Learning

their times, to confift in the multiplicitie | erected, haue beene endowed and adorned by divers Kinges, with goodly great priviledges and particular fanours. Among which, that of Paris hath extraordinarily furpaffed all other in the world . Toher, assorbe Queene of Learning, refortes the affluence of people from ftrange Nations, there to learne the Sci-Paris, & great ences, and especially holy Diuinity. This is as the Faire, Mart, or Market of the whole world; for the liberall Arts, and for instruction in all Languages. This is as a Nurfing Orchard of good plants and iugenious spirits, in all vertue and faire erudition a from whence bath beene felected (like swarmes of Bees) learned men in infinit numbers, that have dispersed themfelues, and meerely peopled most parts of the earth. Also it hath beene the module and originall, whereby all other haue taken example, not onely for France it felf,

Pone Innecent the third, made fuch c-but likewise for all Europe.

fimation thereof that from thence he fe- The affection lected all those men, whom hee intended of Pope Innoto advance to the Bishoppricks of Christendome, and other dignities in the Paris. Church. Befide, it appeareth by good & fufficient testimonies of other Vniuersities, for more then three hundred yeares fince, that the studies of Paris have beene the Foundation (in great measure) of the Church. Studium Parisiense effe fundamentum Ecclesia. And euermore it hath beene the cheefest in opposition against herefies to compate and ouercom them, euen fo foone as (at any time)they began togrow. Infinite victories and triumphs hath the crowned her felfe withal, in fo fa- Paris the conmous a contention, whereof I spare to queror of infi make any report; because they are no nite heresies. leffe carefully then elegantly fet dovvne by the Lord Loyfell, in his Tract of the Vniverfity of Pars. Wherein also hee hath most learnedly observed, the true institution of that Vniuerfity, against the vulgar Fables which have beene noyfed thereof. There are likewise many other Vniuersitics founded, and chablished in divers of Vniversi-Citries and Townes of France, as in Tholoufa, Bourges, Orleance, Angiers, Poitiers, Cahors, Mont-pellier, Nymes, Caen Nantes. Rheims dec.

Alfo from France, and all her Schools, haue proceeded men as learned and excellent in all kindes of Sciences, as in piety ties founded in France.

The famous Vniherfity of lers thither.

France hath yeelded great plenty of lear-ned Byfhops.

thep of Poi-

S.Sulpitius Seucrus.

Pontius Paulinus the Se-

Rufticus, Phoebadius Profper, Alc

g.archbishops of Vienna.

S.Germaine by shoppe of Auxerre.

S.Gregorie Florent, Arch bythop of Tours, compared to S. Gregory Naand probity: and as this Discourse would require whole volumnes, fo yet it would exceede possibility to name and re-count them all. There have beene many wife & learned Byshoppes canonized for their fanctity of life, who have establisht Christian religion in many Countreyes, and Suppressed monstrous heresiest dispersed in many parts of the world. As S. Hillarie Bythop of Poitiers, the true confounder of the Arrian herefie, where with the Church was too much tormented, euen at the beginning of her increasing . Saint Sulpitus Seuerus, whose learned writings lets vs yet fufficiently fee his piety, and painfull endeuours together as the Arch bythop of Bourges, that lived vader the reigne of King Gontran, and also a more ancient Priest of Aquitaine, of equal standing with S. Hierom and S. Martin, with whom he was very familiar, & who wrote Pontius Paulinus, who being a Senator, descended of a great family, and infinitely rich gaue all his goods to the poore & becomming an Ecclefiafticall person, was afterward elected by shop of Nola in Italy. Of the same country of Aquitaine, vvere also S. Rusticus, S. Phaebadius, and Prosper, Alethius the Prieft, fo much commended by S. Hierom, for his fanctity, eloquence. and learning. Ecditius, Auitus, and Mamertus, instituter of the Rogations, Arch by shops of Vienna: S. Sidonius Apollonaris Bythop of Auuerene : S. Lupus bythop of Troves; and S. Germaine bythop of Auxerre, who ferled and affured Christian religion in England. Eucherius Archbishop of Lyons; Saluianus and Gennadius, priests of Marfeilles, and S. Vincentius Monke of S. Honoratus, in the Isle of Lerins. And fince the Monarchy of fome later Kings, S. Rhemigius, and S. Gregory Florenties, Archbythop of Tours: who is compared by Fortunatus, an ancient Christian Poet, to S. Gregory Nazianzene, as given to the East, and by Gregory the Great, Pope, giuen to the South, as he for France was to the West. It was at the same time, when Pope Gregory (having scene at Rome) not onely admired him, but did him fo much honor as could bee denifed, Arnold, Bythop of Metz, Hinemar Archbythop of Rheimes, Lupus Abbot of Ferriers in Gastinois, Arnold de Lisieus, Fulbert & Yues, Bylhops of Chartres, Suggerus Abbot of SiDenis, S. Bernard Abbot of Cleruaux: Peter Abbayelard, of whome there went a Peter Abaye Prouerbe in his time, that there was not man for Leaany thing in al the world, reaching either ning & know.

to the highest heavens, or to the lowest ledge. bottome of the profoundest deepes, but they were all familiarly knowne to him. Alfo Peter Lombard by thop of Paris . 10 admirable in the profession of Dinimitie. that (even to this verie day) all Christendome acknowledgeth him forher Mai-

"Hee should never make an end, that would take on him to recite all the great men of France, not onely fuch as have preceded them of these times, but infinit numbers befide: whereby may bee juftly faid, that Learning and the Sciences, not onely received their ancient flourishing splendor in France; but also have imparted themselues (as before) to all other regions of the earth. There hath bin heeretofore (beside all them formerly named) one Eumenides of Marfeilles, a most wife excellent Phi Philosopher, who (among manie other losopher, things) made a very ferious inquisition,& learnedly wrote on the original of Nilus. P. Terentius Varro (firnamed Atacinus, of his Countrey in Narbone Gaul, on the riuer of Atax, now called Auda, which belcheth it felf into the fea at Narhona) much | uer in Narrenowned among the Roman Poets, for bone. making foure bookes of the Argonantes affaires, diners Epigrams, and the Sequanes warres, recited by Pliny in many places, as also by the Grammarian Prif-

Heere we may not forget the Philofopher * Phanorinus, so highly renowned vnder the Emperor Adrians reigne : a na- wondred that being a Frech tiue of Arles, as Philostratus reporteth in the discourse of his life, Nazarus the Orator, and Latinus Pacatus, Author of the excellent Panegyricke of Theodofius . About the same time flourished Rutillius Numatianus a Poet, and Aulonius of Burdeaux, most worthy the name of a Poet. fince the dayes of Augustus: divers nameleffe workes of his haue bene found, and Aufonius (for their especial descruing) hane bene Schoolmaster attributed to be Virgils . Heewas chosen to two Em. for Schoolemaister to the emperors Gratian and Valentinian: for it was an ordinary course in those times, when there yvas any necessity of learned men, eyther to instruct the Emperors sons, or the grea-

Marfeilles, an

A famousti-

* He was icho

Strangersthat knowledge i France.

Theopinion

f diu re wor thy fliangers

concerning

Chap.2.

honored their owne countries; thogh respiring first the sweet ayre of France, and borrowed a beame from her bright fplendour, to give fome luster thereof to their places of birth. In breefe to speake truely, it is as difficult a thing to name all the famous persons that have flourished in France, as it is casie for other people to make a thew of all fuch as they have had. which would rife to a far inferior number. Moreover, many great persons (beeing frangers there) having diligently formayed the spirits of the French, have found them by experienced judgment to be full of life, subtile, proper & prompt to all occasions, cleare sighted, and piercing into the Sciences; thinking it very congenient that whereas some have esteemed the ancient Gaules to be light and mutable, they should rather fay, & very infly, that they were tractable apt and ready to performe any thing imposed on them whatfoeuer.

were fecht fro France, as we read in many places of the works of Symmachus, then Gouernour of Rome, & who fuckt (him-

I forbeare to speake of those strangers.

who by becomming there learned, have felfe) the milke of the Mufes of France.

Of this minde was Julius Cafar Scaliger an Italian, a man most learned and judici-Iul.Cef Scaliger In Exerct 167 ous, who speaketh in this manner. Illudest comprimis aduertendu, non effe cum animorū mobilitate coniunctā fidei iast uram. Gallos enim vides ad omma momenta vel euentuum vel disciplinaru promptos paratos verfatiles: vt femel quicquam vel vs fum vel audstum, illico apud eorum ingenia & deponst & amittat nouitatem, in co ipfo penitus exte plo videntur nati atque educati. Qui animo rum vigor igneus, maturaque celiritas null alij nationi data est à natura. Quoquò incubuere felicissime fefe dant ocyssime proficiunt gnauiter exercent : mercaturam artes arma, litteras, eruditione, subtilitatem, candorem, eloquentiam. Omnium tamen gentium atque nationu, fide funt maxime integra de constati. It is a matter that well deferueth to be noted or considered, that the defect of faith is not alwases conjoyned with the mobility and lightnesse of spirit. That it must needs be so I fee that the French are prompt, ready, and tractable at all moments and occasions be it eyther for the diversity of accidents, or beeit

for the Sciences : and that in (uch fort as fo

Soone as they have scene or heard any thing,

test Lords of the Romane Empire, they | immediately it loseth all nouelty with them, and carrieth no fuch matter of newes in their mindes, for it feemeth as instantly bred and borne with them. This hot and fiery wigor of understanding, and this promptitude with maturity & judgement, bath not bin given by nature to any other Nation. On what foeuer they purpole a resolution, they apply theselues The French thereto very happily profite therein most speedily and exercise it carefully : either Merchants, Artes, Armes, Letters, erudition. Subtiley affability freedome and eloquence or any thing elfc. And yet not with standing, among al nations they are the most voright do intively constant of their faith and word.

Moreover, as there is nothing that doth fo much civilize and fweeten manners the

the fludy of good letters, & to win know-mans heart, makes plaine outward shew and appearance in his countenance. In his forehead he carrieth a naturall franchife, are noturally addicted to fingular qua-ledge in the Sciences, which do beger in our foules all humanity and courtefie, and expelleth all rudenesse in carriage: euen fo is it very true, that there are none more None more gracious and humane, then the French, e- kinde to flidspecially towards strangers. The mildnes gers then the that is inwardly, and lodged up in a french and freedome in life and civill converfation: all laid downe cuidently, without diffembling anything, or ving any cunning or flattery. Good judgement was made hereof by the emperour Julian, who faid: He thought bim elfe most happy to meet In Missogne. with such good naturde men, so facile & fellowly of yet (neuerthele (fe) without flattery.

It is a world of time fince the Gauls had no mean reputation, for entertaining curteoufly, and liberally welcoming ftrangers among them. Diodorus the Sicillian highly commended the courtefie of the Gauls in Died Sicalus in this point. And Tacieus hath written particularly of the Germans, that came from the Gaules, and had meerely learned it of them. And when the French name began first to appeare, Salianus of Marfeilles gaue corn. Tacitus in them the vertue, to be kinde to ftrangers. Aboue all, this people hath alwaies helde Religion in fingular recommendation, as being § foudation of vertue: & they have continually bin denoted to dininity, enen when they had no true knowledge therof. Cafar faith, Gallia admodu dedita religionibus. And Linius describing the fiege of the comment lib 6.

Gauls at the Capitole, faith, that a man of Ti us. Linius in the house of the Fabil, being cast down fro lib. 5, cap.7.

Scaliger his oblernation concerning the French.

cicercin Orat

One of the feuen Hilles in Rome.

negligens grus

runt : Gallia

buit.Sed viris

Cemper fortifsi-

tißimis abun-

in his family, and returned to the Capitole thorough the midst of the enemies. They looked vpon him, without any violence or assayling, & suffered him to passe on; Being assoushed at such resolution, as at Seu attonitis a miracle: were it through respect and rene-Gallis miraculo rence to Religion, whereof (faith hee) that andscia, feu re-Nation is very carefull. l·gione etiam motis,cuius But after that the bright beames of the hand, quaquan ing any thing, went to Mount * Aventine, to make an annuall and solemne sacrifice

Gospell began to shew their splendour, it is hardly to be credited: with what feruor

of foule this people embraced it, with what veneration, and (euen vpon heapes) voluntarily presented themselves to deth, to testifie the zeale of their affection to Christian Religion, and seale with their blood the fincerity of their faith. On the other fide, faith S. Ierom, Spaine sometime Aductf.Vigil. Informem Ge brought forth Geryon the dreadfull monster. ryonem Hilpa-nie tradide-Herefies have (warmed in most part of the earths quarters: Gaule onely hath conferued her selfe in the truth without denouring hermonstrà non ba selfe.But hath abounded alwaies in great per-Sonages Jearned, and holy in life together. Armis & cloquen rianilme had infected all Christendome. only France bath continued pure : for her Bishops carefully imployed their paines, quickly to stifle those heresies & schismes

> Whe it came so to passe, that the schisme of the Donatifts exalted it felfe, and many partialities, quarrels, and hatreds by particular persons were intermingled: the Bifhops that were in the faction with Donatus, required of the Emperor Constantius, that ludges might be fent from the Gauls, onely for their piety and learning. Whervpon the Emperor granted vnto them 3 Bishops, Rheticus of Austun, Maternus of Cologne, and Marianus of Arles: who went to Rome, and together with Pope Miltiades, hauing exactly lookt into the matter, which grew too troblefom to the church.

their fentence) the error of the Donatifts, as it is reported by Optatus, one of the Orthodox Bishops of Affrica, who hath left vs in writing the history of this schisme,& gaue his helpe to the suppression therof. In the yeare VCCLVIII. Pope Stephen the third entreated Pepin King of France, by his expresse Nuntio, that he would send him the very learnedst Bishops of France, to the ende, that by their authority, hee decided the cause, and condemned (by the top of the Cittadell: without dread- | might reforme & re-establish the church, which he performed accordingly. Wherby is plainly discourred, in what esteeme and account, the learning & piety of the Prelates of France hath alwayes bene. According to this purpose of ours, it may be very truely maintained, that Ganl, Gaule first reamong the Proumees most towards the Christia faith West did first receive the Christian faith, next to Italy, next vnto Italy ; being brought thether in the first birth and infancy of the Church. For ouer & beside the Apostle of France. S. Dionifius Arcopagita, who is faid to bee fent thither by S. Paul: it is certaine, that one named Crescentius, the scholler of S. Crescentius, Paul, did first of all preach the christian Difeiple 10 S. faith in Gaule, and there performed the of- Paul fice of a Bishop and Pastor: as is to be gathered from S. Paul himfelfe, from Epipha- a Tim.cap.a. nius S. Clemens, S. lerome, & Eusebius, who report, that he was sent thether by S. Peter, and that there he dyed. I fet afide what lib.7. Apoflete. our Annalists haue recounted of S. Peter D. Hieronmin and S. Phillip sthat they came thether. But Catalog fenge I may not omit what is faid by Epiphanius; Ecclefiafic. that S. Luke came into France, and there declared the faith of Jesus Christ.

All that can be imputed to the ancient Gaules, concerning the acte of religion, is, on laid on the that they facrificed men. But this manner Gaules for is of facrifice was not particularly to the Gaules, they having dealt no otherwise therein, then was vied (well neere) by all other people. The like is reported of the Plin. in 1.7 (1 Seythians in generall, and Mela nameth the Pomp. Mila to be the Effedones. The Carthagenians, in lib.4.c.9 whethere hapned among the any plague Trog Pomp.lis or famine, or any other publike affliction. they made their recourse to this superstition, & ordinarily bloodied the Altars of their Hercules with humane facrifices, yea they would facrifice their owne children to Saturne. Strabo faith, that the Lufitars- Strabo in lib.4. ans, a people of Spaine, wold offer up their prisoners in war. And Seuerus declareth. that the Massillans, a people of Greece, & Sernius in 3. well educated would feed a man very im- Acn. In pri. measurably for some space of time, then they wold conduct him through their citty, charging him with accurfed execrations & imprecations; and in the end they would facrifice him, to expiate their publike offences, and to lay on him the penalty of all their fins. Among the Grecians it was very common, not onely during the Sacrifices of Troyan warre, of Iphigenia, facrificed at the Greciam

Testul, in Apo-

1.b.12,

The Gladiacers of Rome

the gate of Aulis; but likewise of Polixena, in the Land of Trove. Long time after, Themistocles (a little before the day of Salamina) by command of his diginators. caused three noble Persians to be sacrificed. And about the fame time, Xerxes, fame superstition, and vied the like facrifi-ces of humane oblations? Wee finde it faithfully fet downe, that they factificed

two Gaules, a man and a woman, to their

Of the People of France.

King of Perlia, offered twelve men in facrifice. Many examples more are there of the Grecians, declared more at large by Plutarke. What thinke ye then of the Romanes? Were not they addicted to the

Plut In Pelo

Pint In The-

Chap.3.

Tutelary or houshold God. I cannot imagine what should be the reason, why they A Gaule mar and a Gaule chose their offerings to be of that people, woman facri rather then of any other sif it were not in ficed by the this respect, that they supposed they shold Romanes. present a more acceptable facrifice (in fo doing) to the God of their Citty, then to offer any other people, whereby he might be offended, because once they had confumed Rome in cinders, and therfore they might bee judged the more able (afterward) to ouerthrow the whole Empire. Plutarke reporteth, that they caused some of the Gaules to be buried aliue, du-Plut in Marcel. ring the Confulship of Marcellus: by reafon of a Gaulish warre which had happened to them, and whereof they flood in fearefull doubt. And that afterward euen till his time, they would have celebrated the like bloody anniuerfaries; which fometimes they were constrayned to goe might not be permitted (it may bee for fo farre as innocent folke, meerely for the the immanity) and all the world to fee defect of other, because this opinion was it. The like was put in practife at Rome, noted in the, that the Gods could not be foone after the difmall day at Cannas : & pleafed, for the life and fafety of one man, the Emperor Domitian likewise sacrificed two: They had a Inpiter, firnamed Latialis, to whom they made offerings of human blood and of the lives of men. This Tertullian. faieth was ordinarily done in his time: and Lattantius and Eufebius, who lioffer to God what might bee most accept ued foone after under the first Christian table: which made them to prefent him Emperours, do affirme as much. with fo noble a dreature, the only perfect

The often & frequent spectacles, among of all other and fo confecrated to him the the Gladiatores or Egneers, were they any most precious oblation of all oblations: thing elfe, but even a cruel and bloody fawherin they are the leffe taxable for their crifice of many men. Nay, which was most custome (thogh indeed cruel) yet not prodetestable to cause them kill one another ceeding fo farre as other, as the Grecians. for other, mens pleasure ? They were not who fell voluntarily into Atheifine. Aany fmall number of one or two but ordi> narily fine hundred, a thousand two thoufand, and three thousand; and it hath bin, observed, that at such times, ten thousand haue bin thereto exposed. Let Cicero then and Plutarke ceasse to reproue the Gauls with this custome, seeing that they themfelues, both Greeks & Romans, have obferued the fame. Nav. the Greeks did far worfe, for not contenting themfelues with The Greeks fuch facrifices, they would needs know would feed on the flesh of what good meate it was to feede on hu-

ill done to facrifice a man, how much more derestable was it then, to serue in his flesh for food to the table? As for Cicero, I pardon him very willingly, for that which he faid in one of his pleadings of the Gauls: because it was to serve his own cause, and for the reproofe of witnesses,

which made whatfocuer he faide the leffe confiderable. Contrariwise also, as him-

Pleadings, to derive any availeable anthority of my opinion or elle a torme of testimony by that which I have faid : Becaufe (faith he) it mane fleft, and as Pliny hath left written, Plin. lib. 28.

to tafte of all the parts of a man. If it was cap. 1.

Cicero in felfe hath written. He may foone deceiue him Orat, Pro

Selfe, that thinkes out of mine Orations and Chentio.

was the caufe that pake and not I. And yet if wee observe more neerely, what Cafar Int. Cafar in hath faid concerning this cafe, wee shall Com. Lib. 6.

perceine that the Gaules made glad facrifices of malefactors, as thinking fuch an offring to be most agreeable to the gods.

48 (infleede) there could bee none more A good and proper, then the just punishment of wie. wordsy opiniked persons. And yet notwithstanding, Gaules justice but by offring to them the life of another. Howfoeuer, they deferued herein no imputation of blames because what they thought to be did was by superfitition, the excesse of true the excesse of religion, not holding it for any errour, to true religion

mong Gods people, we fee that teptah fel Concerning insa the lims error, under the fhadow of by leptah for a wow & doudtion: albeit I know very wel his faire that

The Gaules made ludges of the Dona tifts schisme.

Optatus Mile

uit.Lib.z.

Signius in lib.

The Sicam-

Gaules called

of the most learned Rabines. I passe ouer the abhominable idolarries of the Iewes, to the Idoll Moloch, who practifed the very fame. Yet what hath beene faid might The Authors (perhaps) fauour of some signale and senopinion of fible apprehention, or prefage, that man the Gaules G could not be faued, but by a man himfelfe: perflirion,& his excuse in And that one day, man (hould bee redeetheir behalfe. med and brought into his former condition, by the blood and passion of a man-This haue I fet downe in their excuse, it being a zeale proceeding from religion, when as then they walked in darknes, destitute of any knowledge of the true God. Now, for a fmuch as I have heeretofore that the Hebrew Text hath no other carriage, but that he offered to God, no more

but the virginity of his daughter onely,& that this is the opinion and interpretation

indifferently yfed thefewords, Gaule and France, Frenchmen and Gaules, as being no other then one and the fame thing, wherof some may conceit very strangely: I hold it convenient, & furable to our purpole, to deliuer a fufficient reason therefore. That which our Ancients had named Gaule or Celtica, was afterward defigned by the name of France. Likewife, the Kings of France have long time commanded in all those parts which were tearmed the ancient bounds of Gaule, betweene the Rheine, the Alpes, the Pyreneans, and the Mediterranean and Ocean Seas. These were the ancient limits of France, which also by feafons, and vnder certaine Kings, haue extended themselves a great deal fürther. But if any parcell therof be at this day difmembred or cut off, that may not change the true appellation of things. Confidering, that such distraction is nothing but the acte, the right alwaies remaines in his perfect integrity. And as for the French, it will be anouched, that they are one felffame people with the Gaules, on whatfoeuer fide fearch be made, and the truth fer downe of their originall.

I may not flay my felfe heere, to fight with the false opinion of such, who thinking to make the Gaules the more honourable, would have them to be descended from the Troyans, because it hath bin already done by others. But it is a point fo cleare and apparant, that there is no man (now adayes) fo filly veried in letters: but plainly knoweth, that they are altogether meere fables and fictions. There hath bin another opinion, and purfued by many, That they who imagineth the French to bee come hould confoorth of Allemaigne or Germany. And ac- out of Gercording to this conceit, there shall be no Gaule. place of diffinguishing the French with the Gaules: because it is most true to say. that Germany hath beene peopled by her neighbor Gaule. So in making the French to come from thence into Gaule, is to returne them backe to the place where they received their originall. For it is to be credited, that Provinces which are the most temperate, haue bin the first inhabited, & after that men are encreased in multitude, they then make their recourse to more remote places, which are of ruder quality, and more subject to cold. Beside, Cafar himselfe (long since) testified, that the Intim cafara Germanes or Allemaigns, called the Gaules their Brethren: for the similaride of their manners, and the customes of both these people, reported by our ancestors, may instantly make faith for this their fraternity.

Others would fetch them from the Pannaniaes, as it is teported by S. Gregory S.Greg. Tunk of Tours. Now it is very certaine, that the in lib. a.c.p., Gaules did sometimes people both the Pannoniaes: especially at that time, as Bre- Trog Pomia nue made warre in Macedon, and through- 160.24. out all Greece. And the Geographers, as Stephanus, Arrianus, and Strabo, do nomi- Stephanus nate the Celtes among the people of Pannonia. There is yet another opinion, the truest and most certaine, and yet notwithstanding little enough knowne. For oftentimes (faith an ancient Writer) it commeth to paffe, that the originall of great people is as much unknowne, as that of our greatest Riwers. This is that which hath bin observed by divers passages of Sidonius Apollinaris, linaris in mil. S. Gregory of Tours, and other neighbou- Ic. ring Authors, concerning the beginning of this Monarchy: that the French came from Sicambria, and that the Sicambrians are many times taken for the French.

Now we are to note, this Sicambria is not that Sicambria, which fome have viu-ally feated in Franconia: but it is described by auncient Geographers toward the cambrines, that in Frat-North, wholly iowning to the riuages of conla, and the Rheine, as wel on the one fide, as the other, other. But more principally towards the place. where that goodly ftreame falleth into the Sea : a place of very difficult accesse, by reason of the great Marishes thereabout. Suctonius maketh mention that the Em- Suetin vita peror August.

he did, some way to content them, and to low German hinder their courses: as also to serue his owne turne with this warlike Nation, being upon the extremities or utmost parts corn.Tacitin

• Holland in

Chap.2.

of Gaule. And befide we reade in Tacitus. that there was daily at the Emperors feruice.a Sicambrian band or Cohort, highly esteemed for their valiancy. Heereby we may know that they are descended of the same country with the Gaules, and it is to bee credited that thefe were the people onely, which never came into subjection of the Romane Empire, in the time of Cafar : in regard of the difcould not keepe themselves alwayes in their Northerly corner or angle of Gaule fuch as (at this day) Holland and part of Frielland are: but they made their exten-

dure into neighboring countries, & continually there tormented the Romanes in Gaule, after whose liberty they longed fro time to time. And part of them paffing in to Gaule among the Romanes, were there highly effectied, and came to undertake the cheefest charges, as we may reade of many of them, in Ammianus Marcellinus.

that were transported by Augustus, continued (for long time) in obedience to the Empire, as appeareth by many examples.

and Histories fet downe by divers Historians, which I may not heere recite, because (for the most part) they have beene diligently collected by the Lord Fauthet.

in his French Antiquities, where this true opinion is approued, by the passages of Lozimus, Ammianus Marcellinus, Procopi-

us and Zonarus. At the fall of that great Empire, those invincible Sicambrians.

Francs, or French, accustomed to make ordinary courses into Gaule, perceiuing

the invalion of Northerly people, as the Alanes, Vandales, Bourgnienons, & Gothes:

they could not endure, that their ancient country shold remaine any longer so sub-

Part of this people alfo, namely they cambrians to passe on further into the firme land of the Gaules, and namely, that he gaue them * Batauia to dwell in. This ficult places, and badneffe of the country The Sicabri people.knowne & renowned by the name ans renowned of French onely in the time of Galien, vn-

by the name of French. der Pasthumius, one of the thirty tyrants, about the yeare of our Lord, CCLXIX.

The Sicamberty of Gau

cel.in l.14.cap.7

Intiquit, de D

Z-zimus,Prowhile, and Zo

The Sicamrians could beflauery of iceted neither by the tyranny of Romane their country.

perour Augustus caused those valiant Si-Magistrates, nor by the invations of barbarous people. Hereupon taking aproccasion, they proceed on further into the midft of the Gaules; where they were receiued (in open armes) by their olde mother, and by the other Gaules, who joyning with them, shooke off the yoke of the Romanes, & expulsed also the strange Nations whad so infolently intruded on the.

From thence forward, both one & other named them Frenchmen, as being but one brians and people by originall. Nor can it be conceiued, that the Sicambrian people fhold be Frenchmen. enemies to the Gaules, but rather called by the as their fellowly brethren, to helpe in their enfranchizing, beeing received with the liking of enery one: as thefe places of S. Gregory of Tours do jufficiently Mew. Intercacum iam terror Francorum ve. s.Greg. Turon. which then they held. This Sicambrian Jonaret in his partibus, or omnes cos, amore inthe a capaz desiderabili cuperent imperare, &c. Also in another place: Multi ex Gally's habere Fracos dominos sumo desiderio cupiebant. Moreouer, it is to be feen in many places of the histories, written by the fame S. Gregory, that the Gauls were never trod downe by the French; but administred in publike charges. & took part in their honors, not as a conquered people, but as companions, friends, and affociates, and as making but one people. In regard whereof a man may vie the names of French and Gauls & France and Gaule, beeing but one and the fame thing. And the country enermore in His conclusion habited by the fame people originally be- Gaules and ing neuer thence expulled, nor fubiected. French.

. A country the most happy, the most fertile, the most abounding in all things and the most agreeable with the world, & least incomodious. The people dwelling therein the most martial & warriors at altimes. that the Sunne neuer beheld better. By others also commended for all those good and vertuous qualities, wherwith any humane spirit can be adorned, quicke apr. & ready to whatfocuer they apply thefelues, with moderation, curtefie, and humanity, as none greater can be defired. The hapi pineffe & felicity of this Land, together The excellent with so many commendable qualities of country and the people, have bene published (in some people of measure) by the Poet Buchanan of Scot- France well land, when at his returne from Portugall, by Buchsnar coming backe into France, he made thele verfes, which I thought fit here to infert, to ferue for a conclusion of this discourse.

Confusion of not alter mat-

Gaule became afterward to he called

France.

That the French shou be descended Troyans.

Iciuna misera tesqua Lusitania, Glebaque tantum fertiles penuria Valete longum. At tu beata Gallia Salue,bonarum.blanda nutrix artium. Cælo salubrs fertili frugam solo, Vmbrola colles pampini molli coma. Pecorofa faltus, rigua valles fontibus, Prati virentis picta campos floribus. Velifera longis amnium decur fibus, Piscosa stagnis riuulis lacubius,mari, Et hine de illine portuoso littore Orbem receptans hospitem atque orbituas, Opes vicif sim non auara impertiens : Amana villis tuta muris turribus Superbatectis lauta, cultu splendida, Victu modesta moribus non aspera, Sermone comis Datria gentium omnium Communis animi fida, pace florida, lucunda, facilis, Marte terrifico minax, Inuicta, rebus non fecundus infolens, Nec Sorte dubia fracta cultrix numinis Sincera ritum in exterum non degener. Nescit calores lenis astas torridos, Frangit rigores bruma flammis afperos, Non pestilentis pallet Austri (piritu Autumnus aquis temperatus flatibus : Non ver solutis amnium repagulis Inundat agros de labores eluit. Ni patrio te amore diligam, o colam Dum viuo rur sus non recuso visere Iciuna misera tesqua Lusitania, Glebasque tantum fertiles penuria.

CHAP. III.

Of the Maiesty, Dignity, and high Eminency of the Kings of France: And what infinite actions of Honour they have done from time to time, to renewne the glory of that kingdome.

1.3

114.

as the earth can any way yeeld; also that the people are fo generous, endued with fo many commendable qualities, beside, most humane and acceptable conversation. If all do not correspond to this profperity, and that the forme of her estate & good government, is not the main height of all this happinesse. Wherein it may well be faid, that France hath bene as graciously fauoured by heaven, as in al other things whatfoeuer. There hath neuer beene seene so many citill warres and factions, for change and alteration of the State, as hath often happened in many other Prouinces. After the had once talted the Monarchall Government of one on- chall govern ly naturall Prince (which all the greatest | ment of a na Philosophers fuch as were brought vp in tural Prince free citties, have confessed to be the best) the neuer found any change, neyther did it euer make offer of it felie, or any way proposed.

France well may boast this in common, with a great part of the people of the world that the is a Monarchall estate: but yet this is more particular to her, that the hath fuffered no mutation for fo ma- France neuer ny Ages; but hath beene inuiolably al- fubied tomawayes conferred in her owne Royall e- uernment state and gonernment. And it may as truly be faid, that her Kings haue excelled as much aboue others in the world, as Frace it selfe hath gon beyond all other Lands. Then to come to the paint of her Kings, and of their Greatnesse and Excellency: it resulteth first of al, from that which hath beene discoursed heeretofore. Because there is no man, but will tearme that king potent, rich, and redoubtable, that commandeth ouer a country fo fertile & well The happing furnished: and he will also vouchfafe, that of Kingsin Kings commanding a people fo vertuous their gouernand generous together, must needs be Paragons in generofity and courage yea, & true models of all vertue. Moreouer, what other Kings can make their vaunt, to have fo goodly, so opulent, and so happy territories, and to command ouer such a people? In like manner, what Land can fay, that it hath had like Kings, and so great in all respects, as they of France have bin? This is in generall, and the touching of this point thus were sufficient, without need of any further inquisition; because it is evident to the eyes of all men, even as what hath bin related in our former chap.

But to discourse more particularly on their other prerogatives. First, it is a mat- Prance are termost constant and certaine, that the truely Sout Kings of France are Soueraigns in their raignes in State, holding their kingdom but of God their sour onely, and by the Sword: this needs no o- raignry hath ther profe, because it is granted without fession, not onely for exceeding the memories of men or for three hundred years a tearme more then sufficient, for establithing fure and inuiolably a Soueraigne estate, as maintained teptah, chiefe of the Israelites against the Ammonites, but also for twelne hundred yeares. There needeth no other testimony then that of Pope Innotent the third, who speaketh it expresty in his Decretall, That the King of Fraunce Cap. Per venera ikm. Qui phii ful tigit.

This was i acknowledged not any Soueraigne, in tempo-

This was it which made fo fuperfluous impertinent, inept, and idle, the disputation fo much canuazed amongst the Doctors Imperialists, to witte; Whether the King of France were Subject to the Empire, or no, and whereabout the Doctors difputing vainly, contraried themselues, and fufficiently ouerthrew their owne judgements. Peter Belluga, an ancient Spanish Doctor, in his treatile of a Prince, & Oldradus an Italian Doctour (the cheefest of his time do maintaine; That the kingdome of France acknowledgeth not sither by acte or right any Prince of the world.

Pet.Belluga. In

deculo Princi-

um,tit.4,11,25

Oldradus in Consilibus.

Lopez Mader." In lib.Excellencias de Espagn.

The Emperors themselves also, have auouched as much; declaring by divers actes, That the King of France is Sourraigne, & that he depended not on them it any fashion what soeuers which will be more amply handled, in a place firter for the purpole. To as filly effect was that, which Doctor Lopez Madera a Spaniard hath written ; That the Kings of France dee take their Title, by a consession made unto them by the Emperor Instinsan, according to the recitall of Procopius. But a man can fee no fure footing, on that which is faide by a subject to the Empire. And beside, soon after, Justinian himselfe could fav: That he quitted what soener hee had pretended to the Ganles, because he held not there any thing. And in other places, he speaketh not of at the Gauls, but onely concerning them of Provence, and the neighbouring Landes. which the Gethes held before, & which he pretended appertaining vnto him, by his conquest made of them. VVhich Lands, the Gothes having made over to the Kings of France, Justinian approued the concesfion, and on that confideration, departed with all his rights and pretentions.

The French do not ground their grants. as the same Lopez did for Spaine, on the diction. Also, they have bene in this pos. I grant which he pretended to be made by the Emperor Honorius, to the Gothe Alaricke. They derive their title from higher place, and not from the Romaines : who had no other right, but an vniuft inuation by Armes. Por these are the Gauls, namely, fuch as enfranchifed themselues from the Romanes, and that by meanes of the French, their auncient Columnes and Compatriots: And therefore it is apparantly scene, that they have no way vsurped by noughty, but rather have regained their first condition and liberty, as being reduced to their primitive nature. A matter very fauorable; and a reason most impertinent among the Civill Lawyers. In like manner, what was more fust then that which the Romanes caried away by force Pattus ne Pete. of Armes, and was taken again from them res, D. de Patt. by the very fame meanes? But this is infallible, that the Kings of France are Soueraignes, knowne to be fuch, at all times and every where without any controverfic.or friuolous contradiction.

It cannot bee fo fayde of many other

Kings, and namely it hath called in que-

or Earle of all that which he had conquer writers, Ramirus the first, King of Arra-gon, payed a tribute to the Popes: which his fon Sanchio after continued to Pope

Alexander the fecond. And fince this fubftion the King of Spaine. For Pope Gregory maintaineth in his Register, that Spaine is parcell of Saint Peters patrimo, Int. spiff. 6. ny, and is to make provision for his Lord: 67. having therfore invested a certain Count red from the Moores . In confequence Zwica in lib. to whereof, by report of their own Spanish 1649,22, iection to the Romane Church, as from feodataries, it hath beene acknowledged by other Kings. VVe reade that Peter the fecond, King of Arragon, beside acknowledgement of feodality, fubmitted & rendred his kingdome, by ordinary centual (to Pope Innocent the third) of two hundred and fifty peeces of Arabian Golde, which had free course then, as appeareth by the Registers in the Vaticane, which were extracted and ouer-written by Ciacconius a Spanish author, who wrote the lives of the Popes, & by diuers histories of Spaine.

In like manner, the Realmes of Sardignia and Carfica doe depend uppon the holy See, and the investiture of them kept in the Vaticane., which was made by the

of Arragon, did homage liege at Valencia, betweene the hands of the Legate, in the veare.MCCCLIII. I finde also, that Ferdinand and Alphon-fue, Kings of Arragon, did make faith and homage, in the yeare MCCCCXLV. The Islands of the Canaries, and Cape du Ferd are held in the fame fort, and I reade, Ocean, four that Lewes of Spaine was inucfted, and rehundredmiles from Spaine, dred faith and hommage to the Pope, in and tearmed the yeare MCCCXLIII.being charged the fortunate to pay to the Apostolicall Chamber, four

In lib.z. De vi folit. The East Indiaes & Peru

The Pope

giues a king

Vitiza the ty

to pay the Popes tribute

Batonius in lit

A. he'd by ho-

5.cap. 17.

Ifles.

Ifles in the hundred Florins of gold; wherof Petrarch also maketh mention. And as for the East Indiaes and Peru, it is very certaine, that Pope Alexander the fixt, in making partage of that which was newly discourred. betweene the kings of Castile and Portugall: referred expressely to himselfe, the full power and fourraignty, by confent of both the kings, whom afterward he constituted his vassails, in all acquests & conquefts by them made, or that should bee made thence forward, as the Spaniards themselves have written. In like case. pope Iulius the fecond, gaue to Ferdinand the fift, King of Arragon and of Castile, thekingdome of Granada, which hee had conquered from the Moores: with this charge, to hold it of the Roman Church. in faith and homage. All these feodall acknowledgements and subjections of the estate of Spaine, as well in generall as in particular, are no matters of nouelty. For before them, and during the reigne of the Gothes: the kings ahvayes payed tribute to the holy See, in acknowledgement of fourraignty: vntill that a tyrant named Pitiza, a little before the ruine made by the Sarrazins, refused to pay it. And afterward, by the generall inuation of Spaine having bin wholly difcontinued Pope Gregory the scuenth coplained thereof in his Register, as is well observed by the worthy Cardinall Baronius. Which may be the cause; that each particular king, beginning to strengthen himselfe against the oppression of the Sarrazins, would return againe to the duty of this submission, and ancient subjecti-

On the other fide, it is found recorded that the kingdom of Castile is in Fief. to France. For Henry the fecond, King of affured, & (therby) the kings immortallit

Pope to Peter the third, King of Arragon. Caffile, fubmitting himselfero Charls the In consequence where of asterward, taques fift, king of France, promised as well for fife, king of France, promiled as well for himfelfe; as for his fuccessors, to be vassall, and to hold his kingdome of Castile, of the Kings of France, by a treaty in the yeare MCCCLXIX. which is kept in good forme in the Treasury of France. This king of Castile, being expulsed thece by his Brother Don Peter, was at length re-established there againe, by power fro the king of France, under conduct of that valiant knight, Bertrand de Guescline, Constable of France, notwithstanding all the effortes of the English, bandied to the

> There is another notable quality, The kingdom which is no meane aduantage vnto the Realme of France, in that it is, and euermore hath beene successive hereditary, not by clean and not elective. And like as by generall custome, in all succession in the Realme, death seizeth on the living : even fo this taketh place, & is observed so much the more certainely, for fuccession in the State. Not vifitly compared to the golden branch in Firgill, which being pluckt away, another springeth vp instantly, so that there is neuer any defailance.

Vno anu!fo non deficit alter.

Whence arose the common saying among the French; That the King never djeth. Because that there is alwayes The king ne-uer dyeth in (naturally) another of the fame kinde, Prance. who (without any controuersie or difficulty) fucceedeth at the same instant in the others place. And when as France happeneth to be ouer-trausiled and preffed by potent enemies, euen to the loffe of her King; yet it causeth no confusion or diforder, neither giueth any aduantage to the enemy or can he (by fuch an accident) vsurpe vppon the State. It hath beene prooued (to the cost of some) Comparison like vnto a reuiuing Hydra, not to bee the kingso furmounted; or rather as a Phoenix, that France in fu reuiueth another out of her felfe. Alfo, after another that the Kings of France were truely bred of an immortall race neuer parting from hence, to returne to the true place of their celestiall and divine originall; but they left a fucceffour, who (in the fame moment) is made King, without any other formality.

But to render their fuccession the more oval in Frace

De feudo Mar-

chie,nu.s.

Of the Kings of France. Chap.3. that fuch as are of the blood-royall, although they or hee thould stand farre off by a thousand degrees: yet notwithstanding, if there be not any other that is neererathey or he are called to the fuccession of the kingdome, and possessed thereof, onely by the others deceafe, without any other contradiction; which hath beene well observed by Baldus, an Italian Doctor, and hath euermore bene fo continu-Baldus in cap.2. ed, even to the person of the King nowe happily reigning, to bee descended from the King, called Saint Lewes . Si in Francia moreretur toto domus Regia, extaret vnus de sanguine antiquo , puta de domo Borbonia or non effet alius proximior, esto quod esset millesimo gradu, tamen iure sanguinis. & perpetua consuetudinis, succederet in Reeno Francorum. Item Guliel. Benedicti. in Cat. Raynutius in ver duos habens. Num. Agathias the Greek, who wrote in the faying ; Among St the French, Children take the king dome, by succession to theyr Fathers.

And in another place, hee faith and reci-teth, That Theodebert King of Metz, beeing deceafed, his sonne Theudibalde, or Thibault

Succeeded him. although hee was but an Inces, and ouerthrowing an Estate, which may happen during a vacancy, and when

tell you that fuch fuccession in a kingdom hath not alwayes beene in Spaine, And there needeth no other proofe thereof

but the confession, or acknowledgement of Spanish Authors; and particularlies of Lopez Madera, who wrote in the Spanish tongue, and yet but little for the dignitie of the Kings of Spaine. For we find that the Kings were ther established by election not onely during the kingdom of the word, all that Lopes produceth, is that

Before I paffe any further, I may heere

the fucceffor is vnccrtaine.

Agath in Lib. time of Justinian, observed the same also,

In Eod. Lib.

Affurance in fuccession cuts off infinit fant. But (faith hee) it was the Lawe of the Countrey that called him thereto. Affuredly a most wife institution, especially, for the representation of succession to infinite ages: to obuiate disorders, inconvenien-

Such fucceffion not alwais n Spaine.

Gothes; but also, after that they were ruined, and in the invalion of the Sarazins. Pelagina, king of the " Asturians, & (after A people in Spaine, behim) many other his fucceffors, came by the very fame meanes, as is exactly approued by Melina a Spanish Authour. In a primog.lib, s.c.

Concerning | hath alwayes been ereceyued in Fraunce , 1 the Kinges were elective : but yet, that none were at any time elected, excepting that they were of the Family and House-Royall.

The contrary appeareth, by the certaine sequele of Histories, and namely by the Councels of Toledo, who permitted, that the election should be made indefinitely of all persons; except of Slaues, strangers, and others that were not of the race of the Gothes. Wherein (it may be) an equiuocation is made, when as Lopez favth. De eadem gente : the interpretation beareth, Of the Family and House-Royall, and not of the Nation of the Gothes, as the Councels understood it. Therein also were many constitutions, for the honour and confernation of fuch as were of the race of the precedent Kings: it beeing a matter necessary to assure them in this manner, because there were other Kinges of their house. For whom there needed no fuch provision, nor fearch for such affurances, if the Kings should have beene fuccessine. But yet much more by the fift Councell of Toledo, there is denounced a comil. roll 1.5 curse and excommunication agaynst such as shall come to the kingdom of the Goths otherwise then by election. As we read in Ritius, one of their owne Historians, that Bamba a labouring man was made king of Risin in Eb. 1 Spaine by Pope Leo, and approved by the alection of the people. It neuer hath bene fo in France, where the right of fuccession hath enermore bin ting of Kinger inuiolably kept : There, the Race-Royall in Franc. which furpasseth the rest in greatnesse and vertue, are borne and destenyed to reigne. Nor was it without good cause, that an Greece they made fo exact an inquisition and fearch for fuch as were of the Linage flomoblement of Heraclides, and of the Aacides to make in Greece. them Kings, Captains in warre, and Gouernours of estates. Plato, and nexte to him Arittotle, are of opinion, that Mo- Plato and A. narchivis indeede the best forme of Go- ristoile. nernment: Werest not as a dream (fay they) to find a good king. As thinking it a matter impossible for a humane spirit, in so great a fortune, affluence of fo many goods and delights, and fuch liberty without contradiction, and in so supreame a power, to keepe in, and commaund ouer his owne

Cont. Tel. 6.ct 7

be made by e-lucceffion.

A worthy cu-passions. Plato addeth, Weeline not in the comparison of Commonwealth of Bees, where naturally one Plato.

da & Portu-

Chap.3.

Eminency

brooketh no

competitor.

The felicity of

A note well worth the ob ferustion.

Radolfe of

The liberall

promife of

Charles the 4

is bredmuch greater and better, to command ouer all the other . And yet the very fame happeneth to the French, whose Kings come from their very birth, more great (not of body) but of courage generofity, and vinderstanding, then all the rest borne and esteemed (by heaven) of another nature, then any common person to reigne.

Would we but a little confider the great difficulties and inconveniences, which are noted in an electine estate, by reason of such forme of election we shold the better know, what an aduantage, excellency, and prerogative France hath. In an estate elective, the death of the Prince hapning, there is an Interregnum, during which time, it falles into * Anarchy, which caufeth diforder, vnrolineffe, and confufion: whereon enfue infinite cuils, murders, affaffines, violences and thefts. As hath beene well observed in those elections, made for the Kings of Thunis, & the Soldanes of Egypt by the Mammelukes. Nay, and hath formetimes happened at the election of Popes, in Sede vacante.

And which is vet farre worfe, the Interregnum fometimes lasteth for many dayes, because, beside vnder-handed suites and made factions, there is an naturall inclination to diffention in men. As hath oft beene seene to happen in the Empire of the East after it veclded it selfe to be elective : And in the Realmes of Hungary, Polonia, Bohemia, Denmarke, and Sweden. During thele Interregnums, nothing happeneth but schismes, diusions, and many menacings of divers persons, which ordinarily do draw on civill warres, every one coueting to have a Prince of his partaking or as he would have it.

It hath also beene observed in the Empire of Germany, that many Emperors have beene elected, vntill they have had feuen or eight at a time, as after the death of the Emperour Fredericke the feeond. And there could no sufficient remedy be found, for the establishing of a Gouernour, that might have commanded in the meane while 3 because about the election of that Gouernour, there grew on still the famerinconveniences. And perhapsis might have fo fallen out that the Governour being feized on the effate, would attend no other election, as some haue done hecretofore: finding but few men, that will render up to great an engadgement. & a thing to attracting, he reputing himfelfe inft in all things, if he can keepe fuch dignity from violation.

Moreouer, it commeth fo to paffe fomtimes, that fuch as have the right to elect Princes, will deliuer foorth fome apparances of credence to them: even to have them murdered and massacred, if they please them not, or else by corruption leaue them and elect fome other. Hereof the Romane Empire can furnish vs with The Romane Empirea wofufficient examples, and that it never was full witheffe more calme, then when her Princes came of herowne to the Empire by fuccession. On the contrary, when the election was in the Soldiors hands, they fet the Empire to fale, and filled all the State with rapines, thefts, murders, cruelties, and barbarous brutishnesse. When an Emperour pleased them not were he the most vertuous man and the best Prince in the world; they would maffacre him, without any difficulty, and establish another; as it befell to the good Emperor Pertinax, after whose Pertinax murder, they caused it to bee published murdered through the Citty, that the Empire was to be fold to the fairest offerer.

In like manner, they murdered Alex-In like manner, they murgered Alexander Alexander Seuerus, one of the best and most Seuerus. Pro vertuous Princes that enerwas. And fo bus, Tacing they dealt with Probus, Tacitus, and many & many more more, as may bee gathered by the fequell murdered. of Histories from time to time. Yet this is not all, each Legion and each Army made his Emperor, all which (in the end) had their throtes cur, after cruell civill warres: the poore people enduring all this while infinite miferies, and there are observed (in that time) well neere thirty. among whom there was two women.

Thefe inconveniences were ordinary (anciently) in the offate of Spaine. S.Gre inth, 149. a gory of Tours faith: Sumpferant Gotthi-hanc detest abilem consuetudinem, or si quis die de regibus non placuiffet, gladio eum adpeterent: & qui libuifet animo, hunc fibi Statuerunt Regm. The Gother had taken shis detestable custome, that if any one of their Kings did not please them; they would murder him, and establish who sower falleth into their fantafle to be their King. This he wrote concerning Theudas, Theudegy files, and Agilas: And in Germany, after that this order of election got footing there; there were eight or nine Enperors flain & Emperors 25 William of Holland, Raoull, Albert, Henry flaing

the seuenth, Frederick the second, and Le- | Territories, and Seigneuries, as well in wes of Banaria, &c. beside them that have shamefully bene expulsed from the Imperiall Throne. And of fifteene Sultanes Seue Sultans that reigned in Egypt, Teauen were murof Egipt murthered.

VVith these wee could ranke many equall, and equally worthy, growing onely through hatreds and discontentment: from whence have proceeded divisions and feditions; fo that the choife and preferring of one man, hath prooued the vtter cont empt of another . And questionleffe, it wil be very hard for him that hath beene re fused, intirely to be obedient to him with whome hee hath contested for the royall authority, as his equal in house, reputation and merit.

Happy France, and truly happy, where-to God hath giuen the grace, to breathe but one acceptable libertie, vnder the fweet command of thy naturall and fucceffiue Kings: which hath benethy warrant from ruine, dangers, & deadly tempefts, and hath kept thy State alwaies florishing, yea, in full strength and vigor.

Amongst other inconveniences that may be met within an elective estate, this is one : A Prince elective will never bee carefull of the state, which he holdeth but by entreaty, or at other mens liking, but of his owne family. For knowing well, that he cannot leave the kingdome to his children, he makes his profite of the publike purffe, deriving and turning it to his own particulars, by venditions and other alienations. According as Rodolfe of Habfourg did, who comming to bee elected of Habipourg Emperour, by the fauour of his Master Emperor,& Elector, the Arch-Bishop of Magunce: lignity he did founded & built up the house of Austriathe empire. vpon the ruines of the Empire. Euen fo farre, as to fell at prices of mony, her freedomes and Seigneuries to Citties of Italy; as to Florence for fix thousand crowns. and to Luca for ten thousand, and so to other in like manner. Which prooued to be the end of the kingdom and command of the Emperors in Italy : in regard wherof, he was highly blamed by all the Historians of those times, and by such as have

> I forbeare to speake of many other Emperours, who practifed in the same manner, and alienated the hereditary patrimony of the Empire, Citties, Townes,

Germany, as in Italy, and other places. And buthis meanes, divers Principalities effablithed, and great citties franchised, beare now no more but the bare name of foueraignty for the Empire. Also it is to bee credited that a Prince doing what he can. will ouerthrow all, yet not topfic turuy: but will mingle (as one faith) heaven with earth, but he wil make his iffue to fucceed. fo ftrong and mighty is this paffion. Few or none are found to follow the example of Moyles, who knowing and acknowledging his formes to bee incapable to command the people of Israel after him; rather chose to establish another, as preferring the weale publike, before affection or charity to his owne. It is recorded that the Emperour Charles the fourth, promifed an hundred thousand crowns to each one of the Princes Electours, to haue his fonne Wence flaus elected emperour; and being vnable to pay them, hee was constrained to give over to them the ordinary reuennues of the empire in paiment.

The case is quite contrary in France, where the inheritance and patrimony of No two kinds of inheritan.

him that commeth to the crowne by fuccession, accrueth and revniteth it selfe (by the same meanes) to the crowne. In regard whereof, the Kings have not two kindes of inheritances, the one particular, and the other publike: for all commeth | ces in France of one and the same nature, & all is made publike. Wherein is different the full the King.

effect of that which the emperour Antoninus Pius faid to his wife. Seeing (faveth cint vita.

he) that we are come to the Empire, wee have lost that which we had before. But although this kingdome bee fuc-written euer fince. The heredica ty patrimony alienated, and nothing but the bare name remaining.

cessive in this manner, by the iuniolable custom of the country, rather the by hereditary right:yet notwithstanding, women. No female and the descendants of them in that kind, France, accor neuer haue beene, neither euer can be ad- ding to the mitted, no not in the defect of Males.

VVithout reason, some enemies to the French name, and enuious (to speake truly) of this prerogative; would ftrive to call in doubt the Salique Law, which reiecteth women from succession in the kingdome, faying, that the originall ther-of is doubtfull and vncertaine. As if a man can defire a better and more certain proofe, then the successe and possession of so many hundred yeares, since the set-out a Prince.

The difficulues and dan gers in a flate elcetine.

The kings of Thunis, Solgypt, and ele-lection of fome Popes.

The Empire of the East be comming c leCuue, & th kingdomes of tries befide.

Contratious election in the Empire

Alex

Chap.3.

Herodot, int. 1.

Sonne to Phraortes.

Concerning

the laft infti

tution of

led establishment of that estate. That law the first ages) were governed by Kinges. hath beene engrauen, not in Marble or Copper, but in the hearts of Frenchmen and alwayes certainly kept.

Lopez Madera the Spaniard, feeing that the like could not be in Spaine, and that the dignity was much leffe, to couer Lib. 3. cap. 3.

the defect, and bring some shadow for it, laboureth to prooue, by stretching out a long discourse, that the succession of women is very naturall. This carryeth good reason in inauter of succession for Patrimony in particulars. In which case (neuertheleffe) we can shew, that the successions by right (well neere of all people) hath alwayes bene referred to the Males: who are as firme pillars and Anchors of affurance to great Families. But in the fuccession of a mighty estate or kingdom it were a mockery for the French to imagine, that the maintaining of womens fuc ceffion could be the better. There is verie ing of the Emperor A-drian. great difference flavde the Emperour Adrian) betweene the fearch of an heyre of my patrimony, and a successor in an Empire. Moreover, it were superfluous to goe feeke for the originall of this Salique law, and enquire any further, when or how it was made; because it appeareth of a certaine vic, and that it hathi alwaies bin kept by the French. Law hath no force, if it be not by custome, which is the very strongest Law of all other. And it may well be fayde, that it is a right of great authoritie. when it hath bene observed so strictly : as there is no neede of reducing it to a law by writing.

It is no written Law, but borne with The Salique them, neither haue they invented it, but Law bred and fuckt it from nature her felfe, who gaue it them by inflina, & fo inftructed them: which not only the French, but most part of the people of the world, haue likewife most religiously observed. If we look vpon royalty and imitation of gouernment generall in the world, by the Soueraigne vnity, from the very first birth, that is to fay, when the world tooke beginning, we of the worlds hall find, that the first fathers of families firft begining. gaue command in their houses themselus > any part there. Whence came it, that all people (in ty of the Family, whereas the Daughters

(not of many Provinces) but of a Cittie, or fmall territory onely, which had bene before but the inclosure of a father of a Family? As is to be feene, as wel in holy Writ, as by the ancient histories of each Countrey. That which great Aristotle fo faithfully interpreted of nature, hee hath lib. 1.09.1 well acknowledged. In the beginning (faith hee) Townes and Citties were governed by Kings, as now adayes people and strange Na. tions are . For they were composed of people, that lived under Royalty: each Family being gouerned by the most ancient . So women could not come to the Royaltie, nevther hold part in the fuccession of particulars, Contrarywife, Fathers of the family receined commodity by rich gifts and orefents which were given them, by fuch as made request for their daughters : as wee reade in holye Writ, of the Father, Mo- Gen. 4 51. ther, and Brethren of Rebecca, the wife to Isaac, and as (at this day) it is a common right among all strange people, as well of the East, west, and South, where it is obferued in the fame fort.

Aristotle reporteth, that the ancient Ariff in Politic Greeks did buy their wives : whereof (as lib. s. vet) we have the teltimony of Homer, But fince the prime simplicity & good nature of men forlooke and gaue them over, itrflice and peace withdrawing themselves a of this Iron while in this truly Iron Age) all began to grow more firong, without any right or world, ag and the Primutine lustice, and that ambition (a most pesti- lustice that lent difeafe) ranne currant in the hearts of full florithed men: that goodly order became peruerted and overthrowne : when the most mightie, such as the Scripture reporteth. as of Nimrod and others, of Nimus, Sefo-Stris, Nebuchadonozar, and Cyrus, troubled the quietnes of their neighbours, and inuaded their lands. So, on the ruine of a great number of small estates, mightie length and largeneffe. In this inuation, confusion, & overthrowing of king comes, as also particular and naturall Principalities, some also mounting vp against their Soueraignes ; in sted of naturall Royalty, brought effates to popularity or Oligarchy, Afterward in regard of these disorders thus happening, willing to live fo: became at length con-

Empires and Monarchies grewe to bee grounded, and gaue commaund both in

The happy condition of Arift in Poli buing ynder Aiff.in Politic

Trog. Pomp in Concerning Semiramis # mong the Af

Lopez Madera in Hift. Eftagn, fale fecurity as the strongest, and which pertained to enery prinate person, might peaceably be poffeffed, and defended by their kings, against the violence of neighbors: which were $ 2 principall functions. that incited wadring people to reunite & Submit themselves to kings. Wherin Aristotle also hath placed the definition of rovalty.to wit : As well to render Iustice, as to defend the subject's from inuation of enemies. Such were the Judges that governed the Estate of Ifrael, before the establishment of kings. Wherto is referred that which Herodotus (aid: That the Medes would have Deloces to bee their K.to the end to render Institute. Be it then that we regard the first indignities have met together in one booriginall and naturall institution of kings. or be it the establishment of great Monarchies: vet it is doubtles, that women neither could or ca be any participants. And as for the last institution of kings, for recourse of people, to the ende, they might be defended against violence, & to enjoy Inflice: we plainly perceine, this could neuer agree with the naturall disposition of women because the vertue of pudicity reiecteth the from those functions of judging people, & defending them by Armes. And if in popular and Oligarchall Common-weals, women haue alwayes bin barred from government, and entermedling with the publike affaires: by much ftronger reason then they ought to bee fro Roy alty, in as much as that forme of State is more excellent then the other. It hath bin obscrued throughout al the Monarchies. cuer pursuing the right of nature. And during fabulous times, if ther be found a Semiramis among & Affyrians; yet that breaketh not the rule. Confidering the flory it felfe faieth, that to bring her purpose to paffe, the difguiled herfelfe in the habit of a man : and was taken, not for Semiramis. but for her Son Ninus. And therby it appeareth, that the Asyrians did not willingly endure the dominion of a woman, as Lopez Madera fondly supposeth. Contrariwife we reade, that that & caused the ruinc of their Monarchy, was, whe Sardanapalus (their last K.) imitating the manners, of kings, to enjoy their former justice. To the ende that the weakest might bee in as

Arained to render thefelues to their own , for fo many men to beefabica to fuch a nature.& return to the good government woman who had no more but the forme of a man; they revolted from him, and conftrayned him to kill himfelfe. Women then are not capable of fuc- Women pot ceeding in the kingdome of France, as we capable of haue, already approoued, that in ancient the Crowne times (ordinarily) they were not. For out of France. of the fabulous times, there is observed onely a Queene of Saba, and a Cleopatra in Egipt, and fo few belide; that their ratity declareth, how contrary a thing it is, violent and extraordinary to nature. Since the declination of the race and Empire of Charlemaigne only, we have feene in fome parts of the West, where valour & virility hath failed or relaxed : foueraigne (words and scepters converted into distaffes, and by the succession of wome, many the like Segres cha dy. This was that which rayled the houses of Spaine and of Austria, to the greatnes they hold: a kinde of encreasing viknown before, in any other house or sougraignty. because there was no right at all.

When then the Spaniards demand of the French, the proofe and foundation of The defence the Salique Law; it is fit for themselves of the French to flew the original and beginning of the lique Law. right for their feminine Crownes, feeing France hath kept the vie of Antiquity,& they have falne to change among themfelues. Which hath bin heretofore obferued and discoursed, by Seigneur Leschaffier, in his Tract of the right of Nature : where he theweth, that by the right of nature, women fland exempted from fuccession in the Realm of France. I remember the answer which Lieurgus made to A witty anone, who discoursed, that the government sweet made by of many was the best forme of an Estate. Licurgus. Ering it first of all (quoth he) into thine own house. In like manner, to such as will maintaine the government of women in kingdomes and great Empires, especially in France: a man may well fay, let them begin that establishment in their owne hou-ses. It is by good reason saide, that there is neyther beginning nor writing found for the Salique Law. It is a Law of nature. borne with men, and not written, as Ari-Stotle faith: That who focuer is by right of nature of by right of people is not written at al.

Wherto I may adde moreouer, that it is feudu. the common right of inheritances, which ought by stronger reason to be observed in

Of Sardanapaffed to another house, without haning fashions, & behauior of women, offended the greater part of the people beeing mot men fo much, that by a just indignation, and not by their wives, and that the male children succeeded them in the soueraign

Law bath no power but by custome.

borne with the French."

Royalty, as being the last and most eminent title of inheritance, and whereon dependeth all the other. So then this right, fo naturall, hath euermore beene exactly kept in the estate of France.

Beside, the ancient lawes of the Salians, A connexion will not permit, that any part of Salique of the Lawes land or inheritance (that is to fay, of lands of the Salian distributed to the French, in their entring with that of the Ripuarito the Gaules) shall come into the hands of women; but willeth, that it bee wholly left to the males. The same is also ordained in the law of the French Ripnarians. If this then tooke place in the succession of particulars, that the lands affigned vnto the French warriors, for recompence of their trauailes, and to ferue for defence of the Country, should not fall (as one faith) From the from the Lance to the Distaffe: by how Lance to the Diftaffe. much greater reason then ought we to esteeme, that this should be observed, in the effate and fuccession of the kingdome of France, as the sequell of her owne Hiftories maketh knowne, that it hath bin at Sonnes, who by custome (then) received and divided his Monarchies equally. Childebert the eldeft, was king of Paris; Chlo-thaire of Soiffons: Chlodamiere of Orleance, and Thierry of Mets. Childebert had two Daughters, the one named Chrodefinda, and the other Chrosberga, as appeareth by the Charter of exemption, of the Abbey of S. Germane des Prez, and by that which Fortunatus, Bishop of Poicters hath written in his Poems, who addeth, that King

Charibert was Tutor to those two daughters. Neuerthelesse,neither of them succeeded in the kingdome of Childebert

their Father : but without all further difpute, it was Chlothaire their Vnkle, as hath in like manner bin observed by Agathias the Greeke. Afterward, Charibert the fon of Chlouis, had three daughters also, without leaving any male-childe: the one was married to a king of Denmark; the second named Berthefleda, of whom Fortunatus made an Epigram; and the third, called

Chrodielda, entred Religion in the Abbey of S. Croffe in Poitters: fo that none of these daughters succeeded their Father,

but Sigebert, brother to the deceased king,

& that without difficulty or controuerfie.

Now if there had bin any means or fubcct to worke vpon, it is not to be thought,

The great Louys or Chlonis had foure

all times fo held and practifed there?

The 4 fonnes of great Chlo uis all kings together.

Fortunat in Parm.

Agathias in L.

The three daughters of Charibert.

that the king of Denmark, who had married one of the daughters, could otherwife haue bin remoued. Or if he had bin impeached by power, at least he would have complained,& the authors of those times (uffome of the could not forget to make mention of it. Iny country is But they not making any account of the a mighty and daughters, do report, that Sigebert succeeded his brother Charibert, according to the custome of the Country. Gonthram, King of Bourgongne, brother to Charibert had but one only daughter, named Cklotilda. And yet notwithstanding he inuested and instituted his Nephew Childebert in the kingdome of Bourgongne, to enioy it after his death. It is not here to be objected, that hee did it for any ill will he bare to his daughter, or because hee would difinherite her : For by an acte of accord or agreement, made with his Nephew Childebert, transcribed at large by S. Gregory of Tours, who lived in those very times; he stipullated great Lands and Seigneuries for her, declaring well therin his fatherly affection; but because the law of France hindered her fucceeding in the Crowne, he aduantaged her otherwise as he found the best means to do. The same may be confirmed by the testimony of many strangers, who do al agree in this point, that wome are not to succeed in the kingdome of France: the names of whom, as dome of France: the names of whom, as also their authorities, have beene (for the uers strange most part) noted, and collected by a lear- Witters, ned man of this time, in an Epistle which he hath written concerning this subject.

Nodgerus, Bishop of Liege, in the life of Nodger in vil.

S. Landoalde, written by him in the yeare Landoalds. id. VCCCLXXX.faith. Francerum Regnu 1.449-3. à sui principio semper per infatigabile. Ec. Maximu autem accepit incrementu & firmu Sub eo Saneta Dei Ecclesia statum, cum Chlotarius Rex IVS TA SVCCESSIONE. Chlodouco quartus Monarchiam singulariter trium regebat regnorum. The king dome Chlouis was of France fro her beginning, hath enermore Monarchof; bin innincible and indefatigable, &c. But the kingdomes. holy Church of God hath taken a great and firme encreasing in that State, when as king Chlotharius, the fourth Son of Chlouis was Monarch BY IVST SVCCESSION of three kingdomes. He faith by just succession, and yet notwithstanding, Childebert had left two daughters behinde him.

Albert of Strasbourg reporteth in his Chronicle: In Francia nullus per foeminam in chron.

Albert Strash

linea successiffe dicitur. Neuer hath any perfon succeeded in France by the line of wome. The Emperor Charles the fourth, Son

Chap.3.

ın vit Caroli

Quality.

to John, king of bohemia, in his life it is thus written. Eodem Anno obiit Carolus Francorum Rex relicta vxore pragnante, aua peperit filiam. Et cum de consuctudine regni filia non succedant, prouestus est Philippus, filius foceri mei in Legem Francia. That yeare (laith he) died Charles, king of France, leaving his wife great with childe. who was delivered of a daughter. And because by the custome of the kingdome, daughters are not to succeed: Philip, Sonne of my Father in law, was made king of France.

Froiffard, a parta ser with England writeth thus. Then after the death of K.Charls. the 12 Peeres and Barons of France, affembled them selves togither at Paris, with althe freed they could make and gaue the kingdome (by a common confent) to Messire Philip de Valois. and tooke it from the Queene of England or her Son who was left Sister germane to king Charles by this respect and reason; because they faid that the Realm of France was of fo great nobility, as it ought not go by any means to a Female. And indeed, the Q. of England, and Edward her Son, would not go to the contrary: but acknowledged Philip de Valois for legitimate successour to the kingdome. And that which is more, Edward voluntarily did him homage, in regard of the Dutchy of Guyenne, and the acte of homage was deliberated and ad-

uifed by his councell of Fingland. Now as concerning that which hapned King Edward | Some while after, warre being moued betweenethe twokings, for another cause name of king, and enmity excited among the, that Edand quartred ward tooke on him the Name and Armes of France: this was only done by the muention of the Flemings, who faide, that they could not aide him, except he would qualifie on himfelte, the name of King of France: because they floode bound by oath, not to beare Armes against the K.of France, on paine of paying two millions of Fiorins. So that in taking Armes for him against Philip de Palois, and to quit théselues of that payment; Edward gaue them a discharge and quittance, as being K.of France. And yet notwithstanding, the K.of England made difficulty of vnderstanding it, having attempted war vp. King Edward on another subject, as being Vicar of the england Vicar of the Empire, and for recouering the towne of

Cambray, which the King then held. But in the end, to have the helpe of the Flemings & their allies, who were most important ypon him; he was induced to take the title of king, & the Arms of France, as may more particularly be feene in the fequell of the history fet down by Froillard.

Estinan de Garibay y Gamalloa, a Spaniard, Estinan de Gaspeaketh of the very same, saying. Porque libay. Histor in Philip Conde de Valoes descendida de la corona Real por linea malcolina: fue coronado por Rey di Francia por virtud de la Ley Sauca. Al Rey Eduardo por descender de linea de muger, exluyeron de la succession Real, &c. Aunque todas ellas razones d'Eduardo euaden yesclusen los Franchesescon Ley Salica, que en estos dias y ua tomando grande vigor y fuercapara los figlos futuros. Becaufe Philip Count of Valois descended of the Crowne Loyall by the maj culine line: he was crowned King of France by vertue of the Salique law. For king Edward, he being descended by the Mother's line, he flood excluded from the Royall succession, oc. And all the reason alledged by Edward, were enaded by excluded for the French, by the Salique Law, which in thofe dates was in great force, and continueth allo

Doctor Baldus on the Pandects faith.Filia Regis Francorii non succedit in Legno .ex D.L.e.S.m.tor. rationabili consuetudine Francorum. The Daughter to the K.of France, succeedeth not at all in the kingdome, by a reasonable custome among the French. Which is also confirmed by Doctor Petrus Iacobi, on the books of Petrus Iecobi. Fiefs or Inheritances, & many other Do can wallalin ctors. This may (by good right) bee regi- Fond. fired among the honors, dignities & preheminences of France. And such as contend against it, as willing to impugne such a Law, or call it in doubtfull question; do flenderly conceive, that the state of their owne Country could neuer pretend, nor attribute vnto it selfe such a prerogatiue.

for future times.

. The King of France hath also this great aduantage aboue others, that he is not on aduantage of the king of the king of France. full power & authority truly Royal:which is not common to all Princes, although they be Soueraignes. There are very few or none, but are reftrained, either by lawes, or by affemblies of the generall Estates: who therfore cannot tearme the. felues abfolute, being fo fubicated, & their power limitted. The perfection & height | The perfectiof a royall estate, is, when the Prince or on of a ruely Royall estate.

daineth

The Queens or England and Edward her Sonne.

This point of

S.Greg. Turn

the third took or him the Ariff in Politic. lib.3449.10.

124

Ecclef.8. 24.

The honourable dispositian!er& Cz (ar in their warre, and o therwic.

The absolute power of the Romanes Dictarour.

Two other corfiderati ons well deferuing obfernation.

daineth all by his owne will, doth what he Jother, is the antiquity of her race of kings: would without any restriction, and being no way answerable for any of his actions. This was the reason, that Aristotle clegatly named fuch an estate, by the name of rapsacaria, as one would fay Full and perfect Royalty. And wife Salomon speaking of a true king indeed, faith; He will do what foeuer pleafeth him. Where the word of the king is there is power; and who shal say unto him. What doft thou? This is also of no meane importance for the good government of an estate; be it to resolue more certainly on the affaires; be it to keepe councels & designes secret; be it for facility promptitude, and speedines of execution. He that hath fuch power, especially in actions of war, as the two great warriours Alexander and Cafar had, may fway the Empire of the world. One of them being demanded, how in fo fhort a time, hee had made fo many famous conquests: It was (quoth he) by neuer deferring occasion, or wling remissenesse. And the other was so prompt& ready, as many times he was at his iournies end with his Army, before any newes was heard of his comming. Yea, and in fuch fort, as enemies felt hisfingers, before they tooke aduice for his comming. Nor can this be done, if a man depend vpon another, in any manner whatfoeuer, & the his power is not absolute. The Romanes tooke good acknowledgement hereof, being wont in their very greatest affaires, & dangers of the cltate, were it in peace or war, to create a Magistrate, whom they called Dictatour, with fuch full power & absolute authority. In breefe, for the gouernement of great estates, and likewise of great affaires, the account can neuer bee well rendred, except it be to one man only. Otherwife, a Prince, although a Soueraigne, can neuer fay, as Metellus Numidicus, and as it was after vsed by king Lewes the II. That if he thought his hirt knew his The wife fay the 11. That if he thought his fort knew his ing of Metel. councell, he would teare it from his backe and his Numidicus burne it. He that is truly an absolute king, may well vie the aduice of his councell, in fuch affaires as present themselues: but in an arrest and resolue, what seems good to himselfe. The excellency of that kingdome, as also of her kings, resulteth yet from two other confiderations. One is the long continuance of the estate : a certain proofe, as well of her good gouernment, as of the supreme and celestiall fauor. The for to speake truely, there is not any more lead in worthy, no nor more generous blood in State & Ann the world. Who can in all the kingdomes quity of the through the Vniuerfe, show another the like estate, as firm and stable, as hath continued for 1200 yeares? Who can nominate fuch a nobility & ancientnes of race, fo fairely approued, and in fo long fucceffion of fo many kings. Since the year 440. according to most certaine History. Meroneus planted the foundation of that Mo- The fire of narchy, and established it to the Gaules: & station of the Monarchy by euen to this instant, the estate hath bin alwaies maintained, and valiantly stood against all violent affaults. In such fort, as the more it hath bin attempted yearin very dangerous extremities; then found the her selfe strongest, and more flourishing then before. There is not any thing comparable to fuch a fuccession of kings in al other Realmes, as it will be eafily verified.

Moreover, the nobleneffe, dignity, and greatnes of that royall race, hath received no diminution by those two changes, noted by #1 which historians have there observed. Let storians connot Lopez Madera alledge then, that fuch changes hapned, because France would not admit the regiment of women. For if we regard the fide & line feminine, thogh the fuccession be not therein; three races finde themselves all vnited with the other. The fecond of Pepin with the first, as some Chronicles of those times do proue. And that of the Capets which is the third, and reigneth at this present happily with the second, as M. Guillaume de Nangu hath deduced the Genealogy. The which Pope Innocent the 4.in his Decratale, speaking of king Phillip Augustus full well acknow- cap Nount De ledged, when he auouched that king to be Indici apad descended of the race of Charlemaigne.

But beside this, there are other faithfull Authors, who do declare, that the fecond Authors, who accuracy race is tolyndro the first, by the males fide, repin defen proouing from father to fonne, that Pepin ded of kap was descended in direct line by the males, for Motor of Chlogion, K. of the French, before Meroneus, as iffued from Albericus, one of the fonnes of Chlogion. And as for the third race, the true originall thereof, was in that noble and fo ancient house of Saxony, & The third of great Vuitichind, king of the Saxons, who made himselfe Christian with his only king you know the saxons only king you know the saxons only king the saxo time of Charlemaigne. He was descended and that de of Signardus.

Robertthe

Strong, & his Sonne Otho

Tutor to Charles the

Chap.3.

Gregot.

Warriors that terrified and amazed the Meroneus ounder o the monarchy in Gaule.

Attila king of the Hunnes called himfelfe Flagellum Dei.

Siguardus, who was made Duke of the Saxons, in the yeare VCXXXVI.at such time as Dagobert was king of France. Behold the certain fuccession. Vuitichind the great had another Son cald Vuitichind, & that Vuitichind had another Vuitichind 9 3. who had to Sonne Rupert or Robert the Strong Count of Anion, he being flain against the Wormanes, in the time of Charles the Bauld, king of France, and Emperor.

That Robert the Strong left his Son Otho or Eudo, who was Tutor to king Charles the Simple, and afterward crowned king ; as also was his brother Rupert, Father to Hugh the Great, Count of Paris, Sonne in law to the Emperor Otho the first. And by this mariage of Hugh the Great, was born Hugh Capet, established king by the Nobility of France, through default in the legitimate line of Charlemaigne, in the year VCCCLXXXVII. Since which time, the kingdome hath alwayes beene in the hand of that generous and flourishing Linage, excelling flill more and more, and

Next heercunto, there commeth also reigning to perpetuity.

roour confideration, the admirable and herovicall vertues of the kings of France, which hath mounted their glory vp vnto heaven, & made them known through a the Cantons of the earth. But to forbeare the most ancient warriours, the affeight & terrour of the Romanes, Afcaricus, Gaife, Marcomir, Sunno, Mellaubodes, and Chlocion : what a warrior was Meroneus, the founder of that Monarchy in Gaule? This was the man, who (in despight of the Romanes, and fuch a mingle-mangle of barbarous people, scattered and dispersed by the Gaules) planted there his Standards, and made himselse absolute Lord of one part. And as for Attila, king of the Hunnes, that caused himself to be cal'd, The scourge of God: he came to rauage France, as hee had done all other Provinces where hee had past. The wife Actius, Gouernour to what then remained of the Romanes in Gaule, was perfwaded, that he was not able, nor all the barbarous people releagued with him to endure the furious and fearefull shock, of that huge thunderbolt of war. But made his recourse to the vertue of the French, and to their great Meronews to fight against the furious entrance of the Huns. Wherin hehad good fucces, for the pride of Attila was soone reba-

ted on the Cathalanian plaines, by great Mereneus, who put to the edge of the fword that dreaded maffe and number of enemies.

Alas, there is no roome here, in a work This labour of no larger circumference, to recount the ever lutle to goodly deeds, and actes herovicall, well containe the deferuing eternall memory, of al the kings on of the that have raigned in France: for many Kings of great volumes can hardly containe them. So high an afcending subject, deferred to meete with fuch Writers, as can as worthily fet down in writing, what thefe kings did boldly and vertuotilly performe. Befide, the aboundance of matter, and dignity of the fubicat, would affoord them tearfity of ground, and trouble them with a thousand difficulties. It is a subject much The Greek more great, then the wars and encounters war more om of petty Townes and Villages in Greece, barable with them of the bandied the one against the other: which neuertheles, by the learning & eloquence of fuch, as have attempted to write thereof are become so much celebrated, and thought worthy of immortality. But Frenchmen, who have established this Monarchy, contenting themselves with the glory and fronour of well doing, care little for any pride of the Pen, addicting themselves rather to execute high & hardy enterprizes, the to fet down in writing those of others, much lesse of themselves. Neuertheleffe, though destitute of fuch exquifice meanes, whereby to mount to Admiration immortality yet it hath fo well falne out, (in Ilead of that all their faire actions have not bin ve- inthathmade terly buried nor forgotten. But in flead of the French a worthy Historia, admiration bath thrust generally fainto the mouthes of all people, to know out the world and speake of them; delivering it so from hand to hand even to fuch as dwell in the remotest Climates, familiarly acquainting them with their manners. And indecde, there are to be found more testimonies of French vertue, in the Hiftorics Memories, and Annals of ftrangers, then in their owne. I will therefore leane that labour to others, that can better acquit thefelues therof, if I touch any thing, it shall bee but in my passage along, and onely to make a light demonstration.

It hath bin observed for an ancient faying. That all the good kings might be enclosed Adage conwithin the Beazillor Collet of a small king, cerning good But this faying cannot hold in France, w kings. hath euermore metwith good kings, most

Chlouis or

Louys that

droug the Ro

mones quite

out or Gaule

& made the Gothes to fli

beyond the

Pyrennean Mountains.

Chap.4.

Roderic Xime-

net Aichies. 7

excellent and most vertuous: having bin | ety;made themselves admirable & dreadalwayes happy therein, as in all other things. I will call then vnto you divine fpirits, & generous foules, who have fomtime swaved that Monarchy; to the ende, that being put on by your inspiration. I may, if not worthily fing your merits, yet (at least) figure foorth to life some part of

Next to Great Meroneus, who first established himselfe in France, repulsed the Hunnes, and ouercame King Attila, the horrour and the whippe of the world, account is to be made of that Chlouis or Lowir, who possessed himselfe throughly of the Gaules, and etterly exterminated the Romanes name. This was the quayler of the Romanes and Germanes, and he that expulsed so quickly the Gothes beyond the Pyrennean Mountaines, and made them thinke, that hardly could they get ground enough to flie away vpon, or where to hide themselves from his victorious arm. The Gothes having offended him many times, and broken all agreements made: this Prince undertooke war against them, to chastife them, and purge the Canles of fuch a people, as eagerly followed the errour of Arrius, and laboured to plant it cuery yeare.

When as the two Armies were met together, somewhat necre to Poictiers, the battaile was given, wherein the Gothes.

were wholly ruined, and driven away in rout. Historians do adde heereto that the was met withall in the fight by King Chloais, and fighting hand to hand, hee fmote him downe dead to the ground. This is the felfe-fame Prince, who (first of all the French) embraced Christian Religion, whereof both he and his fucceffors were alwaies afterward true protectors and defenders. He was the most redoubted of all the kings in the world, and of whom the Emperour Anastalius, Theodorick the Ostrogothe, and the Vuisigother of Spaine made no meane accountswere it in admiration of his vertue, or were it for feare.

they thought themselves very happy, to have peace and friendship with him, feek-

The meeting of the two at mies hard by Poiters, where King Chlouis flew Alarick hand to hand King of the Gothes, being named Alarick, in fight.

The Empero

Childebert

Sonne & fue

ceffor to Chloui.

ing it by diverfity of Ambaffadors, & by plenty of most exquisite guifts. His Sonnes Childebert, Chlothaire. Chlodamire, and Thierry, as heires to his crowne, and likewife to his valour and pi-full to ftrangers. Childebert, induced thereto, by horrible perfecutions inflicted on the Orthodoxe Christians, as also by the bad and vnworthy vsage offered to his Sifter, by Almarick her husband, King of the Vuifigothes in Spaine, who fenerely main- S. Gug. Time tained the Arrian herefie: paffed with his Army into Spaine, quailed & ouercame 2.029.9.019 the powers of the Gothes, wonne divers Citties by affault, and at length took Tolledo, cheefe of all, ruinating it in ranged battaile, where also was flaine Almaricke their king; returning triumphantly into France, hauing added to his Empire, the very greatest part of Spaine. Afterward the three Brethren together, wholy onerthrew the estate of the Bourguignons. And foone after, the emperour Instinian, The Empero making warre on the Gothes of Italy, the Gothes made recourse to Theodebert, king Gothes of Italy of Mets, and youngest Sonne to Chlouis, taly. who defended them for a good space of 1,Bel Got, time, giving fuch proofe to the Greekes, of vertue in the French, that Justinian was constraind to compound with the french, as Historians (on his own fide)do restific. In this first race, there was also Chlo-thaire, who by his victorious arms, wholly subdued Germany, and vanquished the vnconquerable Saxons. On a day, the two horse-backe and well armed; espied Berroaldus, Duke of the Saxons, in like furnishment on the Rivers other side. Alone & without atteding for any other troops. fuddenly he croffed ouer the River, to encounter and fight with his enemy swho ter with all possible speed, and having ouertooke him, fought with him, and left him dead on the ground, So returning victorious backe againe, bearing his encmies head in his hand, he found his pcople much offended, because they had neg-Churches richly founded and builded by bim can well teftifie.

Hauing finished the first race, wee come to the second, wherein let vs confider first of all, the cheese man thereof,

Armies being fomewhat neere each to o-ther, and the Riuer Vifurgis running betweene them, this Chlothaire beeing on the Saxons. betaking himfelfe to flight, he purfued af- lib. 4.4.0.18 lected to follow him. He left Dagobert his Dagobert, Sonne to be his Succeffor, a worthy heire heire and fu both to his estate and valour, as also ex- cessour to his celling in piety and denotion, as many theire.

whose name remained engrauen (perpetually) in memoric of all the people of Europe, for beeing their confernator, in warranting them from the certaine yoake and scruitude of the Sarazins. It was then when the Arabian Sarazens (holding all Affrica) passed into Spaine with very smal troopes: where finding but flender refistance, the Spaniards and Gothes bequea-Teles mi lib. 3 thing themselves, as ingulted in all pleafures and delights, and no way addicted to the exercise of Armes, became immediately Masters of all Spaine. This victory and conquest drew on thither Millions of > Moores and Sarrazins, and in fo great number, that Spaine being no longer able of comprehending them, they made account of passing further on, even to run thorow all Europe, and quite to exterminate Christian Religion.

Into France they entred with a most dreadfull Army, facking and spoyling all that they met with, and paffed on fo farre as Tours, sceming, as if there were no force or power great enough, that could refift or hay the course of their conquests. All people and Christian Princes, were Mahometanes of the East. Questionksse, full of teare and terror, and (in a worde) Europe had viterly beene vindone : if this Charles Martell had not then bene present neere or before the City of Tours making there a barre of his body and French forces. Having given them battell with fo few French as then were with him : hee ouercame and meerely hewed them in pieces, to the number of three hundred. threefcore, and fifteene thousand Sarrazins. After this, being advertised that there were yet other great troopes, towards Warbona and Auignion; hee went thisher to finde them, & in another daies good fucceffe, wholly ouercame them,& left not a man liuing. So that it appeareth by inftrecords, that there were flaine in all, feuen or eight hundred thousand : in regard whereof, the fir-name of Martell was given him. Thus did he dissipate this dangerous tempeft, wherewith all Christendome was threatned, and ready to be confounded.

This also gaue good ease to the Spaniards who were feattered in Spaine; fled & hidden in the Afturian mountains. So that he might wel be named, & in good right. the Buckler, Hammer, Tharpe Tworde and

Charles Martell, Prince of the French; | Rampier of Christendome, But for him, Europe had now bin the scate of Caluffes and Miramolines. In flead of adoration giuen to the true God, the name of prophane Mahomet, and his execrable Alcoran thould have bene here preached. The Saxons, who were Pagans then, and not capable, but to give offence to a peaceable king, by their revolts and wonted feditions; could they have bin any hindrance? The Germanes, divided into many finall Principalities, and gouerned (for the most part) by the kings of France, could they have refisted ? In Italy there were but the Lombards, who in the fpace of almost two hundred yeares, could not became Masters of all Italy, neyther conquer any more but a part, which their first king Albonine obtained at a clap, even when they first entred. The rest wasso miserably tormented, by the courses and piracies of the Sarrazins: as the poore inhabitants knew not where to hide themselues. The Empire of Constantinople remained, haung worke enough to do, to keepe herfelfe within her owne finall bounds and limits : beeing purfued by the Arabes and the Christian name had bene extinct had it not pleated God to ferue himfelfe with the victorious arme, and courage inuincible of this French Prince, to conferue his faithfull servants to glorify his name.

This was the fame Prince, of whom it was faid; That hee affected rather to com. mand Kings, then to bee a King himselfe; which was engrauen on his Toombe in these rearmes.

Non vult Reguare fed Regibus imperatipfe.

Thus imitated by the Virgil of France.

This was Great Martel, Prince of the Frech! Not King in name, but a Master of Kings.

Much more to be esteemed heerein, then he that faide . Hee affected rather to command them that had Golde, then to have any lumfelfe. Because the passion and fernour which is borne to honor, and which feareth it felfe willingly in the fouls of the most generous; is much more quaint; tickling and violentsthen is the defire and limustimile, thirst after riches. The reputation and cap. sr. valour of that great Martel protector of Christen-

Avmonius con

Christendome) beeing such, the Church | ranged them under his obedience. hauing no other prop nor fuccour, euery one fixing their eyes on him. Pope Gregory the third fent him the chaines of Saint Peter, and the keyes of the Sepulcher, committing himselfe and the whole Romane Church into his protection, to be warranted, not onely against inuasion of Sarrazens, but also against the continual courses of the Lombards, wherewith hee had beene afflicted beyond all extreami-

Pepin, King of France, fon to Charles

Martell, wonne not a jot leffe glory by his

Pepin, the for Martell.

Aymon, contin in lib. 4.cap. 63

haughty deeds of Armes. This was hee that danted the Aquitanians, and them of Bauaria, ouercomming them in diuers battailes, and likewise the renolted Saxons. Soone after, being called for fuccor by Pope Stephen, to defend the Romane Church (vexed more then ever) and oppreffed by Astolpho, King of the Lombards, he went with all diligence, & constrained 25tolpho (who felt his power not equall to his) to flye, and thut himfelfe vp in Paula his Capitall City, where hee befiedged him, and could not raife his fiege vntill hee hadde made an aduantageable composition for the Pope, with whom he left many French fouldiers for his further assurance. This composition being afterward broken by the perfidie of Astolpho. Pepin returned thither againe, and beliedged him the second time; compelling him to furrender the Exarquate of Rauenma, and many other places, which he gaue vp to the Romanes Church. And returning home into France, hee found there the Ambassadors of Constantine, Emperor of Constantinople, who bringing him many goodly prefents, came onely to request his alliance.

or Charls the Great, fonne

The Licute-

nancie of the Empire.

But what can we speake of more admiration, then his fonne Charles, to whome (by good right, and for his high deferts) the whole Vniuerfe, by one confent, gaue the fir-name of Great? Hee attempted. maintained, conducted, and brought to end, ten or twelue seuerall warres, all-of most great importance & difficulties in all kindes; as well in regard of the places, as for the great multitude and firength of the enemies, against whome hee was to deale. First, against the Aquitanians and Bafques or Gafcoigns, a meruailous firong people ; yet after many overthrowes, hee-

Next, another warre against the Lombards, who having violated the Articles of peace, which had beene couchanted with them by King Pepin, Father to this His warte a with them by King Pepin, Father to this gainst the Charles: they infested and tormented the Lombards, & Romane Church, without the least breathing or respit. Which was the reason thing or respit. that this Prince, as pious and inft, as valiant, vndertooke (according to the ordinary vie of the French Kings) the defence of the holy See, ouercomming & ruinating the Lombards from the toppe to the bortome. He also befreged Didier their king tooke, and led him captine into Fraunce, where ended the kingdome of the Lombards in Italy, and whereby he augmented and enlarged his owne efface. Thus hee purchased rest to the Pope, and beside enriched the Romane Church, giving it no meane part of his Conquests, and encreafing the patrimony of S. Peter.

Hee attempted warre also against the Sarrazins, paffed into Spain to fight with gainft the Sa them, where he foyled them in many en-counters, enforcing them to hide themsclues in Towns, which he besiedged and wonne away from them, fo that he conquered a great part of Spaine, chafing the Sarazins thence, and continued warre alwayes ther afterward against them, which gaue no small case vnto the Spaniardes, who were mightily oppressed and ouerburdened before.

Then he made an expedition into Ita: ly, against the revolted Lombards and Italians. Many the like into Germany, against the Bauarians, the Danes, Bobemians, Sclauonians, and Vuinides, all warlike people, and whom hee conquered. Also against the Hannes, an vindaunted people, after they had gotten habitation in Pannonia; under the conduct of Attila their King : wet he vanquished them, and hewd them in peeces in many fought battailes, plucking out of their throats the spoiles of Europe, which they had enjoyed and triumplied ouer for so many yeares. And there he found fuch wealth and aboundance of riches, as the very simplest fouldiour in the Camp, was wonderfully rich for ener

Furthermore, he had no meane medling with the Saxons, against whom hee had warre for the space of three and thire Saxons tor 3 ty yeares: they being a people that could yeeres.

cainft the

Aaron the great Calyfte f the East.

Chap.3.

His warre a.

He was loued

and teared by

the Emperor

of Constan-

Eginhard in Ant.lib.q.cap.

tinople.

neuer liue nor abide in quiet, revolting inceffantly, especially when they knew this Prince to be farre off from them. & troubled in some other places. Hee added to his owne estate Gascoingny, a great part of Spaine, Saxony, and the Pannoniaes : restraining so powerfully the ordinary cour fes of the Sarrazines, as all Europe lyued quietly vnder his reigne. Belide, hee was to redoubted, loued, and admired altogither by forraigne Kings, that Aaron, Calyffe of the East, who held (well-neere)all Afia, and was feared by all the greatest Kings: fought for his friendship, and sent him rare presents at divers times, anouch ing him to be the most woorthy King in the whole world. And although this Caluffe was rude and harth unto Christians, that dwelt in his countries; yet notwithstanding, he forbare to perfecute them,in confideration of Charlemaigne, to whom he game the City of terufalem, by fending him the keyes thereof, as also them of the holy Sepulcher. The Emperours of Canstantinople alfo did fo effeeme, loue, and honor him, that oftentimes they fent him rich giftes by their Ambassadours, dreading nothing more, then to have any contending in warre against him. In like manner, Alphonfus King of Gallicia, and of the Asturues, would call himselfe no other, but with this qualification towardes Great Charles, His humble and faithfull Subject, wholly to him; Propries fues in Latine, as Eginhard hath recorded.

But what can be thought more admirable, or tearmed to bee a matter more rare, then in a Prince that was so stout a warriour, all other civill vertues and most humane, should have an equal meeting together? Singular clemency did euermore accompany his victorious arme. The same Eginhard reporteth, that hee could not be enforced to choller, by any occasion whatsbeuer. Nay he would nener yeeld, that one of them which had attempted against his life and State, should be put to death, but onely was contented with their fafe keeping. In his victory against the Lombards, hee did not onely pardon Paulus Warnefridus, Deacon of Aquileia: but also kept him neere about his person, greatly honouring and gratifying him, for the effective of his crudition and knowledge.

This Lombard was vnworthy of fo great grace, in conspiring afterward with other Rebels, and vling treason against his King and Benefactor. VVho neuertheles, after he had discouered the conspiracy, & Good nature in a Prince furmounted all that the resolute could do, may be too againe he pardoned this Paulus Warnifri- much abuted dus, being no way willing, that he should by Traitor. be punnished for his perfidie and rebellion. Onely he commanded his retirement, and banished him (tor a while) to a cerraine place. Afterward hee brake the bounds of his banishment, and fledde to Ragaifius, Duke of Beneuento, to excite him alfo to reuolt. An occasion, whereby the king was councelled, greenously to punnish both the one and other for this double treason. Yet the good Prince would lend no eare thereto, but faued & pardoned both their lines; onely he charged Paulus Warnefridus, to write the Hiftory of the Lombards, the continuation a wronged of Europe, and some other works.

This was not only a light punishment, but honourable also to him that had the charge thereof: wherein, beside a most fingular example of clemency, appeared an admirable affection vnto learning, for that onely respect, to love and honor the man, who had so often faine into treason. Such was the love & great account which he made of learning; and himfelfe, albeit living in an age vngracious enough,& full of barbarifme, yet did hee speake Latine elegantly, and his mother tongue fo readily euen with naturall eloquence and admirable perswasion: hee vnderstoode Greeke alfo, but spake it hardly. Beside, he was well feene in all the Sciences, hauing Alcumus to bee his Schoole-mafter. All dinner while, heccanfed one to difcourfe or reade ancient Histories: wherein he tooke no meane pleasure, but moulded thereafter the forme of his owne

No leffe was he to bee commended for his justice, carefull for rendring it to His lustice & his subjects with all sincerity; himselfe taking knowledge of fuch causes as concerned any difficulty, vndertaking the defence and protection of VViddowes, Orphanes, and other miferable people, to warrant them against all oppressions of the mighty. Having also established many good Lawes and Ordinances, for the rooting vp of vices, and furtherance of iuof the West towards Germany, and valiantly imbarred the courses of the Northerly people, from their manifold inualions. And neuer could any defect or vice be noted in him : but that he was too good, too humane and debonnaire. His piety, zeale, and deuotion towards God and his Church was fuch, as neuer in any man was observed greater. Forty dayes before his decease, hee tooke no other foode, but the bleffed Communion one-

ly, which he received with wonderful humility, and extraordinary contrition:

continuing alwayes in prayer, or caufing

to be fung in his prefence and hearing the cheefe whereof was Hugh Capet, villued

from the house of Saxony; who happily reigned, and wifely gouerned his Kingdome, with much piety and suffice . His

Sonne Robert, with like piety and integrity of life, loued Learning, and was fo

earnestly addicted thereto, that hee himfelfe composed fundry Books; and among the rest, he wrote many goodly & pious

Hymns, which were received, and are yet

(at this present) sung in the Church. Of him it is thus credibly reported, beeing

(at a certain time) mockt by an ignorant

Duke, because hee fung in the Church among Ecclesiasticall persons, hee made him this answer : That he better affected to fee a King learned, then an Affe Crowned, making his allusion vnto the Duke, who warehis Dukall Crowne on that folemn

Come we now to the third race, the Ecclefiafticall offices.

fice. In regard of his piety and fingulare | the yeare VCCC, when that acclamatidenotion, hee made sufficient apparance thereof, as remaineth witneffed to this day in strange Countreys, by his wealthy foundation of Churches and Monasteries. He was ordinarily present at solemn prayers in the Church, and at all Canonicall houres, even in the night time. Great care had hee, that divine service should be honourably celebrated, & the Churches well ferued, despending great fummes of money, to have them fitted the fu and furnished with all convenient rich naire. Omaments, and matters to them belon-

130

Hee caused

fine Councel to be called &

helde for the good of the Church.

Moreouer, he was fomewhat prouident and curious, that the church should be beautified and shining, by the probity, integritie, and fanctitie, expressed in the lines of the Ministers, and Ecclesiasticall persons to them appertayning. Being alwayes heerein fo carefull, and for effablishment of the better order, that hee caused fine Councelles to bee called and holden, and collecting the Decrees of them, made the to be published & obserued: holding nothing in more great rehonoured, and flourishing in all holines. manner. He was liberall vnto all men, especiallie to the poore, as well of his owne Kingdome, whom hee mercifully relected: as alfo in straunge countreyes, whereto hee fent rich Almes; alwayes coucting frendfwage the persecutions of poore Christi-

But about all the rest, one thing seemeth very strange, that Ambition could Charlemaign neuer gette footing in the foule of this Prince, although it had beene, and it, a frequent and ordinary disease, in the very greatest courages, and most generous spirits. For, although hee was crowned Emperor of the East at Rome, by Pope Lee the third, uppon the cries and acclamations of the Roman people; who both defired and elected him : yet let mee tell ye, it was to farre from any fearch or proacciding thereto in him, as hee knew nothing thereof, neither ever gave his confent thereto. For Eginbard affureth, hauing heard himfelfe to confirme it, that if hee had knowne the purpose of the Pope and people; he would not have gone into the Church on Christmasse day, in on, election, and corronation was performed. It was a thing to much against his minde, and whereof hee made fuch flender reckoning. Hee dyed at the age of threefcore and eleuen yeares, having reigned seuen and forty yeares. And, at his height of humane felicity, hee left his Charlening Sonne Lewes his fuccessor, and heyre to his vertues, who for his exceeding great mildenesse and meekenesse, deserved the fur-name of Pious, or the Debon-

In his yong yeares, his Father made him King of Aquitaine, where he carryed himselfein such fort, gouerning so wiely and with fuch discretion, that fuch pru- Father Chardence and vertue was highly admyred.e- lemaigne. specially in those tender yeeres. Himselfe rendred inflice to his subjectes, attending thereon three dayes in enery weeke. Hee vsed great judgement for well choosing men of worth and merite, to vndergoe places of important charge, as Officers and Magistrates. Hee eased the people fo much as possibly hee could, in taking away harde Tributes and Sublidges, and commendation, then to see the Church | moderating others, euen in the mildest

And yet notwithstanding, hee was a good Warrior, not onely in defending & lake keeping his owne Frontiers: but also warriour, conproceeding very farre into Spain, tomake quering the warre vpon the inuading Sarazins, whom Spaine. shippe with the Easterne Kinges, to af- he foyled in many battels, encounters, & beliedgings of Citties conquered by him. hauing maintained and enlarged the lads of his Father Charlemaigne, which he had wonne in Spaine. So that by his Vertues. wife carriage and deportment, hee gave a wonderfull contentment to his Father. Hee succeeded him in the kingdome of Frace, and in the Empire of the East. He continued warre against the Sarrazins in Spaine, & weakned them in fuch fort, that he gaue good means to the Spanish chriftians, to defend themselves against them and to extend their territories farther off. Marineus Siculus, who wrote the historic of Spain, declareth the expeditions of this | Mannews in | (m. junit). 9. Marineus Sicu French Emperour, reporting moreouer, that he imposed a tribute on the people. which were conquered and subjected by him in Spaine : where he was cald in the dayes of this Author Romanfanos.

He conscrued in greatnes the Empire

The 3. race of kings in Frace the first being Hugh Caper,

His zeale and

Chap.3.

His loue and

Aworthy an-

Hee was very pittifull, and a great Almoner on the poores behalfe; fo that when hee tooke his owne repast, great charity to the troopes of poore people were admitted poore, and eto be about him, whom hee would fuffer freely to come neere him, and gaue vnto them that foode which was fet there before him, & many other things that they Rood in neede of. Nor was hee a jotte lesse liberall to Churches, in causing many to be builded, founded, and endowing them bountifully, as also re-establishing and enriching others. There was no want in him likewife of all other royall vertues, maintaining and conferuing his estate very wel, and making the people happy, that were under his obedience.

I am feigne to passe ouer others, to come to King Lewes the fixt, firnamed Le Gros, a true imitator of his Auncestours, KL-westhe vertues. He imployed all his life time, to the Grosse or containe his people in peace and quyetnesse, and / according to the dutie of a good King) to thield them from opposed fion of the greatest & most potent Earles and Barons of France, who flood then vepon very peremptory tearmes. Which made him to attempt divers wars agayn (t them youn that occasion, and oftentimes expose his life to dangers, preferring the well-fare of his people, before all other confiderations whatfocuer, and fo he wel witneffed from time to time.

After he had chaftifed and raunged all fuch as had revolted, flying from him vp- The Emperor pon the like occasions, and was become feared, respected, and obeyed of all the great army a-Rebels, as also beloued of all his subjects. the Emperor Henry the fift, being departed from Germany with a mighty & dreadfull Army to ouer run him and his country, he went to meet him nere to Rhemes. having but a handfull of men with him. But he fo affrighted the Emperor Henrie, and all the potent Army with him, that fearing the valour and invincible arme of the French, whose courage will give way to nothing whatfocuer : he thought it farre better for him to quit the place,& get him gone, then to hazard his estate againft fo valiant a King, though hee yeas attended but with so small a troope. And fo this Emperor made his retreate, at the very novic of the Kings comming, whose name (indeed) was very dreadfull.

This Prince also excelled in Piety and Vertues pro-Religion, vertues proper to the Kinges of France: being the true props, supports, France. and Bulwarkes to the Church. For we reade, that in his time, Pope Paschall the fecond came into France for refuge, and to confult with the Gallicane church, concerning those differences which he hadde with the Emperor. And afterwardes, the Popes Calixius the second, Honorius the fecond, and Innocentias the fecond being tormented and expulsed by the Emperors of Germany, and brought to great mifery, yet fuccoured in that kingdome, their ordinary retreat and refuge. Hee entertained them honourably, affifting them with riches, respecting them worthily & royally. In the end, having succoured them to his vemost power, he tooke pains to pacify those discords and contentions.

Le Groffe, & retired thence without Ori king a blow.

Suggerus in vit Ludous Grofsi.

Eginbard in Antiq1. 5 4.10

could neuer

be tempted by a thought of Ambition.

Chap.3.

The King of

marcheth his

armie againfl

the encuny.

Sugger. Abbat Mort Ludeni Grofe.

Lewes the a.

fucceedeth.

Leweslegro

his Fasher

172

Something more I may adde concerning his death, as it is fer downe by Suggerus, Abbot of Saint Denis, his principall friend, and an eve-witnesse thereof. Feeling the end of his life approching, & the holy Eucharist being brought to him. he arose out of his bed to meete it, falling downe on his knees, and receiving it with great denotion. Having before taken order for al his affaires, and made both profession of his faith, and confession of his finnes, in the hearing of all there present. Afterward, being taken foorth of his bed again, & laid vpon aftes dispersed abroad he gaue vp the ghost.

His Sonne Lewes the feuenth, called. The Touthfull, was a true refembler of his Father, having joyned piery and valiancy together. By the counfell of S. Bernard he made a voyage into Palestine to helpe it with a puiffant Army, against the inuasion of the Turkes. And having obtained many great victories against the enemies of the Christian Faith, he returned home to his Kingdome, preffed by the discommodities of Famine, where-with his Armie was very fore afflicted, thorough the disloyalty of the Emperor of Constantine-

VVho can fufficiently admire the valor Philip Auguand good guidance of Phillip Augustus, who (by good right) also carried the surthe Con icname of Conqueror? At the age of foureror, came to the Crown at teene yeares, he tooke into his hand the 14.yearc .. f reines of the State, and in that tender age performed all exploites and actions, not onely of valiancy, but also of a great and perfect Captaine; watching & spending whole nights, to execute and accomplish his enterprizes. By which meanes, hee out-flept his enemies, tooke Towns and ftrong places, where himfelfe would bee scene in person at the scalado, yea, and at the affault at the breake of day, instead of addicting himfelfe to pleafures, whereto his youth might rather have induced him He fo vanquished his enemics, and chasti> bin another Alexander. Afterwards, the English being prouoked against him, gaue the better and more worthy subject to his victories: for he conquered and tooke from them all that they held in France, weakning them in divers battailes, and famous encounters. Also this Conqueror, incited by the fame pie-

fed rebels in fo tender yeares, as if hee had

ty of his Ancestors, made a voyage to the Holy Land; where he fought divers times against the Turkes and Sarazins, and carryed many triumphes from them. Beeing returned home to France, he wonne that great day of Bouines, neere vnto Tournay, which I will touch a little more largely in The gran this place, it being scarfely known, though day of Bouing (indeed) it was most signale and famous. nereto Tour-For this king fought in that battel, against | nay. the forces of the Emperour Otho the fift. the King of England, the Earles of Flanders, Henault, and Bologne, all conjured a. gainst his estate.

Those Earles being revolted and leagued with the King of England, had likewife caused the emperor Othe the fifte, to the businesse come into Fraunce, with a very great and between the puissant army of Germanes and Saxons. Emperor and VVith them were joyned the Forces of confederate Flanders, Henault, and other French subiects and vaffals, affociated with the Earl of Bologne. The King went on before with his Army, and met the enemy fomewhat neere to Tournay, where he had Lodged him aloft in a place for his best aduatage: which the King hauing well perceived, & that he was frustrate of all meanes for coming at them on that fide, resolued to fetch a further course about, and to assaile them on the other fide.

Being withdrawne to effect this intent, the Emperor Otho taking it for a flight, did cause his army to march on with speed to ouertake the King, who was encamped in a village called Bouines. There he had intelligence how the enemy was come very neere, and the noyfe of theyr armes gaue apparance, that they would fall in hande presently with them, and charge the rereguard: all which notwithstanding before hee would doe any thing elfe, hee entred first into a Church, and there sayde his

Afterward, being armed, hee mounred on horse-backe, giving order for the The Kridch Armies readinesse, riding thorough the his armiein rankes, for the better disposition of his readings. people; yet nothing at all was done that day. On the morrow morning, having againe ranged his Army in battaile array, hee gaue his people a Kingly encouragement, by breefely acquainting them with these circumstances: That they were to fight with one, who was an enemy vinto

God and Men, come to lend a strong

The maner of

The Kinges horfe flaine under him, & e remounted y Sir Peter

ura his back

no other wages then facriledges, spoiles of the Churches goods, and the blood & flaine under him, and hee fore wounded. teares of the poore. Therfore they were his throate threatned to bee cut by a Vilto confider, that God had brought them thither, to punish their just defernings, & had chosen the French for the instrument of his justice. Hee further adulfed his foldiers, that they should not labor to buckler the bodyes one of another : but eueric man to do for himfelfe the best he could, without any eye or respect to his friend and companion.

Haning animated them with fuch or the like speeches, he caused his Army first to march on, affayling and tharply ferting on that of the enemy. The French Cheualiers, after they had broken their Lances, came to handy-blowes, fighting with all the heate and valour could be denifed: throwing themselues into the middest of the maine battell, piercing and passing peeces, and overthrowing all that durst meete them. Great was the reliftance, & wonderfull deeds of Armes perfourmed on either fide. The King was alwaies the most forward man, rushing into the greahimfelfe enuironed with a huge battalion of enemies, where hee sharpely layed about him on all fides, and cleared his paffage still as he rode on. But in the end, his horse being slaine between his legges fell downe vppon him; yet he was quickly remounted againe by a French knight, called Sir Peter de Tristan, who gaue him his owne horfe.

Now charged hee the enemy more fiercely then before, his strength & courage being redoubled at the indignation of his fall, nor ceafed he with his French Lords, who neerely followed him, vntill he came to the very midft, where the Emperor Otho was, he being then very linely affayled.

Heere did he meet with many French Knights, who being on foot, fome tooke hold on his bridle, others hung about the neck and maine of his horfe to flay him . which compelled him to turne his backe. But the Count Reignald de Belogne, hee would not budge a foote from the fielde ofbattell, but continued there & his followers valiantly fighting, eucn to all ex-

hand to Rebels, leading an army that had, tremities, willing (by no means) to yeeld himfelfe, till in the end, his horfe beeing laine, he yeelded himselfe to Lorde Guarin, a Knight of Saint Johns of Jerusalem, and elected by shop of Senlis, one of the principall Captains for the King, faying, The noble I had rather yeeld my felfe, and be indeed by worder of thad rather yeeld my jeise, and ve inaged of Couni Rig. the King and his Peeres, then to dye vinwor-nald of Bothily by the hand of a flane. So the fielde of battaile remained vnto

the King, as also the victorie full & wholly, all the enemies being broken and feattered, a great part of them flaine, and very many taken prisoners, cuen of the chiefest men. The King would permit none to purfue the Emperor, who fledde with the Count of Brabant, and many Germans further off then two or three Leagues. Among the prisoners, was Ferrand Earle of Henaulte, Nephew to the Queen, Counthrough the thickest battalions, hewing in tesse of Flanders, and Daughter vnto the King of Portugall. Shee being a medier with Magicall Sciences, would needes confult with her Duiners, concerning The Counthe successe of this Battaile, and it was telle of Plantolde her, That the King Should be layde on ders decented by her Wie test throngs; and where the fight was fier- the ground, without any Sepulcher: And saids. ceft, to succour his people. Hee tound | that Ferrand Earle of Henaulte, her Cofine, Should enter Paris in Triumph. All vyhich was true, but farre off from her interpre-

It is also faithfully reported, that the King before the fight, in presence of all his Earles, Barons, and Lords (knowing full well that some were tottering and vncertaine, as beeing not thorowly affected to him) tooke the Crowne from off his head, and fet it vppon an Altar, flanding by him, faying in this manner. If there Motthoners bee any man heere amongst yee, that thinkes ble worder the King be more capeably and worthily of himselfe, then fore hee went this day to fight for libertie, beeing in fuch to the fight. danger, both to the Honour and Renowne of France: let him willingly leane and for fake this Crowne, and that man (what focuer bee bee) let him boldly put this Crowne woon his bead. Whereat all of them standing amazed, and being mooued with admiration and enflamed affections, threw them felues before his feete, faying ; That they were all his humble feruants, and that they would every one of them dye with him that day, rather then be commanded by any other.

The English incited to armes, againf Philip Augu

Lewes the 8. offer to Phiiip Augufius-

Lewesthen fireamed S Lewes,areligrous king & a worthy Sol

The victory at Tailleboure on the River Charante in Poidu.

His famous gainft the Sarrazina.

ry, Monsieur Lewes de France, eldest Son to the King; wonne another against the English, in the Country of Aniou, at La Roche du Mayne, against the King, called Inhamithout Land. For this double victory, obtayned both in one day, the King rendred thanks to God: and defiring that fome marke might remayn for a Trophee thereof to all posterity, hee caused an Abbey to be builded neere to Senlis, which (in that respect) he named, The Abbey of Victory, and endo wed it with great reuen-

I can hardly flay at Lewes the eight, Son Some & Suc- to this King and Successor in his vertues, wherein he seconded him living, and partaked in many of his expeditions and enterprizes. But reigning to short a time after his Father; I must come to the King, called S. Lewes, whose piety, religion, and fanctity of life, bath fufficiently commended him to all men, & acknowledged him by quality, worthy the name of Saint. But that which is to bee reckoned as a matter most rare is that he excelled no lesse in all other vertues, both Military & Politique. He brought about many warres, wherein still he had a finger, and performed worthy exploits of Armes: beeing most valiant of his person, & a very wile Capraine. ... Hee toyled and droue in diforder a great Army, wherein was the King of England, and the Counts dela Marche, and de Lufignan, at Taillebourg, on the Riuer Charante in Politu. Where having gotten before, with very fewe people, to winne a Bridge, long time he endured all the Thratagems of the enemies Army, which was in number a hundred to one: yet hee performed fo much by his valiancy, that his Army had leyfure for theyr paffage whereby the enemies were defeated, a great number flaine, many taken prisoners, some say foure thousand, and the rest were dispersed and driven to

No where can be found more famous deeds of Armes, or any actions more generous, then his kingly expeditions against the Turkes and Sarrazines, where he wonne the bestin many foughten battailes, hazarding his owne perfon, and expoling himfelfe to all dangers, even in the checteft heate of fight, running where he faw the enemy strongest, and his owne

The selfe-same day of this great victo- | followers in any distresse. So that wherefocuer he went, hee made all to give him way, none beeing able to withfland him; but gaue place to the greatnesse of his courage, and strength of his powerfull arme. The Lord of Joinuille, an eye-witneffe thereof, speaking of one day among others, vied thefe very words.

And bee you very certaine, that that day the King perfourmed most high deedes of Lesieur de tomail in de Armes, more then ever I faw in all the Bat- 29. Chapter tailes whereat Thave beene present. And one of law Book. Saide after the Battaile, that if it had not bene for his person, wee had all beene veterly lost and flaine that day: And furely, I can no otherwise imagine, but at the very instant, his vertue and strength was doubled on himby the grace of God . For hee feared not a iote to thrust himselfe into the dangers and perils of the battaile: and where he faw his people in any distreffe, there he laide most about him to helpe them, delivering fo many blowes with his Sword and Battle-Axe, as none of the Turkes durft come neere him . The Lord of Courtnay and Messire Io'nn de Salony reported to mesthat they faw fixe Turks (the fame Kings Hoit, day) preparing sowards the King, and hadde forcibly laide hold on the bridle of his Horfe, from theath intending to leave him away . But the vertuous Prince, feeing the danger wherein hee was , strone with all his might , and (in meere height of courage) laide fuch loading strokes uppon the Turkes which ledde him, so that hee alone freed himselfe from

In another place the fame Lord relateth, that the king vnderstanding how the Earl of Anion his Brother was engirt & hemd in with enemies, yea, and in fuch extremity, as hee had no meanes to get out from them; he gallowped immediately to refcue him. And (faith he) without tarrying In the p. for any man, gauethe Spurs to his horfe, his Chapterof Sword in his hand, & rushed mainly into the Howite his battaile; charging the Turkes and Sarrazins referred in heavily contillhe came to the place where his Brother the Brother was. But at his arrivall, God knowes miou. what paines he tooke, and how many worthy deeds of Armes bee did: for it is most certaine, that where bee faw the greatest danger and prease, there hee bestowed himselfe without any feare. So that by his admirable proweffe he brought his Brother out of danger, and droue the Sarrazines to flight, chafing them quite out of their owne Hoaft or nihe 12.

Another

was ready to affaile the enemy, & exhorted his followers to all forwardnesse: His Helmet (fayth he) was richly gilded, and in his hand he held a fivord of Germanic, readily drawne. But let me tell yee, that I never Taw a more goodly man then he was, for hee appeared about all the rest, by the beight of his head and (boulder : and it is a thing hard. ly to be credited, how chearefully all the Soldiours were encouraged to the battaile, when they but looked on the King in that manner. So that many Knightes, without attending for the King, mingled themselves amongest the Turkes, and there affayled them couragiously. The King wwould alwayes be the for-most , and when he came neere to the Turkes, the battaile beganne lo fiercely, as it was a matter maruellous to behold. And that verie day, there were far more woorthy actions of Armes performed, as well on the one fide; as the other, as never had beene observed in all the voyages beyond the Seas . For no man drew a Dart, an Arrow, nor other Artillery: but all of them fought manfully, hand to hand, allpel-mell, one with another, onely by stroakes of Swords and Battle Axes. Further hee addeth : That the King did more then meruayles in fighting, and would alwayes bee in the werie strongest of the Bat-

After the rout and flight of the Turks, at his descent and taking of Damieta, and after the three great battailes in Egypt, betweene the Channels of Nilus, where he obtained full victory; if famine, and a certaine strange disease (extraordinarily contagious) had not falne amongst his people: it had bene Doomeiday vnto the Turkes and Sarrazins, and doubtles, they had benequite exterminated, both out of Egypt, and the Holy Land. The Intidels

fo admired the vertue of this Prince, that although he was contrary to them in Religion, and their very feuere perfecutor.

yet after the death of their Soldan, it was offered to him, and they would have ele-Addhim to be their Lord. And they had red to alter this deliberation, by alledging

him to be the firmeft, fierceft, and moft determinate Christian that euer they did know. And they faid among themselves a Thaif their Mahamet had fuffered them to feele fo many mischiefes as his God hadde let

A very manly

great battails ought in E-

The King of France elect-The King of France electric done it, as beeing a matter already refole done be sold used on among them: but that fome labo-

Another day, speaking how the King | him (being a Ring) to taste: they would never more have adored or beleeved un him. And yet (neuertheleffe) fome amongst them. onely by the example, and good Life of this holye King, received the Christian

Moreover, he ordained to well for the flate and policy of his Kingdome: that his full for his Subjects (beeing before mightily oppref + kingdome, as fed) lived in perfect peace and quiernes. well in his He vied great wifedome und prouidence presence. in all his affayres, having thoreby quenched and qualified many troubles and commotions in his kingdome; and by taking away the causes thereof, constrained the Dake of Bretaigne to acknowledge him. and render fuch fatisfaction as himlelfe defired. With very much judgement alfo he pacified the differences with the Englith, and induced the king of England to fuch friendlineffe, as he becam his Liegeman by faith, and one of the Barons of France: fo that hee left not any war to his fucceffors, which caused them to enjoy so long a peace.

Aboue all other things, he loued In- Nomeand ADoug all other things, he loued luflore especially, and was verie carefull thereof in himselfe; correcting (by his owne example, and holye Ordinances) such Vices and Abuses as reigned among aprecious exin Chical Linear Control of the Control to Chical Control his Subjects. Hee was fuch a Louer of his people. trueth, that (as the Lord of Jonuille faith) He was never knowne to fallify bu Word. In chapter 19 of his Booke, For, it was reported vnto him, That the Sarrazines, in receyuing his Ranfome. were discontented with tenne thousand pounds, he caused more to bee given to

. Neuer could any feare or mif-fortune disfurnish him of reason; but ever-more he was thankfull to God in all his adversities. When he faw his army in danger, by no meanes in the world, or for fafetie of his owne person, would hee part from it; but would alwayes abide by his people. and endure (with them) the latest hazards and enents of fortune. Neuer should hee make an end, y would recount the deeds (well deferuing immortality) of this good King. It shall suffice then to say, as the fame Lord of Jonuille reports of his time. The common people called him true Father; Inchapter 16 the Wobility, just Prince, and preferner of ot his Booke. the Lawes , France, ber King of Truth, and the Church ber Tutor and defender from op-

N 2

the Pucelled

gu in Philippo lertio.

K Philip en-

tred Spaine,

and killed the

Kof Arragon

In the same Schoole was bred and norished Philip the third to whom the good ly examples, and profitable instructions ceafed in AS of this good King his Father, ferued as frice at the the an absolute pattern and excellent infiltution, which he vnderstoode so well, and made profit of in fuch fort, as, although he got not fo great a name, yet notwithflanding, he was the most worthy hevre ofhis Fathers vertues. And albeit S. Zewes dyed at the fiedge of Thunk in Affrica, making warre the fecond time against the Infidels; yet this young Prince gaue fo good affurance to the Armie, much danted by the death of the King; that hee bare away many famous victories from his enemies, although they exceeded his ftrength in huge multitudes: In the end, he constraind the king of Thuris, to come humbly, and entreate for peace: rendering himfelfe, and his Vnckle Charles king of Sicily tributaries to him.

Afterwards, returning home towards France he passed thorow staly, where he was entertained with fuch fauour and applaufes by all the inhabitants, as the most barr came and entreated him, that hee would take the command oner them, defiring (aboue all things elfe) to be gouerned by fo good a King, fo louing and re-fpective of his people. Beeing returned into his owne kingdome, he maintayned it in peace a long time; vntill being mollefted by the King of Arragon, and the Count de Foix, hee underrooke Armes. Hecreupon he entred into Spaine, where hauing made war very happily, by affault he tooke many places reputed impregnawith an army, ble, conquered a great part of the kingdome of Arragon, ouerthrew the Arragemians in divers encounters, and flew their King, fo returning home-ward with Triumphall victory he died at Parpignan!

> But one thing may not becomitted. that this king most oftentimes did weare fackcloath, and a thirt of haire, living fo holily, and viing fuch abilinence, that the Authors of those times were enforced to confesse, that he rather refembled a good Religious man, then a King, Yer was rec a great Prince, & knew well enough how to vouerne his kingdome.

Charles the Charles the fift, descruoth allo to be fee in this ranke of choyle men, being furnamed of his time che Wife. Onely by his ring from his Chamber, he reconquered whatfocuet his Predeceffors liad loft, by the Armies of the English. His provident and well tempered wiledom, did dipers times rebate the keene edged fword of valiant Edward the Prince of Wales and disappointed many of his forwarde purpofes; lo that, notwithstanding his high spirit, and well ordered Armies: he gained very little from him, nor yet the King of England his Father, but what they wonne one day, they loft againe in another Heere also I cannot omit Charles the feuenth, who comming to the Crowne, his kingdome (for the most part) was in Charles the much molethe power of the English: but yet recove- Red by the red it myraculously, as not onely hee're-gained what he had loft, but alfo(as fome fay) all that the Englishmen did hold in France, wishing them to rest contented with their owne Island. And heere methinkes it is very ftrange, what all Historians have reported of those times, that this king, being toyled & wearied by the long warres of the English, to him much vnprofitable, and leffe pleafing: fhould yet be excited by a poore Maide, dwelling in a village of Lorraine, named loane d' Arc. For the being brought before him, & being of great resolution, made him manie France. faire remonstrances, whereby to entice and kindle his courage, for the recoverie of his kingdome, and expulsion of his enimies, which furely could not beebur by miracle. And it cannot be denied but that there was a Genius in this Maide, far furpassing the natural and ordinary condition of her fexe. And so much the more strange, because the served as a Captaine, conducted the Armies, and fought verie valiantly, when as occasion ferued.

Non hac fine numine diutin tueniunt.

Confider we also Charles the eight, his yongest fon, who having past into staty, to charles the reconquer that which the Arragonians v- for to Chull furped from his predeceffours, filled all the 7. the Citties and Townes of Italy (at his arritiall, with no meand terror of his armes. none being found thet durft make heade againfilim. Every Citty Submitted to him, and fet open their gares, in meer af-fection and respect, both to the vertile of councell and good aduice, without fur? the French and dread of their name . "O'

with them. So that in leffe then five moneths, he made himfelfe Mafter of all Italy, Geneway, Florence, Pifa, Sienna and Li-The country burma being all in his power. He recon-Croatia, be weene Iftria, quered the whole kingdom of Naples, and and Dalmati. expelled them of Arragon, who had vniustly vsurped there.

voiage agains fecond.

Chap.3.

The Great Turke Baiazeth the fecondfeared nothing more then tomeddle with him.& questionles, he would have gon to affault him in Constantinople, wherein hee had flut vp himfelfe in meere feare, if vrgent occasions had not called him backe to France, making ful account to recurne thither againe afterward, to attempt that great and honourable expedition against the Turkes, whereunto hee was induced and called on all fides, & for divers good confiderations. At his comming backfor France, two maine impediments presented themselves to him, as well in regarde of difficult waies and mountaines, where (of necessity) hee was to passe his Artillery: as for daunger of enemies in fuch places, where they might worke vpon aduantage many wayes; his army beeing alfo much afflicted with famine.

Beside all this, a league was made against The Venetihim, by the Venetians, the Duke of Milon, the Duke of Millaine, & laine, and other Potentates, who had leuiother Princes ed an army of 40000 men, to cut him off leagued aquite: but yet hee furmounted all thefe Charles, and difficulties, and paffed through the daunyer were toy gers without any loffe. The Armie of 40000 men was encamped on the Plaine of Fornoue, where it was most requisit for the King to paffe, they purpofing to lock him vppc in this paffage, to the end, that they might confume his army, with Famine necessity, and miserie, amongst the Mountaines where he was. The king with 7000 able fighting men onely, affronted this great army, gaue them battell, paffed ouer the bellies of all them that hindered his way; and there was flaine about foure thousand of them, the rest beeing driven to rout, or feized with feare, he full aining but very little loffe, about thirtie French flaine, and fome threefcore Varlets. So not onely he referred his army, which hee

led in fafety with all his traine, baggage,

Artillery, and carriages, but also fought his enemies, which was a much more ho-

A very (mall Kings fide a-Familt forgreat an Army.

thers for feare, not beeing able to contest | thousand, so highly renowned by the Greekes.

An example of rare vertue is recorded of him. At the surprizal of a certaine Abriefe kiplace in Italy, a young Maid (of most ex-tring admiraquifite beauty) flying from his Soldiours, the vertue in this King. who woulde have violated her honour: came and threw her felfe at his feete, defiring him earneftly, to defend her from the force and outrage of his fouldiers. As indeed he did; but yet himselfe fel into an amorous affection toward her, & having her private in his Chamber, with full intent to accomplish his pleasure, the Maid all drowned in tears, humbly defired him on our knees, supplicating and adjuring him in the name of the bleffed Virgin, the vntoucht mother of the worlds Saujour, whose picture the saw hanging by his bed that hee would take pitty on her, and not compell her to that, for fafety wherof the had escaped from his ranishing Soldiers, and purher felfe wholly into his handes . The King became mooued in fuch fort, that being transported with lone and pas- and honor is fion, and in the braue gallantry of his unly innated, youth, he made a Kingly conquest of him fester was the fester power to fester, and bedewing his cheeks with tears, prenale. as beeing much afhamed at his immodeft offer, he would not touch her in any vnciuill or vnchaste fashion, but gaue her most honourable freedome, with a verice liberall Dowrie to her marriage, fetting prifoners. Surely, this was an acle verie ffrange and almost invraculous, if wee consider him to bee a King, in the very vigour & flower of his youth, victorious : yet neerely touched with the love of a Mayden, excelling, and no way inferiour vnto any in Beautie, and having her whollie in his primate power. His great wifedome, fingular judgement, and infinite goodnesse heerein appeared; and beeing a familiar Prince, hee would oftentimes fay to his Fauourites ; That hee had made choyle of them, and loved them more then a- King Charles ny other, because he was persimaded of theyr has speeches to his fauorits ly be full feared one fault in them, that they would fuffer him to bee taxed with Anarice, fucceffelully, and hadde the victory ouer in beeing eafily follicited and tempted for acceffe in regard of the credite they hadde nourable Retreate, then that of tenne with him; and his owne facility, in granting alfo at liberty both her Parents and Kindred, that were then (at that inflant) his

Where verme

furnamed t Wile.

fuch matter came to his knowledge, they veterly lost his fauour for euer: for he of-

The great battaile at Rauéthall have oc-fpeake more heereafter.

Frances the

f. II. fuccello

to Lewes the

Of this battel

fpeake heere

cation to tenentreated them, to continue in the true profession of honour, the onely meanes to keep and preferue his good opinion of them. The fame King also vsed to fay, I could wish, that my Court were a Mirror for all my

A worthy and other Subjectes, to maintaine and continue Royall mind them in doing well. The fweete finelling in a King. fauour of this renown, attracted the fouls of ftrangers ynto his love and liking. So that by very just reason, the sur-name might bee accommodated to this good Prince, of The louer and delight of Men: as it was attributed vnto the Emperor Ti-

Sucreeded Charle in the kingdome of France.

His fuccessor Lewes the twell, made himfelfe likewife as famous, by his Con-Lewes the 12 quests of Italy . In the beginning of his reigne, he attempted warre against Lodouico Sforza, who viurped the Dukedome of Millaine, which belonged to him. In lesse space then a Moneth, he conquered all Lombardie, and expulsed Sforza, who making a re-entry afterward, and caufing the people to renolt; the King went thither in person where, after hee had vanquished Sforza (whom hee fent prisoner into France) he reconquered Millain, and receyued the most part of the Potentates Citties, and Common-weales of Italy. which ran (on heapes) to yeelde their obeyfance to him.

theleffe) would poffesse themselues of all:

he submitted himselfe into the handes of the King, who yfed him royally, and gratified him with the Dukedome of Anion, beside thirty thousand Crownes of rent.

Heere (me thinkes) I should not endure

the malignity of Paulus Iouins, who hath fet downe, that the King gaue nothing to Fredericke, and that he dyed miferably in France. Afterward, war was alwaies continued at Naples against the Spaniardes, where were performed many goodly exploits, famous combates of enemy to enimy, charges, skirmiflies, encounters, af-

The fucceffe kingdome of Naples.

Paulus Ioniu taxed with vntrucch.

what they asked. But if afterwards, any, faults, and fallies: and where the French had many victories, & the iffue of all had fucceeded happily, if the enemie had not diuers times abused the King, under colour of treaties of peace, appointments, Spaniardes and arrefts. He beleeuing their plighted Naples. faith and flender affurances, was formtime the more flacke in fuccouring his people; so that their perfidious dealing, rayled a Million of enemies, leagued and conjured against this King, who found himselfe affayled on al fides. And yet notwithfranding, he went away with honour, having astonished and filled with terror, all them that were thus bandyed against him.

He made war vpon the Venetians, in The warrele regard of that which they had detained & made against the Venetians vfurped, during those wars. He entred into their countries, and with a small troop, & in a place of no advantage, in the Guiaradada neere to Agnadell, he gaue battel to Bartholmew d'Aluiana, Generall for the Venetians, and wonne the victory: there being flaine aboue eight thousand of the enemy,many taken prifoners. & the very cheefest Commander himselfe.

Concerning that dayes feruice, two memorable favings of his are recorded. Two memo-The one was at his arrivall there, when it rable fayings hadbin told him, that the enemy had taken vp Agnadell, and he came too late to battell. haue any lodging there, hee returned this reply, I will lodge upon their belly, or they shall lodge on mine . The other, was at his being fo neere the enemies Artillery, as it might very easily play vpon the place; From thence he' fent an Armie to the kingdome of Naples, which had revolted he was aduited to walke wanderingly, for feare he should thereby be offended, hee after the departure of King Charles the 8. Then Fredericke, King of Arragon, seeing made answer; Neuer was King of Fraunce Smitten by a Cannon's bullet : And he that is he could not refift him, and being offenafraid (quoth hee) let him come and stand ded at the perfidie of the Spaniards, who he had called to his ayde, and who (neuerbehinde me.

Vpon the fuccesse of this victory, those places in Lombardie, which appertained Places in to the Venerians, were feized and made Lombardie, vse of by this King: but afterwardes, they belonging were manfully recourred by the Confe- lerzed by il derates, with whom Ferdinand, King of King. Castile, was a partaker, quite contrary to the contractes (not long before) paffed by him vnto the French King, But the Lordes of Trimouille, of Chaumont, Trivulce, and other woorthy French Captaines, referred them backe againe fo powerfully, that they continued alwayes Warriors. In the end, was given the bat-

War continu

peror Charls

An admirable disposition in a king.

taile of Rauenna, where the French van- jeuer) line commended to posterity, for King Frances quished a puissant Army of Italians and Spaniards joyned together. And an entire victory had enfined on the taking of Rauenna; but that they loft their cheefe Capna, wherof we taine Gaston de Foix, Duke of Nemours,& Nephew to the king, who was flaine by purfuing (ouer-earnestly) the enemies. broken and flying in confusion.

The excellency of this good king confifted not onely in greatnesse of courage and valiancy; but likewife in all other vertues. Aboue all, he was most highly commendable, for loue to his people, to who (notwithstanding all his other serious affaires) he was a Royall eafe and comfort: fo that this famous name was defertfully giuen him: Father of his people, and a good

He had as his Successor, Great Frances the first, a Prince as valiant as ever the other had bin, and who in his very youth, and at the beginning of his raigne, onercame the vnconquerable Nation of the Switzers, on the hot and dreadfull day at Marignano, an enterprize, which had neuer before, or at any time fince, succeeded to any other King. A most remarkaable thing in this battaile, was, that fo young a Prince continued feuen & twenty houres in Armes, without receiving any fustenance, and spent one whole night in the fielde of battaile, without lying downe or a nod of fleepe.

This was the man that made head a-He contended gainst the great Emperour Charles the s. with the bar | who neuer met with a keener enemy, nor that more disappointed his designes, or eucry way more hindred him. And yet notwithstanding, it is hardly to be credited, with what honor, magnificence publikely, and courtefie in particular, hee entertained in his kingdome this Emperor, his principall aductfary. And although he with-held some of his estate vniustly, yet would be not demaund any reason for it, when he might well have done it, hauing him in his owne power: but kept inmolably the faith he had given him; and moreouer, gaue him all the contentment

> To speake no more then truth, hee was naturally generous & Royall, which enidently declared, that hee had no other ambition, then to excell all other men in vertue and well doing. He shall (for ehe could defire.

the love which he bare to Learning, and an entire to to learned men : whom hee fought for e- uer of learuery where, entertained, honoured, and ning gratified in all kindes. By which means. he filled France with learning and erudition in all Sciences: but especially the Vniverfity of Paris, which never was fo flourithing, as in his reigne. So that (by good right) he was fir-named, The Father of Learning.

Wee may confesse as much of his Sonne Henry the second, a Prince truely Henry the second Sonne generous and valiant : who continued Successor to warre against the Emperor Charles the 5. King Frances. having fustained all his efforts, and stood continually opposite to his greatest enterprizes. But not long after, Charles the fift walrew himfelte into a Monastery, fearing (as fome supposed) the vertue and fortune of this young Prince, leaving the reignes of his Germane Empire, to Fer- Charles s.em dinand of Austria, being his brother, and peror entreth the kingdome of Spaine to Philip the fe- flery. cond: who foone after made warre vpon the Pope, Paulethe fourth, and then this

ded him, & reconquered the places which the King of Spaine had taken from him.

And in the end, by his entremife, the Pope and the King of Spaine were accorded & reconciled.

King fent succour to his Holinesse, defen-

Occasion now carrieth me, to speake of Great Henry the fourth, miracle of the King Henry world : who gaue place (in nothing) to the to the the vertue of his Predecessours, nor to the king now glory of all the greatest Princes and Mo- reigning. narches that ever were, if he did not furpaffe them. But my Pen is too feeble, to take to high a flight, it is a subject ouerworthy, which ought to bee referred for the choylest spirits of this age, or of poste. rity, if any man conceine themselves capable to vidertake it. For there hath bin fome, the very best and skilfullest writers. who being thereto zealoufly affected began to attempt the labour: but were conftrained to give over and leave it, beeing ouercome with the immense greatnesse of fo many high and admirable actions, acknowledging and confessing, that they could not fet downe any thing, to equall or come neere fo famous merit. What hand can worthily describe so many wonne battailes, fo many Citties and Townes taken (without lofting any

He was reputed to be one of the worthieft Soldiors in all the world

He faucd

France from an expected

and hoped fo

Two ancient worthy fay-

Plato in lib. 2.

De Legib.

raine.

counters? Who can figure him, Thining in h.s glittering Armes, in the fiercest and hottest brunts of fo many sharpe onfets, combates, ranged battailes, affaults, fiedges, and furprizals, making himfelfe way wherefocuer he went? A true Commander and Captaine, for councell and conduct: a most valiant Souldiour, to give example for effect and execution. Finding all France troubled, the people mooued and divided in parts, by the devices and factions of strangers, all Europe (to speake truely) bandied & conjured against him, in very deplorable affayres; he yet gotte the vpper hand of all diffipated all storms and tempests, saued and preserved France fro that ruine, which every one supposed certaine. All the enterprizes of the enemies, ferued but as matter for his Trophees. Looke how many enemies, fee fo many Triumphs, and as many Laurels in his Helmet, to make his vertue the more illustrious, and fill the foules of his owne people and strangers, with terror, amazement and admiration fuch as cannot bee fufficiently spoken off.

He guided all his intentions with fuch wisedome, and executed them with so high a courage, that they could have no other yffue but happineffe: and it plainly appeared, that his vertue led Fortune by the hand i making truely knowne the ancient faying; That the wife man disposeth of Fortune, and on the contrary; It is to flender purpose, to impute that to accident, which produes to be a mans owne error. Nouer did any Prince finde an estate so confused and hurried; and neuer could any reduce it to more peaceable calnines, the he did meerely by his vertue, he not only danted his enemies, but (of chemies) they became his principall friends: A foueraign degree of the fole perfect it of a great Statefman, according to Plate. His valiancy, height of courage, and addresse to actions of Armes were fuch, as admited no comparison therewith: matchlesse clemency euen towards inch as were his most determinate enemies. No acte of cruelty, neyther of renenge, in the very fiercest fury of warre : neuer was his fword feene vnfheathed, but in the hot extremity of fights. His fingular prudence, appeared not one-

ly in the managing of war, and when lice was therein very ferioufly employed; but

one) so many fights and diversity of en- | also in affayres of peace, whe he gave him felfe wholly for the good and quiet of his people, shewing at all times, and in al places, that he was an admirable, good and wife king exquifitely enabled with all perfections. Qualities in such fort incompatible by nature, as fince the beginning of the world, they could hardly meet in any one man: in regard whereof, it hath bene fometime faid & defired that two should be taken to make one of.

> In breefe, all things were fo great and gracefull in him, as fearfely could any one spirit comprehend them: so that (to speak truely) the best that men could do, was to fit downe, and admire them with filence. This was the man, whom not only France Henry the acknowledged, & adored as her Conferuator: but likewise on whom the whole man of men. world cast an eye, as the true Arbitrator. Author, and Moderator of her quietnes. His right to the crown yeelded him to be the cheefest king: but his owne vertues made him confessed to be the most worthy among all other Princes.

In that then which is faid to be the dignity of the French kings, for their rare vertues and great merits; no other people are thought to equall or come neere the. There are certaine vertues, which are termed heroycall or divine, because they surpasse that which is common in men, or of humane vnderstanding, euen as an excesse and hyperbole of vertue. So in Homer, Priamus being defirous to commend the vertue of his Son Heiter, faid, He feemed to be iffued not of a mortall man, but ra- ad. Lib.s. ther of some God. In like manner the Lacedemonians, when they admired any rare or excellent vertue in any one, they would fay, That he was a dinine man. Such great personages hauebeene noted among our Ancients, whose vertues were so extraordinary: that their extraction was attributed to the Gods, as Alexander the great, and Scipio Affricanus: and the very fame heroycall vertues have beene carractred in the foules of French Kings, euen as being proper and particular to them.

It is a matter as common, as naturall, for a man to take Armes in his Name alowne defence, or for his owne priuate brother, and to reuenge his vniust wrongs and injuries. But a man to arme himfelte for another that is offenced, to reuenge his cause in zeale of lustice, without where he had bin formerly expulled questionlesse is a carracter of vertue truely heroycall, and fweetly favouring of the diulfilty; which evermore hath beene naturall to the French. Strabo faith: That they would willingly grow into choller, and undertake Armes; for such as they saw to be uniustly wronged, and manifest shames done vniso chem.

The Iustice of the kings of France.

Agathin Gree.

The firft be ginning of

in France.

Parliaments

Chap. 3.

The Kings of France have beene accounted admirable for Iustice, and by an extraordinary affection in them thereto ! they have taken care and paines, to exercife and render it in their owne persons, declaring themselves alwayes equitable Iudges, not onely betweene particulars, but also in they rowne proper causes, whe in a doubtfull cafe, they have layed the judgement on themselves, rather then to iniury any other. The Kings of France euer did fo, as well when they rendred Iustice in theyr owne person, as by theyr Soueraigne Courts, and commendation of very ancient Inflice. This report and praise of their lustice is very ancient; for Agathias the Greeke Historian admireth them herein, and feemed to fay with great judgment, or rather by a Prophetical spirit : That living fo, et carrying themselves in the like behaviour to their actions heerous not able to conjecture otherwife, but that their Estate would be alwayes stable invincible, & impregnable from enemies; being fust ained with To found ba-Inflice & Flo-Nous are two fes and foundations, as Instice and the defire good Pillary of Honour are. Among them most re-cent, Baldus, a famous Italian Doctor,afor a man to build on. In L. Magis pu bout the yeare MCCCL.maketh especito 55.in primus. verficaltem que all reckoning of the Kings of France: Gimp D.De which (for most certaine) long time they reb zor. qui fle delinered in theyr owne person.

> But the multitude of affayres encreafing, and they viable to bee abfent from rendring Inflice to particular perfort, except the State should receive some endamagement, diffraires, either by the war, or other important charges of the kingdome; they were feigne to establish Parliaments to that effect, and therefore appointed ordinary and fedentary Officers. Before that time, the Estates made they meeting but foure times enery yeare, termed in the ancient Annalist's Conneneus Generales i wherein affifted the principall Lords of France, and Officers of the

any other hope, and to re-establish him | Crowne, as well to discorne and admie, in what was to be done for the generall E. flate, as to decide the greatest and moit notable differences, happening betweene

Hauing then decreed and refolited on theyr ordinary Parliament at Paris, there was the appointed place for rendring to appointed it ucraigne audice: for that the prefit and Pans. indgements there concluded, were as if they had beene pronounced by the Kings owne mouth, and thereitpon inferibed & entitled in his Name . They were like wife verefied and published; as also Rebifired by Lerrers of elpecial provision, in the Offices and Dignitles of the Crown. with folenine & publike reception of the greater part

Ir allo anouched (chat oftentines) Lords and Princes, being fitangers, fiibmitted theyr differences to the judgment being franof that Court, in regard of the great opinion they hold of their lufflee. The Emperor Frederick the fecond, referred him- ris and worfelfe vnto the Parliament of the King of thily ended to France; in the debate and contention betweene him, & Pope imovem the fourth. concerning the kingdome of Waples, In the yeare MCOXLIII. The Barles of Wemmer, in the years MCCCXII. dif. putted there the cause of his Earldome, aguinst Charles de Palois, Brother to Philip le Bel & won theday. Likewife the Prince of Theme, in the yeare MCCCXX.gained there a fuite against the Duke of Bourgongne, concerning the charges & expences layde out, for the conquest and recourry of Gonstantinople. 11:

In the yeare MCCCXLII, the Duke of Lorraine and Guy de Chastillon debated there their parrages. In like manner the Daulphine, and the Count of Samoye, hisuing proceile rogether, entrered for their Indges the Court of Parliament, in the yeare MCCCXC. The kings of Spaine made fuch account of hillice in the kings of France, and integrity of theyr Parliatrent, that they fent their fintes to be confidered there. The kings of Callile and Portugall, having made peace together in the yeare MCCCHE fent they difference to the Parliament, to be there vetylied, for the more folid and found affirmet: and there it was fully confirmed at their request, and published at the open doores.

The place for Differences their content-

The Kings of Spaine efterflice of the Kings & Par liament of Nocruelty obleracd in himtowards his greately enemics.

That which

Concerning

vertues di-

The familiarity and man-fuctude of the Kingsof France in tal king with their fubicat plaine and nours and prerogatives of the Kings of France, as an especiall marke of their greatoeffe and Majesty : one thing which is found in few of the Kings & Monarchs of other Nations. Which is, that they themselves doe ordinarily conserve with their fubicats, fuffering themselves to bee feene daily, not onely in publike, but also in particular, vling primacy, granting eafie accesse to any one : and yet notwithstanding they are not a jote the leffe reverencediobeyed, honoured, and respected, nay, rather much more then some other kings. who by artificiall trickes and mysteries, feeke to have themselves honoured of their people. Neyther doth this facility in communication, and friendly familiarity, beget any contempt towards them, or diminish the least part of theyr Maiefiv: but rather maketh an addition thereto, causing them to bee the more esteemed, in venerable and most happy man-This is that which attracteth, & (most

The fabic &. of all) winnerh the hearts of the French. like affection rendring themselves wholly affectionate, of the French yea, vowed and denote to theyr Prince; to their kings and Princes. whom they loue feare, and honour altogether, even with an entire and cordiall affection, and not by any force or constraint. A matter truely as admirable, as rare, and which the Lord Suriano an ho-In lib.1 . Delle nourable Fenetian, and other strangers casse delle having well observed, stand not a little agrandezzo de la Cirà. mazed thereat, it appearing (naturally) almost impossible & incompatible. Wherin it is no easie matter to fay, which is the greatest honour and aduantage, eyther to

> to the one and other. Most part of the kings in this world, at all times have fought many exteriour meanes, by different habites, extraordinary fashions, crafts, secrets, and diversity of innentions to maintaine their Maiesty to make themselves scared and respected by they fubicas, and yet notwithstanding, could not compaffe it. The ancient Detopes, beging elected king by the Medes, fro a particular man as hee was before, changedinto all manner of behaviour. Hee would build a great magnificent Calle.

engironed with many walles, the very fight wherof procured amazement. There fuch kings, or to theyr fublects , but beeit howfoeuer, it is a great happinesse both

We may also account among the fa- | would be flut uppe himselfor cloathed in garments of no viuall wearing, nouer thewing himfelfe to the people, but very fildome and rarely: delivering luftice by written papers: & by interposed persons and likewife all his answers, expeditions, and affavres even as if they came from an

The kings of the Persians did vinally The Kines weare a Tiaras on they heads, a Diadein among the or royall Head-band, all gliffering with Perfiam. Pearles and precious stones, causing thefelues to bee adored by fuch as fhall fee them. And now adayes, most part of the Kings and Lords in divers countryes, obferue the very fame order. The great Duke of Molcouia will neuer be feene but Duke of Mo cloathed with a rich Sacerdotall habite, couis. under a precious Pauillian, accompanied with a small choyse number of his Domestigues, so sumptuously apparelled, as one would fay, they were an affembly of Gods. The great king of the Aby Sines, or The king of Athiopians, is neuer seene at all, he speaketh to Ambassadours, with a Curtaine ans. drawne betweene them, no other fight have they of him. But when he pleafeth to shew himselfe, hee weares a Crowne richly fashioned, exalted or rayled very curiously, a garment all of beaten gold, thickly beautified with precious stones; having his face covered with a veyle of Taffara, for feare lefte any should see his face. It is also a rare, and no accustomed fauour, when he lifts the Taffata neuer fo little, that any part of his vifage may bee

The king of China neuer commeth a- The king of broad, but keeps himfelfe continually en- China. closed in a Pallace round engirt with very frong fortifications, and caufeth his very Pictures to be adored. The great Seigneur of the Turkes, is neuer feene, but in a habite wholly different from any other, the Turket both for the fathion as also the vnfbeakable riches on him: he dazeleth the eyes of all fuch as looke on him, in regard of the glorious stones shining on his head, and causeth himselse to bee served with such Maiefty, respect, & ceremonies, as is most wonderfull. The king of Monomatapa, The King of is not ferued but by men on their knees. There are other, who cause themselves to be ferued with strange fashions, and very feruile submissions; thewing themselues fildome or neuer, and speake not a word, sudeus in lib 1.

Chap.3.

The kings of France futea

bletotheir

fobicas.

Princes,origi-

Dauphrius Ital. In lib.4. Iras c

But the Kings of France have no medling with these apparences, and exquisite cunning, whereby to support theyr greatneffe, authority, and Royall dignity; because they differ in nothing (for the most part) neyther in habites, food and fashions from their subjects, maintaining thefelues without any fubtilty. And the more they are feene, the more are they honoured, and not only honoured, but alfo loued of the French: as being borne to reigne, carrying Maiesty in theyr Fronts naturally, which maketh them yenerable: ranisheth the people with obedience to them, and crowneth them with continuall respect. And although it is no matter rare or difficult for the French, to fee their King, because it is so ordinary and common to them : vet as learned Budeus hath discreetly observed, the people runne on heapes, when they heare that the King paffeth to any place, reputing it as a happinesse, to have so favourable a fight of To this great and immense love of the French towards they naturall Prince. The kingdom may well be attributed the long continuance of that Monarchy, one of her other 1100. yeares. excellences, that hath subsisted twelve hudred yeares, which few kingdomes elfe can fay befide. And that which is most admirable of all, is, that the kings have bin of the same race and extraction, without any change but twice, & yet in changing, full it came to proximity and kindred, as we have already declared. One thing al-Natural born fo maketh it commendable, that it neuer bare command of a firange Prince, nor fo much as defired it; but alwayes hath bin gouerned by her naturall Princes, originaries, and of the most noble blood, nor onely in Europe, but in all the rest of the > Learned Onuphrius, a famous Italian, observed it as a matter worth marvaile. faying that in no other Estate, can be obferued the like felicity . I will fee downe his owne words. Mirum illud obfernandum eft quod cum mulla gens vnquam fuit, qua aut externos Principes non admiferie, aut allumptos interdum non expulerit, lape etiam per summum scelus non occiderit, solis Francis peculiare hac eft ac proprium, nullos unquam exteros Reges pati, fuos autem vfque adeo amare de golere, ve pro corum dig-but it is accounted -as an especiall fauour. I nitate & Maiest ate tuenda non opes tantum fed vitam profundere foleant. Hinc eneniffe credendumest, ve per mille & ducentorum fere annorum internallum non nifi ex tribus familijs Regesorti fint. Wee must account (faith he) that this is meruailous, albeit there hardly hath bin any other Nation, but hath received strange Kings, and after receipte of them hath expelled them againe, yea, many times maffacred them, through fome extreme mischiefe. Yet notwithstanding, it is proper and particular to the French, to have endured no Kings strangers, and therefore have fo loued and renerenced their Princes, that they not onely imployed all their goods and meanes, but likewise laide downe their lines, for the defence of their Dignity and Maielty . And this may be thought to be the caufe, that for the space of about twelve hundred yeares. there hath beene but three familles from whence have proceeded all their Kings.

CHAP. IIII.

A Funerall Oration written woon the most unnaturall and untimely death of Great Henry the fourth, Father to the King now reigning. 1 1 m.

HE Egiptians, having fufficiently taited the fanours of "Harpocrotes theyr God; did Silence. Confecrate the Peach-Tree Plan migator, in the highly freety, Plan migator, vnto him, in thankfull retribution of his infinite benefits. The leaves of this Tree are shaped like to tongues; and the fruite doth carry a refemblance of

Of the Dein ces elected Kings of the

The greatest loffe that ever France fultaicfcape of Telemachuspre-ferued from drowning by a Dolphine.

144

hearts: whereby they would feeme to fav. that their hearts should thence-forward ferue that Harpocrotes, and theyr tongues be continually bufied in celebrating his prayles. O France! wilt thou bee leffe thankfull then those people? So many choise benefits received fro the cheefest of thy Monarchs, can they well escape thy memory, or glide into the depth of bottomleffe obligion? No no wee will not onely confectate the Peach-tree vnto him, but our hearts and tongues joyntly together because this is the best offering, remaining in our power to giue him.

Telemachus, the youngest Son of Plysses, sporting himselfe (on a day) childe-like vpon the Sea-shore, by accident fell into the water: but a Dolphin happily came, who receiving him vpon his backe, did fet him fafe and dry vpon the land againe. The Father not knowing how to expresse his gratitude to the Fish, that quickly was carried farre off from him by the nimble waues; to auoyd the foule blemith of vnthankfulnesse, caused all his Gates to bee painted with Dolphins, engraued them vpon his Sword, yea, hee honoured his Seale with a Dolphins Image.

A familiar allusion to the Henry great Henry a most Christian. Potent and Royall King fuccourd France in a Sea of feditions & dreadfull tumults. Royal Henry. and like a gracious Dolphin, received her on his fhoulders, and fet her vo in fafety. cuen on the shore of a most happy peace, whereof as yet thee enjoyeth the benefit. His name shall not onely bee written on our Gates and Walles, but his greatnes. his victories, his mildnesse and paternall bounties, shall bee engrauen on an euerduring Piramede of thankfull acknowledgement, neuer to depart out of our memories. Our eyes, hitherto busied in teares, granting no liberty to our fighing hearts, to let our mouthes memorize his Trophees, and tell the world his countles Triumphs, we do now begin to open the. and now wee would breake the doores of some sad Funerall discourse, in remembrance of his great Maiesty, and excelling vertues.

If Calisthenes durst make refusall to Alexander, who commanded him to commend the Macedomans, alledging for his excuse, that their vertues were so well knowne, and their merits fo great, as hee should not gaine the least honour or reputation (whatfoener) thereby. How dare I then appeare in publike, and in this common habite of mourning, to commend the eldest Sonne of the Church. the Father and Patrone of Soldiours; especially in these dull times, when that diuine fire of Eloquence, sometime stolne from the Gods by " Tantalus, feemes to Sonne to hauetaken her returne to heauen, from Plota whence she came at the first.

There are now no Ciceroes, not a Demost henes to be found no nor an Horten. fufficient to fius. And albeit they were all aline againe, expressebit to ioyne their best abilities together in high deletwell speaking; yet could they not speake in fuch fort of that famous Prince, but their elegancy would fall farre short, and infinite goodly things would nere come neere them, which are no more then due to his happy memory. If then I speake, it is but by appointment, and as feeling a certaine combate within me, between bathfulnesse and nature. Bashfulnesse taxing me with fhame, to be filent when the whol world cries and complaines; ashamed alfo that I cannot joyne my fighes & teares to yours. Nature likewise tels me, that by an indissoluable obligation, I ought to render this duty and feruice, to the eternall memory of my King, my Lord & my Prince. This then may ferue for my dif charge. The * Epizephyrian Locrences, People in former times, not having the commo- great Great dity to performe any folemne facrifice to lo calledof Hercules, according to their vow (because tory Zephyni there were not any Oxen, Sheepe, or o-um about ther Beafte for oblation left in their Cit-which they well ty, through the length of a greeuous pestilence, which had consumed them all) when their Elders aduised them to take Cowcumbers, Mellons, and some other kindes of fruites, fitting them with short flickes in forme of feete, and then calling them Oxen, Sheepe, and fuch like Beafts. they threw them into the fire, & formade their facrifices. Among their neighbours, there was not any but commended their invention, and gave cheerefull applause vnto this acte of theirs.

If I have not wherewith (worthily) to answer the admirable vertues of that Monarch, let me accuse my necessity, and gitte you what I can, which (I hope) will be acceptable to you. Or elfe (if you beton viedster affect it) I will imitate those Sauages mong the se of Florida, who reputing the Sunne to be use people of Florida.

rall Oration or his daugh-

Cafars fune.

Chap.4.

1Rcg.1,19.21

What ought Monuments to be.

Reg. 1.2 1.

Blacke, beft befliteth Punerall pompe

their God, and feeing him fo highly exal- | margailous pleafing. Therefore David ted ouer their heads, as it is impossible for them to come neere him: in looking on him, they hold up their hads at him, which bringing backe to their mouthes, they kis, delivering testimony (by this meanes) of the reverence, honour, and respect they beare vnto him. If I cannot touch (dazeled with his beams) the Sun of fo bright a Maiefly, or my tongue shal this day feem dumbe, in the infinity of his glory: I will yet effay by fignes, and thew fome-what that way, when other helpes fayle me.

Concerning the reft, my aime hath no other end, then that of Cafar, in the Funerall Oration he made for his Daughter Iulia: Vt adstantes admonerentur quanta iaetura ex illa morte fact a effet : That the bystanders might bee admonished, how great a losse ensued by her death. For what losse can be greater the ours? A loffe which never had his like, a loffe fpringing out of our iniquities, which made vs altogether vnworthy to enjoy fo great, so happy and so dreaded a Prince.

O desiderabilis terra Isarel! in excelsis tuis vulneratus est. Quomodo ceciderunt potetes ? Quomodo abiect us est Clypeus fortium? Thus did David bemone the death of Saul, King of Ifrael. Thus was a King extolled by a King, being filled with the fpirit of Prophetic. Thus did the annointed of God streame forth his teares, in A Funerall Oration for A Prince, flaine vpon the mountaines of Gilboa, which he withed might (for euer) continue barren like Rocks, liften the effect of his diving maledictions. Nec ros nec plunia descendat super vos, quia proiectus est Clypeus fortin. Let neither dew nor raine descend upon yee because there the shield of the muchty is cast downe. Behold, how he would have fome fad and lamentable monument to remain there, answerable to an acte so sad & difmall. Monuments ought to agree in rethe nature of femblance with the things which they fignify. What thing could be more horrible then the murder of an Ifraelite Prince? The Monument then ought to beceuery

> In Funerall pompes, we vie to goe in blacke garments. Dewes doe make the Mountaines verdant, and raine drunk vp by the Vallies enammels the with a thoufand flowers, and gives them fuch a garment of greene, as is both faire to fee, and would have nothing to grow your Gibea. but thornes and brambles, that fo(among rude Rockes) nothing might appeare but rough thorny pallages: to the ende, that fuch places might bee condemned, as of deeds of horror and darkneffer to likewife to sterility, and wofuli perpetuall denastation, but are not dewes the gift of God? Doth not raine come from the hand of sir es are the him that is almighty? The not to receive bleffings of thefe, is a dreadfull malediction. It should feeme then that David invoked the wrath of heaven your that Gilboa, the land being fubicct to many curfes, for the finnes that were there committed . Let nevther dew nor raine descend woon yee because the Shield of the mighty is there call downe.

way as yrkefome and horrible.

themselves, yea, the Seigneurs and Principalities of many ftrangers, fheltred thefelues vnder that Sunny Banck. Therfore of him may now be faid, as fortimes was his owne beart, and commanded him to bee a Gonernour ouer his people. For if Danid de clared himfelfe couragious, in the greatest heate of Alarmes and fights : Hours.

great Henry, hath not hee beene (enery where) attue Mars, and a true thunder-therefore elected him among thousands,

to bee the Ruler of his people: then may we fay, that (after his fights) neuer was found a kinder Prince then great Henry

the fourth, to whom this Elogium rightly appertained. Qui in aciate confect (uperatwelf, qui in pace nilul timuit: Enermore a Conquerour, both in warre and peace, deti-

uing his victories no leffe from love, then

King of the Gothes) Fidimine enemtus optimos de aduerfitate generari, to may wee fay, That out of greatest extremities,

Alaste, what greater Shield of strength, Nobester more generous and mighty, then Great Shield of de Henry the fourth, Henry, the Rampier of kingdome, his people, the Shield of his Souldiers, & then a truely the Buckler that defended the heads and generous hearts of his Princes? He covered them against all their enemies attempts and encounters. Hee serued as an Armour of proofe to the French Monarchy, under which defence they continually raunged of David : The Lord fought him a man after 1 Reg. 13,14.

bolt of warre? If Danid were ftill crow. Kine David ned with victory, because his elemency crowned with was acceptable to the God of Armies, & ous Victories.

from power. Vnder which (as Emnodi- Emnolin Paw spake in the Panegyrique of Thierry, or Thur. Kis Terp.feb.

Agapetus in

Ele administra

The hand of heaven ever

Supporteth

the right of

tiue kings.

The fucceffe-

his long trou-blefome wars.

Victory that accompanied Great Henry.

full iffue of

we have beheld the birth of highest and fai- | frica a certaine precious stone, called Lirest fortunes.

For in conquering the Rampiers of our Cities, at the very fame time he won our hearts alfo, and (by a foueraigne amplitude of kindnesse) sweetly infinuated himselfe into all our soules that behelde him fo brightly thining in Armes So that faving was verefied in him, which Agapetus foake to the Emperour Iustinian. Im-Articulis de re perium exornauit superiores Imperatores tu vero prastantissime illud illustre reddidisti: That which Empires (in former times) gaue to their Emperours; thou thy felfe (O great Prince) halt given to thine, to wit, lufter and Blendour. Thou didft finde it full of quarrels feditions, and tumults, thy vnciuill Subjects made mad (by what new Circes I know not) becam enemies to thy crown. But by the right hand of God, & strength of thy martiall arme, thou didft displant their Fortresses, peopled with Spaniards, expelling both the one and other; and from the limits of thy French Empire, thou didft exterminate that proud Bellona that (without all pitty) did cruelly labour to teare her in peeces, and quite de-

Oh what a goodly day was that, when we beheld bright victory to descend vpon his head, euen glorious and celestiall vi-Acry, holding in her hand a thousand Laurels, dispersing them in the fields of so many faire Provinces ? Victory was figured by the Romans, with a gracious countenance, and two great wings displayed on her shoulders. The Athenians made a mockery thereat, and portraied their vi-Ctory quite contrary, without wings or any feathers, to the ende, the fhould neuer five from them, but alwayes keepe within the girdle of their Citty walles . Fictory (Companion to the merits of this great Prince) was of the Athenian nature . In former times the had bene full of inconstancy, first on one side, then on another, neuer long continuing in any one Prouince. But at length, the feated herfelfe on the Louure of this onely Mars, where (first of all) the threw off her wings never to fart thence all the time of his Reigne. This was the, that not only made him beloued of his owne people:but fo feared &

reverenced of ftrangers beside, that they

Pliny tels vs, that there is found in Af-had and held him alwaies in admiration.

paris, which hath so faire a looke, that all two of the eyes are at a stand to gaze vpon it. Hunters ther have no need of sculking hounds for their game, or any Arrowes to kill it. because this stone, laide open in the midst of any field, all wilde beafts (getting but a glimps thereof) gather together about it, and as amorous of the stones beauty, doe nothing elfe but looke voon it. Our Monarch, our great Monarch, was as a Liparis in the midit of his French world, the Ger- Alleyer and mane, Italian, Spaniard, Engliff, Swethen, with admiration arther very Turkes, were all drawne his ther by the fame of his vertues & renown prefence of of his Armes enery one flood at gaze to Great Henry behold him, not any one but withed his presence, each one loued & admired him. as a new miracle, or prodigy of valour and greatnesse in the world. In so much, that his presence served not onely as an ornamament to this State: but it was also here as an horne of abundance, our of which, al kindes of goodnesse that could flow from a facred peace, were in a most plentifull affluence deriued from him. The poylons of diffentions could heere no more produce their Gangrenats; the high vnderstanding of the King was too present an Antidote And as the dryed body of a Bafiliske, hung with a golden thred in the midft of Apollos Temple (faith Gefner) kept Geftieruinit. it alwayes cleane, restraining (by an hid- Animal caps, den vertue) Spiders from working cobwebs along the pillars and walles: Euen fo great Henry, living in our France, kept it cleane from all the infolences of enemies, and suffered no strange Spiders to come weave their webs of discord within his Provinces. So availeable to this Monarchy was his long experience& promp. titude, that he held the affaires (in eyther His care of condition) both of church and common the Church wealth, in an voright fway of pollicy, were wealth. it in peace or warre. And fo profitable did this people finde their fubication & obedience to him that in all & quite through as their Lord, their Pastor, and Father. Doe you not know the great vnity which Nature hath planted betweene the Plin.inlib. Planothere and the Pinna? Haue yee not 7.cap. 14. read of the benefit enfuing to them both, by their mutuall concord & intelligence? France hath beene as the Pinna, and the King her Pinnothere . The Pinna is that the body of Prance, they reverenced him

reene the Naker or Scallop, and he Creuile Crab,

Chap.4.

The compato the Realm

cellent Painter, living in the time of arthafius of rereat kinde of Cockle, which we vie to | blies, of the cheefest Heads and Capagins call a Niker or Scallop. The Pinnothere is a little creature, in the kinde of a Crabbe or Creuife, that continually stands as a Porter, awayting the opening of the Cockle , which he keeps fill wide gaping, vntill fuch time as he perceineth fome prey to enter, which may be beneficall to them both. For then hee pricks or bytes the Cockle, and thee thutting her thell, they then feede both friendly together. And neuer (without this admonition) doth the Naker fut her shell, nor euer (without the liking of this her Gouernor) will shee admit any strange creature to come neere

Enen fo France, referring herfelfe to the managing of the King her Pinnothere, and neuer receiving any impression but his; the lived with that foode which was aprand natural for her, and by this reafon the neuer felt in any of her parts and members, those intemperate vile diseases, that heeretofore bred her to many warres and troubles. A great misfortune is it the. when fuch a precious lewell is taken from foorth the midft of our Temple, whe fuch a Master and Gouernour is carried away from his people. O decus Ifraelis in excelfis tuis vulneratus est. O France, the honor of Ifrael, glory of the Militant church O. Para the very fairest among the Gauls. or in the world, Metropolitane of the goodlieft state in Christendome: thou haft feene him wounded in thy firectes. flaine in thy bosome, and parricided inhumanely in excelfis twis, in thy places most frequented. O vnspeakable mishap! Quemodo proiect us est Clypeus fortuin ? How is

* Timanthes, a most famous Paintet among the Grecians, being defirous to portrait a Soldior ful of courage, sprightly in valour, and as fiery as Wars: gaue him all the grace that Arte could deuise upon his cloth. A But afterward fetting it before his doore to bee seene, hee caused foure Trumperato found before the Pit Cure, that the person might appeare the more forious and dreadfull Odcare people, if I could worthily, and (according to true life) reptelent before your eves the prouidence, wiledome, and happines of councell that remained in this Princes Ishould then fer beforeye one after and ther) even all the great and ferious affemhighly

the field of the mighty cast downer

of war, and of all other frates wherein hee prefided. Then shold you see him not like a filly " Wester by Agamemnon, but Agas | Sonne to memnon himselfe, and (in him) a milition of Nestors. If you would see his vigilland being well cy. & the care he had of his State affairs; neere 300 yeares olde. I should then fet before yee (in groffe) the went with the Ambassadors of the greatest Princes, the Courtiers and Possillions slying fremall parts, their puckets open, their Secretaries standing by, & that magnificent King in the midft, fpending many nights rogether for the confernation of them, that foundly flept in their beds at eafe. If vou would have a picture from mee, of his mildenesse & clemency then must I paint a thousand potent enemies, not humbled at his prefence, or crouding to his feete, but feated in fafety by him, at one and the fame Table, in one and the fame Caroch. yea, in one and the fame bed. In breefe, if it were in me to thew you King Henry his valour & Won-pareilleourage; I foold the 4-might the here instantly fet before ye so ranged wellbe a mirbattailes, with their Squadrons of armed warriours in horse, and Regiments of foote, their Pikes the world. aptly placed, the flame and fmoak fmonldring from Canons, the noyfe of Drums, the lound of Trumpets; and at the maine of every battailion, this king encouraging his followers to the fight; and then him felfe to give the onfer, & (like a true Mars) beating downe his enemies about him. Then would you fay, that you faw a God armed, the terror of the world, the honour of valiancy enen where Cafarrand Alexunders might well crowd in there to learn warlike leffons of him. But oh infignali difafter the being deade Quemodo creides runt potentes & Projectus eft Clypens for's tium? .. Howarethemigher buerthrowne? And the Shield of the very strongest cast downer more revelo. Jobl.

Filia Afraelis Super Saulem flete, quid west iebat was caccino in delicysus Daughter's of Mrael weepe for Saul, which sloashed you in skarlet with pleafures. Lindies, Daughters, and Wints of Paris, weepe for your king, he that alouthed you in Scarlet with pleasures, that game you these Imbroyderings, Liaces, and Bracelets of Gold Indeed Liadyes, peace purchated by the Peace With prowelle equidat of this great king, gatte inuffinanto the or planty you all their things in great abundances be abundance filled your houses with the beauties of the s Reg. 1,29,

Plin. in lib.

Chap.4.

lob 12 5. Tribulatio dat stelle Clarit?

Plater in Mo-

Camers of

Garumna in France,par-ting Celtica from Aquita-

East and precious rarities brought from

2 Reg. 1.2 ?.

Arift in Politi lib.4 c 19.9.

diligence and wiftneffe of the King, and

King Henry fecond Her-

Reg.12,1.

King Henry descapped sto the holy 5. the eyther of the Poles. Rich and poore might eate their bread (fearelesse) with their families, might consolate themselues with God, and offer the facrifice of their hearts (at case) in his Church. Weepe then, weepe then rich and poore, great & small, the inhumane death of this common Father, vnder whom you receyued fuch infinity of pleasures. Saul dy Ionathas amabiles : Aquilis leuiores fuerunt Leonibus fortiores. Saul and Ionathan were lonely; they were swifter then Eagles, and ftronger then Lyons. Swiftneffe onely in any one fubied is unprofitable. and strength without swiftnesse is as great a maime, as lazinesse or neglect. Both these were joyned together in our Prince. What legerity was that, when in leffe then two Moneths, like to a flash of lightening, hee made himfelfe feene through the Prouinces of Picardy. Normandy Champaine, le Perche, Aniou, and Maine Travling after him a weighty Army, great store of weapons, Canons, Chariots, and great aboundance of other Artillery. O good God! in how short a time did hee winne more the 160 Leagues of ground, and subjected voto him (even in passing along) fifteene or fixteene strong Towns. In divers other places, what power and magnanimity did appeare in him, euen in his very greatest difficulties, withdrawing the lighted fires from all the parts of his kingdome. There did he shew himselfe like to another Hercules, being foulded in the skin of his constancy and high valour, his most redious trauailes (which seemed to him but as Dwarffes and Pigmeis) hee strangled and crusht them all, euen as if they had beene so many Mice or Mush. rumes, that have no vertue or resistance whatfoeuer. Wherfore O France, we may well fay of thee, as it was fometime spoken of the people of Ifracl Nunc Rex graditur ante vos, & pugnabit bella vestra. Thou haft now a King that walketh before thee. He spared not himselfe in marching before thee, and this was the man, ordained to terminate the fights and battailes.

Oh, how many meruailes do I behold. meeting in him all together. Let vs take him in his originall. Albeit he descended fro the loynes of the most happy S. Lewer. by a long extended Genealogy, wherein there is not any but Kings eyerhad he nothing (in his kinde) more abiect and contemptible, then to be thut vo in the Pyrenean Dens or Grottes, badly followed by his owne, threatned and purfued by externe accidents, throwne out of his Cradle, and the armes of his Nursse, into the Fordge of Mars; wrapt vp in partiality of opinions, which held a high fayle in his bles autiful time, and yet doth the like in many places the counted of this Realme. They that fed his hopes, to preuaile thereby, deceiued him: others that thought (by fuch instruments) to ouerthrow him, did the higher exalt him, And perforce must I (in this case) without looking on the pointes of his conscience. commend his morall vertues.

Achilles, the fonne of Aeacus, who was to conclude the Troyans greatnesse. & to ouerthrow their * Illium from the top to * Troy was the bottome, was long time hid vnder the of Illus, who garment of a woman, among the daugh- enlargedit ters of Lycomedes. And our great Henry greatly. (who was to be a terror to Spain) the prop and Support of our French Commonweale, was (in his yonger yeares) euen as hidden under the habite of a poore & difinherited Prince, in the solitude of the Bearnish Lands and Mountaines. But yet notwithstanding.God had(euen then)deflined him to be a subject of his wonders, vea.to the cheefest dignities, & very greatest powers of this Land. God I fay the great God of hofts, Per que Reges reguant. & hath his hands ful of crowns & bestoweth them where himselse best pleaseth.

Reade what 10b speaks of the Ostrich & there shall you see this Prince naturally,e- 18,19. uen according as description is ther made of her. That Bird being depriued of wifedome & loue) without couering her egs, leaves them in the dust, and so loseth all remembrance of them. The world would be quite bereft of Ostriches, if God did not play the part of a mother, and by the beames of his bright fining Sun, make the dust warme about the egges, and so cause the yong to be hatched, to maruaylous favre and goodly forme. In like manner our great Henry, was not he forfaken? Left in the duft of disfauour, and negle- What God Red all the time of his childhood? God will have had a care of him notwithstading, aspurpoling to make him an Melas, for the lup-port of his Church, and defence of this petith. State. So that by beholding him fo much abased in his beginning, and afterward to highly highly exalted: we have great reason to fay with the same Job. Lampas contemptaad tempus statutum. A Lambe, whereof no account at allreas made: yet ordained for honour, and to be honoured at the time appoinred. God would bring him by the paths of aduerfier, to the highest place of prosperity, and made his travailes feeme as Malless to harden hun for fuch paynes as hee was to endure for the re-establishment of beace and vnlty, in all the divided Prounces of France.

In enery estate, afflictions do make the greatest persons, where contrariwise, in the midft of highest prosperites (as standing vpon an ouer-flippery place) oftentimes they foonest lose themselues. We may deduct an example heereof, from a Glaffe, vpon whose Christall, Flies can get no footing (faith Plutarch) & yet stand firmely on the borderings about it, because they are more rough and apprehenfine. referie beignie er iba and the market Labuntur mildie, Cafrifien tenactus barent. Smoothe paths are flippery rougher wayes have hold. Allowed All

And from the same ground, it seemeth that Homer fetcht his Mely, the rootes whereof were blacke, but it bare fruite of most fine gold. So the life of this French Atlas, did themir felfe (every where) to be very blacke in the bud and wholly obfcured with aduerfity; but the rest thereof (cuen to his vntimely ending carryed three Flourers of true goldsinan Azure field of hearienly beauty. Afflictions in him, fer-*Two famou ued as an applible to * Polycletus and Miren, whereby to mould carne & forme the true shape of Vertue: which was the very fayrest and most goodly Statue, that quer could (by Arte) be imagined.

Let vs instantly conceite that happy hours, when wee beheld heavens providence to call him from Bearne, and the Banicks of Garona and (with goodly Enfignes) to thew him the Loire. He being (not long before) thatply purfued, was then fought for in the Grottes, many royall Armies (enen then) truffing to his arme: but fent for (foone after) by the K. his brother, Henry the third, whom hee would not forfake at a time of need. Then was it; when France concred oner with rebellions and Armies against her folfe, was conftrained (more then ever before)

to approve the foirit, wiledome, and handl of him who quickly became her Haleyon, to appeale and calme those furious temand table in small of

The blowes began at Tours and at Blois, but within few daies the fiery fire fore the death of those Souldiers proceeded through of king Henry Beauffa, even to the origiting of Baris: was murded wherethe execrable and bloody, parrioide by a lacobine committed on the perfun of the king, opened him the doore to the whole State The Princes and Freinde Nobility, both proclaimed and auknowledged himsto be their king. Meane while, the troubles encreating, and the Anthies contrage wicre in many precess beheld him speece hand) as foode thus voine Dieine and Bushkathe Steele that firikes but of Flint toicatort thence the furely fodrkes of fire : even fo. the neerer a warriouris purfued the more fplendour is added to his glary. 1 113

There liveth a certaine monfter in the Plinin lib.g. Sea, vulgarly called the Scia or Same of 149.17. the Sea in regard of a horne he hath, ferting him in fread of a fronte, cartying no meane refemblance with a Sawe a This creature meeting with a Ship under full fayle; by divers times of attempting, doth grow angry thereat, and feemeth to make open warre againff it. He paffeth and re- A very fingupaffethlmany times vaderneath it im- at compatiploying his horne / with his vitermost apranallusfrength) to fawe, as he thinks, and cut in on. twaine the keele of the Ship. But in vaine doth he torment himfelfe, for fo long hee vieth the teeth or razors of his fnout, till beating himfelfe out of breath in the conflict at length hee floates on the water with his belly voward, remaining at the mercy and laughter of the Pilote.

And what great act (I pray ye) did fo many Armies, as quite couered the plaines of France? They imployed all Malice hath their endehour and weapons in vaine ho- no greater e ping to fawe in funder and divide this tend against State. After all their malicious wraftling then it lelfe. with this Soueraigne holy Ship!, did they not become ennerued and broken in picces, by the power of this great King her Pilote? Wherefore wee may well fay, as Velleine Paterculus faid of Cate. Firtuti quam fimillimus, & per omnia ingenio Dis Plutin vit. M. quam bominibus propier : qui non rectefetit ot ficere wideretur, fed quia aliter ficere non poterat.

It is not for any ambition or defire of glory Troubles he

The honorable words of a Kingly Soldour.

A mighty Gi-ant, the Son to Titan, called of the Gods Briggin

to maintagne the liberty of my Subjects, and preserve my Crowne. And even so did God fauour his designes, and laide at his feete (myraculoufly) an infinite number of Trophees. Heere Arques made her most signale surrender. There Turie published his high fortune. Dion, Fontaine-Francosfe, S. Helena, and the Molets engirt his browes with a thousand Laurels: And for die higher pitch of his honours, the vanduished themsfelues did (even then) reloyee at his prosperity and victories. He fought not in one place only at a time but like to a fecond * Briarius, with an hiidred hands and by his Lieutenants, hee imore as many places together. So that posterity reading his heroycall actions, not onely will make doubt to belocue the all burrather groffely receive, or repute them for fables.

I will leave them to our Histories, & to tell ve that his clemency appearing aboughts other vertues; did make him vniuerfally both beloued and admired . • O goldd God! how ready was he alwayes in helpe and subuention to the oppressed?

How, diligent, in finding out for our dif-The especiall eafes, both foueraigne, peculiar, & conthy Prince. uenable remedies? When I call mill eyes on the gastly Theater of our France, me-thinkes I doe there behold that terrible fight betweene Brutus and the * Xan-Scythia aboue thians, the very cheefest Inhabitants of the Lake of Lycia, when they (being beliedged the fire getting mischeenously into the crannies of their walles, threatning their neighbors houses, and the whole Citty toge> gots, made of dryed Reedes, the more to nourith and augment the flame, whereas Brutus (being their enemy) employed the vttermost endeuour, both of himselfe & all his Soldiors to flake and grench it. He fate on horse-backe, full of compassion, effaying by all possible meanes, to take fome good order, and turning him round about, hee held out his hands to the vnhappy Inhabitants, defiring them to spare their owne Citty, and to faue themselves.

ther with a generall denastation) in a def-perate rage and fury, threw on fresh Fag-

· How many of our blinded French (desperately madded in our last wars) did the very like ? What intended those Armes, and hostile preparations in the labouring his minde with the designe of greater number, but onely the ruine of that I fight (would be oftentimes fay) but \ themselves, and the whole State together? And what was laboured (on the contrary part) by this great King our Brus tus? Nothing elfe, but to preserue his ms? Nothing else, but to preserve his people, and furthe the fires, furionsly fla-nour in aking ming in the foure corners of his king a to prefetue dome; yea, to keepe his people from des his people is footing the footing the feeter. (doubtleffe) the full butt and sime of all his warres, during which time, and even in the very fiercest broyles, hee was heard to cry aloud in the thickeft throngs : O Frenchmen, Frenchmen, faue your felues. And the blood of them, although they were in Armes against him hee did value at a dearer rate then his owne. An acte truely generous, and which (afterwards) made him fo much admired that they who refused to accept him as their Lord; threw themselves at his feete, and (in endeared loue) called him their gracious Tutor and Fatheraus stom new your shoes Let Paris (onely) stand as a witnesse The wofull of my words, which was feene (almost) condition of without Subburbs, without Pallace, with Paris, dujing the wares. out Vninerfity, or any other Ornament whatfoeuer. The Field of the flothfull man, and the Vineward of the mif-villerstanding foole, described by Salomon in Proust, 14 his Prouerbs . Which were all overgrowne 19.30. with Thornes and Nettles, and their Hedges broken downe, might be compared with it. Our buildings beautified with Porphiry and Marble this Royall goodly places; his Louvres; his Twilleries; his new Bridges; his Arfenally the streetes newly reedefied, and adorned with formany new deuices of Silke and Tapiffry; the new foundations of publike Readings; these are as fo many Trumpets, to publish the loue and vigilancy of this King. Very true is it then, that his life, to obfcured and tra- Vertue long uersed in the beginning, did well resemble a fire, which in the making, and before it attaineth to any light, doth cast foorth dour. very groffe and thicke fmokes but being fully kindled, it yeeldeth a bright flame, & giueth no meane delight to the beholder. We have feene his originall to be dimily obscured and darkened with the clouds of crity. Afterward wee beheld him; not like tobes despised Lampe, but flining as the Sunne in brightest splendour.

An industrious and skilfull Architeck, an intended stately building, walking a-

The Stone neglected and Church, did not forget this Prince: our refused by the at the time appointed by his eternall pretuilders, beorner flone.

Thracian.

inforall the

Greekes went

Land at

Froy, albeit he had heard hat be should furely die that did fo. He was

faincby He-

ptain, sonto

The Stone

Chap.4.

were among the people, but God faile the Deare people, from the beginning of my Oration, I have feared to fall short,& my feare is very just, handling so highe a subject, and so full of meruailes. Yet notwithstanding, that great goodnes of his furnished me with courage, and hath hitherto vpheld me, in the pleptifull field of his flowing vertues . Wherein I felte fo great a confolation, and fuch a boundles liberty of fpirit, that my tongue (without impeachment) hath(in fome weake manner) expressed those things which I con-

ceiue any one to be of groffe Marble, half earthy, milhapen, and that hath not (as

vet) felt the Hammer and Chizell, he do-

eth appoint that stone to some important place in his edifice. Euen fo God, proie-ding (long time) the building of his Church, did not forget this Prince: but science, he tooke him out of the Quarrie

of darkneffe, to make him thine as bright

day, and ferue as the Mafter-pillar to the whole frame. Behold him then (O myracle) in midft of fo many victories and fauours from heauen, prostrated at the feete of the Church, and no other cryes ceyued of his praifes all But now Infecte my feirfes arrefted by an laccide myalus as nouell, as it strange and lamentable. I The Poets makemention of certaine trees, that fometime did grow about the Tombe of Protefility, and they having attained to fuch hight; that (with their tops) they could cover the mine of olde Troy : withered in an inflant, and loft all theyr leaues. Euen fo my difeourfe could entertaineit selfe vnto this point; but when I fee this great Prince (alas) fetting from his Lauure in his Caroach, a fmal traine, indeed, without traine a my whole heart is frozen, my discourse witherether and there remaineth no verdure in my words. A mischeenous affaffinate, let look from Achoron, created of the filthy drinell falling from the foule chappes of Gerberus (to built our whole France) followes halfillyafter him. I fee the Caroch flaved; O Baris! haplefle City of Paris lin excelf in tuis, in one of thy cheefest foure cornered fircets, I fee the murtherer likewife flay there with it.

OGod! whatiflue depends vpon his mong the stones in a Quarry, if hee per- / boldnesse? Gracious Heauen, thou didst preferue this great King (before) fo many times : as against Barriere at Melune .against Chastel in his Louure, and agaynst an infinite number more of most pernitious conjurations. Thy goodnesse (O Lord) shall it sleepe at this blow? Behold (deare people) it was our fins that weighed downe the ballance of eternal! Inflice, for one chastisement. Anteretur ab impis lux fua, de brachium excelfum confrigetur. The light that (hined upon those Nations, rebellious against my Edicts, shall be take from them, and the strong Arme that defended them, (ball be broken. Yea, and fo farre it proceedeth, that our great God feemeth weary of further advancing the Name of the glorious Franch.

TOO Fury ! O barbarous wretch ! instructed in the schoole of Sathan and enchanted with a diuellish Doctrine, that (vnder the fubborned name of a tyrant) woulde striking to approone and maintaine the Massacre of his authoritie Kinges. O Deuill, and no man, thy parricide hand is not hindered but dares boldly imploy the vic of that hellith liberty, in a most detestable sacriledge, against God, against his Annointed, and against thy natutall Prince. O Sunne, thou bright daybringer, that heeretofore veiled thy golden Treffes, and didft with-hold thy heanerly lookes, from the infamous house of the Pelapides, and the enraged abiding of Buphales that voworthy Romane Citizen. because thou wouldst behold no Burcheries and massacres : how couldest thou keep thy Chariot in his ordinary way, but with one touch of thy hand turned it fom way elfe, that this day might have bin co-uered with darkneffe? Among infect or injuried Greatures, Bees (fayth Pliny) do fo much honor their Plin. in lib. head and King, as they will not live after 7.09.14. the loffe of him: And among other Animals: flaue wee not (almost) an infinite number, that have confectated their lives for the defence of their Mafters? , Quintus in lib 4 cap 9, Curtius, as one of the faitelt ornaments of his Hiftory, brings in the Elephant of K. Porus, which Elephante feeing his Mafter on the ground airclasibloody battel given him by Alexander with his trunke drewe hila foftly out of the drowdo (as fearing to hurte him) notwithstanding all the points and staues of Lances, being thrust into his breft and fides.

leremy 10. 2.

The doctrine

and warrant

Quint.Curthus,

A hard extre mity, when people are pittied by their enemy

Mzotis.

Phil.Commin.

in lib.z cap. t.

Same men are more inhumane then

bruifh crea-

Tertulin Dial

Homer in 17i

Attributes

and titles gi-uen to kings

$ 1 9.5

Ad Keg.

flaine, became the revenger of his murder neuer ceaffing till (with his heeles) he had instantly beaten out the braines of the murderer. The Dog of Hesiodus is also remembred because he attainted the Hefiod in lib. children of Ganistus, for the murder com-£30.7.

mitted on the person of his Master. But that which our owne Fathers have feene, is much more memorable, of a worthy Dog, belonging to a Groome of the Chamber, attending on King Frances the first. Which Dog, not fatisfied with the apprehension of him that had flaine his Master in the Forrest of Fonteine-belleau; but beeing present by command of the

The Serthians also do eternize theme-mory of a Horse, who seeing his Master face of the whole Court, that then were gathered together, to behold this fpectacle. O most strange case, that brute beasts shall love, respect, and reverence theyr Kings and Mafters, and creatures reasonanable (yet without all reason) contrary to Nature, or any inftine of her, shall foyle their fellonious hands, in the facred & ve-

Prince) he rent him in preces, before the nerable blood of their Prince. -... Tertullian fpeaking of Kings; Secundi funt polt Doum (faith he) inter quos de Deum optimum maximum nullum eft medium. They are next after God betweene whom and the greatest God there is no meane. Homer, by a name more proper, doth call them, The children of the great God : as they that do very neere participate in the beames of his durnity. The Greekes were wont to call them, Bazilees of Bazis, which fignifieth a Foundation. As in the holy Scripture, one of them is called Femur, the Thigh, he being as the Thigh, base and foundation, whereupon the repose of the State and people is supported. But to what end are all these Epithites, both sublime and divine, in comparison of The most Christian King, she eldest Sonne of the Church, which Titles our kings attained vnto by infinite merits, even from the i If Emperours have done any good to the Apostolical See, what denotion can compare with thebofour Kings? Clouu, the first Crown-bearer among fo many kings, offered a Diadem of ineffimable value called Regdam, upon the Altar of S. Peter: the which Diadem, according as fome of our Historians haue written, fer-

Cradle of Christian Religion.

ued for the Tiaras to the holy Fathers prefiding in the Church. What shall I fav of Charles Martell, who received from fay of Charles Martell, who received from Gregory the third, she keyes of the Sepulcher, and the Chaines wherewith S. Peter ches Proce. was bound? was not this done, as ackno- tor. ledging him the Churches Protector, and yeelding him an honourable funmination, for defending that holy Toombe, and excellent prerogatives therto belonging, against the fury and invasions of the Lombardes? Against whom, this Prince began to arme himfelfe, when at the very first report of his preparation, the Lombard yeelded, and submitted himselfe to the holy

I cannot let fleepe in filence the piety of king Pepin, who went twice over the Alpes, to check the infolences of the faid Lombardes, against Stephen, then fitting in the facred feate. There remaineth (vet to this day) an ancient infeription, engrauen vpon one of the Towers of Rauenna; The ancient Pipinus-plus primus amplificanda Ecclefia Rauenna wiam aperuit orc. Delinering testimony to all Christendome, of that Princes gift and liberality to the Church . Charles maigne, Philip Augustus, S. Lewes, many Kings among them, & many others fince then, euen vnto our time, haue no way degenerated from this affection, in piety & iuccourantwerable to the former Kings, and their enterprizes were most commes anceptated able & perillous, to maintaine the truth, of many and to confound the Sarrazine, Mabumas. French king tiffs, and other fects of Instidels. V V hereof matter fufficient is given to our Hiftorians, to make their volumes the more copleateland to Innocenties the third, a worthy fubicat of writing, in an Epifile which he directed Archiepifeu de Epifcopis per Galliam constitutis Exaltatio regni Francorum est fedis Apostolica fublimatia. And if that execrable and diuellish murderer, had not impeached the course of the great delignes, and holy intentions of this King (O France, for whom thou now fo iuftly lamenteft) he had thaken the Scenter of the Turke, and we might well have hoped to have feene our faire Lillies glifter in the Church of the Easterne Empire,& once more to have made the true God worshipped in Palestine.

Then, O vnhappy Realme of France, redouble thy forrowes, and reuiue the fourle of thy teares, as often as thou flight

Prince? yea, thy Shield, and the Shield of the mighty, proditoriously ouerthrowne in the Capitall of his Prouinces. Oh that I could (in this case) according to the maner of a Pegalus, strike with one foote into a fountaine of eloquence, or that the Muses and the Graces meeting together. would give new motion, or rather new life to my languishing Oration, that I might reach to the point first proposed to my felfe, which was, either to lay open before you the praifes of my King, or to let you fee his life and heroycall vertues, and how much we are al intereffed in his loffe. Thefe two attempts were very great, and if I feele my felfe to thrinke vader the faid (long agoe) a learned Philosopher.

For as a Player of Comedies, may cafily bring foorth vpon his Stage, a man of goodly flew, in flape of Hercules, coue-red with a Lyons skinne, and bearing a long great Club on his shoulder, but yet made light and hollow within, and althis

dreadfull appearance, comes nothing

neere the vertues and incomparable ftrength of the true Alcides : Euch fo an writing with an Eagles quill (yet lagging weary with circkling the world) to make knowne to the two Poles, the admirable battailes wonne by this Monarch, and all this nothing indeed to great Henry the 4.

This were no other then a meere phantal ma, because his inwarde man, with his principall vertues, remained full hidden the vinacities of his fpirit, the heates of his generous courage, and that true cour-tenance of Maiesty, which carried on his brow the loue of his fubicots and terrour

of his enemies: thefe are things that fleike

dumbe all tongues, and are not any way to be declared. The interest and the damage then, which the whole world endu-remember the death of this Prince. A the worth of weight of the first, I must needs fall flat the lewellis ne with the charge of the fecond, Becaufe the wretchednesse of a privation can never be re-ally understood, but by knowing the excellency of the thing whereof we are deprined so

Chap.4.

e differ frő

Oratour may eafily produce some groffe description of great Henry, that most inuincible Prince, giuing him golden Armour, mounted on a gallant Courfer, attended with Drums and Trumpets, in middest of a confusion of armed men, a thorny wood of Pikes and Lances about him, and as the last ornament of renown.

The inward vertues of a teth by his death, can neuer be sufficiently declared. Euery man by himfelfe (from the least to the greatest) may frame out his owne discourse, and finde himselfe immeasurably offended: yet all this is nothing elfe, but as if each man should point with his finger at his owne heart, and no indement to be made, whose paine is the most greeuous ?

Sylaganbie, the Mother of Darius, her Plutare, in vit. Necces and other Persian Ladies wept Alexander. more extremely for the death of Alexane den (faith the Hiftory) then did the Greeks and other Macedonians . For he was the common bond of peace, and hee being broken, they found themselves (among all them which he had left) the very weakeft. furthest off from fuccour, and most subiect to the injuries of warre. Without all question, our forrow hath bin common through the whole State, for this vnhappy accident falne upon the common and publike head. Our Princes pierced throgh with greefe, haue (to the whole world) fufficiently witnessed their affections. But unoffoncerely great men stand fafest on the board, the southgreat leffer ferue as poore Pawnes, & they have to the meast the greatest cause to complaine. That ner fort.

great chaine or bond of peace, which vnited together fo many kindes of spirits, is broken in the midft ; yet peace and vnity

(God be thanked for it) doth still remaine among vs.

As an Arrow that from a good strong arme, flyeth farre through the ayre, not in regard of his owne proper or naturall wings, but by the Archers vertue who (in the loofe) gaue it the vigor of advantages euen fo our peace as yet continueth by that strength and vertue, which the high understanding and credite of our deceaffed king gave vnto her. If we war against abuses, if vices may be cut off, and vertues replanted; wherefore should not this strong bond be new knit againe? But if they encrease, as they do, look then (deare people) for your danger to be neere. The mighty can daily maintaine themselues but the weake and feeble, they altogether undergoe the worft, especially when diforders continue.

In this cafe, the body of a Commonwealth, and that of a beaft do carry fome Companion resemblance. For as the members (which weakling the are found) doe not finde themselves so subject to rheumes or defluctions, but to

The offering ot king Clotar of S.Peter The murther of a king is no mean motive of griefe to al neighbouring

foone as they present themselves, do send | cellencies : who afterward becomming a them to the diseased parts: Euen fo, in a body politike, those great overflowinges that engender discords, do not so necrely touch the strongest in the State. Noblemen, as being more robust & powers full, know how to hurle fuch annovances behinde them, and then their weight fals vpon the vulgar, who are composed of flendereft refistance. Who feeth not then that the principall interest is ours? It is vpon vs that this blow is falne. That fatall knife hath ript open our brefts, and hath fluced forth our bloode, even fo farre as the very furthest Nations: who wholy afrighted at so damnable an attentate haue tellified, that this disaster was in common to them, communicating likewise in our fighes and teares.

But now wee facrifice ouer much vnto griefe. O France! thou must giue a breathing time to thy forrowes; thy great Hen ry yet liveth, God hath not left him after formany victories; he hath rather fnatcht him from beneath the armes of a temporal peace, to lodge him in his everlasting rest, & made him change the Soutcheon Affis Lillies for an eternal Diademe, the floures whereof are without number and value, and the gloryword of any date or limi ation. This life hath nothing in propriety siwhat any man holds here, it is but any creatinite as a depost or pawne, it is but for a shortive (ance, and a present of slender continu-Ance Spuma gracilis que aprocella dispergiour faith the wife man: Fumus qui à vente diffulius elt. It is a highway common to kings & Subjects alike to the haughty, and to the humble. Omne capax mouet wrna nomen. Death (notwith standing he is familiar to vs) yet in his passage along, if he hit his foot against a shepheards cottage only or if a poore labouring man meet with his fickle thefe are blowes that mooue no terror . But contrariwife, when he finites the greatest into the bottom of a tomb; when he shiners Crownes in peeces, and breaks royal Scepters with a touch of his Bigre, this is that which moueth aftonishment in ment this is that wherin they fee themselves, even as in the clearest Chrystall, best representing to the life, the defects of their fraile and wreached nature. They that have contemned God al sheir life time, may take example by Entelidas, loft in the love of his owne peculian ex-knight of Athens, tooke a Grashopper in the fields of Egrettum wherby he learned and came to acknowledgment of his lifes shortnes. Wherupon he builded a house of piety, in contempt of himfelfe; wherein bequeathing all his hoves to God only, hee founded life and faluation for his foule: For an a goodly Rofe in rainy weather (being prickt with a pinne) will fend forth a maruellous pleafing fauour ! euen fo,al the degrees of a great State, beeing prickt in the death of their K.by the into- in a State are lerable piercing thornes of bemoning do woundedby then fend vp to heaven the most sweete their King. Odors of infinite prayers, whereby they procure Dinine bleffinges to descend downe vppon their heads.

This is also the benefite, which (among our teares and laments) we ought to feeke for in our loife, because euen therin God himself bath given vs matter, whereby to comfort out felues. Set before vour conceits, that great deluge of waters, which (in the time of Woah) drowned the whole world. Neuer did heaven before or fince. deliuer fo great a fign of anger against the fins of men. And yet notwithstanding, a extremits, mong all the billows and floating of dead bodies aloft on the waters the height or his divine top of an oliue tree did fnew it felf, wher- helpes. of the Doue broght a presentation to the good old man, as a fymbol of grace, carrying an affured testimony, that the ouer-flow should soone cease, & the Ark be deliuered from all perils whatfocuer.

Euen focin the frightfull deluge of tears, which appeared to swallow vs al vp in the waues, wee haue a facred Oliffe plant, a branch of that royall tree, ourry way an- Lewenhell (werable to that holy Doue, verily raifed to this purpose by the holy ghost, to bring this aged French States thirteenth Less. ex the lively image of the great Heary fo lately taken from vs. Lewes I fay the true Oliue braunch fent from heauen, to prefage our great mercy; vnder who we are to expect the increasing of al those choice vertues and felicities that wee felt under the flourishing teigne of his Father 175 211 In behalfe of whom, I may wel (O France) addresse those speeches to thee, deliuered by tho wife K. Sklomon. Beata tu terra, cum Rex, tum filius aft. Nabilium : Bleffed arts thou (Q Land) when thy King is the found of Nobles. Happy art thou Of rance; for stry

Ecclef. 10,17

Colimo de Medicis the Great Duke of Florence.

the belt pilaroqqiil or nd

kingdome.

Chap.s.

was no lesse adorned with Vertues, then Crownes: And his Mother on the other fide) beeing iffied from fo many great Dukes of Tuscany, the very beautifullest feate of all Italy, from the illustrous blood of that great Cosimo de Medicis, that afforded fo many Fathers to the Church, and floures to thy Diademe, witneffeth the hight of thy good fortune, having broght foorth this young, yet great Prince, who truly Filius est Nobilium. The Isle of Delphos was somtime most

King is the fon of Nobles. For the Father of thy king, descending fro so many kings, wretched, and yeelded it felf to the greedy appetite of the wasting billowes of the fea; till Apollo was borne there, who made it immoueable, and constantly confirmed it against all tempests. O France! if heeretofore thou hast bin beaten with stormes and the rude windes of discord, agitated by the flux and refluxe of some vnhappie partialities, what needest thou nowe to feare, Cum Rex tuus filius est Nobilium? Thy totterings are already past, and I fee thee (for euer) fetled in the Bay of a most bleffed peace, even in the armes of thy King, fo Noble in extraction both by Father and Mother. These are the wishes which we yeelde thee, even from all Orders and effates, vnited both in harts and wils, to submit our selues in a perfect obedience: As we also protest, neuer to be ingrateful to the most happy memorie of that Great Henrie, from whom so manie blessings hath continually fallen uppon

In elder times, the Graces were figured holding handes together, teaching men thereby, that a benefit received with one hand, ought immediately to be requited with the other: But Kings are ouer-great to attend the returne of fuch benefites, as they poure out vpon their people. And as for vs, wee are not able to acknowledge them, which hatte beene received from our good Princes except in feruing him loyally both with hearts and hands as becommeth most faithfull & obedient subiects: If that the hand (to our great greefe) hence-forward can'to nothing yet let the heart (as being more powerfull) continue that office, in waiting, vntill to hal pleafe the heduculy Maielty, to make ve bleffedly fee him againe, in the Celeftiall repose of his glory.

CHAP. V.

The Battell of Rauenna: Which was fought in Italy, in Anno, 1512. betweene Gafton du Foix, Duke of Namures, Generall for Lewes the xy. King of Fraunce, on the one party: and Raymond de Cardonna Viceroy of Naples, Generall for the King of Spaine, and Pope Julio on the other.

HE Generall of the French Army in Italy, being named Gastlon du Foix, for Lenes K.
of France, againft the Pope and King of Spaine, beeing giuen to vnderstand that the opposit pothis battalle HE Generall of the French fiedged by him in the Cittle of Rauenna;

mildoubting some sodaine irruption in wers for the Pope and Spaniard were marching onward(according to a former paffed promife) for giving assistance vnto Marco Antonio of Cardonna, who was be-his politike enemy, brake up the fiedge, making a retreate for the space of some three miles from Rauenna, as it were to meete with the leagued army. That night they made a bridge over the river of Ro-uco, and levelled the highest banks equal with the River, for the eafier paffage of the Souldiers in all places. Afterward the 11. day of Aprill, beeing then Easter day, the Germane foote fouldiers made their passage over this made Bridge of the Ripanage ouer tins made appointed for the vawward and middle battell, they went thorowthe Foord. As for the rere ward being led by Don Ino de Alegres, and confifting of fonte linndred bolde refohied men, they reinhined ftill on the river bank towardes Rauenna, for better affifting the maine army when neede required, and curbing the Garrison of Ranenna, if they Thould prefirme to fally foorth. But for keeping a Bridge (formerly made vppon Montano) liee left a valiant Gentlemah. riamed Paris Scot, with a thousand foote vinder his charge.

All things being ordered in this maner, In what manhis battailes were raunged in this norder.
The vant-gard, that had the great Artilletry before them, confifting of 700. horfe, see Artillebattailes, in ample for all, teke warning expediation. befide of the eremie

this life bath

No man in

*A City in I-taly caldfomtime Forum

Chap.s.

A Towne of | fled by night out of Boldgna! Nay more shey are the fame white liver d men that (not many daies fince) escaped our swordes by base running away sculking within the wals of Imola and Fauenrza, or the weighbouring mountains. They are a nation that never duri fight with our armies in the Newbolitan Kino dom in any place of indifferencie or eafte accoffe, but enermore open adminiage, beeing Supplied with munitions rivers and disches as relying more on close hid ambiffies & tres cheries then on any iot of manhood or valor. And yet let mee further tell ve concerning > and ancient wel-skild feruitors in the New politane wars, but meere fresh-water souldiers otterly without skill or experience never fighting against other weapons of relistance. but Bowes, Arrowes, or the blunted Launces of the Moores. And yet notwithst anding, by that timorous people weake in body worfe in Birit wanting knowledge in armes and military actions they were (with great (hame) ouerthrowne the last year in the Isle of Gerba. And there this very man . Don Pedro de Nauarro, one of fogreat note of name amor them that by taking himfelfe to his hecles, hee delivered a notorious testimony of the difference betweene the beating downer als with fhot and powder & fighting with true fortitude of hardsment. See how they are flut up within a ditch, made this last mieht, enenin meere trembling feare of how their foot are covered with a rampier confisting of Carriages of hooked waggons, as meaning to try the battel with those childish instruments or not with the Marrow, Mufcles, and Arteries of men, or with the chearfull vinacity of Pirit. Make no doubt (deare hearts) but our great Ordenance fall drive them out of their holes. and beate them to the open field: where they Shall plainly perceive, that the power of the French, the courage of the Germanes, and onconquerable refolution of the Italians, doth go far beyond the cunning Subtilities of the Spaniards. The greatest obscuring of our glory, is that we overmatch them in nuber being (wery neere) twice as many as they. Nevertheles. freing fortune hath bin fo bountifull to vs, it were indifcretion not to make wfe of fo happy a benefit, which will rather be imputed to temerity and improvidence in them, then to any cowardly advantage in vs. Nor doth courage or valour incite them on but the authorisy of Fabritio de Colonna, in his rash promise made to Marco Antonio ; or rather thein-

Stice of heaven hath thus provoked them, to the end, that the pride and unfleakable hevnow actions of Iulio, that falfe and counterfer Pope, as also the deceitfull treacheries of the King of Arragon, may have condiene and worthy puniffinent.

But why walt I time in fo many words? Or why should this dictory be folong kept from ye by circumstantial perches in a skilleffe O. ration otterly needle fe for fouldiers of vint danted first? March on then,my valiant fellowes in armes with full affurance, that this day I shal give the whol Empire of Italy tomy King de the wealthy poyle among you all. 4 thefe Spaniards that they are not those tries tour Captaine and Commander willbee prefent with you in every place; and, as I cut have done fo this day more effectally wil 1001 pofe my life upto al perils rather then a man of ye (ball mi [carry. Nay . I (ball repute my felf for the most fortunate Captain that ever with feeing that by this dayes victory. I Ball not onely make my foldiers most glorious, but the richeft of all other Armies , within the com-paffe of three hundred yeares.

This Oration ended, and the aire ecchol ing the noise of Drums & Trumpets, the Spaniards effying the French past the riuer, in this maner they ranged their bat' tailes. The vantgard, confifting of 800. horfe, and conducted by Don Fabritio de How the best Colonna, flood placed along the banke of spanishe timer, where owas added 600. footon were ranged were ranged the right hand. Likewise along the River; were tanged in the field. food the middle battel of 800 horfe; being flanked with 4000.foot, the Viceroy being the Leader therof, & with him the Marqueffe of Paluda, as alfo tohn de Media ci, legat to the Pope. Moreover, along the fame river bank flood the rereward, conducted by Cardaial a Spaniard; & in that battell were 4000. horfe, and 4000.foot. Al the light horfmen (whose General was Danales, Marques of Pefcara, a very yong Gentleman, but of exceeding great hope guarded the right fide of the foot behind, for fuccoring any part that fainted . The great Ordenance was placed in the front of the horse, & Don Pedro de Mauarro Gc. neral of the Spanish foote, accompanied with 500 horfe, had not any place of certainty, but had planted at the ditch in the front of the foot, 30 waggons, like to the crooked Chariots vsed in ancient time. Whereon he had placed field pieces, and very long Boares speares, for casier sustaining the furious feaze and charge of the beside Germane soote, led by the Duke of Ferrara, and the Seneschall of Normandr; this power was placed on the bank of the river, beeing then on the right hand, whereby the foot troopes flanked the left wing of the horse. Somewhat nere to the vantgard, the foot appointed for the mid battalion, being partly Gascoignes, and the reft of other Provinces in France, tooke their charge, and Don Ino de Alegres was their Commander, Further remote from the River banke, the reregarde had theyr place, being in number five thousand foot and all Italians, under the conduct of Frederica de Roz zólo: and this battel was flanked by all the Archers mounted on horfbacke, and other light horsemen, amounting to three thousand.

These battailes were not ordered to rere one another, but in the shape of a Cressant or halfe Moon, and directly behinde them were marshalled six hundred well appointed horfe; conducted by Seigneur de la Palice, and the Cardinall Sanleuerino, Legate for the Councell of Pifa, who bent their intentions against the Pope. He was a man of no meane constitution, full of heate and courage, armed Cap a pie in faire bright glittering Armor, and meeter (in deede) for the office of a Commander in field, then to supply the place of a Cardinall. As for Gaston du Foix, ayming onely at honour and victory, he would not betake himselfe to anie particular charge in the Campe; but felecting for thirty choise Gentlemen, such as he thought fit to share with him in his best fortune of the day; wandered at liberty, as to bee prouident in all places, and for the readier helpe, where neede should require.

He was the man of best marke amongst them all, not onely in regard of his folendant Armes, but likewife for his fprightly countenance, dreadfull carriage, & refolution no way to be daunted. Hauing sanged his battalions into such due form, as nothing wanted but the fignal for fight advancing himselfe on the bay of the Riuer, where belt he might have attention, and animate his army with boldeft fpirit, more eloquently then Souldier-like (as fome suppose, thus he spake.

The Oration of Galton du Foix before the fight to his whole

T Fellow-Souldiers, the thing which you have so long coveted by desired, to wit; to encounter the enemy in an open champaign groud: behold how Fortune hath this day blest yee withall, as not forgetting her former Motherly care of ye, in many a famous and wellwon victory. See what a gracious opportunity is heere presented to ve. Such as precedent times, nor memory of man hath ener acknowledged, vistory houering ouer your heades. embracing ye within the very winges of her bounty not onely for " Rauenna it felf, ful- "An ancient ly and meerely profit rated to your power: but likewise all the Townes and Citties of Romania, though but flender attributes of re- cious & fruitcompence to your high deferts, yet as an ear- full country nest of her further intended fanour wato ve. For, finding Italy naked and emptie, not a man left to stand or encounter with ye: what shall hinder your marching on to Rome it (elfe ? Seeme as if (euen now) you (aw your entrance into it; and confider withall, the boundlesse wealth of that gripple and greedie Court (for many ages togesher) haled & violently torne, even out of the bowelles of poore abused people, and instly ordained now to be at your mercie as village and foile. Proud Ornaments, Silver, Gold, precious Stones All in heapes, and numberleffe summes, beside most rich and sumptuous prisoners, you may already plead full possession of the wide world fanding amazed as your fortunes. And Rome thus being yours, Naples lies fairely before ye, inuiting ye to com thether with the Same successe, and there to revenge your manifold iniuries.

When I consider your valour, fortune dr famous victories, woon within the compasse of fo few dayes , when your manly lookes, and more then manly actions, do quicken my memory, that there is hardly one among yee. but bash made good proofe of his conrage, by apparant and pregnant testimony of his great pirit : there is not any objection what former. to forestall the affured felicitie of wittorie. What are our enemies, but the verie same Spaniards, that (meerely upon our coming)

Nauarro was the Spanish

Gafton du Foix, a man o especiall note from all the

of Pifa leuved

forces against the Pope.

Both fides pectation of

In this order they expected the affault & charge of their enemies strong army, with in the munitio of the ditch but this councel, as it profited nothing in the end, fo in the very beginning it appeared to be per-nitious. For it was the mind of Fabritto de Colonna, to inuade the enemies fo foon as they began to come ouer the Rivers as thinking it more commedious to incounter with one only part of the enemies, the ro shide in the camp, defenced but with a fingle ditch But when Don Pedro de Nawarro (whose councel the Viceray follow-ed as Oracles) repugned this aduice, it was decreed (though nothing providently that they (hould be fuffered to paffe) uer the river. The French being com within 200 paces of the ditch flayed; perceyuing that their enemies, kept themselves within their camp, not ftirring any further leaft they should give their enemies such advantage as themselves defired to have. For more then two houres, both the armies were thus at a fland, but no meane flore of thot came from the great Ordenance all that while on either fide whereby the French foote endured great detriment. For Nauarro had planted his artillery in fuch a place, as he might at his pleafure hurt them; but the Duke of Ferrara made great haft, & brought his Artillery in the rere of the army, to another wing of the French, where the archers on hord back were planted, which wing, in regard that the army flood in the form of acreffent, was (welneere) on the rere of the enemics from whence he beganne cruelly so flank their fides efpecialy of the horse for the Spanill foot being brought by Nauarre, into a low place along the rampier of the river, & (by his command) laid flat on the ground could no way be injuried by the thot. Fabritio called out aloud, and vrged the Viceroy by mellengers often fent to begin the battel, before they were torn in pieces by the great Ordnance. But Nawarro being guided by peruerfe ambition would not agree therto. For in regard he had promised himselfe victory, only thorow the value of the Spanish foot, yea, & although al the rest of the army wer slain, yet he imagined, that his glory would bee the more augmented, the more y harmes were heaped on the rest of the army. By this time, the men of armes and light horfe had enduredfo great a flaughter, as it could be no longer born; and as a most miferable & dreadful foectacle, here horfes, there men from off those horses, fell down dead and heads & arms being torn from the rest of the body, were seen flying aloft in the aire, whereat Fabritio beganne thus to exclaime. And must we all (quoth ha) dy bere shamefully by the wilful perner fwas of one Maranot Must this army be otter- A nick-nam In lost and not one enemy flaine by ws?Where given in from exe pur formany Tropbees over the French? Must the honor of Spaine and Italy perish for one only Nauarro? No fooner had he spoken these words, but without staying for the figual or any command fro the Viceroy he droug his horfnich ouer the ditch whom the rest of the horse following, Nauarra was forced prefently to give the fignal to his Regiment, & they rifing with violent fury encountred the Germanes, who were by this time come verie neere them. So the battels being met pelmel on all fides together, it was wonderful to behold; & furely this battel was the greatest termed the that ever traly had feene in many yeares : most terrible because that at Tarre washardly any thing battell, elfe, but a ftrong encounter of horfe, And the battels in the kingdom of 2V aples were rather diforderings of array, or rath attempts, the describedly to be termed bat-tels. And at Giaradaedda, the smallest part of the Power and fought: but heere two potent armies fought with harts firmly combined either to vanquish or dy. Being enflamed, not only by perill. glory, and hope, but also mutuall batted. which fleuerall nations bare each other. In the encounter of the German foot with the Spaniards two Colonels of great fame fightbenean the one named Jacob Emfer, a German, & the chief Colonels of great fame fightbenean the one named Jacob Emfer, a German, & the chief Colonels one fight fight. by way of challenge, before the fronts of cob Emfer, the battailes : in which fight, the Spani- Zamudo, ard killing his enemic, became the conqueror . The horsemen of the Confederates, were not compareable to them of France ; beside that day they had bene fo endamaged, and meerely torne by the great Ordenance, that they were thereby made farre interiour. So that, after they had a while fuftayned the force of their enemies, rather by flournes of ftomacke, then fitength of body, and Alegres

to a Spaniard

This battelor Rauenna was

gree and his

Fabritio de Colonna fighting very valiantly, hadbin taken by the Duke of Ferraraes Soldiers. Wherefore, feeing themselues nolonger able to hold but against the enemicatury, & enfirinced also by the example of their Capsaines, turned their backs likewife. For the Viceroy and Garuaiall, neuer tarrying theyrrermofatriall of valour in their Souldiers, fled; leading away with the the rereward, almost whole and vnroucht. With them also fleet intonia de heurya man (as then) of mointeonditionabut afterward being exercited in all degrees of marrial fernices, became a and Paluda raken. Sed T

Chap.s.

The flight of the Viceroy

and Carnaial

and Antonio

de Leua.

very famous Generall. Now all the light horfemen were ouerthrowne, and Pefcara their Oaptaine, weltring in blood & wounds; was raken alfin and fowns the Marquelle of Paluda, who brought the fecond battail into the fight, through a field of dirches, bufher, & bryats, which much difordered the aray Bofide, the field was concred wholly (as it were) with the mangled bodies of men & horfes, which proned no final hinderance to them. Bur yet the Spanish footebeing forfaken of the horfemen foughbwith in credible fiercenes. And although they had bindiminhat rapulled at their firft encoutringwhilishoidermanes, by reafon of the fitongranks of Pikosayerafter thelicanie brithin the reach of their Swords many of the Spaniards (beingloonered with their The flinhard Fargets) got hetween the legs of the Cenhogmanyof patts. With their Daggers, and folcommitmanes, wounding them in thofodifarmed ting avery great flaughter among them attayned (almost) to the midft of the battaile. Among whom the Gascoigne foot, having won the way betweent the River and the Rampier, had fharply charged the Italian foote, who although they had fustained great losse, by the Ordenance play ing hothy upon themose they had utterly expelled then, if their had nor given a fresh and violent charge on them with his horsemen, & with grenter force the good fortune. For when he faw his Son Finerrees flaine in his fight; and almost at the very first encounter; he vnwilling to furnine, after a loffe flugicar and greenous; ranne in with his horie, even among the thickeft of his enerdies; and fighting like a most valiant Captaine, after hee had flainemany, was flaine himfelfe.

The Italian foote, when they could no longer hold out against forgreat a multituide began to thrink but part of the Spaniards comming welleit fuccor, they kept Atilin the battaile; and the Gorman foote, oppressed by the other part of the Spaniardercould lumfely fland up any longer. Burnowall the Spanish troopes of horle being pur toffight Gaston dus Fois with 4 great multitude of his horlemeder frefft lvolvithe Spantardscand thed retiring raafform delice of the field march linghaggood acraylandin no part biokeni took the way lying between the River & the high banck going in afrequall paret with their Front very thickeof men, and repelling the Ireach with the ftrength therof began to redrive and of derly depart our of the field Which 2 mairio behold ing was more defitous of death then life? Pedro de Na-& therefore not departing out of the bat-prisoner. taile, was ta-c prisoner. But helr minded de Fois, not brooking to fee the Spanish footomarch thus away fafely & (Vi Ctorslike) with their whole rankes vnbroken, perceining alfo, that the victory was imperfect, voleffethey were broken as well as the rellein a vehement filty, he charged on their rere with a troop of horfe. But he beeing immediately enclosed in among The death of mong them, and thrown off from his defenceall, dantor de hore, or (as orliers lay) opprefied with the Fork, & meet flundering of his owne horfe was flaine ly though his within Pike thruft into his fide. And doubtleffe, if they ougher to with for coatli (according as common upinion is that hade attained to the highest degree of felicitys then affiredly the death of this not ble Centlemen was most vofortunate, hauing gotten fo glorious & eminent a viz dory. He dyed a very your man, having now won (among all me) immortall fame. because within the space of a Moneille, (being a Generall, almost before he was a Soldier) with incredible celerity & good finecesse; he had getten so many glorious victories. The Hord Laurrech (his Coufin german) having received twery greenous Laurech conwoundestaybelide him, well neere dead ; fin germane burbeing barried to Ferrara, was faued by to Gaffon du the diligent ente and cure of good Chy-

the thousand foote also lest at Montona: they were charged on allfides. Befide, fending for Palice with the rereward, and the bag and baggage taken together with their Enfigns & Ordenance: as also the rargions. Thus through the death of noble Du Foingthe Spanish footewere fuffered to march away without impeachmer.

The rest of the Army was put to slight, all Don Pedro de Naustro.

Much harme

done by the great Orde-

nance on ey

6.5

ther fide.

What prifo. ners were taken in this harrel.

The number of men that were flain on both fides

Colonna, Wanarro, the Marquelle of Paluda, Ritonto and Pelcara, and manie other Princes, the cheefe of the Nobilitie, and men of best name among the Spaniardes and Neapolitans . The number of them that were flaine in this battell, is altogether vocertaine, yet among the variety of many reports, most do affirme, that (on both fides) there were flaine ten thouland at the least, whereof the third part vvere French, and the rest made vp among their enemies. But without all controversie, the loffe on the victors fide was farre the greater, by reason of the death of Du Foix, Alegres, and many of the French Nobility, as also of Jacob Emfer, and other the valiantest Captaines of the German foot. to whose valour and manhood this victory (bought with fuch a deere effusion of blood)was chiefly attributed. Moreover, many Captains of the Gaf-

Popes Legate, John de Medicis, Fabricio de

coignes and Piccards (which Nations loft that day all their glory amog the French) were flaine with Mounfieur Molard : but the death of Du Foix turpassed all other loffes, with whom the courage, firength, life, and fiercenes of that army was veterly extinguished. The greatest part of the vanquished, that escaped from the battel, fled to * Cefena, & from thence to further places: neither did the Viceroy flay any where, vntill he came to Ancona, whether he brought but very few of his followers. For, the Duke of Vrbine, not onely rayled vp the Countrimen against them, but alfo fent fouldiers to doe thelike in Pefare; onely they escaped safe, that passed thorough the Florentines Dominions.

And although after this battell, the vi-Gor Army tooke and facked Rauenna, yet within very short time after, when the couctous Treasurer of Normandie (to sauc charges) had dismissed the Italian Soldiers; and part of the men of Armes vvere returned for France, and the Emperor had reuoked the Germanes: they were (by a new Army of Switzers that came in the Popes ayde, and with whom also joyned the Venetians) quite dispossessed of the whole Dukedome of Millaine, and all that euer the French King had beside in Italy.

CHAP. VI.

What they were whom the world tearmed by the name of the Sibillaes; Of their Prophefies : but more principally of those shings which they Bake concerning Chris Stian Religion.

THe History of the Sibils, is generally held to be very certaine, because euery one (almost) knoweth, that they foretold and prophefied many things. Neuertheleffe, to know when, whence and what they were, what they did, & at what times they wrote and prophefied, is most familiar to him that hath read ancient and authenticall bookes. It made me therefore The dium the more willing, to make a Collection of phefic belon their history, and so much the rather, be- ed on those cause it is a matter of no meane maruel, to women. contemplate the gift of Prophefy, which God gaue to those women in divers manners. But particularly to prophefie of the comming of Christ, of his life, of his pasfion, and other great mysteries of our holy faith : thefe we do purpofe to fpeake of briefly, to the end, vehe Ethnicke Pagan may not any way excuse himself (althouh he will reade but his owne bookes onely) no more then the lew in reading his, and will not accept nor beleeue our faith . I write this the rather because (by common The Sibille confent) those bookes were receyued among all the Gentiles , and the Sibillaes the Gentio. credited, especially by the Romanes, who in all theyr affayres and necessities had still their recourse to the Sibilline bookes, and tooke their best and most serious counsels from them.

All Historians, both Greeke & Latine have written of them:our intent then shall best fit it selfe, without selecting fo great a number, to make choise of the cheefest, the better to avoide prolixity, & fet them down in some orderly maner. Diodorus Siculus. Pliny Solinus Servius Martianus Capellus, Lactantius Firmianus, Elianus, Suidas haue white Strabo, Marcus Varro, Virgil, with the concerning the Sibile foundest part of al the Poets. S. Augustin, Eulebim Orofim, and the more part of all our Historians, largely writeth on them.

Diodorse faith that the word Sibil or Sibilla implieth to much, as if a man should fay A woman Propheteffe, & filled or infpiInterpretati · on of the word Sibilla.

Chap. 6.

Encides; and Lactantius in his first Booke of Divine Institutions, nameth them, The Councell of God. Suidas termeth it Prophetelle. These Authors doe not agree how many there were of these women neither confent at what times; because some determine more, and others leffe. Martianus Capellus makes mention but of two, others remember foure as Alianus doth in his variable histories. Marcus Varro recordeth ten, whereof Lactantine Firmianus to follow.

The first was of Persica, named Samber.

ta, of whom Nicanor maketh great mention euen he that wrot the actions of great Alexander. Others fav. that shee was of Chaldea, & others, that the was a lewesse, borne in a town feated nere to the red fea.

called Noa. Her father was named Berofus and her mother Erimantha: the composed

24.bookes in verfe, wherein the recounted of Christ, his life, and miracles. But yet they were vnder concealement, and deli-uered with an artificiall obscuritie, which was not to be vnderstoode of eueric one:

whereto al the other Siballaes conformed themselues. So that Lactantius Firmianus without particularizing any one of them, describeth their particular Prophesies of Christ. Saint Augustine maketh a summathefe very wordes.

Diam.Intit. Sibilla Perfi sacalled also

Diffent abou

the Sibilles

Lall Firm in

mmber.

The prophe-fic of Sibilia Perfica,concerning christ

He Shall be taken by the wicked handes of unbeleeuers and they shall give him blows on the face with their facrilegious hands of spet on him with their foul polluted mouths: And he (hall give them his shoulders, suffering the to be whipped and he holding his peace, without Beaking any word, they shall thereby not know whence his words came. He Shall likewife be crowned with thorns, giving him gall to eat or vinegar to drink. Behold what feasting they shal make for him: so that they blind and ignorant people, thou fbalt not know thy God, converfing among men. But fbala crown him with thornes, providing for him vinegar or gall. Again, the weile of the Temple (hall be rent of the plaine bright day at noone, shall be like night, obscured or darkened for the space of three houres. And when he hath bin in hel. be shal returne so life, and rife againe. Thele words are so pregnant, that they red by God. Seruius on the fourth of the pare the very proper tearines of the Euan, Her word; a gelists writing on Christ, and the verie the Property fame that the Prophets prophefied, efpe- and Evangecially Efay, whereunto our holy Church lift. giveth absolute beleefe. Beside, these Prophefies of the Sibillaes, are derived fro the writings of Lattanting, S. Augustine, and Cicero, from Marcus Varra, & other Authors of the Gentiles, who dyed before the birth of Christ, as Lactantius ap- Leg Firmin proueth, And fav moreouer (of the felues) dawn inthe, lib that they faid, That he fhall raife the dead : 4.cep. 15. speaketh in his first booke & him I meane The lame of impotent shall walke and runne Coundly : the deafe shall beare ; the blind shall (ee: the dumbe shall beake plainly. A little farther is added, With fine loanes de two fithes, hee fall feede fine thoufund men in the wildernesse: and that which remaineth. Shal ferue for fatisfaction to the hope of manie .

> The second, they say, was a Natine of 2.5 ibilla Libia Libia, and therefore named Stbilla Libica. Europelan Pro. Ofher is large mention by Europedes in his Prologue called Lamia.

Thus farre for the first Sibilla.

wonderful things, concerning the coming The third named her felfe Themis, and was firnamed Delphica, in regard that the 3. Sibila Dilwas borne at Delphos. Of her speaketh phica, called Chrisippus, in his booke of Dinination: & alto themis. this woman (according to Pliny) the Ro- diain mans made a Statue voto, and thee lined Plinin 1,7 s. 9. before the destruction of Troy: fo that Homer hath fet downe in his workes, manie verses concerning her . Diodorus Siculus Diodor Sicul ry of some things, which this woman and faith, that she was called Dapbne, and was the rest said of Christ, and among other) daughter to Titessus, and that the Argines faith, that the was called Daphne, and was in lib. o. cap. 14 having subdued Thebes, they fent her to Delphos, where afterward thee became a Propheteffe in the oracle of spollo: fo that (according to his relation) in that respect The was called Delphica.

... The fourth was named Cumaa, or Italiana, & not Cumana Amalthea, of whomwe no shall have canfe to speake anon. She was a native of Gimeria, a City of Campania, necre to Cuma. Her learned and judicious Prophefies, are written by Neuvin in the Punicke Bookes, and by Pilonius in his Annal. Annales, and referred by Lactantius, and by Firgil in his Eglogue, which beginneth Sicelides muladace

The fift was that to famoully remebred Sibilla Erythrag, who fo clearly (by Gods affiftance) prophesied the greater part of our Religion. V Vherefore as Lattantius fayeth; In times long fince, those Gen- Litt. Firm in tiles reputed it as folly, or a defect of braine,

Punic Pifonan

The couetou Treasurer of Normandy.

A Towns of Picenum in I taly, beyonde

Appeninus.

Appollod,in lib

Eufe's in Hift. Eccl lib. s cap.

Aug in lib, 16

The prophe Erythraa.

de Cinitate dei.

naturall things which they wrote, beeing declared in Bookes of ancient Historians and Poets. Appollodorus writeth of this Sibilla, that the Greekes going to besiege Troy, thee prophetied to them that Troy should be destroyed. Wherfore, all those that speake of her, make her more ancient then the destruction of Troy : vet Eulebins maketh her more novell, for hee woulde haue her live at fuch time as Romulus lyued in Rome. And Strabo faith, that the lived in the time of Alexander the Great. The Verses of this Sibilla Erythraa, are recited by Eulebius: the first words whereof, being traduced into our language, are thus : lefus Christ, Son of God, the Sauiour: which is a most admirable thing to think on. The confideration of those verses, and their further addition, are set downe by S Augustine, in his 18. Booke of the City of God, delivering it in these expresse under stood not how it might bee, that a virgin flould have a childe; and other super-

The earth shall sweate, a signe of judgement : from Heauen shall come a King , who (ball be King for euer: and further, known in humane flesh, to the end, that by his presence be shall judge the world. By which means, the incredulous, as well as the faithfull shall see God with their eyes, exalted among his Saints. And in the end of the world, the fouls of men shall appeare in their owne flesh, and hee shall iudge them himselfe, when the rotunditie of the inculted earth, shall be full of clods of dust andgrasse. Men shall cast away Idols and Images, and all their Iewels and riches. He shal penetrate the inferiour parts, and breake the gates of the darkest hell. Then Shall favre and cleare light be given to the Saints, To the flame of eternal fire shall burne the Wicked . All secrets shall be discourred, enery man shal be knowne of his companion: and GOD [hall discouer the Consciences and hearts of all. There shall be weeping and enashing of teeth, and the Sunne and the Starres shal bee darkned; the heavens shallbreake, and the Moone lose her light; the mountains shal be humbled, and the valleyes made equal with the hilles . There shall not be any thing in the world that Balbe higher or lower one the another: mountaines and valleyes shall be even and plain of all things shall finish. The earth shall be dryed, and converted to dust, Ivels, frings, and rivers shall burne, and with the same fire shall

to talke of the Sibillaes verses: because they the earth, sea, and ayre, he burned also. Then from beauen shall found a Trumpet, with a dreadfull and horrible found, and the earth in opening. Shall discouer the darkenesse and confusion of hell, and the paines dy torments of the miserable damned.

Thefethings, and many more befide. are spoken of this Sibilla in those Verses. declaring clearly Christ God incarnate, with the last judgement, and refurrection of the dead. Now these things, before they came to paffe, were no way intelligible: & that was the reason, why the Ethnickes and Gentiles might holde them to be follies and mockeries. In like manner, this Sibilla Erythras, knowing well that her prophete which should happen, concerning her other tells. owne felfe, spake these words : They will repute me for a blind of mocking propheteffe. Neuertheleffe, when those things which I speak shal be accomplished and verified, they will remember me, and no more tearme me a lyar but a Prophetes of the Great God.

The Romans had great flore of the verfes written by this Sibilla Erythraa, wherof Fenestella speaketh more at large, and Fenestelinith, faicth: That by a decree of the Senate, they de For. fent Ambassadors unto her in regard of her Prophesies: and that they brought backe great flore of her verfes, which they laid vo in the Capitoll, with them which they had before. She was borne in Erythraa in Ionia, "A Cityin Aa Prouince of the leffer Afia, and abutting Chios, voon Caria: this I relate the rather, beecause there are found many other Citties to be of that name; as one in Lybia, another in Bætta, another in Locris, and another in the Isle of Cyprus. But that shee was of that Erythraa in Ionia, Strabo is my Author, and faith. That it hath a Port on Strabo in lib. the fea, neere to a Mountaine.

Another Sibilla, being the fixte, was borne in a place named Phiton, in the Isle of Samos, which is in the Ægaum fea, nere to Thrace : or elfe in the other Ifle of Samos in the same sea, and opposite against Ephelus, for which cause, thee was called Sibilla Samia, of whom further mention is Eratoftent. made by Eratostenes J.

The seauenth in order, is Sibilla Cu- 7. Sibilla Cumana, named Amalthaa : others call her Demophila; and Suidas tearmeth her Hierophyla. Shee was called Cumana, because sheedwelt and prophesied in the *A pleasant Citie of Cuma in Italy, a Prouince of City in Cam-Campania, necre vnto Baia. Of this wo- Seafia.

Nine Books brought to Tarquinius Superbus to be fold, by this Sibilla

Chap. 6.

Cumana.

Feneftel, in lib.

Pirgil. in Aen. lib.s.

Plm in lib.9.

b.7.cap.14.

man writeth Dionisius Halicarnasseus, So- 1 be the other Cumaa, whereof we haucallinus, Aulus Gellius, and Serutus. This ready spoken. For it can be no way likely, Sibilla brought to fell to Tarquinius, the that Firgil should suppose a Sibilla, at such proud King of Rome, nine feueral books: neuertheleffe, Suidas faith, that it was to Tarquinius Priscus. For which Books, she demanded three hundred peeces of gold. moniethen of great value: but because fold the Bookes, was named Cumana, although the price feemed excessive to the king, he it was not her name, and yet not with stanwould not buy them. Whereupon, the burned three of them in his prefence, and yet demanded the fame fumme for the fix that remained. Then the King thought her motion to be more impertinent then the former, and feemed to mocke her: whereupon she burned three more of the fixe, and told him, that the had but three left of the nine, and yet he should give her as much for those three, as if hee had bought them all. The King being amazed at this her confident determination. and conceiuing (by good aduice) that those Bookes must needs containe some bunea, and was borne in the Citty of Ti- butina. extraordinary great mysteries; bought the three at that price, which formerly the demanded for them all, and those Bookes were placed in the Capitoll, where they were held in foueraigne reuerence & ve-

Pliny faith, that the had but 3 Bookes

in all and that the burned two of them, &

vet would have as much for that one, as for all the three. But it sufficeth, that those Books were kept in great reputation, with them that the Romanes had of the other Sibillaes. For as Marcus Varro reporteth. er." arro in from Lattantiue; the Romanes bestowed great cost and paines, in searching all Cities and Townes of Greece, Alia, and Italy, and brought to Rome all the Verfes & Prophesies, that could bee recoursed of the Sibillaes; especially those of Sibilla Erythrea, for the care and fafe keeping of which Bookes, fifteene men were particularly appointed, and none other but they might touch them . Fenestella faveth. that when the Capitoll was burnt, the Senate fent againe to entreate Sibilla Erythrea, to helpe them in those Bookes. In which respect it is to bee presumed, that they had not at Rome the Bookes of Sibilla Cumana onely, but likewife al the reft. And that Sibilla, whereof Virgill maketh mention in the beginning of his 6 Book, who kept herfelfe at Cuma, where (he fayeth) Aneas tooke shipping; must needs time as Aeneas entredinto Haly, nor that the lived till the fit King of Rome. Befide, Servius interprets the same passage, servius in 1.5.2 faving. Or elfe it must needs be, that shee who sup.9. ding, she dyed in that Citty.

The eight Sibilla, is faid to be a native 8 Sibilla Hellein the Territory of Troy, in a place named frontia. Marmifa, and this woman is reputed to be very ancient. For * Heraclides Ponticus faieth, that he lived in the time of Solon the scholler to Philosopher, and of the great King Cyrus. Palo and Ari.

The ninth sibilla, divers Authors doe sibilla Phyreport to be of the Country of Phrygia, Bia. and that thee prophetied in the Citty of Ancyra; of which name were two Cities. one in Phrygia, and the other in Galatia.

The tenth Sibilla, named herfelfe Al- 10 Sibilla Tibur, which standing fixteene miles distant the Sabines from from Rome, thee therfore was tear- 16 miles from med Sibilla Tiburtina.

Now, all these Sibillaes lest many Bookes and Verses, wherein they prophefied of things that were to come, & prin- The Romans cipally of the fortunes of Rome, were they respect of the good or bad : fo that in all important affaires, the Romanes would diligently fearch, and turne ouer the leaves of the Sibiline Bookes, and order their gouernment wholly by them. And in the fame manner, as when wee would have our speeches credited, we vie to fay, this is Gospell: so would they fay, these are the words of Sibilla; fuch was their credite & account among them. And for this cause Innenall faid.

Credite me vob is folium recitare Sibilla:

Heereupon some faid, that the Sibillaes gaue their answeres, written vpon leaues of Trees, as Virgill witnesseth in his fixt Booke . Cicero speaketh of those Sibil- Cicero in Dissi laes with great reuerence, faying : As wee nat lib 2. have formerly done, even fo from the capitall Letters of their Verses, we may derive, great, good and gracious fentences.

Among many other things, they have Divers Profpoken much of Christian Religion, con-phesesoncerning the birth, life, and death of lefus cerningChrist Christias we have already declared. Se luuenall. Virgil.in Ac-nidlib.e.

The acknow

ledgment of the Sibillaes

Report of fome other

Sibiliaes.

writings.

and shall reione in powerty, concealing his Soueraignty, and shall come from the wombe of a Virgin. And Infephus (although he was a Iew by race and profession) speaking of Iofepb. inlib. the Tower of Babylon, hath these words. Sibilla well remembred it, when the faid thus. At such as men having but one Language, Some of them Shall build a very high Tower, as if thereby they would mount up to Heauen: Godsbal (euenthen) send great windes to destroy it and divers Languages shall happen among the workmen, and therefore is the Tower named Babylon.

of a Virgin, without any flefbly copulation. Another laid : Hee that is to come, shall come,

Thefethings, and others fuch like, were written by the Sibillses, and acknowledged both by Christians, Jewes, and Gentiles, which the Gentiles (for their finnes) scarfely understood. But it fell out well for christians afterward into whose hands thefe Bookes came, as Lattanfins, Eufebius, S. Augustine: the knowledge of which Bookes, or the least part of their Prophefies greatly confirmed the Christian, and quite confounded the Pagane and Gentile. There is report made of some other, who were also named Sibillaes, because they were reputed to be Dinineresses and Prophetesses: as Cassandra, the daughter of King Priamus, and Campusia Celophania, the daughter of Calcas, and Manta Theffalonica, daughter to Tirefias the Thebane: neuerthelesse. Historians speake onely but of these ten.

CHAP.VII.

Concerning the feuen Maruailes and Wonders of the World , what they were ; also in what severall parts and places of the "World they are remembred to bee by grawest Writers.

CVch as haue read ancient/Historians. Orators, and Poets, do finde, that they make mention in many of their Books, of 7 Meruailes or Wonders of the World. and that they were in divers places. All they that have written, do confent to fix, but concerning the feuenth, there are vatiable opinions, and likewife a great diffe-

billa Delphica faid, The Prophet shall be borne | rence, in placing one before another. Notwithstanding, I purpose to speake first of The fish were the walles of Balylon, which are rancked world. in the number of these Wonders, & vpon good reason, because the greatnesse of the place, as also the scituation thereof, feemeth incredible.

> In our former Volume, and in the Areference Chapter of the diversity of Languages, to the fift to lume of this wee have fufficiently declared, that they worke. were founded in the fame place, whereas Nimrod builded the Tower of Babel, and whereof the Citty tooke name. Concerning those walles, according to the foundest opinions, namely Iustine, and also as Iustinia His Trogus Pompeius faith, they were founded by the famous Queene Semiramis, Molitica, 1719 Pumpa libat. ther to Ninus. Diodorus Siculus, Ammi- Diodor, Sical anus Marcellinus, and Paulus Orofius doe inlib.3. maintaine the same, with the greater part celinlib 33. of our Gentile Authors. Neuertheles, Paul. Orof. 10 S. Augustine, and Insephus in his Antiquities fay, that they were builded by Nim-de cinii, Dei rod, affifted by the proud Gyants then li-loseph, inthe 6, uing. But bee it, that the foundation or reparation of them was done by Semiramis; it is sufficient, that they were greatly ennobled by her.

> The scituation of the City was with a The scitual Plaine on the one fide, and on the other on of the Ch ran the River of Euphrates. The modell & ty and Wales figure of this Citty, was in a quadrangle, and the walles wonderfully high, as also wrought with maruallous cunning. The matter was of stone, joyned with Lime & Ciment, growing in the Mines of that Country; but especially in the great Lake of Indea, where fometime flood Sodome & Gomorrha, named Afphaltida, which yeeldeth fuch 2 kinde of flime or mud, as bindeth like Pitch or Glue, the very firongest that is to be found. Historians do difagree about the height and largenes of the Concerning circuit, which might happen, through the the circuit of diversity of the measures they then vied. the Wallet Pliny faith, that the circuit of those walles Plinin 16 cas was threefcore thouland paces, fo that one of the fquares was fifteene thouland. He also saith, that they were two hundred of them, and the thickasts three fingers breadth, the measure of the Romane foote a and the thicknesse was fifty foote of the fame meafure, which was (indeed) a marret very admirable.

Dadorus Sicula faith, that the wals con- Deder Skali tained in all round about 360 Stades, and lib.s.

that they were so broad and wide, as fixe I score and ten cubites in height, and al-A Stade is re Three hüdred fet on worke and Orof in

Chap. 7.

Izl.Solin Polyhainlib 3,c.g.

An hundred tall in the Chariots might eafily be trained in front together, without offending one another. The Bridges, the Mounts, the Towers, & the Gardens, Semiramis caused to bee made, which were works of great aftonish ment. It is credibly fet downe in Records. that shee kept daily at this worke, three hundred thousand me, out of all the kingdomes which were fubicat to her. Quintus Curtius addeth thereto eight Stades more in length, and faith, that they were an hundred cubites high; but Paulus Orosussaith, that they were 480 Stades in length, which amount (taking fix fcore & fine paces in enery Stade) to threefcore thousand paces, as Pliny said. Strabe faith and affirmeth, that they contained three hundred, eighty fine Stades, and also that they were fo broad, as the former named Chariots might in that manner goe on them, and yet not hurt or hinder one ano-

Moreouer, Authors doe report maruaylous things, of Gardens made uppon the Arches and Towres, wherein grew Trees of vnmeafurable height. Inline Solinus confirmes the same with Pluns Some among the Authors do auouch, that the walles without, were engire with Ditches full of water, as large and deepe as an indifferent wide River. In this Citry there were an hundred Gates of mettall, very admirable. And for conclusion, all that is written of the greatnesse and height of the walles, may well be credited, because (in truth) this Citty was the proudest in the whole world, and long time held the vniuerfall Monarchy, which is an especiall argument of her greatnesse. And the fame is also described by Aristotle, when he faith: That being once taken with enemies, they that dwelt at the one end or fide of the City had no advertisement thereof, till three whole daies shace after.

ther, in their passing along together.

The fecond place of the worlds wonwonder of the ders, we give to the Colossus of the Sun, which was at Rhodes. It was a Statue or Figure of a man, offered by the Gentiles, and dedicated to the Sunne, and some say to Iupiter. It was made of mettall, of an incredible greamesse, and in height also like a huge Tower : fo that it could hardly be imagined, how it was made and raised in that manner. Pliny, who discourseth on all things, faith, that it contained three though at the making of it, there were many good workmen continually labourings yet were they twelve years before it could be perfected, and it cost three hundred Talents. He that vndertooke the works mandbip thereof, was named Cares, an Indian by birth, and Scholler to * Lyfip- Caruer of

This Statue was fo immeasurably men found, that could embrace the great fingers of this Statue: fo that the very least of his fingers, was greater then any

Paul wrote, were people of a Citty in Phry-

Returning then agains to our won-derfull Coloffus, I say that it lay there ruined a very long time, euen till the dayes of Pope Martin the first, which was in the yeare fixe hundred, when the Infidels, and the Soldane of Egypt their Captaine, came vpon the Rhodians, and according which they found of the reliques of this

Colosius, and they finde nine hundred

Camels to be loden with the mettall. Of other Coloffes that were at Rhodes, and in other places, nothing fo great, we purpose not to speake, because our present aime is at the feuen Wonders of the pia.named * Coloffa.

À tiotable

great, as it seemed, that the earth could not any longer fustaine it, because according to Pliny and Paulus Orofius, it stood not about fixe and fifty yeares : at the end of which time it fell, by reason of a great quaking and trembling of the earth. After which fall, and namely in the time of Pliny, many went to fee it as a thing to wonder at. For, faith he, there were few other Statues, how great focuer. And yet he speaketh of an hundred other Golosses of meaner stature, which were also at Rhodes. But that is nothing to our purpose, except some one be defined to say, elication and the F.

that in regard of this greet one, and the other lefter, the Rhodians thereon were called Coloffenfes or Colofsians. But that opinion is not approued by Erasmus, for he saith; That these Colossans to whom S.

> A Towns of Phrygia,nor as Platina writeth in the life of Pope Mar- Platina in vit. tin, and Antonius Sabellicus, in the third An Sabellic, in part of his Booke: they carried away that 1863.

world onely. In the third place, wee determine the Piramides of Egypt, and vindoubtedly, if The third that be true which Historians haue writ- wonder of the ten of them, they are things deferuing ad-

Some diffeabout the 7 wonders

If we fer afide those ancient Bookes.

we shal vet finde testimonies of our owne times. Peter Martyr of Millaine, a very learned man, who was Ambaffadour for the years I to I. wrote a Booke of what he had seene and done in his Ambassage.

There he declareth, (as he did the like by word of mouth) that hee had feene those Piramids & agreethwith that which those ancient Authours had written of them.

Particularly, he speaketh of two seene by him, which were of incredible height, and faith, that he measured the fonate of one.

finding it to be 315 paces; for that it contained about thirteen hundred in circuit,

and on each fide very huge stones made up the buildings. Moreouer he faith, that certaine men in his company, afcended vp one of them, with very great labour, & long space of time, and they declared to him, that on the toppe of all (as we vidto

fay) there was one from wholly of it felfe.

fo great, as thirty men might cafily frand voonit . And when they were about,

they faid, they feemed as if they had loft

their fight, and onely with looking downward, and tooke themselves to bee in a

Cloud, fuch was the extremity of height, their braines being much troubled, and turned vpfide-downe. So that (faith hee)

there neede no doubt at all be made, concerning the great number of people em-ployed, and the expences spoken of, in doing those works.

red to touch heaven.

gic of the 1/2 word Pira-midmiration. These Piramids were certaine buildings, which began beneathe in quadrangle forme, and so rose vp (in a diminishing manner) a huge height, in the Ihabe of a painted Diamond. And yet notwithstanding, they were of such greatneffe and taulneffe, confifting of fuclerand fo many stones, as also wrought with fuch perfection, as it is no easie matter to describe them, neyther to winne credible oninion of them . And yet (me-thinks) things to fufficiently authorized, by Authors both Christians and Gentiles; men well efteemed and approved; their eredence is not rafuly to be flighted or denied. These Piramids then are as very high towers, finishing in a spire or sharp point, and the crimology of the word commeth of Parin Greeke, as much to fay, as fire, because it feemeth, that the height commeth to leffen and fayle like as a flame of fire doth, more and are to

Among all other Piramids, Historians make particular mention of a which were in Egypt, betweene the Citty of Memphis, which is now the Cayro, and the Ife that maketh or createth Wilus, named Delta, one of which is rancked among the feuen wonders. For it is faid, that to the making thereof, therewere continually imployed three hundred and threefcore thousandmen, and the work lasted twenty whole yeares. Many do affirme it, and particularly Pliny in speaking more amply, alledging ewelue authors for his warrant, as Diedonias Siculus, Strabo, Pomponius Mela, Herodetus, Ammanus Marcellinus, and many more, whereof fome fay, that the foundation and ground-work of this Piramid couered and contained eyelit dayes journey of ground : others fay feaher and most agree on fixe, and as many (little more or leffe) in the height. Pliny faith, that each quadrangle or fquare conrained 882 foote in bredth. The ftones were of Marble, brought out of Arabia, and Pomponius Mela maintaineth, that the most part of them were thirty foote in largenesse. Whereby may be gathered. ployed dayly, that fo many thousand men must needs be builed, fome in cutting and fquaring those stones, others in bringing and carrying them, and other in laying them, befide the mighty multitudes, imployed for fetching them fo far off, and about other necessary occasions. ad:

Of the other Piramids the like is fooken at leaft of the other two foremamed, one whereof was made by the wantry of the Kings of Egypt, who were the very cheficities richeft in all the world: as well by the world fruitfulneffe of the earth, as in regard alfo, that no man possessed any thing in proper, but onely the King. Besides after such time as 10/eph the Sonne of 1400b, aduited Pharach, to preferue the Corne in seuen yeares abundance, as provision for the time of famine: during which foace by meanes of that Corne, he had all the Lands of his people. Thus you fee how the Kings became rich, and were ferued by their subjects, even as if they had bene their flaues . " And Historians dde The reibad faithfully report; that the Kings caused building the those Piramids to bee builded, onely to Piramids, feed their people that labored about the, and because they should leave no wealth to their successors. For they affected rather, to dispense in this manner with their people, then that any of their heyres fhould attaine the meanes to exceed the deceassed by their goods and money.

I finde it recorded also, that those Pi- Those Pire ramids ferued for Sepulchers to theyr mids were Kings. And who focuer doth well confider the multitude of hebrew people that Rings. ferued in Egypt, and by whom the Kings made their Citties and Fortresses to bee builded, will not be much amazed heereat, in regard that it is very certaine, that fixe hundred thousand men on foote, befide a great multitude of women & finall children, departed out of that femitude, and that all of them were imployed, and ferued in those wonderfull works. Wherby it is no meruaile at all, that fuch buildings should be made; for good Authors do anouch, that in Rootes, Garlike, and Onions, to sustaine the multitude of wor-hers, there were dispensed 18 hundred men were the Talents, which at the rate (now adayes v(ed) is a million and foure-score thoufand Crownes. Diodorus faith, that round in lib.s. u. All about it, and a large compasse also somewhat farre off, there was not to bee feene the very fmallest stone, newther apparence that any man had trodden there, nor any figne of a foundation; but onely Sandias fmall as the finest Salt. Whereby it med, as if that Piramid had beene plante there by Gods ownerhand, or to haue growne fo naturally and the top lappea-ny of learned eter Martyr of Millaine, Dame Habell, to the Soldane of Egypt, in concerning of thole Pira-Ghap.7.

great large

Stone on the top of the Pi

The fourth Wonder of he world. Toomb. in Nett. Atti

The fourth Meruale or VVonder, was the Manfolan. Artemifia was He fourth Meruaile or VVonder wife to Manfolus, King of Caria, a Prouince in the greater Afia. This woman (according to Aulus Gellius, and other hiitorians) to dearely affected her husband, as it was generally recorded for a most norable example. Her hisband the king dying first, the lamented his death with teares and complaints more then were of ordinary custome. Needs would the red a Toombe or Sepulcher for him, an-Swerable to the extraordinary loue shee bare him ; and fuch (indeede) it prooned to be, that it was recorded among the feushivonders of the world. The stone of the whole confiructure, was of a most excellent Marble, confifting of fourthundred and elenen foote in circuite about. and five and twenty cubites in height sit had also about it, fixe and twenty Colombs of admirable frome, and likewife of as famous feulpinte.

the Kings Catholique, Don Ferdinand, & The building was open on all fides, with Arches of fenency three foote in widenesser and it was framed by the hands of the most exquisite workmen then to be the Toombe. found . The part towards the haff, was such as the world as then made & engraven by Seopas; that on the had not their North, by Briax; the South fide by Time-like. theus, and that on the West, by Leochares. The perfection of the work was fuch, and that on the whole body fo fumptuous & beautifullias partly it was therefore called Maufolaa, and in regard also of the king, for whom it was made: fo that even to this veryeday, when any Toombes of fuch superficiall Arte are made, they are called Manfoles. Of thefe things mention is triade by Pliny, Pomponius Mela, He- Plinin lib.35. rodotas: Strabo also remembreth them, fo doth Anisa Gellius, and many other him in libes. ftorians! It is found written, that Arte- Herodor, int, mifia, after the death of her frusband, lived Strabo in incontinual teares and mourning, and lib.7.
that the dyed before the worke could become the worker works are the library with the library works are the li fully finished! having drunke the bones of her husband, beate into powder, which the burned and buried in her owne body. that it might be the Sepulcher for his.

> THE fift Edifice of these VVonders; The fift Won was the Temple of Diana, whom the der of the Gentiles adored as a Goddefle, and it was The Temple builded in the Citty of Ephefus in Afia, in of Diana at the Pronince of Ionia. Of this Temple, Epheius. great speech was made throughout the world: fo that one named Democritus, wrote a particular Booke thereof. Pliny writing of this Temple, faith that the Amozones caused it to bee builded, and that it contained foure hundred and five and twenty foote in length, and two hundred and twenty in largeneffe. The worke was fo admirably arteficiall, that it had 220 yeares to the perfecting. It was built in a Lake, to preuent the peril of earthquakes; and it is faid withall, that on the founda- The foundation was laide great ftore of coale-duft & tion of the wooll thereupon, the better to make firm and fure the moist and marshy place. It had arr hundred and feuen Colombs or Pillars of most excellent Marble, & each of them was made by all the Kings of A-Plin. In 116. 16. cap. 34

fcore thou-

dred & three

Plin in lib 36. Cap. 12. Diodor Sicul. in lib.t. Strabo in lib.vlt la in lib. 1. Heredot.in l. 2.

celiin l.z

The bredth of euery '

twenty yeares

fia: thirty feven of them were of most curious cunning and sculpture, and all the other of the choyfest Marble.

Strabo in lib.

Solin in cap 14

Pampanius Me-

Plin.in lib.

6.cap. 49.

Paler.Max.in

Solin.in lib. 3.

The fame of derostratus.

Lantis.

The principall Masters of this worke, according to Pliny, was Drefiphon: but belequing Strabe it was Archiphron. Notwithstanding, this diversity of opinion is fufferable, confidering, what length of time the businesse lasted: and therefore there must needs be more then one Mafter, especially for so many performances & varieties, in the divertity of fuch times and intelligence. Solinus and Pomponius Mela fay, that the Amazones builded & dedicated this Temple: and yet Solinus affirmeth, that when the mighty King Kernes went to the conquest of Greece,& that he burned all the Temples ; yet hee reserved this onely still standing. All Hiflorians do confent with one accord, that the Pillars of this Temple supported the planked feeling of wood, the most excellently wrought that could be deuised, and that this whole couering was of Cedar, and all the doores and wainfcotted works were of Cipres.

Yet afteeward, a villaine feeing this folemne and foueraigne building, conceiued a lewd defire to burno it,25 (indeed) he did. And being taken for the fact, confessed, that he did it to no other ende, but to leave a famous renowne of his deed to the world. Wherefore Valerius Maximus, in his titles of defire of renowne, and Aulus Gellius affirmeth alfo, that it was Aill,Gel. in l.2. prohibited (vnder greeuous penalty) that any man should doe so much as write his name, because he should veterly lose the fame and renowne, which he so earnestly affected. Yet all this ferued to flender purpose, for Solinus and Strabe both fay, cap. 14. Strabo in li.14. that he was named Herostratus, and that of him came up the viuall Prouerbe, that when any man would ftriue to be famous for fome vicious deed; people would comonly fay; This is the renowne of Herostra-

> To speake yet of some other memorable matters to this purpole, it deferueth fome respect to remember, that the very fame day as the Temple was burning, Alexander the Great was borne, the Conquerour of all Afia; heercof are Authors, Plutarch in the life of Alexander, and Cicero, in his fecond booke of the Gods nature, where he speaketh it in two places, and likewise in his booke of divination. Further he faith, that while the Temple burned, the Sages prognosticated the deftruction of all Afia; euen as afterward it was ouercome by Alexander . Some do write, that this Temple was built agains afterward, in much more great and excel lent manner then before, and that the Min fler of the worke was named Democrat 376

THE fixt Wonder, was the Idoll or The 6 West Image of Jupiter Olympus, which was der of the in his Temple in Achaia, betweene the Cithe Inage of ties of Elia and Pifa: and the place was Jupiter Olia. named Olympus as also the Temple, in re- pus. gard of Jupiter Olympus, of whom write both Strabo and Pomponius Mela. They Strabo into 1. maintaine, that this Statue or Image, Laintha. which stood in the Temple, was much renowned, as well for arreficiall perfection and admirable workmanship, as also for the greatnesse thereof. It was made of Porphiry, some say of Ipory, and by the hand of Phidias, the most excellent Caruer and Engraver for Imagery (in Gold or Inory) that euer was ; albeit Pli- Plin lib -35. my nameth divers other. Strabo faith that $ 36. the excellency thereof confifted in the greatnes, and yet the matter which made it more admirable, was in being wrought of Porphiry, knit and vnited together of

Some fay, that Phidias wastaxed with one onely imperfection, to wit, that hee had not proportioned the Image to the capacity of the Temple, because hee had made it fitting, and so great, as when due consideration was made, what the height thereof would have bene, if he had made him flanding vpright on his feet, the temple had no way bene able to have contained him.

infinite fmall peeces.

Neuertheleffe, the renowne of this Image did most highly illustrate the place. and made the Temple more knowne, then the place where deco otherwise it would have bene, although lympian it was formerly held in groat efteeme, by sames were reason that in the very same place, woro such that in the very same place, woro such that in the very same place, woro such that in the very same place, woro kept the sports and wrastlings called Olym- ber, vizce pian. And thence it came, that the yeares flut, Curfut, were counted by Olympiades, which they Palafia. made from five years to five years : which pastimes were first instituted by Hercules, and afterward being left off, they were a-gaine re-established by Aemanius, but (according

"He alfo made a good-ly Library, which contained 50000.

Plin in lib.35. tap. 10. Iul Caf. in sa ment,lib.a.

celim l.s Salm, in cap. 2

cording to some Authours) by Sphiron, foure or fine yeares after the destruction of Troy, especially according to Eusebius, and then began the yeare of the first olym-

Chap.7. The seuen VV onders of the world.

The fenenth Wonderof the World. The Tower

la in lib.2.

689.7+

Plinin lib.s.

How the Ifle

came to be

Ow concerning the feuenth VVon-der, fome fay, that it was a Tower-which flood in the Isle of Pharos, neere to the Citty of Alexandria in Egypt. Pharos was a finali Island, long and narrow, feated on the coast of Egypt, ouer against the mouth of 2011us, which in former time (according to Pomponius Mela and Pliny) was wholly (as it were) engire with firme Land, and afterward in the times of these Authors, the Sea imbraced this firm land, excepting onely a Bridge, whereby men went from the one place to the other. In the firme land is the great Citty of Alexandria, builded by Alexander the Great; which Citty was afterward a Colony of Inline Cafar. In this Ifle (named Pharos, after the name of a great Pilot, which belonged to Menelaus, and was there buried) the Kings of Egypt crecked a Tower of Marble, maruailous in height and cunning workmanship, vpon a Mountain en-uironed with water: the artesiciall performance of which Tower was fuch, that it coft 800. Talents, which value foure hundred and fourescore thousand Crownes. after the computation of Budans. And it was built for no other purpose, but to sec vp (in the night time) a lighted fire there-

Cafar in his Commentarios, highly praifeth the height and workmanship of this Tower: and faith, that it was also called Phares, as taking name of the Island. As much faith Ammianus Marcellinus, declaring the history of this Tower. Also Solimus in his Polybistor, in the ende of his 34 Chapter faith, that all the Towers which were afterward made, and for the like occasion, each of them was named Pharos. after the name of this, as was the Pharer of Mesins, and in other places. And I am of the minde, that the kindled fires or lights, which are ordinarily carried in

Ships, asguides to other in the night, vp-on, Beacon-wife, to guide and direct fuch. Ships as came to take landing there: and this Tower, according to the greatest opinions, was crecked by King * Ptolomans Philadelphus, and the Master Architect that made it, was named Sittratus, which is confirmed to vs by Pliny.

pon this occasion are called Pharoles.

Thus this Tower is the last of the wonders, although (by diners) it is not named in their number, but in flead thereof, the hanging gardens of Babylon are reckoned. The hanging hanging gardens of Babylon are reckoned, Gardensof wherof we have already spoken. Lact anti-Babylon. us Firmianus confirmeth it and faith, that Ladau, Firm, in thefe gardens were vpon Arches & Tow- Diam. Laffit.L.4 ers, yet shelving downward, admirable for great Trees in no meane abundance, and great store of Fountains: the forme of this building is amply described by Diodorus Diodor Sicul. Siculus Calius Rhodiginus, discourfing on inlib.s. the feuen VVonders of the world. doth Cal Rhed,in 1.3 not infert this Tower of Phares : but the Obelifque of Semiramis, which was made The Obeliske after the same structure and forme of a Piramid for it began to in a quacrangle, and finished voward in a point, and there was no difference betweene an Cheliske and a Piramid but that the Obeliske was all of one entire peece, and therefore of no fuch height as the Piramids. I finde it written. that fome of them have bin great like Towers, and of a very goodly stone. There is one now at Rome, nam'da Needle, which Cafars Neewas brought out of Egypt; and it is admirable to fee the greatnes therof, as alfo to liske. judge how it was brought thither. Concerning the Obeliske of Semiramis, wherof Calius reporteth, and nameth it in the number of the 7 V Vonders : he findeth it credibly anouched, that it was an I so foot The height in height, and 24 foote fquare in a quadrangle, fo that the whole circuite was 90 foote, and this Stone was so taken whole, out of the Mountaines of Armenia, & by the command of Semiranis brought into Chaldean Babilon. But in truth, when due confideration is made, how it should bee taken out of the Quarry, brought thence, and erected up on end : it might appeare a niatter incredible, if Antiquity had not yeelded things as strange, and certified to vs by Authors, well deferuing beleefe, yea, and of other great Obelisks, made by the kings of Egypt. Pliny describeth how they are fetcht foorth of their Quarries. Of the Piramids, Obelisks, Statues, & Coloffes, mention is made by Polyphius, in begin- Polyphin lib. ning of his Booke, cald Hypne-rotomachia, Hypneretonic Therefore I need not to make any further relation of them, fearing I have offended already, by prefuming ouer-farre vpon your patience, in what hath bin faid, concerning these 7 VV onders of the world.

the fquarence

CHAP.

Plut in vit. A lex. Cicero in Nat. Denso z.o in lib.de DiuiCHAP. VIII. The Oration of Antipater, the Father to Herod, which he made before Cafar standing accused for following Pompeies part.

THE ARGUMENT.

A Fter that Pompey had bin vanquished by Cæsat he was massared in Egipt, by them whose lives he had sometime saved. Antigonus the Iew Aspiring to the Royalty, accused (before Cæfar) Antipater the Idumzan, to have ferred and favoured Pompey in his enterprizes. And that he had done no matter of fernice in Egipt, which could be interpreted for Cælar; but rather for the Succour of Mithridates, and to cover his fault committed in following Pompey. But Antipater, for the better apparance of his good fernices, renting off his garments, | bewed what wounds he had received in the fer nice of Cafar, and fuddenly accompanied this fearry testimony, with thefe words enfung.

Wounds are a Soldiours fpeaking wi himfelfe is

The effect of the accusati-

on objected

by Antigonu

pater.

filent.

against Anti-

Ehold heere affured and cere not any particular affection (whatfoeuer) that made me follow hims for Laffifed against Cafar, these wounds so apparant, and which are shining markes of my soules conceptions, to speak & defend the poore accused criminall. I offer to thee (Lord Cafar) these wounds, as pledges of that affection which lies hidden in my heart, and wherof I make you a liberall present. These are the gages of my faith, and this is an obligation written in my heart, and which wil remaine engrauen heere all my life time. If you will not pleafe to credite my fellowes in Armes, nor to liften to the of my Nationaler it be demanded of mine enemies, and know from them, for whole fake I have received all thefe woulds. And what is the reason that I am thus pursued? but because I have bin noted loyally affecled, in orfering you my faithfull feruice.

I vnderstand and perceine, that mine enemy reprocheth me with friendship to Pompey, and fixeth before his owne eyes. that I have favoured his cause. I confesse friend, not to men, but to the Romane , it is his custome to make war, and that he name; and that never my defires were elfewhere addicted nor my duty & diligence any way applyed, but onely in doing my most humble service to the Senate and people of Rome I have then born Arms. not for a Romane neither for his particular profite, but for the fernice of all. And let the case be admitted, that Pomper was acceptable to me, that I carried his cause. and maintained his quarrell; wherein am I therefore to be blamed? Hee was long time (before) my friend that hee had mar with you, or any discord grew betweene him and Cafar. Moreover (my Lord) he was your Kinseman, and you were his Father in law. He being in Indea, there was repolt.

that made me follow him: for I affifted him, as being Generall of the Roman Ar- A Soldiour my. And yet notwithflanding I never ha- flands oblizarded my felfe fo far for bim, neither did bis General he ever finde fuch kinde knowledge of affection in me, as (for his fake) to take fo many wounds, as I have received in feruing you It is for you that I gave the pledges of death, and for whom I became an enemy to mine bwne body, exposing it to the Darts Arrowes, and Weapons of your enemies. The sales

But is it any matter of amazement, if a

flaue, nurffed vp in feruitude, do not know what wounds are nor the hazards happe- cannot judge ning in warre? Or should its offend any of blows, man, if a disloyall fugitive should be ignorant what the worth of faith is, and what fulneffe. honefly remaines among good minded men? Who can repronente, but this my perpetuall enemy and yours, for fayling in loue and affection to the people of Rome? I am aftonished , how Antigonus should be so hardy, as daring to blame or accuse (Lord Cafar) I confesse, that I have bin a any man before the Romans, against who shold be so impudent to make complaint before them, as if his Realme were fnatcht or rauisht from him. If it were so vet his power should not bee exercised for his greatnesse or advancement : but onely to feize on you, to affaile the Romane Legions,& to practife vengeance against you for his father and brother. It much amazeth me, that fuch a wretch, & fo vnthank full as he is, feareth not the throne of the Romane I mperour, but dare (euen there) oppole and purfue innocents: without remembring, that a Kinseman of his. and a companion in the crime, hath there beene punished for fellony, treason, and

THE

THE EFFECT.

Reason appearing (in Casars indecement) to be upon Antipaters side, he indeed also for him, and gave him the government of Judea. By this meanes hee opened him the way, to give the lewish king dome to the children of the faid Antipater, and differzed them that were of the blood Royall and of the true feed of David.

CHAP.IX. The Oration of Hered to his Martiall troopes, being you the point of fighting with the Arabes.

Fond prodegies and fu erffitious e pinions conciued in mens braine make them cowards to warlike attempts.

An Army v-

fing fraud and

nomeanes of conquering;

but to delay

the victory

from his en

THE ARGVMENT. Hetod seeing that his Army stood like men amazed, as searing a disadvantageable suc-cesse of the warre, through (1 know not what) superstitions conceite, grounded whom prodegies and tremblings of the earth, which at that time had happened, and it regard where of, his Souldiers shewed themselves very committing to sight against the Arabes: Heelaboured by this Oration to perswade them, that all such things are naturall, exhorting them, not to leave the victory to their enemies, for any distruct in them; and thefe were his words.

enemy hauing bin enfeebled and abated by many of our aduantageable encounters, ful of fortune to vs. and transporting them to maffacre our Legates and Ambaffadors: I cannot chuse but meruaile. how you should be thus affrighted without any occasion. At least wife, it were reasonable and dreadlesse, without some good foundation, to preferre accidentall occasions to any enident successe, when men are affured of their owne vertue and forwardnesse. We have had some encountring with the enemy, where the Arabes did not turne their backes vpon vs. deceit, feekes & yet dealt but fraudulently (as they can well do) not to vanquish, but to delay vs from the victory: which matters, as they ought to encourage ye to the fight, lo you should withall consider, that as you have felt (I know not what) weakning of hart, by some earthquakes hapning, they shold be no terrors at all to vs. no more then to the, who stand with vs to endure this war.

them with furious despaire, yea, making

And if we would but respect, on whom the damage of this perfecution is falne, you should perceive, that it is upon the Arabes, constraining them to keepe themfelues in the field, because they should be still before them, that far go beyond them in courage and valiancy. For I fee, that they distrust their owne strength & manhood, and yet taking heart, on the hopefull ruine of our troopes, they will needs aduenture to endure the war. But alasse, that is a feeble hope, which proceedeth

HE forces of the I not from his owne proper vertue and van The vacetlour, but rather dependeth voon others tainty of mifery: infomuch, as there is nothing menstelicies and admore fraile nor mutable, then are felicia uerfitier, ties and adversities happing to men. For the estate & condition of humane oceafions, what foeuer ouerthrowes they chace to feele, relieth vpon a very little time, '& as felicity is neuer durable; even to aduerfity can never bee perpetuall, and a man continueth no longer iniferable, then her had a precedent time to bee fortunate. And of all thefe I can give you a goodly and most manifest example.

In the first fights, wee had the victory ouer the Arabes, but war taking his course and altering the lot and formine thereof; we were vanquished by them whom (not long before) wee furmounted and ouefthrew. Which therefore yeeldeth reason to beleeue, that we shall againe conquer them which vanquified vs a confidering, that prefumption is alwayes guided by indiscretion and want of fore-light, wheras aduited feare armeth mon with provis dence, to fit themselves for following fucceffes, and thereby to learnedury and diligence. It neuer is otherwise in the state of felicity, but that boldnesse and temeri-ty are equal companions, and want of discretion in Souldiers, neuer tarries for the wife advice & councell of their Captaines; in briefe, they ruth into the warre, withoutheir leave or commission. But I fee that you are judiciously fearefull, which makes mee to hold the victory fol much the more affored. Courage then (deare friends and companions) take hart and hardiment, by advancing the glorious and ancient magnanimity of the lewes your Predecessours. And

Prefumption maketh a man improvident. but diference teare maketh

A free and

rable confessi

Monffrous 19

Ordinary an naturall occafions fhold neuer breed difinay in Soldiors.

172

And let not the mouings of infensible | broken the law common to all Nations: things, breed any terrour in you, neither carry any conceite, that earthquakes can be any argument or prefage, of any other difaster or mishap, then what hath already happened. For the Elements have their defects as well as we, and no other harme or danger is to be doubted, then what enfueth to themselves: considering, that neither tremblings of the earth nor mortality of creatures are but their owne iniuries, and fignifie no other perill or prejudice at all.

And yet we (hould not feare to fuffer matter of greefe, in regard that (already) we have endured most afflicting and in-Supportable greeuances : he that hath punithed vs, will bee appealed, and become againe as milde vnto vs, as if hee had not chastifed vs. For what can we expect from him, after this irksome pestilence, but only his holy fauour and mercy, feeing for two offences he hath bin pleased to afflict and pupish vs? For the rest, as concerning that which belongeth to this war, all plague hath ended them that were not in the Campe, and our victory hath taken them from the enemy, cue those men that were the cheefest for his battailes. If our Flocks or Heards of Cattell are dead, the enemy hath had a loffe of much better things, being bereft both of wit and fence, when (contrary to all right and equity) he for no people are so cruell and barbarous, bur Ambaffadors ought to be inviolably respected of respected of them.

Let them therefore expect from God, a just vengeance for such crimes, to chaftise their cuill doing; for the sinnes of our aduerfaries are of fuch importance, as there is not any law, be it humane or diuine, that will leave them vnpunished. Let vs go forth then, yea, let vs go to fight; not to get their spoiles, or conquer their lands; but for the glory of God, and the defence of his honour. Let not the loue of your wives and children spur ye on to the war; but only the divine fauor, which you know to be present with you. So going on this manner to the fight, our defires shall not be thereby effected but our obedience to God, for doing vengeance on them, whom the Law forbiddeth any man to touch. Beside. Ambassadors are they, who (among the furies of armed e- Ambaffadors nemies) onely mediate peace, & fuch men countedor are never numbred or ranked with aduer- rankedamong is in his entire condition; because the saries; because their blood being shedde, other entine civeth incessantly for inst vengeance in our foules. Hafte wee then in going to the fight, in regard that God is hee, which offereth himselfe to revenge our friends flaine. The very murdred Ambaffadours will fight for vs more furioufly, and better then our sclues: and ringed round with a fquadron of Angels, let vs on to the batflew our Ambassadors. The Arabes have taile, and vtter confusion of our enemies.

THE EFFECT.

By these words of the Generall, the lewish Soldiors recovered heart, and seeking occasion to affront the enemy, at length affayled them with fuch fury; as the Arabes were enforced to fight and had a great loffe of men. Befide, fuch as fled retired into the Mountaines : except a part of them which yeelded themselves to the I cwes. The rest, affecting rather to die like honest men, then submit themselves basely; fell to handy blowes againe, where they were slaine and hewd in preces, yet not without leaning sufficient testimony to the lewes of their valor.

CHAP. X. The Oration of Herod before August us Cafar, who had conceived anger against him, because he had taken part, and followed Marke Anthony,

THE ARGUMENT. A Vgukus Cæsat, having vanquished Marke Anthony in Egipt, it seemeth he was ad-uised that except he chattised Herodusso, he was not fully possessed of the victory. He. tod sasting the suil affection of this Prince, went to him to Rhodes, where prefenting himselfe and whing the generofity of an invincible spirit, be declared to Augustus; that if he did not helpe Anthony it mannot through want of any good will, but became he had no meanes made him ra- to do it. Affectine much rather to confeste that he had beene an enemy to Cafar, then there ther goe to Augustus, the himselfe ingratefull to his friend. And although he presented himselfe before him without a the to lend to kingly Crowne on his head, and cloathed like a man that had no dignity i yet his words expresfed the Maiesty of a great Prince, and thefe were they? ... N ...

Ambaffadors the people,

A benefit re ceiued.doth fo oblige a true harted friend,as no feare can keepe him rom confesing it.

at Actium.

Confesse (O mighty Monarch Augu-Hus) that I have beene a lovall companion to Marke Anthony in his affayres, as to the man, from whom I receiued the kingdome of Iudea. And I will not deny, but that I was very highly beholding to him, as I would more plainely haue expressed by Armes, if the enuy of Cleonatra had not given mee hinderance. and if the Arabes had not broken my defignes and enterprizes. For which cause, and constrained by such necessities, I came not against you (in his affistance) with weapons in my hand: because I had no defire at all to forgoe my deare friend. and much leffe was I affraid to enter battaile against you in his behalfe; but onely in this respect, that I was busied in defending mine owne Countries. And albeit that I affisted him not personally in the battaile, yet Anthony found mee not vnthankfull to him; for I furnished him with men and victuals, for the fuccouring and refreshing of his Army, and I am well asfured (Great Augustus) that you would not have thought me ingratefull to Mark | but yet my offence is not fo great, for al- lafeinious Anthony, if you had beene in the battaile

You fee Sir, that I hide not my felfe, fearing more to be reputed ingratefull on your aduerfaries behalfe, then doubting barous wanton woman, even fo could that any one should imagine me your e- | not I forgoe my great friend in his aductnemy . I make more account of your fities. It was hee that didiette a Royall iudgement, then of all the fuccesse of warre: because before you, the merits of vertue are not in any perill, in regard you know how to purchase honor, and punish mif-behauiours and vices. Confider (gentle Prince) that as I neuer forfooke | & yet, although I have left off my known Anthony, to long as Fortune spake fairely to him : euen fo, all difafters, and dead as he is, cannot yet make mee to forget and to another; it goeth far beleauchim. You haue vanquished (O ond the loue Cafar) you have vanquished Marke Anthony, by power, and by a great number of your Legions, you have furmounted him by the wifedome of your Councels; the strength of the Empire bath cast him downe, from which hee was farre gone, and whereof he made not any reckoning; throw me, your vertues have ouerthrowne him, or rather he hath beene ruined by his owne vices. For an Egyptian woman charmed and enchanted him; the delights of Egypt made him too foft and delicate, yea, he was wholly effeminately drowned in the Alexandrian luxuries. In briefe hee hath beene conquered, because he better affected to be cast downe with Cleopatra, then to conquer without her; and fo to be dejected by a woman, was more greeuous and insupportable to his friends, the ener it could be to his anemies.

I adulfed him, to vnewine himfelfe from that wretched woman, and to bee the death of a beaft fo dangerous; I promilechim fuccour in his affaires, and forces to preuaile by in his flight; yea, I offered to beare him company in this warre, But the miserable man, was so doating on the beauties of that woman, and meerely chemilery, enchanted by Cleopatra, as hee is brought when a man to be just nothing, by reason that he wold leaves a loyall not beleeue me. 1 confesse (Great Cat leanes to the far) that I am also conquered with him, base allurethough Cleopatra quite quailed, and made woman. a diffionourable prey of poore Anthony; yet she had not the like power ouer mee! And as hee would not abandon that bar-Crowne on my head, neuertheleife, 1 would not bee to bold to appeare in your prefence, with the ornaments I receyued from fo loyall a friend, fearing to offend you by those favours which he did to me ! lineries of dignity, I have not loft a jote of my greatnesse in courage. You may judge therefore as it shall seeme best to your felfe; for whatfoeuer fentence you pronounce on me, yet I am fure to carry this reputation with me, and to my no meane contentment; that I was good and perfect in mine affections; that I left not my friend in life nor death, and neyther good or bad fortune had power to ouer-

If Princes would banish flatterers fro

There is no-

thing compa

entire affection of one ma

women.

table to the

CHAP. XI. The magnanimous answer of Augustus to Herod, confirming him in his dignity. Whereby is demonstrated, that a Frince ought rather to asset truth speeds by his friend, then frigned statery, comming from the mouth of a dissembling counterfeit. And therefore Augustus perceising them their pourty, comming from the mouth of a diffembling counterfeit. And therefore Augustus precious with the formal born freely Herod had floken to him, confiffing humfelferabler his enemy, then ingrateful twards Mark more glorious intried hims this anjiver following, flowed in the following definitions in the sample following.

Heauen

offeredto Herod, which

Diuers hard

measures we

He is a true friend indec that continu eth alwayes one and the fame in all couditions.

174

dome. For we entry not thy vertues, neither doth it dispelase vs, that thou shouldst be such a man as thou art : but rather it is to vs most high contentment. And truely, thou art well worthy to rule & command, feeing thou hast so loyally kept thy faith ginen to a man onely, and being put in diffresse, and affayled with aduerfities; yet thou art not ashamed to confesse thy selfe the friend to Marke Anthony, and fuch as thou wast to him in his profperity fuch diddeft thou continue still to him when his fortune fell contrary. Now, albeit I have conquered Anthony, yet I neuer thought to ouercome thee : for thy friendship remaining fo entire, placeth thee in ranke with them that have wonne the victory. Which is the reason, that I no lesse with thee for my friend, then I praise and commend thy stedfast loyalty, because no changes of Fortune, haue power to alter thy minde and defires.

Thou never didst abandon Anthony, but it was he that estranged himselfe from thee: for he better affected to follow the councels of Cleopatra, then them of fo deare and true a friend as Herod. The ignorance of Anthony, is the reason of my winning thee: for hee made choyle of a pernicious and foolish woman, and reie-Red a most worthy loyall friend. And vet it is no matter of meruaile, that Anthony should be vanquished by Cleopatra, and keepe himselfe wholly with her: fee- | knowledgement and friendship.

Cafar and Herod having thus discoursed together, Augustus, to shew what account he made of this great Warriour Herod: did fet a Royall Crowne upon his head, and confirmed him in his authority, with hope to enlarge the limits of his kingdome. As likewise hee did afterward, having observed, how Herod acknowledged the benefits of his Maiesty, when as he furnished and refreshed him with water and vietualles, at such time as a great dearth and fearfity was in the Romane Army . From whence Cafar being returned, hee gaue Townes and Castles on the Sea to Herod, and accepted him as one of his best friends, which he had in the East.

CHAP.XII. The Oration of Herod to the Iewes, vpon the partage or dividing of his Seigneuries, to be made to his children.

THE ARGVMENT. Ike as Herod was happy in his warlike enterprizes, so did bad fortune follow him in the domesticke affaires of his house, for having children of diners beds, the humors also Eauen protect thee Herod, and enioy at this instant (better then euer before) the honour of thy King-thould turne Anthony from your counting the honour of t needs become a voluntary flaue. Could When men you account it strange, that Cleopatra should turne Anthony from your councelles feeing the could feparate him from cellis hateful me, and of being my fellow-Companion to them. in the Empire, cause him to become my mortallenemy? Seeing therefore, that with mee you have loft Marke Anthony; with mee I purpose you shall live and raigne.

And trust me, your commendable and infigne enterprize descrueth great recom pence, and is worthy (by vs) to bee highly guerdonned: confidering that while wee were busied in the late passed warres, you haue ouercome and subjected the Barbarians although they feemed to be vnconquerable. For we reputed them to bee our enemies, and so we do make account of all those that are aduerse to the Iewish Nation, and fuch as molest them, must know that they make warre with vs. You have therefore fought for vs, and for vs you have wonne the victory; in which refpect, we permit you to reigne, and grant you the kingdome which you possesse: Commanding, that by our donation it shall be confirmed to you, and established durable, your merite being not little, because you have made no diminution therof. Also in further recompence, I will A notable deale in such fort with you, as you shall signe of a ver haue no cause to wish for the presence of twous and w Marke Anthony : effecting it altogether ding Printer vnbeseeming vs, if having (while hee liued) ouercome him in warre, being now dead, we should not go beyond him in ac-

When Printheir cares to flat crers, their Courts want querrels and contenti-

Chap.12.

of them being as divers: caused the Palace Royall to bee dayly filled with quarrels and defiances, according as flatterers were heard, and fanoured by Herod. Now, the matters grew To farre, that the King and one of his fonnes, named Antipater (who was his eldest) must go to Rome to declare their greenances; where Antipater behaved himselfe so well; that he woune the Emperor, and qualified the anger of his Father, who received him into grace againe. Neuertheleffe, Cafat ordained, that children flould be obedient to their fathers, of that it should be lawfull for Fathers, to declare him for King (after his decease) that stoole best in his liking , because Antipater had accused his yonger brethren, being issued of blood Royall on all sides, euen as well as he was borne : Herod not being as then in authority, but aspiring to the Crowne. So soone as the king was returned from Rome he caused an assembly of the people of Icrusalem, to whom he declared what he had done in this worage, wline thele very Words.

Contention. quarrell, and disobed ience in chi'dren. ate no meane motiues of griefe to their

Obedience is an excellent

leffon when it

far might judge, concerning the quarrell betweene me and my children. To him I went, because my selfe knew not how, neither would I take voon me to cenfure a cause, wherein I might easily fayle, by being transported with choller: & therefore he that gaue me the Kingdome, I thought fittest to ordaine, concerning the firecession, and to bestow it on such a one of my fonnes, whom he should conceiue to be the worthieft. Now, among fo many benefites as I received from him this he added to them, that in a great difficulty, he did so facilitate the matter, that he gaue me my fonne againe, whom I had well-nere loft, and accorded the brethren together, vpon the difference growing betweene them, touching fucceffion in the kingdome . You fee mee then returned, farrericher then before I went: for I have learned to be a better Father then formerly I have beene; and my children also are tutor'd to beare themselues in better manner to me, and all this hath happened through the grace and mildnes of Great Augustus. For, he hath appointed, that the appenage of my fonnes, and their fuccession in the kingdome, shall depend vpon mine owne will; to the end, that the prerogative and advancement of which of them focuer it be, shal not breed any pride or prefuming in anie one of them. Hee hath permitted me, to choose fuch a fucceffor as I will have, to wit, he that shall be the most obedient to me, and gueth the greatest honor to his Father.

fhall teach a man howe to haue a King-Nowsconcerning my felfe (O you my O T without great occafion, and that very beneficiall to my felfe (you Hebrew Cittizens) did I make my voyage vntoRome, to the end that Cathey may fucceede after me. In which respect, this very day, I make and declare them Kings all three together, the eldeft having the priviledge, in regard of his age, and the other because of their Nobility in blood. I would not have you mouedat the number of Princes, confidering that the greatnesse and magnificence of the kingdome, fufficeth to maintaine and furnith effectually a far greater number, although there were no more aduantages. First of all, I make God the Judge of this my aduice and ordinance & next, I would have you to be witnesses and testifiers thereof; to the end, that you may honor them according to right, & equally them that Cafar hath accorded, and whom my felfe /being their father) do e. stablish and appoint vnto you as Princes. To whom also you may doe such honor, as shall not exceede the bounds of reason in ouer-much esteeming them; and yet in no leffe fashion then belongeth to them . For too much honour puffes vp the heart with prefumption, and neglect or contempt causeth rage and choller. Wherefore, I would have that dutie done vnto them, as appertained to the merits deliucred from them: for you cannot giue fo honouring a much content to him, who is honoured him infolent, aboue his deferts, as you doe harme to and contemps him, to whome dutie is denied vndefer- is the meaner uedly. Oftentimes, it commeth fo to make him passe, that both the one and other are offended, in regard it is meer flattery, which occasioneth the indiscreete sentence of Beside, let me further say freely to you.

Too much

Chap. 13.

the oreoter glory to their

What Pride

buildeth, Pre

uer throweth

A wicked inention wour

deth the heart

deeply of hin

to whom it

reuealed.

three, and you know well enough, that honor done to the Children redoundeth the more to the Fathers glory, Notwithstanding, if there be any, that shall flatteringly honor my fonnes beyond reason, they make themselves guilty of treason to them : because they shal proue Authours of the recidiuation and rebellion, for the which we fell at first into difference. In making too much esteeme of our youth, is to give it too free a heart and head, and boldnessein attempting beyond capacity: yet let no man thinke, that I am enuious of the advancement and glorie of mine owne Children. No, heauen is my witnesse, how I rather wish their power meane and flinted, whereby wee may the better liue in peace; then in growing ouer-great, to fwell vp their hearts as high, and thereby spend the rest of our dayes in troubles and feditions. For that which is established by pride and invasion, hath but small and slender continuance, and flippeth away fodainly; but that which is possessed with love and gracious liking, it hath as good and fuecessefull endu-

I will therefore bee carefull in taking order, that my Kindred and Friends may bee the pledges of peace and concord for cuer hecreafter, betweene mee and my Sonnes; by whose exhortations and admonitions, they will bee mooued to love and cherrish one another. For, as an euill purpose makes a deep wound in the heart of him that heares it tolde him : euen fo, much more are they corrupted, who are made drunke by them that dayly frequent it, and whose soules are continually infected by so soule a plague; so that the contagion spreades it selfe ouer all them, that then are about, or come into their company. Although a man be /by nature) very courteous and peaceable; yet, let a Lake or Poole be neuer fo calme and stil, when impetuous windes throwe their churlish blastes upon it, it will swell, and shewe a discontented countenance. In the very fame manner, are the mildest Natures of men madded, and quite percerted by the meanes of lewd and wicked Counfellers. In breefe, it is on mee that all my Subjects must fixe their expectation, and there affuredly fettle their confidence for

Honor done | that I am the common father to them all | whatfoeuer advancement happeneth to my Sonnes; yet so it is, that I will not lose a jote of mine authority and power . And when all is faide, there is not a Captaine or foldier, but wil expresse more reuerence to the father of Conductors and Generals, then to them that command ouer the whole Army.

It is my felfe alone, without any other, that will bee the discharge of al, and will onely recompence them, who hauing done their dutie vnto mee. shall acknowledge what fernices they have done to my Sonnes . If I finde dutie perfourmed without pernerting ; no doubt but deserved recompence will follow there- Deceite doil on; but deceite and cogging shall finde mest common fuch reward, and fo furely paidehim, that owne mafter. he will veterly lofe all the fruite of his la- & Flatteren bor, and that which he fawned for by kna- are the falled uish flattery.

Now, as concerning you (my good and deere Sonnes) fatten your first regard vppon the common bond of nature, which vniteth bruite beaftes together, and caufeth their alliance to keepe fuch a mutuall agreement: as there is not any beaft fo vntractable, but with the perill of his life, hee will striue and labour to defend his young ones from danger. Carry honour and reverence to Cafar, who hath reconciled you together; and next, haue regard of mee, and of the Honour which is due vnto mee; who had much rather pray yee to doe fo, then to command it to be done, albeit you know that it still remaineth in my power to Com-

Continue in the bond which you have knit together: you are brethren, I would not have you breake that vnion, neyther to be the occasion of dissoynting that for which ve were borne. I shall give you Habites, Attendants, and Royal honors, but much more precious is that whereto I exhort ye, inuiolable amity, beeing vnited together in one and the fame will, If you declare such mutual affection, your authoritie will bee the more acceptable Anthoritie vnto mee: but amity fayling, you dart without amity your malice thorow my heart, and tho-full. row the very foule of Kingly Gouerne-

Therefore, vntill I have made proofe of this your Vertue, yee shall enjoy no Kingdome, but the Royall Title onely:

if you lone your father, the effect of name | they shall lye vppon me, though it were will follow, in the meane while, approue among your felues, how and what affection I beare vnto you. You shall enioy al that is goodly and pleasing in the dignitie Royall, as Princes of the blood : but concerning the charges of the Empire, and you, and which I truly account to be mine, troublesome burthen of State-affayres, owne.

THE EFFECT.

Herod having delivered all these speeches, and greatly comforted his sons, how sower some reloyced thereat, as not discerning so far off, that which was hidden under these words: yet the better fort felt themselves offended. For they perceived, that this equallity served but for a Barke, to kindle the concealed fire in the brefts of the brethren; who could not indure any advantages, how litle focuer, especially having all but one and the same prerood tiue. So that this proued to be the cause of ruine to one another, as also of distrust and extreme cruelty in King Herod.

CHAP, XIII.

The Battaile of Riotta or Nouara, wwhich wwas fought in the Dukedome of Millaine, betweene Iohn Trivulzi: and the Lord of Trimouille, Generals for Lewes the xij. King of France, on the one fide; and Maximillian Sforza, Duke of Millaine, accompanied worth the Switzers, on the other, in the yeare 1513.

The kings for mer loffe of Millaine, wasi the occasion of this water.

Ewes King of Fraunce, the twelch of that name, ill dige-fting the lofte of Millaine, and fom other difgraces formerly received, made his election of two speciall Captaines, wel experienced in martiall affaires, and also of no meane authority; the Lords Trivulzi and Trimouille, to passe the Alps, and enter Italy. A further choise was likewise Zug, Lucerna, Schaffouse, Zurich, and made, for the more happy successe in this Berne, and these made vp another martiall attempt, of Robert de la March, whom hee | company. The third and last confort, confent for out of the Countrey of Luca, and his blacke Regiment of Germans, by fome termed Allemaignes, as also the Lord Lewes Beaumont, who came from the Frontiers of Nauarre, and brought with him those scueral bands of Gaseoignes, that had before served Seigneur de la Palice at Panipelona, when they fought against the Spaniards. Some few Enfignes of foot (but of very choice men) were intermingled not with horse, held it no disgrace, thus to be imployed on foote, and went vnto it with chearefull alacrity. Alwhich power beeing very aprly appointed, and furnished with great Ordenance vnto theyr owne good liking, they hafted away with speed for Italy.

better to cumber many, then one onely,

By this meanes, it shall beevery profitable for you, to accommodate your felues to that which I have defired : because I

loue the glorie which should still thine in

On the contrary fide, the Duke of Millaine, named Maximillian Sforza, vnder- are follicited standing this French preparation made Maximillian for him; he was not negligent in his owne sforz, and occasions : but mooued the Switzers to come to him revisite Lombardy, as in some former ex- liant bands. peditions they had done, and to Friend him with their manly affiftance, in which motion he purchased no deniall . The Ammans, or they that beare the Office of Majors, in the Cantons of Vri, Suits, and Vnderuald, as lying nerest vnto staly, with their warlike powers, were the first that passed ouer the Alpes : beeing seconded or followed by the like bands of Glaris fifted of five thousand foot, conducted by Altofaxo, a most expert and forward captaine. But Maximillian became somewhat discouraged, by an vnexpected reuolt of Sacranora Visconti, that did kcepe a swarme of desperate fellowes about him in Millaine, all errant vnthriftes, though leaning to Nobility, and others beside ; and therefore joyned with the first company of Switzers, going to Nouara, exwith them; for fuch Gentlemen as ferued pecting there (yet free from priny awaits

The Switzers

Of what feuerall bands the French Army

15.11

The French

Army cometh

before Nous

Chap 13.

Opportunitie

taken in war,

is alwaics attended with fortunate fue

and treachery) when the rest of the Switzers (hould come.

Before the Towne of Nouara, came the French Forces, yet hearing that the fecond supply of Switzers were somwhat necre, and that Altofaxo was at Galarita; they retreated to Riotta, which was about fome twenty Furlonges from Nouard, hard by the River of Mara. No fooner were the fecond Conuoy of Switzers entred the Towne, and had theyr Mornings refection; but the Captaines called for a confultation, for concluding vppon matters fittest to be done : whereuppon, Caraffe, Amman of Zurich , offering the first motion of speech, began in this man-

The Oration of Caraffe,

Amman of Zurich.

This he spake of the whole Company.

Aliant, and invincible (pirited Brethren, let not the attempt robich you have resolvedly cocluded on, coole through want of courage, or corruptly lose it

Celfe, in needleffe attending for Altofaxo, fuch as come with him. For it hath ever bene knowne, that the surest and happiest way to fortunate successe, is to stifle delay with speedy expedition; and so we shall finde it if wee have the providence to purfue it : Nor neede we whose corage and constancy standequalthe point of the same of the s cloudit selfe in our lingering, and so we lose our glorious expectation. Occasion is yet offered us, and we may take hold on his happy fore-locke; for, it is not number, but Wobleneffe of minde that grues honor to the actions yffue. A handfull is enow for a heaped multitude, and while hope holds them, that Altofaxo is our Load-Starre, and we dare doe nothing till he fine out with us, they may be deceived in their idle supposition, or we more then masters of fo good advantage. Let therfore their erroneous conceit. lead us the way to true discipline, for a sodaine and vnexper Hed onfet, ftrikes terror in an enemies foule, and followes him bothwith flight and flaughter. Let their overweening pride wher them, and take we hold on this happy and beneficial

councel:which guides ye to undoubted victory, if with dreadlesse harts you ply & pursue

No sooner had Caraffa come vnto his speeches period but all the Captains and Ensignes consented to him, and a grave confultation grew immediately, for best proceeding in their purpose. Hereupon, refection and reft was generally commaded and after the fecond watch prefent the condue repaire vnto their Colours; where before to happy for day-dawning they should bee acquainted with other instructions. Imagine hecre(as well you may) that every minde fate mufing with ferious conceite, what iffue the intended fight would fort vnto; & by this time the Sun was fet. But now liften to a wonder, and truly no leffe in mine opinion. The Dogges which the French had brought to field with them, quite leaving their Campe, all in a troope together entred Nonara, and the Switzers Centinels, with fuch as walked the round, or kept the Carbs du Guard : the dogs fawning on the one after another even as if they were already become their Masters, or shortly should, laide downe their eares, wagged their tailes in louing manner, and licked their hands.

But the Switzers, not intending to haue their prinate cogitations discouered, cunningly gaue order, that in eueric part of the City, now at one place, then at another, Drums should still be beaten; that if any scouts or spies tooke notice of them, they should the easier bee perswaded of their fodaine comming foorth, as also to continue their enemies in Armour fill; they having all the day before bin fo prepared, and on horfeback. Thus they tha- Mencan ne ped their outward desseignes, while theyr closer determinations aimd at other ends, an inuiding as to strengthen their bodies with food & enemy. reft, and to win another daies respit more for their better contestation in trial of honor. And let me tell vee, that the Lawes are fo strict and severe among the Switzers, that if any shal dare (in publike view of the Armie) to do any thing cowardly, or with feare, thamefull & vnfitting men of valour; he is immediately flaine by his following fellow, so that the greater feare confounds the leffe, and begets an honorable death, in stead of that which is otherwise attended on with nothing but infamy.

The Army confifting of about 9000, The Switzers foote, made choise of a thousand Horsse befide, men of well tryed and undaunted left opportuvalour, to take the charge of eight Faulcons, and to keepe with Maximillian and his Horffe /which indeede were but few. vet of the cheefe Nobility:) while the rest did throw themselves into two battailes. and filently, without beating any Drum, marched towards the enemy two feuerall

Now Trivulzi, being reputed for a wife and well experienced Captaine, suspected nothing leffe, then that a fewe tyred foote, and also before Altofaxo came : would venture out voon a stronger power, or hazard any the least fortune of battaile. But vnderstanding that the Enemy was within fight, he cals uppe Trimouille and the other Captaines, giving order for placing the Ordenance, the fignals for fight to be given, and what hee knew by discipline or experience, to wait vpon the need of danger.

Such was the shortnesse of time, and the courage of the foe fo mounted for fight, that the French scarfely had leifure to bridle their horses, & arm their heads : for they had flood most part of the day & night in Armes, expecting stil what shold be commanded, and at last (though very late) newes comming, that all was whift and quiet at Nouara, had got into theyr Cabines to reft. But the Light-horse being fooner ready then they looked for, yflueth forth in time convenient, making a long Wing to the left handwarde, and met the thousand Switzers as they yvere marching on. And they, for more fafely fhunning the great Ordenance, which played vpon them tempestuously, fetcht a finall compas about towards the River of Mora, with intent to paffe a Bridge & fo fet on the enemies tents in the rere. So marching in a broad way towards the Riuer, they were hotly rent and torne with the Ordenance; and mightily preffed also with the light horse.

But then Motting, whose corage could not be quailed, changed his former refolution, and entreated Duke Maximillian, (being then in great daunger, by reason that the Epirotes infulted round about him) to leave the fight, and returne to the Citty instantly, that so the warres mayne the tiranny of chances, and there to await the fuccesse of expected victory . Maximillian made an honourable refufall, for fuch was the conftancy of his courage, as he would endure all common accidents of Fortune, rather then be blurd with the least diferace.

Heereupon, two vader Captains, and two Ancients seized his horse by the bridle, and renting the Creft from off his Helmet, threw an olde cloake about him to hide his Armes, and forcing him (whether he would or no) led him out of the field with a troope of Horsse, and so conducted him to the Citty, to stand cleare from danger, while they endured the brunt of the day. Afterward Mottina ralliered his fwaying battell, which (by this time) hadde loft three of their Faulcons; then retiring the wounded into the midst of the battell; and beating back the ouerforward Epirotes, flew there Alexio Bofigna, a noble Grecian Captaine, and so defeated them vtterly.

Then rushing into the enemies camp, where the drudges and stragglers beeing flaine, and the foldiers of that flation difordered; the carriage and baggage were furprized. But some little while before Mottina had thus prevailed another company that tooke a longer journy through the Corne-fieldes, then growne vp, and recoyuing little harme by the Ordenance, had made a fresh charge on the Enemiss

The French forces were ordered into three battallions, Trimowille and De la In what man-March having the leading of the winges, ner the Frech and Trivulzi the middle Regiment, or power were mained bartayle . As for the Launce the fight, equeners Battallion, they had got them-Clues within a ditch, and betweene the battailes of the Horsse, because their Trench, being a new and somewhar admirable kinde of Workemanship, denssed by Robert de la March, to hemme them in against the chances of warre: vpon fo fodaine a comming of the enemy, coulde not by any meanes bee fet vp and pitcht. The Switzers bringing their Battailes about towards the right hand, and vppon this foundron of the Germaines or Allemaignes, very contragionally turned to them is perceyning that victory viould foone bee wonne, frauing once defeated head might be kept, which lay open vitto the cheefest force of the Enemies Armie.

Which

Alexio Bofig

Captain flain

noble & valiant resolution in Duke Maximillian.

By friuolous Supposition in an enemy, he i· foont ft ta-

Chap.14.

The louing

care of a Fa ther to his

The Ammana of Zug and ers not a lotte

Where both

fides contend

for honour,

great muft

of the fight

gaue present order to discharge theyr great Ordenance uppon them, breaking through the rankes, with mighty flaughor Lug and Berne flain & ter, the Horsie also comming hotely on yet the fouldi- them on the left fide. The Ammans of Berne and Zng were flaine in this confusion, which nothing difmayed their fouldiers courage, nor their owne vnauoydable perill, and wofull hauocke of theyr Fellowes about them; but chearfully animating themselues, and wheeling round into a ring, propelled the Horffe very valiantly, and (as before they had concluded) fuddenly getting ouer the ditch, fet vpon the Allemagnes couragiously. Now began a fierce and bloody fight, no noise or words spoken on either side; but onely a dismall clashing of Weapons and armor, and the soft sighes of such as fell downe dead, giving their latest adiew vnto the

> The Allemaignes, that they might reuenge the flaughter of their country-men the yeare before at Paula; and now (by new renowne) redeeme their glorie lost fourteene yeares past at Bruderholts, on the confines of Bafile, fought very fiercely. And the Switzers that they might yet (one day) destroy their olde and peculiar enemies, fellowes that had runne out of Germany, and (in reproach to the Emperour) ferued the French King; were not a iot behinde them, either in ftrength, or feruency of courage.

Now, while the Switzers and Allemaigns fought thus at the push of pike, Newes came to Trivulzi and Trimonille, that the bagge and baggage were taken those that were appointed for keeping the campe al-fo flaine, beside tumult and slaughter in enery place. Which report for daunted the Frech, that a great part of their horfe (every man being careful for his luggage) ran (without any command) to ouercom it againe.

In another quarter alfo, & at the same instant almost the third company or battallion of the Switzers, thewd themselues at the front of the French, which Battallion (while the French hadde (in vaine) difcharged their Ordenance into a VVood standing before them, in regard that the Switzers (to deceive the enemy) had pozers to beguil litikely left a few of the drudges among ft the trees, as making a thew of ambushed

Which the French Captains beholding, | armed men) had closely crept along by a fide way, by little and little floopings downe, and trayling their Pikes vpon the ground after them.

Now, so great was their contempt of the bullets flying about them, and the charge fo dreadfull, that the French and Lewes Lord Nauarrine foote (their Captaine Beamont Beamont flin being flaine) two bands also of Genewares and Salucians defeated, and theyr Ordenance taken, and turned yoon their backs that fled; the Allemaignes now beeing almost quite destroyed, their Tents taken. the enemy ouerthrowing all, and largely Lords of the field ; betweene thame and feare turned their backes. VVhen all men were thus dismayed, the Captaines yet continued fearlesse (considering the fearfulnesse of their present estate) and went ralliering the difordered rankes, and turning themselves vnto the cryes of theyr Companions, made them to abide and

The under Officers and Ancients, entreated them for to exempt all feare, the Lancequenets bare the brunt of the battell, and the fight began to be repaired in all places. But the horfmen, nothing moued with their Captaines encouraging words, shamefully fled. For the Switzers although their Captaine Mottina was flaine by a piece of Ordenance; yet, ha- taine of the uing gotten the Campe, fet fiercely and bloodily on the left fide of the Horsie, & likewise on the right, and then on theyr backes came a greater power with terri-ble Pikes, to the no little terror of the dif-

In repairing the field, there perrished Montalcon Montfalcon, Captaine to the Duke of Al- and Coriols banies company of horse, and Coriolano no and Trivulzi, a young Gentleman of singular vulzi slaine. hope. But, the Allemaignes lofing halfe their men, two Ensignes, and their Gene. rall Floranges very greenously hurt , had fought mest constantly a long while together : but perceiuing nowe the Horffe to forfake them, the foote in enery quarter to bee defeated, and the great Ordenance taken, accounting flight to be very fhamefull, yet voide of fecuritie; fer the points of their weapons vpright, according to their vivall manner, and yeelded, The Allefeeking mercy of the victor enemy. In this maignet yell-tempest of assistation and consustion, Robert de la Marche, Lord of Cadan, fhotte nemies meig through his two fonnes, the Lords Floranges and Gemele) engitt by the enemy, and meerly in desperate daunger of life : with a troope of Horsse, boldly brake into the middest of the enemies battell, and they lying among the mangled bodyes halfe dead, pittifully embrued with their owne blood and woundes, laying them ouerthwart the neckes of two Horsses; to his no little prayle, both for manly prowesse and fatherly pittie, woorthily brought them thence, preserving theyr lives for suture renowne, and in a farre more fortunate field.

Thus the Switzers, fighting in three fenerall Squadrons or Companies, within the compasse of an houre and a halfe, the Switzers. or thereabout. perfected a most memorable famous battayle, and vveigl tie

> And although their enemies lay flaine before theyr faces, stored with goodlie and rich Furniture, which was able to allure them: yet would they make no fevfure on the spoyle, but kept within care of their Countrey Discipline, which permits not to take any armed man prisoner in the battaile, neither to follow him that flyeth.

This made them to stand still a great part of the day, as doubting least the French, prouoked eyther by pollicie in their Captaines, or their owne shame; should retreate backe againe, and take them at advantage in despoyling the dead. But this feare was much more difcreere then needefull, because the Enemy kept on fill in flight, and Trivulzi gallopping too and fro, confounded with extremity of dust and hoarfenesse in crying to them, was veterly vnable, eyther by foule or faire persivasions, or the When confucommanding Authoritie of a Generall, to stay the Enfigires or the Horsle, that throwing away their Lances, strone with greatest cagernesse, who should bee foremoft.

> It is reported, that the whole troops of French Horffe might have beene vrterly ouerthrowne and spoyled in theyr-flight, if Duke Maximillian had made an opposition but with two hundred light Horse: for there was not a French-man that carried a Lance beyonde Sesithes fuch was their heate and haft to be gone.

thorough with deadly forrow, beholding 'And yet within a short while after, set uia Sabello, and Corradino Cribelly, with certaine light Horsse; pursued them vnto the Towns of Trecato : but the Contadines and Peazants, flocking amaine out of the Fieldes and Hamlets to the spoile, made a most cruell slaughter where anie bootie was to be had, at hedges, ditches, and all other places, that hindered the tired French in their flight.

The same day the Switzers, gathering together the flaine bodyes of their countreymen, carryed them on their shoulders into the Cittie, to give them the latest honour of buriall. Amongst them, The loss fu were flaine a thousand and three hunde- both sides. red, seauen hundred beeing torne with the great pieces of Ordenance, and almost as many were wounded, but of the French were flaine eight thousand of all of fuch fortunate fuccesse, summoned the Souldiors together, and ioy fo confounding speech, as he was scarse able to vite a worde; which appeared by the teares trickling downe his cheekes, gaue them all most hearty thankes; and, as a gift of The gratitude instant benefite and pleasure, all the Vi-Aualles then taken, beside the Ordenance Sforza toand general spoyle, hee frankely bestow-ed vppon them. As for the admirable diers. Trench, wherein confifted fuch vndoubted hope of Victorie, invented by a warlike witte, brought ouer the Alpes with much labour, and great charge: that being taken from the enemy, was fer vp in apublique place, for a future Monument of that victorie : and this deceyned the Allemaignes most, that they holde it viterly needleffe to crect their Trenche that day, which lay still in the Waggons, because successe seemed then to frowne on the enemy. Vppon Conference had afterwardes With Trimouille at Bologna, concerning all When a loffe thefe matters; he did not fripolously impute the fault vnto Trivulzi, for not en- complainte. camping on his owne groundes (as Triare alledged mouille had perswaded him) in regard of then, to go fpoyling the Graffe, which then at that time was ready to bee mowne. But Trivulzi, as a man neuer conquered before. yet disputing on seucrall events hapning in the battaile, threwe the maine errour on aduerfe fate, which too much enuyed

Duke Maximillian, not a little joyfull

A firstagem of the Swit-

his worth and renowne. And hee faide | do no where leffe answer the expettation of very truely, that men, made more then mad, by cowardly and degenerate feare, in the cheefest heate and fury of fight; are no way able to be restrained or ordered, by the best or most skilfull Captaine that eucr lined.

CHAP. XIIII.

Of the force of Sudden Chances and unexpected Euents, for the dissipation as well of mans power, as of his pollicy : And of the hazards and doubtfulleuents of Battailes, and other enterprizes of Warre.

matters, wherein mans power is most feene to wit in matters of warre, whereof the events are so doubtfull and dangerous, that (as Iason saide to Epimanondas)

He is not wife that doth not feare them. And therefore it is reported of Phocion, a most excellent Captaine of the Athenians, that although hee was chosen five and forty times Generall oftheir armies; yethee

himfelfe did euer perswade the to peace,

as fearing the successe of warre. And Hanniball having bene for 16 yeares victorious in Italy, and forced at the length to defend his owne country, which was Carthage (where Scipio the Romane had already ouerthrowne two great armies of the Carthagenians, and was ready also to prefent him battaile) he doubted fo much the cuent thereof, that crauing conference with Scipio, he fought to perswade him to peace, representing vnto him the hazard of warre, and aduiting him to consider in the prosperous course of his victories.

not onely what had hapned to other men,

but also what might ensue to himselfe, &

that to make peace was in his own hands,

but if he came once to the battaile, the vi-

Gory should bee in the hands of God.

And laftly, that Nufquam minu quamin bellocuentus respondent. The euents of things

Lthough the fuccesse

of mens affavrs is most vncertaine, variable, &

subject to infinit chances and hazards; yet in nothing so much as in

The cuents of war most

Supplement of Plutarch in Epaminindas

Plutarch,in Phocien.

Hannibal feared the cuent of warre.

Tit Lining in Dec.3,46,10

l'o make prace is in he hands of man,but victory is in the hands of God men then in warre. Thus spake Hanniball, who may also idem.

well ferue for an example of his owne admonitions. For though he had bin many yeares together, the scourge of the Romanes, and the most famous and renowned Captaine then living, yea, and was (as it were) growne old with victories in forreigne Countries, euen before the very gates of Rome; yet was hee at length vtterly ouerthrowne by a Romane, a young The ouer. man, inferiour to him in reputation, ex- throw of Hi perience, and forces, and in that battaile niballby a which most imported him, and wherein (by the judgement of all men) he imployed all the endeuour, military arte and skil he had, or which could bee required in a most prudent and valiant Captaine.

This change and decay of fortune in This change and decay of fortune in The chancek war, may be exemplified in many others, decay of for. as famous Captaines as euer were; as in tune in wante the worthy Indas Machabeus; Cyrus, king exemplified in many faof Persia; Pyrrhus,king of Epyrus; Mar- mous Cap. cellus , Pompeius Magnus , Marcus Antoni- taines. u, Competitor of Augustus Cafar; the Micability. Emperour Constantine; and Heraclius; Phanch. Belizarius; Edward the third, King of Polydor Ving England; our famous Countriman, John Guicciardin. Talbot, the first Earle of Shrewsbury, Podro Mixi whose name is yet terrible to the French ; Surius. the great Earle of Warwicke, in the time of Edward the fourth; Charles, Duke of Bourcongne: Nicholo Pricimico: Lewes the 12. king of France; and now lastly (in our memory) the Emperour Charles the fift. All which (with many other whom I omit for breuities fake) having by many notable victories got the fame and renowne of most famous Captaines, were eyther at last disgraciously killed, or else receyued fome great ouerthrowes, or had (at least) some notorious decay of their former and wonted prosperous successe.

The confideration heereof, had moo- The doubtful ued divers most valiant Captaines, to a- euentofa uoide the aduenture of battaile as much battaile is greatly to be as might be, and rather feek to ouercome feared their enemies by stratagems, practifes, and delayes: as Q. Fabius Maximus, who (by fuch meanes) distressed Hanniball, much more then others could do by main battailes. And therefore Ennius the Poet faide of him; Cunstande restituit Cicer, Officials rem: He repaired the State of the Romanes by delayes. And it is also written of the lection. Cap. 1. Pars 2.

Selvad: varia | valiant Franciscus' Sforza Duke of Mil- | laine, that he would never joyne battaile with an enemy, but when hee could not otherwise choose.

And Lewes the eleventh, K. of France

(who was no leffe valourous in war, then prudent in peace) feared nothing more,

as Philip de Commines testificth, then the hazard of warre; and especially of a bat-

taile, which by all meanes possible hee fought to avoid. Infomuch, that when any enemie entered France; hee procured

to make peace or truce with him, whatfo-enerit cost him . As appeared when Edward the fourth King of England was ther with a strong Armie, to whom he gaue a great fumme of ready money, and gran-red to pay him a tribute of fiftie thousand

Crownes a yeare, besides divers pensions to his Councellors, and other hard conditions; rather then hee would hazard a battell with him, knowing the cafualtie thereof, and that as Commineus faith. Vne battaille perdu a maunasse queue; A battaile

lost hath an ill taile or consequence For it redoubleth the hope and courage of the Victors; it aftonisheth and discourageth

the vanquished; it shaketh the fidelity of subjects, it ministreth matter and opportunity of conspiracie to malecontents, of reuolt to Townes, and of alienation to confederates, who commonly fway with the good successe. And for this cause, not onely King Lewes the eleventh, but also other wife Princes haue vsed, when an enemy hath bin ready to enter their countries: to dismantle all the Townes in his way that were not tenable, and to forti-

fie and make strong the rest, retyring thither all the Cattle and provision of the countrey, and destroying all the Corne

vppon the ground, thereby to confume him with Famine, long fiedges, and all kindes of delayes whatfocuer, rather then feek to ouerthrow it by a maine bat-tail. This was very prudently practifed by Frances the first, King of France, at such time as the Emperor Charles determined to enter into Prouence, with a great and puiffant army: infomuch, that when K.

Frances vnderstoode, that the people of the Countrey resisted the destruction of theyr Corne, and other commodities;

he straight way sent his armie to destroy

it. Whereby the Emperour finding all Townes fortified, and no prouision a-

Phil o Commin. (ap. 17,20,0

Philip Commin

ap.19.0 64.

A battell loft

hath an il tail

and why.

Chap. 14.

The practile K of France to ouercome anenemie wi hout bat-

Mattindu Bel-Frances the Kot France, vied against of Charls the

Emperor.

broad was left them, were forced (after hee had befiedged Marfeilles some certaine moneths) to retire himselfe for lack of victuals.

And this I have thought good to fignific by the way, for that Phillip de Commines, and Martin du Bellay (both of them notable Historiographers, and Councellers, the first to Levves 11. and the other to Frances the first) lo greatly approue this manner of proceeding in these Princes, and propose it for a rule of state to al such batter, why. Kings & Princes, as, beeing in posession their Kingdomes and States, are inuaded by Forreiners; though for those that inuade and fecke to conquer, Phillip de Commines, thinketh it meete and conuenient to feeke battaile, to make short worke, by reason of the difficulty to bee fuccoured, and of the infinite dangers & inconveniences, which happe by delayes to an armie of strangers in for aine countreyes. Besides, hee that inuadeth and feeketh to conquer, commonly adventureth no more but his present armie, and that in hope to gaine a Crowne, whereas the Prince in possession, aducatureth his whole state against nothing, and a flate is loft (many times) with the loffe of a battaile at home, if the victory bee well followed.

But nowe let vs returne to speake of fodaine Chances, and to touch fome particularities, thereby to shew very manifeftly and euidently, the vveakeneffe of wallike atmans wit and power, and the cafualty of tempts.

warlike attempts. Let vs first and formost consider, by howe many accidents the mightiest ar mies are many times quite dispersed and dissipated, and the greatest enterprizes ouerthrowne; as sometimes it falleth out by the death of some one man, sometimes by the diffention of Leaders and Captaines amongst themselues, sometimes by the mutiny of fouldiers, fometimes by meanes of a Tempest or vnseafonable weather; fometimes againe by plagues, or other diseases in the Campe, and fometimes againe (as Guicchiardine Guicin Lib. 2. noteth in his second Booke) by a commandement eyther not well vnderflood, or ill executed; by a little temeritie or disorder, which may channee to happen by some vaine worde or speech, even of the meanest Souldiour. And last of all

Chap.15.

Rome furprized by Arnul-

e fodain feare

Sigon.de Regno Italico.An,896

battell loft

v the Chriians to the

urkes onely

brough a fo-

daine feare.

Naucler, Chron.

AR,1396.

by the Soldan

through a fo-

daine feare.

Paul Emit.in

Nowelerus in

Chron.

Philippo fecum.

Phil.Com in c. Plots are fel dome or neuer executed in the field, at they are or 184 dained in the chamber. I dem Ibid, pen at vnawares, vnpossible to bee forefeene and prevented by the wit or counfell of any Captaine. Heereto I also adde out of Comminam, that be the counsell neuer so well taken, and the plot neuer fo well layed: yet it is neuer or seldome executed in the fielde, as it is ordayned in the Chamber. And that sometimes, by the least motions or occasions that may bee, the victories wonne or lost: Which (faith hee) is a great Mystery, whereby Kingdomes and States de rife or fall. And heereuppon, the selfe-same Authour groundeth two Conclusions, no lesse piously then wifely. The one, that no humane wit is able (of it felfe) fufficiently to gouerne an Army of men: and the other, that God referueth to himfelfe the successe of battels and disposeth of his victory at his wil and pleasure.

(faith hee) by infinite chances which hap-

This will be made cleare by examples, by the which, I will first of all showe the force of sodaine chances in battaile, and other enterprizes of Warre. And after that all victorie proceedeth from the prouidence and hand of God, and not from the power and pollicie of mortall man. As concerning the first, we see many and fundry times, that great defignements are broken, and potent armies dissolued by accidents, without any force or ftroke of the Enemie. When Lewes the Emperour (called Lewes of Bauaria) was in Italy, with a great and puiffant armie, and readie to beliege Florence, vpon the confidence he had in the valor and affistance of Castruccio of Pifa, whom the Florentines feared more then any man living, it chanced that the fayde Castruccio dyed: fignement, and returned into Germanie with his army.

Alfo, in the time of the great Schisine which was holden betwixt Vrbane, the fixte Pope of that name, and Clement the false Pope, who was called Clement the feuenth, and lined in Automion : Levves Duke of Aniou, Vnckle vnto Charles the fixt, King of France, went into Italy with an huge armie, wherein hee hadde aboue thirtie thousand Horsse, partly to deliuer Ioane, Queene of Naples, (who was beliedged by Charles Ourazzo. Nephew vnto Levves King of Hungaria) though they came scattering one after and partly to depose Pope Vrbane, in fauour of Clement. When he had already entered into Italy, and began to make warre in the Territorie of Bologna (which belonged to the Church) and was likely in al mens opinion (by reason of his great forces) to obtaine his defire in all he pretended the fodainly fell ficke and dyed the death in list, whereuppon, all that mightie and inuincible army, dispersed and dissolued it self; and enery man returned from whence he

The like hath chanced divers times, by fome great plague and mortalitie in armes, as in that of the Christians, which Paul Emilia beganne in Thunis in Affrica, vnder the Lodonico nono conduct and commaund of Levves, the ninth, King of France: which armie was fo mollested with pestilence, that it was forced for to rife from the fiedge at such time, euen when the Towne was brought to extremitie, and must needs have rendred it felfe within few daies.

Furthermore, such is the force of sodaine feares which fall vpon men, fome- Of the force times by meere chance, without anie iust of sodain fer in battels. cause, that the greatest armies are vtterly ouerthrowne thereby. And no maruel feeing no man is fo valiant, but that hee may bee feized and transported with a fodaine feare. And therefore the Lacedemonians, before they went forth to fight, were woont to facrifice to the Muses, to obtaine their affiftance, against the fierce and furious affaults of fodaine paffions. VVhich taking reason many times at vna- Plut in Tres wares, and (as it were) at an aduantage, doe so oppresse it, that they bereaue a man of all judgement and discourse for a time, and no passion more then seare. VVhereof I my felfe faw a notable expewhereuppon, the Emperor broke his de- rience, in a most valiant Spanish Captaine in France, which happened in the time of a League, who going out of his Garrison, with certaine Troopes yppon an occasion, and meeting with the Enemy by chance, where hee least suspected, tooke fuch a fright thereat, that he ranne No passion home with might and maine, and tolde bereauchs vs (for I was ther at the same instat time) that all the Souldiers were cut in peeces, and that hee himfelfe escaped very hardly. Neuertheleve, within fine or fixe houres after, they all returned home fafe, and not fo much as any one man hurt,

then fodging

another, for they all fledde as well as he, i happened at fuch a time, as the Soldane would have veterly differed him if in very many occasions (before) hee had not got the reputation of one of the most valiant men of his Nation, in which respect it was rather wondered at in him, then blamed.

But to showe the like effect of sodaine feare in whole Armies, vpon diners acciphus the Em- dents. When Arnulphus the Emperor peror through befiedged Rome, it chanced, that a Hare (being started by some of the Camp) ran towardes the Citic and that a great number of the fouldiers purfued her with very great rowt and cryes, which the Romains feeing from the Towne, and conceyning that the enemy meant to give fome furious and violent affault thereto, were furprized with fuch a feare, that they abandoned the wals and Rampiers, and the enemie espying, and taking the opportunity thereof, scaled the walles, and tooke

> Alfo, when Sigifmond, King of Hungaria, (who was afterward Emperour) gaue battell to an Army of the Turkes, neere to Nicopolis, and was affifted with exceeding great numbers of the French, and of diuers other Nations, the French Horse being in the vantgard, and feeing themfelues (after a while) hardly opprest, alighted from their Horsles to fight on foote. But their Horsfes beeing loose, ranne all backe toward the campe, which the Towne.

the Hungarians and others that were in the rere perceiving, and imagining that the Horse men were slaine; tooke such a fright therewith, that they ranne away, whereby the Turkes got a notable Victorie, with great flaughter of the christians, especially of the French, who wer almost all flaine. Also at Ptolomais in Ægypt, which the The Christian ouerthrowne Christians besieged two yeares together, the Soldane, who came with an armie to fuccourit, gaue them an ouerthrowe by the like chance; of a Horse, which beeing let loofe, ranne backe to the Campe. For whereas divers fouldiers called one vnto another to flay him, many ranne out of their rankes (to take him) with fuch diforder, that they feemed to those that yvere behinde, and some-what farre off, to run and the rather by his example. Which with his Soldiers (being put to the worfe) were running out of the field : who feeing the Christians flye, called backe his men. charged them afresh, and got the Victo

> Charles Duke of Bourgogne, besiedging Philip Commin. Cap. & c. Charles Duke of Bourgogne, Straufon, & vnderstanding that the Swit-Charles Duke zers came to fuccour it, went to meete of Burgundre ouerthrowne them, to give them battaile. The Souldiby the Switers of the vantgard, as they wer marching, zers at Graumeaning for to take a better way', retired a little backe. The rereward feeing the fame, imagined that they fled, and began themselues to flye, whereupon the rest alfo did the like; and (in conclusion) the Duke and all ran away, abandoning their artillery and Campe, to the spoile of the Switzers, who were exceedingly enriched thereby, and yet flew only but feuen men, for all the reft faued themselves by flight. Thus much concerning fodaine feares, whereto I will adde a few more examples of other accidents.

> Gildo, Gouernor of Affricke, under the Emperours Arcadius and Honorius, rebel-theraccidents led against the Empire, and his own bro- Ofice, in lib 7 ther Mascezill was imployed against him cap. 36. for Generall, who had not (in a certaine Gildo Gouer occasion) aboue 5000. men to fight with nerof Affica 70000. And the armies being so nere to-gether, that they were ready to Charge accident. one another, Mascezill beganne to make motions of peace; & receiving some hard and croffe language of one that bare an Enfigne, stroke him vppon the same arme that helde it, where with the Enfigne fell. and divers others that followed, feeing it, and conceining that he which bare it had yeelded it, went in great haft, and yeelded themselues. VVhereuppon, Gildo fled away with a great part of the armie, and the rest surrendred themselves to Masce.

Alfo in the battell of Cirignola, in the Guicinlib. s. Kingdome of Naples, betwixt the Spani- The French ardes and the French, a worde spoken by the Count of Nemonn, (who was then a Generall of the French) beeing misconftrued by his Souldiers, was a very great ken. cause of their ouerthrow. For, the battell being already beginne, and the Count finding withall, that he could not passe a cerain Ditch (ouer which he had thought away; whereuppon, a great part of the to haue ledde some part of his Armie, to Christian Army began to slyc. And this charge the Spaniardes on the other side, to have ledde some part of his Armie, to

Philip Commin.

Examples of Battailes loft

Paul Emil.in Carole 6.

Pedro Mexia.

in Lodonico Ba

Battell loft by

Yury in Frace

in Anno 1500

deth fomtime

a little dilor-

cryed vnto the Souldiers that followed him, Backe, backe ; meaning to lead them another way. But they not knowing the cause, vnderstood that he bad them flye, which they all began to doe: and others (feeing the fame) followd their example. It chanced also at the same time, that the Count was flaine; whereupon the whole Army of the French ranne away, and lefte the fielde and victorie to the Spaniards.

Againe, whosoeuer hath reade any thing of the ancient warres, or hath any experience in these our times: cannot be ignorant, what confusion may bee bred in a battaile, by a little diforder growing vppon some sodaine accident; whereby Armies (many times) are causes of theyr owne ouerthrow. As it chanced to Hanniballin his last battaile with Scipio, wherin his owne Elephants turning backe vppon his Horsse-men, so brake & disordered them, that the Romans taking aduantage thereof, did eafily put them all vnto

The like to this, hath happened fometimes in this our age, and namely, a few yeares past in France, in the yeare of our Lord, 1590. in the battaile of Yury, betweene the King of France, Henrie the fourth, and the Duke de Marne, then Generall for the League . In which Battaile, the Horssemen of the League, flying backe vpon their owne foote, brake them in fuch fort, that theyr Enemie entring withall eafily defeated them.

Lastly, to shew enidently the force of chance in warre, is there any thing more vncertaine or vncoustant then winde and weather? And yet neuerthelesse, thereupon (many times) dependent the successe The victory in of battailes, and other warlike attempts: battels depen especially by sea, where the winde & weather do predominate, and check al the povpon winde & weather aswel wer of men. For, who is ignorant, that by land as fea. be the Nauie neuer fo potent, it can neyther goe out of the harbour, nor arrive where it should to encounter the enemie, if winde and weather be not fauourable Which is also as necessary and importat for obtaining victory in a conflict by fea. wherein, the first advantage that an expert Sea-man feeketh to get of his Enemie, is to winne the winde of him: which winde also changing (sometimes) during the Conflict, doth giue both the aduan-tage and victory to the enemy. As it fell out in the Battaile of Lepanto, which The battellet the four in the Dattaile of Legislands, and the Turkes, wherein the Winde beeing tween the furthes, fodain-the Turkes, fodain-t ly changed, and draue all the fmoake of Sariasia Can the Artillerie and finall thot vpon them, mentar, 1571. whereby they were fo blinded, that they were very eafily and speedily ouer-

And thus it chanceth in like manner in battailes uppon Land; and therefore wife Captaines feeke not onely to haue the Sunne, but also the winde on theyr backes: for, it often falleth our, that a storme of Haile or Raine in the face of an enemy, or a violent winde, drining either the dust, or the smoake of shot and Artillerie vpon it, giueth the victory to The greating the enemie. As in the famous battaile they of that at Cannas, when Hanniball ouer threw the main. Romaines, and flew four e thousand foote, Talining. and feuen and twenty hundred horse, and Dec. 3.16,2, tooke three thousand and three hundred prisoners. He had the winde in his fauor. which being in his backe, and withall fo violent, that it draue the dust into the Romaines eyes, and did greatly facilitate his

The like, or rather a farre greater vi-Ctory, got Scipio Afiaticus against Antiochus, King of Syria, whom heeput vnto The victory flight, and flew five thousand foote, and of Scipio Alia foure thousand horse, with the losse only Antiochus. of three hundred forty nine men , by the Titus Linius helpe of a foggy mift, and a showre of Dec. 4.4167. raine. For the mist was so thicke, that the huge Army of Antiochus could not one part of it fee another: whereas it wrought no fuch effect in the small Army of the Romaines. And againe, the raine so weakned the Bowes and Slinges of Antiochus his Souldiers, that they ferued to little or no purpose : whereas the Romaines vsing onely Swordes and Darts, receyued no damage thereby. And to come neerer to our time, wee reade that Adolphus the Emperour was flaine, and his vyhole armie cleane ouerthrowne and vanquished by Albertus, by reason that the Sun vvas Guicinlib 3. in their faces.

Alfo, amongst some other causes of the losse of the great Battaile of Ghiaradadda, betweene the Venetians, and the French, Guicebiardine obserueth, that a certain showre of raine; which fel euen

How little confidence is to be had in the pollicy or power of man fucceffe of a attaile.

Chap.15.

as they were fighting, made the ground so | women, and Mistresses, and not without flippery vpon a sudden, that the soote of very great reason. For it is a notorious the Venetians could not hold their footing, to defend themselves against the he who abideth as a scruant in a house, French Horse. By which meanes they should entermeddle in seeking to pur-

of them flaine. Thus then we fee, how great a fway chance beareth in battailes and enterprizes of warre, and confequently, how little confidence is to bee reposed in the witte, pollicy, power, and endeuour of men, for eth himselfe. the good successe thereof. VV hich dependeth vpon infinit accidents, chancing teth, that the Licaonians had a law, that if Matricare, fo diverfly (according to the difference any strangers were found to conferre in of persons, times, places, and circumstances) that neyther the wifedome of any for the good Generall can foresee them, nor any diligence, dexterity, or industry of Souldiers preuent them, though al should concurre in the highest degree. For be the Soldiers neuer fo obedient, dexterious, & diligent. and the Captaine neuer fo wife and valiant: yet what affurance is there of good fuccesse, when a sudden danger shall so difinay both Captaine and Soldiers, that neyther the one shall know what to command, nor the other how to obey; when an erronious conceite of some few, or streffe foftly by the siecue of her gowne; bad example of fome one, or a word mistaken, or a blast of winde, or a shewer of raine, and innumerable other accidents, not possible to be fore-feene or remedied, shall give the victory to the weaker, yea, to those that are (in a manner) vanquithed before? Therefore I will thus conclude this Chapter, that the successe of

CHAP.XV.

ments of God.

Battailes, and all warlike attempts, dependeth wholly on the will and fecret judge-

How our Ancients and reverend Predeceffors, punished such in former times, as durst do any disbonour to their Mistres-

The Authors eafop for his Chapter heere fet

VVas the more willing to infert this Chapter, to the ende that the youth of our times may know and understand in what veneration and regard, our Ancients held the honour of Ladyes, Gentle treason, & high point of dishonesty, that were easily broken, and the greater part | chase the loue of his Mistresse: nay, and that which is worse, to obtaine the cheefest point of al. In the compassing or contriuing whereof, he maketh the husband infamous, doth injurie to the wife, fcan-

> Plutarch, in his Booke of Mariage wri- Plut, in lib. fecret with the Miffreffe of their lodging, they had their tongues cut out of their mouthes; and if they prefumed any further, then it was the loffe of their lines. In- The fenerity lius Cafar caused one of his Captaines to of Julius Cabe beheaded, because he had dishonored taine. the Mistresse of the house where hee was lodged: without attending any excuse he could or should make, and without any complaint vrged by the husband.

> The Emperour Aurelius, standing on Marcus Aurea day at his window in his Pallace, & be- hus, a just and holding a young man, who drew his Mi- feuere Empehad them both brought before him immediately, and although the young man and his Mistresse both deposed, that it was onely done in iest; yet Aurelius commanded (neuertheleffe) the fame hand to be smitten off.

Macrobius writeth in his Saturnales, Macrobius in that fuch persons were reputed infamous Satum. among the Romanes, as should give any commendations of the Mistresse of a Family, eyther in regard of her beauty, modest behaulour, or any other seemely quality. For fuch praises they reputed, to give euident notice of more private knowledge, and fuch knowledge vrged fpeech, and speech being the discloser of the hart. would afterward grow to the shamefull acte. In the like manner Aulus Gellius recordeth, that the same punishment was Not Autic. inflicted on him that dishonored his Mistresse, as to him that corrupted a vestall virgin: which penalty was, to have his body cut in foure parts or elfe to bee stoned to death aliue.

CHAP.

The vanity of question moo-

worthily an

CHAP.XVI

Concerning divers kindes of Salutation, vfed among our Ancients, when they met

The Idumeans at their meetings, vied The Idumæ to speake these words: The Lord bee with

The true Hebrues, faluting each other, The Hebrues. faid . God faue you my Brother.

The Philosophers were wont to Lay; Goe in a good houre.

The Thebanes faid; God give you health. The Romanes Calutations were as if they The Romans, they would fay; God fend or give you good fortune.

The Sicillians The Cartha-

The Philoso.

phers.

The The-

genians.

The Sicillians faid ; God keepe you. The Carthagenians did not vie any falutations by speeches at their meetings, but as a figne of love and friendlines, they would kiffe their right hands each together, and then kiffe one another.

The Moores likewife at their meetings, would kiffe the right shoulder of one another: and when they tooke leave for their departing, then they would kis each others knee.

The Italians.

In Italy, they have three severall kindes of falutations for a whole day. In the morning they fay, Dio vi dia il buono giorno : Godgine you a good morrow : At midnoon, Dio vi dia falute, God gine you health. And at cucning they fay, Buona fera, Good eeuen. They fay also many times, Miraccommando, I commend me to yee. And after two or three houres of night is past, then they fay, Dio vi diala buona notte; God giue you the goodnesse of the night . Sometime alfo they are accustomed to fay, Iddio vi contenti God content ye.

The Valenti

In the kingdome of Valentia in Spaine, when men meete together, they falute each other in this manner; Gentle Sir, you are well come. And at the departing, the one faith, God remaine with you; and the other replyeth, Goe in a good houre. In Cathalognia, fuch perfons as chance The Catha-to meete together, falute one another lognians, thus : You are very well arrived heere Sir. In Castile fome vie to fay, God keepe The Callilli. you : others, God be with you. And when ans. they leave each other, the one faith, God conduct you: and the other answereth, The bleffed Angels beare you company. Some also vie to say; With your good grace and fauour. And others Adien Sir. In the Court some vie to fay, I kille the hands of Court Saluta your mercy. And fome other, I kille the feet ons. of your Honour or Worfbip. Which Courting falutations are altogether vaine, and (for the most part) delinered with feigning and diffimulation. For many offer to Courtfalus. kille the hands and feete of one another, tions. that would much rather cut them off, the any way kiffe them, defiring indeed to fee each others vtter mine. And certainly (mc-thinks) that men of worth, authority, and respect, ought not to vse any such falurations because to kiffe the feet, hath bin accounted a matter of great dignity, and appertaining to the Pope onely. And to kille the hand, is a gracious fauour affoorded by Kings and Princes, to fuch Subjects as they thinke worthy of fuch

But without gadding after fo many How Christikindes of vanities, and divertity of idle ans shoulds. words, it is a matter meete and reasona. here one another. ble, that wee who are Christians, should imitate lesus Christour Lord and Sauiour, falteting one another, with fuch words as he faluted his Disciples, faying; Peace be with you. Our Redeemer enftructed vs alfo, to falute houses at our entring into them, faying ; Peace be in this houfe.

Epaminondas faid, that vntill the age of An excellent thirty yeares, we should salute men thus: observation of the samous tou are very well come bither, for all this Epaminonds while it appeareth, that they are but come into the world. From thirty vp to fifty, then to falute thus; Wellber yee; because that then they know what maner of thing the world is. And from fifty descending downe againe, to fay, Goein a good and bleffed boure. For then it appeareth, that they are beginning to take leaue of the world, and that as they had an entring into it, so there must needs be a departing from it.

CHAP.

CHAP. XVII.

What a commendable thing it is to pardon iniuries, especially in Princes and great Thath euermore bene a praife-worthy thing to pardon injuries and offences: which Princes and great Lords should neuer be vnmindfull of, but continually to remember the words, which Inline Cafar spake to Manilius. Who (on a time) de-An excellent manding of him, what that was which bequelion moo-ued to Cafar, ing performed by him, he therby thought to receive the greatest glory, and in reand by him as membrance whereof hee ought most to reioyce? VVhereto he thus answered. By the immortall Gods I fweare to thee Manili us, that I never thought my felfe to have merited glory, for any other thing what soener in this life, nor any other elfe fo much to reioyce me; then in pardoning such as had iniuried me, and rewarding them that did me feraice. VVords vndoubtedly worthy of praise, pleasing to heare, notable to reade, and necessary to be followed. For althogh Iulius Casar beleeued as a Pagane, yet his works fauoured of a good Christian : and we miserable men, beleeuing all as Christians, yet our works come farre short of fuch beleefe, through the tentations of our corrupt flesh. Because humane wretchednesse is grown to such an encreasing in these cases, that many would pardon the injuries of their enemies; and yet notwithstanding, dare not do it for feare of men: who viderstanding, that such a man is willing to forgiue his enemy, presently vie to fay; that hee rather doth it through weakneffe and cowardife, then in any respect of charity.

CHAP. XVIII.

From whence (at the first) came the title or name of King and also of Emperour.

VR reuerend Fore-fathers, according to the diversity of Nations, called their Princes by divers names. The Chap.17,18. The name of King and Emperor. Egiptians called their cheefest Lords and Rulers Pharaohs: The Bythians, Ptolomeis: Nations can The Parthians, Arfacides: The Albanes, ted duerfier Syluies: The Sicillians, Tyrants: And the of tytler gine Argines, Rings. Heere we are to vnder- Princes. fland that long fince in former times, to be a King, was not any dignity, but an office onely: as even now (among vs) is a Gouernour of the Common-wealth.

Plutarch, in his Bookes of Commonwealth, faith, that at the beginning, al fuch as gouerned, were called Tyrants: but afterward, all those that governed badly, were tearmed Tyrants, and fuch as ruled were tearmed Tyrants, and fuch as ruled wellwere flyled Kings, as a different note of the worlds from them. For as the King maintained Tyrant and common vtility, and preferred the fafety King, and the feuerall manof the Commonwealth, before his owne ner of their respects and commodities; so the Tyrant governing in referred his dominion to his cupidity and the Commonprofite, alledging his will onely, as the fole reason of all his vniust commands. The King fed the flock, and the Tyrant denoured it : the one obeyed lawes, & the other commanded aboue them, and also would breake them when himselse pleased: this man was equall, the other vniuft; the one obtayned the kingdome by vertue, and therein conserved it; the other vsurped it by power, and so by power held it. From the beginning of the foundation of Rome, the Romanes created Kings, The first creato bee gouerned and defended by them: in Rome. neuerthelesse, they afterward found such kinde of gouernment to be so bad, as they would endure no more but feuen Kings. And after they had banished perpetually the Tarquins for their tyranny, cleanfed or purged the Citty, and flaine their of-ferings: they made a folemne oath, for them, their children, and fucceffors, neuer more to create any Kings, eyther to gouerne Rome or them. But forasmuch as the Romane Common-wealth, had formerly received great benefits by their Kings, as by Numa Pompillius, and that their Kings only had the charge of facred Carin Libs. things: they resolued to keepe the name of King perpetually in their Citty, to the end, it should not appeare, that with the expulsion of the Kings, they derogated from diuine Religion and Service.

And because the Auguries or Diviners had faide, that that name was confecrated to the Gods: the Romanes ordayned, that one man among them should course to a good Pilot, in whom they repose their trust and safety : Euen so as requisite is it, to give the government of a

Citty, to fuch a one as may well conduct the common-wealth, and render justice and right to cuery man . For where there is no Governor (faith Ecclesiastes) the people are scattered. All things which consist

Kings imitate

The King or Sacrifices.

and whereof

it was deriucd.

Dictatour.

The name of

Emperous gi

en to Calar

by the people

The fiue dig-

Many other

State among

the Roman

Offices of

nities of the Scuate.

King to be cheefe Priest and Superintendent in hallowed things, and exempted from going to warre. The first man that had this honour in Rome, was Manius Pa-The fire chare Prieft pirius, a Patrician, a louer of peace & quiin Rome. etneffe : who was high Priest in the Temple of Iupiter, and called King.

Now, as concerning the name of Emperour, at the first it was not given by the Romanes, to fuch as held any foueraigne The original of the name of Emperour power; but onely to their Captaines and Generals, who had effected some worthy acte or enterprize in warre. And no other man was called Emperour, but onely the Colonell of the army, because hee gaue command there. Nam Imperator dict us est ab imperando; For Imperator or Emperour is derived of commanding: which office was held but for a limited time, and that being be chosen, who (for the times to come)

thould beare the name of the Sacrificing past, it was deliuered ouer to another. But after the battaile of Pharsalia in The Roman Thessalie, wherein Casar vanquished Pompey: the entire government of the Roman Common-wealth, beeing fallen into the hands of the Dictator Cafar, he coucting to make the authority and foueraigne power, to be proper and hereditary, wold not take on him the title of King (albeit he was fo in effect) because that name was hatefull to the people. And they being defirous to pleafe him, granted that he thould be named Emperour, a name acceptable to all) especially to Souldiers. and which was onely but the fift dignity of the Senate. For the first was the Sacrificing Priest, whom they called King: The fecond, the Dictator: The third, the Con-full: The fourth, the Tribune of the people : and the fift, the Emperour.

There was also divers other degrees of State, as the Cenfor, the Prator, the Proconfull, the Questor, the Edilis, and other of order and ranke, whereof thall need no question heere. By this meanes then, iulius C.efar having gotten to be perpetuall Dictator, all fuch as succeeded him in the government of the Romanes, were alfo called by the name of Empero ars, and Cafars likewise by his fir-name, which was given him Ab Elephante cafo. As afterwards of Augustus, the Emperours which came in fuccession to him, vsed also to name them-felues enery man AuguCHAP.XIX.

on Kings in ancient times were created of established: And of the Dignity Royall.

The world would perish f the power of God did ot gouer ne it on a certaine order, should be referred to one head or cheefe. Which we may obferue in some brutish creatures: as in Bees, who observe a forme or image of a common-wealth among them. This world it felfe (the parts whereof are conioyned among themselues, by admirable order and arteficial workman(hip) would ander demanded of him, after what manfayle and come to nothing, if it were not gouerned by the power of God. Therefore such as cannot endure the dominion of many, will submit themselves to the regiment of one; in whom, for opinion of wifedome and goodnesse, they may fafely repose their truft. Wet onely then to the Medes (faish Herodotus) but alfo to Kings as a divine image, and helde it for

In elder times, kingdomes came not ginning of Royall and fly ought to vith good

Chap.19.

Eccles.7,9.

to the Sonnes of Kings, but was given to fuch a one, whom they thought would wifely and religiously maintaine the foundation of the Common-wealth, by concord and justice. In those oldedayes, a The first be-King gouerned in every Citty, and after other Townes became annexed to the principality and dominion of one: Kings Kingly Lurishad beginning to governe over divers people, and thence enfued, that according to the names of Kings, the Regions were so called, which the Romanes tearmed Provinces. Moreover, cuery King should excell one another in justice and power; to the end, that he may the better vnite. his people by equitye, and defend the Common-wealth from enemies. And by good right it may be fayd, that Royall Royall Maic-Maichie ought not only to be decorated with Armes: but ought also to be armed with lawes, that at all times, both of warre and peace, he may both manfully and vprightly gouerne. Now, speaking of this Royall dignitie, doubtleffe it is fo great and holy, that Kings being protectors and defenders of

yea. & before they will fet foorth to Sea. | focieties among men, do therein imitatel fore-feeing future perils, make their re- the providence of God: the office and action of whom, is to rule and gouerne all things,& therefore by good right, they may be tearmed Vicars and Ministers of the almighty and foueraign Rector of the whole world, and he himfelfe hath called them Gods. Plato reputed a kindome a- Plato in lib. 4. mong mortall men, to be a divine and fo- de Legib. ueraigne goodnesse; because it came neere to the divine nature, and power celestiall. How farre then some do surpasse each other in many things, so a King doth excell al other men in dignity and honor.

not humane but divine.

Porus, a King among the Indians, being taken prisoner in battaile, when Alexner he would be vied : Like a King, quoth India, he. Againe he vrged the fame demand, & fill he returned the fame answer. For (quoth hee) all is comprised under the word King. The name of King was of fo great veneration among Nations, that the Indians and Persians adored their all other people, Kings (vertuously enclined) their highest and cheefest happinesse, to were established for the administration of have at any time but a sight of them. Poets renowned Jupiter bythe name of king, more then any other title. And in ancient times, Kings did not onely gouerne the and office of common-wealth; but also had the charge Kings in anciand super-intendency of Ceremonies & Sacrifices. Kings then are facred, confidering that the Hebrewes with one and the fame oyle, annointed both their Kings & high Priests.

Let vs fee and observe, how one kinde of reason, and the like of understanding, do gouerne in man like a Queene, Let vs confider the other works of nature, which by a wonderfull kinde of concord, restrained and combined together depend only vpon one . So that if things which imitate nature, are the most perfect and ex- Things imitacellent, then questionlesse, Monarchy is ting nature, are the molt most absolute and entire, farre aboue Aristocratie, Democratie, Oligarchy, or excellent. Laocratie, yea, all other kindes of gouernment, where eyther many persons, or few, or the people themselves do rule and command. And like as it is a very hard matter, to finde many men good and honest, rather then one onely : so is it more hard, that the manners of one man shold be so soone corrupted, as of many. So

What was the reason, and wpon what occasi-

OR two principall causes, Kings were at first anciently, for the slave of they should preserve come they should preserve come mon instructional equity, by

ued. The other because they should defend the goods and fafety of their Cittiwhich bond humane fociety is maintayned, and without which the leffer would be oppressed by the greater, all things being done by power, and no right obser-zens from enemies. The necessities of life affembled men among themselues, and conjoyned them by a naturall fociety: which hath beene caused by mutuall suecours, support, and offices fitting mankinde. The beginning of this fociety, The begining was reason and speech, whereby wee are of humane differing from all brutish creatures. Reafon cauled many and infinite artes to bee inuented, and speech (which is the interpreter of the spirit) learned, enstructed, & communicated them, not onely by this mutuall conjunction; but also hath stored the life of man with many commodities. The first and cheefest, was the coniun- The first cor

Gion and coupling of man with woman, inntion of whereof was made one house, wherein all man & where things were to the in common, & thence enfued theren enfued plurality of houses. For Brothers, Siflers, and Cofins contracting mariage together at the beginning, and could not afterward (by multiplicity of their children) be contained all in one house, they went to dwell in other houses. So of one house at the first, came Borroughs and Villages, euen as Colonies of kindred. Finally, from Borroughs & Villages were Of one house deriued Citties, and becomming to bee peopled were enclosed with walles, confirmed with lawes, and enstructed with Towner and fciences : for without all these, they could Villages. not be preserved from the conspiracies of men, and therefore were to bee ruled by fome one, and couetoulnesse of reigning is so great, that all would command, and none obey, or yeeld reuerence.

VVherefore, like as Saylers, when they An apt and are furprized with an impetuous tempest, worthy come run for refuge to the Patron of the Ship, Partion-

Chap.r.

The world to pe donesticy by one man onely. one man, there would not bee so many differences, manners, customes, nor diuerfities of religion, nor fo many warres, offences, and flaughters. But when Citties are under the fway and power of many, they are then ouer-toyled with troubles feditions and diffentions, by reason: of inordinate willes and affections in the greateft: who licence themselves to all euill, beeing partiall and discordant one towards another. Whereof God faid by the mouth of his Prophet; Many Pa-Stours have ruined my Vine.

Let me demaund one question, is it To ferue and not much more feruile and flauish, to atattend vpon tend on the willes of many, then of one the comman of many, is no onely. Nay, are not the couctous defires meane flauery of one man fooner to be fatisfied, then of many? you cannot chuse but grant it, and I craue no better judgement. For as it is neyther good nor necessary, that in one house there should be many fathers of the

that if the whole world were gouerned by | Family :: even fo is it neyther fecure nor profitable. that the Common-wealth should bee governed by the authority of many. Whereof Licurgus gaue good affurance, when fome one required, that Democratie should bee established in Sparta hee returned this answer : Beginit then in thine owne house first.

Yet very true it is that one man onely, how great or finall focuer in power & The power & prerogative cannot (of himfelfe) provide prerogative for all occasions, and in all places: but he may by his Lieutenants (as God by the name) ministery of his Angels) exercise his authority throughout all his Lands under his obedience, as having the eye of his minde euery where, for contayning his Subjects in quietnesse, and causing justice to be administred vnto them. I say then, as a conclusion to this Chapter, that wee ought to liue, in and under the unity of these foure things; Of one God; Of one King; Of one faith; And of one Law.

THE

The End of the Second Booke.

Ecause amongest those Commonweales of Freedome, gouerned by a certain number of Lords,many haue held opinion, that (at this present time) the Commonwealth of the Switzers is the cheefest, next voto that of Venice: I have many times questioned with divers people, that were no Switzers, how, and after what manner this Common-wealth was first established & gouerned. For they did highly marnaile. that fo many people, having but little, should ally and encrease themselues in so short while, euen as enclosed within a defensive wall or circuite, and continue firmely knit together in peace, for fuch a large and long expence of yeeres.

The Common-wealth of the Athenians, excelling all the reft in Greece, was affembled and felected of many people, and from many places, not only into one countrey, but also within one & the same city. As for the Commonwealth of the Achaians, composed of twelue towns or cities, it did not last long, nor prosper: but after it continued in some dignitie, under

Aratus and Philopoemen, foone afterward it was subdued by the Romaines, because the abused her owne liberty. After the death of lofbua, the Common-wealth of The common Ifrael, exposed (thorow, her owne fault) wealthof Ifto pillage and violence of enemies, was many times protected and defended by Iudges and valiant persons, which God had raifed up for that purpose : but at the last, the twelve Tribes, as beeing glutted or furfetted with their own liberty, made choise of a King out of their own motion

In the time of our Ancestors, by the intermedling and folicitation of the Emperour Frederick, the Townes of * Suaba v. nited themselves together, and (by that meanes) were esteemed inuincible : but having rashly attempted (and by badde conduct) war against the Switzers, the for mer confederation lostinuch of the latter. Which afterward, it feemed the recouered againe, when the confederates expulfed the Duke of Wirtemberg, and ruinated all the Castles of Suaba, detained by divers theeves and robbers. So that soon after the time of their league was expired they became fo ftrange one to another, that they who before were their friendes and allies, were reputed by them as theyr greatest enemies, and joyned themselnes with those that had most molested them; by which meanes, in verie few yeares this league was vtterly loft and vanished.

realth of the

The Preface

or induction

of the Autho

THE THIRD BOOKE.

The Originall of the Switzers, and their ieuerall CANTONS.

Containing, the Government of the Countrey; the publike estate of the thirteene Cantons, and of their Confederates, both in generall and particuler : Their Baylywickes, and Junifdi-Etions; The Originall and condition of all their Alliances; Their battels, victories, conquests, and other memorable actions; from the Emperor Raoul of Habspourg, until the time of Charles the fift.

CHAP. I.

med Pomers-

All Switzerand is no other but one Commonwealth,& the reason therof

Passage by plurality of

deth all fub-

The nation

the Switzer

confifteth of estates in co

194

Now albeit there are many people, & great number of Townes and Cities in Swetia; yet is it neuertheleffe, but euen as one City or Commonwealth. I know that learned men will hardly credite this, because they suppose vs to haue no society, nor any conjunction of government, and fo (by consequent) it cannot be said, that Swetia can yeild the body of a Commonwealth confidering also, that the Townes are not tyed to the ordinances of other Cities or Townes, except with their owne good will and liking, as in the Conventions private of affociates. So it is, that in the fame degree of Commonwealth, what soeuer hath passed by plurality of voyces, it bindeth all the Subjects of that Commonwealth. As for my felf, I am not willing to contest with the lear= ned: for I freely confesse the trueth of their faying; if wee confider matters exactly. But in regard that the whole Nation of the Switzers confifteth of common estates, gouerning many Prouinces in common, deliberating altogether on the affaires of peace and warre, hauing (almost) a like Lawes and Customes, and are to fluictly conjoyned by perpetuall Conventions: admit that this were not one onely Commonwealth, and in fuch nature as hath beene formerly spoken of; yet notwithstanding, wee that write and speake of these matters some-what more popularly, do imagine, that we shall not much faile, in calling this affociation and league, the City and Commonwealth of the Switzers.

Thus then this Commonwealth established by perpetuall alliances, hath conferued her liberty for the space of more

then two hundred yeares, with great con-cord, and incredible vnion of hearts of all the Switzers. For albeit that once or twice(according as it hapneth almost ordinarily in all great Commonweals)they

haue beene prouoked and stirred to civill

warres: yet notwithstanding, those troubles were immediately pacified, and al revnited together againe in fincere & cor-diall affection; embracing the laudable defire of their predecessors, to study still for the freedome of their Countreyes maintenance. Neuerthelesse, there are fome kind of men (enemies to the Switzers) so impudent, as to reproch vs, that in Heluetia, euery man is a mafter or com-

How Com.

ended, & mu tuall loue emmander, and that our Ancestors, having put to death, or troden under foote the awe of our Noblemen, by these meanes entred into this liberty, contrary vnto all right and reason. Others do (more truly) confesse, that our Noble-men did offer fuch outrage to our predecessors, both in words and deeds, that they had just occafion to vndertake Armes, which all that while they managed very sharpely, as it happeneth among people much abused and prouoked. But to fatisfie the irrefolution of fome friends, who understand not for the Authe efface of our affaires, and to rembarre thors writing the calumnies of the enuious, I thought of this difgood to imploy my labour, in describing the forme of the Switzers Commonwealth, by reprouing all vntruthes to the full, and ascending to the heighth of their originall.

All Heluetia or Switzerland, is at this day confidered in three parts : for first of The parts and all the thirteene Cantons haue alwayes Helucia. allved and combined themselues, as into one body of a City. And these are they, Zurich, Berne, Lucerne, Vri, Suits, Vnderwald, Zug, Glaris, Bafile, Pribourg, Soleurre, The thirteen Schaffouse, and Appenzel. In the second place are the affociates and confederates of the thirteene Cantons, to wit, first of all, the Abbot and Towne of S. Gal: next, Affociats and the confedered Grisons, the Byshop of Confederates Sion, and the whole countries of Valais, Rotuille, Mulhouse, and Bienne. Consequently, the territories or Bayliwickes, which are gouerned by the 13. Cantons Iurifdidions in common, to witte ; Turgow, Bade, the or Bayliwick Rhegusces, now adayes called Rhinthall, Sargans, the free Prouinces, the inhabitants of Lugano, Locarne, Mendrife, and the Vale Madie; whereto may well bee ioyned them of Bellizone, who are vnder the dominion of the three leffer Cantons Circles and The cities and townes of the Cantons & Towns of the Zug, Bafile, Fribourg, Soleurre, Schaffoufe, Moreouer, all of them abide not in Switzerland, neither within those limites proposed by Casar in his Commentaries: for of the thirteen Cantons, Bafile is as a quar- ment. Lib. 4. ter apart, which was anciently called the countrie of the Raurasians. Schaffouse is in Allemaigne or Germany, on the further confederates, are Zurich, Berne, Lucerne, Cantons and S.Gal, Coire of the Grifons, Syon in Valate, Villages ap. Rotuille, Mulhouse, and Bien ne for all the pertaining to him. rest do dwell in villages.

fide of the Rhine: and one part of them of Glaris and of Vri. do touch (as some conceine) with the Grifons and the Alpes . Asforthe affociates, except the Abbot and Town of S. Gal and Bienne : al the reft are out of the limits of the ancient country of Heluetia. First we consider, that the Grisons retaine still their name and olde country of the Rhasians. Next is the Valastans, who in elder times were called Viberins, Sedufians, and Veragrians. Rotulle is in Germany, and Mulhoule towardes the Franche Comté. Now as concerning the Iurifdictions or Baylywickes, they of Rhinthal and of the Sargans, are Grifons . But they of Lugano, Locarne, Mendrife, of the Vale Medie, and of Bellizone, are Italians by originall and Language: the other Iurisdictions remaine in Switzer-

And heere you are to understand, that these Cantons doe not hold equal authority ouer the distinct countries; but according as the affociations have beene made in diversity of times, even so are the authority of the Cantons divers. They of Turgow, hold as their Lords and heads the feauen most ancient Cantons, namely,

Zurich, Lucerne, vri, Suites, Vnderuald,

Zug & Glaris. Berne, Fribourg, & Soleurre, do vndergoe some right in criminall cau-

fes. For the Prouostinip or Precendency of the Empire (as they vsed to tearme it) and judgement of criminall processes,

was heeretofore referred to them of Constance, as their due: but among other conditions of peace, after the warre of Suaba, this authority was granted vnto the Switzers, which appertained equally to the fore-named Cantons, because they all

ioyned together in the felfe-fame warre.

Moreover, those seven Cantons commanding at Bada, did the like to them of Sargans, Rhinthal, and ouer the Free Pro-uincesulfo. True it is, that in their gouernement of Bada, they affociated the men of Berne with them; and they of Appenzel in the government of Rhinthal; and all the Cantons to the foure Baylywickes, which are on the confines of Italy . Belli-zone is subject to them of Vri, Suits, and Vnderuald: and fuch (at this day) is the condition and estate of the Switzers

Common-wealth. Now, I purpose to fhew the times, the cause, and the princi-pall Articles of the Switzers league. Alfo, Diverfity of authoritie in the jurifdiAions of the Cantons.

land.

Chap.2.

The Abbot &

the towne of

An ancient

The order of the Bayly-

people of Germany.

Saint Gal,

Anthority of riminall oc-

> Affociations in matter of and authority what hath beene the estate of each Cans ton, before they became allved together. and what their dues and rightes have beene, and are. Lastly, what warres they have maintained fince their League yvas made:

CHAP. II.

Of the three fir & Cantons of the Switzers.

N the year after the natiuity of our Lord Iesus Christ, 309 they of Vri, susts, and Vnderuald, wer the very first that Cantonned themselves. They were tearmed Swaines or Boores of the countrey, dwelling in vallies, and in their owne Language, filed, Die Drep Lander. alfo Die der maloftett: And, in time, Lucerne came into the fourth place. They dwelt in the Valleyes of the Alpes, betweene the Grifons countrey, the Vale of Liuiner, and high Valais, and were feated betweene the Canton of Zurich. and the countrie of Ergon. Some doe Of whom and affirme, that they of Suits, are desce-ded of the Cimbri-cended. ans; they of Vri, of the Taurifci & they of Vnderuald, of certaine banished Romanes; and indeed. their magnanimity in war declares them to be iffued of generous Ancestors. Their Annals do testifie, that the Emperor Lewes, fonne to Charlemaign, at the these people. request of the Byshop of Rome, graunted these people liberty to bee governed by Lawes made among themselves, & gave them many other Priviledges, for theyr faithfull feruice in warre against the Sazarins, in behalfe of the cittle of Rome. For the Sarrazius, who in those times much troubled Affrica, having invaded Sicilie, came likewise into Italy: where they tooke fome places: and afterward marching vnto Rome, easily made themfelues Masters of the Vatican, vvhich

The Empe-rors fauour to whence there

Called alfo

Gallia Toga-

ta,and Citeri

or Gallia, betweene them

and the Alpes

A citty built

Martius in the months of Tyof the Helue-tian Annales.

A great spoile

Sarazine by

Cantons.

the three first

by Ancus

then stood voyd of any defence. There | gest sonne to Charlemaigne, gane them of | The lands a they robbed the Temple of Saint Pecer, breaking downe the gates thereof, that were of filuer and very great value, and afterward burnt and destroyed it. Hauing continued there divers daves in determi-

the whole Cittie: they heard tydings (as Historians fay) that a great band of foldiers, belonging to Cifalpine Gaule. came to the fuccor of Rome, which made them forthwith recoile, and to wast all the plaine Countrey about Rome. Among other badde feruices, they robbed the Temple of S. Paul vpon the way to Oftia, and stuffed it with such fires, as the more part thereof was vtterly ruined.

From thence continuing on theyr rauage, euen fo far as mount Callinum. they stole away all the lewels and Ornaments of the Abbey, and defaced a great part thereof. Thence getting vnto the fea shore, and lading their Shippes with their stolne booties : finding them ready to fet faile, they lanched forth into

Now, the Annales of Switzerland'or Heluetia, do fay; that thele three first Cantons, and they of the Valley of Hafell, were prefent at this fore-mentioned fuccour and supply, and passed two seuerall times into Italy, vnder the conduct of a certaine Italian Marquesse, named Guy. They pursued the Sarazins, and cut their rere-gard in peeces, bringing back a great spoile from this ouerthrowe of theirs. which they altogether gaue to the Temple of S. Peter, euen all that they hadde gotten from the enemy. In regard wherof, the Pope (as a recompence for fo great a benefite) obtained (on theyr behalfe) great priviledges from the King of France; and moreouer, presented them with those Ensignes or Standards, which yet, in our daies, they vie to beare in war.

Notwithstanding, the Emperor Lewes sonne to Lewes the Debonnaire, and youngett ionne to Chartemaigne, gane them or Vri, to the Abbey which he had builte at Turegum, now called Zurich, where his Abbay of Tu daughter Hildegarde was Lady Abbesie: regum. and the wordes of the Donation (truely translated out of the Latine Coppie) are these which follow.

The Donation of the Emperour Lewes to the Abbay of Turegum.

E giue to our Abbay, founded at Turegum, where Saint Feat 2 wrogmin the antenna the Lord with their bodyes; latine Copp our Bourough or Towns of our Bourough or Shabas blemen in thefe Can-

one feuerally

diftinguished by their pla-

The fourfe or

originall of confusion in any estate

Partialities de

roue moft

angerous.

euermore

Tureoum Scituated in the Dutchy of Suabay in the Territory of Durgan, with all the appurtenances and dependances in diver s charges : to wit, the village of Vri with the churches, houses, and other buildings about named: The flaves, male and female young and old, lands eareable and defert, Woods, Meddowes, pasture grounds, Fish ponds, Rivers, Ports, Passages, things found and yet to find, with all olde rents and revennewes. Moreouer our Forrest named Albis and generally all those things fore-mentioned . that eyther now or heereafter do and may appertaine vnto vs, without referuing or retaining any thing what soeuer.

But it is not to bee thought, that this Donation did wholly abolish the ancient priviledges and libertie of them of Vri: For, if we may credit them, the Emperor ri, not truffe gaue not the Seigneury of all the country to this recited Abbay, but of one Village or two onely. Moreover, if it were so that the whole valley of Vri had bin vnder fub iection to this Abbay, yet notwithstanding, it coulde not much prejudice their freedome: because such as were any way subject to Monasteries or Conuents. were obliged under certaine conditions, and enjoyed their liberties in the meane while, onely their feruice to the Church excepted.

Beside, they received their Gouernors or Prouosts of the empire, to take knowledge and censure in causes criminall, without any appeale. They of Vri alfo did formerly do the like; and as concerning other causes, their Judge, whom they tearme Amman (as much to fay, as Major or Bourgomaster) with his Councellors or Assistants, was chosen from a-

Chap.2. mong the people, by good knowledge the Nobility, especially such as were as had of him and them, & they are to prouide in common for the affayres of the Commonwealth. They of Suits & Vaderuald do gouerne themselves in the same manner; and among them, men belonging to the Church, have some power and priniledges. In these severall quarters wer good store of Noblemen. As among them of Vri. the Barons of Attinghule, Schwinfberg and Vizinge: The Lords of Sillini Winterberg Mole, Sedorf, Spiring, Meier, of Bourgs and of Gezefeld. Among them of Suns, the Lords of Stouffacker. Rogkenberg, Schunanow. In the quarters of Vnderwald, the Lords of Wolffen chieff. Hlumence, Rudentz, Altnach, Walterferg, Lembourg, Liebourg, and Huneville. At the beginning, these Gentlemen carryed themselves very kindly with the other Inhabitants, and part of them ferued as vaffailes to some neighbouring Earles. But when they grew rich thorow fuccession of times, they began to misprize the people, and to subject them to theyr vniust commands. The Gouernors, who ought to conferue the peoples libertie, making femblance of not feeing fuch harfh behaujours : fauoured the Gentlemen, as being next in condition to themselves, and by those meanes both augmented & supported their power.

In those times especially, not onelie the freedome of the Switzers Cantons. but likewise of many Townes in Germany, were in manifest danger. The Emperors were excommunicated, and in open warres affayled by the Popes, fo that all Germany was divided into two factions, one part wheroffollowed the Popes power, and the other the Emperors. The people of Switzerland, and some few of their Nobility, tooke part with Frederick | ftles or other places, without the counfell and the lawfull emperor, who (for that cause) liking of the other Allies, they shal not stand renewed and reconfirmed the auncient priviledges of their liberty. They of Suits can yet thew the Letters Patents of Frederick the fecond, written in the moneth of September, in the yeare 1240, wherby he received them of Suites into the fafe- fence. If any Shalattempt to inuade or fet vpgard of the empire, as members thereof; on the lands of Vri and Suits: they of Zurich their priviledges, and called them people of free condition. On the contrary side, the most part of siedge the Towne of Zurich, and shall S; sporte

ned or estranged thence, hee confirmed vasfals to Convents and Abbaies, which were then in very great credit, they followed the Popes faction. Hence forung the hatreds enmities, and first foundation of The vacancie civill diffentions, all taking a wonderfull of a Princes increasing in the Interregnum of manie way to manie yeares, after the death of Fredericke. Ne- harmes, uertheleffe, in those very times, the forenamed people did(euen then) eniov their intire liberty, although many ambufcadoes were prepared to deprine them of its fift against times as appeareth sufficiently by a deed patent ranny. of confederacie for three yeares, by them of Pri and Suits, with them of the Towne of Zurich, the tenor of which confederacie followeth thus.

Atrue Copy of the Patent of Confederacie betweene Zurich, Vri. and Suits.

Constance. We make it knowne, that we are obliged together by oath, mutually to ayd and counsell each other from the Feast of the natiuity of lefus Christ, untill & for the space confederates shal possesse himselfe of any Camagement by fire or (poile on any place, Wee

wil loyn all our meanes together, to make war on them that (hal have committed (uch an of-all other belpes of hostility . If any shall be

TO all them to whome these Letters shall. come, to be either feen or heard: We Ar- the incient nol Majeur de Sillini, Amman, and the people of Vri: and we Conrad de iberg, Amman and the people of Suits, and of the Diocesse of of threeyeares infuing , on these conditions following. What seuer hath bin done or past before y day, doth not any way ty vs togither. If a Lord, what soeuer he be have a servant or The coverant vaffall among vs: that vaffall or fernat shall of conditions agreed vpon be Subject onto him, according to the custom betweenthem which hath heretofore bin ved in the kings time. But if the Lord (ball constraine him beand feruants. yond that limitation; then will we endeuor to Succour the servant. If any of the Allies or bound to furnish the with the charge of Gar- Against Gre or rifon or munition. If any one have done enda- other spoile.

and that they should not be any way alic- Shalimpeach them to their vetermost power. Against inua-If they cannot attaine thereunto: they shall sion to be of-

then endamage them by burning, facking, and fered on ey-

Their liberties renewed indconfirmed by the Empe ors Letters Paten ts.

and trees a-

Against no-uelty in alli-ance.

Six men chofen for Vri & Suits out of Zurich, and as many out of Vri and Suits, to command all the reft.

Provision for death of any of the twelve th the time of

The Switzer elous of the

The Nobiliti

For the Vines | Poyle the Vines and trees about it : they of Vri and Suites Chall oppose all their forces against them, and shall rob and burne the enemies Country. If any one of these inter-obliged parties, doe make confederation with any other, the other Allies Iball not Itand bounds

Moreover, we of Vri and of Suits, have made choise of sixe persons among the Cittizens of Zurich; namely, Raoul Muller, Roger Mannes, Raoul Beggenh, Knightes, Gaultier de Saint Pierre, Garnier Biberlin, and Conrad Krieg . And We of Zurich have chosen three among them of Vri; namely, Garnier de Attinghuse, Burckhard, the old Amman, Conrad Maicur of Ort schueld. And as many of Suits, namely: Conrad, Amman of Iberg, Raoul Stuffacher, and Conrad Hun. Thefe twelve men. according to their discretion. Shall give command to all the Allies, for mutuall ayding dy Succouring one another, both how and when-Soeuer neede shall require, in those affavres whereof the conditions have formerly bin expressed. If any one of these twelvemen shall chaunce to die within compasse of the three consederation yeares alliances the other shall stand bound by Oath, to substitute another in his place within fourteene dayes after following. And to the end that all before declared, may continue firme for the time prefixed : Wee the Senate and Citizens of Zurich, and we the people of Vriand Suits, have put our Seales to three instruments of the same tenure, concerning this our faithfull alliance . Given at Zurich the day of Saint Gal in the year of our Lord God,M.CC. LI.

> These Letters of alliance, made an 100. yeares before that they of Zurich hadde contracted perpetuall alliance with the three first Cantons, do evidently declare how those people were euermore icalous of their liberty, without offering wrong neuertheleffe vnto any person in conferuing it. Now, about ten yeares after this alliance made, the Empire being trobled with factions, in regard it was destitute of an Emperor, and Heluetia much molested by the onermuch license, which the Nobility tooke to themselues day by day:the three Cantons having heard Raoul of Habspourg (who was afterward Emperor) to be highly commended for many Vertues clearely thining in him, gaue him yearly pledges, and electing him for their head, made alliance with him, that theyr liberty might be maintained at the fwords point, if neede required. They of Zurich. Bafile, and Strasbourg did as much at the very fame time. The like did manie free Alliance Townes of Germany, being called vnto their fuccour, and gaue mony enery yeare to preferue to the neighbouring Princes, to the end, their liberty. they might be fecured by their meanes.

The authority of Raoul, beeing bufied in other warres about Zurich, Bafile, and Strasbourg, comming thort of abilitie to represse the insolence of the Nobilitie: at length the people (being too much trod The first war downe by great mens outrages) vnder- of the Nobilitooke Armes, and expelled them forth of Cantons the Countrey that had raifed this diforder. This warre continued twelve yeares, about the yeare of our Lord, 1260. and fome few yeares following. And in this Erection of warre, all the Cantons beganne to fortify Collected the passages of their Countreyes. They of fence. Suits builded a Tower at Mount Sattell, fortifying and cutting off the great highway. They of Vnderuald, did dam up the Lake with a strong prouision of stakes & thrubs, toward the village of Stantz, and fortified the Port, by meanes of a Tower which they builded there. The year 1272. it came to passe, that Raoul of Habspourg was elected King of the Romaines. Then the Gentlemen of Switzerland went vnto him, and gaue him to understand, that the people had rebelled : on the contrary, the people maintained , how much the The trueffre Nobility had outraged them . The King | medy to imhaving heard both parties, and feene the fions of effat priviledges of the people, gave fentence to their benefit, and made peace between them and the Noblemen expulsed out of Heluetia, whither they returned again for the more part. As for the rest of the country, the king did generally confirme Gouernors in the name of the Empire, ¬ Emperors of the house of Austria: which Gouernors in the house (from their beginning) did not dwell in of Austria. towns or villages, but kept themselves in their Castles, whence they came, twice or thrice yearely, to judge in cases of pro-

In our dayes, there are Towns in Germanie, that received fuch Governours of the Empire, who managed no other matter, but onely causes criminall, & had no other occasions in Townes to attend vpon, but only the. And so far off was king ceffe, but more especially in criminal cau-bridged none zers liberti :s.

> They of Saits were termed free people.

entirely to the

Austria and

The Emperor Albert agreat enemy to the Switzers li-

> Tyranny is cautelous in his proceepaffe his in-

Raoul, from diminishing the liberties of King Raoul athe Switzers: as rather many of the Cantons flood beholding to him, for not only the confirmation, but likewife the amplification of their priniledges. For, without depending on them of Zurich; he confirmed and augmented the priviledges of the Canton of Suits, in the 18. yeare of his Empire, as appeareth by his Letters given at Bada, in the yeare 1291, where in expresse termes, they of Suits are called people of free condition. True it is that the King himselfe tooke things of fuch flender confequence, and that all the profite hee could procure by viurping ouer the Switzers, could not va-

Adolph de Nassau, who was successour to Raoul in the Empire, confirmed to the Switzers their priviledges. By meanes whereof the Switzers were highly hated of Albert, Sonne to Raoul, and enemy to Adolph. This Albert was the very greatest aduersary and persecutor of the liberties of the Switzers. Hee had a great number of children, and to advance and enrich them, hee began to ftretch foorth

his wings to farre as possibly he could, & especially he resolued, to prouide a new kinde of principality in Switzerland. Hee being become Emperour attributed many things to the house of Austria, that appertained to the Empire: which made him offensive and insupportable to his neighbours, in being shamelesse, to get to himselse whatsoever he desired, evther

by vniust demands, or else by manifest violence. And because Ecclesiasticall per-lue the ill-will he should gaine thereby.

very great pames, to make the house of The Switzers Habspourg great: but he left to the Switzers their liberties entire. Either because fons were very powerfull; he practifed byall meanes, eyther to make fale to thein of their jurisdictions, or elfe to make them acknowledgehim and his childre, as their hereditary and perpetuall Tutors & Protectors. In this manner he dealt with the Colledges and Convents of Strasbourg, Bafile Constance, Coire, S. Gal, the Hermi- ledges intultage, Rafe, Difentz, Pfauertz, Ringw. ted voon by Wettinghen Muren, Interlach, Trubic, Cer- the Emperor tia, Seconn, Schennisis, Zurich, and many other places beside. By the selfe-same cunning, he follicited & oppressed the Earles and Barons of Switzerland or Heluctia. to put the miclues into the fafegard, and become valials to the house of Austria, valid to the he would not be accounted vnthankfull.

Chap.2.

Among others were the Lords of Villam, house of Au-Rotenburg, Keynspourg, Eschenbach, Al- Emperours in ruinating the that had fuccoured him. bourg Wolhuse and Grencinge. and thewne themselves faithfull in his right, before he was himperour, perswa-In former times, the Colledges and Conuents depended upon the Empire, & ding himfelfe alfo, that his affaires would Lords & Gentlemen did neuer acknowprosper the better, by having the Switledge any other Soueraigne vpon earth, zers his loyall friends and affociates, then but the Emperor onely: but this Albert to make rebels of fubicats, who would laboured to fasten all to the house of Aucarry but bad affection to the oppreffors Aria. .. Weemay eafily judge of his vioof their liberty : Or elfe in regard, that hauing (but a very little before) iovned the lence rowards frangers, by his bad carri-Dukedome of Austria, as also of Alleage to his owne proper Nephew, to who stata ioyned margne or Sudba, to his other possessions, to the Eupehe might thereby imagine, that it would be the beautiful account to follow on maigne or Suaba, to his other possessions, he would never (although hee was very many times thereto required) render the cruely to his thermitage paternall, which he gouerned beget him a generall hatred, to fasten on in quality of a Tutor. But the abbot of phew. Saint Gal, two Colledges of the Towne of Zurich, and the Count of Hombourg, could never be brought to that point, to acknowledge them of Austria for their Protectors neyther to fell them any portion of their jurisdictions. They continually alledged their ancient priviledges, Tyrants doe and would not permit, that they shoulde alwaies meets be difmembred from the Empire: which much incensed and offended the Empe- will refift arour, who had practifed vpon the rights gainft their designes. of many other, especially the Connents Secoun, Murbach, the Hermitage, Interi lach, Difentz, and Lucerne, who had given him all that appertained to them, at Gla- An cuil exam ris Lucerne, Suits, and Vnderuald. Howbe- pleis no rule it, they had formerly promifed (by verie in others. authenticall letters) to the inhabitants of those places, neuer to alienate them to any other. But all this while, Albert curningly wonne the harts of fimple people, and by goodly promifes, made them to ratific these alienations. Hauing (by these meanes), gotten foo-

12.20

The practice ror Albert, t (ubie & them of Suits and Vnderuald.

Faire words

to the enemies of free peoples liber-

Threatning

of a Princes

diffauour ominous

ting in the round neighbouring Countries, & bought some Castles of the Conuents, in the Territories of the forenamed Cantons: heébegan to looke into fome meanes, whereby he might become Mafter of Suits and Inderuald, which being enclosed by the of Austria fthat domineerd over the Hermitage Glaris Zuo. Lucerne & other places thereabout) caufed many to imagine, that except hee could prevaile against the too, they wold quit their liberty as the other did . Neuertheles. Albert being desirous to reach the height of his defire, by fuch meanes ashe had propounded to himfelfe: fent in Emballic to them of Suits and Vnderwald the Baron of Liechtenberg, Gouernor of Allatia, and the Baron of Ochfenstin, two of his intimate Councellers. They addressed themselves first to the of Suits. and perswaded them to yeeld themselves into the protection of the house of Aufria, who were very beningne Princes, & vnder whole dominion they might live much more peaceably, the formerly they had done under the Empire difmembred and rent in peeces (as it were) while the Princes were in debate about the election of Emperors. They further added, that they of Austria had the revenues of many Conuents in those very quarters, and that if they refused; by displeasing Albert, they might well conceive, that their affaires would but badly carry themselues; but in doing the contrary, his highnesse made them promife of all honest and amiable entertainmet, that a Prince could affoord them.

The men of Suits, having bene advertifed before concerning the intention & demaund of Albert, by Garnier, Count of Hombourg, Lord of a neere neighbouring Country, called La Marche: a man not well affected by Albert because he had refused to yeeld himselfe vassale to 9 house of Austria: And having conferred with them of Vri and Vnderwald, returned thus their answer to the Ambassadours. That the Kings and Romane Emperours Wisedome & good councell had given them faire and ample priviledges, carrying expresse charge, that they thould never bee difmembred from the Empire: wherefore they were fully refolued in imitation of their Ancestours example, to continue firmely joyned to the

of Murbach and Beron, whose rights and reuenues (especially about Suitz) were then in the hands of the Austrian Princes. having formerly promifed by authentical inflruments neuer to alienate themselves to any other authority whatfociter: If they had kept their promile, they would have done the like in duty to them. But feeing that they had broken their faith; and all donot merit former contracts were vnnahurally can- to be followed celled: their example was no warrant to extendure them for the like. Moreouer they would to generall render to Albert and his children, Princes of Austria such fidelity and obedience as they ought to do : entreating Albert, feeing he was Emperor; that he would not permit them to be divided from the Empire. Belide, in regard his Predecessours had confirmed their priviledges to them of Suits (which himselfe as yethad not done) they therefore againe did humbly entreate him, that he would youch afe to confirm them. They also desired the Ambaffadors, to returne this their answer to his Imperiall Maiesty, and to entreate on their behalfe, that he would benignly receive them.

The Ambassadors having this answer. went to deale with them of Vri & Vnderuald: who (according to that which had beene accorded on among them before) defire to pu made the felfe-same answere as they of Suits had done. In all the forenamed Villages, they did nothing elfe but shew to the Ambaffadors, the Letters Patents and priviledges, granted them by Fredericke, Raoul of Habspourg, and other Emperors, together with the letters and confents of the Monasteries: all of them making humble entreaty that they might not be compelled to fee al those things frustrated. But the Emperor having heard the Ambaffadors, was highly offended at the answer, ded thathis because the Switzers not only refused to expectation acknowledge them of Austria for their ted. Lords, & would not willingly be separated from the Empires body: but also declared, that they would yeelde to no difiunction from the Monasteries, by which meanes, all the precedent attempts of Albert, built vppon great cost and trauaile, were vtterly disappointed.

In some short while after, they of Suits, Vri and Vnderuald, having againe fent their Ambassadours vnto the Empe-Romane Empire. As for the Monasteries rour, to obtaine confirmation of their ent to the Emperor by the Switzers Bad prefidents

Chap.2.

mhaffadors

xrraordina-Gouernors Caftels erecredand Garrifon, placed in the Country,are the coinning of manifest ty-

Vniry is re-

Gouernors enter like Angelsbut continue and oc out like

Multitude of Governors

are very dan-

ercus in any

common-

priviledges: hee answered them in choller, that hee would fatisfie their requests; according as they nad done his demands. And that hee had deputed certaine Gouernors, which he purposed to send vnto them, and by whom they should more amply understand his minde.

Following this intention, heefencus Gouernors the Knight Grifler, and Peregrin Landberg. Grifler was appointed for Suits and Vrs. and made his abiding in an olde Castell aboue Suits, called Cufnach, and beside hee builded another Fortresse on the Land of Vri. Landberg, the Gouernour of Vnderuald, had two Castles, to wit. Sarne about the Forrest, and Rotzberg beneath, which Forrest divided the country of Vnderhald inft in the midft. Thefe two Caffles did formerly belong to the Conventor Colledge of Lucerne, & the Maiors or Bourgoniaisters made their dwellings there: but the Emperor Albert had folde them to the house of Austria. and there he appointed Garrisons. These deportments were fomething nouell and ilrange to them of Vri, Suits, and Vnder-uald: for till that time, these three severall places together had but one Gouernour. who (ouer and beside) was many times Gouernor of Zurich and other Townes. Hee remained in his Seigneuries out of the Cantons, and enery yeare once or twice (being called) hee came thither to ludge in law-cases. The rest of the time, he had a Lieutenant chosen among the Country people, that executed his charge But now there was appointed two perpetuall Gouernors, keeping Garrison in the very strongest parts of the Country: which the people were constrained to endure, onely in feare of the Emperour. and in regard beside, that those places were in the power of the Austrian Prin-

At the beginning, these Gouernours shewed themselves very courteous and affable to all men : labouring by blandifh. ments and faire lookes, to winne the peoples harts, & to subject them to the house of Austria. But perceining that these carriages did little availe them, they began to checke and oppresse the people, by the command of Albert; who was againg greeuously enraged, by reason of a new league or alliance (made for the space of ten yeares) betweene them of Suits, and the Count of Hombourg . Tyranny thus encredfing day by day, Ambaffadors (in name of the three Villages) were fent to the Emperour, who would nevther feel Acunning nor heare them: fo that they were conhis Councellers . The fumme whereof frustrate and was that being people of the Roman Emples compire, they had obtained very ample fran- plaints. chizes and priniledges of the Eurperors's whereof they were now in danger to bee despoiled; and oppressed by an inkesome and infurportable tyranny. For the inhabitants of the recited places, were without cause or vpon very flender occasion. immediately imprisoned, & pressed with nouell exactions . Beside all this, every man in particular was compelled at a certaine time, especially the first day of the Newsallyear to bring prefents to the Gouernors, on & gift to which neuer had beene put in practife before. In which respect, they most humbly on the people defired the Councellers, to intercede on their bhalfe to the Emperour: that fuch charges might bee taken from them, and that their auncient priviledges might bee confirmed and put in full force againe. But the Emperours Councellers having Such as the conferred and agreed together, made an- Mafter is, fuch fwer; that the Villages themselves were commonly the cause of this oppression, and that the archis Ser-Emperour was thus severe to them, because they would not follow the example of Luceane, Zug, and Glaris, in yeelding thefelues to the house of Austria. Which doing, and making more account (then formerly they had done) of Albert and his children; they shold find him a Prince that would vie them very kindly. The Deputies having received this anfwer, returned without doing any thing Landbergwas else: in the meane while, the tyranny of a most tyran nicall Gouerthe Gouernors (being fauoured & winked at by the Emperour) grew more and more to greater strength. In a certaine Valley of Vnderuald, called Melchtall, ther dwelled an aged rich man, icalous of his Countries liberty, and one that had bene the cheefest in councelling his compatriots, neuer to subject themselves vnto the house of Austria, but carefully to preferne their ancient liberty, which ma was named Henry of Melchtall. Landberg fent The extonia Seruant vnto him, with charge to bring ons of Landberg, with him a couple of Oxen. Wher- Gedin the Hito Henry answered, that he knew not him- floy of Hen

tricke in the felfe tall.

ting in them

their liberty by lawfull meanes.

Telfe to be culpable of any crime, whereby mends of him: and albeit hee had committed some offence, yet hee ought not thus to extend his authority vopon his goods before he had beene heard & condemned. The fernant being of humour answerable to his Master, arrogantly re-plyed, that instantly he wold drive thence the Oxen: and if he stood in need of them to plough his Land, his Country lubbers should serue to draw in the yoake. Thus focaking, hee tooke the Oxen out of their yoakes, and made himfelfe ready to drive them away. Arnoul, a lufty young man, and Son to

Henry, mooned at this outrage offered to Oppression is an cafie marter to procure impatience in a Sonne feeing his Father med the Moand iniuftice.

Tyranny blindfolded by his villaneus companion concupiscence, and chaftifed by the iuft iudge ment of God his father; gaue the feruant a found blow with a cudgell, as hee was driving on the Oxen, and chanced to breake one of his fingers: but fearing the tyranny of his Master he got immediately to the top of the Mountaines, and withdrew himfelfe among them of Vri, where hee kent close with one of his kindred. Landberg vnderstanding al that had past, sent out for Henry Melchtall, demanding of him what was become of his Son. Henry made answer, that he knew not where he was as indeed hee was meerely ignorant of his flight: whereat the Gouernour was so furiously enraged, that he caused the old mans eies to be pluckt foorth, droue away his Oxen, & despoyled him beside, of the most part of his goods. This cruelty brought him into the hatred of all the people: but in regard of Alberts power and oppressions, commanding over them very stearnely, there was no man (as then) that durst ftir against him. And because wicked courses grow to a great head, when ouermuch licence is permitted to them: euen fo infolent iniquity in the Gouernors, did drive them out of one mischiese into ano-

Neere to the Abbey of Engelberg, and to the Village of Wolffenschiez, in a place named Alzelen, there dwelt a country ma called Conrad de Bomgarten, maried to a very faire and beautifull woman. It chanced that a Gentleman, named Wolffen (chiefz, being Lieutenant to the Gouernor, returning from Engelberg, & passing by Alzelen, to goe home to his house at Rotzberg, found this woma in a meadow, buffed about some commendable exer- fort, that hee would bow & bend them at cife. He understanding that her husband was absent, commanded the woman to make him ready a Bath, wherein he might wash himselfe, because he was ouer-trauelled with heate and labour. The woman not daring to make refufall, did as the tyfurther in his intended villany, he pressed en another. the woman to put off her garments, and come into the Bath to him ; wherein fhee promifed to obey, prouided, that two varlets, which attended on him, might withdraw themsclues, as accordingly they presently did vppon their masters com-

The woman vsing some delay, yet seigning preparation of her felfe to come into eth meanto the Bath : got recourry of a doore be- preserucher hinde in the chamber, and fled away in chafter reputs great feare and anguish. Her husband waies finded returning from the Forrest, chanced to helpe when she least to meete her, and vnderstanding what had keth for it. happened entred his house, and with an Axe or Hatchet, which he then had in his hand, flew the Lieutenant fitting in the Bath, and so he received the chastisement due to his wicked attempt, vpon the ho-nour of a vertuous modest woman. The Gouernant fought all means to revenge his death: hut he was so hated of all men, as he could not execute any thing. Befide the villany and indignity of his Lieutenant, with-held him from daring to require any helpe of the Country:in regard alfo, that he who had done the deed, was fled into the Lands of Vnderuald, & kept himselfe hid among them of Fri. Some fay, and among others, Eternilerus, and Stumpfius in his Annales of Heluetia, that Sumfius in this man was the Gouernour himfelfe; the Annales who feeking thus to violence an honest land. woman, became so slaine. But they of underuald maintaine, that hee who was kild in the Bath was called Wolffen schiel z a fernant to the house of Austria, and dwelling at Rotzberg.

While these Tragedies were thus acting at Vnderuald, Grifler, the Gouernour of Vri and Suits also, to keepe the people nour Griflet. in the more awe and subjection; began to builde (by command from his Mafter) a Fort or Cittadell neere to Alterff, vpon a finall Hill called Solturne. This Grifler beeing a verye vaine-glorious man, made vaunt of abasing the people in such alled the oake of exreme flauery o the people

Bonnet of

Hat to be re-ueronced by

Note the fub-tilty of a Ty-

A Cittadell

Modelty feek

Garnier Stouffacher Sonne to Raoul Scouffacher first Maeiftrate of Tyrants are enemiesto them that maintaine the peoples liber-

Chap.2. his pleasure; wherupon he called his Fort, (not diffemble his greefe. Which was the A yoake of extreme flauery to the Vrians. He perceiuing, that all men were enraged & badly bent toward him, and doubting, lefte some matter might secretly be contriued against him to compasse discouery thereof, he vndertooke this course enfuing. He caused a Hat or Bonnet to be fixed vpon a long Pole, erected in the market place of Altorff, where the greater part of the Country people vsed to meete, and gaue command, that all men (taking off their owne Bonnets) should bow their knees, and veelde as much honour to that Hat, as they vied to doe to him the Gouernor, or when they came into his presence. His purpose and opinion was heereby, that fuch as were malicioully addicted towards him would neuer humble themselves, in doing so many reuerences to the Hat, especially if they had any conforts, vpon whose help they made any dependance: and that this occasion would ferue him as an honest pretence for their discouery to his spies, and so tortures might be inflicted on them, to gain knowledge of the whole enterprize. In the meane while, he departed thence, to visite the Country of Suits, where he was likewise Commander and Gouernor.

In Suits there was a Gentleman of marke, named Garnier Stouffacher, whose Father was called Raoul, and had bene the first Magistrate of Suits, about thirty years before. This Garnier had built a house in more ample and magnificent manner, then was the viual custome of the Country. It fortuned, that the Gouernor Grifler passed on horsebacke by this house, and demanded to whom it appertained Stouffacher knowing himselfe to bee in theill opinion of the Gouernor, because he had alwayes before councelled the people, not to subject themselves to them of Au-Stria: This house (quoth he) is for the King and you, by whose liberality, I am possessiour of it. Then the Gouernor anfwered; I am Lord of this Country, and henceforward I will not fuffer any more, that yee shall fway your selves after your owne appetites, in building houses, as if you were Masters, and that you shall well feele before it be long. This answer delivered with outragious menaces, greatly displeased Stouffa cher, who (from that time forward) could cause that his wife, being a wise, modest, and discreete Lady, perceiving her husband fad and penfiue, and understanding the reason thereof; exhorted him to hope well, in regard that God, to whom all violence and tyranny was displeasing, wold final & senneuer forfake fuch as innoked his help & der appeafurtherance. Moreouer it would well be- rance, grov come him to make fearch after men of feets; effect courage, fuch as were oppressed with the ally against fame tyranny : to conferre with them, and syranny. ioyne their meanes together, to recouer the liberty of their Country: for thee durst affure him, that God would blesse fo holy an enterprize. Stouffacher, hauing a long time consulted with himselfe, at length went from Suits, to Vri. where he eafily knew and perceived, that Griller was hated of all men in those quarters, by reason of his insupportable pride, euen as much as he was in Suits: especially by the Baron of Attingbuse, then cheefest in inflice at Vri, & a familiar friend to Stouffacher. This Baron first began to complaine, as extremely wearied with the infolencies of Grifler, in erecting his Hat, as comfort one to ranke it with Princes; protesting open-another by ly that he could not permit his Country, any longer to endure fo great a tyranny.

But Stouffacher fearing (perhaps) that the Baron vied this kinde of language, only but to found him, and (as we vie to fay) to vndermine his fecretst cogitations: kept his owne intention couert, contenting himfelfe, to breake his minde vnto an ancient faithfull friend of his, called Gantier Furst, that is to fay the Prince. These two having many and fundry times confi- The three first dered on all matters, and taken into their mendat wer councell (as a third party) Arnould Melch-dation & be-dation & betall of underuald; bound themselves to- ginners of the gether by mutuall oath, to ioyne all their Switzers, and meanes, and imploy their paines by a co-their manner mon confent, for the extirpation of tyran- of proceeding ny, and reducing their country to her ancient liberty. Moreover they concluded, that each of them in his owne quarter, should procure so many men as possibly he could, prouided, that they were people of good and discreet carriage: who shold all sweare to imploy both their goods & bodies, and to maintaine one another in his right, for recourry of the Countries former freedome; and that in the meane while, each man should acquit himselfe nasteries as also to al Gentlemen & Ycomen. Promising likewise, to keepe this league & combination fecret, vntill fuch time as (by common advice) all the confederates (hould bee resolued to publish ferre on thefe it. They made choise also of a private ferious affairs, place, necre to the Lake of Fri, called Grutly, where these three chiefe heads of the League vied to meete, accompanied each one with three or foure, to aduise together what was to be done.

Stouffacher. Furft, and Melchtall the three men of the league.

Oppression

is a fey to open the vn-derstanding

of most and

leaft.

home, to make conjunction with his copanions. Soone after this not onely the vulgar people, but likewise the most part of the Nobility in the Villages, rancked themselues with the confederates: For the Gouernours did molest the Noblemen, no leffe then they did the common fort, not making any difference betweene the one and other, but called the Gentlemen, peazants, and companions of rascality. In like manner, they of Austria had appropriated (by little & little) to themfelues, the rights belonging to Noblemen : whereat many being offended, had forfaken (as it were) the part of Austria, as we have formerly observed by the Baron of Attinghufe.

Aduice taken for beginning the butineffe publikely.

ferences, each fide ought to be indicially heard.

of his duty towards the Empire, the Mo-

Thus you may perceive, how the ground-worke of the League of Switzers was then begunne, by Stouffacher, Furst, and Melchtall: and being so agreed vppon, each man returned by himfelfe

The number of the confederates becing encreased, it seemed good ito many, that it was time to fet hand to the worke, namely, to chale thence the Gouernors, & replant the ancient liberty of the country: for feare (lefte by ouer-long delay, their enterptize would be discouered (by fome meanes) to the Gouernors. And therefore, in the yeare 1207, the 17. day of October, twelve of the principall men among all the confederates, affembled themselves at a certaine place appointed. All infifted to lay hand to the bufineffe fo foone as possible might be; against which, they of Vnderuald onely opposed them-selues: because that the Castles or Fortreffes, which the Gouernor held in their Inferious con territory, to wit, Sarne and Rotzberg, were places well munited, and almost impregnable, and if fiedge should bee planted before them, the King of the Romaines would come forthwith, bringing an Army fufficient to fuccour them. The other confederates veelded to this motion, and agreed together, that the first day of la-nuary then next following, through al the Cantons, seizure should be made, on all the strongest Castles belonging vnto the Gouernor. To whom notwithstanding, not any outrage should be offered, ney-ther to any of their family or Garrisons: toexpellibe except only to fuch as would make head, Gouernor from the new and withftand them in Armies; butto of their tyran fend the Gouernors fafely and well away, ny. with their goods. Moreouer, that the Castles and strongest holds or Cittadels, should be rafed from the top to the bottome: to declare by manifeit effect, that they had not vndertaken Armes for blowes or pillage, but onely to conferue their Countries liberty. This resolution agreed on, each man retired home to his house, awaiting for the day appointed: in the meane space, according to faithfull promife, they kept their determination very fecret.

While these affaires were thus in for-While their attaires were thus in for-warding, there happened a notable acci-dent at Vri. One Guillaume Tell, a man in laum Tell, on the confederacy, divers times passed by much invited before the Hat exalted on the Pole, as Gouernor. formerly hath beene related, without performing any reuerence thereto. And being therefore accused to the Gouernor Griffer: he entreated, that his incivility might bee excused, because hee reputed fuch reuerence to bee a matter of ino importance. But the Gouernor, who held him a man much to be suspected, among Guillaumes children, made choise of a young little boy, whom the Father loued very dearly. And hee commanded Guillaume (being known an excellent archer) to fet his sonne some good distance off,& with an Arrowe, to cleave an Apple vp- innaionto on his head, which if he did not, his owne Father by th head should be smitten off. Guillaume Tel sprenting answered, that his commaund was too be aduente strange and senere, and he had rather die, red. then thorough default of shooting right, to kill his deerest sonne. If thou doest not performe it, faide the Gouernour, it shall cost both thy life, and thy sonnes.

Prayers and entreaties not prevailing, Tell tooke his Bowe; and, by the prouidence of God (who questionlesse guided and directed the Arrow) cleft the Apple in twaine voon his fonnes head. Enerie SWITZ ZVG. VNDERS.OF.THE.LIB STOVFFACHER SOLLEVRE. LVCERNE. SCAFFOVSE. BERNE. ZVRICH. GRISONS. VALAIS.

An hardin-

Tyrants are neuer in fafefelues,but alwalce fulpiti-

The admirable prouided of God, to bring fuch a

to his end.

206

but the Governor, not contented with fo perillous a fatisfaction, perceining another Arrow remaining under Guillaumes girdle, demanded of him, what vie hee meant to make of that other Arrow? Guillaume replied, that it was a custom among Archers, to draw more arrowes then one out of their Quiners, for any occasio that might happen. But the Gouernor suspe-Aing fornething elfc, preffed him more & more;& finally, promised him to faue his life, if he would confesse the truth: which accordingly Tell did, and that he had that other Arrow ready, therewith to kill the Gouernor if his first shaft had slaine his Son. Then the Governor declared, that he wold not take away his life, because he had promifed the contrary: but he should be kept in perpetuall priton, and live miferably in darkneffe, without converfing with any man living. Thus fpeaking, he caused him to be fast bound with cordes, & led into a Barque, that having past the Lake of Vri, he might be conuaied to the Cattle of Cufnach. The Gouernor, with his people & prisoner, being in the midst of the Lake a greenous tempest suddenly exalted it felfe, which did put the Barque in cuident perill. They perceiving themselues in extreame danger of their liues: one of Griflers fernants faid to his mafter, that there was but one only means wherby to faue them, and that was, to vnbinde Guillaume Tel. and refer the Barques conduct to him, because he was a most expert Marriner, strong and able to direct them in fuch a necessity. So extreme vrgent was the case, that every man allowed the councell, & vnbound Tell; who fastening hold on the Rudder, and guiding it manfully, preserved the Barque among the roughest billowes, turning her prow towards the country of Suits.

one of the beholders did not a little reiovce, at fuch a faire and admirable shoot:

Having attained neere enough vnto the shore, there appeared a mighty stone (like vnto a Rock) about the water, which to this day is called Telles Stone. Being hard by it, Tell caught hold thereon with his Bow, which lay at his feete in the Potpe, and leaping foorth quickly vpon that Hone he gaue to firong a thrust with his foote against the Barques side, that it returned back among the stearn billows. This done he tooke his flight thence, and hid himfelfe among the neighbouring Mountaines. The Barque having long floated in this manner, was guided at length by the Gouernours feruants, to a Port named Brune des Fontaines. From thence the Gouernour fet on his way towards Culnach, and must needs passe thorough a hollow craggy straite, where Tel! The correct (well acquainted with all those parts) by great good hap had ambushed himselfe mentwinds among thick bushes : there he discharged iniquity of an Arrow at the Gouernor, which paffed quite through his body, & flew him. Ther remaineth yet (to our time) a Chappell, built on the place where the Gouernour Two chappets was flaine: and another vpon the Stone erecteding. or Rocke, where Tell threw himselfe out as hungme. of the Barque . After this successefull morials of the shoote, Tell went to Suits, where he made tyrants out all these matters knowne to Stouffacher. good fortune From thence hee tooke his way ouer the highest Mountains, and turning by Morfach, came back to Vri, wher having foud Gautier Furst, he acquainted him with all that had hapned. By this time, they had gotten hearts and hands enow, to expell all the Gouernors family and followers: but having respect to them of Vnderuald, and remembring their former resolution for the first day of lanuary following, they kept thefelues quiet. & Tell (in the meane time) liued closely among his friends.

The first day of Ianuary being come, they of Vnderuald made themselves Ma- The retraite sters of two Fortresses, according to a compromise passed between them. In and women the Fort of Rotzberg there dwelt a chainbermaid, who was in loue with a goodly young man of Vnderuald, and committed folly with him. An especiall night of meeting being appointed by them both, the young man brought twenty other armed Souldiers with him, and caused them to lye closely hidden neere the Castle. He having given the fignall to his wench, who knew nothing at all of the intended deceit, was mounted up aloft to her by the helpe of a corde. Having staide sometime of dalliance with her, making her to beleeve one thing for another; he left the chamber a while, going to the window whereat he had bin drawne vp. & letting downe the cord, drew vp one of his companions, and then teturned to his lasse againe. He that had thus gotten vp, neuer left till he had drawne vp all his other fel-

When the the best wifecannot pre-

Chap.2.

Ry base and

meanes, the

oppressors MAS VETET IV

of the tyrant

lowes, (who were vnmatchable for frength and courage) and fo got poffeffion of the place: where they kept all the contemptible gates strongly defended, and close thut vp. in expectation of good newes from ower of the their other conforts, who were to feize

the other Fortresse called sarne. brought to That other company confifted of fifty valiant men, thirty of them hauing ambuthed themselves in a neere neighboring wood: the rest went directly towards the Castle, leaning upon staues and croutches, and carrying presents to the Gouernor, (according to custome of the day) as Lambs, Pigs, Calues, Cheeses, and such like things. The Gouernor was going to church, answerable to his ordinary wont at fuch a time, and met them on the way, where perceiting them to haue no other Armes then staues and croutches, which ferued (as it feemed) to support their feeble bodies: hee made no doubt of any thing, but paffed on, not a little pleafed When the judgement of with those presents, and brought him in heaten intended more liberall and plentifull manner, then they were formerly wont to do. Their dome in men staues and croutches were made round, and pierced so hollow within: that they could eafily fcrew in long tharpe pikes of iron, which each of them carried close hid in his bosome. They came to the Castle, where beeing permitted entrance with their New-yeares gifts: they possessed thefelues of the Gates, giving an appointed fignall to their fellow-fouldiers lying in the wood, who came immediately to fuccour them, and tooke them all prifoners that were in the Castle. Afterward. hearing that Rotzberg was furprized by Secretic pro-led alkie in their other affociates, they releafed all their priforiers, and the Gouernor affo, whom they had laid fure hold on, as hee was about to escape. When the Gouernor and his followers had folemnly promifed vpon oath, neuer more to returne againe into those quarters; they gaue the leaue to depart, & fent them by fafe conduct out of the Country, and then ruined those two strong Forts or Castles flat to the ground. The very fame day alfo, they of Vri demolished the new Cittadell, which Grifler had named, The yoake of the The neft and Vrians, being not as yet fully finished; and yoake of Tyfarny vicerly in Suits, Stouffacher (with his followers) defaced and ruined. won and ruined the Cittadell of Louerts, builded nere vnto the Lake. On the morrow, the three villages (by their Deputies) made a publike league of amity and alliance to continue for ten years, voon the conditions before mentioned, cofirming The onely them al by folemne oath. Behold the end tiffe them. of their tyrannicall government, whom felues against Albert had established ouer the Cantons tyranny.

When Albert had received tydings of this fudden change: he was wonderfully enraged, and refolued to make war vpon.

the cantons, as thinking by strong hand to bring them in subjection. He sent first of all to his fubicats of Zug Lucerne & other neighbours of Suits, Vri, and Vnderuald, to fuffer no victuals to be convayed to them. But in a short while after, he was flaine by his owne Nephew, the Son of enemy to the his Brother, and by his complices, in paf- Switzers, fing over the River of Ruff: fo that this flaine by his war by him intended, remained now to be own nephew freshly attempted. His sonnes, being sufficiently hindred from reuenging his deth, left the Switzers in peace: fearing lefte they should joyne with the Gentlemen. who had flaine their Father. About this timesthey of Austria ruined many strong places in Heluctia, as in the Territory of Zurich, Warte, Multperg, Schnabelberg, Spoile and Maschwande the Towne and Castle, and waste made Farwange in the neighbouring quarter. by the Austrians in SwirSome most noble families also were by zerland, on them fubuerted and extermined, to wit, Noble & Ge that of Eschinbach, Wartz, Palme, & many other. For at the taking of the Castle of Forwange, in one day, 63. Gentlemen, with their feruants, had their heads finitten off: And in other parts of Switzerland, they of Austria canfed to be flaine, or banished out of the country, about a Tooo.perfons, the most part wherof were Henry of Luzelbourg ,7. Emperor of that Henry the z. name, succeeded after Albert. He confir-med the priviledges & ancient liberty of the 3.cautons the 3, cantons, & citablified a Propost or wherin may Aduocate of the Empire, to be Judge in law cases in the Towne of Zurich, the of god to shine round neighbouring places, and in the three Cantons, in name of the Emperor. This Prouost was named Raoul of Hab- to long op-(pourg, Lord of Lauffenberg, Sonne to pression.

Noble. There are some ill-willers, that do ble families: when al this while, those horrid actions (for the most part) were committed by them of the house of Austria.

Guillaume Telles Stone or rock, which was (next to God) the meanes of his delinerance.

falfely accuse the Switzers, to hau. defo- False imputalated many places, & expelled many No-the Switzers, rour Alberts

murderers of their Father.

A difference

cerne & the men of Vn.

deruald.

betweene

208

to the Emperor Raoul of Habibourg. But the Emperor Henry being gon into Italy, (in which iourney an hundred Souldiers of Zurich, and as many of the other Cantons, were at his pay) the Prouost was fallely accused (as some say) before the Emperor by the means of Duke Leopold, who hated him, and faid that he had abufed his authority. So that he was deposed, and Edward de Burgle, dwelling at Turge, substituted in his place. Afterward, Raoul being brought to answer his cause at the Court of France, dyed at Montpellier. His scruants brought backe his body, and caused it to bee buried in the Abbey of Wettinghen.

The Sonnes of Albert having flaine all The reuenge them that were present at the murder of their Father, and expelled all their other Somes on the complices; became rich and powerfull, for they had feized on the goods of al the that had hand in the death of Albert. The three cantons were highly in their malice and difgrace, yet they durft not begin war ypon them (caring (perhaps) the Emperor, who had taken the Switzers into his protection: but nevertheleffe, they molested the Cantons by divers in-roades, for they could eafily offend them of Vnderuald, by Boates descending on the lake of Lucerne; yet the Cantons kept themfelues carefully within compaffe of their guards, & mutually affifted one another.

In the yeare one thousand three hundred and ten, a Ship well munited & furnithed with men, fet foorth from Lucern, them of Luto make affault on the of Vnderuald, who in the defence of them of Vri, that were come (by great chance) with a Shippe of warre to assist them; did both bondge & finke the Veffell of Lucerne, very neere to the Port, killing a great number of the Soldiers, and taking the rest prisoners. This loffe thus received, they of Lucerne Lucerne glad (and their neighbours) tooke truce with to take truce the Cantons. In the same yeare, they of with the Can-Suits, being defirous to pacific all matters among them: bought of Ewrard. Count of Hab/pourg, Arte and Cufnach, Villages of their Cantons, and fubiects to the house of Habspourg, encreasing & enlarging the limitation of their bounds very much that way. But on the other fide they had warre against the Monkes of the Hermitage, & for the space of about four

Godfrey, who was Nephew to Raoul, vnkle | hundred years; each being at push of the Pike against the other, and for those reafons which I will breefely relate.

> The Emperor Otho, surnamed the great, about the yeare 950. hadde established certaine bounds to them of Suits, and to of fo many the Monkes of the Hermitage. In these limitations fome Mountaines (fertile for menof Suis pasturage) were left to the Monks, which & the Monks till that time had bene possessed by them of Suits. It came to passe, that they wold not keepe themselves to the Emperours appointment; but held their ancient limits. The Abbots of the Hermitage, who were not able enough to debout the out of their possession; gaue not ouer to obtaine of the Emperors fuccessors, confirmation of the ordinance fet downe by Othe. About the yeare one thousand, forty foure, the Abbot Geron accused them of Suits to Henry the third, Emperor. Raoul and Arnoul, Earles of Lentzbourg, & Gouernors of Zug, being joyned with them of Suits, made their complaint likewife, that their limits were much abridged. But the Emperour Henry re-confirmed the The grantof grant of Othe,& condemned the Counts Othothe of Lentzhourg to a certaine fine of mony; Great, reconfirmed by the all which notwithstanding, they of Suks Emperor Har kept themselves in their ancient possession y, the thirds still in despight of all y the Abbot could do. Once more then about the yeare of our Lord, 1144. the Abbot Faoul accused them before Conrad the second, Emperor, who confirmed also the sentence of Otho. Neuertheleffe, they of Suits maintained themselves (perforce) in possession still, and the Abbot (on the contrary fide) defending the limits given him by the Emperor, and making vie of them accordingly; raifed warre vpon them, inuading continually one another, and taking prisoners on eyther side. These enmitties endured a long time, and at last, Raoul, The Count of Count of Rafperwill, brought them to an Rafperwilber agreement, in the yeare 1217. This ac- came a good cord was imbraced & kept for about the betweene space of fifty yeares, at the end of which long discontime, there came an Abbot, named Anfelme, under whom nouell differences began : because that both sides expounded the tract of pacification, in a contrary fence and meaning.

The war being againe renewed continued foure and forty yeares: but soone after, they of Zurich laboured to ratifie

Chap.2.

Peace broken off againe by villanous be-baujour in the

Monks of the

Her pitage to holy Pilgrims

The Abby en-

night time by them of Suits

o reuenge

heir wrong

ty hardly to

Election of

Lewes of Ba-

uaria.four.h

Emperor, and difference

alling amon the Princes

The ground

featenth. While they were treating on this peace, some men of Suits, being gon in pilgrimage to this Abbey of the Hermitage: were villianously and publikely outraged by certaine Monks, which wholy brake off the negotiation. Moreover, the Princes of Austria, who had appropriated to themselves the protection of the Abbey: incenfed the Abbot and Monks against them of Suits, promising them continuall fuccour. The warre hauing lasted long, wherein they of Suits were greatly endamaged: at length, in the yeare, 1313, the 23, day of February, they went foorth fecretly into the fields in the night time, & having deceived the guardes; entred by strong hand into the Abbey, taking and leading thence the Monkes that had done the outrage, together with the Curate of the place, named John, and the Master of the Schoole, na. med Rapul. There were then Monkes of noble birth in the Abbey, namely, Raoul, and Henry of Wnenberg, John Regensperg, and Burckhard Fleminger. This was the cause that the Counts of Habspourg and of Togge, and the Baron of Regenspere, who were their neere allies and kinimen. as also John of Schwanden, Abbot of the Hermitage, greatly imployed their pains with them of Suits, for these Monkes. When the Monks had follemnly promifed ypon oath, neuer more to deale with them of Suits in any fuch enterprize, nor to attempt any matter of reuenge vppon them: they were released, having first payed nine hundred pounds Tournois. But this enlargement came to farre thort of appealing them: that it wrought a quite contrary effect in them, continually fixing their thraldome before their eyes; fo that thence forward, they fought all meanes whereby to injure them of Suits. Heereupon happened a new occasion of troubles. After the death of the Emperor Henry, in the yeare 1314 the States of that name, the Empire beeing affembled to create a new Emperor; the Electors found themfelues to be divided in opinion. Foure of them elected Lewes of Bauaria, fourth of that name: but the other three gaue their voices to Frederick of Austria, the Sonne to Albert. He to make his part equall in voices to Lewes his number, named Henry, Duke of Carinthia, as King of Bohemia, a firme peace, in the time of Henry the maintaining that this kingdome belonged to him, by right of the Country, Frederick counted this Duke among them that thould give their vovces:albeit that John. fonne to Henry the 7. was king of Bohemia, having married the daughter to the late deceated king. This difmembring of the Empire, caused those greenous trou- The cause of bles in Germany and tieluetia. The three the dismall Cantons, enemies to the house of Au- Germany and Stria, 10yning themselves with Lewes of Switzerland. Bauaria: all their neighbors being before in their protection of Austria, or else at the time of these elections, approoued that of Frederick. Now in regard that the three Cantons onely, made head against Frederick; he prevailed so far, that (by his accufation) the Bishoppe of Confrance excommunicated them, & they wer The three banished by the Court Imperiall, which communicawas at Rotuille. They were charged, that ted and bani they had viole reed the abbey of the Her- they would mitage, & (in that tumult) had cast downe not yeeld the and spoiled the holy facrifice: which they felues to terof Suits firmely and floutly denied, promifing contrarivite, feuerely to punish the offenders in such a delict, provided, y they might be discourred to them. And although they could not produce any one; yet notwithstanding, they remained banished & excommunicated. In regard whereof they humbly entreated the Emperor Lewes to undertake the knowledge of this cause: which he did and procured afterward, that they were reintegrated into the communion of the Church.

In this time, the Gentlemen that were forth of the lands of the 3. Cantons, with warre preparties Gouernors; folicited Leopold of Autred by Prince ftria, Son to Albert, to make war vpon the Auttria a-Cantons. The Abbot of the Hermitage, gainst the 3. and the Count of Monfort rouled on this the cause wheele with their best helpe. The occasi- thereof. fion was very honest, as it feemed, to wit; that the Prince purposed to revenge the outrage done to the Chappell of the Virgin Mary. The yong Prince, being young, powerfull, and a true heire to his Fathers hatreds: fuffered himfelf to be thus councelled, and intended profecution of this wat. His forces were about him by whole meanes he had spoiled the places and cafiles of his fathers murderers : & Soldiers were people aptly disposed forwar, and made rich by the booties they had taken in those castles. Moreover, he levied a mighty Army,

War by then gainft the Monkes of the HermiThe divition conducted

The volunta

ry offer of the

Cantons to the Prince,requiring peace

and no way defirous of

The affembl

Cantons, and their numbe

The great

mercy and providence

ring lafety fo

oppressed

people.

210

of the Forces Alfatia, dividing all these powers into telonging to two parts. One of them, which (as is cre-Prince Leo-pold, and who dibly affirmed) confifted of about twenty thousand men; was conducted by himselfe against them of Suits. He gaue the rest to the Count of Strasberg, Gouernor of the vale of Hafell, that they might afcend the Mountaine of Brunig, and affaile that fide belonging to them of Vnderuald.

The Cantons hearing newes of this preparation, mustered vp their forces, & because nothing might remaine as forgotten: they fent to craue peace of the Prince, by the Count of Togge, promifing to accept the Prince as their Judge, & to make answer in his presence, to the Abbot of the Hermitage, and to the expelled Nobility. But the Prince would allow no audience to the Count, and refused all negotiation of peace. The whole hope and expectation of quietnes being thus cut off; a Fast was published & comanded throughout the Cantons, and prayers devoutly made to God. All fuch as could carry Armes, were fent to the Garrisons in all those parts, where any entrance might be made into g countries.

But because the Prince was at Zue. with the greater part of his power: the allies affembled thefelues at Suits, which is the very neerest Canton to Zug, and there were mustred foure hundred Souldiers of Vri three hundred of Vnderuald. and fixe hundred of Suits. These made vp 1 300 men in all, and thus they refolued to attend the enemy, valiantly exposing their lines for confernation of their countries liberties, wiues, and children: declaring themselues (in this case) no lesse worthy of commendation, then the Lacedemonians, who fighting for the freedome of Greece, dyed all with their weapons in their hands, at the passage of the Thermopyle. It is faid that the Lord of Huneberg, a worthy Gentleman, dwelling in the territory of Zug, and being then in the Army of Prince Leopold, taking compassion on the death of so many innocents, at whose throtes flycing kniues lay ouerready (for it was concluded by the Nobility, to put the three Cantons to fire & fword) did fecretly aduertife the confederates, by a Letter which he shot vnto the fastened at an Arrow, that the day of S.

Army, collected from Suiffe, Suaba, and Omer (which was the 16.of November) they should be assayled at a place called Morgarten, and therfore it flood them on to looke to their bufinefle. The allies hearing this, fortified strongly that place;appointing men to all the wayes whereby the enemy should passe, and encamped themselves aloft on the Mountaine.

> Fifty men had then ranked themselues together, which had bene banished from War ought Suits, and they humbly defired, that their not tobar or banishment might be reuoked, offering fice, in care to imploy their paines couragiously, for of important the fafety of their Country. But a fad an- necessity. fwer was returned them to wit that many among them were guilty of very greeuous crimes: therefore they would not accept such people for companions, as fearing lefte those faulty persons, might be the occasion of harme to the whole Army. These poore banished men (for al this) would not give ouer their good affection, which they had intirely addicted to their Countries fuccour : but got poffession of a little high Hill on the Frontiers, which hung ouer the way, whereby (of necessity) the enemy must passe.

> The fixteenth day of November being The battell of come in the yeare, 1315. Lespold caufed Morgarten, his troopes to iffue foorth of Zug, about wherea the the breake of day; the infantery marching formoft, with all the Nobility and fifty menohorsemen: for the Gentlemen had refolued to chastife the poore Country people with their owne hands, whom they tearmed the Seditious. As they were entred on the confines of zuits, having the Lake of Egeria on the one fide, the high Mountaines on the other, and their Army betweene both. The banished men began to roule downe from the Mountaines top, great huge stones, and mighty Logs of Timber, vpon the Princes Army. Afterward, without the least intermission, hauing laid together great heaps of incredible big sharpe-pointed Flints: then showred them downe (as it were) youn the horfemen, euen like to a violent the best way tempest of haile.

This accident neuer expected, did put the Army into very great trouble; for men were not able to gouerne their horfes, frighted with the continual falling of Tharpe stones from aloft, and very greeuous wounds they received by the. This being noted by them of Suits, who were

Diligence and haft is most expedient & availeable when vrgene

The ouer-

Count of throw of the

Strasberg at ranged vpon a very high place: they marched on to meete the enemy in the face : and (from a farre off) threw huge stones, and thor sharpe pointed arrows at them. Afterward, they came to handy grapling, and charges with Halberds fo furiouflie, that both horse and foote were put to flight; among whom, the Abbot of the Hermitage, and the Count of Mountfort were the formost, as is credibly reported. Ouer and beside the footmen, 1500, horsmen were flaine in this battell, beside many drowned in the Lake, & a great number /by reason of the narrowe passage. which hindred the fauing of themselues) were murdred by their own fellowes, and trodden to death with horfes. Two and fifty Citizens of Zurich, being all habited alike in garments of one colour, and well knowne by the Cantons, to be the most valiant men in all the enemies army, being fent by the Senate to fuccour the

Duke of Austria, were flaine in the field.

The felfefame day as the battaile vvas fought at Morgarten, the Count of Strafberg (hauing chased the Garrison of Brumig from the Mountain:) entred into the Indernald,& Country with three thousand men, and n what maner it was perforbegan to forrage enery where. He incamped at Alpenach, which is a Village in the Canton of Vnderuald, threatning the next morning to inuade the other part of the country beyond the Forrest, if they on the hither fide did not willingly yeeld themfelues. But in the meane while, they of Vnderuald beyond the Forrest, assembled them of the Mountaines round about. & called to their assistance them on the hither fide the Forrest, whom the enemie had not found asiyet, and by the fame meanes gaue knowledge to theyr partakers which were at Suits. The Messenger arrived at Brunen the morrow after the battaile, but others fay, that it was the very fame day. These newes beeing thus come, they of Vnderuald put themselues vpon the Lake, and made fuch diligence in getting to their houses, as in two hours space (by painfull labour and speed of the Ferry men) they croffed ouer the Lake, which indeede was very broad. An hundred men of Suits did accompanie them, with whome they arrived at the Port of Buchs, which is a village appertaining to them; then going on from thence to Eurgenstad, ioyned their people with the others troops.

Soone after, they came to affaile the enemy, who was come thither by the Lake of Lucerne, and ranged on through the country:but they compelled them to flight, and made them glad freedily to recouer their Boats. Having thus chafed them thence, they went towards Alpenach, to feeke the Count of Strasberg 1 & although it was lare, they concluded (ne- deale with the uertheleffe) to affault the enemy, because Strasberg and his powers were dispersed amongst the his forces. Villages, where they pilled and rauaged. Moreouer, night could be no hinderance to them, that were well acquainted with all the straites and passages of the Countrey : which was an excellent refolution . and wonderfull contrary to the enemie. For very hardly could the Count of Straf berg endure their first shocke or encounter, because the dispersion of his soldiers amazed him: and when hee faw two Enfignes belonging to them of Vnderuald, like a good and difereet warrior, hee perfwaded himfelf, that they of Austria were ouerthrowne at Morgarten.

Heereupon, he speedily retired (thorow the Mountaines) home to his owne flight of the house, and the rest fled amaine and confufedly: but yet not all for three hundred all his follow. of them were left flaine in the fielde, and en. the whole booty taken from the enemies hand. They of Suits and Vri, having prouided for their affaires, came to fuccour their confederates of Vnderuald, and in the night arrived at Buchs, where they did heare tidings of the victory. Wherefore having first giren thankes to God, & gratified their friends with so fortunate a fuccesse, they returned home vnto theyr owne houses.

This victoric, fetled and affured the foundation of the Switzers confederacie A League of or alliance, and from thence forward . perpetual Althey of Suits, vri, and Vnderuald, changed tweene the s. their league of ten yeares, into a perpetu- Cantons. all alliance, and so passed it by authenticall Letters. The Switzers tooke theyr name of Bydanoffen (which fignifieth) partakers in fwearing or conjoyned together by one and the (ame oath) by this alliance. At this time, among ftrangers, they are called Lords of Leagues, and Switzers, by reason of the Village or Canton of Suits. It may be, because they fought in that quarter, for the maintenance of their libertie: or in regard of their long ranged

Eydgnoffen

warre with the Monks of the Hermitage, | the aduice and liking of the other. Each one and they were the first (among the three Cantons) affailed by them of Austria. and being the most potent of the three, the other Cantons were comprized vnder their name, which (confequently)extendeth it selfe to the other Cantons and confederates. I have hereto annexed the tenure of the alliance, to the end, that euerie one may fee, therein is nothing, either infolent or vniust, as some (to their great shame have fallely accused vs.

The Tenure of League and Alliance, confirmed betweene the three Cantons.

ought to be) are too foone and very eafily lost or forgotten : It is therefore profitable and necessary, that such things as are established for peace, tranquility, profite, and honour of men Shold be couched and published by writings, and authenticall instruments So then We of Vri, Suites, & Vndcruald, give all men to knowe, who shall either fee or heare these present Letters, that foreseeing & prouiding for difficult and queazie times, and for our more commodious enjoying peace and rest, which are the best meanes, whereby to conferue our bodies and goodes : Wee have promised and sworne each to other, in good Faith, and by Christian Oath, that Wee will mutually confult, councell, and ayd one ano. ther, to warrant our lines, and defend our goods at our owne expences, at all times, against all and everie one, that would or shall offer outrage either to our bodies or goods, to Vs or Ours in any manner what soever.

Notwithstanding, if wrong be done to amy one of vs, either in his body or goodes, We are all bound to succour him to our power: to the end, that (by friendshippe or instice) the wrong may be amended or repaired. Moreouer, We binde our sclues by the same Oath, that none of the three Cantons, Ball receyue any man as Lord and Commander, without of us, as well males as females, Shall Stand bound to obey their naturall Lords and Maisters, and line under their lawfull power, in all feruices iust and legitimate: except the (aid Lords offer wielence (in any manner what (oeuer) to any of the Cantons, for unto fuch Masters they hall do no service, untill fuch time as they be concorded with the Cantons. We have covenanted also that not any of the Cantons or Confederates, Shal minister an Oath, or binde him (elfe to any stranger, without the adusce of the other Cantons and franger, or Confederates. Not any person of the Confe- on with him. derates ball communicate with a straunger (without aduice and permission of other Confederates) so long as the Cantons (halbe with out a Lord. And if any one of our Cantons, violate and infrindge any thing or point of that which is contained in these Presents: he shall be esteemed as a disloyall and periured person, and his body and goodes consistate to the Cantons.

MOREOVER, WE have agreed A worthy ex and condificended not to accept or entertaine ample for all any Indge or Magistrate, that shall buy his office with money or any bribe elfe, although itate. he be of our owne Countrey. If difference or warre happen to be moved among the Confederates: then [web as are knowne to bee of most honesty and wisedome, shall meet together, to pacifie & confound the war or difference either by louing composition or censure of right. If the one fide do reiest this proposition, the Confederates shall assist the other fide, to the end, That the debate may bee ended either by amity or indiciall (entence and at the charges of them that would not stand to the award.

If any fuite or warre shall arise betweene Of strife betwo of the Cantons, and any one of them will not yeeld to a friendly composition, or accor- what the third dino to right : the third Canton Shall maine- is to do to aptaine the cause of that side, that submitted most to reason, and powerfully afift it, either also if one to end the contention by a louing composition or by indiciall fentence. If any one of the Confederates shall kill one of his owne fellowes, he must dye also: except hee can make it appeare and the Judges likewife anoughit by their fentence that he did it upon wrgent necesity and in defence of his owne bodie. If he flue for the fact, who locuer of our Countries Shall receive him into his house there to lodge or maintaine him : he is to be banished perpetually, except by common confent of the Con-

Chap.2.

goods in the

For fuch as refuse the fen

tence giuen by the Judge.

antons.

federates he can win grace. For fuch as thall fire ey-ther houses or

If any of the Confederates, either privily, manifeltly or impudently, Bull fire any house or goods of some other of the Confederates: he shall bee expulsed (for ever) out of our Countries; and whofoever lodgeth or maintaineth him, shall stand bound to fatisfie the others losses. No person shall exact a pawne or gage, except it be of his debter, or one vnable to answer him otherwise : and it is not to be done neither, without confent of the Iudge. That every man shall be obedient unto his Indee, and make publike declaration, which Judge (of our Countries) hee will accept, to undergoe judgement before him. Whofoever refufeth to obey the fentence giuen shall pay the interests to him of the Confederates for whose profit by benefit the fentence was delinered.

And to the end, that thefe conditions abone written, may remaine firme, inviolable and perpetualt: WE (ubnamed Citizens dr Allies of Vri, Suites, and Vndervald, have put our Seales to thefe prefents, at Brunen, in the yeare of our Sautour Icfus Christ, 1315. being the morrow after the day of S. Nicholas.

The liberties and alliances of the Switzers,confirmed by the Emp.Lewes, entrance into his rule ouer the Can-

These Cantons having conquered their encinies, and confirmed their Alli= ance, fent men to the Emperor Lewes, to aductite him of all. He at the beginning of the yeare, held a day imperial at Wurenberg, where the Princes of Austria were condemned of high treason, the goods which they had in Suiffe, confiscated to the Emperor and Empire, and the liberty of the Cantons fully confirmed. The Letters containing this ordination, were given in the campe at Merride, the 23. day of March, in the yeare 1316. & the fecond yeere of the Emperor Lewes. The fame Emperor, about the yeare 1323. established as Gouernour in these three Cantons, John, Count of Arberg, vnto whom (as Lieutenant of the Emperour Lewes) the Cantons gaue their Oath.

The Gouernor promifed them also by Letters Patents, that hee would not di-The power & authoritie of minish or prejudice (in any maner whatlimited, at his focuer) their liberties and alliances, nor fuffer them to be alienated from the Empire, neither to be reduced under the power of them of Austria, or of the Noblemen excluded from the Countries of the Cantons. Beside, that no man amongst them (hould be drawne in justice out of these countries, and that their lucges should not be taken from any place else. but meerly from among themselves. And because the Gouernours should not infringe the liberties of the Cantons, their power was limited by the Emperor, and prohibited (vinder greeuoi s penalties) from diminishing in any manner whatfocuer, the liberties graunted to the Can tons. The Letters Patents which contained thefe articles, were given at Paula, in the yeare 1329, and on the day of S. John Governours Baptift. The Emperors that fucceeded coo en among Lewes, confirmed thefethings, and per- themselves. mitted (moreouer) to the Cantons, to elea Gouernours (for their countries) among themselves but in the Emperors name, and to have highest justice in caufes both civill and criminall.

deale with fo many matters all at a time.

In the meane while (neuertheleffe) some incursions and losses were made in Suiffe on either fide. It came to paffe, that they of Welen and their neighbours, which liued below the government of Glaris, and in diners kinds mollefted them of Suites:

who came and met them with a main army, and compelled them to craue peace.

On the other fide, the Abbot of the Hermitage, had caused the three Cantons to be excommunicated, especially them of Suits : first by the bythop of Constance. & afterward by the Pope. Fredericke of An-

of Mayence, remitted them into the communion of Christians. Also, the Abbot of the Hermitage, wrote to them of Smits

that hee had renounced the Popes Bull,

and would not suffer it to bee served a-

They of Austria having bin fo threwdly It is the Nagauld, as hitherto hath beene declared, ture of trants grew to truce, not because theyr forces themselves were wholly weakned: but in regard that they were impeached in war against the mitthe peo-Emperor Lewes, fo that they coulde not ple not to live

fria, who termed himselfe to bee Empe- The Emperor ror, likewife banished them but the Em- contradiated peror Lewes tooke away the curfe, and by the curfe of his commandement, Peter, Archbythop Pope, gainst them. During this time, that the truce continued on either part, they of Austria drew into league with them, Hermin & Ewrad, Counts of Kybourg, and Lordes of Dun. this happened in the yearc, 1317. By the

A louing League, when a particular iniury extendeth it felre it generall.

A careful and fideration in any Common

hriftian con

The Tower

The cunnin proceeding of them of Austria a gainst the Cantons.

The Emperor

excommunicated and de

priued by the

The Cantons

joyn with the

Citties that held for Lewes the true

ned to the 3.

Cantons,

Emperor.

meanes of these Earles, they procured fuch an hindrance, that the men of Interlach could fend no victuals to Vnderuald. In the yeere one thousand three hundred twenty three, they drew to them John of Habspourg, Lord of Rasperwill, and heyre to the Count of Hombourg . Afterward, they combined themselves with him, against the Cantons, because his Landes neighboured to the Canton of Suites, and lay aprly to cut off all releefe, and rayle warre. The yeare following, Raoul and Herman, Counts of Werdenberg, and Lords of Sargans, made alliance also with Leopold of Austria: but their brother Henry tooke part with the Emperour Lewes, who (at that time) was excommunicated and deprined of the Empire by the Pope. By these meanes, great divisions fell in the empire, fome depending on the Popes decree, others mocking it, and cleauing to Lewes, as their lawfull Emperor.

In these troubles, the Cantons maintained themselves carefully, and in amitie with the partakers of Lewes: whereto also, many Townes of Suffe conformed themselves. For, although (at the beginning) they of Zurich, and some others followed the part of Frederick of Austria: yet notwithflanding, he being prifoner, and having renounced the empire, albeit his brethren continued warre agaynst Lewes, they of Zurich joyned with Lewes: as with him that then was their onely true Emperor. In the yeare 1327, the Cantons made alliance with the Imperiall cities and townes, that stood fast for Lewes, to wit, Mayence Wormes, Spire, Strafbourg, Rafile, Fribourg, Constance, Lindaw and Vberlingen: with this League they of Zurich and Berne combined themselves. But fine hundred yeares after, Lucerna made perpetuall alliance with the three Cantons. In few words, I will tell you the occasion, after I have first declared som-what, concerning the beginning and estate of the faid City, before it becam allied with the Cantons.

CHAP. III.

Of the Originall estate of Lucerna, before it leagued it felfe with the Cantons.

He city of Lucerna is feated A defeription on the river Rulls which if on the river Ruffe, which iffueth forth of a great Lake, whereby wee may paffe to the three Cantons. Alfo, at the foote of an high Mountaine, commonly called Pilates Mount. The scituation is commodious, because this is the way, to trauell by the mountain of Saint Godard in Italy, From Fribourg, the Merchants are transported ouer the Mountaines, and from thence into Italy, with beafts of carriage: and (reciprocally) the Merchants of Italy descend by the Lake and River of Ruffe, to the Rhein, & thence into the Ocean sea.

It is not certainly knowne neyther The time whe at what time, nor by whom the Citie built, is vneer. was builded : but taine. one faith well, that on each fide of the River there is a caftlc(which are houfes nowe inhabited by Citizens) and builded by the Allemains or Germaines. Concerning the opinion of Etterlinus, who wrote fome fmall history of Suiffe or Swetia, referring these matters to the house of Austria, and thinketh that those castles served as a retreate for robbers and theeues: he abuseth his own indgement greatly therein. For, in the time of Raoul of Habspourg (and no soo-they of Austria began to command this began to command in these quarters here, when the Dutchie the Cantons of Austria fell to the house of Habsbourg. And it is no way credible, that a Prince would euer endure; that theeues should make vse of a passage so commodious, for trauelling from Suffe into Italy.

It feemeth, that Lucerna was fo named, How Lucema in regard of a Lanterne, which duly cuery night is there advanced, and bright tobe fonalights clearly thining therein for benefite | med of passengers upon the Lake. And it is very likely, that the high ancient Tower, which (at this day) (tandeth alofte on the bridge (as in like maner there is another at Zurich, called Wellemberg) ferued for that purpose. Our grave ancients & forefathers termed enery fuch kind of Tower Pharos. A Charter granted to Guichard the Prieft, anougheth; that Lucerna deriued her name from Antiquity. For the Annales of Lucerna do declare, that the Lucernians (hauing ferued Charlemaigne in a warre against the Sarazins) obtained the priest, out of him diners priniledges, and especially. the vie of Cornets, wherewith they did both fummon the battailes and retreats. euen as they doe nowe at this present

The colledge of Luceena, founded by Guichard the Pricft.& what Donations were theret annexed.

med.

The priviled

ges of Lucer na while Abbots ruled.

The Charter

of Guichard

of the Annale

of Lucerna.

Chap.3.

Be it howfocuer, anciently, the Cannons of the colledge of Lucerna, helde great authoritie as also in many Townes of Germany. This colledge was founded by Guichard the Priest, brother vnto Ruperte. Leader of the horfemen to king Lewes, who was fonne to King Theodo= rick, who died in the yeare feuen hundered, & founded also the colledge of Canons at Zurich. The colledge of Lucerna fell to the Abbot of Murbach, by the donation of King Pepin. The same Abbot was Lord of Lucerna, vntill the time of the Emperor Albert of Austria: who ha= uing refolued to establish a new kinde of principality in Swetia, as already wee haue told you bought Lucern of the Abbot of Murbach, by giving him foure villages in Alfatia, and a certaine fumme of money, amounting to the valew of two thousand Markes of money, as it is affir-

This City enjoyed (formerly) the enfranchifement of many things, & fundry goodly priviledges beficle, follong as the Abbotswere Lords thereof; and yet they held no fourraigne jurifdiction: for, the cittizens were the greatnes of the citty. builded the wals and rampiers, and fortified it (by their owne diferetion) in those times. The Prince of Austria also promifed for his part, to conferue their priniledges inviolably, and made thew of being a verie gentle Lord, as he was neuer sparing of goodly promises. But soon after, the dominion of the Auftrians proued to gripe and oppresse the Lucernians, who were constrained (to their great disaduantage) to make warre vpon their neighbours. For they were the first that exposed themselves to make incursions on the Cantons and maintained a garrifon in their citties at their great charge. The Tower of Shourg, which Handeth yet of Shourg, to this day cofirmeth what hath bin faid: for there it was, where the Lucernians planted a Corps de quard, against the incurfions which their enemies made vpon the Lake. When they had no open war, nor any affurance of peace, the Austrians did not much care to maintain them. In the meane while, Trafficke cealed the fields were forraged, and many times the Lucernians fell into the hands of their enemies. Moreoner, being gone to warre with them of Glaris, vnder the conduct of Otho, Captaine of Colmar, to encounter Otho, captain with the Emperor Lewes, the wages pro- leader to the mifed them, was made void and truftrate. of Lucerna. They themselves had paid many in other warres, and lent good fummes of money on scedules, to Captaines of the Austrian Princes; but now, in place of payment, they were handled in fuch fort, as they thought both their good feruice and mo-

Being thus tyred and harried fo many

the Cantons, leaving (neverthelesse) the rights of the house of Austria to them intirely. This peace exasperated not onely them of Austria, but also many cittizens, fernants, and pentioners to Gentlemen,

by whom they benefited & inriched thefelues. Both the one & other feared, that the City would ally it felfe with the three

Cantons, and that in fo doing, they wold other. For this effect, in secret they contracted a league; the fubstance whereof was this. That at a certaine, houre of the night, they of the citty thould open the gates, and at the fame inflant, they of Austria, (with fo many horsemen well appointed) should make seazure of the Cittie Afterwardes, having joyned ny vtterly loft.

feuerall waies, they supplicated and desi- Themenof red (oftentimes) them of Austria, to be at the refusal of peace with the Cantons. But perceining their Lord, they transiled all this while in vaine, made peace themselves (in the end) accorded with memies.

Faire promifes coft nothing to op-preffors of the people.

estrange themselves from the Austrians, And therefore they conspired together, The first conto oppresse them that had counceld the iuration apeople to make this peace, and that they of Lucerna. should exhort them to be allied with som

The proie& of the Con-Coiracie.

The care and

prouidence

of the Citti-

of vegent ne-

The league

made be-

zens in a time

City into their owne power: they would punish the friends of the Cantons, break the peace, and plant a Garrison in the city to the end that afterward no fuchmatter might be againe attempted.

But the Cittizens being advertised, of the traines and ambushes prepared for them, vpon the appointed night did put themselues into armes, placed good guards at the gates, & provided to furely for their fafety, that fuch as tooke part with the house of Austria, durst not bee feene any way to stirre. Then the Gouernour of Rotembourg (with many Gentlemen) beeing come to the gates, they of the Citry (to whom he termed himfelfe afriend) gaue him entrance, and fome fmall number with him, fuffered the reft to ftand without. Perceiuing that this cunning tricke tooke no fuch fuccesse as he expected, and not daring to doe any thing by open force, because he was the weaker; he returned the next morning to Rotembourg with his traine, and fome Citizens of Lucerna, partakers with the Aufrians, fearing to be punished by the City, went away with him.

This combination was the cause of haftening the league between the Lucermans and the three Cantons, for perceyuing the injuries and ambushes of the Nobility, and the dangers where-with they threatned them : they thought it fit not to reject the succour of their neighbours, which they accepted, as fent from heauen. So they became vnited together, on the Saturday before Saint Martins day, in the year one thousand, three hundred thirty two.

When the Austrians had intelligence hereof, they appointed Garrisons in diuers places about Lucerna, as namely, at Sempach, Rotenbourg, and Meyenberg : by meanes whereof, they did cut off all victuals from the Lucernians: and if any aduentured farre from the City, they were either flaine, or taken prisoners, so that they were constrained to goe seeke for food with a maine army. The yeare enfuing, and the feuenteenth day of March, the Lucernians going with their troopes towards Buchnass (which is a Castle, now called Hertenstein, vpon the Lake of Zug) the Lord of Ram [wag, Gouernour of Ro-

tenbourg, for the house of Austria, layde their forces together, and reduced the / an ambuscado for them on the way, and flew about some fourescore of them. The rest that were scattered in the fieldes, and looking after pillage, affembled themfelues together, neere to Buchnaff; and charged the enemy fo couragiously, that they enforced them to flight, having first loft an hundred foote, and eighteene

The Gouernor of Austria well perceiuing that ounert power flood not for his aduantage, neither did any way benefite him in his businesse: vndertooke the first traine of ambuscadoes, and private practifes. There were then at Lucerna, many persons that had beene pensioners to the house of Austria. This war was verie troublesome to them, for they had lost their penfions, and befides, enjoyed not the renemewes of their owne inheritances; which (for the most part) lay on the lands of the Austrians. The Governour The fecond conferred with them, and because they conjuration were of the very worthieft houses in the men of Lu-Citty, and the cheefest of them : he adui- cerna. fed them to perswade the Citizens to renounce their alliance with the three Catons, and render themselves again to the house of Austria. He shewed them, that they might bee much more endamaged by one Prince, being a potent enemy, & fo neere a neighbour, then by the three Cantons, who (in the passed Warres) could doe them little, or no harme at

And for a fmuch as it had happened at this very time, that the lower Towne, and the fields about it, were greatly injuried by impetuous and extraordinarie raines: the Gouernor made vie of this accident, when the for to his own aduantage; telling them that is preaching. God punished them by such a means, because they rebelled against their lawfull Prince. But because these conjurations could not preuaile, nor hee moque the people with all his goodly perswasions; he would compaffe his intention by another stratageme, and completted with close consederates, to massacre the Au- gainst the Lu thors and conferuators of this Alliance with the Cantons, taking their faith vnder oath, and Letters figned and sealed. And, because they might be known one to another each of the Conspirators did weare red fleenes, which onely was their noted marke. Whereupon grew the Pro-

A maffacte

The brittel gi. uen at Buch-naff, and what fucceffe enfu na : Beware the band of Red fleenes, and it was held for a matter extremely ignominious, to tell any man, that he was one of the red fleeues band. The number of the confpirators encreafed, and then they affigued the day for the maffacre, which was the last day of Iune, being the Feast day of S. Peter &

S. Paul. Apostles. They were to meete under the great Arch or Gate, neere to the publike house of the Taylors fraternity: for then the watch for night should cease to walke the round in that quarter:

Alfo, the Lieutenant to the Duke of Au-Stria, must have an army ready to bee let into the City by the conformatours, who (purposely) should open the gates. But God (by his gracious prouidence) discouered these bloody consultations, the very fame night as the massacre was to bee executed. For, as the conspirers met in Armes at the place appointed, a yong man, passing accidentally by, without dreaming or thinking on any fuch matter, discouered the businesse, and vnder-stood their deliberation. The night was very darke, by meanes whereof, he foftly

flipt away, hying speedily to the butchery or Shambles, where perceiving by the lighted candles and noise he heard, that divers were there vp out of bedde, drinking and playing: hee went in amongest

Forthwith they ran to the Gouernor, and acquainted him with the compact &

the Citizens quickly had warning to arm themselues, and good Guards also sent to the gates: moreouer, they rushed in fo-dainly upon the confpirators, and tooke

The feaft day of S.Peter & S.Paule,aphe maffacte lay, and in what manner was to bee

Chap.3.

uerbe (afterward) among them of Lacer- | had escaped out of the tumult, by favour the conspirators was great; and, many a- uout done ynmong the of the principall houses, who descruedly to had flore of kindred and friends in the city. At request of the three Cantons, their liues were faued, and they punished by the purse, after they had folemnly sworne neuer to attempt any thing more against the state of the city, nor contrary to their alliance with the three Cantons. Heereupon, they of Lucerna made a law, wherby it was prohibited to the Citizens, not to make any affemblies or clandestine meetings in any place, nor to bind them- A law against felues one to another by Oath: except and close mee vpon any bargain they made for monies, tings, they should leave twice as much in the hands of the Seigneury.

At this time, they of Austria were re- Complaint conciled to the Emperor Lewes, to whom made to the alfo, a great accufation was made of the Empagainft the three Cathree Cantons & the Lucernians. Who tons and Lu-(contrarywise) well excused themselnes, cernians, and shewed, that they were allied vppon plenty of good reasons, and without doing wrong vnto any man. Whereupon. the Emperour gaue charge to them of Zurich, Berne, and Basile, who were then allyed to the house of Austria, and friends them, and tolde them the things hee had also to the Cantons (for three yeares before, the men of Zurich had assisted them in a VV arre against the Grisons) to pacifie the difference, and make an agreement of the Cantons with the Austrians.

VVherefore, in the yeare, one thou- Conditions fand three hundred thirty foure, by entermife of their Ambassadors, truce vvas taken for two yeares and an half, on thefe the Cantons conditions following. That during this agreed vpon. time, they of Lucerna (hould not be constrained to pay the moneyes borrowed of them, nor the wages due to the Lucernians by the Captaines. That they might make vie and service of the Money of the Dukes of Zofinge, forged in their Cittie: rendering obedience and honor done to the Dukes.

The alliance with the three Cantons, to remaine in absolute integrity, and the Cantons not to hinder the D. of Austria from injoying the goods and reuennews which they helde in the countries of the faid can-of the nights extreame darkeneffe. vvere likewise apprehended and imprisoned, as was most conuenient. Now, in regard that the number of Grace and faerformet.

The confoiators taken and impriso-ned fodginly

The bloodie

tention hap

oily discoue-

was to bee

them prisoners, before they could give entrance to fuch fupply as they expected from without. And to impeach the Licutenant to the Duke of Austria, from attempting any thing by manifest force, or violence against the City, it being in this dangerous agitation: the fame night they fent (in poste) for succour vnto the three Cantons, who also sent them three hundred men early in the morning . After

to be inflicted

this happy supply was thus come to the. they confulted then togither concerning punishment to bee inflicted on the conspirators. Their Letters were laid before them, and fuch other guilty perfons, who Ectremity v ged against the Lucerni ans by them

The truce fur ther prolong.

Chap.4.

The Pope ex

ommunica-

ed them of

The first alliance of Zu-

Centons of

Vri and Suits

Cantons. The Emperour was to depute the Commissaries, for hearing the differences of the Dukes with the Cantons, at any time what foeuer.

Afterward, the truce was further prolonged, and although the peace was fearfely well affured, but was fometimes broken: yet they of Austria made no more open warre vpon the confederates. Vntill after fuch time as they of Zurich wrung themfelues into the alliance, in the yeare, 13 (1. Then Glaris and Zing came in the yeare following, and Berne the yeare after that : Concerning the estate and alliance of these Cantons, we come to discourse more at large.

CHAP, IIII.

Of the Originall, condition, and estate of Zurich, before it leagued in with the amity of the Cantons.

Concerning the antiquitie of Zurich, and when it was builded.

T is not to bee doubted, but that Zurich is one of the most ancient Citties of Swetia. The Annals of the country doe declare, that it was builded fixeteene yeares after the cittie of Treues or Treurys. Marianus Scotus faieth in his Chronicles, that Trebetus, fon to Ninus, builded the city of Treues, in the time of the Patriarch abraham. The Romane hiflories make honourable mention of the

The Tigurina are the people of Zurich, and were conque red by Iulius

Tigurines, who are they of Zurich, beecause they were present in the war of the Cimbrians against the Romans, and ouerthrew the Confull Cassius. Afterwards, when Iulius Cafar came to the conquest of the Gaules, they were vanguished and ruined by him. After that time to the inualion which the Allemaines or Germaines made: Zurich was subject to the Romane Empire, then fell into the handes of the Kings of France s'and lastly, came to the Germane Empire, which beareth y name and shadow of the Romane empire.

There are in Zurich two Conedgian churches, one of men, the other of Wo-large all Churches men founded by the Kings of France. In in Zurich, and ancient times, these colledges were (well- a cassle on the neere) Lords & commanders of the citie. eus. There was also (heretofore) a castle, builded upon a little hill, nere to the River of Limagus, where the Gouernours (establithed by the Kings of France) kepte theyr abiding, who were Prouosts of the city, & of those colledges. Afterward under the Germane Emperors, those Prouostes still continued, but they dwelt not in the caftle: because the government was willingly giuen to the Princes. Neuertheles, fince those times, there grew in the city a councell of fixe and thirty men, tweller usual tume. whereof gouerned for the space of foure moneths. The commonwealth was so ordered in the yeare, 1100. and continued in that estate till the yeare,1 336. and then it fell to changing, in manner as heereafter we shall declare.

From fuchtime as the city beganne to throwe off the yoake of the Colledgiall ning of the distriction of the yoake of the Colledgiall to of Turish churches, it began also to consider on hir sy of Zurich, owne freedome, and how it might best manner it pu receiue increasing. For, amongst the diffentions of the Emperors and Popes, the men of Zurich adhered to the Emperors, and followed Fredericke Barbarolla, Fredericke the fecond, and Lewes of Bauaria, who augmented theyr liberties and fran chifes, especially Fredericke the second. For, after the death of Berthoull, the last Duke of Zerungen, Prouost of the Colledges, and also of the Citie of Zurich: he received the cittizens into protection of the Empire, about the yeare, 1218. Then afterward, he tooke many priviledges from the Colledgiall churches. Amongst other, the right of electing the councell, and graunted it to the citizens, ordaining that it should neuer bee law full to alienate zurich from the Empyre. Alfo, in the time of Fredericke, the Cittizens made the ditches and walles about to be aliena-

the City. It came to passe, that they requested the Priests w were citizens of the Cittle, to furnish their part of charge towardes

There are in Zurich two Colledgiall

Empire.

rich with the

moreover, to rid their houses of some women ill reported of: which offended them in fuch fort, as they with drewe themselues from the Citizens. But this difference was appealed by the bythop of Constance. Some few yeares after, the Pope excommunicated them of Zurich. because they tooke part with the Emperor Frederick. At the fame time, they ruinated(by permission of the Emperor)the old Castle fearing least some (enemies to their liberties) (nould get possession therof. At this day it is a very pleasant place, beautified with Linden and other fayre trees planted there. And because the City flood excommunicated, and (by confequence) exposed to the violence of any man: many Gentlemen round about, much mollested the Citizens, fo that the trafficke of filkes, being very great before in that place, was from thence transported to Come. In the yeare, 1251. they of Zurich did take their first alliance with the Cantons of Vri and Swits, the tenour whereof you haue already feene. Some few yeares after the death of Frederick, his Nephew Conradine laboured to subject them of Zurich, to the Dukes of Suaba : vnder the pretence and colour, that they had long time bin Prouoftes and Gouernors thereof. The Cittizens maintained theyr liberty very firme and strongly, which caused Conradine to worke so with the Atrue Coppy of the fauor done by Richard of England, K. of the Romanes, to them of Zurich.

Emperor Conrad, that Zurich stood proscribed from the Empire. But Richard of England, king of the Romanes, tooke away the profcription, and by Imperiall

Letters, confirmed the priviledges of the Cittizens. In those Letters, amongst other marters, these words following are contained.

T faithfull report, which is come to our ferenity, we have moderflood, that Conradine, some to the late King Conrad, who named himfelfe D. of Suaba; not contented with this fault, in these fortifications, and commided them i vainely vsurping the honor appertaining to another, without having any right or power fo to do : hath published a sentence of banishment, against our Citizens of Lurich (as if they were (ubiects to that Dutchy) planted in the especiall bosome of Vs and our Empire & not appertaining any way to that Dutchy, but immediately to the Empire, according as fro antiquitie hath beene established, and is now approved in our time erc. Given at Haque. naw, the xx. day of November, in the yeare one thousand two hundred fixty two. And of our reigne the fixt.

> These Letters do render an ample tetimony, of the liberty belonging vnto what time the mof Zurich: notwithflanding, they people of Zutooke no great effect then, because such times the such liberty. as succeeded in the Empire after Fredericke the second, to Raoul of Habsbourg. held no great credit, fo that (by manie) they are not numbred among the Emperors, but all this internall or respite of time, is referred vnto an Inter-regnum; wherein the most part of althe variances were decided by the fword, rather then by inflice and law, and the ftronger tram pled the weaker under their feet . About all the Gentlemen that had anie means. did nothing else but machinate against the liberties of those Citties that yvere their neighbors, All the wayes were couered with theeues, & (in briefe) this Licenfe wrought a meereconfusion among the most wicked and desperate, mouing them to attempt and execute euen what-focuer themselues pleased.

Heereuppon, they of Zurich, defiring to conferue their liberty, and maintaine themselues in peace : sent an honorable Ambassage to the Lord of Regenfourgentreating him to be their Gouernour and Captaine, vntill the election of a newe Emperor, and (for that effect) offered him honest and sufficient gages, The Gentleman was a neighbour to Zurich, a rich and powerfull Lorde in those times. Hee proudly rejected the honour which the men of Zurich didhim, and made them answere in this manner. If the Citizens would obey al his commandements, and fubicat the Cittle to him : hee was readie to take them into his protection, and would be their benign Lord. But if they refused his offer, they should fhortly

Lord of Regenipourg,

neere to Zurich, and his derates.

potent Confe-

Pride & fcorn

full contempt very just y scourged and rewarded. 3. Booke

Of Zurich.

221

fhortly bee compelled to accept it, euen in meere despight of them; because their Citty was ingirt and inuclioped with his castles, as Fish within a Weele, or water The strong places of the

This vauntery of the Lord of Regenfpourg was not wholly vain, for he had many firong places neere vnto the cittie: as Wrepia on the Lake of Zurich, a mile and a halfe from the cittie; Glanzembourg, a Towns and caffle of like diffance, and on the river of Limagus. He had (moreouer) much neerer to the cittie, vpon a high Mountaine towards the Sunne-fetting, two castles, to wit, Vluberg and Balderie, impregnable (as was imagined) by reason of their scituation. Beside, the Towne and castle of Regenspourg, not aboue five miles at the most from Zurich . And, beyond all thefe, manie Countes or Earles were Leagued with him; among other, the Count of Kybourg, dwelling at Burgdorff, the Count of Rafberwill, of Togge, of Nidow, of Arberg, and the Barons of Eschenbach, of Riggenberg, of Kilchberg, of Balme, of Hombourg, of Warts, and many other. They of Z#rich, having beene to ignominiously refused: addressed themselves to Raoul of Habspourg, mortall enemy to this Regen-(bourg : made alliance with him, & within two yeares following, tooke the ca-Alcs of Viznaberg, Wripia, Veliberg, Balderie, and the Towne of Glanzembourg mollesting Regenspourg in fuch fort, as at length hee defited peace, and came to make his abiding at Zurich. These things hapned in the yeare, one thousand, two hundred, fixtie fixe, and the yeares follo-

Raoul of Hab fpourg King of the Romanes, and a friend tothem of Zurich.

In the yeare one thousand, two hundred, fewenty three, Raoul of Habspourg, was created king of the Romans, by common consent of the seauen Electours of the Empire. Afterward, being chosen Emperour, the Cittizens of Zurich, ferned him in many Warres, hee finding them still faithfull, and valiant fouldiers. In the warre of Bohemia, he had two hundred, which he placed betweene the Enfignes in the first ranke: exhorting the others fouldiours to imitate the magnanimity of them of Zurich, whom (he faid) he had well knowne and made proofe of before. Alfo, the most part of them dyed in the field, of battaile then given, and the Enfignes of the other were borne (for their honour) into the Temple of the Cordeliers or gray Friars . Raoul haning receyued fo many feruices by the men of Zurich, gaue them divers privi-ledges: and to honour them the more, beautified their Enfignes of Armes, with a Diadem and Bend of Purple.

Many have imagined among the vulgar fort, because in the battaile at Winterberg, that the Bend was afterward annexed therto, as a note or mark of theyr the enemy, a ignominy. But there are many thinges Winterberg. yeelding contrary reasons to this opinior. For, in the first place, the notes of ignominy are not red, but meerly black. And afterward, when René Duke of Lorraine, tooke away all the marks of the enfignes belonging to the Switzers, in the warre against the Duke of Bourgongne; they of Zurich would never permit, that the Bend should bee taken out of theyr Standard. And in the yeare, one thoufand, fine hundred and twelve, when Pope Inlius gaue new Standards vnto the Switzers, the Councell of Zurich would cyofthe not alter any thing whatfocuer in theyr Switzen, for Enfigne, no not fo much as the bend or of Armes, Diadem, which they neuer would have done, if they had beene any notes of in-

Moreover, John of Winterduer, who lined at that time when they of Zurich wer conquered by ambufcadoes at Winterduer, spake to King Raoul these Words: He crowned the Standard of Zurich wwith great action of graces. The same Authour alfo declareth, that in the warre at Reigen-Bourg, laques Mulner, a cittizen of Zu- laques Mulrich, couered (with his owne body) Raoul ner, a worth of Habspourg, who was cast from his Zurich, and horse : and having remounted him vpon his honorable his own, brought him forth of the prease after fafe and found. For which great fauour. Raoul did much honour to the man, and loued him fingularly; yea, hee was also a deare friend to them of Zurich. This they auouch, because Carion, and such as were of his minde, did highly wrong the cittie of Zurich, accusing it of sedition & rebellion against King Raoul, who therefore foiled them, and brought them vnder his obedience by armes.

After the death of Raoul of Hab/pourg, they of Zurich maintayned the part of Adolph, and so did the Abbot of S. Gall,

Raoul of Hab

his cunning

The standard of Zurich car ried away by

he men of

Chap.4. The chat: of | and the byshop of Constance. Now to the | acknowledge and honour Albert as lawend that they of Zurich might joyn them selues with the other : they affayled the Towns of Winterduer, and tooks it in the affault, under conduct of the Count of Togge, and there (in Garrison) was the Lord of Werdenberg, with great troopes, in name of Albert of Austria. The first day they were Victors, but on the morrow, by treachery in the Lorde of Wer-The Lorde of denberg, who caused the Ensigne belon-Werdenberg. ging to the Byshop of Constance, to be carried before him : by this cunning ftraftratagem, againit them of tageine, the men of Zurich were ouerthrowne and cut in peeces. They attempted againe another warre in the name of Adolph, against them of Groningen, the which is in the territory of Zurich. But Albert Duke of Austria, Sonne to Raoul, was offended at their enterprize, beeing informed by his people, that the greater part of them of Zurich, were flaine at

Winterduer: which caused him to come and besiedge Zurich, which hee imagined to bee quite emptic of any defensive

The Citizens made a muster of theyr Apolitike ftra men (apr for armes) in the Citty, and on tagem perfor-med by them ainft Albert of Auftria.

a place very high, where fometimes the Cattle flood and that the Duke of Au-Striaes Army might eafily discerne them. And, because their number might appeare to bee much more greater then it was, they canfed all their strongest and Stoutest women to be armed, and theyr children of biggest stature: which made the enemy to imagine, that there were great store of warlike people within the Citty. Afterward, they fent Ambassadors vnto Albert, to remember him, that his Father alwayes loued and maintained that cittle that the cittizens had ferued him in all his warres, and wherein they (enermore) carried themselves faithfully and valiantly. Wherefore, they intreated him to follow his Fathers Steps, and to accept them of Zurich rather as loyall and feruiceable friendes, then to beleeue falfe rumors fored abroad by their il-willers, confidering withall, that they were ready to gine him fatisfaction.

Albert unswered the Ambassadors ve-Perce conclus ry kindly, & willed them to come to him ded betweene at Winterduer, where the peace was con-Du Albert, & firmed betweene him and them of Zurich e yppon condition, that they should full Emperor. This peace was continued atter the death of silbers, and in the warre which his fons made against them that had flaine him: the cittizens of Zurich kept themselves stil faithfully on the behalfe of Auftria, and fought for them against the three Cantons. After that, in the battell of Morgarten, fiftie men of Zorich were flaine in the field, as hath alreadic beene declared. Moreoner, worthy ferui-when the Emperour was in some trou-the Zurich. bles, because some had elected Lemes, Prince of Bayaria: and others Fredericke. the Sonne to Albert, the men of Zurich helde a long time for the part of Frede-

him therewith, in regard of the Warres hee lately had, to his mightie expences;

gaue vnto him foure Townes as a pawn.

and fecurity of payment, Namely, Zu-rith, Sthaffoufe, Rhinfeld, and Neubourg on the Rheine. But they of Zurich, immediately fent Ambaffadors to the Em-perour, to thew him, that they yvere fo incorporated with the Empire, as they could(by no meanes) be separated from

it. Their Letters were shewn to the same effect, read and perufed by the Emperor:

and then, although he loued them but a little, because they had taken part with Fredericke: yet notwithstanding hee leste

Worthy ferui.

In the yeare, 1330, peace was made betweene Lewes of Banaria, and Frede- Zurich would ricke of Austria, whereat, Fredericke te- not be separanounced his Imperiall Election, and Letter to the major mass (to recompence him) promifed to king it known pay him a great fumme of money. And by their Ambafladors. because hee could not presently furnish them to their owne liberties, and in fed of Zurich, Briffacke was given in gage to them of Austria. The Ambaffadors had alfo brought with them, the Deputies of the three Zurich, alo-Cantons, whom Lenves greatly affected, reighbour to because they had alwayes beene faithfull the Cantons vnto him. Thefe Deputies declared that the City of Zurich was a louring & frendly neighbor to the Cantons, & had highly ferued them many times. Belide, they of Zurich promifed, that (horeafter) they would be no leffe faithfull & obedient to Lewes of Banaria, who was then their only lawfull Ensperour, then they had formoily beene to Fredericke of Austria.

This did much offend the Austrians; for,

albeir

The Citie of Zurich excó. municated by the Pope, for 18.yeares.

A Caftle taken and fpoi

led on the

Rheine, by them of Zu

rich,&c.

222

pire : yet notwithstanding, Leopold, Albert, and Otho his brethren, would not ratifie the agreement, but continued warre against Lewes of Bauaria. By which means Zurich fell off againe from friendshippe with them of Austria, and was excommunicated by the Pope, in fuch manner. as for the space of eighteene years, there was no exercise of ceremonies according to the Romane Church) vied in Zurich. The Priests departed from the citizens, fome by their owne meere motion, others were expelled by the Bourgeffes, because they refused to adminifter the Sacraments. There were none but the Corocliers or gray Friars, who went forth at one gate, and entered immediately at another.

albeit Fredericke had renounced the em-

The Citie standing thus excommunicated, and hated by the house of Austria: many Gentlemen, feruants vnto that house, much mollested the Cittizens. Wherefore, in the yeare 1333, they of Zurich, with the men of Strasbourg, Bafile, and merne, befiedged and took a cafile on the Rheine, named Schunaw, belonging to the Lords of Geroltzegh, and ruinated it because it was one of the retreats for theeues. The yeare following, the men of Zurich ruined many castles, to wit, Fryenstein, on the river of Tofe, and another nere vnto it, called Touff the high. Alfo Schenenvert, on the Limagus, about three miles from Zurich and Schlatte. neere to Efgow, because the Gentlemen to whom these castles appertained, did greatly trouble the city of Zurich.

The next yeare infuing, the Gouernement of the Common-wealth of Zurich was changed, which produed to bee the cause of great garboiles, and the principall occasion, of allying the citizens with the Cantons of Swetia. We have already toldyou, that the commonwelth was gouerned by 36.men, and in such fort, as twelve commaunded during the space of foure months. Some difference hapned between them and the people, in regard whereof, the people began to demaund an account of their administration especially, of the twelve that were in the fecondorder. Somewere accused among them, of robbing and diffipating (in a fmall time) the publike treasure, and befides, that they had bound the Cittie in in no meane flore of great debtes. Eight of those men, finding themselues to bee hardly clear in this case, retired from the city; the other foure, voluntarily refigned vp their charge. Thus the authoritie of twelve ceasing, they grew to a forme of electing Magistrates, being chosen out of every band of the tradefmen, and by feueral nomination.

The Emperour Lewes confirmed this | Election of kinde of Commonwealth by his Letters Magistrates Patents, and the succeeding Emperours also approued the same. They that had withdrawne themselves from the Citie, yeelding after to the peoples judgement, were condemned in feuerall fines : and they that feed the best were banished for three yeares, having first faithfully promiled neuer to make any conspiracie against the citizens. Heereto also was annexed a note of infamy, to wit, that neyther they, nor any of their children, shold euer be admitted into Councell. The ancient men and councellors, beeing affraide of a judgement fo feuere, beganne of their one to diftruft their owne causes; so that nine honeshes, among them for fooke the Cittie. This departure of theyrs was converted vnto banishment, and their goodes confiscated. As for the rest, nine of them vvere condemned in great fines, and then banished for two yeares: with this brand alfo fet yoon them, that they nor their children should ever be admitted vnto councell. Others, that flood to their tryall, instified themselves before the people, and were elected to be of the new coun-

The banished men made their retreat How, and in to a Towne, scituated on the Lake, two miles (or thereabout) from Zurich, named Rafberwill, which at that time belonged to Count John, of the House of Habflourg. Three years before, he had made request to them of Zurich, to accept him as a Citizen willingly they would, and did (at last) receive him, although he was Leagued with them of Austria, and diuers of them also were of his parentage. Hereupon, hee liftened the fooner vnto the banished men, and made a confederacie with them, vnder certaine conditions; for securitie vyhercof, hee gaue them the Castle of the Townein keeping. These banished men being thus com modiously lodged & fortified, began to cell.

the benifhed ed themselve

The fuccesso

Habipourg a Buchberg

accuse them of Zurich, pretending to | were joyned together agains in the mid haue suffered great outrages by them; the panished they defamed the Confull and new counsaint them cell and to make the or Zurich,& tie vling (to this effect) the helpe of fome are banished of their friends, that remained still in Zurich. Some of them being discovered by the councell were punished; others fled away fecretly, and joyned with the banithed men. And because these banished men had fallified their folemne promises: Boates a mighty booty, & fixe Enfignes they were banished perpetually by the Senate especially they that stood relegated but for a certaine time enjoyned

Warre raifed by them of

The banished

proued too frong for

them of Zu-

tich, in warr

aired against

for euer.

Now, because the citizens of Zurich of Grinow.

stood in slender security, either for themfelues or their goods, fince those banithed men were excluded the city: divers And the fame yeare, the Emperor Lewes, times they admonithed the Count of his and Albert of Austria, second of that duty that he being a Bourges, ought not to continue his favour to the banished men, but rather to withdraw al helpe and comfort from them. Perceiving the Count made no reckning of their complaints, they leuied another Army, and went and befiedged Rafberwill, the retire and refuge of the banished men. In vaine was this attempt of theirs, because the banished men had great plenty of victuals, and defended themselves valiantly. which made the other to raife their fiede Glady therefore they quitted the place, & fo much the rather because the Count of Habspourg, protector of the banished, and whom most especially they sought for ; was not at Rafperwill, but in a Castle called Grinow, which is at the head of Zurich Lake. They discamped thence, & marched with their Army voto that very place, beeing conducted by Diethelme, elle please them, but the old form of rule, Count of Togge, who was at controucr-fie with the other, concerning the caftle as many of their friends and partakers

The Count of Habspourg (with his Army well appointed) was encamped at Buchberg, whence he came mainly running vpon them of zurich, who landed fuddenly from their Boates; and they granting them no leyfure to bee raunged Zurich, gainft in order of battaile, put all in rout and diforder that were on Land, compelling them to enter their Boates againe, in which confusion they lost not many me, except the Count of Togge, who was taken prisoner. But after that al their troops name, and after the death of her Father, dle of the Lake, being moved with anger, and defirous to wipe off the thame formerly received: by advice of their Leaders, they went on thore againe, brauely bidding them the battaile, which they wonne. And fuch was their fuccesse that the Count of Habipourg, and many Gentlemen with him, were flaine in the field: moreouer, they carried away in their of the enemies. The citizens of Rafperwill, hearing of this ouerthrow, to revenge the death of their Lord, they cut in peeces The Count of the Count of Togge, who was conuaied Togge hewed on Land, to foone as he had beene taken in peeces. prisoner in the first encounter.

This things hapned in the yeare 1337.

name, furnamed the Cripple, made peace Reace newly betweene lohn of Habspourg, Sonne to confirmed be the deceased Count; the banished men tweene the men of Zurich, and the Consull and Citizens rich, & them diuers condiof the City, vpon these conditions fol- that were ba lowing. That the banished men should miled, you pay to the citizens (as a fine or amerce- tione. ment) the fumme of fixe hundred markes of money remaining still out of Zurich fine years, during which time, they shold not come neare the citty, by the space of two miles; which beeing expired, they mould againe be received, & their goods remaine entirely to them. The Emperor conceined, that this new government in the state, would highly strengthen it in these fine years: for there was appearance of great danger, that if the ancient Councellors were re-established, alterations would enfue in many matters, & nothing earnestly defired. This peace lasted not long, for the banithed men (fauoured by a great number | The peace of the Nobility) made no regard at all of their promifes; but molested the citizens, banished men and conspired daily something or other andthey of against the city. In regard whereof, by Zurich, yer after the houses permission of the Emperour, the houses, and al the goods which the banithed had in the city, were confiscated. Notwith flanding the years following, by the intermile of Agnes Queene of Hungary, (who was daughter to Albert, full of that wealth of Zurich altered, procuring and mollefta.

The Gouern

ment of the

against the fecond order of Peace once more renewed,& broken againe the Meanes desi

fed and vndertaken, to

refift enemier

224

time) of Fredericke of Austria, and some other of the Cities: peace was renewed betweene the banished, and the citizens of Zurich: yet this was no firmer, or dured any longer then the former. For although the banished promised faithfully, that they would stand to the councell of Zurichs sentence, and pay the fines wherin they were condemned; yet would they not make any fatisfaction at all.

Many of the house of Habshourg, (2mong others, the Sonne and kindred to Count John, whom they of Zurich flew in the battaile at Grinow) affembled a great number of Gentlemen, offended with the liberty of Zurich, hating that Democritall gouernment, as being too popular in their opinion : fauoured the banished, and provoked them still on against them of Zurich. And they on the other fide for their better maintenance, first of all burned two Castles: one neere to the Tofe, appertaining to the Lords of Landberg, and maintain appertaining to the Lords of Landors, their liberties. Gentlemen of marke: and the other to the Lords of Schowenberg, on an high hill aboue Elgow, because these places did much injure them. And to fortifie themfelues vet stronger, they combined amity with the cities of Constance and S. Gall. Alfo, because some differences remained to be appealed with them of Schaffouxe, and war might be moued from the: they veelded willingly (by intermission of Ambassadors to some other cities) & in short time after, comprehended them of Schaffouze in alliance with the cities of Conitance and S.Gall. At the same time, they allied themselves also with the Bishop and city of Basile. Afterward they received into the number of their Bourgeffes, many houses of the Rhodes, or of S. John of Icrufalem : to be supplied and maintained with Gentlemen, and men of warre, as continually (and from time to time) were in that worthy Order of Knights of S. tehn.

These puissant cities and people round about, being leagued with them of Z#rich by new alliances, or reconfirmation of their ancient amity: the estate of the city remained more peaceable, and it feemed that the banished had lost all hope of ever enjoying the city by power. But in this fleeping time, they conspired very fecretly, to make themselves Masters remained in Swella the most part of her | thereof by treason. Count lohn of Habhourg. Son to him that was flaine on the day at Grinow, as already we have shewn, was joyned with them; vpon condition, that he should re-establish the banished men, in possession of their goods in the country, and that they should difingage the lands of the Count, morgaged for debts to his creditors. With them joyned the Count of Toggenbourg, Peregrin Landberg (who fome yeares before, had Loucof goods beene at great debate with them of Zu- and greedy rich though all feemed to be laide afleepe uenge, are by an agreement made betweene them) the onely the Baron of Marzing, and many Gen- or this confetlemen, partly pentioners and vaffails to racy. the Count of Habsbourg, who they gladly endenored to gratifie, & partly as friends to the banished, who had many ancient friends and partakers in the city, some wherof were well acquainted with al the conspiracy, and others also that would ioyne with them, if the first attempt succeeded well. A further hope also was conceined, that no meane number more Otherrea. would come to their part, if they did but hope of more fee the ancient councellors namely, fuch partakenin as were greatly indebted, and could fubfift by no other meanes. Such likewife, as in this alteration of the state, wer not honoured nor recompenced according to their expectation, and who were vnworthy to be seene of others, aduanced and preferred before them. Then again, some others, who were weary of the estate in her present condition, desiring nothing more then nouelty: as in all commonwealths are daily to be found, too many fuch kinde of people. The refolution of the conspirators was, to make vie of the night time, and to plant armed men in all the streetes of Zurich, and to force the houses of Raoulle Brun, Confullatio of all the new Councellors, and the rest of their enemies, to maffacre them, feize the citty, make themselves Lords therof, and take away the liberties of the citti-

In this manner, the 24. of February, in Preparation the year 1350. Peregrin Landberg, Count to execute & of Hallourg, many Gentleme, and fome performs the conjugation of the banished with them, came voto by cuming Zurich. The fame ranne through the pretence Citty, that they came to prefent a request to the Councell, in behalfe of the banished. At the same time sidiuers armed men had fecretly flipt into the city, and hid themselves in the houses of their complices. The Counts and Gentlemen had a very great troope of armed Groomes and Pages waiting on them, ready to execute whatfoener their Mafters thould command them. Moreover, there wer fundry companies readily prepared (both of horse and soote) who in the night should come neere the city. and there to be suddenly let in, after the watch-word was ginen. Others should come by Boates, and on that fide where the Lake makes a separation of the citty: to ruth on by impetuous troopes, & hinder the country men round about (who were very honest and faithfull to the city)

that they should not come that way to

All things being thus ordered and appointed, you the very fame night determined for the maffacre, the confpiracy helpe or releeve it.

ble prouidece of God in the confernation of Zurich.

Treacherie by water, as well as by land.

Chap.4.

n what man ner the treaucred by a ruant of the he confpirators met to-

The care and diligence of the Conful!

Raoul le Brun

niuch an vr

gent time of

was discouered: more by the prouidence of God, then any councell or industry of men. For God (vindoubtedly) preserved this city to be (very foone after) the first. for conferning the Switzers liberties, as alfortor the retreate of his church. The chiefe men of this conjuration. were in the house of a citizen, where they conferred on their affaires, and closely expected the houre of night, when the watch-word was to be given abroad. A fernant of the honfe, who never had knoledge of this enterprize, being layd vpon a Bench to fleepe, happened to wake by their close whispering, and lending some attention to their talke, observed their words very carefully, yet foored as if hee had bene in a found fleepe. So foone as he could conveniently do it, foftly he got away, and went directly to the lodging of Raoul le Brun, who was Confull then, re-obscurtty of the night. The Confull having heard the fernants words, armed himfelfe immediately, and went towards the Towne-house: the enemies were going and comming already through the fireetes, yet he escaped well gaue them a Lyon of Copper or Braffe, among them, because hee delinered the ucaling to him at full, what danger hung ouer the head of him, the whole councel,

and all the honest minded people of the city. He also acquainted him with the watch word, whereby the enemics shold

be knowne one to another, in the darke

watch-word readily to them, and fo got on to the Towne-house. A seruant of his, attired in the garments of his Matter.hauing not understood the watch-word, by reason of the great feare and halte the Confull made, was flaine by the enemies before the Towne-house: not to much because he could not give the word, as for that they tooke him to bee the Cou-

In the meane while, the Confull commanded one of the Officers of the Seigneury, to run to the church, and to ring the enemies out the watch-bell, after the wonted ma- being in the ner, to fignifie the comming of enemies. City, & tum-The Officer feeing the gate before the Citizens to clock-house to be round engirt with ene- gether. mies: by a fecret doore belonging to the church, got into the clock-houle, & rung out the terror to all the city. On the other fide, the Confull (himfelfe) cryed out aloud on the top of the Town-house, Arme, Arme, the City is full of enemies. Now the River named Limigus, or Limmitus, divided the city in twaine, & those two parts met and joyned together, by the means of two Bridges made of wood. Immediately, enery one ran to thefe bridges: but because the planks and boords Honeftcare of the one were not made fast nor nailed, makes vie of they threw them all downe into the wa- meaner of ter. By this meanes, all the fury and tem- helpe. pest of trouble, kindled it selfe at the other Bridge, which joyned neere to the Towne-house.

There is a place of indifferent greatneffe, at the entrance to the faid Bridge and house: the enemies got possession; of that place, and of another neighboring to it. Heere the conflict grew very tharp. for, from foorth the highest roomes of the houses, they of the city hurled downe Tyles and great Stones vpon their encmics, who were also to fight with other Chizen fight cittizens, gotten together in great num- for lib-try aber, and came to joyne with their belt out inustion helpe. The Butchers were the formost of deadly emen in the fight; for they were then vp in nemies. the Butchery (it being builded neere to the River) killing Oxen and other cattell. Haning heard the noife and out-cryes of the Confull, they ran out your the cnemies, with their Axes in their hands. In memory whereof, and as a tellimony of their hardineffer the common-wealth

The watch.

A new coniu ration of the banishedmen ngainst them of Zurich &

the City.

Schaffouze.

Conflance,

S.Gall allied

with Zurich.

conspirators

which(as yet) they be are yearely in pomp \ that after eighteene yeares were expired, and triumph through all the citty. They were moued to undertake Arms, by thefe meanes following.

Trainers doe commonly proue volunterie and forward cowards

Mischieuous

and wicked

councellare.

times to the

ruine of the author & dc-

The Count of Toggenbourg, beeing with-drawne into a house of one ofthe conspirators, and perceiving the danger, fearing also his owne skin-coate; after he had a while confulted with his Hoft: determined to free himselfe from blowes, refoluing thus; that if matters fell out wel for his companions, he could eafily come in againe among the troopes, and speake to them, as if he had bin alwayes in the crowd. But if it happened otherwise, he wold be fure to faue himfelfe. & learne to meddle with better bufineffe. According to this conclusion, himselfe, his Host, and his feruant, well laden with money, got into a finall Boate, belonging to a fiftherman, named Bax, who should conduct them along the River out of the city. But fearing left this Bax (hould discouer their flight, the Count commanded his feruant, that to foone as they were out of the city he should presently kill the fisherman. He being neerer to them then they imagined (by reason of the nights darkneffe) vnderstood their purpose and refolution concerning himfelfe: wherein he wisely presented them, by suffering the boat to tilt fuddenly on the one fide, and so they all three together fell into the Making hafte afterward home to his owne house, and waking all the neighbours dwelling about him; hee defired them to take Armes secretly, because the city was in eminent perill, and enemies were hidden in many parts thereof, but he knew neyther how, nor what was their intent. Heercupon, they armed themfelues prefently, and hearing the Confull ftill crying, Arme, Arme: waked other friends and neighbours, by whose helpe they got the Bridge, and there raunged themselves orderly in fight against the enemy. It is further faid, that the Priests of the great church, being then finging Matins, and hearing this tumult in the night: armed themselves from the houses round about, and entred in among the thickeft throngs, fighting valiantly for the freedome & fafety of their country. It might fo come to paffe, that this year the Popes excommunication was first raised, and the Priests entred into the city againe.

Thus the citizens (by little and little) gathered their ftrength together, for from Divers of the cuery part they came in full troopes, and declaring their valour in fo great a need. flainc. the enemies that were in the citty (constrainedly) gane way. Fifteene among them were flaine, and more then thirty feuen taken prifoners, among whom was the Count of Habspourg; others faued themselves by favour of the night. The Baron of Matzinge, and Peregrin Land- ous, yet deler. berg were among the dead. The Count used handling that fell into the water, was there drow- of fuch ene ned. The bodies of the flaine lay three whole daies on the patiement, exposed to the mockery of all men, and to be trampled on with the feete of enery paffen-

On the morrow, seuenteene, the principall men in the conjuration, were bro- kinde of deth ken, and their bodies laide on wheeles: innicreasi eighteene were beheaded. The Count of Hab/bourg, Huldrich, Baron of Bonstert, and some other, remained prisoners. The Army of the Count of Hab/bourg, as well that which came on the lake, as the other by land, hearing this tumult in the citty, and feeing no man came that should open the gates to them: retired backe in greatfeare, fo that in the morning, the people gathered vp their armes and wea- The Count pons for warre, which the run-awaies had gladly left behinde them, for their eafier run away.

escaping. Matters being thus appealed at Zurich, to preuent any more new troubles in the city the Confull brought an Army into the field on the fecond day of March, & being seconded with supplies fent them by the men of Schaffouze; they went and befiedged Rafperwill, the Fortreffe & re- He that thin tants of the Towne knowing that their of his liberty. treate of the conspirators. The inhabi-Count was taken, the banished mangled in pecces, or made fugitives and vagabonds, and having no likelihood at all of fuccour: on the third day of the fiedge veelded, and bound themselves sollemnly to the common-wealth of Zurich, promiling (for euer after) to acknowledge them as their chiefe, and render them all fuch duty, as formerly they had done to their Count. The Towne taken, they of Zurich thought they had gotten two adtages for the heir owner inion for their best

Chap.4.

Enemies to the people,

the liberty of

gaine nothing by the refulall nother Ar-

them of

Zurich, vpon

lenying the gainst the

Another war

egainst the me of Zurich.

y the Wad.

ners of Sultz,

ny made out

Two aduan | uantages. One was that from thence forward, no pilling or rauage was more to be made of their country, as oftentimes before had bene, and that the city wold now fafely be preferred from ambuthes and treasons. The other, that the kindred and friends to the imprisoned Count, began to treate on peace : fearing to lofe all the country about Rasperwill, because the Towns and the Countwere taken.

Hecreupon, the Queene of Hungary procured, that truce (hould be accorded for certaine moneths: but Raoul & Godfrey of Habspourg, being summoned by them of Zurich to make peace, declared no affection thereto. Confidering withall, that divers Gentlemen, neighbours, but enemies to the men of Zurich, incited them rather to make warre. So all hope of peace being quite cut off, the first day of September (the fame yeare) they of Zurich conducted their Army towards the country of the Marche, fitnated at the beginning of the Lake of Zurich, towards the Sun-fetting, then being in obedience to the Count of Habspourg. The cities of Constance and Saint Gall, fent fuccour to the men of Zurich, and having spoylde & burnt all the country, they befiedged a Castle, called Rasperwill the olde, and followed it so closely, that the besiedged, hauing no more meanes of refistance, yeelded, & went away with their lines faued. The Castle was ruined downe to the ground, and they of the March promifed fidelity and fubication to the commonwealth of zurich. This done, the Army went to a Towne, called Rasperwill the new. They brake downe the Bridge that ioyned to the Lake, beate downe the Cafile, and most part of the walles of the Towne, and having heard (for certaine)

At the fame time, certaine Gentlemen named the Wadners of Sultz, dwelling in Alfatia, declared warre against them of zurich, taking their Merchants, pilling & outraging them by all manner of wayes. They of nafile and Strasbourg withdrew, & gaue supportance to these wars there. Vpon these indignities, they of surich wer moued, to feize on about eight fcore and ten persons of Bajile and Strasbourg, that Albert of Austria meant to come aid them of Habspourg with great forces:they fet the Towne on fire, and burnt it wholy, not leaving any iote thereof remaining.

that were come on pilgrimage to the Chappell of the Hermitage. As effaying by this meanes, whether they of Strasbourg and Bafile, compaffionating the imprisonment of their citizens : would expell from their countries those Gentlemen that were the cause of this diffurbance. This fell out to proue but a very vaine hope, for these cities and their Bithops, offended with this vniust detention of their pilgrims; iovned themselues with Fredericke of Austria, Fribourg in putby a great Brifgow, Seleftad, Briffac and Colmar. Ha- danger,it is uing vnited their forces together, they re- good to paffe folued to make warre on zurich, and redemand their prisoners by Armes. The men of zurich, finding themselves not strong enough, in regard of their precedent warres, seditions and losse of men, which had greatly impaired them in power: deliuered backe the prisoners, and fo turned afide this dangerous tempest.

Now because they had suffered great outrages, and faw no likelihood of any Zurich debetter fuccesse to ensue: they fent Ambasfadors to Charles IV. to whom they made their businesses with their businesses are the training taken (in a just warre, & with how a fadors with the training taken (in a just warre, & with how stadors with the training taken (in a just warre, & with how stadors with the with the training taken (in a just warre, & with how stadors with the with in their citty) the Count of Habipourg their enemy, for maintaining their cause against him, they were molested and affaulted by Gentlemen neighbours. But that which most of all greeued them was. to fee those Gentlemen affisted by Fredericke of Austria, and other potent citties of the Empire. And because surreb was an Imperiall Citty alfo; they made their recourse to him, as being the sole head of the Empire. They humbly desired him, to lend them both aide and councell, and to take order by his power and authority, that (in fucceeding times) the Princes of Austria, the cities and Towns of the Empire, nor any other Gentlemen might make warre against them, contrary to all right and reason. But rather to permit, that their citty might enjoy her wonted liberty, in peace and quietnesse: considering, that they were ready (as they ought to be) to answer before the Emperor, to all whatfoener any man could object againft them.

The Emperor having heard the com- The milde & plaint of them of zurich, answered the honourable Ambaffadors most humanely: that hee Emperorto coucted nothing more, then to have their the Amballa-

The fafery & liberty of ou Country, ought to be deare & precious to cuery mor of proofe

The negotiation of the men of Zurich, with Al-

Howebe lands

of John of

Habipourg belonged to Albert of Austria.in manner of a right by title.

ben of Au-

ftria.

228

liberty continue in full perfection, and would do his endeauor, to accord them with Fredericke of Austria, and his affociates. But he could give them no fuccor, nor attempt any thing by force, against the house of Austria, the Nobility of Germany, or the Citties of the Empire: because (at that instant time) they were far Stronger then he. Wherfore, they of Zurich should deuise to pacifie their differences with fuch enemies: by some reafonable agreement, wherein he would affift them to his power.

The Ambassadors departed away very fadly with this answer, and came home againe to zurich. And because (at that time) Albert of Austria, Sonne to Albert, was in Swetia: they of zurich fent prefents to him by Ambaffadors, to whom he gaue kinde entertainment, and tolde them, that he would come meete them with an ample power, for he defired to be a friend to them of zurich, and had some marters to acquaint them withall. Afterward, when the Ambassadors came vnto him againe at Bruges in Swetta, he was become an enemy to zurich, by accusations and reports of the Noblemen, and spake sharply to the Ambassadors, saying: That they of zurich had done him great wrong in ruinating both the old and new Ralberwills, and spoyling the Marche likewise, because they were in his Seigneury. He therefore demanded, that they should restore what they held from him, rebuilde those places which they had roined, and repay their pillages with ready money, & in fo doing, hee would pardon them all those wrongs. As concerning hismaintaining the lands of John of Habsbourg : they belonged to him,in manner following. Garnier Count of Hombourg, Lord of Rasperwill the elder, and of three castles, seated upon one Mountaine, named Wartenberg, nere to Bafile, dying without children; the fucceffion fell vnto that John of Habspourg, who was flaine at Grinow. But Otho and Albert, Princes of Austria, laid claime to them, being the stronger (Iknow not whether they had any other title) and all the other goods of Garnier, including both Rafperwill the elder, & all the March. Neuerthelesse, they rendred all vnto John of Habspourg, and he to hold it of them as in Knights fee, and so became their vasfaile and pentioner. Thus you fee, why Albert of Austria faid they had done him wrong, and wherefore he demanded fatisfaction.

The Ambassadors of zurich made an-innocence wer, that (from those places) ambuscadoes had beene made against their citty, more an artheir cittizens spoyled and flaine, and in wherewith in those castles their banished men were detendit selfe harboured. Therefore, feeing they had ruined Rasperwell, which no longer was an abiding for Noblemen, but a retreate for theeues & banished men: they thought it no way meete, that any should be compelled to builde it againe, or in the felfefame place. They entreated the Prince to confider ferioufly on enery thing: they being alwaies ready to debate their cause before the Princes and citties of the Empire, and in any fuch place as hee would appoint. The Prince answered them in choller, that this was not a difference which flood in need of any ludges, to beate downe his castles, and waste the places of his Seigneury. But if all were not reduced agains to the first condition, and full facisfaction made: he would imploy all his forces, and constraine them of zurich to do it. In briefe, he would have no other debating of this cause, but by the point of the Sword.

The Ambassadors having made their answer to the councell of zurich, & they perceiving also evidently, that the cittie would very shortly be befiedged, because all the Noblemen were already in armes: The alliance the men of zurich well knowing, that in of Zurich expecting aide from the Emperor or the Empire, was meerly to abuse themselves; resoluted to combine alliance with the liberties to Cantons, for the better preservation of gether. their common liberties. Till then, they maintained themfelues in amity one with another, and although in the day at Morgarten, they of zurich gaue fuccour to the Duke of Austria; yet notwithflanding, the Cantons were not offended therewith, but rather tooke pleasure, to approducthe hardinesse and valour of the men of zurich in fight.

Having then formaine an enemy (in common) against them all to wit, the Duke of Auteria; both the one and the Vnity effart other then might eafily indge, that their makethary forces beeing thus combined together, people tole they had thereby the better meanes for re-not ignorant, that this their alliance with leagues. See heere the true cause of the pall intention them of zurich, did highly accommodate them for prouision of victuals; because there was a very excellent marker at zurich, and the Lake was apt to transport both food and Metchandizes. Wherefore, after that the men of zurich had fent their Ambaffadors to the Cantons, to require their alliance in lone, and freely had acquainted them with their present dangers: the Cantons imbraced their motion very thankfully and (foone after) fent their Ambaffadors to zurich, with plaine power to confirme this alliance, which was fully resolued on in the Moneth of Aprill,in the yeare one thousand, three hundred, fifty one, and engroffed in writing at the beginning of May following. Now albeit zurich is the fift, coming thus into alliance with the Switzers; yet notwithstanding, because it is a citty much renowned and mighty; the first place was given to it, and zurich named be named the to be the first Canton. The men of zurich (yet to this day) do hold that name and ranke, among all the thirteene Cantons, nd vnion of cople,is as a horne in the harts of all fuch as would oppress them

he alliance

he honour

granted it to irft Canton.

as well in dayes occasions of the Switzers accounts, as in all Ambaffages, and other publike actions whatfocuer. This vnity of them of zurich, caused warre(fo much the fooner)to come vpon them; for the Prince of Austria was already very angry with them of Suits, Vri. and Indernald, which first of all were leagued together : neuertheleffe, hee affured himselse (one day) to bring them vnder his yoake. For, because the country was barren, and not conucniently grounded forwarre; there grew fome apparance, that (at length) it might bee fubdued, albeit they were good Souldiers, and well refolued for fight. But when Lucerna, which was vnder the dominion of Auffria,ioyned with them, and then (foone after) zurich, a free citty, and cheefeft of all other in the country : the Prince became much more mooued and troubled: for he was not ignorant, how greatly this alliance had firengthened and authorifed them of surich. And therefore he concluded, to lay hold on this occasion, to make warre on the men of zurich, and befiedge their citty; to cilay if thereby he could voknit this knot of combination,

refistance. Moreouer, the Cantons were | the former) should make any more new warre, and I dare maintaine, that no cante of the Duke (concerning the ruine of Rulber will) inci- of Austria. red it; because (at all times) when peace was treated on after the warre began: they of Austria neuer viged that article, concerning the building agains of Rafterwill; but rather that they of zurich, shold renounce their alliance with the cantons.

Thus then, in the Moneth of September the yeare 1351. Albert of Austria be fiedged zwrich. He had encamped with the City of him, Lewes, Count of Brandenberg, Fre- Zurich. dericke, Duke of Teck, the Duke of Prilinge, and the Burggraue of Nuremberg. The Bithops of Wircebourg, Bamberg. Frifingen, Coire, and Bafile fent hon ficcour. He had fine and twenty Counts or Earles in his Army, namely; Ewrad, Count of Wirtenberg, conducter of the Army : Lewes, count of Ottigen : Frederick, count of Ortemberg : the two counts of Schmanalech: the two counts of Tetnanges: the two counts of Furstemberg: wants flore of the three of Tierstein: they of Habshoure heipetabe and Kybourg; Raoul and Hermand of Wer-demberg; Albert and Henry of Nellembourg; Guillaume of Kilchberg; Immer of prefled. Strasberg, of New-chaftle, of Nidow, of Arberg, of Fribourg, of Zolerin, and of Methourg. Likewife the citties of Strafbourg, Bafile, Fribourg in Brifgore, Soleurre, and some others sent aide to the Duke. It is faid, that he had in his Army two thoufand horfe, and fine thoufand foote. On the other fide, the foure Cantons fent a good Garrison to them of zurich. The Souldiers and the cittizens fortified the citty, and made diligent prouition of all things requifite to withfland the fiedge, and to defend it : fo that (on both fides) there were fome fallies and skirmithes.

But few daies after the fiedge, peace was made, by the intermite of Frederick, count Peace made, of Tagge, and of Hertber Ketchbere, com- and on what mander of Rhodes abiding at Pateutlavith Condition them of Bafile and of Berne on condition. that the Switzers (hould refer themselnes vnto the definitine indgement of Aimer, Queene of Hungary, to whom, evther tide thould fend their Affellours, and that which was concluded by them, with plurality of voyces, cyther party thould ratific. For this effect, they of smich were to before any other (following example of gine in 16. Hoftages, of the cheefett

There neuer

Chap. 5.

The Abbey of

Secon giuen to S.Fridolin,

w two bro-

What meane

the oppreso

people do víc, in bereauing

their liberty, & at length to dispose ail at their owne pleasure.

A traine is made,to enrran them by a sheete of paper,thatcould come by force.

Religion and

protestation of willingnes

to peace,in the mouth of a woman, cx

alted to authority, are

apteft inffru-

all other)

whereby to deceive and abuse the pcople.

of the Citty, and Albert promised by his Letters, that no wrong should bee done vnto them. The foure Cantons would not accept of this peace, alledging, that no trust ought to be given to the Queen of Hungary, who would not faile to give sentence in fauour of Albert, he beeing her brother. Neuerthelesse, the men of Zurich, who had a good opinion of the woman, did so presse the other Cantons. that they subsigned together the conditions: adding this exception (in common) that their alliance should continue in full force. The Duke of Austria chose for Judges,

Immer, Count of Strasberg, and Peter of Stoeffelen, commander of Tannenfels.

They gave sentence in behalfe of their Master, whereby it was appointed, that no leffe pern tious then they of Zurich were bound, to renew (acthe warre. cording to their former condition) the olde and new Rasperwilles, and give fatiffaction to Albert: rendring backe Lucerna under his government, and furrender alfo great store of possessions and rights, in the territory of Vnderuald. They tooke away likewise from them of Suits, their right of fishing in the Lake, and their ancient possession and vse of many Forrests. Finally, they condemned all the five Catons, in great fines of money: neuer hauing any regard, what wrongs the city of zurich had endured, by them of Rafperwill, nor other reasons and defences proposed by the Cantons, and by Philip Kyen, Knight, and Peter de la Baume, Confull of Berne, their ludges deleagued.

Queene Agnes approved the fentence of Alberts Iudges. She was a witty woman, that had an outward appearance of great functity, as we vieto fay from the teeth forward. At all times when the faw her brethren forward to make warre, but greatly vnfornified; then would fie bee ments (among fure to procure truce or peace betweene the Switzers and them. Onely to this end, that they might affemble their troopes together in the meane time, and bee the better prouided for a fudden affailing the at vnawares. Yet all that while, the would ftill protest that the did all this for the enjoying of peace, and in meere compassion which the had of the Switzers.

Now albeit this fentence was most vninfl; yet notwithflanding, the Switzers promifed to ratific it. But the Duke being not contented with all this, commanded them of zurich, to fet at liberty (without eyther fine or ranfome) Count John of Habspourg, their prisoner taken in faire warre, and of whom the ludges made not any mention. Heereupon, they of zurich would not yeeld to any thing, by which tion of the occasion, the Duke imprisoned their ho- Duke of Austages, contrary to his faithfull promise, stria. planted a Garrison on the Frontiers, and prepared himselfe for a new warre.

CHAP. V.

How Glaris, being conquered by the Cantons, came afterward to be accepted into their louing alliance.

HE Switzers feeing that all hope of peace was veterly frustrated, & that they must nation of the termined among these termined among these to inuade the country of Glarks, for scare lesse (in that quarter) the enemy would receive the country of clarks to the country of Glarks to the country of G make courfes on the lands of the confe-dertaken. derates, and especially on them of Suits. Wherefore, the very same years, and in the Moneth of November, the men of Zurich, Vri, Suits, and Vnderwald, joyned together, and led their troopes towards Glaris. Without any blow fmitten, they made themselves Masters of the whole country, taking oath of them of Glaris: and in regard of their faithfulnefle, as alfotheir approved valour in war, which they had well tried oftentimes before; they receiued them into their alliance.

Glaris is a straite Valley and long, A breete we cotaining a league Glais. and an halfe of the Germane measure, neere to the River of Limagus or Limmatis.li tookname from the principall

A breefe de-

Towne of all the Country, being engirt on three fides with very high Alpes: hauing the Grifons on the South fide, & towards the East, Vri, & Suits to the West, and on the North, the field called the Grt-fors country, by which, the River of Limagus runneth along the Valley, and enters into the Lake of zwrich. Glaris had bin subject a long time, and for the space of many yeares to the Abbey of Secon & was given to S. Fridolin, by two brothers, named Ours, and Landolphe. They of Glaris paied tythes to this Abbey, and certaine constituted rents beside taxations of fome inheritances. They were not charged with any imposts, or subsidies whatfocuer: they held their owne lawes, & a councell among their cittizens. True it is, that the election belonged voto the Abbeffe but the Propositing or government (both of the Abbey and country) was the Emperors onely & in his power.

Afterward, Frederick Barbaroffa gaue it to Otho. Palatine of Bourgongne, from whose successors, it came to them of the house of Habsbourg. Vnder pretence of this authority, Albert of Austria, Sonne to the Emperour Rapul, made himfelfe Lord of Glaris, in despight of the whole country: who had promifed to the forenamed Abbey, neuer to be separated or alienated from it. This viurpation was the caufe, that many Noble families for fooke the country, and withdrew themselues thence fome to Vri. and others to zurich. They of Austria being well fortified, expulfed out of his house the Baron of Suanda, a rich Gentleman, and well beloued in those parts, appropriating all his goods to themselves. They vsurped also the rights of the Majordome of Glaria.& brought in a nouelty neuer before practised: sending Gouernors into that country, to have a fewere eye over the people, and to judge them by processe in law.

Those Gouernors were very rude and infolent, to that the people (in defpight Glaris yeelof the Austrians) yeelded themselves voluntarily to the Switzers, when they came to warre vpon them, and made perpetuall alliance with them. Gautter de Stad, Gouernour for them of Austria, departed from Glaris, after the inhabitants had fworn fidelity to the switzers, withdraw, ing himfelfe not far off, namely to Wefen. But they of Glaris chose among theseluca (according to their ancient custome) a

Major or Amman, and their viuall number of councellers. And because they expe-

And nothing more, but that the Austrians would foone come agains to moleft

them: they firengthened their walles, and trenched their Valley, neere to a Village named Naifell, where was the easiest entrance into the country: that needed no fortification but only there, al the rest being engirt with Mountaines round about. During these alterations at Glaris, in the Moneth of December, they of zurich marched with their Army towards Teissille, Bada, where was a great Garrison of the where the Austrians, that by their often out-roades had a worthy made much waste on the Lands of surich. victory gainst To require them with money of the fame ther enemies the Auftrians stamp they of zurich forradged the coutry about Bada, and burnt the Subburbs of the Towne, getting vp on the Mountaine, to come neerer to them . But to. wards Tetiuille, on the Mountaine, a Captaine of the Austrian horsemen, named Ellerbach, made firme the passage with foure thousand men. They of surich were no more then 1300. (fome fay they were much leffe) notwithstanding, they fet vpon the enemy, and wonne a very remarkable victory, leaving there 700, enemies flaine, among whom (as is credibly auouched) there were 65. Gentlemen.

The yeare following, Gautier de Stad, The overnot long before Gouernor of Glaris, ha- chrow of uing leuied an Army, prepared himfelfe, Gaunerde to subject the country again to the house uernor of of Austria. Hee tooke occasion to do Glara. this, because he had received intelligence that two hundred men of Glaris were in Garrison at zurich. But the other inhabitants ouercame him in a ranged battel, where he was flaine, and a great number of the Nobility the 2.day of February.

The felfe fame day, the Austrians that were at Zug, beeing gone by Boates to Arte , did fet vpon the lands of Suits, but pening the met with the like welcome as Stad had at lame day. Glaris. In like manner, al the confederates fent an Army to forradge Berone, and other neighbouring places, from whence the Austrians iffued foorth oftentimes, to fet vpon the Lucernians: As (on the other fide) the Austrians put to fire and blood Cufuseb, and some other places, yet not without their owne great lotte. About the holidayes of Pentecoffe, the Lucernians, af- Courses and fifted by the three Cantons tooke (by af- outroides fault) a Castle, called Halypony, leated made onely on the Lake of Lucerna; cut in peeces all for spoyle. them that were therein Garrison, & ruinated it quite fro the top to the bottom.

Of the day at

Stad. Lite Go

CHAP.

lefte valued

and effected

At what time

Berne allied

By whom

Berne was builded.

Berne made

an imperiali

Concerning

the frituation

& firft eftate

The Canton made an Ar my forth a-

of Zug.

CHAP. VI.

Of Zing and at what time it came to he comprehended, in league and confederacy with the other Cantons of the Switzers.

IN those times, Zug hapned to be thus comprized in alliance with the Switzers. It is a Towne betweene Zurich and Suits, feated at the foote of a Mountain, rich in pasturages, and vines planted on the fides joyning to the Lake, which aboundeth with plenty of Fish, common to them both of Zug and Suits. It is reputed to be the capitall Towne of certaine people, which accomppaied the of Zurich, in the warre of the Cimbrians against the Fomanes . Sometimes (hee aknowledged divers Gétlemen as her Lords: but afterward, fell into the hands of them of Austria, who. during the warre against the Switzers, maintained there an ordinary Garrison, which did many harmes to them of Suits and Zurich. And this was the cause, that in the yeare 1352, and the Moneth of Inne, the men of Zurich, with the foure other Cantons, prepared an Army to go against Zug. The Soldiers finding their firength far too weake, would not attend the Switzers comming: but withdrew to Bremgarten, and other places thereabout. But the Townesmen, who would be faithfull to the Duke of Austria, maintained the fiedge for fifteene daies space: neuertheleffe, having received a very violent affault: they yeelded themselves, & tooke an oath to the Smitzers, on this condition. That if within a certaine time appointed, the Duke of Austria brought an Army, to cause the siedge to bee remoued: they would returne againe under his obedience, and fland acquitted of their oath giuen to the Swuzers. To effect this bufineffe, they fent their Ambaffadors, to require succour from the Duke of Austria: he being then in the Abbey of Champ Royall, about fifteene leagues from Zug,

& there the Ambaffadors let him vnderstand their charge and message.

It chanced at that inflant time, that the Duke was walking in a Gallery demanding of his Fauldoner, whether hee had (that day) fed his Hawkes or no? The the cheefest of the Ambassadors, named Herman, taking him at that word faid. Alaffe my Lord have you not more care of your Subjects, the of Hawks ? Especially now; people are when the enemy hath fo firedly engire vs. (oftentimes) as lif you fend not prefent supply, confrainedly we must furrender our schies? then Hante The Prince returned this answer. It is welveeld your felues : before it be long time. we will recouer againe whatfoener wee have loft. And because they of Zuo well faw, that it was in vaine to looke for any comfort thence: they joyned themselves in vnity and alliance with the Switzers.

Hardly were the Letters of this alliance written, for combining thus the Cantons by oath: but Albert, Duke of Austria, now the second time besiedged the citty A secondbe seed the citty of Lurich, about the midst of Lune. But City of Zuat the end of the Moneth, by intermife of nehthe Matquesse of Brandebourg, peace was made, on these conditions following. They of zurich (hould fet at liberty John Conditioned of Habspourg, their three yeares prisoner, the peace without eyther fine or ranfome. Alfo, that the Duke of Austria should acquit (frank and freely) the hoftages of zurich, whom he had likewise imprisoned. They of Zng and Glaris, absolved of their oath taken to the Switzers, (hould (as before) veeld obedience to the house of Austria. In the meane while, nothing thould hinder, but that the alliance of the Switzers must stand firme. In the time of this treaty, John of Hab-Bourg came forth of prison, without pay- | The craity fleights of ing any ranfome, but the Hoftages of zwrich wer not released, according to fworn bett great

bett great
bett great promife: for before they could get forth, pout in due they were compelled to pay fixteen hun- respect and dred crownes for a ranfome, & yet could efficiation. not enjoy eyther peace or fafety. For fo foone as the Count of Hab/bourg was releafed hee gave Rafberwill, and the places neighbouring about it, to Albert of Aufria; who immediately fortified Rafperwill, and planted a Garrison there, whereby a new warre was engendered. For the Soldiers of that Garrison ranne in on the Lands of zwrich, and flewfifty men at one of the Chanons of zurich.

Heereby we may plainly perceitte, that the Duke of Austria did but feeke occasion, whereby to begin the warre againe. The yeare following, as the Ambassadors of Suits were gone (in name of the fine Cantons) to require of them of zag, the obligatory oath of their alliance, according to the Articles of pacification: they of Austria expulsed them away with outrages. In regard whereof, they must red their forces together againe, and made themselves Masters of zug the second time, and then commanded the cittizens, to give their oath to the Switzers. In the fame yeare, 1352. the fixteenth day of March, Berne toyned it selfe in alliance with the Switzers. But we are to Beake fomewhat in this place, concerning this citty, which is the most powerfull among all them in Swetia.

CHAP. VII.

Of the building of Berne, the scituation and condition thereof, and how it was yeelded to the Empire.

the last Duke of zeringen, built the city of Berne, and being offended with the no-blemen, who had caused his male children to bee poyfoned in their youth: he submitted it to the Empire, & affranchised it. The Emperor Fredericke the elementh, ratified the Dukes will, and after the death of him in the yeare, 1218. a Gouernor was fent to Berne, named Othe of Ranen/pourg, in name of the Empire. But some yeares after, for good sernices done by them of Berne to the Emperor : hee gaue them much greater priuiledges and franchifes, exempting them alfo from having any more Governor.

In the troubles and confusions which happened in the Empire, the Count of Aybourg, Lord of Burgdorff, flroue to abolish the citties liberty, leaguing himfelfe (for that purpose) with Gentlemen his neighbours, and the Towne of Fri-

Meile, which was a Village belonging to bourg, which Berthoul the fourth had built: And his Son had given in charge to both thele Townes, to continue friends for euet. As concerning the occasion of this war it grew thus. The men of Berne had bought certaine Lands beyond the River of ar, & began to prepare a bridge, which the Count would not fuffer, he beeing Lord beyond the River. Wherenpon

Of Berne.

they of Bernie (defirous to make the felues as strong as their chemies) did put themselves into the protection of the Count of Sauoye, who repreffed the attempts of the Count of Kybourg, and having obtained peace, enlarged the compasse and roundure of the citty. Then after warre was moued, betweene the Count of Sanoye, and the Duke of Bourgongne, the Count promi-fed the men of Berne, that if they carried themselves valiantly, and he prospered in his attempt; he would grant them whatfoeuer they would demand of him. They performed their duty so well that the enemy was discomfitted : and then (as in recompence) they defired nothing elfe of the Count of Sanoye, but their ancient liberry, and he granted their request, and kept his promise most faithfully with them. After that time, they of Berne were alwayes friends, and allied to the house of SAHOYE.

The Citty being reintegrated into her The men of wonted liberty, before they entred into Berne had di league with the Suvezers, had many and wers wars bevery difficult warres, as well for conferua- came to be in tion of their liberty; as enlarging their li- number of the mits. They gave a battaile to Godfrey of Hablpourg, in the yeare, 1241, but that was to their owne difaduantage, because the enemy was far greater in number. Moreouer, Raoul of Hab/bourg, accompanied with them of la Tour and de Gravere, befiedged (two fenerall times) the Citty of Berne; vnder colour of accuting them of Berne, that they had violated the publike faith of the bimpire, in taking prifoners, and cuill entreating certaine lewes. Albert of Austria, sonne to the Emperor Runt, did twice hid them battaile before the citty, and many citizens were there

Zug being af-Cantons, vpon conditi-

Zugis affay-led by the e-nemics to her berry.

Alliance and league perpe-

with the Can-

A great league and made againfl he Citty of Berne.

234

flaine. In the yeare 1291, the Counts of Sauore, Neuberg, and Gruyere, the Bishop of Lausanna, the Lord of Tour, belide fome Townes and Gentlemen, made a league against Berne: but by the aide of the Counts of Kybourg and Arberg as also the citty of Solleurre, the men of Berne wonne a mighty battaile, at a place called, The hill of Thunder Auldrich Erlach was cheefe of the Bernish Army in that warre. During the yeares following, many of the Castles, neighbouring to the citty, were taken in war, and demolished by them of Berne. They also had victories in the warres, moued in the vale of Sim. mis, and in many other places, against the Noblemen that much molested them. whereby they greatly enlarged their limits. Also the inhabitants of the vale of Halell, who were at freeliberty, ioyned with them of Berne . This happineffe of theirs forenflamed the malice and enuy of the Noblemen against Berne, as thereon enfued the memorable battaile given Many Counts and Gentlemen, hauing

The fannus and memora le battaile guenby Count and Gentlemen, against the men of Berne at Loupen.

leuied a well prepared Army of fixteene shouland foote, and three thouland, fine hundred horse, at the least, went and befiedged Loupen, which is a small Towne appertaining to them of Berne, who were about five thousand, affisted with three hundred men of Vri, as many of Suits, as many of I'nderuald, and as many of the Vale of Hafell, Raoul Erlach being chiefe of these troopes This small number ouercame the enemy in a ranged battaile, nere to Loupen, where dyed in the fielde, the Count of Sauoye, who was fent to the Campe by his Father, onely to treate on peace : but the other constrained him to make one in the battaile. There were flaine also, the Counts of Nidow, of Arberg and Valendy fifteene hundred horfemen, among whom were fourescore Getlemen of marke, and about three thoufand foote. This hattaile was fought the 21.day of Iune, in the yeare 1339.

After this fuccessefull day, they of Berne made warre (to their aduantage) against them of Fribourg, who were vallails to the house of Anitria, and also to the Getlemen about Fribourg. For at Schonnenberg, they of Fribourg were ouerthrowne. and loft many of their men, their country forraged, and the Subburbs of their

Towne burnt. Sienow, Lanenow, Burgdorff, Longuenall, Pyrnestic, Arberg, Erlach Nidow Thun, and other Townes and great Villages, were eyther spoyled, or taken by them of Berne. Finally, Agnes Queene of Hungary, made an end of this warre, by meanes of a peace which thee compounded. In all these warres, they of Berne euer felt, that Gentlemen, no Anvnexpec better then vallails to the house of Au- ted warre of firia, most laboured to oppresse them: the of Berne whereas (contratiwise) the amity of the men of Vn Switzers did highly advantage them. But deruald, in the meane while, and contrary to their hope and expectation, they were drawne into a new warre; wherein they of Vnderuald joyned themselves with their enemies. The Lord of Kingenberg, and the Propost of the Abbey scituated betweene the two Mountaines, were Bourgeffes of Bern . They were Gouernors or Bayliffs also of that country, which lies neere to the Mountaine of Brunic, and the Lake of Brieniz.

It came to passe, that they of the country accounting the gouernment of thefe Tho reason two Lords to be rude and harsh: began of the watte to mutiny against them, and after they and procee had called to their aide the men of Inder-ding. uald, who were neere neighbors; they tooke the Castle of Ringenberg, in absence of the Lord fer it on fire, and denied the Prouost such duties and tythes, as they were accustomed to pay. They of Berne fent Ambaffadorsito exhore them of Vnderuald, not to foccour fuch feditious perfons against all right and reason. But they of Vnderuald made no reckoning of this aduertisement, but went and encamped with the feditious at Brientz. On the other fide the men of Berne having required their allies of Solleurre, Thun, Bienne, and Morat to fend them fuccour, and it being fent them; marched with all their troopes to Brientz, gaue battaile to the feditious and them of Vnderuald, compelling them to flight, and retire into the vniuth, is the neighbouring Mountaines. They of Vn- ruine ando deruald (florining at this difgrace) called their contetheir confederates of Zurich, Lucerna, deraies. Vri, Suits, Zug, and Glaris to helpe them : but they of Berne fent their Ambaffadors to those Cantons, offering the justice & equity of their cause, and to have it tried before them.

Heereupon, a day was held at Lucerna, where the Deputies of the Switzers, hauing heard the reasons aledged on either fide, commanded them of Vnderwald, to renounce their alliance with them of Brientz. On the same day, the men of them of Bern Berne made a perpetual alliance with the three Cantons, Vri, Suits, and Vnderuald. Now, although this alliance is made but with three, yet Zurich and Lucerna are comprized therein. For the three first Cantons bound themselues to succour them of Zurich & Lucerna whenfocuer they called them, and to bring with them the men of Berne, who by the same alliance are tyed thereto, if Zurich and Lucerna do desire it. In reciprocall manner they of Zurich and Lucerna promifed folemnly, to go assist (with all their power)

the men of Bern, if the three Cantons cal

Switzers out of this league, then he made his re-course to Albert, desiring him to fell Lucerna, Glaris, and Zug vnto the Empire, because the difference did concerne those three places especially. But Albert audaciously answered him; That he would rather buy fome Townes, if the Emperous would fell him any then let him have any of Once agains the Emperor preffed the Switzers, to fuffer him to end the difference, and promife to tye themselues to fuch orders as he thould fet downe, affuring them that Albert would do the like.

his for mony.

them thereto.

The thirdtime of fiedge laide to the City of

But the Switzers would not confent ther to, without plaine exception of their priuiledges; and the Emperor vrged his authority, without any referuation : by the which meanes, all this long unparlance ferued to no purpose, but only that a truce was taken for fome time. Which beging expired, the Emperor being inceffantly importuned, loyned with albert of Auitris, and befiedged Zurich. The befied-(by divers ambaffages)intreated the Em- Albertof Auperor, not to presse thus into the house of fria. Austriaes fauour) their citty, which was Imperiall : for they defired nothing but confernation of their priniledges and would not reject any composition what-hee would not doe : in which respect, the Immediately after this alliance made. Emperor raifed the fiedge, and returned the city of Zurich was beliedged agayne home. That which also moved him herethe third time. For, Albert of Austria.acto, was, because his Camp stood compocufed the Camons before the Emperout fed of foldiers who were (almost al) prest Charles the fourth who having heard the forth of Imperial Townes and Citties; & The fiege raianswer of the Cantons, made a truce, vn-(in his opinion) bare more affection to the Switzers, then to the house of Asmost fingular till his returne from a voyage, which hee was constrained to vndertake about som firia, albeit those fouldiers during the providence. affavres of the Empire. Beeing returned, fiedge) would obey none other then the he came to Zurich, where he heard either Emperor. After the Emperors departure parties, and directing himselfe vnto the the duke of Austria also speedily got him Switzers, especially to them of Zurich he gon having heard, that the other Canaduifed them to renounce this alliance: tons had fent forth supply vnto them of adding withall, that the citty was Imperi-Zurich. Neuertheleffe, hee lodged his all, and could make no alliance without troopes in Townes, Villages, and Caftles confent of the Emperor. But the conferound about, enioyning them, not to suf-fer the Cantonnes to haue any rest, but derates rendred a sufficient reason for what they had done, exhibiting their pricontinually to make incursions on theyr uiledges, and making it manifest, that the Lands. alliance contracted between them, could not any way prejudice the rightes of the Empire. Seeing he could not drive the

At length, in the fift year of this war, by authority and intermife of the emperor Charles the fourth, peace was concluded betweene the Prince of dustria, and them of Zurich. Now because it would feeme a troublesome matter, to infert heere the whole Tenure at large; we will be fatisfied with a breefe Summary of the Articles, which are thefe following.

Articles of Peace concluded on betweene the Duke of Austria and Zurich.

1. W Hatfoener hath bene taken on either fide in this Warre Mall be restored againe.

2 They of Zurich (ball not receive into

A proud anwer of Albert of Aufria to the Emperor.

socuer, if it were reasonable. Then the Emperor began to fummon

Albert to liften to a pacification which Peace made between them of Zurich, and the Duke of full pursuite of victory,against them of Fribourg and many towner mar

A fortunate

and facceffe-

A new variance conret-ning the Canton of Zug, & referred to the opinion of the Emperour.

them of Au-

the number of their Bourgesses such as remaine under the domination of the Duke of Austria: but if any will retire themselves to Zurich, they may be receyued. Prouided, that they bee of the number of them, which the Cittie might receive, before this peace was made.

3 Such as hold any other way then in fee-Service , Shall be under the instice of the lords of those Fees . And they which make we of another mans possessions, shall surrender them, or shal stand bound to answer the same in Law : except it be for the goods of the ba-

4 From hence farward, they of Zurich Shall not ally themselves with the servantes of the Duke of Austria: or contrariwise they hallhelpe to recover his rights.

& If any difference happen to bee maoued, hetweene the Duke and the Cantons: It is ordained before hand, that some Judges shall consider on the cause.

6 Those alliances which the Switzers have made together Shall remaine in their ful power and integrity.

There are divers other Articles in this pacification: but I am onely contented with these, as beeing the principall and cheefest.

It fell out, that divers interpretations were made vpon this agreement, which likewise begat new contentions : yet they were fill qualified, before they came to hand-blowes, for either fides purfe being emptied of money, and their forces fayling, made them virwilling to heare of any more warre. Albert Bucheimer, Lieutenant to the duke of Austria, preffed them of Zug, to give their oath of fidelity vnto his Prince, which they would not do, but with exception of their alliance made with the Cantons or elfe to ftand acquitted by the fayde Cantons, to whom they had given their faith . This difference was referred to the Emperor Charles the fourth, who finally gave judgement, that they of Zug fhould fland exempted from alliance with the Catons: because (quoth he) the Articles of pacification doe declare, that the Switzers shall not possesse any of the Dukes Towns, neyther hinder any way his gouernment in them.

Now, although this fentence was greatly greenous to the Switzers, confidering, that in one of the Articles, the alliances made, were (by name) excep. The Switzen ted, and onely ordained, that no new Al- | being wearie liances should be made with the vassails to the house of Austria: yet notwithstanding, they were so ouer glutted with war, as they wereyon the point to leaue Zug more trouble to the Duke of Austria + if they of Suites (who had not (as yet) figned the neace) had not opposed themselves againstit. They then fod ainly gathered their troops together, and went to Zug, demaunding againe the faith of the Citizens, who for their part) had fent their Deputy to Suits to require confirmation of the faith first given. This done, after fome long debating and confulting, it was at length concluded; by meanes of the Lorde of Tarberg , that truce should be confirmed for the death of the space of eleuen yeares, which was till Albert. after the decease of Albert. During this truce, they of Zuz and Glaris continued allved with the Switzers, and althat while were thereunto fubicat, acquitting themfelues of all duties due to the house of Austria. The Duke received from Suits a man, from foure yeares to foure yeares, whom hee confirmed Amman or Major at Zug: And he gaue as Gouernour vnto them of Glaris, Godfrey Mulner of Zurich. Afterward, the truce being expired, it was againe confirmed for a longer

The fonne of Albert, named Leopolde greatly hated the Switzers ; but he durft | war made by not meddle with them , leaft hee should the English gaine as little thereby, as his Father had the Switzer done. And therefore he would workehis will by others, fetting the Switzers at variance with the Englishmen, who having fooiled the country about the kheine, entred into Swetia, where they did as much harme to the Austrians, as to the Cantons. But having bin beaten in some incounters, after they had forraged in Swetia, and all the countrey about Montbeliz ard Bafile, Strasbourg, and run into diuers other places, they retired home to their own houses, & hapned Anno 1376.

Six years after war was moued against the Count of Kybourg. Hee was enforced Warmale to take (by treason) the Towne of Sol gainfile luerre, allyed with the men of Berne, and Count of K at the very fame time, they of Austria bourg. would have furprized Dun and Arberg, Townes appertaining to the Canton of Bern. Confequently the Count of Kyburg of war, would yeeld to their owne injurie;

cluded on for

v Leopold of Auftria, acainft the Switzers.

nonftrous

To ruinate

the people

they must bee

Chap.7.

Tyrants neer want exe. crable and

The Lucernians manhood at Rottem made open war ypon them of Solleurre, to whome they of Berne and the other Cantons fent Supply. The Duke of Aufria, who (fo lately before) had made alliance with the Switzers, fortified (vnder hand) the Count of Kybourg, and (contrary to his faith) furnithed him with victuals, and other necessaries for warre. Neuertheleffe, the Count was not able to endure the burchen of amity agreed on betweene them of Sollewire and Bern. but fold them Burgdorff stor the fumme offorty thousand Crownes.

The Duke of Austria had a difference, periall Cities and Townes. They made a league, wherein Zurich, Berne, Solluerre, and Zug were comprehended: but the Duke brake all in funder by his cunning deuices, pacifying himfelfe amiably with the Townes of Suaba and Franconia, And as for the Townes on this fide the Rheine in Halfatia, hee conquered them in one battell. This victory did so advance his hopes, as he began to confult with himfelfe, how to bring the Townes of Swetia vnder his obedience, and the occasion of the warre grew thus. Peter of Torberg, Gouernour of Wolhoufe, and in the Vale of Entlibuch and Herman Grunenberg .gouernout of Rattenbourg for the Duke of Austria, who had engaged these places vnto them, tyranized on the people, and did many outrages to the neighbours of the Lucernians. The people being tyrannically dealt with all, fent men to Lucerna, to defire acceptation into their Bour guership. But the two Governours ha uing discouered it, caused the Deputies to be hanged, and all them that had anie hand in the matter, recompencing them with death, that had faithfully imployed their paines, to give life agains to theyr languishing countrey of Moreover, they imposed new passage Tolles at Rottembourg on the Switzers, or elfe they might haue no passage there.

The Lucernians, too much prouoked by to many injuries, being ayded by the men of Suits Fri and Knderuald : made themselves matters of Rottembourg, the 29 day of December, in the yeare, 138; spoyling the Castle, which Grunenberg had fortaken. They did likewife beate downe the walles of the Towne, and filled vppe the Ditches : for feare least the Austrians should lodge any Garrison, there, wherewith to mollest the Lucernians againe. Some short while after they of Sempach were received into Fellow-Bourgeship with the Lucernians, & two hundred men were put in garrison by the Lucernians, into the Town of Richenfee : Richenfee to but the Lieutenants to the Duke of du burnt, and all stria, having fodainely louised an Armie, in it flame or tooke the Towne by affault, cut & throats burned, by of the whole Garrison, put most part of frie the inhabitants to the fword, burned all the rest aline, in the same fire wherewith the Towne was embraced, fliewing po in what manner I know not with the Impitty to aged, ficke women, or children. On the other fide, al the Cantons, except Bern, took a place in those parts, named Meyenberg, & there planted a garifon bur the Austrians (faigning a flight) drew the Switzers foldiers forth into the ope field. where they flewe fourescore and one of them, and compelled the reit to retyre foeedily into the Towne. The Cantons aduertifed heereof, called their people together let fire on the Towne and Caftle.

leauing not a iote of them ynruined. Their beginnings and entrances into warre, federed to threaten the Switzers with a farre greater confusion: & therefore, they of Austria made their preparations carefully, yet with great pomp, and enery day (by Letters and Heraulds) denounced warre against the Switzers, at the beginning of the enfining yeare. The Switzers confidered likewife on their owne affaires, and prouided to fet vpon all those enemies which had enclosed the round about. The men of Berne, who had not boudge as yet, beeing follicited by many mellages from their confederates: ruined two Castles, to wit, Torberg, and Kopping, belonging to Peter of Torberg. They of Lucerna, Vri, Suits, and Finderwald, spoyled the Castle and Towne of The Confe-Woolhowfeans alto Liele, Rinach and Balden derates ioyne The men of zwich joyned their forces their powers with the Cantons, and after they had together, made some courses & waste in the countries neerest to their limits: in retiring backe, they tooke (by affault) the Caffle of Rumelange, and let it bu fire. And because the Duke of Austriannade the muflering of his people, especially at Brue &:

Bada, neore to Zurich : it was imagined,

that he would go and beliedge that Citic alfo. And this was the reason, why the

Chap.7.

Cownes diui-

ded from Ap

penzel to take part with the

Abbot, yet foi-led in fight

Anew warre

hapning be-fredericke of war of the

Switzers, for the recoverie

of Bellizona,

rom the dake

of Millaine.

The battell a Sempach,in Dof Auftria and 676. gen tlemen were flame in the plaine field.

to succour them of Zurich. Duke Leopold understanding that such a Garrison was at Zurich, marched sodainly with his army towardes the Cantons, which feemed then naked of the most part of their troopes. But this enterprize was discouered by their spies, & therefore left the citty of Zurich, in the cittizens guard, and returned back those fixteene hundred men which marched under their Enlignes day and night; and fo diligently, that they arrived at Sempache, even at the fame instant as the duke came to lodge his troops there. That day was the ninth of July, and battell was giuen the very same day, wherein Leopold fonne to Albert the wife, and Nephew or youngest childe to the Emperor Albert, was flaine in open field, with fix hundred Seventy six Gentlemen, whereof there were three hundred and fifty more remarkable then the rest by reason of theyr Helmes and Burganets, beautified with Coronets and goodly plumes . After fo faire a victory, the Cantons began to extend their strength thoroughout all Swetia, and chastifed such as hadde forraged their country, pilled the Citizens, & moued Warre vpon no occasion: many cafiles were ruinated, and many Towns ta-

foure Cantons fent fixteen hundred men

Truce fully agreed vpon for the ipace of a year, but being expired new quarrels arole againe.

In the yeare, one thousand, three hundred, fourescore, and seauen, the second day of the moneth of February, truce was agreed on for a yeare, by the entermise of some Townes. The times of truce being expired, the citizens of Wefen, on the Lake de Rine, deliuered vp their Cittie to them of Austria, who slew the Switzers that were there in Garrison . Afterward, the enemy (with great forces) to the num ber of eight thousand at the least, set vpon the Landes of Glaris the ninth day of Aprill. Some fay, that they were about fixteene thousand men, conducted by Donatus Count of Togge, Peter of Torberg, John of Klingenberg, John Counte of Werdenberg, Lord of Sargans. This last man made choyle of two thousand men, which he brought by Beglinge, to enclose the Swirzers and make them turne theyr backes with (hame. The other marched boldly on towards the Walles, which they of Glaris had fortified and made strong their countries entrance the yeare before, gayning thereby fuch affurance of the wall, as the victory was almost intirely in their hand; yet they beganne to pillage, and burne all that was about them. Meane while they of Glaris met together in a neere neighbouring Mountaine, to the number of three hundred and fifty, and thirty belide. which they of Suits had fent from the nerest valley. This ouer-little Troope, by greatnesse of corage and resolution, met with the enemy in a verie narrow passage; where they faluted them with fuch impetuous formes of great stones, & whereof the place affoorded no scarsity:as, drawing them into a place more open, they pressed and pursued on them with such by 380,5mm extreame boldnesse; that the great armie was forced to flight, after they had rene- to their liberwed the charge eleanen fenerall times, y as the Annales of Glaris do tellify, for, fo often did the enemy labour still to fet vpon them.

The Count of Werdenberg, looking from the height of a Mountaine (which hee had betaken himfelfe vnto) and perceyving the overthrow of his affociates, faued his owne flake, as fwiftly as he poffibly could. There were two thousand enemies flaine in this battaile and about fine hundred evere drowned in the Lake: because the multitude of Runne-awayes, brake downe the Bridge in theyr hafte, whereby they thould passe from Glaris to

After this battell, the Cantons shewe ed themselves still in many other skirmithes against the Austrians, taking towns and Castles, either by force or composi- Townerson tion; but they fought no more battels. For by entremile of the Cittles of Constance, but no more Werlingen, Rauenspourg, & Rotuille, truce barrels giuca was taken for seauen yeares : and afterwards it was prolonged, euen fo farre as for the space of twentie yeares; and finally, peace was made for the terme of fiftic yeares.

Peace being oftablished for such length of time brought fome more case & quyetneffe to the Cantons. But in the yeare of the water one thousand, four e hundered and one, of Appenral, the war of Appenzelbegan, & continued and how long feuen whole yeares. Appentel is a Region it continued of Swetia, feated neere vnto the Alpes, toyvardes the East, and on the Head of the Lake of Constance. At this day, it is one of the thirteene Cantons ; but as then it was no way allved with the Switzers: it onely acknowledged (as a Lord) the Abbot of S.Gall, who was then called, Cuno de Stouffen. Some difference happened between the Abbot and them of Appenzell, and after it had long time bene debated in Lawe before Indges; they fell at length to pleade theyr cause at the swords point. The Townes neerest to the Lake of Constance, did take part with the Abbot, who had fundered them from the men of Appenzel, with whom they were allyed and combined. The Abbot having leuied an army of the inhabitants of those townes, gaue battell to the men of Appenzel, who ouer-came them, droue them in diforder, with great loffe of their men.

After this foile, they of S. Gal, of Appenzel, and of Suits, affociated thefelues together. The Duke of Austria joyned with the Abbot; but they of Appenzel prooued still victorious in all other encounters. And after they had conquered a great part of the country, about them, ruined many Castles, and taken divers Townes: at length they compeld the Abbot to craue peace, & leave them in their wonted liberty.

Seuen yeares after these trobles were ended, a new warre kindled it felfe, betweene Frederick of Austria and the Can Cantons, and tons. The occasion was because Fredericke had carried away (from foorth the Councel of Constance) Pope John the 22. He was put to banishment from the Empire, and excommunicated by the councell. By this decree of the Emperour, and of the Councell, the peace for 50 yeares was broken, the Cantons absolued of their Oath, and commandement giuen them to take armes against the Emperor: which they did, and tooke in that warre Riberstein, Bada, and other places belonging to them of Austria.

In the yeare, 1422, the Switzers ledde their army by the Alpes, and by the Grifons, to befiedge Bellizona; it beeing a Towns which the Count of Monfax had fold to them of Suites, Vri & Vnderusld. The Duke of Millaine feemed to fay, that this place appertained to him; and thereupon tooke it by intelligence. To recouer it againe, the Switzers conducted their army thither this yeare, then in An. no 1425. and the year following alfo. But they could not take the Towne notwithstanding, they made hauocke, and forraged the Valleyes round about neighbouring, and belonging vnto the Duke of Millaine.

But in the yeare, 1436, they of Austria, Cunning deby cunning trickes and fubtle deutices rai-fed a great civill warre among the Swit-ouerthrowthe zers. First, betweene the Canton of Zu- people. rich and the men of Suits, to whom (foon after) the other confederats joyned them sclues. The Duke of Austria (first of all) ranked himselfe with them of Suits: and then (foone after) made alliance with the men of Zurich, and gaue them assistance There were fome encounters, and the Switzers besiedged Zurich : but ther was no battaile more memorable, then that which (not long after) was given at Bafile, the yeare, 1444. and the 26. day of August.

The Dolphine of France, vvho vvas afterward King, named Lewes the 11.had brought a puillant army betweene Montbeliard and Basile; provided partly by the practifes of Pope Engenius, to breake the Councell of Bafile, and partly by the em- The battell of peror Frederick, as withing well vnto the Switzers Switzers. Sixteene hundred Switzers en-Armignaes tred into battell against that great armie, before Basiles and made a terrible flaughter of them. True it is, that all the fixteene hundered men were flaine likewife, as beeing onerborne with the meere multitude of their enemies; but they brake the whole armie in fuch fort, as they forfooke all Germanie immediately, to get themselues into France againe. This memorable day, might well be compared with the battell of the Lacedemonians, at their passage "A verie long of the Thermopyla, confidering the mag-nanimity of fo finall a number: who, for the fafety of their country (euen all Ger-dia, thorough many) opposed themselves valiantly, at the middle of Greecesto the gainst an infinitie of enemies. In these Egeansea ciuill Warres were made many Truces, which was the cause, why such as have vvritten thereof, do not agree together in the computation of the yeares. The common opinion is, that this war lafted fenen yeares: but it began in the yeare, 1436. & firme peace was made and ratified in An-

A yeare after this peace, the Abbot of Swizers with S. Gallmade alliance with four Cantons of their friendes & confederate no,1450.

A bargaine made,but without any certainty.

of the Switzers . And the yeare following, they of Appenzel allyed themselues with feauen Cantons. And again, a yeare after, the Citty of Saint Gall, with fixe Cantons. Confequently, and in the year one thousand, soure hundred, fifty soure, the men of Schaffouze allyed themselves with the fixe Cantons. But I shall make better mention of these alliances heereafter, and in apter manner.

Warre by th Switzers, 2. gainft Sigifmond, Duke of Austria.

Articles of

downe in wri

til g,yet war

on againc.

calued there-

peace let

These alliances were no sooner made but a new warre beganne to shew it selfe, against Sigismond Duke of Austria. Pope Pius had excommunicated him, I know not yoon what occasion, and so incited the Switzers to warre. On the other fide. the Lords of Grandler, brethren of Gratz 2 Towne in Styria, having bene dispoiled of their goods by Sigifmond, defired ayde of them of Zurich, who had receyued them into the number of their Burgeffes. Then the Switzers went and affaulted Winterduer, tooke Rasperwell, Diessenow, Frawenfeld, and Turgaw. In the end, peace was made. Anno 1460 by the meanes of Lewes Duke of Banaria. Afterward in the yeare, 1466. certaine Articles of peace & mutuall amity, were fet downe in Writing. Two yeares after, war was renewed against the Duke of Austria, so that the Switzers led their troopes towardes the Towns of Mulhoufe, on the Frontiers of I a Franche Comté. This Town had made alliance with the Cantons fome moneths before: and in the same yeare, a Towne vpon the Rheine, neere to Bafile, named Waltzhut, was befiedged by the Swit-

In the yeare one thousand, foure hun-

ginning of scuenty seauen, by reason of the Dukes death, who was flaine in Lor.

raine. The Princes of Austria were the fparkes to kindle this war. For Sigifmond

Duke of Austria, having ill performed his businesse in warre, which he main sai-nedfolong a time against the Switzers, was confrained to agree with them, although much against his minde. In the meane while, to torment them by some other meanes, he engaged those Landes

dred seventy foure, began the Switzers Warre of the warre against Charles Duke of Burgonyne. Switzers a-gainst the D. It grew hot, and wonderfull sharp, in the yeare feuenty fixe, for two battailes were of Burgundie. fought, in both which the duke was vanquiffied; but it tooke ending at the be-which hee helde in La Franche Comne (as Montheliard and Bafile, neighbors to the Switzers) to Charles Duke of Bourgongn, file to the D. the most potent Prince of his time, ad- of Burgunde, uenturous, and of an high hand. Sigifmond perswaded himselfe, that (as manie times it fals out among neighbours) some difference would shortly grow betweene Duke Charles and the Switzers: for they had fent Ambassadours to the Duke, to pray him renew the ancient amity of the house of Bourgongne with the Switzers, and confirme the Articles of peace, not long before concluded with Sigismond, in so much as concerned the engaged countries. But the ambaffadors could neuer gaine accesse to the Prince, in regard of their hinderance by Hagenbach, chiefe Minion to the Duke of Bourgongne, and established Governor by him over those countries. This Hagenbach was the principall fire-brand wherby to kindle this war; for he gaue many outragious words vnto ding on Printhe Switzers. & daily kept company with css. are often theyr enemies as Heudorff Eptinger, and times fire. fome other Gentlemen, who had threatned the Switzers with war. Hee tyranized also cruelly in those pawned countries, fo that the poore subjects who vvere able to performe no more, intreated most earnestly Duke Sigismond, their ancient Lord, to difingage them,& receive them againe under his governement. This request was quickly granted them by Sigismond, a Prince verie benigne, and (for his facility) fir-named the firmance the Simple.

But the Duke of Bourgongne defired not to purffe the money againe. And on the other fide, the tiranny of Hagenbach fill increased, so that hee grevy insupportable to the people, & neighboring lords. There were fome other thornes between the Switzers and the D.of Bourgongne: The Switzers because Count Ramons being fernant vnto of oppretion. him, had fent away divers chariots from them, laden with Hides. In the mean vvhile King Lewes the elementh, vvho de= fired not greatly the Dukes life, and had prooued (necre to Bafile) the valour of the Switzers horsemen, made alliance with them. And although himfelf would not meddle with the warre, yet he could whet on the Switzers, and (by vaderhand trickes) furnish them with money, to the end that necessity should not inforce any pacifi-

bule their

Harred& enmity of great

That Duke fir peror and the Germaines: turned all his named the Terrible,felte forces youn the Switzers , and theyr Alat length the trueth of this fentence; Shame & derudion doe alwaies follow after pride .

pacification. He accorded Sigifmond likewife with the Switzers and made an Alliance betweene them. Soone after Rene Duke of Lorraine, Strasbourg, and Bafile, with theyr Bythoppes; Golmar, Selestad, Montbeliard, and some other cities, joyned themselves likewise into this confederacy.

appertained to him, and therefore planted his fiedge before Nuff, about Cologne.

The Emperor Fredericke, accompanyed

with the Empires forces, encamped nero vnto him, to fight with him. And, according to right and maiefty of the Empire,

fent vnto the Switzers and their confederates, to affault (on their fide) the Duke of Bourgongne, that his forces might be broken and scattered & But immediately after, hee shewed himselfe to bee of the house of Austria, and (consequently), an enemy to the Cantons. For fo foone as the Switzers were entered into Bour-gongne, and had won a battel, and taken fome Townes, hee made peace with the Duke of Bourgongne, wherein the Princes of the Empire were comprized, and the Townes which had fuccored the Em-perour in this warre. But the confederats were excluded, to wit, Duke Sigifmond,

Duke René, the Cantons, and the forenal

Duke Charles, beeing deliuered from

There were some encounters on the warre which he had against the Em

either fide : but the very greatest effortes

and valour, shewed themselves in three battailes, whereat the Duke himfelf was present in person. The first was fought at Granfon, necre to the Lake of Ynerdun.

which (at this day) is called the Lake of Newcastle. This Towne had bene taken by the Switzers, and restaken againe by them vpon composition : neuerthelessel med Townes.

Hagenbach bad the wages villany and op pression: & fo may all other fpeede, that a.

Chap. 7.

Souldiers of his Garrison but (soone after) heo received wages answerable vnto his owne perfidie and cruelty, the Switzers ouercomming him in a fielde of battaile. True it is, that then he loft not many of his men, for the Canalerie fuffay- fought at tied, and meerely courred the Infantery Granfon, During this time, Hagenbach was taken in a place named Brillac, and the D. beeing broken and difordered, and the due vitto his of Austria having configned the money Switzers had not their Horfemen there. at Bafile, for which hee had engaged his because they came not at a convenient countries, re-entred upon poffession of time: yet notwithstanding, the Duke of them, and (by fentence) caused Hagen. Bourgongne lost his baggage, wherein bach to be condemnd, and his head pubhee had great flore of Riches and Treslikely finiteen off. Contrarywise, Duke Charles made warre vppon the bythop of Then afterwardes, there was another Cologne, pretending, that the Prouoftes Office, or protection of the Bythopprick battaile fought at Morat, necre to Berne: The battell the Switzers (after a great ouerthrow of fought at Motheir enemies) wonne the day, and it is fayde, that eighteene thousand Bourguignens lay flaine in the fielde; and to this day, there is still to be seene huge heapes of dead mens bones, as a credible Testi-

the Duke of Bourgongne (contrarie to)

mony of that victory.

The third battaile, was fought before The banell Nancy in Lorraine, befiedged by the duke of Bourgongne: but the Switzers fant in Charles of fuccour vnto the Dake Rene of Lorraine, Burgundie (who had fixe hundered men at Armes) well neere all Frenchmen well prouided) eight thousand foot, and the other confederates three thousande more. With all these forces Duke Rene gaue battell to Charles, who had many more to attend him: neuertheleffe, he was ouercome, & (in flight)flaine by the Switzers, and fo (with him) dved all this warre. A yeare after, the Switzers paffed the " Leopantine | "Lepontii Alps, which mountaine is now called S. Godard, & went to give battell to the D. the Salati. of Millain in a place named Jornico. The occasion of the war, was, because the inhabitants of the valley towardes for mice. fibiects to the Canton of Vri complaind of divers outrages doone them by theyr neighbours, who mollesters and troubled them in the vse and possession of certaine kenby the Forrests. The Switzers Ambassadours, Switzers, abeing vitable to reconcile this difference, sainft the D. of Millaine. the men of Viv. craued fuccour of theyr. confederates, and ledde their Armie to Bellizona. 11 But because they could not befiedgait in regard of the winter: they lefte fixe hundered men in Gartifon at tornico, which is not farre from thence his promise) hanged and drowned the reople of the

Thefe

concluded on

They of Mil-

laine goe a-gainst the Switzers, and a battaile is tought.

Pope Sixtus

allyeth with

the Switzers,

& gives them

large pardons

These two places are vpon the Telinus, a River passing thwart the Lake Major, and So goes to Paula.

The Millaineles came in great troops, to fet vpon the Garrison of the Switzers, which being thur vo in the straites of the Mountaines: the more foeedily and easily flew fourteene hundred of them, and chased the rest quite out of the Valley. This battaile was fought about the third day of November . 1478. And in the Moneth of December following, by the intermife of the King of France, peace was made betweene the Duke of Millaine, & the Switzers. In the fame yeare, Pope Sixtus made alliance with the Switzers, and beside other priniledges, he gaue the alfo strong pardons. Two yeares after, the Switzers fent feuen thousand men, to aide King Lowes the eleventh, according to the tenour of the alliance before contracted. But they having paffed fo farre as Chaalous, the King (who had obtained the height of his enterprise) having then no occasion elsewhere to imploy them; fent them backe againe with very good recompences: where-with many of them were for carneftly allored, that they strong among themselves, who should first take penfions or wages of the French.

The yeare after, they of Zurich, Berne,

Lucerna, Friboury, and Solleurres made a

The feedes of warre anions the Switzers, quite (mothered by means of a Hermit.

particular alliance, because they conceined that their affociates had carried thefelues inhumanely on their behalfe, in the war against the Duke of Bourgongne. For the forenamed citties and townes had hin at great charges, as well for conduct of their victuals, as also the carriage of the Artillery: moreover, they turnifhed more people, then the other canrons did. Neuertheleffe, when they fhold divide the spoile and boory, which was! very great and rich; the cantons that had defraied nothing, neither brought any fuch number of then, tooke their part of the booty by equal portion. In regard of which injury (as they pretended it) and some other hight offences sthese circ ties and towner, eleftring to prouide pareicularly for elicir owne affaires; allied themselves anely together. But the other cantons were heereat greatly offended. especially, they of Viri, Suites, and Vaderwald: maintaining, that it was not law-full for the Lucernians, to make any new alliance without their knowledge and ം ക്രാം ക്രാംഗത്ത് confent.

This matter was debated divers daies together, in a Councell holden at Stantz in Vnderuald; and finally by the meanes of an Hermit, named Nicholas of Vaderwald (who was then in verie great autho- by the Hemin rity among the Switzers, by they refolued opinion of him, that hee was a holie man) the parties were accorded to conditions, to witte; That the fore-named Townes should depart from that nouell alliance, and altogether (by a common confent) should agree on causes then debated; as that Pribourg and Solleurre, should bee received into the number of the Cantonnes of Swetta, fo that there should be tenne Cantons: And because the former eight (which were and are called the olde Cantons, because they allyed themselves together before the other) had made a bodie of a Commonwealth together of the Switzers; for the space of lixe score and fine yeares. or thereabout in I will heere for downe a Summarie of the articles of the alliances which those olde Cantons made, and of that which was subscribed yord at Stant z. by a common confent among the Cantons. a mode of a service of and their bridge A briefe Shamary of the Alliances and Confederations made betweene the 8. Ancient Cantons 1 in of Swetia.

a legali sar

the principall & first Chapter or Article of the leagues the aide and succour which one ought to give another, public affair pub against such as wrongfully shall affayle them: wherein all thinges are veric well ordered, govierned by equity, and according to reason. Por, to the end that no warre may be lightly mooned, and vpon finall or flender occasions; It is first of all ordained that the Cantons which are offended, shall make knowne the merite of the cause to the Councell in generall for that Canton established. And then, if it do appeare, that offence and out rage is done, it may demaund succour and afChap.7.

Concerning'

Euery Can-

In fome other alliances, namely, that of Glaris, this knowledge is deferred to Vri,Suits, and Vnderuald.

The Lucerni

All the Cantons have no their rights

he alliance of other allyed Cantons . After that the equity of the cause hath appeared. & the ourrage received: the Canton interreffed, may require the Confederates to come and helpe it. In the interim, the Caton may not make recourse to whom it liketh best; but onely to that which is ton is not alliallyed to it in some especiall manner. For (as I have hitherto thewne) every one of the Cantons is not allyed with all the other. In the first place, concerning them of Zurich, allyed by antiquity with fix of the cheefest Cantons; they may demand ayde of all those fixe. Since then, they made alliance with them of Berne:and fo (by consequent) they are bound likewise to give them assistance, being therto required. The Bernishmen may call vnto their assistance, them of Vri, Suites, and Vnderuald, by reason of ancient alliance: and they (reciprocally) may cal to their ayde, and for their other confederats the Canton of Berne. But by reason of the new league, they of Zurich and Berne, must require ayde one of another. The Lucernians (in times of hecessitie) may haue recourse to the men of Zurich, Vri, Suits, Vinderuald, and Zug. They of Vri, Suits, and Vndernald, may call all the other Cantons. And they of Zug haue the fame right as the Lucernians, that is, to

> Now, although that all haue not their rights alike heerein; yet notwithstanding if one Canton require one or two of his allies to come and fuccour him: all the Cantons must affemble together, because they which are first called, shall give aduertisement to the other. But, aboue all things, they shal fend their Ambassadors to the Chappell of the Hermitage, or to a place named Kienholtz, and if question bee made of an acte, which concerneth themen of Berne; they must aduise altogether (by all meanes) to appeale the difference in friendly manner, or according vnto right, or (if it may not fo bee done) how they may affuredly gine fuccharge put in age.

require aide from the Cantones of Zurich, Vri, Suits, Vnderuald, and Lucerna.

They of Glaris, have recourse vnto the Cantons of Zurich, Vri, Suits, & Vnder-

cour. Their alliance speaketh expresse- | No trand or ly, that fuch as are called voto affiftance, thall not vie any fraude or deceit, neither / fuecour any frinolous or vaine excute, but to affift with all their power.

And because it may so happen, that a Canton shall bee so sodainly assayled at Canton shall bee vnawares, as the enemy may floppe all be todainly of the paffages, and fo (by confequent) the fulled by the Canton can compasse no meanes of cra- enemie, and uing fuccour, neyther by Letters or Am- | when no help baffages. For this it is provided and expressely ordained, that in such a case, and when most neede is of speedyest helpe;al the confederate Cantons, shall affist with all their forces, euen as if they had beene (by name) called thereto. In the alliance with them of Berne, it is ordained; That if the enemie affault the higher countrie, the confederates shall make spoile on the other, vpon the Landes of the enemie: thereby to scatter his forces. And the fame to bee done in the higher countreys if the enemie intrude vppon the lower.

Aide on they
They that are called to fuccour, shall own expuse, come at their owne expences, and without any wages. Onely in the alliance of wages, or elfe what wages is Berne, with Vri, Suites, and Vnderuald, what wages is to be received mention is made of Wages, Namely, of a Sol Tournois (each day) for eueric man on foote. Neuerthelesse, if the Warre be in the countrey of Ergow, then they of Berne shall pay nothing. But there is a Village or Hamlet, necre vnto the first Lake of the River Ar, which is called Vnderfee beyonde which, fuch foote Souldiours as come to affift the one or other partie, shall receive that aforesaid Wa-

If the warre last of any continuance b and that they must befiedge and batter For a warre fome Towne, Village, or Caffle, and of long laftthe same is fully concluded and agreed ing, and befie vppon, by common confent and aducer sing Townes, of the Cantones: then that Canton, or Caffles. in whose fauour, and on whose limites, the Towne or Castle of the Enemie is befiedged, shall pay onely the charge and expences, as well for munition, pouder, conuoy of Artillerie, Pionners, as all other things necessarie and requisite in a batterie . Neuerthelesse, if the Warre bee vndertaken, not onelie in the name of one caton, but y vnder name of the Switzers whole Commonwealth: other many to Y2

vied in giuing

then

A particular mbination of tome Cantons by themfelues from the reft.

Of wrong

whole Nation, or in par-ticular in pla-ces farre di-

Orders for the Soldiou

of the Swire

zers.

then they shal every one pay their shares hended on the lands of one of the Cantons: hand shall be laid on them, & they haue offended. Finally to preuent & hinther they lift: in many alliances, the licour other, are prescribed and determi-

The fecond Article concerneth put like contro. uerfics.

Iudges chofe define varia tions, and a Supetarbitra tor added to them.

Likewise it comes to passe many times, that some such as dwel far off from Swetia, doth offer wrong to the whole Nation, or to one part in particular; in the meane time, no knowledge is had how to purfue this warre, evther because the enemy is too farre distant, or keepeth no certaine abiding, where he may bee dealt withall. For fuch it is ordained that any alliance or confederacie, without if (by any occasion) they, their goods, or any of their complices can bee appreconstrained to satisfie them whom they der that none shall abuse or be abused by the Switzers Soldiers, leading them whemits wherein some stand bound to sucned. The limits are partly to the Cantons confines, according to their extendure foorth, or a little more further out : but they may not passe the ancient bounds of

The second Chapter or Article, is touthing publike differences or controuerfies, between two Cantons or more. Forasmuch as it cannot be otherwise, but the very best friends and confederates, may fometimes have cause to dislovne & sunder: our predecessors did denise, to stay the confequence of fuch differences, to wit that no warre should follow, as fearing lefte alliance and kindnesse might thereby perish, & vtterly be broken. First then it is ordained, that the other Cantons shall send their Ambassadours, to take order, that the variance may amiably be ended, or according to right, and it is established to be administred in manner following. Each party shall chuse two Judges of his owne Canton, to whom they thall promife by oath, that without any affection or lone to their country, they will judge on the difference. To thefe foure Judges, a fift must bee added, named Vnipire or Superarbitrators who to maintenance & confernation of peace is elected fometimes by the Iudges, and and quietnesse. There is one for the put fometimes by the parties. If the one canton will not vndergo judgement, nor fuffer his right to bee examined: the other cantons stand bound by alliance, to succour him that confents, that the controuersie should bee ended by the Arbitra-

The third Chapter or Article, concerneth alliances. The foure first Cantons do determine, that it is not lawfull for a- alliances, and ny one among them (without the will & beginning with the four confent of the other; to bind themselues by Oath, or make alliance with any, whofocuer it is . Likewife, in the alliance of Glaris, it is faide, that they may not make confent of the other Leaguers. For otherwise the other Cantons may referue to themselves, the liberty and authoritie of making new alliances, yet leaving (in meane while) the ancient stil in ful force. They kept also the freedome, for increafing and diminishing their alliances, by augment and a publike and common consent. And ordained in like manner, that these allianand alliance. ces might bee renewed by writing, or by word of mouth, and to bee confirmed by Oath, if neede required, from fine or ten to an hundred yeares. If this might not bee done commodiously, yet notwithstanding, they were to be observed firm-

In the fourth place, are added excepti- The fourth ons, because certaine Cantones, which Articleses anciently did concerne the Empire; as Lurich, Berne, Vri, Suites, and Ynderuald, obscurdin excepted the Empire, and the rightes the alliances thereof, from which they pretended no derogation by this alliance, in any manner whatfoener.

Lucerna and Zug, excepted the rites of the Duke of Austria. By the alliance of Glaris, are excepted all rights and deuoires due vnto lawfull Lords and Magistrates. Likewise, in all these confederations, are excepted the ancient alliances, rights, priniledges, and customes of the Cantons, together with their Castles, Villages, and Hamlets: fo that those rights remaine found and intire to everie

Now, although the other Chapters and Articles are not of any such importance; yet notwithstanding, they tend micide and nishing of homicides or Men-killers . heiss of ot-Hee that killeth any one of the Con-fence. federates. Thall loofe his head, except hee can make good proofe, that hee did it in defence of his owne bodie, and for first Cantons

Concerning debts,pawnes

ding to the award and cen

Chap.7.

Matters too largely dila-ted, do mani times breed

The Tenor of the Arrest or Agreement made at Stantz.

The first Article is for pa-cification of wars that may happe among the Cantons and of differences betweene particular perform

Irft, we ordaine, that no one this we obtaine; that no one of the eight Cantons, either of the eight Cantons, either thall enterprize to make war on any one of the faid Cantons.

tons, or any other loyned there-with in this alliance. Neither thal offer anywrong fafery of his life. Who focuer (halbe conto their bodies, goods. Townes, Coundemned and banished from his Canton. shall stand banished and excluded also from the countries of the other Catons: and wholocuer lodgeth or assisteth anie fuch person, shall be guilty and punished in some other nature. There is another Article, which prohibiteth the exacting or vrging of names to wit, if any Lay-man attempt to pay himselfe in his debtes. by the name or meanes of Judges of the Church: onely causes Matrimoniall, and manifest Vsury, are to be referred, and fent to the Court for the Church. No man shall exact a pawne of any one, except of his debter, or him that flandeth pledge for him Neither thall he receive pawnes of his owne prinate authority, but by confent of the ludge. No one shall engage himselfe for another man.

Concerning judgements, it is orday-Of judgments ned, that each man may have, & affigne his Judge. He that shall not appeare according to the affignation, but falleth into default, and interreffeth the contrarie party by his absence, shall pay his charges. Causes shall be pleaded in the Audience Hall of the Canton, where the acte makes mention of the deed doing. Iuflice is to be done without fraude or deceite. And euerie man shall content him in the Citties, Townes, or Countries of fent of the felfe with the indgements, Lawes, and customes of the Canton, where his cause is pleaded.

Although that these Articles, and other fuch like, may feeme to bee of fmall consequence: yet notwithstanding, because thereby (oftentimes) great debates do arife, yea, warres with our alliances. in discouring them distinctly & at large, it contents me (for mine owne part) that I have thus breefely & fummarily tought them.

treyes, or people, nor robbe or defpoile them of any thing to them appertaining. If any one of the eight Cantons (hall do otherwife (which God forbid) and ontrage any of the other. To the end it may bee remedied, and order given that our alliance may remaine firme, fo that wee may line together in peace like Bretheren : all the other Cantons shall ranke themselves with that which is offended. and conferne the rights thereof, in good faith, and without any fraud. And if fome particular person, or many together, hal doe wrong or injurie voto fome other particular body: that then speedily, and without any contradiction, they shall be chastised by their Magistrate (in vyhat place focuer it is) according to the quality of the offence, and as they have deferued. Neuertheleffe, if any one shall Of insolencommit fuch infolences upon the iurifdiction of another, and moue it to be trou- nidictions of bled, answere may bee made him in the other men. very fame place, and he inftly punished, according to the right and cuftom of the country. Secondly we fay, that hence forward, concerneth none shall attempt to make anie affem- affemblies or bly, and therein to purpose anie thing Conuenticles whatfocuer (cirher fecretly or publikely) ledge & con-

Magiftrate.

Swetia, whereby any damage or danger may enfue, without making it first knowen, and with the confent of the Lordes of that Canton. Whofoeuer fwerueth. and endeuoureth to make any fuch affem bly, or shall fattour it, either by worde or deede, shall bee chastised by the Magiftrate, according to the exigence of the act, and that without the least hindrance or delay.

In like manner, and by common con- For disobedifent, we expressely ordaine, that (honour traces, or inand oath referred) it shall not be lawfull fringing their for any one, to encite the subjects of any orders and do Canton, to do any thing derogatorie, to the obedience due to the Magistrate, or moone the people to any disobedience or revolt. And if the subjects of any one of the Cantons, shall bee rebellions against the commandements thereof that then the other Cantons thall fuccour it faithfully, and reforme those subjectes to their duties, according to the agreement of our alliances.

Υ3

Thirdly.

The reason of agreement fo

Fribourg and

The third Ar ticle concerneth the Military discipline of the Cantons, answera. ble to that of Sempach.

of Sempach, our Ancestors resolued vppon some ordinances, concerning matter of warre: it feemed good to vs. to explicate in this agreement, that which is perpetuall, even the principall Article of those ordinances, and in regard of our felues and our fucceffors, to fet it downe as followeth. If one Canton or more, do bring an Army into the field, marching with colours displayed against the enemy: all they that march vnder those colours, must continue together for the fight, as honest men ought to do. And according to the example of our Anceftours, what necessity foeuer is enforced. beit to fight in ranged battaile, in skirmith, or otherwise, how thort or long tocuer the time be: it is to be carried according to the orders Military, made after the day of Sempach.

The fourth Article con cerneth mat ters of contracts paffed long ago by our Ancestors

For yong me and they of vnder age.

The fift Arti cle concerneth booties conquered i warre,& the ranfomes of priioners,

Thirdly, because that after the battell i

In the fourth place, we have ordained that those contracts passed long time fince, by our Ancestours, as concerning Ecclefiafticall persons, and other things, in the years, one thousand, three hundred and fenenty; shall bee observed inuiolably firmly, and from point to point. And to the end, that the memory thereof may be perpetuall, at al fuch times as our alliances may be renewed by oath those two transactions and ordinances, concerning affaires of warre and Ecclefiaflicks, together with this amiable agreement, shall be publikely read, among and with the Articles of alliances. But to the end, that yong men, and they of meaner yeares also, may the better remember our alliances, and observe them the more faithfully; we have agreed, that heereafter (from fine yeares to fine yeares) the alliances shall be renewed throughout all the Cantons, by oath, which shall bee gi-

Finally, we have accorded, that when any warre happeneth, all the booty conquered from the enemy, and those sums payed by prisoners for their ransomes: shall be distributed (by equall portions) among the number of Soldiers, which the Cantons or Townes have in the Army. But the Citties, Townes, Castles, Countries, passages, anuall reuenewes, iurifdictions, and other things of the fame nature, though conquered in warre, (hall be equally parted or divided among the uen for this effect.

Cantons, according to their ancient custome. If we permit any of these things to be bought or folde to any; the money paide, or arifing thereby, shall be distributed among the Cantons by equall porti-

We have determined and published this louing agreement, and in this manner, that all fuch as haue or shall carry making and Armes with vs, all Subjects, cirtizens, in- publishing habitants, confederates, and parties joyned with vs, may have their just portion generally a in the booties. But as for Cities, Towns, Caffles, Countries, men, reuenewes yearly, jurisdictions, ports, and conquered passages: fuch things doe belong to the Cantons onely. We make exception in this accord, of our perpetuall alliances. intending that nothing thereof shall bee infringed ; but that this prefent transaction shall be inviolably maintained, yea. faithfully and without any fraud, for the confirmation and manutention of our alliances.

This Arrest was ratified with the confent of all in the years, 1481, in the house for particular alliances of our Townes: And by common accord, they of Pribourg and of Solleurre, were received into the number of the Cantons. And then the number of the common-wealth of the Switzers (for making them the space of twenty yeares) stood compofed of ten Cantons, whereto confequently, Bafile and Schaffouze, and then Appenzell were added. But before we fpeake of their alliances, wee must say somewhat as concerning Fribourg and Solleurre: then will we fummarily declare. what they did after their receiving into alliance.

CHAP.

CHAP. VIII.

Of the Towne of Fribourg; who was the first Founder thereof: And how it came into league and alliance with the Cantons.

Chap.8.

Ribourg is a Towne, feated vpon the Riuer of Sana, builded by Berthoull, fourth of that name, Duke of Zermgen, sonie sew yeares before Berne. These two Townes maintained themselues long time in amity: but after the Dukes death, Berne became fubiected to the Empire, and Fribourg fell into the hands of the Counts of Aybourg, that dwelt at Bourgdorff, which was the cause, that (by succession of time) they for fook their affection to them of Berne. First of all, they were present in the warre with Godfrey, Count of Kybourg, against the Bernians. Soone after, their friendthip was renewed againe, but yet with this exception, that if the Lords of Fribaurg were at discord with Berne, the Fribourgers might follow their Lords part, without any prejudice to that louing accord. Some fhort while after, the Count folde

The diners

deportments

and carriage

of the Fri-

Fribourg to Raoul, King of the Romanes, and from thence forward, about the space of two hundred years it remained under the dominion of Austria. During which time, the Fribourgers beeing conducted and commanded by them of Austria, were prefent in many fought battailes, giuento the Bernians at Loupen, at Schonenberg, and elsewhere. Againe, afterward they renewed (divers times) their ancient alliance and amity, with the men of Berne.

In the yeare 1403. after they had bin tormented (in many kindes) by Noblemen, they contracted a perpetuall allimade beance with the Bernians: and yet notwithweene the Fribourgers standing, continued subjects to them of and the men Austria. This amity endured forty fine of Berne.

yeares, at the end whereof, warre being inoued betweene the Prince of Sanoye, and the Frihourgers: they of Berne followed the faction of the Prince of Sauoye, to whom they had beene allied, and flood friends a long time. There were fome courses on cyther side, and a battaile fought neere to Griertz, wherein the Fribourgers had the worft. The yeare after, the Ambaffadours to the King of France, of the Duke of Bourgongne, and of the Cantons, made a peace. And the yeare following, Albert of Austria being come to Fribourg; fome certaine men of The enemies the Towne complotted with him, to of peace put themselues make warre vpon the Bernians. Matters formoft into grew on fo forward, that there was fome the greatest apparance of fedition, and one was ready to run vpon another if the men of Berne (by a fingular providence and addresse) had not appealed the commotion, by the fending of their Ambaffadors. Albert perceiuing that Fribourg fauoured the Cantons, and leaned to that fide, and that the citizens, who enjoyed the priviledges of their Ancestors, obey- he should Albert feeing ed not entirely to whathe commanded lote Fibourg them, and that oftentimes (according to before he could quit it. their alliance) they followed them of takeththe Berne, and went in warre with the Can- latter hand tons: he began to lofe all hope of remaining any longer Master of the Towne. For this cause, the cheefe Master of his houshold came to Fribourg (fent by the Prince as fome fay) where he caused instantly to be noyfed through the Towne; that the Prince wold very fuddenly come the filuer Vessels, Tapistries, and such like costly mooncables, to adorne that house in the Towne, where it was faide that the Prince thould alight and lodge. But (by vnder-hand meanes) the Mafter of the houthold, caused those goods to be fecretly transported out of the towne. The day beeing come, of the Princes thether, how foone he knew not. Heere-vpon, he borrowed and got together, all appointment to be there, he rode foorth with his horsemen, as it were to meet his Mafter, accompanied with the worthieft Mafter of the men of the Towne. Being farre enough off, no Prince came; but only fuch horfemen as he had fent before, to attend the Master of the housholde, and the charge he had . When they were come into a place of fecurity, he faide to them of Fritricke of the household.

There is no-

thing gained

by goods ill

gotten, and lofing the

harts & obedience of ful

nour the Prince, that for the confidence they reposed in their league made with the men of Berne, and combined amity with the Cantons: they were rebels to the Prince, and therefore it stood with reason and instice, that the Prince should get what he could from them: as namely, the filuer veffels, and the other goods brought from the Towne.

Speaking these words, hee galloped away with his traine to meete the Prince with the spoiles of Fribourg. But the cittizens, beeing thus vnworthily handled, made a far stricter alliance with the Bernians, and joyned themselves also with the confederates, vpon certaine conditions. So that during the watre against the Duke of Bourgongne, the Cantons fent a thousand men for Garrison into Fribourg. And the Fribourgers likewise, were present in the battailes with their confederates, against the Duke of Bourgongne carrying themselves very valiantly in that warre. Afterward, they were receiued (with them of Solleurre) into the nuber of the Cantons, as heereafter we shall tell you.

CHAP. IX.

Of the Citty of Solleurre, being one of greatest name in Swetia.

The originall and antiquity

(as the ancient Annals doe make mention) in the time of Ninus. The olde Romane inferiptions, which are yet to bee feene at Solleurre, do testifie the antiquity of the citty. But by the warres and courfes of the Allemaignes, Hunnes, and Franconians in Gaule, vpon the declination of the Romane Empire; Solleurre was ruined, as many other citties and townes were in like manner. But after that the Franconians became Lords & Masters, it was rebuilded, and yeelded in subjection to the Bishop of Geneua. For it is faid, that in the Church or Temple of S. Vic-

bourg, who rode in his company to ho- | tor, neere to Geneua, these words are found written.

> Acta sunt hac regnante Domitiano, Episcopo Geneuensi quo tempore etiam Castrii Salodorense Episcopatus Geneuensi subditum erat drc.

> Thefe things were made and done, in the time of Domitian, Bishop of Geneua: during which time, the Castle of Solleurre was subject to the Bishop of Ge-

In the times of the Allemaigne or Ger- Solleure mane Emperors Solleurre was daily num-numbred abred with the Imperial cities & townes: mong the Imperial cities. vet (notwithstanding) in such fort, as the colledge of the chanons enjoyed the principal priviledges and franchifes. And it is faide, that they have the fame rights as the chanons of Zurich.

The Dukes of The Dukes of Suaba were Pro- The Dukes of Suaba, Go uofts or Gouer- uernors of nours of this citty, Solleure, as likewife of other Imperiall towns in Swetia. They of Solleurre (in anncient times)made an alliance with the Bernians, I cannot well tell in what yeare; but fince that time, the two citties have borne good and loyall amity together. And (almost) in all the warres the Bernians had: the men of Solleurre cuermore succoured them with happy successe.

Vpon the contention moued betweene Lewes of Bauaria, and Fredericke of Au- The menof frea, which should be Emperor of them Solleurreex both: they of Solleurre tooke part with communication Lewes, by which occasion, the Pope excommunicated them, and then they were king part with the rule afterward befiedged by the Duke of Aufria: But they of Berne sent them foure Emperor. hundred men for their Garrison. Moreouer, they had warre against the Count of Kybourg, who wonne a battaile of the, by treason of one of their cittizens. Finally in the yeare, one thousand, three hundred, fifty and one, they made a perpetuall alliance with them of Berne, & continued alwayes good friends with the other Cantons. So that after the warre of Austria, wherein Leopold was flaine; they made peace and alliance with the house of Austria. But it was ypon those same | dred & ninety, another civill warre kindconditions, that the other Cantons, with whom they were joyned in letters and contracts of alliance; by generall and common aduice, should establish and sweare them together in the Military ordinances. Then after that the war against the Duke of Bourgongne was ended, wherein they deliuered true testimony of proweffe and valour, in the judgement of all men; they were accepted and receiued (with them of Fribourg) into the nuber of the Cantons.

Their receiuing into the number of the

Chap. 10. Of the Svvitzers conquest of Naples.

CHAP. X.

Of the Switzers wars against them of Millaine; against the Venetians; and at the conquest of Naples.

Var made by

against the

Succour Cent

against the

Venetlans.

They ferued the King of France for pay,in many

HE men of Fribourg and of Solleurre, being admitted Into ranke with the Cantons; the Switzers made these warres ensuing. In the yeare, one thousand, fourehundred, eighty and seuen; Justus de Sillim, Bithop of Sion, leuied an Army of Valachians and Switzers, which he led beyond the Alps. against the Duke of Millaine. But the iffue of that voyage was vnfortunate, because the Duke ouerthrew them: so that they were enforced to returne home againe to their owne houses, after they had loft very many of their men.

The yeare following, the Switzers fent fuccour (according to the tenour of their alliance) to Sigifmond, Duke of Aufria, against the Venetians. And then afterward, they were in pay with the King of France, Charles the eight, who had renewed the alliance, which his Father made with the Switzers. They were first in Bretaigne, where the King won a great victory against the Duke, at Saint Aubip. Then againe in Italy, when Charles conquered the kingdome of Naples, And at Fornoite, when heegane battaile to the Princes of Italy, that were leagued against him . In all these warres, the Swiezers did good and faithfull feruice vare the King.

In the yeare, one thousand, foure hun-

led it selfe in Swetia. The Abbot of S. Gall had begun to build a new Abbey at Rofack. The cittizens of S. Gall, they of Ap- Strife about penzell, and the subjects to the Abbot resigues of S. (partly moved by a kinde of denotion, as Gall, & the vnwilling that the bones and reliques of building of a S.Gall, (hould be carried any where elfe: and partly also for their owne profit, fearing lefte the packs of linnen cloth(which grew to great gaine among them) ihould be transported to Rolack conspired together, and at vnawares, went out in Arms, and ioyning together in troopes, went to beate downe the new building, which was not (as then) fully finished. The Abbot not a little moued with this injury, craveth aide called the foure Cantons, wherto he was allied to aide him. The fixe other Cantons, mediatours for peace, exhorted the of S.Gall, to decide this difference with the Abbot, by course of right in law. But because the confederates alledged, that great wrong was done them, in building a new Abbey, and (by that means) abolithing their ancient priviledges; therefore confequently, they had just occasion to vindertake Armes, and wold not have it debated in inflice. The foure Cantons with some other people of their allies, dertaken of brought their troopes to Turgan: but this warre was appealed without blowes. For first of all, they of Appenzell made peace with the Switzers, who took from them the Valley of Rherusce. Then afterward, the citty of S. Gall being beliedged, peace was made betweene the cittizens & the Switzers , by the means of George, Count of Sargans, Gaudentius, Count of Metich, and the Lords of Constance. A war ended, In like manner, the subjects to the Abbot were reconciled, after each one had paide his fine. Some (hort while after, followed the last warre against the house of Austria, The last war which the Switzers called, the warre of sunfaithe Found of Author the Emperor Frederick did forcast firs, tearmed the freds abroad, but after his death, his the war of Sonne and Successor Maximillian, gathered them together. Fredericke had procuned, that certaine Princes, Lords, and Townes should make an alliance, which they tearmed. The great league of Suabu; and (among other matters) to opprefferespecially (as was conceined) the liberties of the Switzers. The Emperour of foure Can

The war vn-

and neuer a

Solleurre rebuilt and Subjected to the Bifhop o Geneua.

Chap. 11.

was chiefe of this league, which was be- | dowicke Sforzza, Duke of Millaine, who neficiall to Germany in one kinde: for by that meanes, the wayes were more fafe & affured, thecues were taken and punished, and their castles and places of retreat beaten to the ground. There had beene (long time before) fome enmities betweene the Switzers, and some of their neighbours, vassails to the house of Au-

Day by day the fire lay kindling, and the Switzers suffered insupportable iniuries and outrages. On the other fide, they of Austria greened the Grisons with nouell charges, and had cast them out of their ancient possessions in some pla-

Vpon this occasion, and to prouide for their owne security, against the violence of their enemies; the Switzers and the Grisons made a perpetuall league toge-

Moreouer, King Lewes the twelfth, desirous to recouer the Duchy of Millaine, which he anouched to belong vnto him: purchased the amity and alliance of the Switzers, who in fuch a perillous time, thought good not to refuse it, neyther to let fo fit and apt occasion slippe

Many goings and commings were betweene them, to pacific this businesse, and the parties on eyther fide took arms, in the yeare, one thousand, foure hundred ninery nine. Many encounters they had in this warre, and the Switzers still remained victors: except once, when they were put into route, neere to Con-

But they recovered their honour againe the fame day, having freshly recollected their forces, and then giving battaile to the enemy, enforced him to forfake the place. Moreouer, they and the Grifons, in eight other as great encounters as skirmifnes had still the advantage: as at Mont de Luce, at Treife, Harden, Frafenz, on the plaine of Malfa, nere to Bafile, in the Forrest des Freres, in the vale of Leime; and laftly, at the Castle of Dornech, appertaining to them of Solleur-

They of Austria, beeing tired and foent with fo many loffes, came finally to a composition; by the intermise of Lo-

fent thether the Vicount Galeazzo. And Behold when fo peace was made, vpon this condition, gaines they that the liberties of the Switzers should be remained in their integrity, and they were confirmed in the possession of all those pless liberty. places which they had taken before from them of Austria. In like manner, the jurisdiction in criminal causes, at the command of Turgan, which they of Constance had enjoyed vntill that time, was given to the switzers.

Thus you fee the last warre (except that of the Grifons against Iohn laques de Medicis, Lord of Mus) that the Switzers had to this present time, to maintaine the liberties of their countries, against the violence and force of for-raigne Princes. They were afterward present in many other warres, and wonne well helpe, at ter long tolk renowne of beeing hardy and valiant and labour men : but those warres were made partly | Spentin war. in Italy, partly in France, vnder authority and command, eyther of the King of France, or of Popes, or of the Dukes of Millaine. For immediately after the peace made with them of Austria; the Vicount Galeazzo began to make fecretly a leuve of Switzers.

Contrariwife, the King of Prance demanded fuccour all openly, according to the tenour of the league, which was granted to him. Notwithstanding, contrary to the will and Edicts of the leagued Lords : Galeazzo enrolled fine hundred Switzers, by the aide of whom, together with an army of Lance-Knights, which he had got together, Duke Lodowicke recourred Millaine.

Soone after that the Frenchmen being come with a puissant Army to be-fiedge Nouara, the Switzers that were ingo Nouar then in Garrison, perceiuing it to bee a place not of defence, nor well munited, nor wherein they could any way relift the enemy; agreed to depart; and repaired home to their owne country. The Duke tooke the habite of a Switzer Soldiera and mingled himselfe among the restonely to escape: but happening to be knowne and discoucred, by a certaine man named Turman (who afterward was hewed in peeces) he was taken and led prisoner into Prance, and kept in the Castle of Loches. For the rest, they do Last to a market great blemish a whole nation.

Alliances of

to the whole Nation, the faulte of one man onely. If they will charge all them that were with the Dake, because (maulgre his will) they composed with the French: yet (for all that) they must not couple the whole Nation of Switzers, with them in that action. Confidering, One mans of they that did the deede, were not fent by frace may not their Cantons, to fuccour Duke Sfor za; but followed his faction, against the Edicts of their Lords . Heereto may be added, that they appeared not to be partiall, or hare-braind in the busines, when they departed by composition.

In the same yeare, when these things were done beyond the Mountaines; Huldrich, Duke of Wirtemberg, made an alliance for twelve yeares, with the com-Princes made with the Switzers. In like manner, the Emperor Maximillian renewed the hereditary alliance made formerly by Duke Sigi (mond, with the cantons of Zurich, Berne, Vri, and Vnderuald. In the yeare, one thousand, fine hundred and one, two potent citties on the Rhine. namely, Bafile and Schaffouze, were joyned to the number of the Switzers can-

CHAP. XI.

Of the Citty of Basile, and diversity of opi nions, how it received that name : As alfo the originall and antiquity of the Cit-

*A people of Belgia, neere to the Kiuer

Opinions oncerning HE Citty of Bafile, capi-tall & cheefest in the coun-try of the * Rawratian's, is the very greatest of all the citties and townes in Swe-

tis. It is not knowne at what time it was first of all built. Amianus Marcellinus mal keth mention in his history of it, calling it Bafilia and testificth, that the Emperor Gratian crected a Fort lard by it to bridle the courses of the Allemanes. There are fome other, who do thinke that it tooke name of Bafilica, Mother to the Emperor Inlian. Phlegonius, the enfranchifed feruant of the Emperor Adrian, maketh

great wrong to the Switzers, that impute | mention of Bafilias in a little Tract which he wrote of admirable things, and of people that lived long: but it is not well knowne, whether hee meaneth this citty or no, whereof we now fpeake. But the opinion of them is most probable, that hold the citty of Balile to take name from one of the Romane Colonies, fent by Augustus into the country of the Raugacians, before named.

tv encreased the renowne thereof. And as it is a neighbour to the Switzers, fo hath it beene likewife very carefull for maintaining it felfe in amity, long time before it came to bee allied with them.

ance, and promife of mutuall fuccours with them of the three first Cantons; and afterward, in the yeare, 1 227, with Zurich, Berne, and many other citties and townes of Germany. In the yeare one thousand, three hundred, forty five, they made a particular alliance (for 2.yeares)

with them of Zurich, and then renewed it for three yeares after. Againe, in the yeare 1365. by the procurement of Lea-engaged by the Bishop to the Duko of Austria; would not submit themselves wholly to his will.

perors. The Bithoppricke and Vniuerfi-

Of Bafile:

But Basile is in the number of the bredamong free citties of the thefree Cit-Empire, and hath mes of the obtained (for very Empire. long time) verie franke and liberall priviledges, from the Romane Em-

For after the Pope had excommunicated The men of the Emperor Lewes of Banaria (in which Baile were frieed with case all Germany was combusted with the Switzers great troubles) they of Bafile made alli- a long time, pold, Duke of Austria, an Army of Eng- Englishmen lishmen came and forraged the country invaded the of Halfatia, befiedged Strasbourg, and Halfatia,by threatned Bafile with the fame behautor. Duke Leobecause the cittizens of the lesser Basile, polds meanes

On the other fide, Bafile beeing not ftrong for refiftance of an enemy by reafon of an earth-quake, which had eaft downe the walles and many houses, and fire had confumed and done as great harne : Zurich, Berne, Lucerna, and Sollearne lent a frong Garrison to Basile : 10 rison tente that the Englishmen durft not besiedge Basile.

the citty, but retired thence, because the

a great leagu to oppresse of the Swit-

Diuers victo ries of the Switzers.

A league of the Switzers and Grilons

against that mies.

Chap.12.

No Boates &

ble to passe

the water at Schaffoule.

Concerning

the name of Schaffouse.

for falt.

Katherine th Widdow to Duke Leo-

252

The Dolphi of France brought an Army into Germany.

The Basilians ioyne with the Switzers against the Duke of Au

War between the Emperor Maximillian, the Switzers and Grilons

an Army against them. In like manner, in the warre of them of Bafile, against Katherine of Bourgongne, the widdow of Leopold, in the yeare one thousand, foure hundred, and nine, the Bernians & they of Solleurre fent succour: the other Cantons imploying themselves carefully, to accord them with the house of Austria. Moreover, at the time of the councell of Bafile, when as Lewes the Dolphin of France, brought a great Army into Germany, to breake the councell, and made warre on the Switzers, by the instance & working of the Duke of Austria, who had procured him to come: the Switzers maintained and defended the citty and councell, against the encountering of a strange enemy; as an example very remarkable, it beeing not about fixteene yeares, fince they had coaped with great troops of the French, True it is that they all (well neere) loft their lines there : but yet they did so weaken their enemies troops, that he tooke part with the which fled fastest.

They being thus auoyded, the men of Bafile iovned their forces with the Switzers, and so made warretogether on the Duke of Austria. In like manner, when Charles, Duke of Bourgongne, made himfelfe fo terrible, and affrighted all the world, they of Basile ioyned in alliance (for ten yeares) with Strasbourg, and other citties on the Rhene. Afterward, with Sigismond, Duke of Austria; Rene, Duke of Lorraine, and with the Cantons. In this warre they shewed themselves both faithfull & valiant, for their confederates. Finally, a great warre being moued betweene the Emperour Maximillian, the Switzers and Grifons: they of Bafile remained neuters, without gluing fuccour to eyther fide, nor received their Garrifons ; but they furnished them both with victuals and munition. In this war there was a battaile giuen (almost) against the walles of Basile, afterward at Dorneck. where the Switzers wonne a faire victory ouer the enemies, whom they did beat backe to the gates of Basile. But during all this war, the cittizens of Basile fauoured equally both the one and other fide. To conclude, by the diligence of Lodonico Maria. Duke of Millaine, the Ambassadors on both fides met at Bafile, & peace

Emperor Charles the fourth, also broght | was made betweene the Emperour and the Switzers.

The Switzers allowed well of this expedient, in the men of Bafile during this and the Swin.
warre, and the Emperor Maximillian (for his part) feemed not to improdue it. But diffafte the the Noble-men, who were deadly enemies to the Cantons held Bafile (almost) Bafile in the in the ranke of a foe because the citty did warre. not then fhew it felfe openly, as an enemy to the Switzers; and not onely the fubiects to the house of Austria, but many more, who till then had beene cittizens with-drew themselues to the Count of Ferrara, and about Montbellard, into Hal-Satia, and to Brisgow, countries appertaining to them of Austria. Being in those places, they ceasifed not to outrage (both with words and deeds) the inhabitants of Bafile, who being moued with fuch indignities; the yeare after the war ended. to wit, one thousand, fine hundred and one; made a perpetuall alliance with the Cantons, and so were left in peace with their neighbours, who stood in awe of the Switzers fuccour.

CHAP. XII.

At what time Schaffouse was received into the number of the Cantons; and the antiquity thereof.

Chaffoufe, accepted the very fame yeare, to be numbered among the cantons, and females is not of fo great age and antiquity. It is feated on the River of Rheine, within Germany, and yet notwithstanding, the Bridge is in Swetia. In the time of the Emperor Henry the third, the Counts of Nellenbourg builded there an Abbey, which standeth yet to this day, and it is thought, that it gaue a beginning to the cittle: as likewife the citties of S. Gall, Lucerna, and many more in Germany, have derived their original from Abbeyes. The Rheine is also another cause of the citties beyes. encreasing, continuing so for some thou-fand of yeares since, beneath the citty, falleth downe from a very great height, with fuch a dreadfull novier and remounting vp againe into the ayre to vehemently, that it maketh there a cominual fogge or myst. And for this cause, and the vn-capablenesse of any Boats to passe there. all fuch as descend downe the Lake of Constance, and from Cella on the Rheine are constraind to discharge at Schaffould which hath beene conceined by many to give that name to the Citty, to wit of a Squiffe, or of a Boate, which the Germanes call Skiff, or Schiff, thence to bee tearmed Schaffouse. Neuerthelesse, the vulgar fort, taking vp a falle etymologye of the word Schaff, which fignifieth a Sheepe; have grounded their opinion. strongly thereon, and forged Armes also of the same nature. There is a great tole or custome gathered in this Citty, espe-A great Tolle or Custome cially for the passage of Sale: which appertained in ancient times, and before the foundation of the Citty, to two Noble Families, to wit, of Turn, and of Stad. which remaine yet to this day at Schaf-

11.18

Schaffoule at liberty at the first, but afterward allienated by the en

Schaffouse

fubicated to

Austria for 85

At the beginning,the principall dominion or fway of the City, belonged to the Abbot, who elected and chose one halfe of the Magistrates:but (by little) and little)

they exempted thefelues from his gouernement, and obtained many good priviledges and franchifes of the Emperors. But Lewes of Bauaria (weakened by long warres) could not pay the Duke of Austria, such monies as he ought him according to an agreement made betweene them, which caused him to alienate and fell Schaffoufe, together with some other Townes, and so (by that meanes) it became difmembred from the Empire. After that time, Schaffoule remained subject to the Dukes of Austria, for the space of fourescore and fine years, euen vntill the councell of Constance: for then Fredericke of Austria, because hee brought Pope John the two and twentieth out of the councell, was banished by the Emperor Sigifmend, who caused him wherewith it is (in a manner) enclosed. It / to bee so narrowly pursued, thar all his goods were partly pilled, and partly confiscated to the Empire, without any other meanes of lielpe.

In this warre, Schaffouse became revnited to the Empire, and the cittizens Schaffoule (having given a good fumme of money, to the Emperor) obtained great prituidedges vnder Letters patents: and therein uiledges grawas plainly expressed, that (thence forward) their Citty should not any more be alienated from the Empire. But Frederick the third, of the house of Austria, being Emperor : laboured to fubic@it againe, and that the citty of Schaffoule might remaine to his fucceffors. And therefore hee permitted Duke Sieismond, to compell the cittizens to fwcare fidelity to him; which they refused to doe, but with exception of their priviledges, and they would not receive the Princes Ambaffadors into the citty, but vppon that condition. Contrariwife, the Ambaffadors preffed them earneftly, to oblige themselves to the Prince, without any exception, and propounded certaine Articles for the maintenance whereof, they required oath: threatening the cittizens with very great harmes, if they would not yeelde to that which they demanded of

The men of Schaffonse, seeing the Ambassadors persist still in their opinion: to make good their owne part, received the Switzers Ambassadors into their cit. Schaffous, & ty, and made alliance (for fome yeares) with them, with them of Zurich, Berne, Lucerna, Suits, Zug, and Glaris, fo that the Ambaffadors of Austria returned backe, and performed inft nothing.

Before this, they of Schaffouse were in good amity with the Switzers, and from the yeare, one thousand, three hundred forty fine, made alliance (for fome time) with them of Zurich. But because they were Subjects to the house of An- had continue fria, against whom, the Switzers had all wareafria, against whom, the Switzers have gainst the (well neere) continuall warres: they house of Allcould not then entertaine firmely this nome or neamity, but were compelled, to go in war against the Switzers, under the Ensignes of the Austrians . But after this last alliance, they were very good and faithfull friends vnto the Cantons, and bare them company in many warres and battailes. For immediately after the alliance

nited to the empire again

began:

The Cantons made war on 254

The men of Schaffouse ac cufed by Peregrin de Hewdorff.

the Popes

Incursions made on the Austrians lands,b then of Schaffoule

01.1

See

A new alliance of Schal foule for 24. yearcs,made with the can began: the Austrians came and affaulted | (till then) had not any particular acquainthe Switzers, and namely them of Schaf- tance.

It came to passe, that the Cantons (obeying the command of Pope Pius) made tons. For in the first place, they binde the- and condin war with Sigismond of Austria, which being pacified, they of Austria tooke Armes againe, because Mulhouse and Schaffouse had joyned themselves with the Smitzers, as should happen between them of Schafwho ledde a great Army to the Count of fouse and the Cantons. Then followeth in Ferrara, and into the quarters about Montbeliard. At the fame time, Peregrin de Hewdorff, accused them of Schaffoule in the Imperiall chamber of Rotuille, and follicited fo much, that they were put to banishment from the Empire. Among others, he charged John and Conrad de Fulach, brethren & cittizens of Schaffoufe; of a noble and an- And that the auncient alliances shall alcient Family, who sometimes possessed a wayes be esteemed of most advantage, & Castle, necre vnto the downefall of Rheine, to precede all the other. whence Albert of Austria had expelled them, but soone after they entred it againe hapned, and some yeares consequently, by intelligence. In regard whereof, they & that of Suaba, mooned by the Emperour the other cittizens that maintained their Maximillian, against the Switzers. In both inst quarrell, were proscribed. In this war these warres, they of Schaffouse did their the Cantons sent a good Garrison vnto duty exceeding well, furnishing men and the twelfth Schaffouse.

which is a Towne at the entrance into the ranke or roome. Blacke Forest, where the River of Arfalleth into the Rheine, and which was vnder the Austrian government, peace was made: wherein they of Suaba were exempted, & stood banished from the Empire, at the pursuite and charges of Sigismond. Thus then the Cantons having experimented in these warres, the faithfulnesse of them of Schaffoufe, and knowing well withall, what commodities they received from such a citty, seated in so apt a place on the confines of Swetia; And reciprocally, the men of Schaffoufe, feeling themselves to be deliuered from their enemies, by the good they were 12.during the alliance which affistance of the Switzers; they thought it they had made with King Lewes the 12. very expedient, both for the one fide and in the yeare, 1503. some among them (in the other, to prolong the alliance. And ac-great number) went for him in the war of cordingly, in the yeare 1479, they made an alliance for twenty fue yeares following: against the Edicts of their Magistrates.

The tenour of this alliance, is (almost) answerable to that of the ancient Can- Abreese of selues to aide one another. Afterward, ons of the althey establish a forme of judgement, for reconciling or anoyding fuch differences, what manner debts ought to be paide, & what meanes are to be yied in fuch cafes. Then for the punishment of homicides. or men-killers. The last Article concerneth the new & ancient alliances, to wit. the one fide shall make no new alliance, without the will and confent of the other:

After all this the warre of Bourgongne money for the weale-publike: by which Canton. While these helpes and succours lasted, meanes, they entred into the good grace the cittizens made divers courses into the of the Cantons, much more then ever lands about, appertaining to the house of they did before, and wonne great honour. Austria; as in the Mountaines of the black Alfo, the yeare after the last warre, to wit, Forest, in Hegow, Kleckgow, and other limi- 1501. they made perpetual alliance with trophing lands of Suaba and of Bafile. Fi- the Smitzers, and were enrolled in numnally, having laide siedge before Waldshout, ber of the Cantons, obtaining the 12.

CHAP. XIII.

Of the warres of the Switzers, fince such time as they came to be in number of the Cantons and making them twelue.

A Frerthat Basile and Schaffouse were numbred with the cantons, and that wherein were comprehended, the men of As the Switzers and French might brag not fortuna Vri and Vnderuald, with whom Schaffouse of small happinesse, in the first warre of inthe war of

The fpaniare brought it the Indies in to Christenlome.& bc-

the French,

at the fiedge

of Naples.

In honorable

Switzers, not against their

he Cardina

of Sion a ware

four and ca-

pitall enemy whe French owne houses, that villainous contagion of the Pockes, which afterward was tearmed the Spanish disease, the Neapolitane enill, and the French Pocks: At the last war they were ouercome in two battailes, and loft a great number of their men. The yeare 1507. the Cantons fent fuccour vnto the King, who (by their meanes) made himfelfe Master of the field, which the Genewayes had planted in a Mountaine, that commanded ouer their citty, which (foon after) yeelded it felfe.

their fortune prooued little better in this last warre. They, who (during the first warre) were left in Garrisons, in strong places and Fortresses of the Kingdome;

dyed of diseases for the most part. Such as escaped in this warre, in recompence

of their trauaile, brought home to their

At the same time the Emperor Maximillian demanded men of the Switzers, and they promifed him a leuve of 6000. men, prouided, that he should not leade them against the King of France, their allie: but because he would not accept this condition, the leave remained, and was not made.

Soone after to witte, in the yeare 1509 the league of alliance betweene the King of France & the Switzers, tooke ending, and the Emperor, Pope Islaus the 24 the Kings of France and Spaine, leagued themfolues together, and made warre on the Venetians, wherin the Switzers forued the King of France for wages. The yeare following, Pope Islius made alliance with the Switzers, by the meanes of Matthews Gardinall of sion, who immediately after the alliance concluded, led fixe thousand Switzers into tealy, vnder pretence of defending the lands of the Church, against the Duke of Fenrara. But his true intent was to furprize and expell the French out of Millaine. The Switzers lauring diffeourred his purpose awould not follow the Gardinall against the Frenchy and their Lords had likewife forbidden them: fo that the Popelent them in & Swetia, without paying them their wages, wherat they were very highly discontented.

In the yeare 1511 perpetuall alliance betweene the Switzers, the houses of Au-Aria and of Bourgongne, was renewed. On the other fide, the Ambaffadors of France defired the Switzers to renew the alliance

Naples, under King Charles the eight: fo | with their King: but the most part of them were displeased, because so soone as the first alliance was expired, the King had denied them all their payes and yearely pensions.

Of the Switzers Warres.

And albeit that a very great number among them, were no found well-willers or friends to the Pope, who likewife had not payed them : yet notwithstanditig, fearing lefte hee should excommunicate them, they durft not allie themselves with the King of France, who then was enemy to the Poper Heereupon, hapned a difgrace to be done them by the French, for they had taken at Lugano, a Herauld of the Switzers, with letters from the Seigneury Great wrong about him first, they drowned him, and Officer of to despight the Switzers, the Coate of Armen Armes, which the Heraulds and Officers to the Cantons vie to wearesthey folde at open port-fale, or our-cry, as we commonly call it.

The Switzers, in the very strongest of winter, led their Army ouer the Alpes, where having burned fome Villages, they returned backe againe, without performing any other memorable deed. But the yeare following; Pope fulius (who had loft a great battaile at Rauenna, at encountring there with the French) called them to helpe him," and therefore they fent into Italy, an Army of twenty thousand me. They beeing loyned with the Venetians (then reonciled to the Pope) tooke at The Switzers their arrivall Cremona and Paula, driving the French the French out of the whole Dukedome in very nonof Millane; fo that nothing remained to ble manner. them but orioly the Caffle of Millaine. In Defenders of regard of thefe worthy exploits, the Pope the Church. gaue the Smitzers the title, of Defenders of the Church Conriching their Standards with divers Images, and publikely gave to the whole Nation of the Switzers, two great Standards, which they call, Paner, that is, The Sword and Bonnet, as a noted marke of liberty, Maximillian Sforza, Bonnerifighes, re-eltabilited in his paternall doministic of liberty for the on by the Swizers facedury made alliande with them, and gaue to the Cantons Daguno, Detarna, Mendriff, and the Vale of readiaudines on reliev ... He gaue also to the Grifons, their con- bestowed on federates, the Vale Telina or Volturena. the Cantons Likewise Charles, Duke of Sauoye, whose predeceffors had particular alliance (long time before) with fome of the Cantons: Z 2....

the King of France, about their payes &

The Sword &

Great gifts

The King of nied to bee

leagued with the Cantons.

254

The victorie of the Switzers ouer the French at No uara,very fa-

An Armie o Switzers, by councel of the Emperor, en tred into France the rowe Bourgongne.

dies.

made alliance with all the Switzers, for 25 | Prince of Wirtemberg. There they befieveares after following.

In the same yeare, the King of France folicited the Switzers, to become agayne allied with them : but because hee would not fet free the Castle of Millaine, and fome discouery was made beside, that his Ambassadors laboured to corrupt some particulars by gifts, and to buy theyr voyces for faire money layde downe; they were commanded to depart out of the Leagued countries; and fo the warre was renewed again. For the King fent a great Army into Italy, under the conduct of the Lords of Trunkle and Trimouille, who befiedged Maximillian Sforza in Novara. Hee was then accompanied with foure thousand Switzers, to whose ayde, eight thousand more were sent. Their vantgard being arrived at Novara, and they within being loyned with them, they gaue the battell to the French, vanquishing & driuing them out of Italy. Guichardin the Italian, an Historian much renowned writes that the Switzers won fuch honor by this victory, as many haue made no difficulty in equalling this happy successe of theirs, with (almost) all the braue exploites of the Greekes and Romanes. Notwithstanding, the field was deere enough bought by them, because fourteen hundred Switzers were there flaine, and the most part of them by the Cannon, before that they could come to handye stroakes. Which made the people of Swetia to murmur in many places, and all blame fell on them: that tooke part with the French: fo that divers withdrew themselves from Swetia for a time onely, and two only had their; heads finitten off in those mutinies and commotions: for the reft, all was well pacified, without any effusion of blood.

After this victory of the Switzers, the Emperor Maximillian, quitting the amity and alliance of the King : aduled the Switzers, to enter France by Bourgongn. with an army of fix thouland montwhere to (wel-neere) fixteene thousande other voluntary ioyned themselues, together. with some troopes of horse belonging to the Emperor, vnder the conducte of the ged *Dijon, the capitall City of all Bourgongne. But the Lorde of Trimouille, an olde Captaine, beeing not of strength to defend well the place, agreed with the Switzers, on conditions, that the King should acquit whatsoever he pretended to the Dukedome of Millaine, and paye them (at certaine appointed times) fixe hundred thousand Crowns for affurance Meanes make whereof, he gaue them foure Lordes of Switzers gon marke, as holtages, with whom the Switzers departed thence immediately.

Nowe, although it was a matter most palpable and notorious to all men, that this composition warranted the kingdom because that Dijon being taken, the Switzers might have run vp fo farre as to the gates of Paris, or joyne themselues there with the English; and beside that king Leweshadde not a sufficient Army to make head against them; vernotwithstanding, he would not ratifie his composition. For he would not admit (by any meanes) that his rights to the Dukedome of Millaine, fhould be for much a stalkt of. The Swit-gers feeing them felues thus handled; and finite the highly offended with fuch flye trickes: threatned to kill the Hostages, except the confirmation might be brought within a state of the state of the confirmation might be brought within a state of the state of certaine time. Neuertheleffe, the winter grew extreame voon them, and yet they resolved to re-enter France in the month of Nouember: But the King fent his Ambaffadore, who laboured (by all meanes) to make aperperual peace with the Switzers. In the meane while, they coulde no Muchaliton way toyne, because the conditions which and nothing the King propounded, were very virted fonable which wasthe cause that the time frent it felfe in dayes and deliberations, in moore talke and friuolous difputes, whereby the enterprize of marchiing into Prance, was quite broken. Concerning the rest of these meetings and asfemblies, they were thus donfidered on; that in the month of December the fame Appenzel the weare, they of Appended were added din to the Cantons number and 740 montheld the thirteenth q 200 di place. dia di ni e Grand,

and in

CHAP

welling.

The inhabitants of Ap-

The Abbots

Chamber or

CHAP. XIIII.

Of the Originall of Appenzell: how it tooke that name. The Lawes, Customes, & m.iner of government there observed.

of the scituation of Appen zel, and the villages thero belonging.

Ppenzel is the name both of a Country, and of a Village.
The country is fituated form-what about S. Gall, betweene the high Mountains, and on the Frontiers of the Grifons country. The inhabitants liue (scatteringly)in Villages, and among the number of them, there are eight chiefe and principal, which have enery one their Temple or parish church. The maine head of all is the village of Appenzell, whereof all the rest of the countrey beareth name. This Countrey was fometimes vnder the government of the Abbots of faint Gall. and because they alwaies yfed to

dwel in the chiefest town or village, wher they builte a very strong Castle, named Claux: the village was therefore cald Ap-penzel, which in Latine is, Abbatis Cella: that is to fay, The Chamber or dwelling of

The people of Appenzel aimed at liberty, first by armes, and after peace made, they bought liberty for themselus & their children, by meanes of a great fum of mony, which they paied to the Abbot. They had wars which continued feuen yeares, against Cuno de Stouffen, Abbot of S.Gall; to whom the townes about the Lake of Constance, and belonging to Frederick D. of Austria, the bishoppe of Constance, the Count of Wirtenberg, & many Counts & Gentlemen gaue foccour. Yet they of Appenzel would not yeeld themselves for all this, but being ayded by the Cittizens of S. Gal (who, at the beginning, were parta-kers with the Abbot; but afterward joined with them of Appenzel, won fom battels, tooke flue Townes, and more then fixty Castles part whereof were quite ruined. In this war, they leagued themselues with the Switzers, who were enemies vnto the house of Austria. Some say, that they allyed themselves with Suits and Glaris only : but others doe maintaine, that it vyas | zers. with Lucerna, Vri, Suites, and Vnderuald. This Warre tooke ending in the yeare, 1408. and by meanes of the Emperour Rupert, agreement was made betweene them of Appenzel and their enemies, in the City of Constance.

posed of the most honest people, and the notablest persons in all the Villages thoroughout the countrey. Then three years after the peace was made, the Abbot of Saint Gall attempted a new fuite against them : but then they made alliance with

Zurich, Lucerna, Suits, Vnderwald Zug, &

Glaris, which so offended the Abbots of Saint Gall, as, about the yeare one thou-fand foure hundred twenty fine , Henrie

Mansdorff (then Abbot) prevailed so far.

round engirt with Mountaines, and not Trafficking almost with any bodie) no in-uafion could bee made vpon them. As concerning the excommunication fent

from the Pope, they refolued in an affem-

bly of al the country, not any way to care for it. And therefore they expelled all the priefts(that observed the command of the Pope) out of their Countrey, and would not permit them to administer the Sacraments: amongst all which they killed

that this course did him not any service:

and that (on the other fide) the men of Appenzell ranne verie fiercely vpon fuch,

as durst tearme them to bee excommuni-

The Abbot of Saint Gall, perceiuing

This being done, the men of Appenzel Their form & framed a forme of gouernment to themfelues, which yet they hold vito this day,
For till then, each village had her enfign, and her eftates apart, or by it felfe. Now here were the second of the se

there was but one Enfigne, one affembly of their estates, and one Councell, com-

that they of Appenzel were proferibed by People are ba the Emperour, and excommunicated by mithel and exthe Pope. Banishment was no great hurt, jed because or inconvenience to them in any manner they maintain whatfocuer, because the countrey (being their to cate, and ruined the Castelles of manie Gentlemen Finally, by helpe of the Byshoppe of Gonitance, and the Noble-S.Gall appear men of Suaba, hee accused them before leth to the Ethe Electours of the Empire, imploring lectors. theyr helpe and aide in this extreamitie.

The Electors fent to the Switzers, and to 258 Of the alliance of the five last Cantons. 3. Booke most alike.

The Switzer war on their neighbours.

Warre made vpon the No-ble-men by them of Ap-

When anger

helps not, pa

the Canton

prenaile.

penzell.

bring them of Appenzel under obedience. But the Switzer's would not make any war on their neighbours and fellow cittizens: but rather laboured to make peace, which was agreed on foure yeares after this exhaving beene (before) ouercome in two encounters, by the Count of Toggen-

This peace lasted not long, for the Gentlemen, neighbours to Appenzell, about the Lake of Constance, assembled a great number of horsemen, wherewith to inuade them of Appenzell. But they disappointed their hope, and got before them; possessing themselves of Rineck, & of the Vale of Rhegusce, in the year, 1445. The Lords of Hagenwill, who helde that country in pawne or pledge: caused them of Appenzell to be censured with banishment, by the Imperiall Chamber establithed at Rotuille. But gaining nothing by the bargaine, they folde them their right, for the fumme of fixe thousand crowns. and tooke off the censure. In the yeare, 1452.they made perpetuall alliance with feauen of the Cantons, and (after that time) ioyned themselves with the Switzers, in the warres against the Dukes of Austria, of Bourgongne, and the league of Suaba, wherein they shewed themselues both faithfull and valiant . Afterward, in the yeare, 1513, they were received into the number of the Cantons.

CHAP. XV.

Concerning the alliance made betweene the fine last Cantons : And a breviate of their Articles, binding them together in confe-

LL the latter captons. except Bafile, long time before their receiving into this ranke, were allied to the other ancient Cantons, and then afterward, at fundry times they were received and numbred with the cantons, the Citties of Suaba, that they should | according as wee have noted alrea-

Now those Cantons doe hold this right aboue their consederates, that they deliberate, and giue aduice in their dayes of ges belonged consultation, for all occasions concer-to the Caucommunication, the men of Appenzell ning (in common) the common-wealth of the Switzers. They have a share or part, in all commodities and discommodities of the comminalty. They governo (in equall authority) all the Baliwicks by them obtained, and partake equally and publikely, all booties gotten in warre. For the rest, the Articles of alliance of the old Cantons, and latter with the first, are al-

> The first and principall Article, concerneth mutuall fuccour or affiftance, Articles of alwherein there are dinerfity of clauses. The latter cances Cantons which shall be called, ought to with the forfuccour their affociate or companion, mer. without any fraud or delay. If a Canton be so suddenly engirt by the enemy, as he cannot call the other, neither by Letters nor Ambassadors; yet shall not they forbeare (for all that) from gining fuccour, and in as speedy manner, as if they had received expresse advertisement. If the latter Cantons doe conceine, that a wrong is done vnto them; yet notwithstanding, they shall moourno warre against any person, without the will and consent of the olde Cantons. If their enemies will debate their cause in instice. and accept the Switzers for their Judges, or others of equall and indifferent judgement: the Canton may not attempt to purfue his right by Armes. Euery one of the Cantons, at their owne charge and expences, shall come to succour the other, and fend fuch numbers of men as they would have, and according as they shall see it commodious, wherewith the other Canton must content it selfe. In like manner, the limits are prescribed. The limitation wherein the auncient Cantones stand of succour to bound to send helpe to the new: And before. the limits are the confines of the Cantons, as they then stand. There is likewife mention made, concerning charges and expences, at the befiedging and battering of Townes and Castles. And the Lawes agreed vpon at Stantz, touching the partage of booties, which also are heerein confirmed. The fecond Article declareth, what ces betweene two Cantons ference do happen between two Catons or many: But wee shall speake in our fecond Booke, what forme of judgement is in the case to be kept. Moreover, there is mention made, concerning actions in cafes of iniuries betweene particulars, and what ludges they are to take note of in that kind. Then for the exacting of names: Concerning commerce, and free Trafficke, and what bargaining ought to stand free for buyers, as well on one part as the other. That no Canton shall receive the

The Svvitzers vvars in Italy.

one Canton to be entetrained by an other Canton

Chap.16.

Of differen-

citizens and subjects of another Canton: till they be first left at liberty, by them vn. der whose dominion they were before. That the new Cantons shall not make alliance with any whofoeuer, without consent of the olde Cantons. If war is mooned betweene the old Cantons, the latter shall remaine as newters, and labour onely to agree the parties. Each Canton fnall keepe his or her ancient priviledges rights, and customes in their true integri-

Anespeciall futury of the Behold the principall conditions of the latter alliances, wher namely it is decreed that the new Cantons shal not moue any warre, without aduice of the old, neyther refuse that which is right, nor any honest condition of the countrey; and other fuch like things, concerning warre, are establifhed fully. And because that the most part of the latter Cantons, are vpon the limits and euen out (as it were) of Swetia: they ordained, that no one shoulde attempt to make any warre, except it were for some matter of very great importace: and so much the rather, because it is very hard to conduct and maintaine an army in those quarters.

CHAP. XVI.

Heere we are to feake of the Switzers wars in Italy , when the French undertooke to recouer the Dukedome of Millaine,

The death of Lewes, the 12 K.of France, iter whome ucceeded rances de Jalois,

N the yeare of our Lord, one thousand, fine hundred, & fifkinde of course is to be observed, if a dif- / his Ambassadors, the amity and alliance of the Switzers. Neuertheleffe, in the meane time, he made great preparation for war, pretending to recouer the dukedome of Millaine. Frances de Valois, his kinfinan, and his fonne in law, came after him (as fucceffor) to his crown; who following the deliberation of his father, had also his minde and eye fixed on the Mil= lainefes. The Switzers (on the other fide) allyed with the Emperour Maximillian, The Switzers attempt to guard Millain , Sfor a Duke guard Millain of Millaine, and with Pope Lee the tenth : against the vndertook to defend Millaine against the French. Wherefore, after they vnderstoodshe King of France his preparation they fent (at their first leuy) fix thousand men to the Duke of Millaine. Afterward, the tenth of lune, they made another leuy of 13000.men, which they fent alfo to ioyne with the first.

King Frances passed ouer the Alpes in the meane while, by vnaccustomd waies, fhunning the Garrisons of the Switzers, which were vpon the viuall paffages, and entred into Italy, with an Armie verie potent, of French and Germaines. This was the reason that the Cantons sent twelve thousand men more thether, so that the campe of Switzers onely, confifted of one and thirty thousand men. Now, although the Kings troopes were well pro- 31000.men in uided and refolued, yet they woulde not number, and hazard any thing, nor fet vppon fo great nouer fo many of them an Army of Switzerseit being fuch indeed feene before as hardly (at any one time) had fo manie in the field at one time. euer before beene in the field. Hereupon by their Deputies, they began to treat on peace with the Colonels of the Switzers: who likewise (for their part) were not far off from it in disposition, because they confidered, that their confederated princes did not march on roundlie with

For first of al, their wages was not paid them, according to promife. Moreouer Reasons induthe Emperor had not fent his companies cing the Switof horfemen, as he stood bound to do by zers to listen the confederacy. And contrarywife, he it was moued, had not prohibited the Lance-Knightes (which hee might have done in regard of his authority) from going in feruice with the King : but fuffered them (by troopes) thousand, fine hundred, & fif-teene, King Lewer the twelfth dyed. He had newly sought by the Pope and King of Spaine were neere-yet frustrate all.

12000-Swit zers pare home to the country, withtheir copanie.

yet notwithstanding, they could hardlie | of their men. be perswaded to passe the Pau, and ioyne themselves with the Switzers. Beside, there were messengers gooing and comming betweene the French and them, & from them to the French. Wherefore, the Switzers seeing themselves vvithout money, and forfaken of their Confortes: made peace in the village of Galler as, with the Deputies to the King of France, vnder honest conditions. Which having bene confirmed by fome Cantons, immediatly twelve thousand Switzers took their way to Coma, and returned home to their countrey, without tarrying for the rest, who likewise prepared to depart the next morning . But the Duke of Millaine would not accept the conditions of this peace; and the Cardinall of Sion, (a great and perpetuall enemy to § French) laboured by oblique meanes, to break &

It came to paffe, that by cunning tricks and plottes, the thirteenth day of September, the Switzers of the Guard to the Duke of Millaine, and fome others befide offended with the King, in the night time brake in vpon the French, sending worde instantly to aduertise their companions, in what danger they were, and intreated their present succour. The other, imagining that it would be a great shame vnto them, to forfake their friendes in such a neede, and being made to beleeue withall, that the French had begunne this broyle, went with all their troopes to affift them. The fight was very tharp on all fides; but the night parted them. In this charge was flaine Frances, the Lorde of Rourbon, the Lord of Imbercourt, also the Count of Sancerre, the Prince of Talemond, fonne to the Lorde of Trimouille, the Lords of Bully d' Ambole, and manie other: which made some to holde opinion, that the Switzers were Maisters in this conflict, and a brute ran thorow Italy, that they remained conquerours. But the very fame night, the King hauing mounted his Artillerie on their carriages, levelled the battalions of the Gascoigns and Germaines, re-affembling the horsemen under their Regiments, and fending Bertelomeo d'Aluiana with the Armie of Venetians: very earely in the Morning, he gaue battaile to the Switzers, whom

The Switzers feeing the victory in a contrary hand, withdrew them-felues to Millaine; yet in such fort, that their retreate fauoured not of flight. For, they backe to Mil. brought backe the Artillery which came laine. out of Millaine, and marched in ranke of battaile, having their wounded Men in the middest among them, and going but avery foftly pace ; yet in all the French Army, not a man, eyther Horse or Foot, durst pursue them. On the morrow, hauing lefte the Duke of Millaine fifteene hundred men, to strengthen his garrison in the Castle, they returned into Swetia, by the way of Coma. But, by reason of their foile, the French recovered the dukedom of Millaine.

The Emperour Maximillian contested hardly to take it from them againe, & the yeare following, he ledde into Italy (ro effect that hope) an army of Germans by the Fresh and Switzers; but he could doe nothing, and so was glad to come backe again immediately. As for the King of France, having well felt how deare a price this victorie cost him : he neuer ceased till hee hadde made peace and alliance with the Perpetual smitzers in the end. Perpetuall peace, peace bebetweene the French and the Switzers, weene the was made in the yeare one thousand, fine ske French. hundred, and eighteene, the last day of November: and the alliance was confirmed three yeares after, to wit, in Anno one thousand, fine hundred, twentie and one. The Articles both of the peace and alliance, are fet downe in their due place, heereafter following.

CHAP. XVII.

A Discourse, concerning the Alliance of the Switzers, with the King of France.

 Γ that very time, all the Cantons, Zurich onely excepted, made Alliance with the King of France. And, although they of Zurich were ear-font why the fuled to be allied with the The retreat of kingof France

> drich Zuinglis.why Chritian men hould not make them. felnes byre ings in warre

The men of

Zwich were

ninded, and

little giuen to percefully

Taxations

impoled vpon the new legue

Chap.17.

Certaine rea-

this league with them : yet for all that, they could neuer bring them to the point of yeelding to this alliance. In the first place, the yearcs going before, Mathew, Cardinall of Sion, who came verie often to Zurich: by his Orations and perswafine speeches, had wholly estranged them from the French. On the other fide Huldrich Zuinglius, being then a principal minister at Zurich, in his ordinary preachingana Sermons, ceased not to turne the people, from taking wages to goe in warre feruices. Shewing by a guments & remonstrances of great weight, that it was not lawfull for a Christian man to fet himselfe to sale for a price of money, and go shed the bloode of such as are (oftentimes) innocents, and never did him any manner of wrong. He fayd, they ought to follow the manners of the ancient Switgers, who (by their manhood) had planted liberty in their countrey. All which while, they wholly estranged themselues from fuch course of living; their lives wer maintained by their trauell pneuer binding themselves ynto any Prince, neither hadde they any freedome that was to be

And as hee had words verie readio at command, so he approved by great store of found reasons and arguments, that fuch alliances did but eneruate & meerdly prostitute the liberty of the Switzers so forraine Kings and Princes ... So that the men of Zutich, being (otherwife) people of peace, and little addicted to martial affaires; were much mooiled with his foceshes, and abhorred this new League. On the other fide, she Captaines that hadde bene in the warres in the times of King Charles the eight, and Letesthe eleventh, diffwaded them from the leaguess being farro vnlike to the alliances with former Kings. For in precedent times lafter that the Smitters had well velder frond &c com prehended the occasion of the war they made choife offich Captaines and foldienses they should fend to the king according to their promile. But the Newe League, the Cantons neithen chose Captaines nor Soldiers, neither cared what became of all, what the occasions of the warre were, nor whether they vvere iuft, orno. But, if the King were to deale

with any people, he chose such Captains

nestly sollicited by the rest, to joyne in) of the Switzers as himselfe pleased, and I caused them to come whether he thought good. By which meanes, the Cantons had not any power ouer their Men for warre, except they might counter-mand them, when any warre was moued in the country.

Moreover, many faide, that this newe League was contrary to the ancient and cerning the perpetuall alliances of the Switzers For, in the first Article they stand bounde, to guard all the Provinces of France, against all enemies whatfoeuer they are. True it is, that the first alliances were exempted: but immediately is added, that if the ancient allies begin to make warre vpon the French, the Cantons ought to fend fuccour to the King, against the otherswheron enfued (as it feemeth) that if any one of the Cantons, or of the Confederates, could not have reason (in friendly maner) of the King of France, and would purfue his right by Armes ; the other Cantons are bound to warre on him, according to the new League, and contrarie to the promifes of the ancient alliances.

Moreover, it is not any long time, fince the Switzers denied theyr troopes to the Emperor Maximillian, alleadging for their excuse because he would have had them ferticat his Corronation) that Emperor Mathey were occasioned (for many reasons) ximilian, and to keepe their men of warre (as then) at caufe. home in their owne countrey. Therefore it appeared to them verie vnfitting, that they should then allye themselves with the King, who would make a Leuye of them, fo foone as the alliance was concluded. contribute main

They conveyued also, that it would be farre off from theyr annotene granty, and magnanimity, if they frould league them felues fo finicity with the King of France; of whom but a yeare and an half before) they had written vnto the Electors of the Empire that it was no way expedient that he fibule govern the affayres of Germa-king of Frace if the wife hould be elected Empe-ile for that if he should be elected Empe-if he were vor, they were not minded to give him o- cholen limpt bedience And, as concerning the commodities of the alliance, which many did make lowd proclamations of there vvere others of opinion, that the profite would fall into fome particular purfes, and efpecially offuch, as enriched themfolves by the penfions of Fraunce; but the Com-

perpetual Alliances of the Switzers

Articles con

The Switzers denyed their troopes to the vpon what

The Switzen

no oth Children

A hot &fierce fight between the Switzers & the French wherein the Switzers wer ouerthrowne in the end.

Read the lord du Bellay, in the first book ofhis Memo-

Arguments very confide rately alled-ged by the Switzers,againtioyning in League with the King of France.

fily was to be proued. For in the first place, the country had no neede of any strange horsemen or infantery, hauing worke enough to doe in nourishing their owne breed for that imployment. Moreouer, the hope of helpe, and money from France, robbed the Switzers of all their true force and courage. In following the example of their predeceffors, they were best to let their hope leane and rest upon God, to serue and honour him in fincerity of heart, and vorightneffe of conscience. That not onely hope in God would faile and diminish by such a League, but also it was to be feared, that it would very strongly break and corrupt their ancient manners, cause all husbandry to ceafe, gine ouer honest trades and exercifes, and engender nothing but idleneffe. And then is eafily known what followeth, diffolution in diet and apparrell, drunkennesse, whoredomes, adulteries, thefts, and blasphemies. For these are the fruites of warre, and the Arts that are lerwar inforrain Princes (erui-

monwealth of the Switzers would be no way benefited by the bargaine, as very ea-ned in the armies of strange Princes.

For a finall conclusion, the euent and fuccesse of precedent alliances, have both instructed and guarded many (especiallie the men of Zurich) to weigh well & confider on nouell combinations. For, albeit that some fewe did sufficient feruice to the nation, as that which was made against the Duke of Bourgongne: yet notwithstanding, the most part of those alliances, brought it into great extremities. Because in such straunge warres they lost many of their people: or els in those coutries, they were rudely hurried and agitated, by factions and feditions. For thefe reasons, and divers other considerations; the inhabitants of Zurich could not (as the king of France. But the other confederates, who were not of any fuch opinion, maintaind what they did, by reasons enow. First, they de-clared, and would prooue it, that every voyage in war was not condemned by the word of God: but that many holye perfons had made wars ; wherein they were ayded and fuccoured by others, as in like manner they had affifted their Allies. Secondly, that the war of the Switzers was not mercenary nor vendible; because then be induced to ally themselves with they went to the feruice of a King onely. (with whom they were joyned by an honeft alliance) with the will and confent of their Lords.

Thirdly, that if the King should moue a warre, which all men knew to be vaiuft; then it remained in the power of the Lords of the Leagues, to deny him fuccour. But if the occasion were doubtfull and vncertaine; the fouldier had nothing to doe to make any curious inquisition thereof: it only appertained to the King and his Councell, to render a reason for it. Fourthly, that the Switzers Countrey was greatly peopled, but narrow, hard, & the Swinzer barren in many places, and could not furnifh fo many men with nourishment: wherefore the commodity was not to be condemned, which the King had offered voluntarily.

To these we will adde, that the Switzers ought to confider, with what neighbors they were enclosed, fom wherof ennyed them, and others pryed into their Liberties: fo that it was both well and wifely done, to fortifie themselires with strange fuccour against them, and that trust and hope in God, did not prohibite the vse of humane affifiance. Alfo, this was a means to traine up the Switzers in martiall discipline, which is necessary for all Commonwealths: and in regard whereof, warlike people haue euermore beene highly refrected? Finally, although that fome alwester. liances have difcommodited the Countrey, yet notwithstanding, the Switzers have foed well in the more part, especially in those which they had with the kings Lewes the eleuenth, Charles the eight, and Lemes the twelfth. And therfore they must needsteepecta happy yffice of this which they contracted with a King powerfull & fortunater geo

This was the discourse then made concerning aliance with the French: as I learned of my predeceffors, which lived in thole times. The felfelame question hath bene often and feriously debated & handhed cuenin my time, by men well groun-ded in the flayers of State, to whome(as yet) I referre the further knowledge of the cale.

The City of S Gal tooke name at firft a Gentleman of Scotland.

Marrial & mi-

litarie Difei-

Of them that are Allyed and Leagued with the CANTONS.

And first, The Abbot of Saint Gall. CHAP. XVIII.

Another Difcourie of the Author, con-cerning the affociates in particular ma

Itherto wee haue showne what the Cantons & confederates are making vp a whole body of the Swigzers Commonwealth, and what hath beene the eflate and condition of enery one of them before they were leagued. Also, for what causes, at what times, and with what conditions they affembled themselues in a body politicke. Now we will discourse of the affociates of this Commonwealth. according to the fame order: and we will heere shew, wherefore, when, and vppon what conditions they allyed themselues with the Cantons. And because the Abbot, and the Citty of Saint Gall do holde the first ranke, wee purpose to begin with

> Gallus, of whom the ci-of Saint Gal hath taken name, was a Gentleman of Scotland, and Disciple or Scholler to an Abbot, named Colombanius, with whome hee came into France, and thence transported himselse into Germany, to a place called Tuggen, neere to the River named Limagus, at the mouth of the Lake of Zurich. There he preached the Gospel with great zeale and affection, to the people of the Countrey, then bewitched with diuers kindes of Idolatry. Hee continued (foone after) at Bregents, at the mouth opening of the Lake of Constance: next, at Arbonna, and in divers other places of Swetia, for the space of sixteene years, or thereabout. Gonzo Duke of Suaba, hauing called him to bee Byfroppe of Cont stance; he would not accept that charge: but councelled the Duke to give it to one of his schollers, named Iohn, whom hee thought to be more fit for the place. As for himfelfe, about the yeare fix hunder red and thirty, he retired into the Mounraines, about the Lake of Constance, into Gallus refused a very folitary place; and in the very fame to be bythop plot or square of ground, where the Citic and Abbey of S. Gall now standeth: hee builded a little Cell or house, wherein he fpent the rest of his dayes, with som of his schollers, in the studye and meditation of

For fourescore yeares after the death of

S.Gall, they requested Counte Bertrand,

Gouernor of the countrey for the Kinges of France, that hee would give them an Abbot. He fent them a Prieft, named o-

Pepin, Prince of France, sonne to Charles

Martell: who following the aduice of his father, established this Priest the first Abbot of Saint Gall, and then (first of all) the Monkes made profession of the rule of s.

holy matters.

After the death of S. Gall, his schollers The death of liked well to liue in that place, and according to his manner of life: neuertheleffe, schollers, and without making profession then of anie his lite house certaine rule or order. But the Kinges of an Abbey, France, and the Dukes of Suaba, taking delight in their denotion, did them many kinde Offices: where by the number of these religious men encreased, & (by lit-tle and little) the small filly house of saint Gall, became converted into an Abbey.

mer, bred and brought vp in a Colledge, called Coire of the Grifons, and towardes bottefs, Gall.

Arguments for alliance of the Switzers with the K.of Frace, against those formerly alledged by

Some former examples wer

warrantable.

After that time, the abbey became verierich and powerfull, so that the Abbot of that place, was fette in number of the Princes. And in ancient times he was vnder protection of the Emperours, who tooke the Gentlemen of Suaba to be Gouernors of this abbey. Afterward, warre being kindled betweene the Abbot, and them of Appenzel : the Monkes well perceiued that their Conuent stood in neede of some good Protectours, because the Townesmen or Cittizens of S. Gall, who were (as within the abbey) ioyned with them of Appenzell, who were also fauored by many feruants of the Abbot.

S.Gal defires to be received into the number of 4. Cantons, and to

For this cause Gaspar de Landberg, then The Abbot of the two and fiftieth Abbot (by the aduice and counfell of the Monks) requested the Cantons of Zurich, Lucerna, Suices, and Glaris, to receive him into their alliance: establishing them patrons, fathers, & defenders of his freedom, & of al his goods, possessions, viances, and priniledges. This right is perpetuall, and at all times, and as often as a new Abbot is to be elected , hee promifeth this accord, and that al the places of his Seigneury, thall alwayes lye open to these foure Cantons, and they to have free accesse thither. And if diffrence shal happen between him and any other: he shall commit it (continually) vnto the hearing of the foure Cantons, and be iudged by them.

The fuccessour to Landberg, named Landberg the Abbot beeing dead, Hul-Huldrich, and fir-named Le Roux, added to this first alliance, that the foure Cantons (hould fend (one after another) one of their Councell, that should remayne two yeares with the Abbot, to bee Captaine of all his country. He gaue affiftance in pleadings and indgements, & the moity of all fines remained to the Switzers. Moreouer, it was ordained in this allyance, that in all warres the Abbots fubicas should goe to the succour of the 4. Cantons. As concerning that which Abbet Huldrich renewed, and the League alfo, ioyning himselfe more strictly vnto the foure Cantons, the cause was thus. Sometimes before, the Citizens of Saint Gall, they of Appenzel, and the fubicas of the Abbot, had conspired together, and ruined the abbey of Rolach, which the Abbet had newly builded. So that the foure Cantons having fent for the other Catons to theyr assistance, reseated the Abbot in his rites, and reprooued his adversaries very stoutly. This affociation endureth yet to this day, and although al the Cantons are not at agreement with the Abbot, as concerning matter of Religion, yet notwithstanding, according vnto the articles of alliance, they lend him a Captaine, who manageth and gouerneth civill causes, conferuing (in this regard) the rights and priuiledges of the Abbot.

CHAP. XIX.

Of the Towne or City of S. Gall.

weth her originall and en-began and creating to the Abbey, and began and created by the Emperours, who vnited

it to the Empire, and gaue it many priviledges and immunities. In the time of the Emperour Arnould, the citie began first to be enclosed with walles: as fearing the courfes and furprizals of the Hungarians, and both it and the Couent were vnder the Empires protection. The cittie was fubicat vnto the Abbey in many things: meane while, the citizens had their rites, which they augmented by their industry, & by means of the Emperors liberalities.

ber, would fet them at agreement again. Sometime likewise, they were glad to satisfie the Abbots demands with money, and encreased their liberties, by buying their rightes of him. But when they of Appenzel moved warre against Abbot Cuno de Stouffen; the men of S. Gall beganne to take part with the Abbot, and got nothing for their labour but blovves, vvhich caused them (soone after) to make alliance with them of Appenzel. This warre being ended, and some other after, abbot Landberg being made a fellow-Bourgesse with foure Cantons . the cittizens of S. Gall, to maintaine themselves by the like expedient, entred perpetual alliance with Zurich, Berne, Lucerna, Suits, Zug, and Glaris. This alliance was sworne on the Eue of S. Iohn Baptist, in the yeare, 1454. And they of Saint Gall made a publicke banket for the Ambassadors of the Cantons, whereat were prefent about fifteene hundred men . Before this alliance, they were leagued with some Cantons for cer taine yeares: as with Zurich , Constance, and Schaffoufe, in the yeares, 1312. and 1347. And at other times often with Zurich and Constance. Afterward, with Zurich, Berne Vri Suits & Vnderuald, in the yeare 1229. But I have purpofely omitted those alliances made for so short times, contenting my felte onely with this last mentioned, which continueth to this day CHAP. XX.

Of the Leagued Grifons.

Wealth and

foo men p

T is generally agreed on that the people of the Grifons are very ancient.
For fome ages before the birth of our Sautor Leftis Chrift, the Tufcans been been been been been been for the barbes by the Gauls ing driven from their houses bythe Gauls they possessed the Alpes, vnder conduct of their captain, named Rhatus, for whose fake they called themselues Rhætians. Heretofore this country extended it felfe greatly in length & largenes, fo that the Romane Emperors made two Rhætian Proninces named the first & second Rhatia: which comprehended not onely the Alpine regions, but also a great part of Suaba & Bauaria. Now, it is well knowne, that this first Khatia beginneth at & sourse of Rheine, & taketh a sufficient great quarter of the Alpes, and all the valleyes on both the fides. Almost all the people ther are (to this day) called Grifons; and in former times they were tearmed Gris: as likewise the Allmains gave them the same name,& call them belide, Gram pundter, that is to fay, Leagued Grifons. For, in regard that these Rhatians are Leagued, not onely with ' vitzers, but also ahat of verie long mong them?

time, we call them Leagued Grifons, & fom ! times the Switzers names them fimply, Dundter, that is, Confederates.

Wee are to observe three leagues of Three several the Grifons. The first tooke name of her the Grifons. antiquity, and of the scituation of the countrey: for they called it, The High 1. The High League, or high Grifons. It containeth nine Leauge, or high Grifons teene Communities or Fellowshippes, among whom (heeretofore) the Abbot of Diffentiff, and the Baron of Rhatia. & the Count of Mifauk held the cheefest ranke:

but the families of the 2. Matter are expired. Neuerthelesse, among them in AND AND Common, they which pofielle the Caftle of the ancient Barons of Rhatta. are called Lords of Rhatzurs, a title which (some short while after) the Lordes of Marbree took; and after them, they which are named Plantes. They of Tauet scher, Liviner. and Masoxertal are the principall people of this league.

The second is called, The league of Gods 2. The league house. I thinke it to be so termed, because or of the Hosthe byshop of Coire is comprized in this pitall. league. It also comprehendeth nineteene Communities; two whereof doe speake the Germane Language; the other, vie the Rhætian or Grison, which is their mo ther tongue, & cometh neere to the Italian. The principal people of this league are the city of Coire, which is the bishops See. Also they of Pregaul and of Engadin, out of which countries run two renowned riuers, to wit, Etfch and Inn.

The third league hath ten Communi- 3. The league ties, and is called, The League of ten Iurif- aions. dictions. Therein are comprized them of Rhuchemberg, and of Tunlesch. The former two leagues had (at the beginning) amity and alliance a certaine time, with the Cantons neereil to them. For in the yeare, 1419. the Bylhop, the Chapter, & the cittle of Coire, made Allyance with severall allithem of Zurich for one and fiftie yeeres . usrall times. Alfo, they were fometimes allyed with them of Glaris. And the Grifons of the high league, wer long time confederated with them of Vri. Then after, with them of Gods house they made a perpetuall alliance with feauen of the Cantons, But the thirde League is not comprized in this alliance, and yet notwithstanding do Abbot Huldrich renewed the league with the four Cantons, and more strictly.

drich firnamd

the Red, fucceeded after

Alliance of the Grifons with the Switzers an vpon what

A great diffe-Gods-house. and them of rencebetween the league of

The Grisons depute two of each league tor ending their cause.

Cunning tric s, and fit for fuch to vie, as defire to oppreffe the peoples entertaine this amity and fociety with the confederates, euen as firmely and faithfully, as if they stood solemnly bound therero.

First then, in the yeare 1497, the high league, more properly called, The Grifon league, made perpetuall alliance with feauen Canzons: and the yeare following, the league of Gods-house joyned it selfe with them, by this occasion following. Some yeares before, the league of Gods-House had had certaine great differences, with the dwellers in the county of Tyroll. In the end, by the will of the Emperour Maximillian, it was decreed; that the parties thould chuse an equall number of Judges, to take knowledge of their variance, and that Thomas, Bishop of Con. france, should be Arbitrator about all the Indges. But while the Councellers to the King delayed to end this discord, the Bishop of Constance dyed: and in his stead, Maximillian subrogated Fredericke, Bi-Thop of Ansbourg. But the Kings councellers taking no knowledge of this other Arbitrator, prolonged (from day to day) the decision of the suite, as before they had done: all this while mollefting the Grifons, and charging them still with nouell impolitions.

They perceiving no cellation, deputed two of each league, and fent to Infruk, infifting, that this difference thould end, according to the order of the Emperour Maximillian. Which the councellers pretended not to know, albeit divers of them, and (among the rest) the chanceller was prefent when the decree was fet downe. Yet notwithstanding because the Deputies should not bee sent backe without answer; they assigned a day at Velcure, in Lent the next yeare enfuing.In the meane while, they of Austria planted Garrisons upon the Frontiers, and strong Artillery in divers places, making (vnder hand) their preparation forwarre. For they had appointed that day expressely, because they would set upon them at vnawares, & vtterly ouerthrow the Grifons, no way standing on their guard: wherein the Bishop of Coire lent his helping hand to them of Austria. But the league of Gods-Houfe, having discovered the enemies intent; fent men to the cantons,

who kept then a day at Zurich, and gaue

them to understand this eminent danger.

The Ambaffadors declared, that befide the olde quarrels, new differences were moued, betweene them of Austria and the Switzers, so that there grew an appearance of warre; therefore for the profit & fecurity both of the Switzers & Grilons. it feemed good, that they should be allied together. For by that meanes the Grifons shold easily expell the enemy out of their country: although they gaue them but little avde, or almost none at all. On the other fide, the Switzers should have a Bulwarke to back them, and so might the more ftrongly make head against the enemy. The Cantons, who had bin well affected to the Grifons before, and knew those Mountaine-bred men, to bee a warlike disposed people, and how beneficiall this alliance wold be both to the one and other: concluded and established a per- Aperpenul petuity of loue with the Grifons, in the league of low with the Gri yeare 14, 8. and the Moneth of Decem- fons. ber, and the Articles of the alliance are these that follow.

The Articles of alliance, betweene the Switzers and the Grifons.

M. I. First, that they shall be friends, & give mutuall succour one to another.

2. The second Article concerneth the ar Agreeined convenience on the second article concerneth the arconvenience on the second article of the second article of the second article of the second article on the second article on the second article of the second article on the second artic greeing of differences which may happen betweene confederates.

3. The third is, that no man shall give or No sellinger fell away, those actions that he hath against debis. his debter, or the answerer, or surety for him.

4. The fourth concerneth victualles, ac- For food and cording to one anothers trading : And to bee trading. freely in the Markets, without standing bound to pay any new tributes.

s. That neither the one nor other fide, shall make any new alliance, wherein these Articles (hall be comprised, but with excepti- king of peace ons : And that in times of warre, the one fide shall not make peace except the other be therin comprehended also.

These are the Articles and principall points of the alliance. But the yeare following, the warre of Suaba happened, happenedby wherein the Grifons valiantly defended the warred their Frontiers, against the men of Austri- Suaba a. And by the ayde of their people, many times in like manner, and by the affiftance of the Switzers, divers brave battailes

Swirzers and

The Grisons llied with the French.

Chap.21

Peabe made in the citty of Balile, for the Switzets and

lohn laques

Marqueffe C

Marignano.

Grifons.

were wonne against the enemy. Yet after these victories hapning on either side. peace was (at length) made in the citty of Bafile, with the Emperor Maximillian; in which peace, the Grifons are also comprised. By this meanes, the beginning of the alliance was wholefome and happy to both parties, and afterward, in many wars where the Switzers were present, vnder wages of strange Princes their confederates: the Grisons alwayes marched as kinde companions with them. It came to passe, that in the yeare one thousand, fine hundred, thirty and one: Iohn Iaques de Medicis, who afterward was Marquesse of Marignano, getting v. furped possession of the Castle of Mus, vpon the Lake of Coma, and having taken Clauenna from the Grisons, forraging the country thereof: many Cantons, according to their league of alliance, fent fuccour to the Grifons: by meanes whereof. the enemy was ouercome at last, and driuen far off. In our time, the Grifons were allied with the French, and with the cantons of Swetia, and went to warre together for the King: yet in fuch fort neuer. theleffe, that they fend oftentimes a regiment separated of the Switzers, & which hath his Colonell & Captaine in chiefe.

GHAP. XXI.

The Alliance of the Valaisians, or people of

THE name of Valaisians, or them of Valois, comprehendes three diftinct A description people, enclosed within the most high Mountaines, and dwelling in the Valley, from the fourfe of Rheine, fo farre as the Lake * Leman is, They were anciently called Viberines, Sedusians, or Segusiger by Gene-us and Lauans, some say, Schustans, and Veragrians. At this day, the Viberines and Schustans, are called the high Valaistans, and are dis uided into seuen Diocesses, or Wards of ten Parishes. The Veragrians, or lowe Valaifians, are subjects to the other: but the Bishop of Sion is Prince of all the country, having the foueraignty both temporall and spirituall, and he is called Count, or Gouernor of Valois. We have described in another Tract, apart by it felfe, not onely this Valley, but likewise all the most remarkable things of the Valaifians.

Fine Wardes or Diocesses of the Valaisians. made first alliance with Lucerna, Vri, and Vnderuald, in the yeare 1 4 1 7. They were then in warre against a Bishop, named againit a bithop, named William de Raron, and his Raron and. Father Guiscard, whom they had (by a Guiscatchis popular tumult) forced from their hou- father. fes. The Bernians gaue affiftance to the Bishop and his Father, who were of their Bourgeffes: And for this cause the Valarfians defiring to have fuccour elsewhere: allied themselves with the fore-named 3. Cantons. Now fearing leste this might be an occasion of breeding quarrell betweene the Bernians, and the three Cantons allied with the Valaisians: the other cantons, who were as neuters to the bufinesse, laboured so earnestly, that the difference was pacified, and the Lords of Raron re-established in their goods. Before this alliance, the Valaifians had made one (for the space of ten yeares) with them of Contracted Berne, in the yeare 1250. Againe, after this warre, they contracted another alliance (for certaine time) with the Berni- Bernians. ans. But in the yeare 1475, they made a league defensive and offensive. And in the same yeare when wee wrote this Hiftory (to wit, 1575.) an hundred yeares being expired, after the beginning of this league: they renewed and confirmed it on eyther part, by magnificent Ambasfadors. Two yeares before they were leagued with the Bernians, they made a certaine agreement with them of Vri, Suits. and Vnderuald.

To conclude, in our time, vpon great differences mooned, concerning matters Differences of Religion, Ceremonies, life and manners of the Cleargy, whereof reformati- lives, and ma on was required, Swetia being divided into contrary parts; Adrian, Bishop of Sion, and feuen Wardes of the Valaifians, in the yeare 1533. made alliance with feauen Cantons, in the Towne of Fribourg, which Cantons made profession of the Roman Religion, as namely, Lucerna, Vri, Suits, Vnderuald, Zug, Fribourg, and Sollearre. In this Alliance / ouer & beside that which is ysed in the other)it ners of the Cleargy.

Sion is Count and Gouer-

A Lake of

Opinions

concerning

the name of

Roruill, which is an Imperi

all Towns or Citty.

Kotwill,or was especially agreed, that they should aide one another, to maintaine the vied and approued Religion, to wit, that of the Romane Church, against all them that would depriue or violence it.

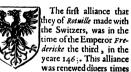

CHAP. XXII.

Of. Retwill.or Rotwill.

To Ome haue imagined, that Tangatium, whereof Pto-lomy speaketh in his Geo-graphy, was Rotwill or Rot-uill, which Glareanus calleth Erythropolis, having changed the Aleman or Germane word, into a Greek word: but they much deceive themselves. For Ptolomy placeth Taxgatium in the country of the Grifons, and Rotuille is fcituated beyond Danubius in Germany, on the left fide of the River Niera, and very neere to the Spring-head of both those Floods or Riugrs. This citty is sufficiently renowned among the Imperials, for therein is a chamber of the Empire, which is vulgarly called Hofgricht, whereunto all the round neighbouring countries refort, for causes of appeale. Such as are contumacious, and fayle of their appearance there; are fent (by sentence of the Judges) into banishment from the Empire. It is faid, that this chamber was established by the Em-with the can rons.

peror Conrad the third, and that it is 424.

veares fince.

betweene them. At last, in the yeare 1, 19. they contracted perpetuall alliance with all the Cantons of the Switzers. Dyring the warre of Suaba, they of Rotuille (engirt with enemies on all fides) shewed themselues alwayes faithfull to the Switzers; offering them amiably and liberally all their riches and men : which the Switzers could not accept, but onely defired them, to defend their citty against the enemy. Now in regard that Rotuille is scituated along the limits of Swetia, and that fuceour cannot bee brought to one ano- female in ther, but with danger, confidering, they rough the must passe through other mens lands: the midst of Swealliance speaketh expressely, that they must be carefull for drawing any war vppon them, or vpon any of their confederates.

And first of all: It is said that they may not make war with any wholoeuer, without the knowledge and confent of the of alliance Cantons. They shall give no succourto them and the cantons. will and confent of the Cantons. Moreouer, if they would have reason by Arms, for any injury or out-rage done vnto the; they must attempt nothing, but by advice of the Cantons. If their enemies will vndergoe judgement, fuch as the Cantons shall thinke to be honest and equall; the men of Rosuslle must also confent therto. If warre chance to bee moued among the cantons; they of Rotuille are to follow that part, which the most part of voyces do allow. The cantons are to conferue (with all their power) the Imperial cham- all Chamber ber of Rotuille, which (in the mean while) of Rotuille, thall vie no authority against the Switzers, or any of them. And if any stranger ded. shall cite or summon thether a Switzer: they are to make knowne, and he likewife, how farre he is to bee defended by priviledge. In breefe, they are not to molleft any Switzer in that jurisdiction.

CHAP. XXIII.

Of Mulhouse.

Milhouse is a Towne in the county of Ferrara, or (as some do hold opinion) in the Territory of Bafile. It is thoght and nominathat in ancient times it was called Ariabinium. For in the Guide or Directer of wayes, appointed by Antonius Augustus; this place is fet betweene Augusta Rauraca (which is Basile) and Vruncim. which some do thinke to be called at this day, Ensheym; then Mount Bris-Sac, Heluetum, and Strasbourg are named. In times of antiquity, Mulhouse was in number of the Imperial townes: but the Bishop of Mulhouseon Strasbourg was Gouernor thereof also of all Towner. the Towne

Aliance made with Berne

for fifteene

rearcs, and

Towns of Colmar. It came to passe, that warre happened betweene Raoul of Habfourg, and the Bishop of Strasbourg, wherein Mulhouse was taken from the Bishop, & the Castle ruined. After which time, Mulhouse was againe re-obtained, and numbred among the Imperiall Citties and Townes.

Her first alliance with the Switzers. was made about the yeare 1464. For in regard that the neighboring Gentlemen mollested the Towne, and narrowly watched all occasions to affault it a the cittizens made alliance with them of Berne, for fifteene yeares, as also with Fribourg and Solleurre, and by meanes of the Bermans intercession, the other seuen Cantons tooke the Towne into their protection. Which proued so displeasing to the Noble-men, that these private enmittes converted themselves (soone after) into open warre: which caused the Switzers immediately, to fend and plant Garrisons in Mulhoufe. Afterward, all the Cantons brought their troopes into the field, and came with great affiftance to releeue Mulhouse.

In the end, hauing befiedged the towne of Waldshaut, appertaining to the house of Anstria: they compelled the Gentlemen to come to some equal conditions of peace. Afterward, they of Mulhoufe were received for fellow-Bourgesses with them of Bafile, and thereby more strictly vnited to the Switzers. Nine yeares after. the 19.day of lanuary they made alliance with all the thirteene cantons. The conditions were all alike to the alliance of Rotuille, as well in regard of warres, as leagues with firangers.

ment a part by it selfe, as also liberall frachifes and priviledges.

The first alliance of the of Bienna, was made with the men of Berne, in the yeare 1203. to ridde the country of certaine robbers and theeues, which wandred there in fo great numbers, as almost no way had any security for passage. In this alliance, they of Strasbourg, Bafile, Fribourg and Solleurre were also comprized. Three years after, in regard of some great differences, which they had with their neighbours: they made a particular alliance with the Bernians. Their third alliance was made in Anno 1352.and fifteen yeares after, because John de Viana, Bishop John de Viana of Bafile, (a man of turbulent fpirit) wold Bishop of Ba. not suffer any of his neighbours to liue in quiet: they of Bienna, desirous to prouide for their owne case and tranquility, bours. ioyned themselves more strictly with the men of Berne, by giving each to other the right of fellow-Bourgeiles. The Bithop very angry at this vnion, mustred together some troopes of horse, and (at vnawares) ranne vpon them of Bienna, and claptyp in prison the Authors of this affociation.

When the men of Bernaheard of this deede, they came to fuccour their fellow Bourgesses, tooke (by force) the Castle, which the Byshop had in Bienna, set the prisoners at liberty, and made warre vpon the Byshoppe, as also on them of Solleurre, his affociates. In this warre, they tooke and ruined many places, which were in subjection to the byshop.

CHAP. XXIIII.

The fituation and efface of Ieme is at the ende of a very, pleafant Lake; abounding with plenty of fifth & round engire (on all fides) with goodly Vineyards. It is vnder the government of the Bishop of Ba-file; and yet it enjoyeth lawes and regi-

CHAP. XXV.

Of Geneua.

Eneua is the last and vemost Cittie of the Allobroges, of which (amongst other of Antiquity,) Cofar hath mentaries.

ance of them of Rotuille lul.Laf in con The Scienation and anniquirie of Ge-

Geneua cal-

name of Au-

The Countes

of Geneway

and of Sa-

uoye, great enimies to the liberties

zens of Ge

of the citti-

пеца

led by the

relia

270

It is neere to the limits of the Switzers, at the end of the Lake Lemanus, and an issue of Rhone commeth into it . Not onely the words of Julius Cefar, but also many antiquities there found do restifie the ancientnesse of the citty. Many famous Monuments might have beene feene there. but that the citty was oftentimes ruined by enemies, and much destroyed and defaced by fire. For I finde in ancient chronicles, that in the time of Heliogabalus, Genena was embraced with fo fierce a fire. as hardly was any one house to be found. that stood free from it. The Emperour Aurelianus restored the citty againe, being to pitifully diffigured, granted it great priniledges, and gaue it the right of Fairs, and of the Empire, because it was scituated most commodiously. Hee called it Aurelia, according to his owne name: but after his death. The took her ancient name againe. Afterward it was forradged (as many other citties were) by diners barbarous Nations, intruding themselues into France. And some 250.yeares after, or thereabout, within the space of 7. yeares, fire tooke it in such terrible manner, as the most part of the citty was quite ruined.

The Bishoppricke of Geneva, informer times had very ample priniledges & franchifes: yet notwithflanding, the cittizens held their liberties to themselves. and alwayes carefully conferred they leagues perpetuall with the Bifhop, according as they were left vnto them by their ancestors. The Counts of Geneway were great enemies to their liberties : who (neuerthelesse) were vassailes of the Bishoppricke, and held their Earledomes of him by fealty. So in like manner were the Counts of Sauoye; but the cittizens maintained their rights and priniledges couragiously against the Counts.

In the yeare 1420, when Amias, the first Duke of Sauoye, laboured to obtain of Pope Martin, by way of enterchange, the right and superiority (as they call it) ouer the citty of Geneua: the Bishop named Iohn de Pierre-scize, made an agreement for him, and all his successors with the cittizens, that he nor they should at any time confent, that the liberties of Genena (hould be exchanged or alienated. If eyther he, or any of his fucteffors did otherwife; the cittizens might hold and ranke him or them in the number of traitors and conspiring enemies. Some while after this, the Emperor Maximillian, hauing amply published his Sonne in law. Philebert, Duke of Sauove, Vicar of the Empire in those parts: then againe, Philebert and his brother Charles. Strone to fubiect Geneua vnder their awe, pretending the title of this new right, and priniledges of the Vicarship, given in former times to the Counts of Sauoye, by the Emperour Charles the fourth. Who (notwithstanding) tooke from Count Amias, all action, power, iurifdiction, and preheminence, ouer the citty and territory of While these practifes and conspira-cies of the neighbouring Princes lasted, they of Geneua maintained themselves heedfully in amity with the Switzers and (diners times) made alliance with the Bernians and Fribourgers, for certain years. At length, they combined alliance and fellow-Bourgeship perpetually, with the of Berne, and confirmed it more strictly, in the yeare 1 526. Then in regard of the religions alteration, the Duke of Sauore, and the Bishop of Geneva, made war vppon the cittizens, they being fuccoured by them of Berne. This alliance hath bene (fince then) renewed, and many friendly motions made, to allie Geneva with the Cantons: but I know no reason, why it is nor executed and done."

CHAP. XXVI.

Of New Castle.

HE Citty of New-Caffle, is feated in the country of New-caffle, the Auantici, ypon the lake which is called the Lake of typ's 6200 New-Caffle, at the head entrousy. whereof is another little Towne, called of the Austr Tuerdun. New-Castle is both a citty and ties country and the Count thereof was chofen by fuccession of the Counts of New-Castle: but fince, falne to the Counts of Hochberg, the Marquelle of Roselin, and to two Dukes of Longueuille. During the warre betweene King Lewes the twelfth, and the Switzers, the men of Berne (in

A good and fingular kind e of governmer

erued among

name of all the cantons their confederates) possessed themselves of the citty of New-castle, and of the whole county, and placed there a Gouernor. This order vew-castle by the other cantons continued, except that of Zwich, who having loft their ranke; at the returne of it to their turne againe, they should command at New-cattle two veares together.

Chap. 27.28.

Gouernor

e Cantons

But when the time drew neere, Jone of Hechberg, widdow to the Duke of Lonqueuille preuailed fo much, as (with cerraine conditions) the county was furrendred back againg in the years to 29. Somtime before, this county had beene allied from the Cantons of Berne, Lucerna, Fribourg, and Sallewreeby meanes of fome Articles, which were confirmed agains vpon this restoring or surrenden. At this day the counties of New-castle are particularly allied with the men of Berne, or the Bernians.

राजारी का अनुसर्भ भी Drawi CHAP, XXVII in the feel of the control of the

of those people that are concerned (in coman ares name, vi. of they Penald be paid in wages, and harges along the war third part of our Swirzers common by the Swirzers common by the Swirzers. Itis necessary then, to fay fome-what of the time and by what title, they became fibiots to the Switzers. Among them there are fome Townes, which wee may tearme (tipendaries) because (at their own proper cofts and charges) they march along in warre with the Switzers. Neuertheleffe, they governe them felnes by their owne lawes, and make election of their Magistrates; & yet the maine foueraignty appertaineth to the Switzers, to whole hawes and Edicts, those Townes stand bound to obey. Anciently they belonged to the house of America, but during the warres against that house, the Switzers became Mafters of the neighbouring countries, and thefe Townes yeelded thefelites to them vpon certaine conditions to wit that they should be as well subject to them as to the house of Austria, their ancient priviledges faued and excepted. Those Towns are Bada, Bremgarten, Fraisuenfeld, Mellingen, and Rafber will.

CHAP. XXVIII

Of Bada.

Add is a Towne vppon the Riuer Limagus, or Limma-thus, and so called, in regard anthe belonging to the of hot waters, whereof there switzers, whereof the Switzers, taines in that place, whereunto men and women vie to refort (in great numbers)

from divers countries. For this cause fome have called it the Towne of Baths, others, the Caftle. According to cuftome of our Elders, who called Baths, those places where there were hot Springs and Fountaines : fo may wee tearme this the

the Tarbes . In Germany, the Baths of

The Bathes : And in the inscription of Wettingen, they of Bada are called. The

This Towne is one of the most ancient for the Mountaines, which close 32 toyne

Swetia into France, and into Italy, wee must goe through Bada, then ouer the lands of Zurich; from thence into the country of Ergow and thwart ouer Sweet

tia. In ancient times, this Towne had two

Caftles, one feated vpon an high Rocket,

which is nothing now at this day, but old decayed ruines (being spoyled and defas ced by the Switzers as we shall declare anon.) And the other at an end of a bridge, cittizens of the Baths.

Switzers Baths. As in Italy there are the Of Baths in Baths of Statiell, and others & In France | divers counshe Baths of dix of the Convenes, and of Space or Spaw and of Aix. In like mane In England ner, Bada, Towne of the Marquifare of likewiters Bada in a certaine infeription is namely Baths.

of Swetia by the testimony of Carnelius

Tacitus, who tearmeth it a Towne or City The teffimoty, having in abundance, and with great pleafure, very wholefornewaters . The lius Tacitus, fame Author faith, that the Romans took concerning notice of a Garrison in the Castle of Bib de, and reputedit selfe to be a Garrison:

together in that quarter, do locke up the country. To passe out of Germany and 1. drier har rowards led be culse.

Anagreemen made betweene the Bishop and cittizens of Geneua, concerning the liberties of the Citty.

The Emperor

engageth låds

Zurich, and of

Bada ioyned to the house of Austria, & revolued to the Switzers.

By what came into the power of the Switzers.

A Councel of war, & there answer returned vnto the

In the felfe. Came councel it was decreeed, that men did not stande bound to keepe Faith with them that were cal led heretikes where (in our time) dwelt the Bayliffes or 1 Gouernours, which were fent thither by the Cantons . Bada hath had (in former times) Counts, the race whereof are quite exiinct, and their fuccessors have bene the Lords of Habspourg, who ioyned that County to the house of Austria, and diuers other goods. But from the house of Austria, Bada came into the Switzers hands, at the time of the Councel of Constance, in manner following.

Fredericke of Austria, brought Pope John the 22. out of the Councell & maincained him against the Emperour and the Councell. For which cause, by the Decree of the Councell, he was excommunicated, banished from the Empire, and his goods confifcated. The Emperour himfelfe, with an affembled Army, from the Townes and Citties of Germanie and Suaba, the Duke of Banaria, and some others, made warre vpon him. Also commandement was given to the Switzers, on behalfe both of the Emperour and the Councell to affaile Frederick with al their forces. Whereof they made refufall, alledging that they could not doe it, and their honor faned: in regard of the peace formerly made (for fifty weares follow) ing) with them of Austria: confirmed by Oath and Letters Parents ? The Fathers of the Councell made answere to this excufe of the Switzers: that Fredericke was an enemy to the Church, excommunicated and banished by publike order . This warre concerned the good of Church, who was offended and injuried (in her members) by Frederick.

Wherefore, if in this cause the Switzers vndertooke Armes, according to the command of the Emperour, they should do a good and holy worke. They should also well consider with themselves, how much it woulde wounde their honour ! if (in contrary opposition) they continuedidle excuses, which would wrap them vp in the fame cenfure and condemnation with Frederick. Ouer and befire all this: according to the aduice of the Ambassadors of England, Denmarke, Sweden, Normay, Bohemia, Polonia, and Princes, Gentlemen, and Lawyers, the Emperour declared, that the Switzers might (vvith a good and fafe confeience) make warre vppon Fredericke, notwithstanding the peace made. Because that the Subjects of the Empire, in all actions doe except expressely or couertly, the right and Maiefty of the Emperor.

of the Emperor.
The Emperor sent a copy of this arest the Decree and decree to the Switzers, enjoying lent by the them agains to make war on Fredericke, Emperour b and by the same meanes adjudged to the empire, all that which they of Austria had engaged to them before. Promising alfo, not to make any peace with Frede= ricke til the Switzers were first reintegrated into their former agreement. The Switzers being then perfwaded with fuch reasons leuted their Atmes ; but because they were to Warre in the name of the Emperor, and of the Romane Empyre, they demanded wages of the Emperout: declaring, there was no reason, that they should furnish themselves at they were demand we charge, and the fruite of the victory fall ges of the la into other mens hands; and that theyr heir fenis wealth was not sufficient to furnish such expences.

The Emperor thought this demand to be made in equity neuertheleffe because he was somewhat empty of money, hee agreed with the Switzers, that all the goodes of the house of Austria, which they possessed already, or could conquer in this warre; they should enjoy it in the Empires name, vntil they should be paid their wages, and charges during the war. By efectalidetters, the Emperor exhor- The Empered them of Zurich to enter the field and ron Letten granted them (in title of Fee) the Count Zurich trey which is beyond Mount Albin, named the Free Province, which they of Austria held. According hecreto the veare one shouland, four of hundred, and fifteene, about the fifteenth day of April, the men of Zurich, with their troops well preparedement to beliedge a Towne feated on the River of Rull, named Mellingen and on the third day tooke it by composition. From thence they went to Bremderten, where the Cantons of Suits & Zug iovned with them . They of Bremgarten; (by example of the other) yeelded the felues to the Switzers, under protection of the Empire.

At the same time, the Lucernians tooke a Townenamed surfer. The Bernians, assisted by them of Solleurre, Bienna, the County of Wen-castle, and some others befide, got into their power Zefingen, Arberg, Arow, Lentzbourg & Brug,

The towne of

Bada vpon enditions of tes, to breake the blowes of the Switzers.

counter-

The Con-

Fredericke was reconciled to the Emperor Sigismond, who sent immediately his Ambaffadours to the campe of the Switzers, to give them command for the ceafing of warre. But the Switzers feeling yet the outrages which the Garrison of Bada had done vnto them, fo foon as the truce time was expired, fo pressed them within, that two dayes after Pentecost, the caftle was delivered to them, which they burned and quite ruined, as soone as the enemy had avoided it. On the Morrow, the Count of Togge, Ambassadour from the Emperor, being arrived at the Switzers campe, to command them agayne, that they should give over armes, found the castle to be taken and spoyled. This

While these things were in working;

by the intercession of the Duke of Baua-ria, and the Burggraue of Nuremberg.

done nothing, but in case of open & law-Then, as the Emperor was ready to go for Spain, to fetch thence Pierre de Lune,

strooke somewhat deadly vnto the Noble mens hearts: but they had no occasion to complaine, because the Switzers had together with the country of Ergow. As | that he might be Pope, who afterwardes for them of Zurich, after they had taken the forenamed Townes, they beliedged Bads. All the other Cantons except Bern iound with them, for they of Austria held no place in Swetia of greater ftregth then this: and the Garrison of Bada had much ouer-trauelled the Switzers, especially them of Zurich, and this was the reason, that the Cantons resolved to force both the Towne and Castle. As for the towne, after it had beene beaten with the Cannon, for the space of three weekes, without ceasing, it yeelded. But the foldiours ftill defended themselues in regard, of the fortreffe, and held out well, after reddition of the Towne. The Switzers on the other fide, having received fuccour from them of Berne, did dayly beate the place, and pressed the Garrison to yeelde themfelues. At length, the Souldiers having no more stones, arrowes, darts, nor anie other munition proper for defence, truce being granted for some dayes: vpon condition, that if within a limited time Fredericke of Austria did not deliver the from this fiedge, they would quit the place, and deliuer the castle into the power of the Switzers.

was called Benet the eleuenth; beeing in need of money, because his cofers vvere emptied (hauing disburfed great payes, without any intermission in the precedent warres, and for the affaires of the Councell) he engaged to them of Zurich, Bada, Bremgarten, Mellingen, Surfey, and the Lands to them belonging. Also to them of Berne, the country of Ergow, vvhich they had taken, as already hath beene declared: yet paying a great fum of crowns. At this day, the country of Ergow is polfeffed by them of Berne onely. The yeare following, they of Zurich made a part of that which was ingaged to them, ouer to the Cantons of Lucerna, Suits, Vnderuald, Zug, and Glaris. From the beginning, the men of Vri vvould not have any part; as thinking, that the detention of these places, contradicted the treaty of peace made with further infor-Fredericke. But after they vnderstood the cheir confede reasons of their confederates, who protefled (in themselues) the same defire of obferuing the peace: but that by commaund of the Emperor, and of the Councel, they vndertooke armes. Next, that by the will and confent of them both, they poffeffed now those places for wages, and price of warre-service, and held them on the faith of the Emperor, the foueraigne Lorde; yet for a great summe of money, vvhich they had layd out & disburfed . The men Vriand Beme of Pri having heard these Reasons, and accepted into other of the like Nature, entred into part of this engagement. The Bernians also vvere received in at the length.

Vri stood 'free

tion at daft.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Of Bremgarten, and Mellingen.

Bringarten is a Towne, fituated on the River of Ruff, which encloseth it in the midst almost, in forme of a demy Island, what manner a great Germane mile beneath Lucerna. Bremgan It appeareth by the ancient priviledges of this Towne, that it was (hererofore) numbred among the Imperials. Neuertheles, it became (afterwards) fubiect vnto the Counts of Hablbourg, then to the Princes

A description of the scituation of Mellingen.

of Austria descended of them. But it is not well knowne at what time, nevther by what title, they came to make themfelues Lords thereof.

Mellingen is a little small Towne vpon the selfesame River, about half a German mile below Bremgarten. It hath alwayes beene under the dominion of the Counts of Habsbourg. These two Towns were taken (as Bada) in this war which the Switzers made vnder the Empires name, and then afterward, the Emperour Sigismond pawned it to the Cantons: vpon condition, that all their ancient rightes, priuiledges, and customes, should remain entire, and the Cittizens to yeelde the same dutie to the Cantons, as formerly they had done vnto the Counts of Habspourg. and Princes of Austria their Lordes. At this very day, both these Townes are vnder gouernement of the eight first Can-

CHAP, XXX.

Of Rasperwill.

The forme & fcituation of Rasperwill

Two factions of Austrians and Switzers in Rasperwill.

How Rasper will became ioyned to the Cantons, and

A S concerning Rasperwill, it is a town on the Lake of Zurich, wherin dwelt (fometimes the Counts of Rafperwil, who had to their successours the Countes of Habspourg, that gouernd likewise in these quarters. In the yeare 1458 the Switzers became masters thereof. There were then two factions in this town, the one of Au-Strians, and the other of Switzers. Duke Sigismond, tooke some of the Switzers partakers, and brought them as prisoners to Infpruk. The rest amazed at this deede. fled into Swetia; but by entermife of the Cantons, they all re-entred Rasperwillagaine. For the Cantons protested out alowde, that they would come and affault the towne, except the prisoners might be enlarged, and the banished received.

It came to passe the yeare following, that the Switzers made warre on them of Constance, who had done them some despightfull outrages. Peace being made, as they of Vri, Suits Vnderuald, and Glaris returned homeward to their houses, they demanded victuals for their troopes, and passage thorow Rasperwil, which they eafily obtained by the pursuite of their partakes. But being entred more frong, and in greater number then the Cittizens (the most part whereof were Switzers in affeation) they compelled the Cittizens to fweare fidelity to them. So that from that time, Rafferwill remained in the power of those foure Cantons:who(neuerthelesse) left the citizens to the fame liberty as they had vnder the Dukes of Austria.

CHAP.XXXI. Of Framenfeld:

'Wo yeares after the taking of Rafterwill, the featen Cantons then being Howthe ton in warre against Sigismond, Duke of Au. same to be to ken by the, stria, tooke Framenfeld, the chiefest town Canton. in all the country of Turgow. There were reasons and occasions enow, whereby this warre was vndertaken and attempted. The Duke had imprisoned Cardinall Cufano, by shoppe of Brescia, and because he did not release him, so soone as Pope Pius (who formerly was named Aneas The causes Syluius) fent him command to doe it, hee this warre was therefore excommunicated . But, because this Thunder-bolte did not difmay him, and he appealed from that fentence, to the next Councell : the Pope commanded the Switzers to defend the Churches rightes, and to fet yoon Sigifmond. The Cantons, who had as much The Pope commanded credite with the one, as with the other, the ware. obeyed the Popes command: but there happened other occasions to induce this

The towne of Winterduer, in the countie of Kybourg, appertaining to the Can- Small sparker ton of Zurich, was subjected to the Duke can cause and kindle a great of Austria. There is every yeare in that fire, and trueplace a Fayre, on the day of Saint Gal, the lour fulpition fixte of October, whereat the Countrey duce great people round about doe meere in great harme. numbers. They of Kybourg beingscome thither, the gates over thut against them, vppon a finister suspition of the inhabitants, that they of Zurich would furprize the Towne, during the Faire time, & had therefore made fome preparation.

Now, as the Bayliffe established by the Canton of Zurich in those quarters, required that the Gates might be fet open, and that they of Kybourg might haue free trading, according to theyr accustomd maner, promiting that the town should

Anew Garrifon is planted at Winter du-

The Baylyvickes gouer-led by the 7. If Cantons

THE common Baylywickes, are gouerned (in part) by the seauen first Cantons, and partly by some other with them. There are nine Baylywicks, or Go-

Of Bada & Turgovv.

hould receive no endamagement; notwithstanding all this, no credite would be given vnto his words. As a counterchange of this injury, they of Zurich prohibited their people from bringing cither victuals or merchandizes to Winterduer. The Duke of Austria on the other fide, standing uppon his guard, placed a garrison in the towne. These things hapned before the excommunication from But yet there was another occasion for the mooning of this warre. There were two brethren. Gentlemen of mark, of the Itis now called both Stiria country of Stiria, named Vigilius, and Berand Austria.

One wrong

or injury dra-rech on ano.

ther, and to o meane

Chap.32,33,34.

cruelty is deaf heare any iunard Gradlers. They of Austria, had infor ced them from their houses, and despoyled them of all their goods: without excepting to much as the dowrie belonging to Bernards wife, who was of the house of Starckenberg. After they had follicited the Duke a long time, to restore theyr goods againe, and neuer could obtain fo much as that hee would admit but what iustice did allow:at length, they withdrew themselues into Swetia, and were receyued as Bourgesses into Zurich . Afterward, having brought a little town, called Eglison: they made warre on the Duke of Austria, alsisted by the men of Zurich. The Duke placed a new garrifon at Win. terduer, but after the t copes of Zurich were drawne thence: some difference fel betweene the Garrison, and the inhabitants of Kybourg. So that once more they of Zurich (having demanded fuccour of their confederates) went foorth into the fielde, going to befielde Winterduer. At this time then, to wit, in the yeare, one thousand, foure hundred and fixty, Dieffenhow, a Towne on the Rheine, in the country of Turgow, this country also, and Framenfeld were conquered, and reduced under the power of the Switzers.

CHAP, XXXII.

Of the nine Baylywicks, or Governments.

ucraments in all, to wit; the Countie of Bads, the three Provinces, Turgow, Sargans, the Rhegusces, that is to fay, the valley of Rheine, which they call Rinthall, Lugano, Locarna, Mendrifa, and the vale Madia. The foure last are beyond the Alpes, in Italy, towards the Millainnefer, & fpank Italian the other the Germane tongue. Sargans, and the valley of Rhinchalliare on the Frontiers of the Grifons: the other 24 are feated within the confines of ancient Swetia.

CHAP: XXXIII.

Of Bada and Turgow.

IN this manner (then) were the Towne and County of Bada, Turgow, and Frawenfeld, by the Switzers conquered; at fuch times, and by those meanes, as formerly hath bene related. The Cantons of Zurich, Lucerna, Vri. Suites. Vnderualde, Zug, Claris, and Berne, commaunded at Bada. They are Lords of Turgow, except the Canton of Bern, which hath no part therein. As concerning the taking knowledge of criminal causes, the Emperour Criminal cau-Sigifmond tooke it from Frederick of Austria, at the time of the Councell of Constance, and engaged it to the City of Confance, which kepte it till the yeare 1499. when the Emperor Maximillian attributed that authority to the Switzers, by a treaty of peace which hee made with the. And therefore the feuen first Cantons aboue named, are Lords of Turgow. But concerning the knowledge of crimes; appellations and fines or amercements. which may happen, as oftentimes they doe: that appertaineth to the tenne first Cantons, who made warre agaynft the Emperour Maximillian, and the League of Suaba.

> CHAP. 34. Of the three first Provinces.

NOW, to speake of the three Prouin-ces, which are along beyond the Riuer of Ruf (to diftinguish them from the free Prouince, beyond the Mountain Albins, which was given to them of Zurich, by the Emperor Sigifmond, as we have already declared before:) they were taken by the Switzers, at the very fame time quest hath bin already decia-

The authority belonging Cantons.

oler

227

Concerning the feituation free PropinThe scituation belonging

ding to the au

tell you, that we call certaine Castles & Villages, which lye along the River of Ruf. both about and below Bremgarten, was thus giue free Prouinces. This name was given them (in mine opinion) because that the three villages, to wit, Meyenberg, Richenfee and Ergow, had anciently kept (each one) her jurisdiction. Magistrates, and Officers by themselves : so that they seequarter was called the Countie of Rora, Arow.

Some difference among the Cantons. concerning the conquest of the free Prouinces.

The Lucernians pleaded their Title ia right of theyt

¥ri lovned yeeres after, & had a part in the gouern

when Bada was conquered. Heere let me med as three feuerall Provinces, nowe ioyned all into one. In times past, all that and fo it was named by Henry the 5. Emperour, in a priviledge of the Abbey of Muren. The castle belonging vnto the Countes of Rora, was in the Towne of

At fuch time, as (by command of the Emperor and the Councel of Constance) the Switzers made warre on Fredericke of Austria, they of Lucerna conquered those places, which are along the River of Ruft, and namely that county of Rora. After the warre, when they contended vvho should be Lords thereof only : the Cantons of Zurich, Suits, Vnderwald, Zug, and Glaris opposed against them, and in diuers dayes held at Begkenried, Vadernald, Suits, and in the campe before Bremgarten, they thewed, that (from the beginning of the warre) the Cantons had agreed, that they (hould be Lords (in common) of all places in the countrey of Ergow, that should be won in that Warre. Now, although the Lucernians maintained, that they had given charge thereof to their Ambassadors; yet notwithstanding, after the testimonies were gathered both of the one fide & other, the Lords of Berne beeing appointed judges of the variance pronounced, that thefe 5. Cantons had part in all the country.

Tenne yeares after that, by confent of the fixe Cantons, they of Vri were joyned with them, and hadde a great part also in that gonernment. And therfore Zurich, Lucerna, Vri, Suits, Vnderuald, Zug, and Glaris, are Lords thereof at this day. The countrey is not great; and therefore, of what Canton foeuer the Bayliffe is , hee makes not his residence there; but when necessity doth so require, he comes once a yeare to judge fuites in law, and then he is lodged (most often) in the Abbey of Muren, which is rich enough, and well for them that dwell beyond the Rheine, of Rheine. builded. builded.

CHAP. XXXV.

Of the Sargans.

A Mong the Grifons, the Sarunetes liued long time fince; but at this day, both their towne and countrey is vulgarly called Sargans, whereof diners ætymologies are made. But in the auncients uerfitte of Chartes, this Towne is named Sarunegans, which is a word derived from the name of Sarunetes, whereof Pliny maketh mention. Now, because the dwelling of the Sarunetes was at the foring of the Riuer Inn, where now they of Engadin and of Munstertal make their abiding; the inhabiting Sargans (now in question) it may be are yssued from them there: or else might take their name of the River called Sar, which runneth thorough the Towne.

In former times, this countrey belonged to the Counts of Werdenberg, who in of Werden that respect were called Countes of Sar-gans. Afterward they pawned it vnto the Austrian Princes, and at another time to the Counts of Torge, but redeemed it againe, and possessed it til the yeare 1482. And then, George Count of Werdenberg, Sargani Ok fold it to the feuen first Cantons, who fent to the Swita Bayliffe thither each one by his turne, zers. that commanded the whole country, & kept in the castle where the Countes were wont to dwell. As for the Towne of Sargans, although it is subject vnto the Switzers: yet notwithstanding, it enjoyeth hir priviledges, and electeth Magistrates that administer lustice, and also deale in criminall causes.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Of the Rhegusces: now adayes called Rhinthall. That is to fay : The Valley of Rheine.

THE Rhegusces are of the Grisons countrey, dwelling on the bankes of thall, and the bankes of Rheine, aboue the Lake of Constance. As the countil where are Bregents and Velcure: they are yet to this day, subjects to the House of Austria. But they on the hither fide, as Rhinek and Alistetten two little Townes. and the valley tending toward the Count of Werdemberg, they are obedient to the Switzers. Heeretofore, all this countrey appertained vnto them of Austria, who pawned it to the Lords of Ion. But at the time of the Councell of Constance, when as Fredericke of Austria was banified by the Emperour Sigismond: the Count of

The valley of Rhein seized Togge, the Emperours adopted sonne; by the Count seized on this valley of Rheine, and other of Togge a. places belonging vnto the house of Authe Emperor.

The valley folde to them of Appenzell.

How Rhin-

thall came to

Chap.37.

Stria, by disburfing money for them, to whom they were engaged, Afterwards, this Count pawned this Valley of Rheine, for a great summe of money, to two Gentlemen, Fluldrich and Conrad Beierer, brethren. In the yeare, 1460. laques Beierer ! their Brother and heyre, having some variance with them of Appenzel, and fearing his vnablenes of keeping this valley against their strength: willingly folde them his rights, and refigned the engagement. After that, this valley remained in the power, and under dominion of Appenzel, for the space of thirty yeares, or thereabout. But when it fo fell out, that the men of Appenzel were troubled in warre, against the Abbot of S. Gall, his fubicats, and the Cittizens also, and the Abbey of Rosach belong to the (new built) quite defaced: the Canton'd Switzers, confederates with the Abbot, roustred up their troops, and called their other allies to them, by whose helpe they maintained the Abbot, and condemned them of Appenzel in a great fine. Which made them to require peace, and befide, to offer them the rule of the Valley of Rheine: the possession whereof fell (as a recompence) to the Cantons of Zurich, Lucerna, Suits, and Glaris. After this, they parted with a portion of this Seigneury, to the Cantons of Vri, Vnderuald, and Zug, who had assisted the: likewise to Appenzel, who indeed wer ancient Lords thereof. So that (even to this day) thefe laine. By an accord made at Fribourg, he eight Cantons, each after other) fend a Bayliffer fent by the eight Cantons, each after other 1 fend a Bayliffe into this valley, who makes his abiding in a finall Towne, called khinek, confirmed this donation of his owne roy-the valley for Rulers there at one end of the valley, fornewhat about the place, where the Rheine enters into the Lake of Constance.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Of the Gouernments and baylywickes which are in Italy.

Foure Bailywicks do yet remain, which the Switzers call Baylywicks beyond Baylywickes the Mountaines, because they are quite beyond the ouer the Alpes. The first is Lugano or Luca, a Towne vppon the Lake, which fome call the Lake of Gauna; others, the Lake of Lugano. This Lake is in the Luganoor' middest of two other Lakes, to wit, that of Coma on the left had, and on the right hande of the Lake Major, whereinto it shutteth vp it selfe.

The second Baylywicke, and neerest Locarna the of all to this former, is Locarna : a very pleafant Towne, at the head of the Lake Major, sometimes beautified with verie goodly and strong Castles, and accounted the cheefest in Lombardie, next vnto that of Millaine. The Bayliwick of Mendrifa, on the left Mendrifa the hand of the Lake of Gauna, maketh the third.

third. And for the last, there is the Vale of The vale Ma-Madia, which depended heeretofore vp- dia the fourth on Locarno as Mendrifa on Lugano. These foure Baylywickes fell to the Switzers, in the yeare, 1513. by the Donation of Maximilian Sforza, Duke of Howandin Millaine . For, hee hauing driven the these severall Frenchout of Italy, by the counfell and Baylywickes authority of Pope Inline, and being holpen therein by the Venetians and Swit- by the Switzers, he made a present of these four Bay- | zers. lywickes (abutting on the Frontiers of their countrey) to the Switzers. He gaue also the Vale of Tellina to the Grisons . But three yeares after, King Frances hauing vanquished the Switzers at Marignano, expelled the Duke, and re-vnited to his Crowne the Dukedome of Mil-dome of Millaine did the like. All the Cantons fend their bayliffs the ther by turnes, except that of Appenzell, which was not in the number of the Ca al authority, as his fucceffors in the duke-Bayliwicke.

came to bee

Rellizona in obedience to

three of the Cantons

yet recouered by the Dukes of Millaine.

Chap.41.

Leagues with nd Cities.

ces of most

note and ob-

tons, when as these countries were first given to the Switzers : but they were receiued in a yeare after onely.

CHAP, XXXVIII.

Of Bellizona.

WE might ranke among these Bay-liwickes of Italy, the Towne of Rellizona, which obeyeth to the Cantons of Vri. Suits, and Vnderuald. This Towne (in former times) appertained vnto the Countes of Mifauk, who were reiected by the Dukes of Millaine. Afterward, hauing found meanes to enter againe by intelligence; they fold it to them of Vri and Vnderuald. But the Duke of Millain recouered it againe, and tooke it from the Switzers, by the fame fubtle tricks which the Counts of Mifauk had vsed to reposfesse it . This hapned about the yeare,

After that time, the Switzers made

Bellizona veil ded to the Caton of Vri-many voyages ouer the Mountaines to recouer Bellizona. At length, in the yeare 1500. they got into possession of it agen. For, in regard of continuall warres betweene the Sforzaes and the French: the men of Bellizona willing to prouide for their owne fafety, yeelded themselves to the Canton of Vri. The French, becomming mafters of the Millainefes; labored often (but all in vain) to regain the town. Finally, at fuch time as the Dukes of Millaine gaue the fore-named foure Baylywickes to the Cantons, they were also in full possession on of Bellizoconfirmed in the possession of Bellizona.

Three Bayly-wickes in Bellizona.& how their gouernred equally.

The Switzers

The whole country is divided into 2. Bayliwicks, to witte, Bellizona, the vale Brune, and Riviera; and in like maner gouerned (turne after turne) by those three ment is order Cantons, that they have a Balywicke belonging to each one. As if Pri doe eftablish a Gouernour or Baylisse at Bellizona: Suits placeth one also in the vale Brune, and Vnderuald one at Riviera. Then beginning againe, Vri commends one to Riviera, Vndervald to the vale Brune, and Suits to Bellizona . And because that the Baylywick of Riviera is of the least reuennew, most commonly, he that hath bene Bayliffe at Bellizona, is established nexte after at Riniera.

CHAP. XXXIX.

Of the Alliances made by the Cantons, with Kings and Princes neere neighbouring to Emosthenes, the most eloquent of all the Gracian Orators, a man woonderfully well acquainted with affayres of State, and (aboue all) a deare Louer of his Countreyes liberty, wrote thus. Ouergreat familiarity with Tyrants. Should be fusto bee reposed in them, especially if they bee neighbours, because every King and Tyrant and experienis an enemy to liberty, and contrary to lawes, ced by his The euent and successe attending on such cases, did well witnesse, that this Learned man had given very wholefome counfell to the Athenians, yea, and to all Greece. For Phillip the sonne of Amyntas (against whom Demosthenes madehead) and the fucceeding Kings of Macedon oppressed the liberty of the Greekes, by a dissembled amity, and working certaine combinations and alliances, denifed onely for their owne aduantage.

The case standing thus, I thinke, that The Switzen many stand thus amazed, what shoulde hauebinwonmoue the ancient Switzers to make fuch dred at, for alliances as they have done with ffraungers, Kinges and Princes, their Neighbours. But heere is to bee noted and obferued, that all alliances doe not hurt one like another in a Commonwealth. They are to be mistrusted, which do import a league offensive and defensive, & overgreat familiarity. Otherwise, for the benefite of peace, it is needfull sometimes. that Princes and great Lords nere neigh-bouring, should ally themselues togither, for the better vse of some rightes, and the easier mannaging of their affayres. The ancient Switzers made many fuch alliances of peace and amity. And if at any time they were knit more frielly to fome The prouidet King or Prince, it was not inconfiderately done: but, as appeareth by the tenour Switzers, in of the alliances, the conditions wer fuch, Leagues. as their liberties could no waies be eafily touched or wronged.

What allian

ces are faid to be dangerous and what are indifferent,&

The Learned

& wife coun-fel of the Gre

Clement the seauenth. With neighbouring Princes; as the Dukes of Austria; With neighof Sauoye, of Millaine, and of Wertem. berg. Then, with the Byshoppes of Con-Hance, the Citties of Suabas and others With Bifhops on the Lake of Constance, and on the Riuer of the Rheine . But, without flaving our selves at the most part of these alliances, wee will touch those onely, which were hereditary, that continue yet, must longer continue, and are most notable among all the other. As namely, the Alli-Their allian ances with the Dukes of Millaine, of Au-Stria, of Bourgongne, of Sauoye, & the most remarkeable and last of all, with the King of France.

They made divers alliances, for a certainty of times, with Popes: as Sixtus.

Iulius the second, Les the tenth, & with

CHAP:XL.

Of the Alliance made by the Switzers, with the Dukes of Millaine.

Vocertaintie of the first

Galeazo D.of Millaine, and his Wife

Cannot well fet downs what treaty or discourse was anciently had, and at the first time, betweene the Duke of Millain, and the Switzers. But in the and fixe, Duke Galeazo, and Blanche Marea his wife, made an accord and agreement with eight Cantons, vpon certain conditions: which yet vnto this day, are called, The Articles or Capitulations of Millaine. Wherein also, mention is made of other auncient capitulations, which thew and testifie, that long time before, the Switzers, especialy they of Vri, which inhabite at the Alpes, had beene affociates with the Lombardes, under certaine conditions. But because the auncient Capitulations, are (almost)quite worne out of mens memories: I will propose the Summary of the accord with Duke Galeazo, and his wife, the La.

yeare, one thousand foure hundred fixty

dy Blanche Ma-

The Articles of Agreement, betweene the Duke of Millaine, and the Switzers

Their alliance vvith Millaine.

HE first Article, concerneth them of Vri. The Ordinary of the concerning the Valley of Luiner. By what occasion this first Article, the Duke agreeth with them of Vri, to have free possession of that valley, in the regard of civill Iurifdi. ction: reuouncing his owne rightes, and promifing to obtain the same of the Qr-

They of Vri, on the other fide, shall Day a tribute to the Duke, & euer yeare, in the Moneths of June or July, or before midde-August, shall fend, him foure Hawkes, and a Crosse-bow. As concerning the difference touching the Churches reuennewes, betweene the Ordinary, and them of the Valley, each of the two parties shall nominate, two Judges, and to those foure Judges, the Duke that Judges apoin addeone, as an Arbitrator: and of him the Ordinario he must and will make choyse among the and them of Lords of Councell, and in one of the feauca Cantons. These ludges, must nominate what it is, that the Prince and they of the Valley, should pay voto the Ordinarie. And if there happen anie variance besides, for matters of Duties not payed: they also are to censure there-

The second Article is, that the eight Cantons, their subjects, and all they that The nature of haue dwelt in their countries , the space the 2 Article. of foure yeares, shall enjoy the ancient liberty, to wit, that they shal stand exempt from all tributes, impostes, and tolles, throughout Millaine, even to the ditches of the Towne.

The third Article, concerneth debts, and imprisonments.

The fourth is for fuch variances as may happen between the Duke and the Cantons, and of some particulars against the Duke.

The fift, is for processe and suites of The fift. particular persons.

The fixt matter of free Trafficke, and The fixte. that it shall bee lawfull for the Switzers, to go and fell their Wares and Cat-

The third.

The fourth.

They

The fenenth

tle: and the Duke no way to impeach them in their felling, or his Subjectes in

The feuenth importeth, that the duke and the Switzers thall maintain and preferue themselves in good amity: and that neither party shall give passage, or allow lodging or harbor to the enemies of neither fide.

Renewing & reconfirmation of thele ar-

Now, in regard that after this transaction, Millaine changed her Lordes often= rimes these Arricles have beene also renewed and confirmed from one time to another. And finally, in the yeare, 15 (2. Ferdinando Gonzaga, Gouernour of Millaine. in the name of the Emperor Charles the fifte, renewed this accord with the Switzers, very neere with the same conditions.

The Articles of Agreement, betweene Ferdinando Gonzaga, Gouernor, and the Switzers.

it shall be lawfull for the Switzers, to buy any kinde of bread corne. But if there be a dearth, and the Market measure is sold for more then thirteene Francks, it is not lawfull to transport any. Neuerthelesse;

for our amity with the Switzers, they may carry away two hundred measures.

The Cantons did make the same conditi-

The second, is for the felling and car-

The third, confirmeth to the Switzers their ancient priniledges, for going and comming freely, and trafficking through all countries of Millain, without any need of support or safe conduct; except in the time of pestilence, and then to bee free from all Tolle onely the gate of Millaine

they are, that must enjoy these priviled-ges; wherein are (by name) excluded all

Millainefes, that thall retire themselues in-

The fift ordaineth, to preuent & auoyd priniledges shall not keepe companie, or trade in merchandize with them that are vncapable or may not have the benefit of The fourth, declareth who and what on with them of Millaine.

riage away of falt.

excepted.

them.

H E first Article concerneth benefit of exemption, from Tolles,

Taxes, and other charges. Item,

Freedome from Tolles.

For Bread Corne.

A Franke is two shillings Acrling.

Selling of falt

Free passage

these priviled ges belongeth

For auoyding all means of fraud, that fuch as injoy thefe of fraud and their buying.

The eight is, that in fuch reuennews, difines, goods mouable and immouable, which the Switzers possession the Dukedome of Millaine, or which may fal to the from this time forward: they shall have the same rights in them heere, as the Mil-Lanneles enjoy in Swetia.

be as free and fafe in the countries of each friendly put other, as formerly it hath bin, & with the there countries or like maintenance of amity.

In the tenth, the Switzers make exception of their other alliances, & all pre- liances, cedent instruments: to the end that they may not derogate or faile in the fore-named conditions.

In the last, the time is agreed on and this alliance prefixed, for this combination: which is, to continue for foure years after the death of the Emperor Charles.

Duke of Millaine, and the Switzers : Vet notwithstanding, both on his part, and Switzers enioy (almost) the same print-

CHAP.XLI.

Of the Switzers Alliances with the Dukes of Austria and Burgongne.

Ike as there hath beene no Prince or Princes, that have made fo much war vpon the Cantons, as the Dukes of Au- courfe, that firia:fo in the fame manner, the Switzers did neuer make fo many accords, treaties and alliances, as with those Dukes. At this sy frendships time, I meane not to make mention of

The fixt speakes of awards, and decisi- | Awardes in on of law fuites.

The feuenth willeth, that if criminall The feuenth willeth, that it criminal Difobedience parties on either fide, doe withdraw to a- in awarden. nie one of their precincts, after that they fentence, or he shalbe adjudged culpable, on know ledge of the cause: he or they shall be fent backe to their Magistrate, who is to chastife them according to the exigence of

Of reuennun

The ninth; that paffe & paffage may For free and Now, although (for divers reasons) Of the Switthis agreement hath not beene renewed zersalliance to this instant between the King of Spare, laine. theirs likewise, ancient amity hath beene carefully kept; and even to this day, the ledges as in elder times they did among them of Millaine.

Chap.40. Alliance with the D. of Austria.

fome few years, and agreed or combined with one or two Cantons onely; but rather will refolue my felfe on the perpetuall and hereditary alliance of Sizismend Duke of Austria with the Catons; which was renewed afterward, by the Emperor Maximillian Charles the fifte, and Ferdinand.

The Emperor Sigilmond, firnam'd the Simple,a gret enemy to the

K.Lewes the 11.denied ayd

Of other AL

Sigifmond engageth Fer tara to the Boargongne those alliances which haue lasted but for) dealt withall by Duke Charles.

ind.
This Sigistmend, firnamed the Simple, was forme vntor Fredericke, who brought Pope John the 22. out of the Councel of Constance, whereby he was banishe from the Empire. Sigifmond was a great Enemy to the Switzers, and had many warres agains them wherein he was continually beaton as at Winterduer Mulhoufe Wald Band in Turgow, and other places, & loft in thele warresthe countrey of Turgone; which is great fortile, and well peopled, yntiafterward conquered and kept by the Switzers. Seeing by Armeshe could not quaile the Switzers, hee withdrewe into Fraunce, and required fuccour of King Lawes the elementh, which hee was flatly denyed because the King would not entangle himselfe in warre with the Switzers, of whole magnanimity he had formerly made good proof, being Dolphini when the battell was fought against them ncere to Bafile.

Hereupon he made his recourse tothe Duke of Bourgongn, and pawned to him the County of Ferrara, and other Seigneuries on the Frontiers of Swetia, for the fum of four core thou and crownes: onely that he might finde busines for the Switzers, by meanes and help of the duke of Bourgongne, Lazius writes, that Sigifmond fold Swetia it felfe, but therein he abufeth himfelf. This engagement did not advance the matter, according vnto sigifmonds expectations for Hagenbach, gouernor in these pawned countries to Charles Duke of Bourgongne, began to tyranize vpon all the people, violating women and children, and putting many innocents to death. By which occasion ; Sigifmond being moued to compassion, and incited by the continual complaints of his subjects; redeemed the pawned countries, & configned the mony to be paid at Bafile. But norwithstanding all this, D. Charls would's not forfake his poffession, but froue still to hold the fame by force. The Switzers (on the other fide) were but crookedly

To be plaine, Sigifmond nor the Switzers were strong enough to make head against the Duke, and therfore some men. better feene and skild in fuch bufineffe, layd downe their opinion; that Sigifmond and the Switzers were beft to agree in vnity, and make war together vppon their common enemy. King Lewes the cleueth pusht hardly at that point, and follower the matter very hotly : for it was his enflome to prepare fuch diets for the Duke of Bourgongne, and to raise him so many enemies as might been To further thefe practiles, he ferned his owne turne with w Switzer, name Justus de Sillini, who foor after was by thop of Sion, and of Granoble lini, by thop of also. Sigifmond likewise fauored him, and sion & Granoble line and sion & Granoble lin gaue him as many good respects, as hee could receive by his by thopprickes an At length alfo by his meanes, and by authority of the King anthereditary alliance was made, the fubstantiall points wheroffold low thus

A brewate of the Articles of hereditarie Alliance herweene the Dake of Anfria, and the Swit. 100 in Elrst, They shall continue them-selves Forwading in in mutuall peace and amitie, fo that the Austrians in Swetia, and the Switzers in the Countreyes belonging to the Duke of Austria: may freely and fafely Trafficke, and also mannage theyr other affayres.

If any variance or contention happen For differeces betweene them; they shall pursue their right in iustice, and not by armes.

The Arbitrators to judge their causes shall be the Bishop or Citie of Constance, and the Bythop or Seigneury of Bafile. fure causes. And before they take knowledge of the cause, both parties shall promise to the Iudges, by authenticke Letters vnder their handes : that they will beare no malice, neyther doe any outrage, what fentence focuer is given vppon their difference. 1 Wash

As for common fuites, concerning fuocessions and debts: the ordinarie Iudges in their Courts of inflice, are to take order for them.

If Duke sigifmond stand in need of such cor from the Switzers, they shal fend him Bb 2

Good ddate n cales of extremity much wi.200 1 .270270 tters, and ULLA LL ENGAG

lustus de Sildaram

For Arbitra-

For ordinarie

3 Booke

283

Offuccour from the Switzers and from the D.

men: prouided, that it may be done with | deemed. their honor, and without prejudice vnto their ancient alliances, and they are to receyue as much wages, as the Cantons have custommarily payed to their Souldiers. The same is also to bee done by the Duke, if the Switzers defire any fuccour from him.

Of Charters. letters, Regifters, and books of cau

The Cantons shall deliver such Charters, Letters, Registers, Bookes of reafon, and other like instructions to the Duke, as are or shalbe in their hands, and belong to him; or declare to whom they have formerly given them; onely excepted, fuch letters and Registers, as concerne cities, townes, and castles, which nowe are in the power and authority of the Switzers.

For benefit of enioyingtheir owne rightes.

ic

 $P_{i}(\mathbf{q})=0$

The Duke and the Switzers shall remaine Lords of those countries, citties, cafiles, Fortreffes, Townes, Burroughes, and Villages as they have taken, and now poffeffe; without any fute in Law, or any kinde of quarrell to bee offered on eyther fide for them; neyther shall suffer anie wrong or injurie to bee done, neither to the countries, citties, castles, &c. of one another.

Of medling with the fub icas one of another.

No enemies

of each othe

to be fauored

on either fide

For portages and tolles.

hout.

Neither fide shall make alliance with the other subjectes, nor give them the right of Bourgeship, nor receive them into protection to eithers damage or preiudice; except any one with al his goods retire into the countrey. And yet with this exception notwithstanding, that hee shall remaine answerable to the jurisdiction of his first Lord. But if any such perfon do pursue his intention by violence, they among whom he hath retreated him felfe, shall present him immediately in juflice, Because neither the Duke, nor the Gantons ought to lodge, maintaine, or fa-uour (in any kinde what soeuer) the Enemies of one another.

The Duke shall make satisfaction, for the transaction of Waldhout; wherein The transacti on of Walds the Switzers shall affish him with al their

> The one shal not greeue or offend the other, by exaction of any new Portages

Such personnes as hold any thing by For tenure title of fealty of the Duke Sigifmend, thall cale of feaky. continue his Subjectes: excepting them of conquered countreyes, and of places engaged, and that have not beene re-

This alliance shall bee renewed from For renount tenne veeres to tenne yeers: and if by ad- on of this abuenture it happen to be broken, the party ance. interessed shall demand Justice . without moning any warre.

All enmitties and warres which former-ly haue beene betweene Duke Sigifmond, and the Switzers, and their predeceffors, cut off by das shall bee appealed and layde to fleep, by meanes of this agreement which is to be inuiolably kept on either fide.

This first transaction was made be The allies fore the war of Bourgongne, in the years of many con one thousand, foure hundred, sewentie & momental foure. In the same year, she showed by Abu proud Do fittia, René of Lorraine; the By shoppes of pour gorga Strasbourg and Bafile, the Cities of Straf bourg, Bafile, Colmar, Selestad, Montbell ard, and fome others, made alliance with the Switzers for certaine yeares (against the violence and tyranny of the Duke of Bourgonghe, who being flaine 2. yeares after in the battalle of Nancy, Sigifmond of Austria renewed the hereditary Alliance, and this first transaction made with the Switzers, by the entermile of K. LE wes the eleventh. This attace was confirmed with the Cantons of Zurich, Bern. Lucerna, Vrs and Sollourve, with liberty to the other Cantons, to enter into the fame alliance if they pleafed. There was not any new Article added at that time : But onely the forme and meanes of mutuall fuccour, which was couched in far more cleare and plaine tearmes. Some years after this, Duke Sigifmond not having any legittimate children, refigned his Dukedome to the Emperor Maximillian, referrefignedhi uing onely to himfelf an annual penfion. Maximilian required the Switzers to en- the Emperor ter the forenamed alliance with him. But because they had beene at some variance with him, and hee with them, and there grew fome apparance of warre /confide/ ring it feemed euidently, that Sigifmond had thus despoyled himselfe to injury the Switzers:) they would not enter into any Maximilian mouell alliance, especially, because he intended no meant nothing else but fraudes in all this faithoods in carriage, as the event plainely declared. his dealing Bor immediately, they of Austria, and of the league of Shaba, moved warre against the Switzers and Grisons. After peace was made, betweene the Emperor Maximillian and the Cantons, Chap. 14. Alliance of Sauoy vvith the Switzers. on the twelfth yeare, which was in Anno,)

1,11.the Emperor renewed the heredi-The Emperor hereditary alliance of Austria with tary alliance of the house of Austria, with the Switzers, and joyned in one, the house of Bourgongne, and his Nephew Charles, of whom he was tutor. Moreouer, not onely the Switzers of the first alliance, but the twelue Cantons. Item, they of Appenzell, with the Abbot and Towne of S. Gall, confirmed this alliance hereditary, with the houses of Austria & Bourgongne. In this alliance or transaction so confirmed,made by the meanes of King Lewes the elementh, is expressely set downe first of all: that therein is comprehended only the county of Bourgongne, and the high countries of Austria the county of Tiroll, and thar which is beyond the Mountaine. Items fome Townes along the kheine, as Waldsbout, Lauffenberg, Secon, Rhinfeld, & others that are on this fide the Mountain. Neuerthelesse there is added, that order fhall be given, that those other countries not comprized in the alliance, thall not enterprise any thing by Arms against the Switzers, nor the Switzers against them. All outragious words & actions are prohibited, for feare of alienating their harts. as hath happened fometimes hecretofore

Moreouer, the Emperor Maximillian

promifed, in the name of Charles his Nephew, to give (in prefent) every yeare in the citty of Zurich, to each one of the cantons, two hundred crownes. To the Abbot and citty of S. Gall, and the Bourg of Appenzell, an hundred crownes to each of them: vntill fuch time as Charles shall be growne greater, to gouern these countries himselfe,& then he shal stand bound to confirm the alliance, which accordingly was done. For in the yeare 154 .by let-same as them of Austria. To wit, that it shall be lawfull for eyther side, to traffick,

and to go and come freely into one anothers countries: Item, that they neyther doe, nor fuffer any of the countries, to make warre vpon each other. And if (by aduenture) fome enemy would doe vio-

or in the thereby.

The contents of the alliance

or transaction

Lewis the 11

made by the

ters which the Emperour Charles the fift, fent to the Cantons, he confirmed the al-Charles the liance; infomuch as concerned the house it confirmed and county of Bourgongne, for his brohe alliance with the Swi ther Ferdinand was chosen then Duke of zers when h Austria. The conditions and Articles of came to age. alliance with Bourgongne, are the very lence to one of the two fides: the other (being thereto required) (hall be carefull to preuent it without any delay, for feare, lefte against right and equity, it should be oppressed.

CHAP.XLI.

Of the Alliances betweene Sauoy and the Switzers.

THE Dukes of Sauoy, (which part was called by our Ancients, the country of the " Allobrogians) long fince, and for long space of time, helde amity with the Cantons of Berne, Fribourg and Solleurre, the Countrie In the ende, Charles, Father W Philibert, of Sauny att now Duke of Sauoy, made an alliance Daulphine. The alliance now Duke of Sanoy, illiage at a with all the cantons, for twenty fine years, of Duke Chiles with

The first Article treateth of the amity which is to be maintained on either fide, without any outrage, or feconding an enemy to passe among the Allies.

The second ruleth the knowledge of Processes and Law-cases, wherein Judges of equall number are to bee elected on both sides, who shall call the parties into the Towne of Bienna, and there ende the law cales. difference. If two fentences be given, hauing as many voyces on the one fide as other : the Judges shall elect a subarbitratour in one of the cantons, that shall have no part of interest in the Processe. As for causes betweene particular persons; they are to be decided by Judges of the places.

The third ordaineth, that it shall be lawfull for the subjects of the allies, to goe about their affaires freely, and in all fafety, in the countries of Swetia & Saury, without being charged with any new imposts, portages, or tolles.

The fourth auoucheth, that if any man haue a difference against the Duke, and For any diffe would have it referred to the orders spoken in the cantons: if the Duke will not agree thereto, the Switzers doe not fland bound (by any alliance) to affift any fuch party against the Duke.

The fift speaketh, that if the Switzers are affayled and preffed with warre, the Dike fhall fend them (at his own charge) Juccour in fixe hundred horfe at the lefte ; prouided, | warre on ey-

the Cantons. For preferuation of amity.

of commerce on both fides rence against

For mutuall

The Liure Tournois is fterling.

No Nauall

of the Seas.

Payment of

200.CTOWNs

each Canton

The men of

Berne ioyned

with their tellow-Bourgef-

les of Geneua yearely.

that hee haue then no warre in his owne country. In like manner, if the Duke haue any warte in his owne hand, & demandeth succourathe Switzers shall fend him fixe thousand foot or more, to each man wherof, the Duke shall pay 6. Liures Trarnois, for wages enery Moneth. If (ouer and aboue this number) hee demandeth fome other Switzers, that defire to goe to warre voon their owne good will towards him: hee shall not stand bound to pay them any wages, but what he will do out of his owne liberality.

The Duke may demand no feruice of the Switzers in any nauall warre, nor cause them to passe the Seas : but onely to defend the countries, which they poffeffe at the day of making this alliance.

To the end that this accord may bee firmely kept, the Duke nor the Switzers For preferuation of this al- Ihall meddle with any affaires of stranliance firmely. gers, to debate any thing to the prejudice of their alliance : neyther shall they give right of Bourgeship, to any subjects of Swetia or Sauoye, but onely to fuch, as shall have their persons and goods transported into eythers countries.

While this alliance endureth, the Duke shall yearely pay in the Citty of Berne, to each Canton, the fumme of two hundred crownes. Vpon the ending of this alliance, which lasted almost 25. yeares, the King of France, Frances the first, despoyled Duke Charles of the most part of his countries. And in this warre, the Bernians taking in hand the cause of their fellow-Bourgesles of Geneua, with them of Fribourg and Valois: tooke all the Dukes places in the countries of Vaut, county of Romont and Tuian. After this time, the Emperour Charles the fift (in the protection of who the Duke of Sauoy was put) was in war continually in Piedmont gainst the Frech: and that was the cause of breaking the renewing of the alliance. At length, Philebert, the Sonne of Charles, having recouered his countries, by the meanes of peace betweene the Kings of Spaine and France: made a new and perpetuall alliance with the Cantons of Lucerna, Suits Vri, Vnderuald, Zug, and Solleurre. It is (almost) the very same as the former: but onely that there is no mention made (to my remembrance) of mutuall fuccour. Soone after, the other Cantons renewed with him, the very fame conditions of ancient amity and alliance.

CHAP. XLII.

Of the Alliances betweene the Switzers and the Kings of France.

K Ing Lewes the 11. was the first King of France, that allied himselfe with the Switzers, and that affigned rewards & Rowards ing as yet Dolphin, hee led a great-Army all the Coninto Germany conducted the control of the co into Germany, conducted by the Count of Armignac. This he did in fauor of Pope Eugenius, and of the Emperor Frederickes onely to breake the councell of Bafile, as the Pope defired: and turiously to inuade the Switzers, whom the Emperor hated, and to break off their fiedge in meere defpight of them) which they had planted before the citty of Zurich, because he was allied with the house of Austria. The Switzers had another Army before the castle of Fransperg: 1600 men whereof. they fent thence to fuecour Bafile & the Fathers there in the councell.

Being about 2 miles from Basile, they did fetypon the Dolphins troops fo flifty, The Switzer as (although in regard of their enemies Dolphin multitude, who had enclosed them on all 1000pesner fides) they were every man(almost)flaine to Bask. in the field : yet notwithstanding, they so weakened the French Army (for there were flaine about 6000 of them) that the Dolphin standing in feare of a further loffe, and of the valour of the Switzers; tooke his way fuddenly home to France, leaving the businesse vnexecuted, which he came for. It is reported, that the Dolphin feeing his enemies flaine bodies lying on the ground faide thus Sometimes with farre leffe forces, and in the space of The words three houres; I have broken an Army of the Dolphia thirteen thousand men, without any such flaughter of paine or danger as I have met with heere, his enemies the Switzer labouring a whole day toughly, to ouercome a little handfull of men . Neuer hadde I to deale with more valiant and fast enemies; and therefore I will take order, for euer warring any more against them. Which hee most truely and faithfully performed a long time after,

agreat enemy to Charles Duke of Bour-

King Lewes

euen vntill he came to the crowne. Hee neuer loued Charles Duke of Bourgongne, and yet durft not make open warre on him. because hee was not well appointed for it: and therefore he laboured by all meanes, to fet the Duke a justling with the Switzers. But to compaffe his intent the more easily, and have the Switzers at his command, when he shold frand in need of their affifrance : he made an alliance with them for ten yeares, giuing as an annuall, pension to each Canton the fumme of feuen thousand Liures Tournois. During the warre of the Duke of Bourgongne against the Switzers, the King furnithed them with a great fumme of money : as fearing least (through want of coine) they should give over conten-ding, and talke of truce. The Duke being foyled at Morat; the King gaue publike-Great gifts & ly great gifts to the Switzers, and in particular to their Captaines and Colonels. Finally, after the death of the Duke, flaine in Lorraine, to fet an imbarment, that (by right of warre) the Switzers should not possesse themselves of Bourgongne, where there were many men that nodded the head at their denotion : hee bought the country for a goodly fumme of money.

And because he must needs make warre.

to get into possession of the country : hee

made vie of the foote Switzers to ferue

him, giving to them farre greater wages,

Charles the eight, some to Lewes, in the yeare, one thousand, soure hundred four-

score and three, renewed the alliance

which his father had made with the Switzers : and vsed their service in the warre.

whe he ouercame the Duke of Bretaione.

But principally in the warre of Naples, he diuers wayes made good proofe, that the warlike Switzers, were both loyall and valiant of their persons. His successour.

Lewes the twelfth, having undertaken the conquest of Millaine, and very desirous to turne the Switzers, from the amity they bare to Duke Lodowick Sforza; made alliance with them for ten yeares. At the end whereof, he thanked the Switzers, &

denyed to pay the rewards and yearely

penfions, which he had payed in publike and to particular persons, Which so highly offended this martiall people, as partly of their own inclination, but much then cuer any Prince had done before.

the Switzers for foyling the Duke at

Lewesthe

King Lewes the 12 made

King Charles

renewed his fathers leagu

with the

who follicited the principals of the cantons; they made a league with Pope luli the fecond in the yeare, one thousand. five hundred and ten. Oftentimes after ward, this King laboured to make a new alliance: but the Switzers beeing joyned with the Pope, would never liften to it. But in the yeare, one thousand fine hundred and twelve, they drove the French out of Millaine, and re-established Max- thatesthe imillian Sforza in the Dukedome. Then Frenchout the yeare following, they overthrew the Millaine. French at Nouara, and came with a maine Army along into Bourgongne.

Lewes the twelfth, had his Sonne in law Frances de Valois for his successour; Frances de who wonne a memorable battaile against the Switzers, when he ouercame them at the twelfth. Marignano: Hee brought into France. Maximillian Sforza, and made himfelfe Lord of the Dukedome of Millaine. After a victory fo remarkable, knowing well. how bloody it had bin, and at how deare a price the French had bought it the first thing he did, was (to winne the good fauour of the Switzers) a kinde agreement made with them, joyning them to his crowne, by a firme and durable alliance. The conditions and treaties of this peace and mutual amity, are comprized in thefe thirteene Articles following.

The Switzers

First, all enmities, diffentions, warres, The tenour of differences and quarrelles in precedent hepeace times are viterly brought to nothing; and made between King as for particular variances, which concern France the nothing in common with the occasions first and the of warre, they shall stand veterly void, by those Articles of agreement, made betweene the Duke of Millaine, King Lewes the twelfth, and the Cantons.

Secondly, all prisoners, in what part For free delior place foeuer they are deteyned as pri- uery of prifor foners, or as flaues; they shall be released ners. and fet at liberty, without paying any ran-

Thirdly, if any man at Armes of the Switzers, have any fivine against the King of France, not for any matter of warre, he the King. may contest in instice, according to the Articles following.

Fourthly, all fuch persons as after the accord made betweene King Lewes the For fuch as twelfth, and the Cantons,) were and are the eneft of allied with them, or received into the nu- this peace. ber of their Bourgesses : shall be compremore by meanes of the Cardinall of Sion, hended in this treaty, and enjoy the be-

A new and perpetuall a rweene Phile bert and the

For priviled-

ges and fran-

bounty to th

For maintai-

nance of lou and amity.

No harboring

of enemies of

For free permiffion of passage.

trafficke and

Yearely pen-

fions given by either fide.

Switzers.

most altogether, with the accord of Mil-laine, and other formes of judgements.

whereof we have spoken heeretofore. All this conference and treaty of peace, was made by the Ambassadours on eyther

Towns of Fribourg, on S. Andrews day.

with the Switzers, as already hath beene

declared: yet hee would needs proceede fomewhat farther, and allie them more cept Zurich) and all their confederates.

allied themselnes with the K. of France:

and the tenour of that alliance was as fol-

The Tenure of a more nere

agreement, made betweene

the King and the Switzers.

in the Dukedome of Millaine, or any other country appertaining to the crown.

eyther on this fide, or beyond the Moun-taines: the King may make a leave of Switzers, when and at what time himfelfe

shall thinke meete, to wit, of fixe thou-

fand men at the leaft, and feauen thou-fand at the most, except the Lords of the

2. Hee may also chuse out of all the Cantons and confederates, fuch Colo-

Leagues will permit more.

and credite.

1. IF any one (whofoeuer it be) make war within the Realme of France.

The King having made pacification out of the limits of Swetta, that fpeake not the Germane tongue, and are not subjects to the Cantons. The fift Article, confirmeth to Merchants and subjects of Swetia, the priviledges and franchifes, which the Kings of France haue formerly graunted vnto | dia; or elfe to forfake them, for the fum them.

Sixtly, to the end that the Switzers may the better understand the good will and liberality of the King: hee will pay them downe presently a great summe of crownes, for their great charges at the siedge of Duon, and afterwards in Ita-

Seauenthly, that peace may bee the more firmely maintained on eyther fide, and to continue on this begun amity: if any difference happen to be moued neither the one party or other shall undertake Armes, in that manner to purfue his right; but according to the order before mentioned, is to demaund reason by course of justice.

Eightly, neyther side shall giue paffage, food or harbour to the others enemies: nor fuffer their fubiects to vndergo Armes, for fuch Princes or commonweales, as are enemies to France, or to the Switzers. Such as do the contrary, shall be repealed to their country, and punished according as they have defer-

Ninthly, permission is granted vnto Merchants, Pilgrims, & Subjects, French or Switzers, to trafficke, voyage, goe and come freely, into France and Swetia; without any outrage, or beeing offended by any new tolles or taxes.

Tenthly, the King giueth yearely to each Canton, the fum of two thousand Liures Tournois: As much to the Valaifians, and as much to the Grifons, as was granted vnto them by king Lewes the 12. And moreouer, the fum of 20000 Liures Tournous. Item to the Abbot of S.Gall, to the Subjects, and to them of Toggenbourg the fum of 600 Liures Tournous: To the citty of S. Gall, 400: To Mulhoufe, 400 : And to them of the county of Gru-

Eleuenthly, the ancient priviledges and franchifes, which they have (till then) enioyed in the Dukedome of Millaine, the inhabitants of Bellizona, Lugano, Lo.

nefit thereof. Onely fuch excepted, as are | carna, and the Vale Madia; are to them fully referred and confirmed.

Twelftly, the king leaueth it in choife to the Swizzers, to declare within the leftby the compasse of a yeare, whether they affect length within the leftby the compasse of a yeare, whether they affect length within the length within or no: to hold the countries and castles Switzen of Lugano Locarna, and of the Vale Ma- choife. of thirtie thousand crownes of the Sunne. And if they take the money: then they of the Vale of Telina, and of the county of Clauenna, (hal have their part in this fumme, as much as one of the Can-

The last Article ordaineth, that this For contine peace and amity betweene the Realme anceofthis of France and the cantons, shal continue mity. inuiolable and perpetuall.

The king excepteth in this peace, Pope Lee the tenth, the See and Romane Empire, the kings of Spaine, of England, of made by the Scotland, of Nauarre, and of Denmarke : K. of France The Dukes of Sauoy, of Lorraine, of Gueldres: Item.the Duke & common-wealth of Venice. Laurentius de Medicis, the house of Medicis, and the common-wealth of Florence: The Bishop of Liege, and all the confederates of the king.

The Switzers also except on their part, Pope Lee the tenth, the Sec of Rome, the | Exception made by the Emperour and Romane Empire: the Switzen. house of Austria: the Dukes of Sauore, and of Wirtemberg; the family of Laurentius de Medicis; the common-wealth of Florence, the Marshall of Bourgonone. their ancient alliances; and all their allies and fellow-Bourgeffes.

The reason for these exceptions, is, that if the king of France make warre vpon a- The reasond ny one of them about named in his own these excepcountries: the Switzers may keepe what promife or alliance they have formerly made or fworne, to those Princes or common-wealths. But if one or more of those Princes or common-wealths, come to affault the king in his owne kingdome : the Cantons shall not permit any of their Subjects to goe in warre against the king; but shall countermaund them, as it is ordayned in the eight Article, and which they are to keepe and observe inuiolably.

To these conditions is added the forme to be kept, in the deciding of strifes and differences. But it feemeth to me, that it would bee great loffe of time and needleffe inerrions.

Chap.42.

The King firit alliance with the Switstrictly to his crowne. Which also he ob-Lucerna, fine yeares after the fore-mentioned peace. Then all the Cantons (exveare 1 (16.

loweth.

paper

For choise of Captains and Contons and contenerates, such Coto-colonels out nels and Captaines as he shall thinke fit: othe cantons prouided, that they be men of good fame

Concerning

warre in any

ing to the place belong-

Against him dering or men and delay of

1. The Lordes of the Leagues shall giue no hinderance to those Colonels, Captaines, and Soldiers, neither delay time, or put any case in question, to hinder their going : but that within ten daies after that first day, whereon the King required fuccour, they thall bee permitted to march away.

For continu-4. They shall continue in the Kings ance in the lings service, service, vntill the end of the warre; if it acept warres feeme good to him, and they not recalled home by their Lords: The King shall paper to infercit: because it agreethal- \ also pay them(enery one)his accustomed wages. But if there happen warre in Swe-tia, and that thereby the cantons cannot fuccour the King, as they otherwise wold: In this case, they shall find quit of their promife, and they may fuddenly counterfide, and fette downe in writing in the mand home their men; to whom also the King stands bound, to grant their deparin the Moneth of November, and in the ture immediately.

5 If the King would make warre vpon his enemies: he may make the fame leuie King fall of fixe thousand Switzers at the least, and have occasion feuen thousand at the most : chusing Colonels and Captaines, men of faire and good fame, which are Switzers, or of their tayned, and that agreement was past at Allies.

> 6. The King may not separate an Ar- An Army of my of Switzers, or divide them in troops to be divided. for Garrifons in divers places: and they &c. are not to serue at Sea, but on the land.

7. As concerning the wages for the Gendarmery; it is agreed on both fides, that the King (hall pay for a Moneth voto | wages agreed each Switzer Soldier, foure Florius and horfenen,& an halfe, of them that are called Florius du in what man-Rhin. And their wages shall begin on the paid, you the day, when they fet foorth from their hou- due of three fes : and then shall three Moneths pay be | Moneths pay due vnto them, although the King do not vse them in service so long. And before they part out of Swetia, they must receine the first Moneths pay and the rest for the two other Moneths, at meete places, according as need shall require. If after those three Moneths are past, the King will longer retaine the Switzers hee thal pay them the fame wages every Moneth, vntill such time as they may commodiously returne home to their owne

8. The Colonels, Captaines, Enfigns, Pay for men Ambaffadors,& others that haue charge of higher in the troopes; shall bee payed after their rank & place, accustomed manner, and according as their degrees. the Predecessours to the Kings of France haue done.

9. If any war is made upon the Switwers, the King of France shal stand bound Concerning to fuccour them at his owne coft: fend-fent the Switing them two hundred compleat horfe- zers, whe war men, and twelve pecces of Artillery, with is made on all their equipage and furniture; to wit, fixe peeces for battery, and fixe Canons. Moreover, hee shall furnish the Switzers (from three Moneths to three Moneths) in the citty of Lyons, with certaine fums

Whenthe

Priviledges particular plaof Salt.

Against relee uing eyther

The liberality of the King to the Cantons.

made on the Kings behalte

Exception alons behalfe.

A caugat or generall warning.

of money, for expences in the warre. And if the Switzers affect it rather: instead of two hundred compleate horsemen, the King shall give them all the three Moneths the fum of two thousand crownes at the leaft.

10. If it come so to passe, that if (thorough occasion of moned warre heere or there) the Switzers cannot have any Salt: it may be bought for them in France, & so bee connaved home into their coun-

11. No fide or party shall receive into protection, neyther bestow Bourgeship on any of the others fubicets, nor fuccor. lodge, or defend men banished, or enemies to cyther fide : but according to the Articles of peace, shall hinder & expulse

12. Finally, the King being willing to make knowne his loue and good will towards the Switzers: oner and beside the twenty thouland Francks, which he promiled to pay them by the treaty of peace, further promifeth, to pay yearely to each one of the Cantons (while this alliance shall continue) the summe of a thousand pounds Tournois. He will also pay to the confederates, the moity of the penfion which they had before.

The King excepteth Pope Lee the 10. The Romane See and Empire; the kings of England and of Scotland: the Duke of Sauoye, of Lorraine, of Halfatia, and of Gueldres; the common-wealth of Venice, and of Florence; the house of Medicis; the Marquesses of Brandenbourg and of Montferrat.

The Cantons do likewife except Pope Les the tenth the Romane See and Empire: the common-wealth of Florence; the house of Medicis; the Duke of Sauov: the house of Austria; their alliances, their Bourgesses and confederates; the Duke of Wirtemberg; and Octamian Maria Sforza,Bishop of Lauda.

Neuerthelesse, if any of these about named, make warre on cyther of these parties, in their countries on this fide, or beyond the Mountaines: the other shall giue fuccour, without exception of any person, according to the tenour of this alliance, which is to endure while King Frances liueth, and three yeares after his

This alliance being expired, K. Henry before named : and that alliance lasted 5. Frances. yeares after his death. Now because the Dukedome of Millaine, and fome other Prouinces, comprehended in the alliance made with king Frances, were different the lolle of bred from the crowne, when this newe the Dukrden league was contracted: It is expressely fet of Millaine. downe, that the Switzers shall not stand obliged, to give the king any fuccour, for recouery of those countries. But if he can reconquer them by the ayde of another Army, and he shall bee Lord of them againe, as of other Provinces belonging to his Kingdome: for the better confer- A bresiate of uation of them, the Cantons shall furnish the new ad him with men, who shall likewise attend him in warre, for the recourry of Bullen, and the county of Bullenois in Picardy.

If the king will goe in person to some For leuyed warre, hee may make choise (at his pleafure) of Captaines Switzers, and command a leuve of fixe thousand men at the leaft.

He may not diffiound or reparate the some of the Switzers Army, when hee is voon the of the Switzers army. He may not disione or separate the No sundering point of giuing battaile: but out of fuch occasion, he may plant the in Garrisons, in Townes and throng places, to defend

As for the wages, rewards, & fuccors, rewards. which the king is to give vnto the Switzers; it beareth the very felfe-fame reafon as is in the precedent alliance; and the other Articles doe agree with them before mentioned.

And to the ende, that the treaty of peace, made in the yeare 1516. may re- When wager maine firme, when wages rest vnpaide, it payed is thus ordayned. The demander shall acquaint his Magistrate with the matter, to whom if the cause seeme vpright; he shal goe or fend to the kings Ambaffadours, which are in Swetia, or if they be absent, the Magistrate shall write to the king, and require fatisfaction for the party. If the king yeelds to reason, the demander is fatisfied, but if he refuse to pay according private man to equity; the demander may then call his cause before Iudges and Arbitrators, and there haue it debated. And if the K. yeelds to reason, the demander is satisfied, but if he refuse to pay according to equity, the demader may then cal his caufe

For new taxa-

Chap.1. The gouernment of the Syvitzers.

before Iulges and Arbitrators, and there I ties on eyther fide, the demaunder may haue it debated. And if the King will not yeeld to the Judges his part, the Switzers may passe on to turther knowledge of the facte, and what they appoint, shall be allowed for firme and availeable to eyther party euen as if the ludges on eyther fide had therein affifted.

The Merchants both French and Switzers, according to the articles of peace, shall not be greeued with any new taxes tolles or imposts.

If any fuite be moued betweene par-pleade before the ludge, in the place law.

where the defender dwelleth. This alliance was treated and past at Solleurre, in the yeare, 1549. All the Can- liance was tons (except Berne and Zurich) with their made.

confederates, being bound thereto. Finally, King Charles the ninth, Sonne Ring Charles to King Henry, renewed this alliance with the sallied with the Switthe Switzers, vpon conditions little differing from the former : and that alliance continueth yet to this day, after the kings

For fuites in

When this al

THE MANNER OF GOVERN

ment observed among the Switzers.

THE SECOND PART.

Abrecfe dif. courie of the first Bookes

Argument.

A bremiate of

Bookes Argu-

this fecond

Ec haue fhewne in our first Part, of what parts & parcels, the commonwealth of the Switzers composed; for what causes, & with what conditions the epeople dwelling in divers places, allied themselves together, to make up one body of a Commonwealth. Also with what industry and tranaile, they have maintained their liberties; and with what Princes and peoples, they have affociated and leagued themselues. In this second Booke, wee shall declare, how this common-wealth is gouerned. And because the confederates have (each one) their Magistrates, Lawes, and particular government, and that the cantons do make one commonwealth apart, and yet there is a councell in common to the whole Nation, and lawes and ordinances, to whose observation all are obliged: First, I will make mention of the Switzers commonwealth in generall; then I will describe the estate and government of the Cantons, severally in their places.

They that have written concerning Three feueral common-wealths, doe fet downe three kindes of co

The first, when all the managing and full shadower gouernment of the common-wealth, is in the power of one only, who is called a King, if he gouerne justly, with confent of the people, and according vnto the lawes; for if he do otherwife, he is a Ty-

The fecond, when a finall number of principall men, and more people of good behauiour, do gouerne.

The third, when all the people haue the authority in their hands.

Thus there are three kindes of Common-wealths, to wit, Monarchy, Ariftocraty, & Democraty: who have for their vicious shaddowes, Tyranny, Oligarchy, and Anarchy.

We cannot compare or fute the Switzers common-wealth, with any of these before named : but as (aunciently) the thepeofthe great Common wealths of Rome and Carthage, and (in our time) that of Venice may be tearmed mixt and compounded.

Switzers com

non wealths.

Chap.2.

are naturally

warlike im-

ployments.

Concerning

those people bred on the Alpes,& nature of the

All the Swit-

zers are foldiers borne.

country.

A Democraticall kinde o gouernment in some of the Cantons.

uernments; fo in like maner, the commowelth of the Switzers is mingled or composed of a Seigneuriall, Lordly, and Populare government. For among all the people, of whom the whole commonwealth of the Switzers is compounded: there are some, whose government is meerely democraticall, & where al things (almost) are done by the deliberation of the people. As in those Cantons that haue no citties to wit, Vri, Suits, Vnderuald, Glaris, and Appenzell: yea, cuen in Zug, although it is a citty. The other are gouerned by Lords, as citties commonly vie to be,namely Zurich, Berne, Lucerna, Basile, Fribourg, Solleurre, and Schaffouse. But because the Soueraignty appertaineth to the people, who doc elect thefe Lords, these common-wealths are compounded of two kindes of government: to that notwithstanding, the one is more Aristocraticall, and the other more Po-Aristocraticall and Populare. pulare.

tooke part, with all the three kindes of go-

So then, the common-wealth of the Switzers beeing compounded of people, that have not all one, and the same forme of gouernment: the order and pollicy alfo is very divers and mixt. For if vpon some daves of audience, ambassadors do aduife on matters of the whole commonwealth, or end some differences: this appeareth to be a gouernment meerely Aristocraticall. And yet neuerthelesse, because they are (for the most part) elected by the people, and that in causes and affaires of importance, they cannot go beyond their aduice, but deale according to the peoples command, to whom they must render an account of their negotiation: it may eafily bee noted, that fuch a kinde of government is not altogether Ariflocraticall.

Now it plainly appeareth, that the Switzers common-wealth cannot bee better gouerned, for the liberties which they do enjoy, was gotten by their anceftors, not by the industry and power of one, or of a finall number of particular ment but the people themselues were imploied therein, and did enfranchize it with the expence of their purffes, blood, and liues. And therefore it is no more then reason, that they should reape some fruite of their trauaile. And as concerning, that because (insome matters) they shared or | it seemeth incommodious and perillous in a populare estate, that all men should deliner their aduice, but rather, that it ought to be done by them of most wifedome, and men of best quality: This danger is not to bee doubted in the Switzers No dangere Common-wealth, for they do most imploy, and fend on their dayes of audience, the Switzers the best and wifest persons of each Can-common. ton. And although they have not power to conclude definitively/because it might be a dangerous confequence, for the peoples liberty) yet notwithstanding, they are as the cheefest councellers, and make a conference of opinions, ypon the State affaires. Afterward, the people give their confent, by affemblies which they make in Townes and Villages. Now fuch as the Switzen are not altogether stupid and ill-affected, may know and approve that which hath bene deliberated in those dayes meetings, for common benefit : confidering, they give them plainly to understand every

CHAP. II.

Of the manner and behauiour of the Switzers in the times of both peace and warre.

Orafmuch as the right gouernement of a common- Thebeft F wealth, is best discerned in glasse to five any common of peace and warre: it behooueth vs to flew how our predecessors have carried themselves therein. As concerning exercises of war, beside that which nature hath done, in fashioning the Switzers fit thereto: neceffity also hath constrained them, to apply their paines, and that in good earnest, The Country is Mountainy, tharpe, and The mature & hard for culture, anciently defert and fa- quality of the uage for the most part, making the people not onely indurate and hardened for trauaile: but also robuste, stiffe,& strong, and so (by consequent) very apt for warre.

Now as natuarally the people of Europe are more magnanimous and warlike, then they of Asia: fo the Europeans

The Switzer countries, are reputed to be more martially minded then the other Proofe heereof appeareth in the histories of the Goths. Vandales Hunnes, Lombards, Franconians, and other people, who being bred in the very coldeft countries of the North; did vet disperse themselves over the favrest parts of Europe, and cyther forraged or troubled them, treading under their feete the power of Rome, fometimes fo much renowned through the world. In like manner, as the very coldest countries of the Alpes, do beare the highest and tauleft Trees, and have beafts more fatte and faire then can be defired : fo the naturall disposition of the country, and temperature of the avre, produceth men more robufte and ftrong then others are. Wherefore, in many Countries, some are men for Armes, others are labourers, and others artezans : but in Switzerland, all are Soldiours borne, euen by a meere manner of defire, and there is not a Switzer. (prouided that hee have stature and apt difpolition) but in him may bee feene the very liues (to life) of a man of warre.

The Princes f Austria haue most in Switzers.

A comparisor well worth the observation lt is an especi-

elde to beare

which dwell in Mountainous and hard | zerland, dwell he in Citty, Town, Village,

And because almost all the neighbors to the Cantons, but especially the Princes of Austria, laboured by continuall warres, to annihilate the liberty of the Switzers, and that for the space of two hundred yeares: meere necessity made the Switzers martiall, beeing compelled to carry weapons daily in their hands, to maintaine their liberty, bridle the headfirong courses of their enemies, & to preferue their wives and children. And as it was faid of Agefilaus, after he was wounded by the Thebanes in an encounter, that he received worthy wages, for teaching them the arte of warre: euen fo Noblemen that enstructed the olde Switzers, fimple peafants, and shepheards, to handle a Sword, and compelled them to vnderstand the trickes of fencing, received (in the end) the recompence for their apprentiship, having beene so many times beaten in battailes, and finally driven out of Switzerland.

From hence it enfued, that their lawes & customes were accommodated to the exercises of warre. For whereas in many Countries, the people are forbidden to zer yong and carry and manage weapons: fo on the contrary, there is none fo young in Swis-

or Field, be he a pealant, porter, or of the very basest condition can be deuised; but he is strictly commanded to have Arms. according to his quality. And because that in our time, the Harquebuz or Caliuer was in great vie for warre: there was wards propo-a prize and reward propoted in publike, led onely for for fuch as would exercise, and could dex- encourageteriously handle these fiery weapons. Not die the caliner only in Citties, as was done in many parts of Germany : but also in the most peopled Townes and Villages. Nav.there was a prize and reward appointed for children that could draw the Bowsto the end, that they might afterward be the better fathioned for weapons of more danger:which prooued to fuch an expert practife, that from their very youth, they accustomed themselues to discharge the Caliuer.

Their other pastimes also sauored all of

with a great number of Pikes, Halberts. &

Shot, who (vnentreated) march before him, or come to honour his feast, in the nature of a muster, marching after the manner of war. Many times allo, boyes of 8.or 10.yeares old, and others fomewhat more aged, meet together and make muderstood any thing set downe in the Millitary precepts of Vegetius, por of any other, inured from their infancy, without any command: but onely of their owne motion, and by a naturall inclination to Armes, can carry and manage themselues with countenances and steppings fit for Soldiors. In many places, energy yeare, or at certaine times of the years, the Lords and in some other places, when the war. Forthey neuer vsed to meete together, were it on solemne daies & festivals, All the exeraccording to the Churches dedications, fimesofthe or at weddings and other fuch like occafions, but with Drums and Trumpets for war. And it was (and still is)a great honor for a Bride-groome, to bee attended on fters, with Drums & Enfigues, some bearing Caliners, others Halberts, & others of the Swit-Pikes: fo that to fee them march, it might zers children well be faid, that they had hearts & hands come foldior already, apt to manage those warlike wea- from their pons. In this manner, they that never you Cradles.

Cc2

canfe general musters in arms to be made Good & verfor all their followers, as if they were go- tuous examing to war against the enemy. These mu-sters are somtimes performed at the de-minded men. dication of Temples, fointimes at Fairs:

Affaires of State & diffe rences ended

by Ambalfa-dors.

The common wealth of the Switzers is not otherwife ned then as it

Other agilities and com mendable qualities exercifed by the Switzers in seucral kinds

Their sports

and pattimes

after tilling their grounds

How the Switthemselves in What kinde of Armes are most in vse with the Switzers according to the

fent newly to some Bayliwicke, for then they all muster, and snew themselves in

It is altogether needleffe, that I should make any long discourse of other exercifes, which do dispose the to be the more valiant in war : as to runne, leave, throw the stone and barre to wrastle to thew all kindes of defence fit for Arms; for which there are prizes publikely appointed euery yeare. Morcouer, I am of the minde, that in all christendome, there is not any people, that do exercise themselves more in swimming, then the Switzers: who (with much eafe) can vie that Arte, fwimming thorough great Lakes, Rivers, Streames, and very imperuous floods, where-with the country doth greatly abound. When they are at leyfure, and haue done their husbandry in the fields: they daily follow hunting, fometimes ouer the highest Mountaines and Rockes, almost inaccessable, after wilde Goates, Kids and other beafts. At other times they pursue Beares, Wolues, Ounces, & wilde Boares, reputing it as an honour to him that can kil one of those sauage creatures, and fasten his head at the entrance of his doore; yet sometimes hee makes a present of it to the Seigneury. The Grecians had an ancient custome among the, to give the heads of wilde Boares, vnto Gentlemen or Gouernours of the country, as an honourable present after hun-

Now we are to declare, how the Switzers doe carry themselnes in warre. First then I will make mention of their Arms: next, how they chuse and enrouse theyr Soldiours: And confequently, of other things belonging to the acte of warre. Let me then tell you, that (ordinarily) the Switzers Souldiors are well furnished with Armes in their houses: yet (oftentimes) the Citties and Towns do fit them with Armes, which are kept in their publike Arfenalles and Magazines. Their Armes are commonly those of the Germane Lance-Knights, to wit: the Harquebuze or Caliuer or Musket; the Pike of eighteene foote in length; the Halbert, the Courtlace, and Sword made apt for both hands. They weare also a long Sword by their fides, whereas their of their Soldiours, it is done in manner ancestors did weare one farre shorter on following.

Subjects take their oath to a Governor, their thighes, proper to joyne with the enemy necrer hand, and to give him the Stoccado.

Now adayes, ouer and beside this long What ther Sword, they weare a large Poniard or what they Dagger, of three or foure fingers bredth, this prefent and tharpe pointed : which the very meanest of them do adorne and enrich, with curious workmanship of gold and silver. Some weare shirtes of Mayle; others Corfelets, or a good Cuirats for the bo-

The poorer fort, and especially the Muskettiers, content themselves with a Murrian or head-peece. Some, in stead of Armes plated with yron or steele, make vie of skinnes of Beares or Buffelles : ()thers weare doublets of linnen cloth, redoubled in iust thicknesse, and made full of oylet-holes, and these doublets thus made, are not easily to bee transpierced. For the reft, as Polybius writeth that the braue Parado or Romane Soldiour, vsed The braue to weare a Panache of three plumes, red Parado, or or blacke, about the length of a foote and Soldiour of an halfe, because this addition to the rest of his furniture for warre, made the Sol- Plumes. diour feeme to be twice greater and higher, then he was indeed, much more comly to looke on, and terrible to the enemy. Euen fo the Switzers Soldiours, who couet to appeare fightly among all other. do weare on their heads a Plume of Feathers, one part white, and the other anfwerable to the Enfigne, or Colours of their distinct Cantons.

They beare euery man vpon his Arms, a white croffe, plaine and right, which is The Imprest the Switzers Enfigne of war: Each man the Armer veelds himselfe under the Standard of his the Switzert Canton. They ferue their turne with purpofed for warre, Drums, Fifes, and Trumpets: yet in fuch fort, notwith standing, that the Drums of the Switzers are easily discerned fro them of the Allemanes or Germanes, because the found of the Switzers Drum is weighty and deepe, and the other more bluffring. Particularly, they of Vri vie in warre a Cornet made of a wilde Bulles horne. They of Vnderuald do the like. The Lucernians often-times vse a Cornet of Braffe, which they fay was given them by Charlemaigne.

Now as concerning the enrollement

How and in what manner they vie to enroule they men for war. If warre be made on them thome.

Chap.2.

sbroad to war

The care of the old Swit-

z:15 in their

Aresson concerning the manes, and howitcame vp at firft.

great happineffe to be among fuch and that they are affailed in their owne country; as no person was excused at Rome, when Hanniball was at the gates of the Citty; euch fo (without the least delay) all fuch as are able to carry Armes. they lay command on, to run with speedy fuccour, as to a fudden and dangerous fire, which every hand ought helpe to quench. Yet in all this, they proceede by good order; for in the time of peace, each Canton hath certaine Captaines, Enfignes, and chosen men, that ought still to be ready vpon any warning. But because it cometh to passe more often, that they must leade their troops out of their countrie, and all are not meete for marching, neither ought to be drawne abroad, for feare the country (hould be left naked of men of warre, and fo remaine as a prev to the enemy: Then one neighbour makes choise of another for his companion, and according to the advice of Kenophon, the very strongest Army that can bee imagined, is that which is compounded of

The ancient Switzers well knowing this, tooke especiall care, that in their enrolement, friends, and fuch as knew one another, might be ranked together. And heereupon they ordained, that in warre. Switzers should aide each other, & loue together like brethren, throwing of all particular hatreds, which they could formerly pretend one against another. The other Allemaigne Soldiours had a custom to call one another brother: in regard whereof, some haue thought, that our ancients named them Germanes, which is as much to fay, as brethren . Yet not withstanding, they were all (almost) at the Swords point one against another, & (very often) the furious Lance-knights, who by their hackt and flasht faces, seeme to breathe no other word but warre: haue received more cuts and gashes by their friends and companions, then from their enemics.

friends and companions.

On the contrary, ordinarily in the Switzers Campe, there is a very great tranquility, & one louing another (thogh otherwise they know not at all) euen as if they were brethren. And when they are the very greatest enemies in the world: yer notwithstanding, for the good and quietnes of their country, they renounce

If warre be made upon the Switzers, | all spleene & particular quarrels. Whereof I will declare a memorable example. which oftentimes (in my youth) I heard reported by my ancestors.

Two Switzers being deadly enemies. to wit. Arnould of Vnderuald who afterward was a great Captaine, and Zerchin- ample of great tes of Zurich, both of them very valiant Switzers, apmen, and meete for war. It came to paffe, pearing by that during the warre of Suaba they were two mortall both at one time in the Camp: when the enemies, cheefe Leaders (knowing their enmity) commanded them to be friends, and (as then) to forget their ancient quarrels. It happened in a certaine encounter, that Arnould was round engirt with his encmies: which Zerchintes perceiuing, came with his companions to relecue him, and did fet him free from the danger wherein he was. In the evening, being returned to the Campe, Arnould went to the Tent of Zerchintes, and called to him by his name. His fellowes and followers, beeing ignorant of that which had happened, were perswaded by their owne opinion, that he came to challenge combate with the other. Wherefore they stept betweene them, & admonished Arnould, to remember the command given by the Captains, and to take heede of mooning any trouble in the Campe. He answered, that he came with a quite contrary disposition. and so acquainted them with all the aduenture. And instantly presented to Zerz chintes a very goodly horse, fit for warre feruice, which he had wonne in that daies trauaile. From that time forward, even to the houre of death, they were very louing and intimate friends.

As the ancient Switzers thewed them. felues brethren, in fuccouring and affift- How the aning their companions, doing as they wold cient Switzen be done to themselves: so did they ob-ferue the same forme, in sharing and di-as they won uiding a gotten booty. For first of al, they in the warre. gaue prohibition on paine of death, that no man of theirs, should bee so hardy or bold as to forfake his ranck & the troops, vntill fuch time as the enemy should bee driven in route. Afterward, when the Captaines had given licence to rifle and ransacke; all the booty was brought in common, & distributed by the poll. And because the cantons are publikely united euen so the publike booty, as Artillery, Caffles, conquered Countries, Tolles,

Cc3

by equality of portions.)

They that de-

ought to have

The ancient

Switzers order for victuals.Arms, munitions,&c.

Prohibition

for violating of Churches

Of the mane

of the Swit.

zers battalion

maids,and

them by equal portion. Albeit there are some of the Cantons, that doe furnish out twice, thrice, and some whiles fine times more Soldiours, then others doe. Neuertheleffe.extraordinarily and particularly, recompence is given, and gifts bestowed upon Soldiers, that have borne themselues valiantly, & performed some braue exploit in the warre, beyond the fortune of their companions: and also to those Cantons in like manner, that have beene more imployed and charged, then the other.

Forasmuch also, as victuals and other munitions, are in warre to bee especially confidered: the ancient Switzers ordained, that fuch as brought victuals. Arms. or other necessary things, and came to fell them in the Switzers campe, they should be fauoured & maintained, in all respects as if they were Switzers. There is also a perpetuall law, and established by length of time, that in warre, Temples and other places destined for the exercise of Religion, should be left intire and vntoucht. And that no outrage should be offered to maids nor women : but onely to fuch, as shall give Armes to enemies, or ace the parts of Soldiors, by hurling stones, or hurting in some other manner. As concerning the manner of camping, and raunging themselves in battaile: it is needlesse for me to shew heere, that which the Switzers do in particular, or in common with the other Germans. Only I will fay, that in our time, and by the memory of our auncestors; among all Infantery, the battalion of the Switzers hath alwayes beene highly efteemed. For being compoled of Pikes croffed, it resembleth a Porcupine, so that such as vnderstand the affaires of warre, doe judge, and experience hath appropued it, that this battailion may beare head against the horsemen. In the battaile of Nouara, the Infantery of the Switzers beeing not and other revenues, are parted among | their retreat feemed nothing like a flight; and vet the French (for all their victory) durst not follow them. It is not long lines, when on the day at Dreux, in the first the day at durst not follow them. It is not long fince. Troubles, the Reistres & the French Ca- Dreux. ualery, linely charged the battailion of the Switzers, and flew the most part of their Captaines: yet notwithstanding the Switzers rallied themselves three times. and kept their rankes so well, that even in that battaile, their enemies confessed thefelues, that they were very valiant & warlike men.

But let vs leave fuch discourse to men of warre, and thew you, how the Switzers busie themselves in the times of peace, & themselves in the times of peace, & how they are ordered from their infancy. times of peace First, as concerning letters and learning, and arettained up from which holds the first ranke. I freely con-fesse, that the ancient Switzers were not very carefull thereof. But rather they imitated the Romans therein, when they were in warres continually, against the Aequi, Volscians, Veientes, and other neighbouting people. And as they then, with rufticall fongs celebrated the valiancy of Letters of their ancestors: fo in the same manner, learning lin the olde Switzers had vulgar fongs, to regardeda remember the victories which they had cient Switobtained inwarre. The Song wherein the zers. day of Sempach is aptly described, when as Duke Leopold was flaine, is very common in Switzerland. As for knowledge of Artes, and of the Latine tongue, men of warre bruske and vnapt to handle Bookes, rather thought, that fuch matters belonged to Churchmen. But in our dayes there are to be found in all the can- Many in the tons of Switzers, men learned both in Cantons katthe Tongues and Sciences. And as for and feiences many that understand not the Latine tongue: yet they forbeare not to reade Histories of all kindes, either concerning government of life, or affaires of State, or of Religion : And there are Libraries, well furnished with Bookes, written in the vulgantongue.

Now, as concerning Schooles, it is a very long time fince, that the Colledges Of Schooles of the Abbey of S. Gall, and of Coire a- for the furthe mong the Grifons, were renowned as wee ring and main haue already shewne else-where. But learning. within some certaine yeares after, letters and learning became quite banished. The Pope Place Pope Pine, formerly named Aeneas Syl- reded a Vai mins, prouided an Vniuerfity at Bafile, fro uerfity at Ba whence have come many learned and excellent men: whom it is needles to name, because they are sufficiently famous, and knowne by their writings. There are alfo diuers notable and publike Schooles at Zurich, at Berne, and one established at Lausanna, by the Lords of Berne. Nor must I let sleepe in silence, the goodly Printing-houses at Basile, Zurich, and Geneua, renowned among them all that are in Germany.

of I have made mention, there is love of all vertue, and especially of Justice, which appertaineth also to the maintenance of peace. For it is a matter most certaine, that the common-wealth of the Switzers is grounded upon most great equity, and hath euermore beene famous, in regard of her inflice: as appeareth by the lawes, alliances, customes, and manner of life among the ancient Switzers, and by many examples, and particular actions. I need not make mention of their lawes, because they agree with those of other commonwealths, that are ruled by good lawes: where crimes and misdeeds are seuerely punished, without any exception of per-

As for their alliances, the Articles of them, reported in the first Booke : do declare, with what vprightnesse, diligence,& faithfulnesse they are made. The ends of them are, that every man may enjoy his owne peaceably, and that (by a common confent) all violence may be expulft and banished. For the better gouerning of this case, it is expressely forbidden, to goe and affault, and make warre one vpon another, eyther rashly, or withour just cause. And therefore also before Armes may be undertaken, the wifest and most discreete persons in all the nation: in a publike affembly, must examine the caules of the warre, and understand them to be just and lawfull. Then afterward, when question is veged; of repulsing an enemy, it is most strictly prohibited to the confederates, that ought to give affiftance; to yse therein no fraud nor cunning. But if they be called by letters, or by meffages; or, admit they could not bee called, the paffages being fore-closed by the enemy:

yet notwithstanding, they are commanded to go and give succour, even to their vtmost power.

Moreouer, because it many times hape pens, that the reconery of debts and borrowed money, do beget great debates, fo debts & bor that fuch differences betweene particu- rowed molar persons, doe sometimes fet the Can- nies. tons at variance one with another othe Articles of the alliances do enery where make mention, what course is to been be ferued in the recourry of fuch debrs, and for taking pawns, to cut off the ouer great licence of lenders, and to shunne the fraudulency of borrowers. Whofoeuer hath beene but a meane reader of Histories, knowes very wel, what troubles have hapned in Rome, in the case of debts, at all times, and when so euer the people are op- debts. prefled by the violence of vourers, & taxed in great summes then they would mutiny, and demaund, that the viurers contracks might be torne in peeces, & other made of more honest nature. But the prouidence and vprightnesse of the auncient Great care & Switzers, made fuch an imbarment, that prouidence in neuer was the abolition of Obligations the Switzers. vrged in Switzerland; although the country is not very great, nor rich, and hath beene troubled with warres continually. Because also, that men of warre are prompt, and ready, to lay hand on their weapons, and (oftentimes) fight vnder a Anespecial falle and dangerous pretence, they being care against menrather quarrellous, flurdy & outragi-ous, then valiant, yetraking a delight in this forwardnesse of enduring nothing, fors. as thinking it makes men magnanimous and inuincible: the atheient Switzers laboured to remedy this cuill, first by impofition of great fines, on fuch as began the ftirre, and to outrage their affociates. But because choller is a furious beast, and very difficult to be brideled : to hinder him from taking carriere, and obniate murders; they added another remedy, to wit, Agoodlaw to that flich as were found present at those beviedinoquarrels and debates, if they did not paci-ther places, fie and hinder their proceeding, and impose on them the penalties appointed by the lawes : then themselves should bee greeuoufly punished by the Magistrate. For they would not permit, that men should be so one fwaied and mastered by choller, and their lawes (in the meane while) lofe their power and authority. If any man committed a murder, aid efea- Againt futh ped from the hand of inflice: her could as committed not be received into any of the Cartons.

ago all

Great trottbles in Rome about cases of

Example of Nouara.

couered with any horse: foiled and droue in route, the French Infantery and Horfemen. Afterward, on the day at Marignano having had battaile against king Frances, two feuerall dayes, which they loft, by the two dayes reason of the thundring Artillery, and multitude of their enemies: Neuertheleffe though vanquished, yet they returned to Millaine, ranged in battaile, fo that Goodly Prin ting-houles. Befide the study of good letters, wher-Loue of verrue & justice among the

Chap.2.

The Lawes of he Switzers.

The alliances

Of vnderta king Armes

In the case of

and assistance

whence

If any man were banished, for offending ! any one of the Cantons, or killing a man: he was to frand excluded from all the reft. except hee could proue by fufficient witneffes, that he flew his enemy in the mere defence of his owne body.

Such hath beene, and still is, the equiare protected in this protection in the faulty from time to time: that many stragers have made the to them, and have accepted them for Arbitrators in their differences. For they do fhew themselves protectors of all such as haue any wrong done to them, and vpon this their comming to them; they have fent Ambassadours, nay, haue vndertaken Armes, to re-establish in their goods and possessions, some that have bene despoyled of them by very powerful Lords. The Cantons (in this cause) made war on the Princes of Austria, to maintaine the right of the Fulachs, Cittizens of Schaffouse. And for certaine Gentlemen of Stiria, named the Gradlers: & constrained the Duke of Austria, to restore such goods as he deterned from them. In the like case, but of much greater importance

they gave battaile vnto Duke Charles of Bourgongne; to maintaine Rene, Duke of Lorraine, whom Charles had dispossed of the most part of his countries. In like manner alfo, many times have they made

warre on certaine theeues, who couering themselues with the title of Noblemen;

robbed and spoyled Merchants. To foile thefe thecues, they have bin faine to make out you them, not onely in their owne

country of Switzerland: but also in countries further off, allying themselues (to effect so good a worke) with those farre off townes. By which meanes, the wayes of Switzerland have beene made very fecure: fo that Merchants, charged with neuer fo great fummes of money, goe and come in al safety, transporting their Mer-chandizes whether they please, without any need of company or transport. And a pleasant Prouerbe grew thereon, that if any man carried his purfle full of gold or filuer on his staffes end; hee might safely

paffe through Switzerland, and care not

Examples of duers prorected & holpen to their rights by the

The Switzen hauc made warre vpon thecues that robbed and spoiled passen

Rood adions are cuermore worthy to bee > how many looked on him. Iustice sildome walkes without her companion Liberality, under which epithire wee will comprehend hospitality, which alwayes hath made the people of Switzerlandto bee highly commended. They have not the delicates of the Italian and French, but they offer liberally those presents which the earth yeeldes them, as namely, Milke, Butter, & Hony. And who would bee ashamed, or can defoife this liberality; feeing the great Pa- It is no flame to follow yertriark Abraham, entertained Angels with tuous a good fuch viands, when they came to fee him? examples, And yet the country is not without good store of wilde Beasts and Fowles, with diuers kindes of Fishes, both in Lakes & Rivers. And as great men in times past, (fo fweetly fung of by learned Poets) honoured men of worth by giving them flesh for their food: even so oftentimes in Switzerland, prefents are given to ftragers, and them of the same country also, paffing from one place to another, of good and delicate flesh, namely Venilon, and also of very dainty Fish. But principally, the Switzers are liberall and chari- The Switters table to the poore, in lodging, seeding, & charitable as furnishing them with other needefull the poore. things: fo that there are very few countries wherein fo many poore beggers are to be seene as in Switzerland. I do not heere dispute, whether the Magistrate doth well, or no, in fuffering or supporting them: onely I was defirous to fnew heerein, the great humanity of the Switzers towards the poore, which refort the-

The people of Switzerland (among all other)take pleasure in Feasts and publike delighting Banquets. In Citties and Townes, they fling & binof one trade, or of one band, haue cer-quetting, only for the maintainehouses ordained to affemble themfelues in. Euery Village (almost) hath a uir greigh-house by it selfe, which they cal the house of good company: because they there meete, onely to maintaine loue and amity. The men doe meete there often, and fometimes the women are inuited thether to fitte and banquet with their hufbands. They do not vie any fumptuous dishes or delicates, but most often content themselves with one or two kindes of meates. Many times every neighbour bringeth his dish, and there feed friendly together, on that which was prouided for their owne private houses. And as among Aged men & the Lacedemonians it was ordained, that Magiffrates aged men and Magistrates should be prefent at banquets, to the ende, that every monians to man should carry himselfe honestly : the beat Fealis ther from all parts.

VCTY and Banquets

very fame is practifed in Switzerland, fo) rily changed, that the Grecians prayed & that all of one Trade, or of one Brotherhood, haue their diftinct places, and the Magistrate, with the most auncient men, haue the higher ende of the Table allowed to them.

The Switzers theirmeetings

Chap.2.

They do not much delight in Musicke at fuch Banquets, because they conceine delight not in more pleasure in conferring together, either of particular affaires, or (oftentimes) of publike businesse. Aboue all, when one of the most aged begins to discourse on some notable matters, which happened in his youth, or that himfelfe had learned from his predeceffors; euery one is very attentine, without the least interruption. And many times, he that hath a good & pleafing tongue will speake loud enough on the faire descruings of his Ancestors, The ancient Switzers were very fober & modest in all things, especially at publike Feasts and Banquets: fo that it is a matter rare & most ignominious, if any man should be drunke in such an affembly. But I am enforced to write, and to my great greefe, that although there is more moderation in the Switzers Banquets, euen at this day, then in many other people of Germany: yet notwithstanding,

The Author which the peoples folly

Aftrange al-

drunkennesse will not be banished nor so vilely thought on, as in elder times it hath beene. And as Xenophon faide of the Lacedemonians (whose common-wealth hee had most highly commended) that hee durst not maintaine now in his time, that the lawes of Lycurgus were in full force, because in former times, sober and moderate people, affected rather to line among them in great continence, then to be Lords in other Citties, where they might possesse worlds of riches: So now in the time of Xenophon, the Lacedemonians, yea, them of greatest power among them, contended to have the government of citties, as fearing they should be compeld to live in their owne particular condition, glorifying themselues openly, of their wealth and riches. And whereas their Ancestors were studious, to make themselues become honourable, & worthy of giving command to others: thefe exhorted one another, to refift against the Lacedemonians, yea, and to expulle the vtterly, fearing lefte they should vsurpe vpon the gouernment.

It appeareth now to me, that even as much may be faid of the Switzers: for I must needs confesse, that the frugality & alteredfrom temperance of our auncients, in eating, progenitors. drinking, cloathing, and in the whole course of life, is dead, or as if it had never beene at all. The Switzers are not now fo continent and spare in living, as heeretofore, when they maintained their lines with the labour both of their mindes and hands without taking wages of Kings & Princes, strangers to them. And therfore I am much affraid, lefte we lofe that wholy too, which yet remaineth, namely, valiancy and strength in warre, humanity, debonarity, iustice, and vprightnesse. that one day, they who (heretofore) haue The Authors fo carefully compaffed amity & alliance especial care with the Switzers: it is to bee doubted, or inscountries honour, may change their mindes, and fludy how and of his they shall best subdue them. I desire of countrymen. God, that he will turne from my country fo deadly a danger; and I defire also, and exhort all them that ought to think theron, to striue to bring in vse againe those honest ancient manners, that frugality, continence, equity, humanity, loyalty, & constancy of the olde Switzers in al their actions.

CHAP. III.

Of publike assemblies and meetings, or rather of the Councell and Senate of the Switzers.

Nall Commonwealths, three things are especially to be cofidered, to wit, the Councell naments or any common or Senate, the Magistrate, and Iustice; for the Common-wealth of the Switzers hath no common Magistrates: except wee may place in that ranke, the Bayliffes and Gouernors, which are fent heere and there, not by the councell of the Common-wealth, but by each one of the Cantons in it felfe. For the rest, the men coueted after dignities onely. So that whereas the Grecians (on their owne meere motion) made request to the Lace-demonians, that they would accept of the gouernment : matters became fo contra-naments of a

The three or.

The bounty and hospitali-ty of the Switzers.

zers not equal alwayes.

councell of Switzerland is not alwayes e- | der, when they were entred into league; quall in number; for sometimes, ouer & as thus Vri, Suits Vnderuald, Lucerna and befide the Cantons, the other allies and confederates, especially the Ambassadors of S. Gall, of the Grifons, and of Mulhoufe, do meete together. And then this is the very greatest councell, which doe assemble but rarely, and to conferre on peace or warre, or of other affayres, which appertaine equally to all the confederates.

dors of the 12 cantons meet ofinell toge-ther, but not vpon all occa

Oftenest of all other, there do none but The Ambaffa- the Ambaffadors of the thirteen cantons meete together, to confult and aduise on matters of the Common-wealth. Euery man of them bath a deliberate vovce, as well as the other, and therefore, though one Canton do fend two Ambassadors: ver they shall have but one voyce, & one advice, because the advice is collected according to the number of the Cantons, and not to the number of Ambassadors. Neuertheleffe, all the Cantons doe not fend their Ambaffadors at all daies meetings; as when there is question of the Bayliwicks, gouerned by the seauen or eight first Cantons, or of other things on them depending: then feuen or eight ambaffadors onely meete together, & haue their deliberative voyces. But if there be any speech concerning the Bayliwicks of Italy, belonging to the twelve first Can-tons: then those twelve ambassadors doe affemble. And as for that which concerneth the good of the whole Commonwealth: the ambaffadors of the thirteene Cantons, do then make a perfect & com-

In our times, fince Switzerland became divided into factions, by reason of differences happening in Religion, they likewise instituted particular assemblies:

fo that the fine Cantons of Lucerna, Vri.

Suits, Underuald, and Zug, that make expresse profession of the Religion and Ceremonies of the Romane Church, & are very thrictly united together, by especiall amity (Iknow not whether it bee by league or alliance) they meete together more often then the other cantons, and are (as it were) a councell apart. And therefore, when speech is made of the fine finall Cantons, they before named are understood, and not the fine first in alliance. As also in making mention of three, of fenen, or of eight Cantons: it must be confidered according to the time and or-please body of councell.

Factions among the of religion.

The Ambaffa

heir affem -

ding to their

blies accorcaules.

dors haue

Lucerna, Vri, Suits, Vnder-uald and Zng, are the fiuc

Zurich, shall be the fine Cantons. Some. times they of Fribourg and of Solleurre, affemble themselues with the fine forenamed, and call themselves the seven ca- The seven tholike Cantons. Now, although any in the cantons of Glaria and Appenzell, doe will be to a belong to the catholike Church, & Masse thenselves is fung in their cheefest Villages: yet notwithstanding, they are not rancked among the catholikes, because (for the most part) their people walke with them that are of the new Religion. Finally, the foure Citties, to wit, Zurich, Berne, Bafile, and Schaffoufe, have likewife (fometimes) their affembly apart; but yet it is not fo often as the other.

Moreouer, it is very vneafie to discipher particularly, all those things where-on the councell of Switzers do deliberate: neuertheleffe, I will touch some of the principall articles. The first and cheeledge. fest, is concerning war and peace, as likewife mention is made in most part of the alliances, that if a great wrong is done to one of the cantons, and it thinketh good to have reason by armes: it must first bee referred to the councell of the leagues, to the end that the ambaffadors may regard together, whether the cause of warre bee iuft, or no, lefte warre should bee lightly War is not u moued, and upon triuial occasions. Then afterward, if it appears to bee expedient ons. to begin warre, and for the fafety of the common-wealth, the meanes must next be confulted on.

It chanced (in my time) that Christopher Landberg, being leagued with many of Rocalle Gentlemen, furiously to inuade them of alliedous Rotuille, allied to the Cantons many faid, cened with that fuch fuccour ought to be fent to Rot- danger. uille, as the inhabitants defired. But the greater part of the Senatours, and Deputies to the councell of Switzerland, hauing vnderstood the causes of the variance; hindred any fuch proceeding. For they faw plainely, that the whole State would ouerthrow it selfe into very great perill, and vpon filly occasion: because there was pregnant apparance, that by in-uading Landberg, they must therby meddle with the Duke of Wirtemberg his neighbour, to whom the Switzers hadde beene good friends a long time. Nor could they come fo neere him, without can be compeld to make alliance with a strange

For the effa-

irritating (by the fame meanes) many other Princes, that wer hiskindred, friends, and confederates. Neuerthelesse, because they of Rottille should not complaine, that they were forfaken in fuch a necessity: fifty Soldiors of each Canton were fent as a Garrison to their Towne, but they stayed at Schaffoule, and (foone after) the difference was pacified by Indges, chosen for eyther side. And as the councell deliberated on the matter of warre, and whether it should be begun, or no: peace also was treated on by the same councell, and not by the Cantons in particular. According heereto, in the warre of

Suaba, all the Cantons together fent their ambassadors to Basile, where they made peace with the Emperor Maximillian. So the warre at Suaba, when peace was made at Fri-the councell of Switzerland, affembling at Fribourg : made perpetuall peace with the King, and all the Realme of France, in the yeare, 1516. The negotiation of alliances is joyned with that of peace: for very often in the dayes of our ancestors. and in ours also, the Cantons (by aduice of their councell) have made alliances with neighbouring Kings and Princes. Wherin this order is kept still to this day. that no one of the Cantons can bee constrained to make alliance with a strange Prince, but is to remaine at his owne liberty. As in the yeare, 1519, when all the cantons allied themselves with king Fráces; they of Zurich refused to be bound, and afterward, they of Berne renounced this alliance. In like manner, when Philebert, Duke of Sauoye, obtained to enter league and amity with the Switzers : first the fine finall cantons began, and then

The fecond Article, of fuch things as the councell of Switzerland do ordaine, lithment of concerneth lawes and ordinances. Each lawes and or- Canton hath his lawes and customes by himfelfe, which remaine firme and inuiolable: neuertheleffe, by a common confent, our ancestors denised and established many publike Edicts and Ordinances. Among which number, are the fore-mentioned lawes of warre : wherewith also may the accord at Stantz bee rancked, paffed betweene the eight first Cantons, and whereof we have spoken in the first book. Alfo because Priests abused their immunities and priviledges; they were reproo-

Solleurre joyned with them afterward.

ued by a publike Edica, containing this in effect. Whofoeuer of the cittizens or inhabitants of the cantons, be hee Prieft or their immuno, be he a Counceller, Vassaile, or bound ledges, to the Princes of Austria: he shall stand bound neuertheles, and promise by oath to his canton, to procure & aduance the profite therof, and of all the confederats, and discouer speedily and in good conscience, all that may bring them any damage. This oath thall precede all other, and no obligation, how expresse socuer it be, shall excuse them, if they go aginst this none shall prefume to protect him, vitill fuch time as hee hath renounced all forraigne inflice, and payed the charges of other meanes : he shall be punishable in body and goods, vntill hee haue fatisfied

culer, and out of the country: he shall pay all the charges endured in that cause, in regard hee ought to pleade in the same place, where the party dwelleth. No man thall affigne ouer his action to another,

by which meanes he may the eafier afflict made fatisfaction to the party. All the cantons shall take order, that the waies wife, by common confent of all, and our helpe to the vttermoft, hee shall be com-

the contrary party.

Such Priests as dwell in Switzerland. and are not of the country, may draw no No Prieft may man into civill or ecclefiafticall inflice, commence out of the country; except in matrimoni- of the Counall and ecclefiafticall causes. If any one try, but with dare do otherwife, the Magistrates of the canton wherein he dwelleth, shall prohibite all men, not to harbour, lodge, or friend him, nor to frequent his company:

the party, that received endamagement by fuch inflice. Whofocuer shall doe For punishing wrong to his neighbour, cyther in taking of wrong done pawnes against order of right, or by any to neighbors.

the party. He that is not of the Church, No suite to be and yet hath fummond his aduerfary, ey- pleaded out ther before a Judge of the Church, or fe- of the country

If any man shall renounce his Bourgeship, and therby do wrong to another, No colourad. by drawing him into strange instice: hee mitted to wrong another. number of the cittizens, till first hee have

be fure and fafe, because both Switzers & For secure & firangers may passe securely, connaying on the high-

their Merchandizes through the country, wayes without any manner of violence done to them: whofoener shall attempt other-

pelled

Nopawnered betaken bur by the Magigistrates con-

An Edict a

gainit Bro

fices.

kers for Bene

The Authors

reason for the

Concerning

Emballages

the country.

or imploymet

ferious affairs

at home on

pelled to make fatisfaction, answerable to | but also the consederates sent their amthe faculties and riches as the party hath loft. No man in any Canton whatfoeuer, shall resciue pawne or pledge of any other, without confent of the Magistrate: neyther shall do, or procure any injury to be done to his neighbour; but hee that doth the contrary, shall be compelled by them of his Canton to fatisfie the other to the vttermost damage.

All these things before recited, were agreed on, and ordained by the fixe can-tons of Zurich Lucerna, Vri, Suits, Vnderuald, and Zug. There was another Edict also published, against many Brokers of Benefices for in regard that such fellowes did oftentimes cause much trouble vnto Priests, made by the Ordinaries of the places, and (vnder colour of some purchased Bulles) were so put in possession of vacant Benefices: It was concluded by common confent of all the thirteen cantons, in the yeare, 1520, that if such people purfued to maintaine the right of fuch Bulles, they should be imprisoned, where if they did not renounce those Bulles, they should be drowned. I could fer downe many other examples, of Edicts & publike lawes, but I thinke it needleffe : and these formerly rehearsed, are to no other end, but to let the Reader perceive, that gaue great honor to men of the church.

did neuer yet (for all that) leaue the bridle

fo freely to them, or admit them any fuch licence, as was contrary to publike liberty and tranquility. If any Embassiages were to bee sent out of Switzerland, for the appointing of fome difference, contracting of alliance, gratifying fome Prince, or exhorting fome one to this or that, or elfe to command or declare some matters of import. or to denounce warre: Say alfo, that it were in Switzerland, to negotiate with some Canton, Citty, Towne, &c : The for other suites on this side the Mouncouncell confults and determines what is to be done in this case: as whether it is necessary to send ambassadours of all the from the sentence of the ambassadours Cantons or of some few onely.

When there is a question in hand, for contracting alliances or leagues, all the Cantons do then fend ambaffadors: As when the alliance was made and figned with King Henry, not onely the Cantons, baffadors to the King . But in many obaffadors to the King. Dut in many or ther affaires, they name but foure or fine la other caffons. Cantons, who fend Embassages in the name of all. As the ambaffadors of 7.4rich, Lucerna, Vri, and Glaris went to the day at Ansbourg, & obtained of the Emperor Ferdinand, confirmation of the priviledges for their owne cantons, and for all the rest likewise. Moreover, this connell hath charge, with reference to Advice for the Lords that affift them, to adulfe on Regulation, & aufweing what is to bee negotiated, or answering Ambassaden ambassadors of Kings and Princes strangers, and also of other common-wealths. as they are oftentimes met withall, in the publike affemblies of the Switzers.

Finally, the councell adulfeth to prouide for the Prouinces, which do belong to the Cantons, to the end, they may bee gouerned as best beseemeth. First of all, because that some estates are of great profit, as of Secretaries, Commissaries, Officers, Interpreters, Landmans, & Land- Landweibell weibell in the country of Turgow (wherof the first, to wit, the Landman is ludge criminall, in name of the ten first Cantons, and the other is as ordinary Proctor or Atturney) the councell commits these estates to certaine men, who cannot (in meane while) chuse Officers vnthe ancient Switzers, who were denoutly der them, answerable to their appetite. affected to their Religion, and euermore Moreouer, if some difficult processe or whends fuite happen in a Prouince, and the Go- cult cafesha uernors or Bayliffes will not judge accor- peninany ding to their aduice : the whole busines is Province. referred ouer to the councel, where if the sentence of the Bayliffes seeme to bee vniust to eyther of the parties, they may appeale to the maine Senate or Councel of the Switzers.

As for causes in the Bayliwicks and Gouernments beyond the Mountaines : Order for the ambassadors (which are yearely sent the sible should be thicker in the Moneth of Iune) doe take Mountainst. knowledge of them, and end them. But taines, the councell of Bada doth judge them: And appeale also may bee made that have given judgement beyond the Mountaines, to the councell of Bada, be- of Bada. caufe that authority is greater, and their power more ample. Yet some say no, and that the appeale is to be addressed to the Cantons: that each of them may vnder-

Distribution of annuall re

The capacity he councell, n all matters mhatíoeuer hat concerne realths wel-

The order & observation for calling the generall af calling & the safembling of the councell ppertaineth.

Of Ambaffa dors from Kings and Princes.

rence to be decided. Alfo the Gouernors and Bayliffes, are to render an account to the councell, of the tolles, reuennues. and fines: the annuall reaconnues are distributed by equall portion among the Cantons to whom the Bayliwicks do anpertaine. There is the like also of the Abbeves in those Bayliwicks, the protection and gouernment whereof (in temporall occasions) do belong to the Cantons. In briefe, the councell doth know all things, which concerne the administration of the Provinces appertaining to the Cantons: they cause the Gouernors to render their accounts they give audience to whofoeuer can accuse them, and they punish them, if they have deferred it; eyther by depriuing them of their dignities, or re-turning them to the Cantons that established them, to have some other fent in their stead. To speake all in one word, the councell takes knowledge of all matters that concerne the good and tranquility of the common-wealth: as well in the Gouernments and Bayliwicks, as also in the Cantons themselves.

stand the matter, and by them the diffe-

Now concerning the authority of To whom the calling, and affembling the councell, for the demanding of their aduice: it hath belonged (of ancient time) to the Canton of Zurich which by a very authenticall printledge, holds the cheefest ranke among all the Cantons. Whenfoeuer then there is question made, to hold a generall councell of the nation: the Lords of Zurich make knowne by their Letters to each of the Cantons, both the time & the place where they are to meete together. If any one or more of the cantons, do thinke it necessary, that the councell publike and general (hould be affembled; first they give advertisement to the canton of Zurich, and require by their letters, that the Ambassadours of the other cantons may meet together. But if the affairs are preffine, and require speedy deliberation, then each canton must aduertise his confederates, to be in readinesse for aduifing (altogether) on that which is to bee > Likewise the Ambassadours from Kings and Princes strangers; do demand leaue of the cantons, to present theselues at those dayes of meetings: & somtimes they make request, that one day (extraor dinary) may be held for them. But on the Dayes of pardayes of particular meetings, they proceed otherwise, because Zurich fignifies bliesaccorthe fame to foure Townes: and when to fine or feuen catholike cantons; they of whom they are called.

Lucerna do affemble them. There are also daies of and for particular meeting of the cantons allied to the K. of France: whose Ambassador residing at Solleurre, calleth the cantons at the Kings charge. I thinke there is permission also, for the ambaffadors of the Pope, and of other kings. friends, and allies to the Switzers, to de mand their dayes: prouided they are at their Masters expences.

The ancient Switzers had no perpe- In what place tuall or certaine place, for holding their did affemble daies of generall councell: for I am per- on their daies fwaded, there is no one of the first eight of meeting. cantons, but they made an affembly at fome times, though most often it was done at Lucerna, at Zurich, Bremgarten, and at Bada . In our time, the custome hath beene (not by any law or ordinance purposely made for it) that the Switzers kept their dayes at Bada, in the Townehouse: and so much the rather, because the Towne hath many commodities for fuch affemblies. First, the place is beautified with goodly buildings, and very apt nnes or house of lodging. The scituation of the place is pleasant and healthfull, and the necreness of the Bathes yielde of t wonderfull pleafure, drawing thether Townsof great refort of people from farre remote Bada. countries. By meanes whereof, the neighbouring people to Bada, (feeling the gaines sweetnesse) bring thether all kindes of victuals in great aboundance, which causeth the Towne to be well furnished with all good prouision, and at all needfull feafons.

Next, it is feated (almost) in the midst of Switzerland, fo that the cantons furthest off, may appeare there (by neerenesse of wayes) all at one and at the same time. Also it appertaineth to the eight first cantons, & (by that meanes) the most Bada belongpart of the cantons are Lords therof, and first cantons. haue equall authority in the place. Befide, the particular affemblies of the foure Townes, is ofteneft kept in the Towne of Arow, appertaining vnto the canton of Berne; howbeit (sometimes) it hath bin of Basile, when question was made of entring. accord with Luther, & that for the cause

When Alliances ere to be contracted.

like Canrons

of Strasbourg, that then fent their Ambaffadors thether. The catholike Cantons do oftentimes affemble at Lucerna, fometimes at Beckenried, in the territory of Vri or at Brunen, which belongeth to them of Suits. But when the Ambastador of France demanderh (in his Kings name) a leuve of men of the Switzers: the day is oftenest held at Solleurre, where he entreateth the Cantons to be present; and sometimes also it is at Lucerna.

At what time the dayes of audience for fuites are

The realog the councels fitting and meeting.

Concerning fudden & vn expected accidents and fuites of particular persons, from the ge-nerall busines.

dayes for th

councell.

The custome is, that (euery yeare)

dayes of meeting are held at Bada, about mid-Iune. Then the Bayliffes or Gouernors appertaining to the Cantons, veeld a reason of their seuerail charges before the councell, and attend to the ending of fuites concerning the Prouinces. At the same time, the Ambassadors of the twelve first Cantons do mecte at Lugano, & take an account of the foure bayliffes for the Provinces of Italy, and judge the causes of appeale: but yet in such fort as a man may appeale from them, to the Councell or Parliament of Bada, it being of farre greater authority. The councell fo affembled, they fit by ordination of the Cantons, to ende fuch controverfiall cafes, as were not concluded on at the precedent meeting: for oftentimes causes of importance are not ended at the first Seffion, either because they appeare not of fufficient merit, or want due power of proofe. In regard whereof, they are referred ouer to a further day, and in the meane while the Ambaffadors crave adnice of the Lords of their fenerall Cantons, to know how they shall carry themselues therein. Sometimes also, in an vnexpected accident, or fome other fuch cale of confequence : the Canton of Zurich, or fome other, will affigne the day, especially, if it be a matter concerning the common-wealth. Now, although the Councell are affembled only for publike affaires; yet notwithanding, after they have taken order for them, if any particulars of the Provinces come, and would haue their causes pleaded, they give them audience. But the particular dayes of the Cantons and those that the Ambassador of France caufeth to bee held; haue no certainty of time, but according as occafions offer themselves, & as it is pleasing to them that have power to affemble the

The manner of proceeding on these daies! of meeting is thus. At the day affigued by and manuer the ordinary councell, or commanded to of proceeding be kept: the day before, the Ambaffador on the days for the canton of Zurich, fends the Lieutenant of Bada to all the Innes and houfes of receit, to know what Ambassadors are come, to whom the Lieutenant giueth kinde welcome, and receiueth them honourably, in name of the whole Switzers common-wealth, and the morrow after he calleth the to come to the Townhouse. If the Ambassadors of all the cantons are come, they are called, and then they treate on affaires concerning all the Cantons together. But if you the day named they for the new Cantons as for Bafile, Schaffoufe, Solleurre, and Fribourg, are not as yet arrived as oftentimes it comes fo to passe: then seven or eight Cantons do affemble, and discourse on matters only concerning themselues.

The Ambaffadors are feated in councell, according to the order & number of ner the Am the Cantons, fo that he of Zurich fits in baffidors do the highest and most eminent place; he of fit in counted Berne next; then he of Lucerna, & fo confequently the other, according to the order of the Cantons. Being seated, the ambaffador of Zurich faluteth them all, and hauing made some breefe preface & excufe,according to custome; he declareth which the Ambassadours had in charge on the last dayes meeting, and referred them to the next dayes deliberation, as oftentimes they are affembled to that effeet, and if any thing bath hapned fince then he propoundeth it also. Then he addeth that which his Lords have give him in charge, touching the Article whereon he is to deliberate: the other ambassadors do the like in their ranke, & declare whatfoeuer their Lords commanded them. After that every one hath made knowne that which they have in charge to fay: the Eachman me Bayliffe or Gouernor of Bada (of whatfo-milisio knows euer Canton it is) demandeth orderly of in councell each counceller, his aduice concerning the matter that hath bin in question. The he of Zwich speaketh first, and the rest after, according to their ranke. Having all fpoken, the Bayliffe counteth the voyces, according to the number of the Cantons and not of the councellers: for fometimes one Canton fends two ambaffadors, who may well affift in countell, yet they have Particular | oules have he fame order of proceeding, as them in generall.

Chap.4.

Thus you fee how they proceed in deeiding those things, which concerne the publike good: In particular causes also, they follow the same order, give their aduice, and collect the voyces. But fuch as haue any causes to pleade on these daies. demand audience first of the Ambassador for Zurich, who affigned their day, & put their names upon the Role. When they appeare before the councell, fometimes the parties themselues will pleade their owne causes: or haue Aduocates, Procters, or speakers, which they bring with them, or chuse among such as they finde in Bada. For at all times, and when foeuer these dayes are appointed there will meet there a great number of fuch me belonging to the neighbouring Townes & Burroughs, pentioners of the Switzers, Caufes are there debated, not according to the civill Law, nor by the advice of Lawyers; but with equity, and according to the lawes & customes of the people long time observed among them.

I know, that many will account this forme of pleading, to be barbarous, especially fuch as would have men follow the affaires, and I will not infrindge their authority in any manner whatfocuer. But yet I fay, that the proceeding observed by the Switzers, for ending controuerfiall cases, is to be preferred before that which is vsed among other Judges, that give se-

tence according to the Romane lawes.

And I am well affured, that mine opinion cannot be reiected, but by ill-disposed & wrangling spirits. For it cannot be denied, that many Aduocates and Atturnies,

the civill law, then eyther equity or right:

confidering, they do nothing elfe many times, but tye themselues to sillables, words, and termes of the law, which they expound according to their owne fancy, labouring to circumuent a party, and to take him by the nose, as we vie to fay. And furely, they do nothing but for the benefit of their owne purifes, troubling the felues but one voyce, as of one man onely.

order for ple-ding law-caes, not fo co uenient as

After what manner cheir

causes are de-

Romanes order of pleading, for the ending of fuites: without which (they fay) the very wifest men do wrong themselues often, in the deciding of difficult causes, and matters of importance. As for my Switzers. felfe,I thinke well of the Romanes lawes, written by men very wife and skilfull in ouermuch, to obscure and mustle vp matters; by which meanes, fuites are made immortall, to the incuitable detriment & fuites to fee ruine of both parties, being brought (by immortal them) to extreme poucrty and mifery.

Of publike Sentences & Judgements.

In which respect, they gave no very uill language, that tearmed fuch practicioners and brablers, blood fuckers of the people: for they empty their purssesivea. and sucke them to the bare bones. And if among the Inflices of Swiezerland, an committed a error happen to be committed, in the de-mong the cision of difficult causes, which commeth switzers in law causes, very sildome to passe; yet notwithstan-because these ding, it caufeth no fuch harme, as doth the fintes are length and immortalizing of fuites. So I quickly ended may well fay, that the manner of proceeding among the Switzers, doth leffen expences, ease the people, cuts vp the rootes of lingring fuites and differences because the fentence doth fooner refolue both the parties, and brings them to agreement: whereas in other places, we fee fuites encrease day by day, and from one case vndecided growes a great number of nouel variances.

CHAP. IIII.

Concerning Sentences and Judgements, in publike and peculiar differences.

Auing thus made mention

giue. If any fuite doth happen betweene particular persons in the Bayliwicks : the Concerning Bayliffs or Gouernors are Judges in those fuites of parplaces, or elfe the Canton (from whence ticular person the appellation ariseth) taketh knoledge, wicks. are much more carefull for maintaining and judgeth thereof. But the Inflices of euery Canton do iudge (each one within his jurisdiction) in the causes & differences of the Subjects. Beside this, there is iustice for publike suites, which are variances, happening betweene two or more Cantons, or betweene some particulars a. Publike varigainst a Canton: and such condition as ancesbethe Cantons hauc, the fame also their rons.

confederates have.

Dda Thus

of the councell, and daies of audience among the spitzers; we are now to speake, concerning such fentences and judgements as they vie to

ding to anci-

gans. Whe marrers cannot be lo uingly ended, what course they take then

Thus then, for the deciding of fuch differences, each of the parties doe chuse two hidges for either fide, who are ab-Toluced of the oath which they have taken arbitrator is chosen, whom they call frim to their Canton: and promife to judge according to right and equity, and labour that the fuite may bee louingly and very speedily accorded, or indicially ended.

By the ancient alliances, there were certaine places appointed, for the ending of fuch fuites. The feuen first Cantons fent their ambaffadors and arbitrators to the Abbey of the Hermitage, to end ther fuch fuites as happened among them. By an article of very ancient alliance with them of Glaris, it is expressely faid; that if they had any fuite with them of Vri, the affembly should be at Merch. If against the canton of Suits; the arbitrators shold meete at Bergeraz: and at Brunen, if against them of Vnderuald. And then the other Cantons having had knowledge of the cause, pronounced the sentence. The Bernians, and the three Cantons of Pri, Suits, and Vnderuald, affembled at a place named Daskienholtz. They of Zurich and Berne, at Zofinge. The Fribourgers & they of Solleurre, having a fuite against the eight first Cantons, or some of them, sent their Iudges to Zofinge; and if they were defendants, to Willifor. As for the causes of them of Rafile, Schaffoufe, and Appenzell, they pleaded them at Bada, together with them of these Cantons, allied with them of Rotuille and of Mulhoufe. But she differences of them of S.Gall, were determined in the Abbey of the Hermisage; and them of the Grifons, at Wallenfrad, which is a Towne at the ende of the Lake of Rine, in the Bayliwick of Sar-

When then some difference happeneth, which cannot bee kindly accorded. and that the entreaty of the Cantons ferueth to no purpole: the arbitrators and ambassadours of the Cantons that are in fuite, do meete at the place appointed, & (with them) the ambassadors of the other Cantons confederates, who come thether to attone the parties, and to make some amiable composition. The Judges and Arbitrators beeing affembled, after that the parties have pleaded their caufes: if the Judges take refolution, & giue fentence, the parties must (of necessity) be contented. But if they be of divers opinions (as many times it happeneth) and that there are as many voyces on the one fide, as on the other, then a fift Judge or obmann.or. Ein ameinen mann. He giueth no fentence at all, but onely appro- then a lift to ueth one of those, which the arbitratours bitratoris haue pronounced. Sometimes the ludges themselues do chuse the odde arbitrator: yet in fuch fort notwithstanding, that he is a man of one of the Cantons, no medler with eyther party, nor having any interest in the cause.

The alliance of the feuen first Cantons, makes mention of this election and choise: as that of Fribourg, that of Solleurre, that of Appenzell, and them of S. Galland of Mulhouse. It is added to the articles of the alliance of Schaffonfe, that to the Article if the ludges cannot accord, by choise of of Schaffate another arbitrator, taken from one of the Cantons; they shall then take one of the Lords of the councell of S.Gall. And in the alliance of Rotuille, command is given to the ludges, to chuse for an odde arbitrator, one of the Lords of the councell of S.Gall or of Mulhouse. Sometimes alfo the complainant chufeth. As if the Bermians have a fluite against the three first ediomento Cantons, or any one of them; the Cantons thal name fixteen men out of which tour. number, the Bernians are to chuse a subarbitrator. But if they bee defendants, the Cantons will then (for fub-arbitrator) chuse one of the Lords of the leffer councell of Berne. If forne difference fall betweene them of Zurich, and of Berne; the complainants chuse for an odde arbitratour, one of the defendants Lords of the councell. The same is observed in suites for them of Bafile, against the other cantons ; and fo in the Grifons causes.

Thus you fee how the Switzers gouerne themselues, in the deciding of con- Thereis at trouerfiall fuites betweene the common-wealths. I know very well, that forme may dispute subtilly, both for, and against this it may score order there observed: but I will seave that there. discourse to the Readers. For mine owne part, I admire the simplicity and integrity of our ancestors, who by such manner of proceeding, have often broght to end very great variances, and carefully conserved publike peace and concord But they did not regard their owne particular profite, neither defired any thing

Their ends & urs are quite

All the cons-

mon-wealths

othree forms

The cheefe

meerely po-

Chap.s.

Of Zurich, Basile, and Schaffouse. more, then to fee their country peaceable | times have beene subjected to them: are and flourishing. If now each man had no other meaning, but would aime at that marke: fo many fuites would not be feene. and easily might those be appealed, that are the hottest attempted.

CHAP. V.

Of those Common-wealths, which are in each of the Severall Cantons. And first, of the Common-wealths of Zu-rich, Basile, and Schaffouse.

Auing thewne already, how the whole Commonwealth of the Switzers is gouerned in common: it behoueth now to it behoueth now to the Common-wealth in each distinct

Canton. Now it feemeth to me that the common-wealths of the thirteene Cantons, may bee referred to three formes. For as there are three names of fourraign Magistrates and Cantons, so have they likewise as many formes of commonwealths; differing not onely in name, but also in the things themselues.

In some certaine Cantons, the cheese Commanders or Heads of the councell. are called Ammans. This is observed in the Cantons that haue no Citties or Townes, but Villages onely, having a popular estate, and the sourraignty appertaining to the people; by whose aduice. the very greatest affaires of importance are decided. Of this number are Vri, Suits, Vnderuald, Zug, Glaris, and Appen-

The other Cantons haue their citties and townes, which have the fourraignty : yet in fuch manner, as there are two formes of common-wealths. For the citties and townes, especially such as haue bene built by fome Princes, or fomegouerned by an Auoyer, whom they call, intowness Schulthels, (who is cheefe of the coun- cheefe man is cell) and by fome number of councellers called the Achosen by free election, from and by the cheese man of whole number of cittizens . The forme the councell. of this common-wealth is Ariffectaticall among all the other: and in this manner are gouerned the common-wealths of Berne, Lucerna, Fribourg, and Solleur-

There are other citties and townes Election of diuided by certaine companies, by each the Bords of whereof, and by voyce of fuch men as the comediane energy of them, the Lords of the comediane energy of them, the Lords of the council are elected, and the four-raigned francealled and councell are elected, and the four-raigned francealled and the council and the co Magistrate or cheese of the councell, Burgermeiwho by them is tearmed Burgernetflee, that is to fay, Mafter of the Bourgef-flee, which we in a hopter word cal Baurge, mafter. Such are the common-wealths of Zurich, Bafile, and Schaffaufe. Now we are to speake of these divers formes of commonwealths in order, beginning with the last first.

First then, all the people of these Towner divis Townes free and Imperiall, were divided ded into two into two rankes : the one of Noblemen, the other of Yeomen. The Noblemen Yeomen had a Society by themselves, apart, which the Allemaignes or Germans did call, Ein Beleichafft, and they of Zurich, Ein Constaffell .

In elder times, in the citty of Bafile, which is very spacious, and for the multitude of Noblemen, they were divided into two focieties, bandes, or companies of Noblemen. Oftentimes they Two bands of were in quarrels, and had the foueraignty: Noblemen in the Confull, and out of the other, the Tribune or Captaine of the citty, which is the estate of greatest authority, next vnto that of Consull or Bourgmaster.

Neuertheleffe, afterward the Noblemen lost this soueraignty, or else for sook their right voluntarily. For at the time of the councell of Bafile, when Lewes, then Dolphin of France, brought (very neere to Basile) an Army of Armignacks, in fauour of Pope Eugenius, and the Duke of Austria; many Gentlemen of Bafile, went and ioyned with that Army, in regard whereof, they were all banished, and their posterity deprined & excluded from and their poall publike honours.

ferity depriucd.

-,: -

The compaso called to do them bonour.

The priviledg of them of Zurich in chu fing their councell.

Afterward, when the Burgeffe (by common confent) made alliance with the ten Callitons of the Switzers, in the yeare, rspr. the most part of the Noble-men, who hated the Switzers: diflodged from the citry, and withdrew themselues to Caftles heere and there, fo that their authority diminished greatly then, and all the reft was loft in the yeare, 1 ; 29. For by the Sermons & exhortations of Oecolampadius, the doctrine and ceremonies of the Church were reformed by order fent from the countell, against which, many Noblemen opposed themselves. And alof Religion, yet rifey abandoned and left Miter which time, the two companies

Whateof we fpake, entred in againe, and got possession of folial private houses, & as ver they keepe those houses to themas yet they keepe trote houles to the houle body of the Northey. And those houses are called in their language, Zunt unit; en und zum baumen, but yet none of the is of the councell. For although the councell do meete together (almost) enery day, and the Gentlemen (having forfaken the citty) dwelt most part of the rime in their Callies: by common advice of the Burgeffes; they were excluded fro they had renounced voluntarily Newertheleffe, fome noble Families that dwell in the citry, & have had care of the common-wealth with the other Bourgeffes, are in ranke of the foure first companies or Supporters of the citty, and (in them) are chosen to be of the councell. And therefore, to do them honour, in regard of their condition; thefe Tribes or companies are called berrengunftt, that is to fay the companies of Lords.

Therefore, there are no more companies of these Noblemen in Basile, but those that are distinguished with the other Bourgeffes . But at Zurich and at Schaffoufe, the Nobleme have their companies apart by themselves. And they of Zurich haue this priviledge beside, aboue the tribes and companies of Tradelmen, to take the moity, that is, the most part of the Lords of the councell, from foorth the company of these Noblemen: so that they are as a counterpoile to the other companies. Notwithstanding, there is fome difference among there Noblemen, for the Families of race, that He very no ble and ancient they do make a band by themselues, and they are Called Die Stubler, by reason of the place where they affemble apart by themselues, by right & especiall priniledge. To the whole body of these tribes or companies, are ioyned many cittizens, which are not of any trade nor traffick : in which respect, they may have place in one company, tather then in another Porters, Labourers, Porters La Burden-bearers, and other fuch like man-ner of people, who when warre hapneth, are held and reputed to be of this body of dy politique. companies, which they call Ein Con-Caffell, and receive wages : they have a voyce in electing the Mafter of the whole body of companies, and he is of the Seigneuries councell, in regard of his place. Beside the Society and Company of Of other Noblemen, the people of those citties & Tribes and townes there, are parted into certaine Companies tribes or companies, which the Germans befide the call Zunfft. The word (it may be) taketh name or originall, of Zamenkunfft, which fignifieth to meeter and affemble, themselves in company. Some interpret them to be Tribes, others, Courts, and others, Colledges or Abbeyes: but wee will call them Tribes or Companies. The number of them is not equall in the forenamed Citties and Townes. For there are fifteene at Bafile: whereof the foure Fifteene com first are esteemed more noble then the other, and are called the companies of they are de-Lords, as already hath beene faid. The flinguished first tribe or companie, is that of Mer- from the No chants. The second of Gold-smiths. Goldfiners, Founders, and Pewterers. The third is of Merchants dealing onely in wines: with whom the Notaries, Masters of Hospitals, Spittles, and other such like communities are joyned. The fourth is of Merchants dealing in Silkes, and of Factors for all States: This company is the very greatest of them all. The other eleuen, are of all forts of trades and handy-crafts men.

Now there is a dozen or twelue tribes Twelue ujbr or companies at Zurich: heeretofore they were thirteene in number, when many Drapers & workers in wooll dwelt there: for that was one company by it felfe. But now adaies, the weaters of woollen cloth and other things, are joyned into one co-

Of Zurich, Basile, and Schaffouse. Chap.s.

Eleuen tribes or companies are at Schaf-

Chiefe trades

and artezans

are diftingui-thed by them

The great

The leffer

Concerning the election of the coun-

The great councels of Zurich, Basile, & Schaffouic,

Of the leffer

and Bourgmasters in each Citty.

pany with the Fullers and Diars. At | the Bourgmasters. Moreover, at Zurich Schaffoule there are eleven companies onely: neuertheleffe it falleth out many times, that diuces trades are joyned together in one company. They have their meetings by themselues : as at Zurich, the Millers and Bakers, the Barbers and Chirurgions, the Smiths and Mettall men. So at Bafile, the Fishermen and Marriners or Barquers, the Cordwainers and Curriers, the Taylors & Skinners. Thefe companies are divided, and they are called Bhaitue Zunfft. For when there is question of cheefe Trades, and especially workmen in them, their houses of meetings and affemblies are by themselves. But in things that concern the commonwealth, and when, and where all ought to be present, to elect Lords of the councell, or the Zunfft-Masters, who must be also in the councell; every man speaks

Out of each of these companies, some men are chosen as many of one company as of another, to be Lords of councell. In every city there are two publike councels, which have the principall authority: as namely, the great councell, when as a good number of councellers meete together, in name of all the people: as is vied in the affaires of greatest importance, and which do appertaine to the whole common-wealth. Next, the leffer councell. who meete together enery day, about the common-wealths businesse, and take knowledge of differences happening a-mong the cittizens. The great councell of Zurich, confifteth of two hundred me : That of Bafile, is of two hundred forty foure : and that of Schaffoufe, is of foure.

his minde, and gives his voyce

As concerning the leffer councell of Zurich,it is of fifty: that of Basile hath councels feue- threefcore and foure: and that of Schaffoufe, hath but twenty fixe. For out of each tribe or company, twelue are taken for the great councell: except at Zurich. where they clear eighteene of the Nobility. At Zurich also each company giueth three men for the leffer councell : at Bafile, foure; at Schaffoule, two. Next.in Of Confulles | enery of these citties, there are two Confuls or Bourgmafters, who are the cheefe and Presidents of councell. Ouer and befide thefe two at Bafile there are two Tribunes, who are cheete in councell with the Noblemen fend fixe from among them, to the leffer councell: the other companies doe fend each one but three. By the plurality of voyces, choife is made Howmany of fixe other men, out of fuch companies each company as the councell do propose, to fill vp the number.

Master of the tribe or company. The custome of these three citties, is, that the companies have two Masters: but one of them is in estate but fixe Moneths, at the end whereof, the other succeedeth him.

Neuerthelesse, it often comes to passe, that hee who was Zunfftmeister the halfe yeare before, is chosen againe. By this meanes, the leffer councell is divided in two parts, to wit, the old & new. Such as have beene in charge the first fixe Mo-neths, we tearme them of the olde coun-cell; for although they be called who the councell is helde, yet not with anding, it is not alwayes fo done, and there are many matters which passe in the new councell leffer councell of Zurich chuseth one counceller from each of the companies:

but the leffer conneel of Bafile chuseth

two. These councellers thus elected.

with the other which we have faid to bee

chosen extraordinarily at Zurich, are diuided into two bands: whereof the one

As concerning the election of councellers (for fo will wee heereafter call the of councellers Lords of the leffer councell) it is done in for the leffer manner following. Euery yeare, about councell; and mid-lune, and mid-December, all the cit- der they elect tizens of Zurich affemble themselves to- the Zunfftgether, enery man in his tribe and com-meifter. pany: and the elelect a chiefe man, whom they call, Zunffrmeifter, that is to fay, in the same manner, and of twelve which The great

The great councell of Bafile is divided is taken from each company, there are Bafile divided fixe of the new councell, and fixe of the in like maner olde. Befide the Zunfftmeifters, the is the old councel, and the other the new. Thefe two councels are changed eneric The chanfixe Moneths at Zurich; fo that at their ging of the ending, the olde councell electeth the councels. new . At Basile, and at Schaffouse, they

The election of the councell at Schaff The times of foule, is made on the morrow after Pent thefe cleftitecoste: and that of Basile, on Satterday approbation.

continue in the offate a whole yeare to-

before the foure and twentieth day of lune. At Zurich, the Zunfftmeifters are elected by the companies in their houfes of meeting : then the councell of two hundred confirmeth this election; but at Basile this confirmation belongeth to the olde councell. The voyce is given openly at Zurich, and secretly at Schaffouse. For in each tribe or company charge is given to particular persons to collect the voice.

whereupon they all come to them in order, and tell them closely in the eare, for whom they give vovce to be Zunfft= meifter. The leffer councell affemble at the oftenest, three times every weeke, and some whiles (vpon earnest occasion) four times. The old and new councellers of Zurich, are seated one by another, & som-

times one among another: but at Bafile,

the old councellers are about the young er. They have also this custome, to withdraw often into another Hall, to confult together. After resolution is taken,a counceller of the first company, reporteth the aduice to the new councell; and Burgermeilter, as much to fay, as Ma-fter of the Bourgeffes, is President of the old and new councels. The great councel electeth him by open voyce at Zurich; at Schaffoufe by fecret voyce : and at Bafile,

the olde councell first electeth the Bourg-master, and the new councell the yeare following. The Bourgmafter is in state at Zurich dixe Moneths: but at Bafile and Schaffouse, a whole yeare together, and turne by turne, the Bourgmasters and Councellers olde and new are changed.

They whom at Basile they terme Zunfft meilterg, and Dberftermeifterg at Zurich (as much to fay, as Masters of companies and communities) doe fecond the two, who with the two Bourgmafters are called the foure chiefe & principal Lords of the city. Nine other Lords of the leffer councel at Basile, are joyned to these four in cheefe, and by reason of the number,

they are called the councell of thirteene.

They heare the causes of very gretest importance, and deliberate on them first be-before they propound any thing to the leffer councell: and therefore they may be called Preconfulters, or first councel-

At Zurich there are three, and at Bafile

Bourgmasters in their authority.

The Bourgmaster, whom they call they call the reporter Den Dffner.

imali places a-

The fitting of the olde and new councel

Of the Bourgmafters or Confuls,the manner of their cledion.

Masters of companies & communities, Tribunes of the people.

The councel of thirteene

lers. Moreouer, there is a particular councell at Zurich, whom wee may name the of accounts for it manageth the officers cell at Zurich, whom wee may name the The chamber publike affaires: and is composed of eight thereof. councellers, and have the Bourgmafter of the olde councell for their Prefident. Then is there two Pursse-bearers or Trefurers, and the Superintendents for Ecclefiaftical goods do affift them, together with foure other councellers, two of the olde, and two of the new councell. They take knowledge not onely of monies employed for the common-wealth : but oftentimes also, the younger councell demandeth their aduice in cases of importance, whereon they confult a while, and then give their report to the yonger coli-

To these publike councels, there are Two Sterres alwayes two Secretaries affiling, with their committees, when necessity requireth. The first and chiefest is cald statt-Schreber, that is to fay, Secretary of the citty. At Zurich, the other is called In-Derichrober, that is to fay, fub-Secretary: but they of Basile call him Raat= Schrpber, that is, Secretary to the councell. There is a particular Secretary for the Chamber of Accounts; whom they of Zurich call Rechenschryber. The cflate of Secretary in these citties is honorable, and of great gaine. In regard wher- norable of the Gentlemen ftrine to keepe it in their owne power, as fildome is it given to any other. Thefe men are they (among all other) that know the lawes, customes. priviledges, and all the fecrets of the common-wealth.

Next to the councels publike, are Iuflices of the citty. There are two at Zurich,one for civill causes, Das Stattgricht, which was in ancient times under dealing in d power of the Nunnes, and the Abbeffe will caufe. elected the Lieutenant, or cheefe man in that kinde of iustice, whom they called Den Schultheisten, and his affesfors or affiftants: but now the election belongeth to the leffer or yonger councell. Their number is of eight, and they have their Lieutenant, Secondary, and Serieant. To What causes them appertaineth theknowledge of ci-they take knouill causes, Debtes, Hires, Lendings, ledge of. Borrowings, Sales, and as the Switzers vic to fay, they judge Wind eth bnd eigen. There is no appeale from No appeale their fentence : but if there happen any from the ludifficult

Chap.s. Of Zurich, Berne, & Schaffouse. The other Inflice, whom they call Das Zinstaricht, is a ludgement of processe and suites, which happen for rents and vearely revenues. The Secretary of the other Inflice, and two Lords of the younger councell, it feemes doe daily affift for the ending of all fuch differences. In the bigger Bafile there are two fuch kindes of Iuflices, and a third in the leffer Bafile. That Law or Inflice of greatest authority, which they tearme allo Das Statturicht, is composed of ten Judges; one part whereof is of the councell, and the other, fuch as the people do name. They take knowledge of all causes, civill and criminall: but when there is question of testaments, wils, contracts, monies borrowed, and other fuch like things: the Prouoft or Lieutenant of the citty litteth in judgement. As for cau-fes criminall the Prouost of the Empire of the councell, who do purfue criminall causes, by the sollicitation of one, who is an ordinary Atturney, named by them,

Dberftenknecht, and keepeth company with the Judges, hauing an aduocate ly, and haue eight open audiences, whereby all are permitted to be there prefent.

to heare and see whatsoeuer is done. But at Zurich and at Schaffoufe, the new coun-cell doth judge the criminal causes. Ne-uerthelesse, the Bourgmaster doth not then fit: but it is the Prouoft of the Em-pirc.whom Rychluort, or, Blutrich=

ter, who prefideth and collecteth the voices. Enery yeare the councell chuseth some one of that body, to exercise that charge. Processe and suites criminall are handled at Zurich, with the doores fast

thur: but at schaffoufe in open Court, fo

that all men may vinderstand the accufations and defences. But the councell commandethall to bee abfent, when there is of ten pounds. But the Justice of smaller

Bafile, hath a Judge apart, & taketh know-

There are two Courts, or kindes of ledge of all causes, except of criminall.

These judgements are done publikewaiting on him.

The Inflice restelt pow and autho-

Criminall

Criminali ca

The other or-

difficult cause, they send it to the Coun- | Instices at schaffouse. The one which | Invokinder they call Das Schuidgricht, is law or inface for debts: for therein onely is en- Schaffoufe. ded differences of contracts, debts, and fuch like things. And if the fumme where of question is made, doc amount about an hundred crownes, the councell theh takes knowledge of it. In this Court are twenty affeffors or affiftants, to wit. one of each Tribe: moreouer, eighe other persons chosen by the councell. The other order of Iustice is named Togt aricht,or, Duffingricht, that is to lay, vice at Schaf luttice for tines and amercements: because the Prouost of the empire, or Judge in causes criminall, presideth there, and condemnethall fuch forfeitures & fines. There are twelve affeffours out of the twelve Tribes, and who are of the preat councell. Causes criminall of leffer im- Criminall of portance, are debated and ended in this fences of flen Iustice there; as light injuries, vulgar outrages, and fuchlike. But when wordes do wound honour, and the wrong is not cafie to bee diffembled or digested; the > Beside what hath beene saide these three citties have each one their particular councell, which they tearme Ein cies haue pe-Chozaricht, or, Bearicht, where they cels befide discourse on causes of matrimony. For the other, after that the religion was changed, the councels of the three citties established one councell: wherein were a certainer number of affiftants, elected by buplike fuffrages, and taken out of the olde and new councels, and among whom were Divines adfome Dinines or Theologians as they cal mitted to be them. Neuertheleffe, at Schaffoule none of the counof the Ministers were affistants, but onely fome learned men admitted to councell. who had each one as his adjunct, some Doctour of the Law. These Judgestake knowledge of all matrimoniall causes: punish whoredomes and adulteries; and haue charge to, observe the lines & manners of every onc.

knowledge of fuch cafes appertaineth to the leffer councell.

Belide, in these common-wealths, baftards are deprined of all honours and dignity: nor is it lawfull for them to bee prohibited. feene at the councell, nor in the Courts of Inflice. True it is, they are not guilty cell, or in any. of that thaine to their birth, neither can Court of init bee denied, but that (oftentimes) ba- flice. stards have wonne more commendations

The three cit-

Of fuch as are

Law and Iujudgeth them. And there are three Lords ludgements are openly question of pronouncing sentence. The second order of Inflice at great Bafile, ders of justice iudgeth not but in cases of small importance, which hardly exceedeth the fumme For time of

For men born

OUE Of Swir-

Against strangers not na-

For natices.

Againft ad.

čiuas.

zerland.

dwelling.

Chap.5.

ed to take

For bread.

For fifb.

or butter &

Other Officers noted b

Of Schooles

The Vniner(

ty at Bafile,

ounded by

Acness Syli

us,who was

Schooles.

haree of v

gitimate brethren : as we have an example of Jephta, 2 Judge of Gods owne people. But to bridle the leud concupifcences ofmany, and to conferue the dignity of facred marriage: Baftards fland as branded with infamy, and yrkefome eye-fores to well ordered common-wealths.

for their vertues, then ever could their le-

Next, hee that hath not dwelt tenne yeares within the citty of Zurich, cannot be chosen to be one of the publike coun-

Such as are borne out of Switzerland cannot be of the leffer councell at Schaffouse : But if they be Bourgesses of twenty yeares standing, they may be brought into the great councell, & into the number of the Iudges.

I will not tell you that strangers are vnworthy of these honors: but it is requisite first of all, that hee who ought to haue charge in a common-wealth. Thould be particularly affectioned and obliged thereto, and afterward be well skilde and scene, in the lawes and customes of the country.

And me-thinks, cittizens, and fuch as (from their youth) haue beene bred in a common-wealth; should have more aduantage therein, then strangers.

Moreouer, there is nothing more pernitious to common-wealths, then enuancement of ftrangers and uses and despights, proceeding from such aduancements to high degrees : as draw on partialities and factions, the danger whereof cannot be anoyded, when naturall borne subiccts are left despised, and ancient Families contemned, and charge of publike Officers giuen to strangers, & men of no merit.

Beside bastards and strangers, adulterers murderers, and men made infamous for any crime: are(by a common law)excluded from councell in these commonwealths.

Publike estates and conditions are of diners kindes in these common-wealths, and in great number, according as the citties are peopled . we will make mention of the principals onely.

The highest degree, next after the Bourg mafters and Zunfft Mafters, are fuch as have charge of the publike monies: who are called in many places of Switzerland, Sechelmeifter, as much to fay, as Treasurers or Pursse-bearers. At

Bafile there are three, named Drperherren, that have the keeping of the citties treasures. Besides them, there are three other, named Ladenherren, who mannage the monies of the Imposts, Customes, and yearely reuennues of the common-wealth: They also pursue criminall causes, making themselves parties. by meanes of the ordinary Atturney. At Zurich there are men(almost) in the felfe- Zurich fame charge, whom they call Die Junb. gelter; who manageth the tolle-monies of Corne and Wine, which they cause to be gathered by their committees. This tolle or taxation is not but on the Wine Tolle or tax publikely fold, and on the Corne brought wine wine in from abroad: but for the wine & corne which the Bourgesses eate and drinke in their houses, they pay not any thing. Beside these two Treasurers of the common-wealth, there is a third at Zu- The Treatrich, for the reuennues of the Church, & rer of churches reuens he is called Der Bloefteren obman: he gathereth certaine reuennues of the Abbeyes; wherewith the Ministers wages are payed, the Churches maintained, and the poore cherished or releeued, and the ouerplus remaining, is referred to eafe the people in times of publike neecessities. Some yeares past the country of Zurich having beene afflicted with an extreme dearth of victuals: the receiver fold in the country corne at a meane price to them of the cit- of Zurich, ty, and to most part of the Villages round about, bought with the referred mony at the best rate, and thereby the Subiccts of the Seigneury were greatly relected.

Next to these, there are other Officers, as they that take care of publike buildings, whom the French call Voyers, the public bulk commans Sumberren, and they of Ba- ings at an analysis of the sum of t file, Lonherren, because they pay the tunter charge works & workmen that ferue in publike. These Surveyers have charge of the waies, Gates, Towers, Rampiers, Bridges, Couduits, and other publike Edifices: taking order that they shall bee maintained and kept in their best ability. Moreouer, they judge with three Lords of the They loyace councell (who are their adjuncts) (uch linkgramm and differences as happen for the confines, with the coll of the and fuch like things, & wherin the neighbours are to be guided by their direction in their building. At Bafile there are fine Seigneurs, that take knowledge of these matters.

There is another degree of them that) beene fo faithfully taught there, and all rake charge of victuals. Of this number are the vifiters for Bread, to confider if the Loafe carry his full weight, or no. Others view the Fleth in the Butchery, and aduifedly obserue, that they kill not any Beaft, the flesh whereof is bad, and dangerous to be caten; they also fet a price voon the pound, to fell it by. Then there are some that take charge of Fish, and heedfully foresee, that none be taken whe they are spawny, and have an eye beside to the goodneffe of all other Fish in the Market. Others looke to falt Fish, and to the Market of Butter and Cheefe, how it is reasonably sold. There are some other Officers, whose names are sufficient to be noted: as the Patrons of Widdowes and Orphanes, Schumuorat, and at Bafile, Muleiffenherren : The Almoners; Vifiters for weights and measures; Deputies for questioning of matters; Comptrolers of Ecclefiafticall goods; and Vifiters of Morcouer, in these citties there are Schooles very well ordered. At Bafile is an Vniuerfity greatly renowned, effablifhed by Aeness Sylvius, afterward Pope, named Pius the fecond, who gaue it all the fame priviledges, rights, and immunities, which the Vniuerfities of Boulogne, Colongne, Heidelberg, Erdford, Lipfa & Vienne haue. Aeneus Sylvius was lodged at Bafile, during the time as the councell was kept there. He found the citty fo pleafant, the ayre to fweete, with fuch commodity and abundance of all things; that heereputed the place apt, and worthy to have an Vniuerfity founded in it. In the times of our ancestors, and our owne also, this Vniuerfity hath yeelded many wife men. professors of the tongues, in Philosophy and all Sciences who are needleffe heere to be named. Neuertheleffe, confidering the greatnesse of the citty, and the fame of the Doctours there abiding, there are but few Schollers. Beat ne Rhenanus rendreth the reason, and faith ; It is occasiohed by the imalnesse of revenues belonging to this Vningriity, and to many Schooles in Germany. As thinking, that if there were fewer. Schooles and Vniuerfities, they would bee much more frequented then they are. There is not any Vninerfity at Zwirch; netwithflanding, cuen to this prefent day, the tongues have good Sciences and Dininity that it is very famous, and highly effected among all them that fludy Divinity.

Finally, these three citties whereof we Mints for the fpeake, haue power to stampe and coyne monic; and therefore there are fordging three duties. Mints, and Masters of the monies, whose charge is to take order that the money coyned with the stamp of the citty, shold beare full weight, and be of a good allay. Each of these citties hath her mony apart by her felfe. They of Bafile do covne the fame mony with them of Halfatia and of Bourgongne, and call it a Rappenmunts, Bafle. in regard of a Rauen, which ferueth for Armes to many persons of their mony. Fine & twenty Sols of this mony, makes a Florin of gold, which is thought to value threescore crutzers. At Schaffouse the The monic of mony is of the fame allay & price, as that Schaffoule. of the Empire. They of Zurich do covne Dallers, and halfe Dallers, of equall price Zurich, with them of the Empire : but they have a kinde of mony, which is their owne in particular, whereof forty Sols makes a Florin of gold. They stampe also another fort of mony, which they cal Baches, wher-

of fixteene makes a Floring. In ranke of these publike charges and The watch offices we may fet downe the Watch, & may not be fuch as take care for prouision against the other officers accidents of fire. There are two fortes of inpublike, & watch, besides the Sentinels in the clock- tending to the houses, and the Porters. First the perpetuall guardes at the citties coft, who keepe watch enery night, and diligently fearch through all parts of the citty, crying at all houres of the night. Ouer and beside thele, out of each company are taken a certaine number of Bourgeffes, who likewife watch (according to their turnes) with their Armes. This double guard is not done for any feare they have of enemies: but to avoid the inconveniences of fire, and to take order alfo, that (during the time of night) al maters may be peaceable and quier.

They that are Committees; to take care of dangers concerning fire, when a- The office of ny fuch happeneth in the citty, may com- quards for acmand the Carpenters, and other men of cidents of fire like quality, to runne for quenching the fire, taking order that all may bee done without confusion, and for the best safety of them that have the mif-fortune of the

The mony of

generall good

Treafurers the publike monies,& of Cuftomes and impofts.

Of publive flates.

Adulterers.

infamous per

What the orof fire.

The citty diflinguified tiall order.

When fire taketh a village ont of the cit-

What care the Switzers haue of the poore, haue the losse.

A collection of charitable almes for the fire. Moreouer, they carry an eye ouer \ the watch at the Gates, and on the wals; lefte any tumult should happen in the city. For it is ordained, that when the fire is in any one place, a certaine number of the Bourgesses (chosen out of each company) make their fudden appearance at the Gates or Ports, and vpon the walles in Armes. Moreover, the whole citty is distributed into certaine bandes, euery one of them having his Captaine & Enfigne to it felfe, under whom they go marching in excellent order. The Bourgmaster betakes himselse to the Town-house, with some of the principall councellers and officers of the Seigneury, to aduise on what is good for weale publike. And not onely Carpenters, Masons, and their feruants, but likewise most of the Bourgeffes meete together, all labouring industriously to quench the fire: and oftentimes the women shew themselves of no meane courage, in bringing and casting on the water . Beside, if the fire happen in some Village out of the citty, the lustiest disposed of every Tribe (whereof ele-Aion is made for the purpose) do meete, and iffue foorth together, to quench the fire. They are conducted by one of the councell Seigneurs, who is fent to helpe and adulse what is meetelf to bee done. but most especially, to comfort them that We have already told you, that the Switzers take great care for the poore. At Zurich, and in some other Townes, there is a daily distribution of almes to all the poore there, as of Bread and Pulse-pottage. There are a great number of poore Schollers in Zurich, fometimes forty, otherwhiles fourescore, that are thus relecued; some bestowing garments, and other needfull things on them alfo, viing the poore in no worfe manner, then they of the Abbeves and Couents in the Seigneury of Zurich are. Vpon the Sundayes and festimali dayes, an almes collection is made of the people; which Monethly, or at every two Moneths, by men chosen & deputed to the office is distributed equally to the poore in the citty, and fuch as line abroad in the fields. Beside, in the Citties there are great Hospitals, wherin needy cittizens, aged, impotent, ficke perfons, orphanes, and many other are releeued. The Seigneury appointeth divers honest people to have care of the poores necessities: such as are the Master of Holpitals Proces, Receivers, & their Committees and Comptrollers.

Hitherto wee haue shewne you the The civile forme and state gouernment observed in extenting the citties:but ouer and beside these, they uernments haue authority in the neighboring coun- of the ques tries, and (among the rest) the canton of limits. Zurich hath more country jurisdiction. and larger Bayliwicks, then eyther Bafile or Schaffoufe. But in all the Lands and Seigneuries belonging vnto these three cantons, there is one and the felfe-same order of gouernment. For certaine Bayliwicks are gouerned by the councell of the citty in fuch manner, as the Bayliffes dwell in the citty, and are councellers of the common-wealth, and yet go to keepe Courts in the Villages. And if there happen any criminall fuite, and whereof there is defert of punishment capitall, the councell taketh knowledge thereof. There are other Bayliwicks of farre larger extent, and thether Bayliffes are fent with ample power: fo that they judge not only in civill causes, but oftentimes in cri- authority. minall occasions, and chastife malefactors, according to the greatnesse of the delicts. These Bayliwicks have their priuiledges and ancient customes, some also haue law and inflice apart by themselues, and are administred by Judges chosen out of the same places. The Bayliffes make no change or alteration (of any thing) in these places; but they leave to the inhabitants, all their ledges, or corights fafe and found: contenting themfelues onely to prefide in inflice, and gine hypotheline fentence according to the lawes and cuftomes of each Bayliwicke. The canton of Zurich hath nine great Bayliwicks, to win the county of Kybourg, the Bailiwicks of Groningen Andelfingen Grifen ee Eglifow, the free Prouince, Regenspourg, Vadeuille, and Laufen, neere to the fall of Rhein. There are two and twenty small Bayliwicks or Castle-thips besides in some of wicks dobe which, there is as large extent of ground, long to Zurich, a other and as great number of men, as in fome Townes be of the greater Bayliwicks. Moreouer, fide. beside these Bayliwickes, two pleasant Townes, namely Winterdner and Stein, are under the protection of Zurichs canton. The Officers of iustice are in the fame Townes; but the inhabitants are ty-rich, to obey their lawes, and to go to war for that Canton; in which respect, the two Townes have their feuerall Enfignes by themselves. The Bayli-

Chap. 6.

wicks belong-

The Bayliwicks belonging to the Canton of Bafile, are the Calile of Farmferg. leated on the top of a Mountaine about Rhinfeld; Walbourg, a small towne on the Mount Jura, which they tearme Der bowentein in regard of the Rock there cut in lunder : Hombourg, Munchenstein, and Ramstein.

Schaffouse hath the most part of the country of Cletgoew, all about Bafile, and fendeth Bayliffes and Chaftellaines into the Bourroghs and Villages on it depending.

CHAP.VI.

Of the publike estate and government, of the Townes of Berne, Lucerna, Fribourg, and Solleurre: which are not divided into Tribes and Companies, as Zurich, Basile, and Schaffon fe are.

Of the fecon kinde of go-chuldtheff.

he words as Bey are writ-

TEe haue already faid, that the fement, is confidered in fuch Townes, as sennicht ment, is connected in the Tribes without tribes are not distributed into certaine Tribes or Companies, out of which are equally cholen, the Lord & Seigneurs appointed for Councell and Iustice. In these towns they that are foueraigne Magistrates, or Heads of publike councell, are called Ein Schuldtheffen. The old Alleman word is found in the Lawes of the Lambardes, where it is written, Schuldabis. It feemeth that the word came of debt, which the Switzers tearme Schuld, and of commanding : as much to fay, that the Schuldahis commands the debters to fatisfic them of whom they borrowed. And in this sence it is found written in the Lombards lawes, under the title of debts and wages, in thefe

> If a free man who is a debter hath nothing elfe wherewith to make fatisfattson, but his owne private Cattell, as Horfes and Oxen for labour or Kine to the paile: then he that challengeth or demandeth the debt, flall go to she led in obedience to the Seigneury of Zu- | Schuldahu, and intimate the cause, giuing bim to understand, that his debter bath nothing elfe to make repaiment withall, but the matters aboue rehearfed. Then the Schuldabis is to make feizure on the faid Castell, fre

The fame word is found also in the twentieth title of King Luitprands lawes. in fignificant tearmes, as followeth. If amy man have a cause or suite, and do appeare lawes mothe before his Schuldahis to demad instece : if in case that the Schuldahis do him not instice within foure houres after following (if both the varties stand bound to answer before him) himselfe shall pay to the demander fixe Sols, and to his Indge fixe Sols.

Of the government of Berne. &c.

We may perceine heereby, that the word Schuldahis Ingnified (among our Aludsethet graue Ancients) a ludge, that gaue fen- ferrenced en les of debts tence vpon differences concerning debts, onely, made leucy on the debters goods, and compelled them to pay their creditors. Neuerthelesse, there was no instice so high, but hee flood in fubication to the county. At this day, the name is in frequent vie among the Princes of Germany: so that the ludges of Townes and Villages haue no other name Among the Switzers it is more honourable, for in the forenamed townes, the Schuldubis is lord ouer all. The foueraigne Magistrates of The cheefe Townes among the Switzers, fome haue Magi trate of thought were called Confuls, in imitationing the on of the Romans: others hold opinion, Switzers, that Bourgmafters and Schuldahis ought to be called Prestors. For mine owne part, I call them Confuls, that are Prefidents in publike councel. The French call him an Auoyer, whom we scarme schuld-

Now as concerning the Towns wherof we fpeak, they are not divided by com- No Trades or panies and trades, because there are lawes these Townes which prohibite them from fo doing. But after fuch ms. although the forme of the Commonwelths of Zurich and Berne are different: yet the one flands bound to fuccour the other reciprocally, to maintaine and conferue the chate, fuch as is established in eythers common-wealth. In the meane while, the trades that are at Berne, Lucerna, Frihourg, and Sollenre, hauc houses cstablished for meeting, for knowledge of the best and cheefest workmen, but not for the election of Magistrates. They tearme those Officers by the name of Glellichafften, and not Zunfften.

In

fame effect.

Two publike connects in those Towns: the great and the leffer.

like councels as at Zurich Bafile & Schaffoule; to wit the great and the leffer. The great councell of Berne, is of two hundred men, as at Zurich, although it hath more then two hundred councellers. The leffer councell of Berne, is of fixe and twenty. At Lucerna, eighteen councellers do gouerne the estate, during the space of fixe Moneths, and eighteene other fixe Moneths, or the rest of the yeare. To elect the councell of Berne, the proceeding is in this manner.

Banderet is the Captains of a quarter in any good Towne.

The manner of electing of two hun-

The Seig-neurs or the great councel meete in the Towne-houl

of the leffer

In these Townes there are two pub-The third Peries before Easter day, the foure Banderets of the Towne, doc chuse, and take with them sixteene Bourgeffes, the worthielt and best esteemed men of all: then these twenty, with the Auger, do elect the great councell, wherfore we may well call them Electors. First of all, they confider and examine exactly, the lives and manners of all them that are to be of the councell of two hundred: and if any one of them hath foyled his dignity and reputation, with any bad or villainous ace: they depose him, and in the place, as wel of the deposed, as of the ded, they chuse another, whom they do better like and allow of. In meane while their election remaineth secret, vntill the euening of the day before Easter, & then the Officers goe, and fignifie to all them that are elected for the great and leffer councels: that they are to meete on the morrow morning in the Towne-house.

The first Feries after Easter, the Seigneurs of the councell do affemble in their houses of meeting, and afterward they conduct them to the Towne-house, that are newly fet downe, to be in number of the two hundred, and then all the Magifrates are elected. The election ended, the Bourgeffes go to feast in their houses, and after dinner, walke foorth into the fields: exercifing themselves there in leaping,running,throwing the Barre, Stone, and other pastimes. But the Auoyer goes againe to the towne-house, accompanied with the twenty Electors; and there they elect the councellers, that are to be of the leffer councell. On the morrow, they are named to the councell of two hundred, and after that their election is approued, they goe and fitte downe in their places. Now in regard that the councell of Lucerna doth command no longer time the fixe Moneths onely: the election of the Seigneurs both for the leffe and greater councell, is made twice yearely, if there of Lucema be any vacant places, and that is done a- chosen twice bout mid-lune, and mid-December. The yearely. new councellers are taken from the leffer councell, that gouerned during the fixe precedent Moneths. The Augyers or Confuls, who are aboue the other Seigneurs, are elected by othe Augmon voyces. The authority of the Auorer at Lucerna, lasteth but a yeare, and a years at Berne: but yet in such manner, that the voyces are yearely taken for him, and hee againe elected. Next to the Augers of Berne, the principall men in the commonwealth, are the foure Banderets, chosen out of foure companies of trades men onely, or men of handy-crafts, to wit, of foure Carpenters, Curryers, or Leather-dref- panies. fers (who are distributed in three parts) Bakers, and Butchers.

The Towne of Berne is divided into foure parts, which are committed (each The during one of them) to these foure Banderets: of Bents who view and ouer-see the Armes of all derets. the Bourgesses, and prouide for the affairs of warre. They continue in their charge the space of soure yeares; but every yeare on the same day as the Auger is elected, they refigne their estates, and deliner into the hands of the cheefe Viher of the Seigneury, their Enfignes, and all the other markes of their dignity, which are laide on a Table before the Auoyer and Thetined the councell: and then the great and lefter councell gives their voyces, concerling in the lefter councell gives their voyces, concerling in the lefter councell gives their voyces. ning the Banderets. If one of them have continued in his charge fully foure years, or is preuented by death, another is planted in his place : but yet it is thus conditionallydone, that if the dead did not finish his foure yeares, his successour must accomplish them in the nature of a substitute, and afterward, execute the fame charge foure other yeares.

In all the Townes of the Switzers, The dignit of Pursies rers is great. Some whiles, the time of reisor lar their charge is not limitted at all; but fures. they continue in that estate, so long as pleafeth the councell, and theinfelues al-There are two of them at Berne, the one receiveth the revenues of the Towne, and of the Allemaigne country:

The council

The election of connectlers cause hee receiveth the revenues which the Seigneury deriueth from the countrics of Vant, and of Sauoye. Those men which we have fo lately named Auovers. Banderets, and Treasurers, with one counceller of the two hundred, are called at Berne, Die beimlichen Rath, which is as much to fay, as the feeret or priny councell. For to them (before all other) matters of most secrecy, of consequence, and which concerne the whole Common-wealth, are reported and tru-

After that the abouenamed: Magistrates have beene elected, and confirmed by the leffe and greater councels: aduice is vied, concerning other publike Offices, which is done in some of those Townes the very fame day, and on the morrow in others.

As for those estates that have not any dignity, as Serieants, Executers of inflice, Meffengers, Watches, and other fuch like charges; ordinarily, the lefter councell bestowes them of fuch, as they know meeteft for them.

The Bernians hold this properly to themselues, as concerning election of their councellers, that they will not receine any person into the lesser connecll, if he benot borne within the Towne. In elder times, if the fonnes of councellers were borne out of the Towns, they could not attaine to the fathers dignity. Now adayes, when fome councellers are abfent, about occasions of the weale-publike and for the governing of force Bayliwicker if they happen to have any children, they are reputed as borne in the Towner For the great councell, they may bee elected that are borne out of Berne: provided that they be Bourgeffes. haue houses in the Towne, and are iffined of the Switzers country, or of the confederates of the Cantons. For no man is received into the councell of the two hundred, if he be borlie out of springerland: and the fame is in practife at Zurich, as we have already declared. In like | ludges; two of the leffer connecll, who is managemanner; baffards, and people of infamous note, are quite excluded from con-

There are three Courts or Benches of inflice at Berne; all the Indges where of, are cleeted by the Banderets & Trea-

the other is for the Romane country, be- 1 furers, and are confirmed by the leffer councell.

Of the government of Bernet &c.

The first Court of justice is called. Das affergricht. The Auger prefideth there, but the cheefe Viher, whom they call Der grofs meibell, doth (al- conto) inmost) daily keepe the place, and hath 12, dice, how and Affiliants, to wit, the last man elected of a etherein the foure Banderets, one of the Seigneurs determined. of the leffer conneell, and tenne of the great with one Secretary, and two Othcers. They take knowledge of debts iniuries &outrages of flender consequence, as if one man give another a box on the care, or gines fome words to his diffrace. A man may appeale from their fentence. to the leffer councell, and from them, to the fixty men, which is a councell composed of Seigneurs of the lesser councel, and of fixe and thirty councellers of the great councell. From the fixty, appeale anay bee made voto the generall. The ludges doe affemble enery day to conclude canfes, onely Tuefday excepted. which is the Market day,

The fecond Court of inflice, indgeth the appellations of the country of Sauoy: Courts caland therefore it is commonly called, the leathe Course Court for itrange Appellations; Das ocarrellations, or, or apbelteh Appellats gricht. The Purffe- peacs. bearer or Treasurer of the country, fitteth iniudgement there, & hath ten affiltants, to wit two Seigneurs of the leffer councoll, and eight of the great, with one Secretarie and an Officer. They end all the appeales for the country of Sauere, and gitte audience to parties at all times, and as ofte as they defire it. Notwithflanding, their ordinary vie is to meete after the meeting of day of S. Martin in Nouember, vntill the ine Court. Moneth of December. All they of Sanoye come thether to the appellations, they onely of Lanfanna excepted : but at enery two yeares, the Treasurer commeth to Laufanna with fome affiliants, and there decideth the canfes of appeale.

The third Court or wriftliction, takes knowledge of marrimoniall causes. It he therhird the Conflitory, where there are eight Contahe profide or gine fentence there (turne by maners. nithe) from two Moneths to two Medneths:two Ministers of the Church:fourt of the great conneell, and they have a Secretary or Clearke, and an Officer. They affemble three times in the weeke.

namely.

Meriluan

Lex Talionis

Cornett of pets at Lu.

Comicines

The limited on of their authority.

Twe Court of justice at Lucerna, ar what caules are cettlured in them

Criminall caules concerning life and death.

How they

In the Bayli

Of the Bayli-

namely, on Monday, Wenfday, and Fri-) or Germane tongue; in other the Romane day, then they confider not onely on macipline of the Church. Moreouer, these men and the Judges of the first court of iustice. doe hold in estate but halfe the yeare, and are changed about Easter, and likewise about the end of September.

Of the gouernement of Berne,&c.

iustice, the one they call Das mouchen= aricht because the ludges do meete eucof debts and contracts. The other is calfor nine Judges take knowledge of iniuries and outrages, and accordingly inflict punishment. There is not any Consistory at Lucerna, neither at Fribourg, or Solleurre: because they are Catholiques, and fubicated to the jurisdiction of Bishops, by whose Officials the causes concerning Vudersee. matrimony are debated.

pointed, neyther at Berne, nor Lucerna. But when question is made concerning any ones life, the great and imaller councels take knowledge thereof, and judge it. The Augrers fit in cheefest authority, and resolued on at Berne, the Auguer goes and fits in a feate of inflice, appointed in some eminent part of the Towne, enuironed with Officers of the Seigneury. Then the Clearke or Secretary readeth out aloud the confession of the offender, & the fentence given against him. Afterward the Auoyer enjoyneth the hangman to execute the fentence, and commandeth the him. At Lucerna, the councell do judge in criminal causes of all the Bayliwicks, and all the Malefactors are punished within the Towne. But in all the Bayliwicks of Berne, there is justice apart by it felfe, which they call Landtoricht, and thether the ludges of all the bayliwicks are called, and give their advice in prefence of the Bayliwicks, who prefideth: and vet in fuch fort, as the councell of Berne may approue, or change the sentence, if they thinke good.

The Bernians have many Bayliwicks, &c are the most powerfull Seigneurs of the Leagues. In some they speak the Alleman or Saugran. Among the Alleman Baylitrimonial causes, but also censure such as wicks, there are source depending on the kiue scandales, and put in practife the dif- Towne, and are euen as Subbutbs thereto: whereof the foure Banderets are Bayliffes, and if they were to go to war, those Bayliwicks march under the Enfignes of the foure Banderets. Moreouer, there are feuen and twenty other beside, to wit, the The Amman They of Lucerna haue two courts of vale of Hafell, which hath an Amman, out of the Vale of the body of the inhabitants, but hee is of Hafell, elected by the councell of Berne, & there ry weeke, and decide al fuites proceeding rendreth an account of his charge. Vndersée is a Towne so named, because it is led Dag nurr gricht, the inflice of nine: | at the end of a Lake : thether is an Auoyer The Auoyer fent, but he is of the Towne of Berne. The of Voderice vale of Simma, both high and low, do call their Bayliffes Schachtlandt, that is to fav. Castilians. Frutingen, Sane and Aelen, do name their Bayliffe, Gouernour. Laupen and Thun are in the same condition as

Next to thefe, are Signow, Trachfel- The Baylife As for criminal matters capitall, there wald, and the Rivers of the vale of Emme. of the Vakel are not any particular Indges thereto ap- Brandis, that receives her Bayliffe from the Lord of the place; but he is numbred among the Bourgesses of Berne. Sumifwald, where the Masters of the " Teuto- "The com nicke Order established a Bayliffe. Burg-ny of the dorff and Pyrnestic are governed all alike, chann. censure on the matters. After sentence is as Vnder lee, Landhoust, Arberg, Nidow, Erlach Bippin Wange , Arwange Arbourg, Biberstain Schenkenberg, and Lentzbourg. Moreover, there are three free Townes in the country of Ergow, vnder the Seigneury of Berne, to wit, Zofinge, Aron, and Brug. There are eight Roman Bayliwicks, Eight Roman as namely, Auanches, Modon, Tuerdun, Bayliwicks. Laufanna, Morges, Nyon, Orbe, Aille and Veway. Beside, they of Berne and of Fribourg condemned person to bee delivered to have source Bayliwickes in common; as Mort, Schuartzenbourg, Granfon, & Cha-wicks in conlange, whether they fend a Bayliffe fuccef- mon. finely at enery 5. yeares end : fo that if the Bayliffe be of Berne, his causes of appeale goe to Fribourg, where the reasons of the Bayliffe are examined. There are Pronoits beside, for the gouernment of Abbeves. The Berninans had nine in the Allemane country, fixe wherof held jurifdiaion, and three in the Komane country.

They of Lucerna have onely two out of the Towne, as at Wiken, and at Sem- wickenhall pach: but hee of Sempach hath no other long to Laauthority in the place, but only the fuper- cerns. intendency of the Lake, and of the lift.

gouerned by fome of the Seigneurs of the councell. Those Bayliwickes are Willifon, the Vale of Entlibuch, Rotenbourg, Hab/bourg, Berone, and the neighbouring countrie, which they call, Chelampt: Merifuande, that hath this priviledge, to chuse for Bayliffe, one of the Seigneurs of councell in Lucerna, eucn whom they lift, except the Auover: Weggiff, Ebicon, Horbe and Krientz. Moreouer, the two Townes of Surfer and Sempach, are in the protection of the Lucernians : Neuertheleffe, they have their councell apart by themselves, who judge in causes both civill and criminall. But the Auoyer of Surfey, giueth his oath to them of Lucerna. He of Sempach is ele-Red by the councell at Lucerna: but he is in number among the cittizens of Sempach.

The law of likeneffe or equality, which the Latines tearmed Lex Talionis, is as ver vsed (in some fort) at Lucerna. For if any man kil a citizen of the place, although he did it vpon just occasion, having beene prouoked thereto by the other, and in defence of his owne body: yet if hee be taken they finite off his head or if he five. he is banished for euer. But if he make fatisfaction to the children or kindred of the dead, and cause them to give over all pursuite: heemay obtaine leave of the councell to come againe into the towne.

Among all the Switzers, there is not any but them of Lucerna, that make vie of Broffe vied i Braffe Corners, inflead of Trumpets. The flead of trum crooked Corners, which they cal Darfehboener, gives a frightfull found. The Romanes alto made vie of Cornets in warre: and thereupon, they that founded or winded those Corners, were called Corner cines. The men of Lucerna fay, that Charlemaigne gaue those Cornets to the: because they carried themselves valiantly in a warre which he had against the Sarraxins, and that Rowland, a Lord very highly beloued of Charlemaiene in those times, ferned himfelfe with those kindes of Corners long before.

Thefe forenamed Townes do covne monies, but Berne, Fribourg, and Solleurre, haue one particular kind of coyne: wherof two and forty Sols, and two thirds of a Sol,makes a Florin of Rheine. Moreouer, they flampe another more great fort | they remaine in authority, three yeares:

As for their other Bayliwicks, they are of money, which the Switzers call Ein Worth circle Dickenpfeming, and the French a Te- worth eighfton. Incle Testones are minted at Solleurre fterling. for the most part; and ver notwithstan. ding are counted of leffe value, by a tenth part, then them of France. They of Berne coyned first certaine money, which the Switzers termed Baches: in regard of the figure of a Beare, which was stamped on Mony with a the one fide for they called a Beare 115ac - Beare framren and Bactsen. Afterward the other pedonic Citties and Townes of Switzerland and of Suaba, coyned the fame money: fixteene peeces whereof, valued a Florin of gold. The mony of Lucerns commeth The valuatinot necre to the value and price of that of onothe Bafile, which is more hard and flrong : for the Sol of Lucerns valueth but the moity of that of Balile, and tifty Sols of Lucerna, will make one Florin.

Now we come to speake of Fribourg, Theestate & which is divided into foure parts, like vn- condition of to Berne: the first is called the Borrough, the second, the Island, or the Medow; the third, the new Towne; and the fourth, the parts. Hospitall. The councellers of the common-wealth are choicn out of these quarters. As in the other Townes lo in this there are two publike councels; to wit, The two couthe great councell, confitting of 2. hundred, and the leffer of foure and twenty. The election is made on the Sunday before S. John Baptiff day. The leffer councell manageth the affaires of the Towne. Theofice of deciding the causes of appeales : except cell and of of the Bayliwicks of Saunte, conquered in the greater. warre. As for the matters which concerne the whole State, and are of maine importance, the councell of two hundred takes knowledge of them. The Augrer, who prefideth both in the lefter & great counties, is elected on S. tolms day by all the ot change. people, and continueth in his charge the foace of two yeares.

Next vnto the Augrer, are the foure Banderets, who are Captaines of fenerall The toure quarters in the citty of towne, & althogh next to the they are not of the ordinary number of Auster. Seigneurs of the leffer councell; yet notwithflanding, they affift there in name of all the people, and deliner their advice, except in appellations. If fomething be propounded which teemeth to belone to the conneell of two hundred they may ther make their report of it. Furthermore

Of the government of Berne, &c. 3. Booke

and are chosen by the great & lesse councels, as many other Officers are. Then followeth the office of the Treasurer, who manageth the monies, and all the teuennues of the Towne: he hath (as his coadjuter) the Secretary or Clearke of the Towns, or his Committees, who regifter downe all those summes, which the Treasurer receineth, or imployeth. His charge also is, to have an eye on all the publike buildings. Twice cuery yeare he renders an account to the leffer councell. and remaineth in his charge, the space of three yeares. In Fribourg there are foure principall both in Berne and Fribourg, where it is named, Brolstveibels. He is very often neere to the Anoyer, and when the Seigneurs are fet in councel, he is at the door, counteth voyces, calleth the parties, and takes care of prisoners. His charge conti-

Fribourg, they are established in manner following, First, the Court of Iustice belonging to the Towne, called, Dag

Stattoricht, is a particular affembly of certaine ludges, to know and decide differences among the Bourgesses. And if there be any criminal processe or suite;

their charge is to interrogate the prison-

ners to prefent & deliuer the case in queftion, and then to relate all to the leffer councell. The other affembly of Iudges, is tearmed Bas Landtoricht, indging the causes of dwellers in the country. In each of these jurisdictions, there are two Seigneurs of the leffer councell,

and two of the great, and they meet three times enery week. Appeale may be made from their fentence, to the leffer councel.

Moreouer, there are twelve Iudges, chofen out of the great and leffer councels,

for the appellations of the Bayliwickes,

conquered in the last warre against the Duke of Sauoye. They meete together

once in enery Moneth, and there is no

Bayliwicks as in the other Townes: the

At Fribourg there are two kindes of appealing from their fentence.

As concerning Law and Inflice at nucth three yeares.

Foure princi-Secretaries: the first is called Secretary pall Secretaries in Frebourg. country; and the fourth, Secretary of law

The Saultier or chiete Vfl

The Courts of law and iu flice at Fribourg.

Thefirst Court or afembly.

The other Court of iu fuce.

Twelge lud gestor the conquered Bayliwicks, one of Bayliwicks neighbouring to the Towne, which are gouerned by certaine Seigneurs of the councell, who dwell in helonging w the Towne, and come dayly to councell, Fribourg and of fuch Bayliwicks there are fine. The other is, when the Bayliffes are fent to dwell on diffinct places with ample authority; and they of Fribourg have fourteene fuch Bayliwicks, and foure in common with the Bernians. The Bayliffes are elected by the great and leffer councels, of Berne, the morrow after S. John Baptists day, and hold in office the space of five yeares:but euery yeare they render an account of their charge, before the leffer councell. They enftruct also, and deale in criminal Dealing in fuites: but them they fend to the leffer criminallo of the Towne, the second, Secretary of councell with their fentence, which the casions, the councell; the third, Secretary of the councell hath power to approue, change, or justice. In like manner, the estate of or moderate. Saultier, or cheefe Viher, is honoureble

That which at Fribourg is called Tto= A flay or for fingen, and in the vulgar, Leiftungen, bearing of is carefully maintained at Fribourg. By debrathe cotta-these words is vnderstood a remise or tariance for certaine time, and the charges to be on his owne head; when the debter doth not pay his debt, at or on the day of affignement, as in this manner. When the debter maketh not fatisfaction, on the day appointed for repayment, the creditor fendeth one, two, three, or more feruants (on horfe-backe) to an Inne or Hostery, whose expences there the debter is constrained to pay (tarry they there neuer fo long) vntill hee hath made fatisfa- Alawmide Ation to the creditor. Some fay, that the of Zeringen Duke of Zeringen established this Law. Such as infringe or breake it, are punished by imprisonment, banishment, or by the purffe. And there is a certaine Judge, who they call Bourgmaster, that holdetha ftrich hand in this cafe. Morconer, if action or fuite is moued, and a man demand the Traftung three times, if it is not grated to the demander, it is present banishment. Such as breake the peace, wherein they are enjoyeed to line one with a- Banifform nother, are banished likewise: and they of peace. that (without inft caute) will meddle, or take part on eyther fide, when a cause is in plcading.

Finally, the Fribungers make feafting yearely, with folemne proceffion of all effortiders through the Towne, on the fectoral obtained. day of March, and on the eight and twentieth day of Inne, which are dayes of bat-

Two kinder

The author

diffinguisheth

their qualities

Amman ie beld as a

Anmans.

Major or

The Cantons huided into certaine por-

Chap. 7.8. Of those cantons that dvvell in villages. 319 tailes giuen, and victories wonne by the this respect, because they are all partakers Switzers, against the Duke of Bourgonene, at Granfon and at Moral.

CHAP. VII.

Of the Commonwealth of those Cantons that have neither Citties nor Towns but dwell onely in Villages.

Itherto we have discoursed on two formes of Common-wealths, concerued in the Cantons of Switzerland. that have Citties and Townes. There remaineth now a third, which is of those Cantons that have no Townes, but make their abode in Villages, and for that cause are called Die Laender. There are fixe of them, to wit, Vri, Suits, Vnderuald, Zug, Glaru, and Appenzell. Zug indeede is a towne, & hath her Officers in the towne, but the fourraignty of the Canton appertaineth to them that dwell in the lands of the Canton, with them of the towne, and are Lords as well the one as other. In all these Cantons, the cheese of the publike councell, is tearmed Amman, which fignifieth a man in office and authority. and that name is attributed to all publike Bourgomafter Officers. So that Abbots, and other Ecclesiasticall persons, do call their Indges, Receivers, and other fuch like Officers.

> As the Townes are divided or parted by Companies and Colledges of Artezans, or Tradefinen; fo the Cantons are distributed into certaine parts and porti-

CHAP.VIII.

Of all the fixe Cantons forenamed, which in this enfuing Chapter we will handle together, according to their fenerall rights & inrifdictions.

"HE whole country of Fri is divided into ten parts, which by them are called Bnotaminen, as if a man would fay, Participations. It may be in

in pasturages, goods, honours, and publike charges, and that from those ten parts onely, they are fummoned and called to be present at those assemblies which are yearely made.

The Country of Suits is divided into The division fixe parts, which they call quarters. Because the country (heeretofore) was distributed into foure portions : but the people coming to encrease greatly, they made a new partage into fixe portions, which nevertheleffe do reteine the anci-

As for the Country of Vndernald, Undernald dithere is a Forest that divideth it in the unded in the middeft : and therfore the division is thus midft. made to them that dwell about and beneathe the Forest. The whole Country taketh name of that part which is beneath the Forest: for Indernalden is as much Ofthe name. to fay, as beneathe or under the wood. In eldertimes, Stants, a principall Village cipall village. beneathe the Forest, and neere to the Lake, was the prime and cheefe place of the country, and the people were called, inhabitants of the Valley of Stants. But now adayes, because the word Vnderuald is taken for the whole country, the Switzers have added these words, about and beneathe the wood, Underualden ob und nidt dem kernwald.

Now as concerning them of Zug, we The partition haue faid already, that they are diuided in of Zug, the two parts; the one is the Towne it felfe, village. the other the Villages round about, comprehended under three affemblies, to wit, the Mountaine, the Vale Egeria, and Bara, a Parish very neere to the Towne.

Glaris is divided into fifteene parts. which they tearme & agwan, The word ignifies the work of a day, and as much of Glaris. diffance or spaciousuelle of ground, as a man can plow in a day. It may be, that these parts were called Journals, or daylabours : because enery one prepareth & ordereth the way in his quarter, and each one knoweth where he is to labour.

The country of Appensell is parted in- Theorders or to twelue orders or portions, which they call Raden, whereof those fixe conjoyned to the Village of Appensell, they name them the orders within, and anciently were subjects to the Abbot of S. Gall. The other fixe are called the orders without: to wit; out of the Abbots

320 Of those cantons that dvvell in villages. 3. Booke

Seigneury; heeretofore partly free, and partly in the jurisdiction of Gentlemen. Que of these parts (by equall number) are Election of the councell.

chosen certaine men, for the councell of the Canton: in many of them there are threefcore councellers, befide fuch as (hauing beene in office) continue perpetuall councellers. At Zug there are five and forty councellers, nine of each affembly, for the Towne is counted for two.

The councell generall of Appenzell, confisteth of an hundred forty foure, to wit twelve of each order. And if matters of importance are to be treated on, and it appeareth needfull to affemble the councell of all the people: then they will double or treble the councell in this manner. Each of the councellers takes a man or two with him, if they be to hold a concell of three times as many persons, as ordinarily they vie to do: and one of the councellers, on Sunday, in the Church after Scruice is done, hath a custome to fignific, that on fuch a day as he nameth, all the councellers are to meete in the Towne-house of the Canton, and each man is to bring with him fuch a one, as he holderh to bee an honest and wife man.

who shall also bee there bound to obedience, under the oath whereby all are obliged to the common-wealth. Beside, no man is elected to be a counceller neither can he affift in the generall councell, if he be not borne in the country, Ein Land= man : And it is much more eafie to obtaine the degree of Bourgeshippe, in the Townes of the Switzers, then in thefe Villages. Which proceedeth not of any custome of their predecessors : being neuer willing to mingle new commers among olde inhabitants of the country,

both to preuent charges, and to preferue

Publication of a councell m be bolden on a day appointed.

The generall

Appenzell.

None Eut natives can be counceler inhumanity, for there are great flore of strangers among them, towards whom The Swirzers they thew themselves very kinde and hukinde to firámane. But rather by a certaine order of gere liuing aaduifed judgement, and according to the mong them.

The councel ted places of the common-wealth (the more cafily) in one and the fame efface and condition. The foueraignty in these fixe Cangenerall of all tons, belongeth to the affembly of all the the people, & people. All they of the country, from the age of fourteene, or fixteene, or vpwards, do meete eyther at the principall Village of the Canton, or elfe at some other place in the midft of the country. As they of

Vri meete at Betzelinge, distant halfe a dayes iourney from Alterff, the cheefest Village of that Canton. The people of Glaris meete at Suanda. The ordinary and annuall affemblies of these Cantons, is made every yeare about the beginning these these canoning these canonin of May. They of Suits, of Vnderuald vnder the wood, of Glaris and of Appenzell, do meete the last Sunday of Aprill. They of Pri and of Zug, the first Sunday of May. In elder times, they of Zug held their generall councel the 24.day of Inne, being S. John Baptists day. They of Vnderof May. In these assemblies, first of all he is elected whom they call the Amman, in which office hee continueth the space of two yeares. Heeretofore there was no terme of time assigned, but (oftentimes) The Amoun the same Amman gouerned for many free choice yeares together. He is permitted to be inthe affenchosen among all the people, as a man that (for his vertue and wifedome) shall be thought most worthy of that dignity

uald about the wood, meete the first day and charge, without regard at all, in what place or Village of the Canton hee dwelleth. Notwithstanding, in certaine Cantons, as at Appenzell, while the Amman is in his office of authority, hee goeth to remaine in the principall Village, where the publike councell keepeth most. At Zug there are three affembles of them without the Towne. Next, the Of the aftern-Towns hath the power of two affemblies at Zugdoh and the annuang are chosen by order of without and each affembly. They that are elected of within the affemblies without, doe dwell in the Towne, during the two yeares that they are animang. In the fame affembly wher the anuman is elected, his Lieutenant al- The election fo is chofen, whom they tearme Statt= of the Lieutehalter: and fo are the Treasurers or nant. Purffe-bearers, called by them Sekelmeifters. Next, the Secretaries and Bayliffes which gouerne the Bayliwickes of Secretario & the Canton: or those which the Canton Bayliffer holds apart with other Cantons. Moreouer, Edicts are there read & confirmed, or abrogated yearely, by the voyces of all at cardes, dice, dancing, exceffine drinking fore-stalling Markets of victuals, and fuch like things. When the councell is thus held yeare by yeare, councellers are elected and con-

the people: fo likewife foorts, and playing

Chap.8. Of those Cantons that dwell in Villages.321

the election

nextraorfeven at

lwo Courte f law & iucompanies among whom they dwell. Finally, if at some other times of the yeare, there happen affaires that concerne the estate of the common-wealth, an extraordinary councell is held. As if need require, to fend Ambassadors to the dayes at Bada, or to some other Kings and Princes; or if there be question of making alliances, be they eyther for peace or warre, times they had at Stants. Beside the lesser councell and the generall, composed of all the people; some of the cantons have a councell more frict and private, and courfes of justice for difcision of suites. In the Canton of Suits, which is divided in fixe parts, the principall counceller of each part is taken: and thefe fixe, with the Amman, make the councell of feuen, called fecret. Thefe feuen do manage and order all the reuennues of the country, and furnish all that is laid out for publike expences. Moreouer, there are two Courts of justice, the one being called the order of nine, in regard of the number of Judges, and there the Amman fits as Prefident. In this Court are decided the causes of greatest importance : as of inheritances, outrages, and terrible injuries, hard to be endured. The Court of feuen, (fo is the other order of inflice called) where the Lieutenant to the Amman fits as Prefident : and those seuen are Judges in causes concerning contracts, debts, and fuch like. They of Vri haue (almost) the same gouernment : for there the Court of feuen, with the Lieutenant to the Amman, doccenfure and judge of debts, which exceede not the fum of threescore pounds. There The Court of is another indiciall Court of fifteene, where the Amman fits as Prefident, and

> At Vnderwald also there are 2. Courts of inflice, the one at Stants under the wood, and the other at Sarna about the wood, and each of them hath an Amman. It is faide, that the country was parted in the yeare one thousand, one hundred and fifty; when some debate fell among them for paying of a certaine tribute. And whereas before that time, they had but med cheefest councellers : their charge is one councell, and one Standard, bearing perpetuall, and they are called in this can-concludeth causes civill of greatest confirmed: but yet this is not done by euery affembly, but each of them ordered by the subjects of the Canton, and by the the wood, retained still their olde Stan- the division. dard, white and redde, because they were the greater part of the Canton. Then they under or beneathe the wood, receiued from Popes another Enfigne, which The Popes had two keyes in it: for in regard that nother Encipall Village of the Ganton, they therefore kept fill the Enfigne, which in those

> The Towne of Zug, beside the coun-The observa cell generall of the whole country, hath a councell apart, order of justice, Magistrates, a Lieutenant to the Amman, Treafurer. Vover, &c. who judge the causes of the Bourgesses, and manage all the pub-

At Glaris there are two Courts of iuflice, one of nine, the other of flue Ludges, which the councell generall of the Can-Glarit, and ton do elect enery yeare. They decide their feuerall law-fuites in the Moneths of May, and of December onely. The nine take knowledge of differences concerning inheri-tances, and dangerous injuries. The fine do censure linies of debts and payments, after that the nine (who keepe Court the space of fixe dayes) have ended. They of Appensell haue two courts of inflice also, the first is kept in a publike of inflice at place of the ftreete; in regard whereof, Appenzell.

they call it Das caffen aricht. Therein in fines, and chattife fuch as wrong one a-knowledge of differences, which are ended, by giving oath to one of the parties.

Moreouer, from each order of the can-

are foure and twenty ludges, two of each order of the canton, and their President The feet is the Viher of the canton, Der Land Court. twetbell, and they meete together weekly enery Thursday: they condemne men nother. The other court is called Dag The fe cond aefchwozen-aricht inflice of oath : because twelve ludges sitte there, and take ton, a counceller is chosen, & many from the orders that are greater. Thefe men Another or-make observation of such as breake pub. der of counlike ordinances, and deliberate on matiters which are to bee propounded to the councell generall. In which respect, they are as Guardians of the lawes, and tear-322 Of those Cantons that dwell in Villages. 3 Books. Chap. 8. Of those cantons that dwell in villages.

Of the catho ton Landthelick.

Suits, Vri, Vnderuald, Zug, Glaris, and Appenzel, are Catholicke, and under the Diocesse of Constance. And if there hap pen any difference concerning mariages, they goe to the Officialtie of the fayde place, but they of the other opinion goc As for adulteries, they are chaftifed in Punishment for adulter:

each Canton : fome, by confifcation of goods; others (sometime by the fine of ten Dallers. I have heard likewife, that whole Canton, doeth decide fome diffe-minall causes,

rences concerning marriages.
. Inflice in causes criminall, is adminifired (almost in all the Cantons) by the publike councell, and oftentimes doubled or multiplied by the ordinary councellers, the amman fitting Prefident, or his Lieutenant. At Zug, in criminal matvers, other assistants are joyned with the councell or Iudges, chosen out of each di-uision or assembly of the Canton. Suites of Law are discust in an open publique place, where all may heare that which is faid, and know the merite of the fentence given by the ludges.

The order & disposition of the Bayly-Cantons

Bellizor.a hath 3.Bayly wicks helong. ing to it.

Now to speake of the Baylywickes or Governments appertaining vnto thefe Cantons, they are carried and disposed in manner following. They of Pri fend a Bayliffe into the valley of I ininer beyond the Mountaines : who hath one of the fame valley for his Lieutenant and Affistants also, with whom he judgeth causes both civill and criminall, and continueth in his charge the space of three yeeres. Beyond the same Mountaines, they send Bayliffes also to Bellizona, and to two other places. They of Rellizona have three Bayliwickes, to wit, Bellizona, the Vale Brune, and Riviera, where the three Cantons do command in fuch manner, that each of them hath alwaies a Bayliwicke. Moreover, the inhabitants of Mount S. Godardo, are subjectes to the Canton of Hri; neuertheleffe, they have their Coungell and their Amman, who are confirmed by shem of Vri, & when there are criminal fuites, two, of the councell of vri do moet there. They have their Standard likewifer but when they of Wri. do difplay that belonging to the Canton, the other hold up They bought this Countie in the yeare foure Bayliwickes, to wit, the Marche, the loure light.

Hermitage, Cufnach, and certaine small toler beam toler beam. Villages or great Farmes, neer to the lake ging to San of Zurich: but the two former have obtained municipall right, and doe clect a councell and triall of fuites in their owne bodye. Notwithstanding, enery yeare, when a councell generall is held at Suits, ordinarily they fend their Ambaffadors thether, and require, that they may have leave to elect their Magistrates; which is granted them, as in veric great fauour, (divers times) the councell general of the with this exception, that they are to bee modest and obedient, for otherwise it remaineth in the peoples power of Suits, to fend a Gouernour thether, whenfocuer they thinke meet.

> Cufnach hath the fame condition, but What winis because, within some few yeares certaine ledges being flraungers (customers for carriage of ged to Cul-falt and other thinges that way) made through ther their complaint, that they of Cufnach owne night did them wrong, and vied them harfblie vpon no occasion: the men of Suits knowing the accufation to bee true, fent a Bayliffe thether againe, and appointed new ordinations for Cusach. Besides, What Baile they have two Bayliwickes iri common wickes they with them of Clark; to wit, Vznac, which is a Towne, and Oastall. Thether they then fend Bayliffes, turne by turne, and alwaies there is one of Suits in one of the Bailywickes, and one of Glaris in the o-

In like manner, they have three other Bayliwickes in common, beyonde the Mountaines, in the valley of Liainer, with continues the Cantons of Pri, Suits, and Indernald. anthonyof The charge and office of all their Bay- would be liffes lafteth two yeeres, except in the Bayliwickes beyonde the Mountaines, where they holde for the space of three yeares; and they goe not to the other but at certaine times, alid to decide law controucifies.

They of Toggenhourg are not fubicets The color but Bourgeffes of Suits and Glaris, and and manual go to warre for them firecessively. They of Zag send Bayliffes to Cham, a very to the total tle Town neere vitto their lake Saint Andrew, fometimes a Towne: To Huneberg, Walcheuill, Stein-houfe. To Saint Wolfgang, and to other Villages 1517. Next, with them of Suites, They of Suites have formetimes hadde | they fend (turne by turne) Bayliffes to

In case of

Vanac and Gastal. They of Toggenbourg are their Bourgesses, as we have sayde already; and go to warre for them, and for the Canton of Suits. Finally, the fine first Cantons are Lordes with the other Cantons of the Bayliwicks gouerned by them in common : except the men of Appenzel, who fend a Bayliffe onely to Khanthal, with the feuen first Cantons, & in the fame manner.

Now follow some particular customs of these sixe Cantons, and which are not common to all the Switzers. Whofoeuer shall have committed a murther, although it was done in the defence of his though it was done in the detertice of its owne body, hee is constrained to forsake the Canton, and it is not lawfull for the lesser councell to repeale him; but hee may demaund and obtaine leaue of the councell generall to returne againe.

They doe not permit, that Landes and foundations of inheritances should bee pawned or ingaged vnto any one that is not of the Canton; for they holde them to be no longer Lords of their countrey, if once they will becom bound for debts and morgage in such manner their inheritances to straungers. Likewise in the Canton of Pri, it is not lawfull for strangers, that have bene receyued there as in-habitants, to buy any inheritances, but a house and a small garden for Pot-herbes

If any man being drunke, doe commit fome feandalous action, hee is punished by imprisonment, and beside, hee is forbidden to drinke wine for the space of a certaine time, and vntill the Councell generall haue pardoned him.

In publike affemblies, and in the diffribution of honourable charges and Offices: hee that is put in election, is prefent, and his parents, brethren, and ions may giue him their voyces. They giue their voyces by lifting up their hands on high, and some are set in an eminent place to count them. If they stand in doubt, and cannot fo decide it, then they have another course. There are two men, who hold two Halberds touching together at the points; they that give their voyces, do passe vinder them, and two other men count them as they paffe.

Finally, they vie Featls and Processions on fuch dayes as their Ancestors obtained any remarkable victory. As they of Glaris do yearly celebrate the memoriall of the victory which they wonne against the Austrians, in the yeare 1387. and in the month of Aprill, I wil declare Reade in the at large, the ceremonies observed by them in this festivally to the end, the better judgment may be made of such feaths as are yied by others.

The order of the folemne Feast and Procesion performed by the men of Glaris in honor of their victory against the Austrians.

[N the moneth of Aprill, euerie yeare.

on the Thursday of the first weeke (except Easter day fall on the Sunday follo-) The great wing, for then it is deferred til Thursday in the weeke after) the Feaft is celebrated. On the Sunday before, it is a lowde and openly published in the church, in behalf of the Seigneury, that on Thursday following, the most honourable persons of euerie Family, especially the men, are to meete and go in folemne Procession to Mulhoufere, by those waies, places, and passages, where their Ancestors were in great danger, even fo far as the Fountain, and to be warie of descending to the Village of Haures, til first they have past the til. other way. Moreouer, that all keepe silence while the Sermon is done, and to carrie themselues (that day) so modestly in their resection, that no disorder may bee noted, because the Seigneury will chastise them scuerely that do otherwise, and because the whole Canton of Glara doth folemnly feast that day. Forbidding alfo, that no man shall mount on Horsebacke out of the Village of Glaris, ficke & aged men onely excepted, who are not (being fo mounted) to goe anie further then Scheneisinge. After they are all affembled together, and rounded in a ring as it were; the Amman, who is in the midft, makes a kinde observation

offer their welcome (in name of the whole Canton) meeting tovnto fuch frangers as are come thether. gedier. First, to the Ambassador of Suits, who is yearly fent for celebration of the Feaft: because thirtie Souldiers of Sunes were present in the battell for which this Feast is kept. Likewife, he faluteth the Abbots, Priefts, & neighbors of Gaffal, la Marche, Rafferwill and Toggenbourg, giving them hearty thanks, for comming to celebrate

former parre

this folemne Procession, and to thanke & I the beginning of Lent in the yeare folfing praifes to almighty God, the Virgin Marie and their Patrones, S. Fridolin, and

S.Hillarr.

First, one beareth a red Standard, wherein is the Image of S. Fridolin, then The order of the Proceffifollow 4 men, bearing a guilded Toomb, on in match whereon are many faire and holy reliques ing, as they paffe along to the place where the battaile was fought.

enchased. Then come the Crosse-bearers, carrying the Croffes of Glaris, Hanres, of the Vale of Liuthe, and of the churches neighboring to the Canton of Glaris, as of Schennifs, Wefen, and others. The Croffes are followed with Banners of all the Churches, and the Priests come after them, finging according to their order. The Curate of Glaris is the first, accosted by an Abbot, or elfe fome other man of the Church. Among the strangers the other Priests follow. Then the councell of Glaris, to witte, the Amman, with the Ambassadour of Suits; then the Lieutenant to the Amman, and the other Officers in their order, each guiding or leading one of the most honourable strangers. The women (in great number) follow, to make up the end and conclusion of the Procession.

Beeing come to the place where the

The ceremo nies in the Proceition of Glaris,being come to the field where the eleven floor s are f ed in the ground.

The reason and original! fion read in particulars by the Secretary son, upon the . beliedging & taking of Welen.

bartailwas fought, there are eleuen ftones fet down in those seueral parts of ground where they began and held on fight with the enemy: for they had partings & meetings againe at hand-blowes, cleuen feugrall times, and at each of those stones the Standards and Banners stay, and all fall vpon their knees in prayer to God. Whe they are come to the fixt stone, they cast themselves round in a ring, and then the Secretarie of the Canton readeth in a paper, the cause and originall of this Procesfion the fummary whereof is this. War being moued betweene Leopold, Duke of Austria, and them of Zurich, Berne, Solleurre, Lucerna, Vri, Suits, Vnderuald, Lug, and Glaris; Leopold led his Army to Sempach, where hee was ouercome, and flaine by the Switzers, the ninth day of lune, one thousand, three hundred, fourescore and fixe, beside fixteene Earles and Barons, and a great number of Gentlemen.

Afterward, in mid-August following, they of Zurich, Vri, Suits, and Glaris, befiedged and tooke the towne of Wefen, & the inhabitants promifed perpetuall fidelity to the Switzers. Truce was made, till lowing, which being ended, and war beginning againe, they of Glaris fent a Garrifon to Weson, wher the Souldiers thinking themschies to be in safety, and confiding on the oath of the townefmen, were flaine (for the most part) in a night by them of Austria, who entred in the dead of night, by intelligence which they had with certaine of the inhabitants, that make chinated this villany against the garrison, and opened the gates to their enemies. Furthermore, that the very same yeare, and the ninth day of Aprill, they of Aufria brought an Army of fifteene thoufandmen towards Haures, and wonne the Fortresse of the Country. But three hundred and fifty Souldiers of Glaris, & thirto which the Canton of Swissent to affift them, affayled the enemy, and (Gods helps furthering, the Virgin Marie, and their Patrones, S. Fridolin and S. Hilarie) they became conquerors, wonne eleuen of their cheefest Ensignes, and left two thousand five hundred enemies flaine in the field, befide them that were drowned in the Lake, and among the reft, many of Wefen were there flaine, that formerly had betraied the Garrison of Glaris, And therefore, in dutifull thankfulnes to God almighty, the glorious Virgin Mary, and S. Fridolin, and S. Hilary their Patrones, and to all the Saints and Sainteffes of Paradife, & in everlasting remembrance of so great a helpe and deliverance, this annual Procession was ordained uppon those limits, where their Ancestours had fuffered many inconveniences.

After the reading of these severall letters, a Sermon is made in the same place; the Priests of Glaris performe their Aniuersary, and followeth the Minister of the new opinion. All their prayers being ended, they go againe to the fame flones, in the same ranke and ceremony as they began, vntill they come to the eleventh, which is placed neere to the Village of Haures, towards Wefen, where they affayled the enemy at the last time. Then they take their way to the Church of Haures; but they of the new opinion return home to their houses. The rest go to the church. where they fing a Maffe for the Switzers that were flaine in the battaile; and one reciteth all the names of them of Glaris, that perished there. Soone after this, a banquet is made (at the Cantons expen- | kilch, Romifhorn, Summery, Mule, Hotischces) for the Priests, and all the strangers that came in the Procession. After dinner, the Priests singing, bring backe againe to Glaris the guilded Toombe, the Banners and Croffes.

Of the feast and procession in Glaris. 3. Book Chap.9. The government of the abbey of S. Gal. 325

This is the manner of the annuall Procession and Feast of them of Glaris, in remembrance of to famous and remarkable victory. The other Cantons also hane their Feasts, to celebrate the victories obtained at Morgarten, Sempach, and elfewhere.

CHAP.IX.

Of the Common-wealths belonging to the Confederates. And first of all, Of the Abbey of S.Gall.

Godsiuft 5 Gall the

A third re-for of coming with an Am

Abbot Muldoch was made a princ at Balile.

ding of the

of the final

What pofferni bled sed urgow,and her parts of A Fter we have spoken of the thirteene Cantons, and of their severall Common-wealths; me-thinks now (according to the fame order) wee should make mention of their Confederates, among whom, the Abbot and Abbey of S. Gall holdeth the prime place. The Abbots of S. Gall, have bin great Lords for the space of many ages possessed of great meanes, and numbred with the Princes of the Empire: but I know not well from what Emperour they received this honour and title. Stumpfiss noteth, that Conrad de Pfa-ueres, Annalist of Switzerland writeth, that Abbot Huldrich, of the house of Altfax, was made Prince by the Emperour Phillip, in the citty of Bafile. Now albeit these Abbots are not of such power as heeretofore; yet notwithstanding, they continue ftill great Lords, and have their dominion in large extendure.

In the country of Turgow they are Lords of Wile, and haue a Pallace and a Vicar in the Towne. Moreover, in the high country of Turgow, they have a great Territory, and well peopled, who are all fubices to them. The inhabitants arc called Die Gottibuiglut, the Subicets of the house of God, or of the Abbey, and are parties in certaine Regions. fold in Germany, France, Italy, Spaine, Ko-Their names are Rofac, Thumbech, Gold, Vndereg, Morfwill, Tablate, Gozow, Waldwill, Bernattzell, Lumifwell, Berg Wittenbach, Rodimont, Strubenzell, Geiferwald. Helbach, Bereknecht, Zuzwill, Ziberwangen. Vnd Wiger. These places are divided into Castle-wicks or President-Ships, and the Abbot sendeth Proposts thether, Moreouer, he hath his Ammans and Officers. that hold meane Courts of Justice in many places. Befide, he hath a higher Court of inflice, whether refort all appellations. and where causes of importance are decided. Allkindes of duties, and fuch as are rendred to Princes, in these places are confirmd vpon him.

Beside this country, the country of Toegenbourg acknowledgeth (as Lord) the Abbot of S.Gall, who fendeth a Gouernour into the country, and a ludge in criminall causes, which admitteth no further appeale. And yet they of Toegenbourg are Bourgeffes of Suits, and of Glaris, & haue their priviledges & franchifes ; by meanes whereof (among other things) they enioy the freedome of Religion. Also in the Bayliwick of Rhinthall which belong-

eth to the cantons: the Abbot holdeth law courts of inflice in many Villages, &

keepeth Officers there for that purpose.

CHAP.X.

Of the Common-wealth in the Towne or Cittie of S.Gall.

C Aint Gall, Mulhoufe, and Rotuille, are Onumbred among the Imperial townes, Imperial and therfore have (almost) the fame man- Townes. ner of government, as we have already described vnto you. But because the cittizens of S.Gall, do hold fomething in particular: I will here fet downe a fummary description of their common-wealth.

In the first place then, the Towne of S. Gallis divided into fixe Tribes or Com- or Compapanies, & the Society of Noblemen. The mes in S.Ga'l first & principal of these Tribes, is of weauers, because of the linnen cloth there wonen, which is made very faire, and in abounding quantity: which afterward is it we we were bemia, and Poland, greatly enriching the inhabitants that dwell in S. Gall, and ma-

Two councels two councels, according to other towns, in S.Gall.

Twelac mafters. to wit the great and the lesse. The lesse is composed of foure and twenty, and namely first of all, twelue Zunfftmasters. Each Tribe, Colledge, or Company, hath three Masters, which gouerne the company a yeare, turne by turne: but there are no more then two, which enter into the leffer councell: the first is of the new. the fecond of the olde. The thirteenth Zunsftmaster, is the first of the cleucn, which are elected out of each Tribe, to be of the great councell.

The Zunfftmasters are elected by fecret voyce in their Tribes, and are confirmed by the leffer councell. Euery yeare, the councell and officers of iustice, are elected about mid-Iune, and mid-December. Beside the Zunfftmasters nine other

Senatours do affift in the leffer councell, and are chosen as well in the company of Noblemen, as in the other companies.

The three Confuls (with them) make the

The election of the Zunff mafters.

Nine Sena-

Three Conthey governe

The great Councell,in what manner they are tho fen, and what order they in the leffer councell, but in the generall, by fecret voyce, Mit derrun: the Sub-conof office, do collect the voyces. The great councell is composed of threescore and fixe, to wit, twelve of each company : whereby there are ninety perfons in the great and leffer councels. After the election of the Confuls and the councell, the ordinances of the Towne are read in this affembly: whereon the Confull and the new councell do deliberate. Then they go (by two and two together) to the great Temple or Church,named S. Laurence, where all the cittizens ordinances, the Confull sweareth first to obserue them, and afterward, receiveth of the councell and whole affembly, the christmas day, and the day following the Zunffimatters, and the other cleuen Seigneurs of the leffer councell, do meete together in the Towne-house, and elect the king the Towne much renowned. It hath Sub-confull, whom they call Vnderburgermaster. His charge is to take order for Confull or the watch of the Towne, and to appoint Vaderburger Tutors and Ouerfeers for Widdowes & mafter. Orphanes, and also to examine their ac-

> Enery weeke, the leffer councell do ordinarily meete together twice, on Tueffer council > day and Thursday; except those dayes be Festivals, or have Fayres. Also the Thurs- together. day before Lent, which they call the mad The mad Thurfday, Den Mufinnigen Douftag: Thurfday. because once, and on that day, the people mutined against the councell, by meanes whereof it was ordained, that (fro thence forward) there should be no more assemblies held, as on y day. The leffer councell manageth the Townes affaires, decideth civill causes, and giveth sentence concerning inheritances and willes: but med- councell. leth with no criminall fuites, nor differences about Seedules, Obligations and in-

The great councell meeteth together number of foure and twenty councellers: flue times energy yeare. First, the morrow ingo offer after christmas day, when they elect and confirme the new Magistrates. Secondly, year. For there are three Confuls in S. Gall, the first is in charge; the second is called olde Confull, for having governed in the very in mid-Lent, to elect and confirme the necrest yeare before; and the third presi-Master of the Hospitall. Thirdly, the deth in judgement for criminall causes, and in other places he is called, Prouost of Friday before S. Bartholmemes day, being the foure and twentieth day of August, the Empire, Repchuoat. The councell whe they establish the Masters of Halles, is elected the first Sunday of Aduent, not and confider on the tolles and taxes at the Gates. Fourthly, and fiftly, before full and the Zunffemasters, going then out | the Fayres which they keepe, on the morrow after Ascension day, and the day of S. Gall; and then they confult on the confernation, and course of Courts for the

The great councell also doth some-Extraordina times extraordinarily meete when they are to discourse on matters, whereof the of the great councell ought to have knowledge, as Councell. concerning fentences in criminall fuites. Then the Propost of the Empire sitteth President, and demandeth each case : this is done in the Towne-house, and the meete, and after reading of the lawes and | doores kept close. The leffer councell electeth the Prouost, and giveth him po- Election of wer to judge. Afterward, the great councell decideth the appellations made vnto fame cath. This done, the morrow after him, and receiveth fuch strangers as defire to be Bourgeffes.

But this is done more often, in the ordinary affemblies of the great councell,

The five met

What causes they deale outsa'l when they fit in and then also they conclude there on ma- | all the councell doe meete together, for ny appeales. Sometimes the leffer councell fendeth affaires of importance to the great councell, to bee confidered

Enery yeare, the councell geneenerall of all

rall of all the people, is affembled three times, about publike affaires. First to elect the Confull. Secondly, the morrow after Christmas day, to take oath of the new Confull, and to binde him to obey the Magistrates. And thirdly, in the Moneth of August, about S. Bartholmewes day, after that the ordinance for tolles and taxes is agreed uppon, to heare the Lecture, which is made before all. Moreouer, the lawes and statutes of the Towne are distributed into three parts; one part wherof is delinered to the people, in each of these three assemblies.

The principall and cheefest Court of laid to pawne, debts that have no certaine

time prefixed, wages that are due, fuites concerning victuals, inturies, and fines.

iustice, is that of fine; who are the Con-The cheefe ft full the Sub-Confull or Lieutenant, one of the new Zunfttmalters, and two of thority there the new councell. They judge in differences concerning borrowed monies things

They fit on the Wednesday, or Friday, and there is no appeale from their fentence : neuertheleffe, they may fend backe difficult causes, and of importance to the leffer councell. Next to this, there is the Towne court The Court of of inflice, Das Stattgritht, compo-Noble mens companie, and out of the o-Catty Courts, Nobic there companies ; fo that the one is of Zunfftniafters, and the other of the people. The cheefe Officer of this court is called Statamman, Maior of the citty, and is elected with the other Magi-gistrates, about Christmas day, and is confirmed by the great councell. As for the Affiliants, they are changed twice enery yeare, and elected by the great councell, on one of the feast dayes of christmas, & by the leffer councell, about S. John Baptills day, in the Moneth of June. Thefe ludges take knowledge of debtes, barterings, and yearely rents, although the fummes bee great. They are called together by tolling the Bell, and affemble in the Towne-house on Monday in cuery weeke, except it bee a Feast day, or that then they referre those causes till Wednelday. A man may appeale from their fentence, to the leffer councell, prouided, that the fuite be of no leffe moment then an hundred Sols, or Shillings: and if the appeallant lofeth his caufe, he is condemof the towne of S. Gall.

ned in a fine to the ludges. The confistory court is composed of eight ludges, whereof foure are Ministers Of the Conof the Church, or some other men of and ludges learning: next, two councellers of the thereto belesser councel, and two of the great. There longing. fitteth another Sciencur of the leffer councell, as Prefident, who questioneth the causes: and if there be as many voices on the one fide as on the other hee redu-ceth both parties to fuch a courfe, as hee conceineth to be inst, and then sentence is given accordingly. The confiftory cenfureth matters of marriage, and of dinorces, and no appealing is permitted from sentence. But if there happen any involved or entangledvariance, or if fome Concerning colour of pollicy be mixed with the case intricate and of marriage; then cause and all, is sent to cales. the councell, where the deciding is fufpended, vntill the councell, and fome other learned men, have adulfedly confidered thereon.

As for publike Offices, estates, and Of publike co. charges, this common-wealth is therein flates, chargouerned, as the other are ; having Trea- ges & offices. furers, Mafters of Halles, Receivers, and Administrators at the Gates for customs. tolles and taxations, Voyers, &c. Such as hold their places, doerender their accounts, first to the Zunftmatters, next to the leffer, and laftly to the great councell, on the morrow after christmas day. Hauing given up their accounts, the leffe and great councell do elect new officers, New Officers or reconfirme the olde: and it is openly olde admitted read, what the charge is of each one of agains. them in particular, and afterward, in prefence of the councell, they sweare to discharge their duty faithfully. But when many are established in one and the same charge, then such rules as they are to follow, are given them in writing. And because the very greatest trading of S.Gall, consistent in linnen cloth, and the only main that not onely the people of the towne, trading of S. but them alfo in most part of the Villa- Gall. ges round about, doe maintaine their lines therby; the councell is diligent and Viewers and the goodneffe or badneffe of linnen cloth.

A Market of linnen cloth onely.

What is done after approcloths good-

Viewers of the whiting of cloth,& how they are thickened.

reputed fit to be died in colours,& how they deale

carefull, for well ordering all things in I finde the dying to bee well taken, they that respect, and for the anovding of fraud and deceit. First, therefore, so soone as the weaver hath finished a peece of cloth, there are three expert sworne Visiters or Ouerfeers, that come to looke yoon it and according as it is good, or indiffrent, they fet on fuch and fuch markes. If it appeare to be bad and naught, they fend it to the Zunfftmafter of the weavers, and to the other eleuen Zunffimafters; who condemne the workman in a fine, or cut the whole peece into some portions, of eight Elles in length each one, or elfe through the midft, or if it bee worth nothing, they burne it openly. This view and visitation is done daily, and there is a Market of linnen cloth, which hath certaine Lawes, for the observation whereof, they that deale in such Merchandize are strictly bound.

After that the cloth hath beene feene and appropued; the fworne Meafurers do both Ellit, and marke it. The Meafurers haue some other sworne men of the Mystery, to be their adiunces; and the Merteiff, measurers of linnen cloth, which confisteth of 134. Elles, and may not be of any greater length. There is another view made at the whitsters, wher the cloth is thickened and whited. These Viewers are called Die topffen Schomer. They looke that the clothes have their requifite whitenesse, and whether they sustaine any harme in the thickning: and according as have: and whether they be provided and they finde, they marke, or condemne the furnished, according to the ordinances whitster in a fine. Likewise there are certaine Merchants and Weauers, that vifite the whitsters houses and grounds, to see if all things bee fitting and convenient there: whether they have sufficiency of wood and afties, that none may be wronged by delay. Euery yeare the Masters whitsters take newly their oaths, to doe their duties as becommeth them.

As for the clothes which the Viewers Linnen cloth (whom they viually tearme Blato bnd Schwartz glehower) thinke fit to fend to the Diars : the cutters of linnen cloth. named Lynwathfthnyber, do cut them iust in the midst, and there are other committees, to regard that they have their instructure. After they are dyed into colours blew or blacke, if the Ouerfeers marke the peece, and when they have plained and smoothed it with a Rowler; others come to approue it valuable, and they set on the Seale. Contrariwise, if it be spoyled and viciate in the dying: they Penalty for be spoyled and viciate in the dying: they cut it, or dip it againe, if it may be done, cut it, or dip it againe, if it may be done, in dying. and the Plainer and Diar are condemned in some fine. All these things about named, are very carefully observed, and if any dare do otherwise, hee is senerely punished. For the Towns or Citty of S. Gall hath this priviledge, to condemne in criminall fuite; to fetch men out of places 5.Gal of refuge, and to punish them that yse any fraud, in weauing, marking, fealing, dying plaining or misusing any Linnen

Something likewise must needs bee faid, what order they of S. Gall take, to auoid the inconveniences of fire: because they having beene heeretofore much endamaged thereby, it hath made them (furuiuing) to be the more prouident. Euery what prouise euening, for the space of a quarter of an onthey make chants have with them the Over-feers of the measuring. They call them Den Die feurglothen, the Fire-Bell: which certof fie. admonisheth enery one, to looke to the are of divers lengths: but a whole peece hearths of their Chimnies, for feare lefte fire flold take in any part. Then are there two Zunfftmafters, that foure times Vifitersfor yearely do visite the hearths, furnaces, & fite. chimnies in all the houses; and thereupon are called Die feurglehower, Vifiters for fire. They regard also, what Armes and prouision of foode the Bourgesses of the Seigneury.

Beside, if there rise any impetuous Against trop windes, or any rough ftormes or tempefts bletom wind happen (belide the ordinary Captaines of and tempells the watch, whom they call Die amachtbieter) there are two other, named Mafters of the watch, Die noachtmatter, who take with them two men of enery Tribe, well appointed, and goe with the Captaines of the watch, to walke the Captaines round through all the freetes of the Cit- the Watch ty, to preuent the dangerous accidents of Euery night, two and thirty men keepe watch on the Towers and Walles, and in other places of the Citty, beeing appointed as Sentinels, by the cheefe Zunft= matter, with the Captaines of the watch. Chap.11. Of the gouernment of the Grisons. If fire take in any part fome of the Citti-zens runne to the Gates, fome on the Towers and Walles, some into the chee-fest streetes; some keepe company with the Confull and others labour to quench the fire. There are foure Captaines of the leffer councell, that have a care of all this businesse, commanding every one to that which is to be done, and punithing greenously the disobedient. If the fire be without, and neere the citty, they fend foorth a certaine number of men with their Captaines, to prouide against the inconvenience. Others keepe watch at the Portes, upon the Walles, and in other places, where they are by them appoin-

Almes-houses, and Hospitals, because they of S.Gall gouerne themselues therein, as other well pollicied citties do, and carry a faire and comely order among them. Likewise, I will not speake of the election of the Ministers of the Church,

nor of their cstablishing and charge, neither what order they hold in their affemblies: because in this worke, we treate on the matters of pollicy onely, referring to discourse on the other, at some apter time

CHAP.XI.

I spare to speake heere of Schooles,

Schooles, Almes-houle Hofpitals,&c. pared to be token of.

The Common-wealth of the Grifons.

and place.

Concerning the Grifons in word, a people of the Alps, who the French and Italians have named Grifons, and the Switzers Grawpundter. In ancient times, they inhabited Rhatia in the Alpes, neere to the fourte or head of Rheine, and of Iun.

HE name and dominion of the Grilons hecreto-

extendure : but now wee vnderstande by that

The Grifons are divided into three Leagues. The first is called the League

Grife, and hath ten Comminalties, to wit. the Abbey of Diffentif, which the ancient Cardes or Mappes called Difertine. To this Abbey are joynd Tauetch, Trumb and some other places. 2. Walterspourg 3. Oberfachs. 4. Lugnits. 1. Fals. 6. Tlantz. 7. Schlæwiß. 8. They of Laax, Sinif, and them enuironing about the wood. 9. ing to it. Thannen. The Grisons call these nine Communities: the part about the wood, Die obdem mald; and the other ten; they call, vnder the wood. 10.Flims. 11. Trimon. 12. Safien. 13. Ratzuns, the ancient abiding of the noble Family of the Barons of Ratzuns . 14. Henltzenberg, and Tufis. 15. Schopine. 16. Schamps. 17 Splugen. 18. Malax. 19. Rufflee.

In each of these Comminalties; they yearely elect a foueraigne Magistrate, Magistrate in which many of them do call Amman, who with the ludges or Affiftants, elected by Comminalthe fame comminalty, doth judge fuites in law, and condemneth delinquents, according to the exigence of the cafe. Befide these Ammans, there is a great Prouost of the whole League, whom they call Ten Landteichter, who is chosen by enery one in the generall affembly of all the comminalties, and fitteth Prefident in the dayes meetings for all the League.

These meeting dayes for this Grife The Grand League, is in the Village of Trumb, which Prouch of is the cheefe comminalty, and there also meet the Seigneurs of the Insticial court, his orderin wherein the Landtichtet fitteth Prefi- Court of Iudent, who hath fifteene Affistants, one itice. Clearke or Secretary, and one Officer. The Lord of the Castle, and of the Barony of Ratzuns, is yet about the Landtrichter by an ancient prerogative, belonging to the race of the Barons of Katzuns, in whose rights, the Lords of the places have enermore succeeded.

The fecond League is called Det Botthusmundt, The League of Gods The League Houshold, or of the Cade or League Cate or of Gods thedrall, because of the Bishoppricke thouse. and Colledge of Coire: and it hath one and twenty Comminalties, which fomerimes were reduced into eleuen much greater. The Towne or Citty of Coire is numbred in the full place, as the chiefe of the League: and alone (among the eleuen Comminalties) is compounded of two leffer. But as the cittizens

Three leagus tiusded or the Grifons.

The first league haaing all thefe ues belong-

Ff 2

are enclosed in the same walles: euen fo !

are they counted but for one Comminalty,and the other twenty reduced into ten, make vp ten great Comminalties. The citty (for fo we will call it) of Coire, hath a common-wealth apart by it felfe, like (wating but little) to that of Zurich, and to other governments of the same condition.

For first of all, the cittizens are wholly diuided into five companies, from each of which are chosen fourteene men, who are of the great councell publike: fo that the great councell and generall, is composed of feuenty. From these seuenty men are chosen fine of each company, for the leffer

councell: to whom are joyned the fine

Zunfftmaftere of the precedent veare.

whereby the leffer councell hath thirty councellers, whereof fifteene called Senafuls, who are Prefidents (turne by turne)

a whole yeare. The councell and the Officers of iustice, are yearely elected on the cleuenth of Nouember, being the day of

S. Martin. The thirty of the leffer coun-cell do judge in criminal causes, and the Governor or Prouost sitteth then as Prefident, remaining in that charge a yeare:

at the ende whereof, another taketh his place, and they two are (in this Office) as two Confuls. Next, there is a Court of inflice belonging to the Lieutenant, who Zunfftmafters, and ten from the thirty of the leffer councell. This Court taketh knowledge of civill causes, and pecuniary actions concerning debtes: there is ap-

In the councell there are two Contours, gouerne the common-wealth.

herein so due

confideration

The eftete 8 condition of the common wealth of Coirc.

The great councell of feauenty.

The leffer councell of

Two Confuls.

The Goner nour or Pro uoft Prefiden

The Lieure

nanti Court of luftice,an his Affiftant

Of the fecond Comminalty

Thefe Comminalties ar icere counted at they fand in the Record.

peale from them to the leffer councell, who doe decide also matrimoniall mat-The fecond Comminalty, which wee thould count for the third, because Coire takes it felfe for two, is named Die bier Doetffer the foure Villages. 4. Bergon. c. Tieffencasten. 6 Stalla. 7. Trintzen, with Reamps and other Villages, which with Tieffencasten, make one jurisdiction, where the Bayliffe of Reamps judgeth civill and criminal causes. 8. Vatz the high, where fometimes dwelt the Barons of Vatz: this Comminalty is joyned with the fourth.g. Furstnow. 10.Ortenstein in Tumlefch. 11. Sinnada. 1 2. Zutz: thefe two are in Engadin the high, and make one of the great comminalties.13. Ardetie.14. Scultine.15.

Remaß: which with two other finall comminalties, maketh one of the great. 16. Bergell about the Port. 17. Bergell vnder the Port. 18. Pesclaw, or Postlaaf. 19. Brusch, which is joyned with Postlaaf, and maketh one of the eleuen great Comminalties. 20. Munstertall. 21. Mals. Each Comminalty hath his Ammans, Podeltats, and vnder-Officers as they tearme them in least authority, under whom they are maintained in liberty.

The third League tearmeth it selfe The third League tearmeth it telle The League of Iuriddictions, or the league of Iuriddictions of Rights. The first and principall of the ons, or of ten, is called rafaas, in regard of a Village Right. fo named, where the house of the League The house of is, and where the dayes meetings for the the League for their menter Comminalties are held. 2. Beelfort, or Aluanum. 3. Churwalden. 4. Langwiß. 5. S. Peter de Schanfik. 6. The little Abbey in Brettigow. 7. lenats, or Castelfer. 8 Schiers. These eight jurisdictions doe acknowledge the Arch-Duke of Austria to be their Soueraigne. Anciently, the Barons of Valz were Lords thereof: but all their race fayling, the Counts of Toeoenbourg succeeded them. And after Howher them, the Counts of Amat, whereof one being named Gaudentius, dying in the Duke of Auyeare one thousand, foure hundred, eighty Ris. nine, left these eight jurisdictions to the Arch-Duke of Austria. The Arch-Duke established a Go.

uernor there, which to this day is chofen hath fifteene Affillants, to witte, the fine among the Grisons. The Gouernor dwelleth at Castelfer; and prefideth in fentence of criminall causes: he manageth and conferueth the other rights of the Arch Duke, The Arch who hath not the same right and equal Dukes authority over the eight in tellibrian har rity not abloauthority ouer the eight iurifdictions: but lute therein each of them enjoyeth his priviledges & cuery part. particular customes, the instruments and charters whereof are kept at Tafaas. The first and fourth jurisdiction have great priviledges and immunities, farre beyond the other.

The ninth Iurifdiction is called Ma- . A high Hill lans, by reason of a Village so named, be- by Rhaus tweene the River of Languart, & Mount * Rhatica towards the South.

The tenth is named Meyenfeld. Thefe two last did belong sometimes to the Barons of Vatz, afterward to the Counts of Toggenbourg; then they fell vnto Wolfhard de Brandis, in respect of his Wife, who was of the house of Werdenberg. The league to the The Iurisdic-

Chap.11. The addition they becam joyned (with the other eight Iurisdictions) to the two Leagues of Grilons, and made the third; referning to the Lords of Brandis, the right justly to them appertaining. Afterwardes, these three leagues together bought thefe Iurifdictions, and fent a Gouernor thither, who dwelt in the castle of Meyenfeld, and fate ions bought Prefident to judge in criminal fuites : he by the three condemned men in fines, and to death,& gathered the tolles, and other publike reuennewes. The ten Iurifdictions allyed themselves together, in the yeare one

The ten lurif dictions ally together faith

Leagues.

thousand, foure hundred, thirty fix,conditionally, to fuccour one another, & be abiding in all things (iust and reasonable) against enemies, repelling al wrongs that should be offered to any of them, & procure the peaceable enjoying of their liberties. Alto, all rights and duties appertaining to the Lords, they (hould be duly rendred, they permitting them to poffeffe their franchifes and printledges: all the rest beeing carefull and provident to preserve the good and benefit of one an-In the same yeare, or the next following, these lurisdictions made perpetual They.leagues alliance with the two other Leagues, and fo the three leagues became joyned as in gether in a one body, the particular parts whereof have bene already mentioned. But in our numbering and fetting them downe, we have rather followed the fituation of the place, then the ranke which they holde in the dayes of affemblies, wherin not withstanding are many opinions: & therefore I will describe them heere, according to the comminalties of the two first leagues.

& as they are comprized in their alliance The Author with the Switzers. The Comminalties of procesdeth to the Grife league, are the vally of Lugnitz, more figni-Tlants, Ober Jachs, Walter purg, Laax, Si ficant exprefion of the nif, and other places about the VV oods, Flims, Schewie, Trimmie, Retzuns, Hemdes,in theiri tenberg and Tufis Schamps Rhinuald Madue places and order.

their resolutions, which passeth by plurafax and Rufflee, Safien Thannen, Schopine, lity of voices. The councel of the Grifons Fals. The Comminalties of the league of is (almost) like to that of the Switzers: for Cade, are in order as they followe, Coire, there they treate on the felfcame things Furstnow, the foure villages descending which concerne the good of the vvhole countrey; of peace, of warre, of diances, on Apremont, Vata the high, Reamps, Tief of Ambaffages, lawes and ordinances, &

Schantzen. As for the ten lurifdictions, I fencasten, Gryfenstein, Benio or Stalla, Auers, Bergel aboue and belowe the Port, Zutz, Sumada, Postlaaf, Steinsperg, Schuls, Remust, Munstertal, Mals, Galfen, and

I vnderstand their order thus. Tafass, the three Iurifdictions of Brettigon, Beelfort. or Aluanum, Chumvalden, S. Pierre, Langwifz, Malans and Meyenfeld. I know ve- Helesuerh ry well, that some doe name these Comminalties otherwife, but that importeth nothing, because in each Comminaltie there are many times notable villages, fo that the Comminalty fometime takes his name of one, and sometimes of another. For mine owne part, I have named the principall places of the Comminalties.

one Commonwealth, For although many of the Comminalty haue their Judges lawes, customes, & iustice, aswel civil as criminall; yet notwithstanding, the So-ueraignty is with the councel of the three leagues (which they name in theyr Language, (Bin pundte tag) & dayes of meeons. 14. If either one or other doe fend a greater number, they have no voyces

there, but according to the about-named account. Sometimes also, the councell general of the whole Nation (which was made no long time fince) do meet toge-

with them in writing on the dayes do direct them, and whereto they conforme

causes of appeales from the Baylywickes.

There are three places appointed for the

to fitte in councel, to wit, Ylants in the Grifeleague, Coire in the league of Cade,

The fore-mentioned councell, mana-ther: but that is very rarely.

Thus then there are three leagues of Fifty Com-the Grifons, containing fifty Comminal minables in ties, which (neuertheleffe) doe make but the 3. leagues

ting or affemblies of Ambaffadors, from The Councel each comminalty of the Grifons : whether of the three fome of them fend two Ambaffadours, Leagues of others but one onely, If the councell bee ordinary, the Grife League sendeth thether 28. Ambassadors or councellors; that of Cade 27. and from the Iurifdictigeth the affayres of the common-wealth: The Ambal. vet in fuch fort, that the councellers or fadors are to Ambaffadors deale not according vnto be guided by their owne best seeming, but as the commaunds and remembrances from theyr comminalties, and which they bring

3 Booke

& Tafans in that of the ten Iurifdictions . But oftenest the dayes are held at Coire at times of their affaires, which happeneth three times in the yeare: about the fixe and twenty day of lanuary, the beginning of lune, and the eleventh day of Novem-

Another principal Councel or Senate for them al.

pals meete together when the other need which is approoued by plurality of voyces, is receyued of all. There is appeal alfo from the councel, to the Comminal-

Concerning

Appeals from the Councel

to the Com-minalties.

When varian ces happen amongst the Leagues, how hey are then to behaue hemielues.

They have another Councell or Senate, which they name Embytag : whe the principal Magistrates onely, and, as being the cheefe of the three Leagues, do affemble themselues together. These men, are the Iudge-Provinciall for the Grife-League : the Councel of Coire for the league of Cade, and the Amman of Tafaas, for the League of the tenne Iurifdictions. At all times, and as often as neede requireth, to prouide for the publique affayres; and it appeareth not conuenient, to call all the Deputies of the countrey together; then those 3. Principals do meete, with fome of the cheefest of the three Leagues. But they cannot determine absolutely, onely they referre separately vnto the Comminalties of the three Leagues, whatfoeuer hath beene discust among the Councellers, and that ties, and then matters are propounded in the Comminalties, whose sentences are fet downe in writing: and being conferred on, they are gathered to a resolution and an arrest, by the pluralitie of Voy-

As concerning judgements in criminal causes: the Grisons doe therein projudgmens in ceede like the Switzers. It there is publike cases, any difference among the three Leagues, ceede like the Switzers. If there happen three or foure ludges must bee choien on eyther fide, and discharged of the Oathe which bindeth them to their league. They are to accord the difference by kind composition, or judge according to theyr consciences. If the voyces fal out equal: an Arbitratour must bee chosen by vovces and common suffrages of the three Leagues. If two Leagues bee in fuite, they milt referre themselves to the third, who shald eliver vnto both the parties the right whereby they are to bee quieted If it chaunce betweene two Comminalties of one and the fame League: they must take (as Indge) the verie necrest comminalty or Jurisdiction belonging to the same League. But when the Comminalties of divers Leagues are at difference: the councel of the three Leagues. namely the Judges, are to provide there-

When one Comminalty, or fome particular person therein, hath processe Whenone and fuite against the three Leagues, or a- Comminglite ny one of them; two or three Judges of hath fuite aeach League are then to be chosen for it. League. And when two Leagues are at difference against the other, fixe Judges of the two Leagues, and fixe of the other alone, are to bee appointed. If they cannot conclude the ftrife; an arbitratour must bee chosen, by plurality of voyces of the three Leagues. These judgements are to be The places p deliuered first at Ylantz, nexte at Coire: a second time againe at Ylantz, then againe at Coire, and at Tafaas the last of

It would much weary mee, if I should Concerning describe at large the Statutes & customes dullons model of the Grifons: notwithstanding, I shall the Grifons not greatly displease or offend the Reader if heere I plance at a worde or two. First then, it is agreed uppon betweene them, by the confent and advice of the vyhole councel, that neyther the Byshoppe of Coire, or any of the Ecclefiaftical Order : shal elect or establish any civile Magiftrate, nor advance a Gouernor or Am- of Magistrato man, for any Comminaltic or Jurifdi-Gion whatfoeuer; but that the people of the Grifons (by theyr fuffrages onely) shal elect and choose theyr owne Magistrates.

Such as have obtayned any Offices of the Bythoppe, may not be accepted into councel follong as they do remaine in his seruice.

As concerning the Ministers of the Foradmission Church, euery Parish electeth their to Council owne: may depose them, pay them their Wages, which are too little in many pla-Thoroughout the countrey of the Grifons, no smal Tythes are payed, and as for the great, they pay but the fifteenth part, and give nothing in the fielde, but they give it in the house, and alwayes after the haruests both for their Grapes and corne.

All they that are of a comminaltie, For Fishing, may fish in al the Rivers and Pondes, and hunting, and hunt both Beafts, and flye Fowles freely, within their fayd Comminalty.

Thoroughout all the countries, one weight and measure of things licquid and dry, is to be vied, to wit, the weight and measure of Coire. And it is not lawful for the Bourgesses of Coire to alter any thing therein, without the confent of the other Leagues. For our conclusion, we are to speak of mand equally. On this fide the Alps nere enfeld and to Melant z. On the other fide

Of the government of the Grisons.

Of their Go-Other Go. Baylywickes the three Leagues of the Grifons do com-Grions count to Coire, they fend a Gouernor to Mey

Chap.11.

the Alpes beneath Bergel, toward the riuer of Maire, the Gouernment or Baylywick of Plurs first presenteth it felf, which is a great village in the field neighbouring to the Alpesiand on the bankes of Maire riuer, and euen as fightly to bee lookt on, as if it were a good Towne. In this place, Rocke-stone coales, which serue as fewell Coales called for the kitchin; and it is faithfully reported, that the nature of this stone-coale is tenfulplenty. fuch, as when Fish commeth to boyling, they make them mount and leape out of the kettle into the fire thefe coales are very abundantly fold in Italy. All the villages round about, are answerable and like to Plurs, where the Gouernour (whom they terme 1000ftat) decideth causes,& is foueraigne in that place in name of the Grifons, and deputed by them.

Next is the Towne and county of Cla-uenna, whereon Plurs in elder times de-ended. Clauenna is a Towncaboue the Lake of Coma, about fine miles, as Antoni-ns observeth it also, in his booke of the waves. The Grifons call the Gouernor of Clauenna, Commissary: & he is the most apparant, next to him of Sondria. The third more spacious and noble gouerne-ment is that of the vale Telma, famous for the excellent wine, which there is made in extraordinary plenty, and is thence transported into Switzerland and Germanie.

The whole vale of Telina, is divided into fixe Bayliwickes. The first is that of Bormia a Towne about the valley, towardes the Mountaine of Braull: this Bayliwick hath many priniledges and franchifes, farre beyond the other. The second is the towne of Tiran. The third is Tel, wherof(as fome thinke) the vale Telina first tooke name. It is a Towne feated in a very high place, &

there are digged infinite Chauderons of

The Towne and Countie of Clauenna.

The vale of Telina, & the Baylywickes

1.Bormis.

1.Tiran. 1 Tel.

appearing to be fo naturally: & it is counted to be the best fortresse of all the Prouince. Sondria, the most renowned town of all the vale Telina, maketh the fourth 4. Sondria. Baylywicke. It is the most rich & powerfull among all the rest, and he that is Gonernor thereof, is called Captain, because The Gouerouer and beside the Bayliwicke, hee hath nor of Sonan eve to the whole valley when it is chief drain calld Captains, and in Armes. He hath his Lieutenant, who judgethin can judgeth with him the civil causes of the les both civil the Bayliwicke. Hee judgeth also the criminal matters of all the vally, having law- vale. vers and learned men to his councel, and gining sentence according to the Lawes and Statutes of the vale Telina: which ne-(uertheleffe) may be moderated & made milder in the Bayliwicke by the Podestats. Beside all this, all causes may be appealed to the councel of the Grifons Signeuries, or to them that they have ordained com- the Grisons mifaries, and fent to judge : or finally, to Councel. the conucel of the Comminalties, who haue the foueraigne power. The fift Bayliwicke is called Morben, and the fixt Trahon which is last of al.

This is the order of the Baylywickes of the vale Telina, vet fome doe not fet the Bailywick of Bormia in this ranke, but diuide the whole vale into three partes; der of diuwhereof the first comprehendeth Tiran ding the vale and Tell: Sondria maketh the fecond; and Morben and Trabon are the third. In ele-Ging the Bayliffes, they follow the order of the Leagues and Comminalties. As of electing for example, if the Grife League citablish their Bayliffes a Captaine at Sondria for two yeeres, the League of Cade fends one thether for the two following years: at the end wherof the League of the Inrifdictions fends one for two other yeares, this order is obferued in each League of the Comminalties. And fometimes the Comminalties. who thould fend a Bayliffe by their turn, vyould elect him only; but now the councel of the Grisons makes the election. The money. byshop of Coire, and the City, do stampe money. The Abbot of Diffentiff hath the fame priviledge also, amongst many o-

CHAP.

Another or-

CHAP. XII.

The Commonwealth of the Valafians, or people of Valois.

The division of the country of Valais or Valous the higher, & the HE whole countrey of Va-of Morsia, which vniteth it selfe with Rhone, fomewhat beneath Sion. This was the dwelling of the ancient Viberines and Sedusians. The lower Valois, is from the riuer of Morsia, so farre as Saint Mauris, and this was the countrey of the Vergeri-

Seuen Iurifdi higher Valor

Hundreds or

Baronnies, or

The higher Valous is divided into 7 Iurisdictions, which they call Dixaines, wards. and Zenden in the Alleman tongue. know not whence this worde is deriued, for it cannot produce the number often, because there are no more Iurisdictions. A friend of mine told me, that the worde intended so much, as Diocesses, because that cuery Wardhath his Diocesse or Iurısdiction, his Common-wealth, and priuiledges apart by it felfe. Others do hold that the word Zonnen commeth of another word, fignifying, an Hundred: as in the Lawes of France, the Offices of the Earledomes or Counties, the Vicariates and Hundreds are number; and in some places of Germany, they are called Zendgraues, the Judges of some certaine Jurisdiction. But without standing so strictly on the words originall: wee may verie fitly tearme them Diocesses or Comminalties. So then there are feuen Comminalties in the higher Palois, to wit. Goms. Brighe, Vefpie, Raron, Leuck, Siders, and Syon. These seuen Comminalties have thirty parishes. The lower Valois hath fixe Comminalties, which they cal Banneries: because each one hath his particular standard, and foure and twenty Parishes fo

Six Bannerie in the lower

The names o

Cominalties

the seven

Long warres Veragrians&

The Veragrians or lower Valafians, had (in times past) long warre against the Sedustans and Viberines. In the end, after fourescore and thirteen yeares, they were ouercome and subjected; so that the Sedasians and Viberines ruined fixteene Cafiles, the old pirtifull foundations whereof, are yet to be seene, and it is not lawful for any to builde them againe, for feare they should prooue hursfull to the coun-Higher Vales tries liberty. And therefore the higher ruleth our Valois ouer-ruleth the lower, and fendeth the lower. Gouernors thether to judge in causes, & manage the affayres of the State. The Byshop of Syon (whom some call Count & The Bythop The higher Valois from the truer of khone, so farreas the river of Marks.

The Annales of Valois do declare, that Charlemaigne gaue the County and Gogaue the County and Gogaue the Gouernment of Valous, to Theodofus, Biftop uernment of valous, to Theodofus, Biftop of Syon, and to his successors: with power Valors to the to beare a fword, in figne of civill Iurifdi- Bift paf Syction, and other priniledges of Princes of the Empire. Because that Byshop (by reuelation of an Angel) had declared to Charlemaigne, that fome fecret finne (I know not what) was forgiuen him. Howbeit, there are sufficient circumstances to call the county into suspition, as we have already made more amplemention in our description of the country of Valors. Notwithstanding, it is certaine, that the Emperors which came after Charlemaign, accorded & confirmed the fore-named pris uiledges to the bythops of Syon: namely, ger of Vilon the Emperour Charles the fourth, then confirmed by Charles the fift renewed & increased thein the Emperos willingly, at the request of Mathew Shiner By shop and Cardinal of sion, from whom he had deriued many good and gracefull Afterward, the Byshop had another grace granted, that the next most excellent estate to his, should bee that of the captaine or Bayliffe of the whole country whom they vie to call Landts Baunt = The Captain man. He iudgeth in civill causes, and or Bayliffe of Valois, and bis continueth in his charge the space of two authority. yeeres: being elected by the Byshop, and by the Ambassadours of the Dizaines or comminalties. Afterward, he is confirmed by publike approbation and confent of all the comminakies, which have each one his Magistrate, whom they of Goms, Raron, and Leuck, call Maire, the others Castillian. He indgeth all fuites, especially them criminall, with the councellers which the comminalties give him as affistants. There be Ammans also (who are

minulties tha

he fituation of Valois

Soueraigne Magistrates in the Cantons | Mauris. Without the country of valois. of Switzerland, but they of Valois are judged inferiours, and haue Maires as theyr luperiors.

Appeale may bee made from the fentence, which is given by the Judges of a comminalty, to the councell of Valois who are called Den landts rath ; and according to the custome of theyr Anceftors, they affembled twice a yeare, in the months of March, and of December. At which times, two or three Deputies of each Village, do meete at Syon, in a Caftle named Maierin. The Bythop affifteth there, and the Bayliffe cals for the causes, and then they treate on affayres of the Common-wealth, election of gouernors and publike Officers, & fuch as shal judge in the last power, of causes that concerne appeale.

The Barons of Raron, were fometimes great Lordes in the countrey of Valois. Their successors were the Lords of Chinron, who are Marshalles of the Bishoppricke of Syon, Vicount of Syon, and Stewards of Valois.

As for the Maze, which they tearme Mutzen, it is a particular inhention of the people of Valois, to oppose theselues against the power of great and rich men-Wee haue made ample mention in our description of the country of Valois, and there declared, wherefore it was putte in practife, and how it began.

We have told you, that the Byshop & the fenen Dizames of the higher Valois, hold the fourraignety of the whole country in their handes. The lower Valois is subject to them, and is parted into fixe Comminalties, viz. Gundes nere to Syon, is the chiefe Castlewicke or comminaltie of lower valois. Heeretofore it appertayned to the Canton of Berne, but in thewar which the Switzers made on the Duke of Sauoy, in the yeare 1536. the Valafians did there recouer it, in exchange of another country. 2. Ardon, 3. Sallion, 4. Entremont, S. Martinach, 6. the Towne of Saint Mauris in Chablais, where the mountains feeme as if they joyned together. So that all valois, is thut or lockt vp by a Tower, & two gates (as it were) at both the endes of a bridge, vnder which the Rhone glydeth. In the yeare, 1475, the valafians brake down the wals and fortrefles of the fore-named places, except that of Saint the valafians possessed themselves of 3. Bayliwickes, during the warre of Sanoye: as namely, Montey, Tuian, and Hochtak. ?. "aylywickes Neuerthelesse, fome few yeares after that lois. they furrendred Yuian to Emanuel Philebert, Duke of Sauove, and retained both the other.

CHAP. XIII.

The Common-wealth of Bienna.

HE Towne of Bienna made perpetual alliance with the Bernaians as wee haue already fayde: and it happened in the yeare one thoufand, three hundred, fifty two. Thirty yeares after, it contracted perpetuall Allyance with Solleurre; and in the yeare one thoufand, foure hundred, and feuen, with Fribourg, fo it became allved with three cantons of the Switzers. It acknowledgeth as temporall Lord, the Byshop of Bafile, be- The Ecclesia cause as concerning the Ecclesiastical Iurisdiction, it is the Diocesse of Lansanna: but it is a long time, fince it was no more fubicatio the spirituall government of the Bishop, as in like maner were the citizens of Zurich and Berne.

and they to him. Hee taketh knowledge

(with the councell) of criminal causes;

& fitteth as Prefident in cenfuring them.

The moitic of fines, amounting to about fuch like, belong to the Towne only, and not to the Bishop. For hee is not permitted to impose any charge whatsoeuer vp-pon the Bourgesses, nor to engage the

Towne: but the Bourgesses are bound to Afterward, when it came to passe, that the Bernians got the possession of the Bi-Magistrate of shoppricke of Lulanna, they enfranchised Bienna, & his Bienna of the Ecclesiasticall subjection.

The Byshop of Basile is Lord thereof very ses. peaceably, in temporall power, and eftablifteth the fourraign Magistrate, whom they call Maire: but hee is chosen out of the number of the Townes councellers, and the Maire giues oath to the councell,

2. Liures Tournois, apertaineth to the By- The Byfhop thop, with fome tenths, and other reuen- impofeth no newes: but the ports, tolles, cuftoms, and the Bourgefles

Frawen-

otthe Tolles

The priniledges given by

The governe ment of the Common wealth of Bienna.

The Common-wealth of Bienna is gouerned in maner following. All the Bourgeffes are divided into fixe companies or brother-hoods: yet in fuch order & carriage, as no one man what foeuer may ioyn hunfelfe with two or more of the companies, who have each one two Masters, & a servant attending. The Councell publike is chosen out of the number of these Bourgesses. The leffer councel is compofed of foure and twenty: and the greater, of thirty councellers. The election is made at the yeares ending, and at the beginning of the yeare following, theyr names are openly publisht in the church. There is choise made of some Electours, out of the great and leffer councell: who (in presence of the cheefe Secretarie) do confirme the ancient Councellers, or elect new, if there be any fuch need.

He that fitteth President in the coun-cell generall, is called Bourgmafter, and is elected by the great and leffer councell.

He is next in office to the Maire, & when they deliberate on affaires of the Com-mon-wealth, and question is vrged con-cerning civil cases: the Maire and Officers to the Byshop depart, and leave the Bourgmaster President. Next to him are the Treafurers, Banderets, voyers, or Surucyers, the Indges of the Confiftory, the Hospitaliers, and others elected in pub-

like charges by the great and leffer coun-cell, who are not advanced to such Degrees, but as they are knowneapt and able. The Banderet onely, is chosen by all the people. Hee hath charge not onely of bearing the Towns banner; but also (with the Bourgmafter) is protector of Schol-lers, taking care that they may have diligent and faithfull Teachers and Overfee-ers, and to take their accounts. The leffer councel assembleth three times enery

weeke, to wit, on Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday , but if any mandoe defire owne expences, yet no further then a dayes journey from the Towne. If hee is bound to pay their wages. Yearely, there is repetition made to the Councel,

what priniledges Bythop Immer Ramftein

gaue to the Town, in the yeare one thou-fand, three hundred, fourescore, & three.

They of Bienna have as ample priviledges

as in the greater Bafile.

Bourgmaster the General Councel.

Other officers of the Commonwealth.

The office of the Banderet. go in warre for the Bylhop, and at theyr / to haue a cause extraordinarily decided. paying a Florin to the Maire, the councell shall be then affembled . Bienna hath would have them march any further, hee no other particular Iurisdiction, but the Councell judgeth all causes citill and cri-

They of Bienna, are Lords of the Valley of Saint Immer, for so likewise is the Seigneury of Ergua called, and is diuided into many Comminalties, vvhich Ergus. haue (each one) their Maire or Amman elected and confirmed energy yeare, in the moneths of May and September. But they of Bienna have not any bayliffe, for the Comminalties have their courtes of Iustice, and when the parties cannot bee Bicanahat agreed, the cause is sent to the councel of no Baylinith the Towne, who fend sometimes affistants to helpe in the country pleadings, and to end their fuits: but appeale may be made from their fentences to the councel of the Towne. The inhabitants of this valley, do march in warre under the Standardes of

CHAP. XIIII.

The Common-wealthes of such people as are gouerned in common by the Cantones of Switzerland. And first of all, of stipen dary Townes.

N our former booke, we The dissident haue distributed the peo-plegouernd in common, by the Cantonsof Swit-zerland, into fiue stipen-dary Townes, and nine bayliwickes or Gouernements. Those Townes have their Magistrates & Councell by themselves, to wit, a lesser Councell composed of twelve, and a great, of forty Councellers, comprehending the twelve of the leffer in the number. The Eleticanus cheefe of the councel is called & chulo= at Bada. theff, or Anover: hee is elected at Bada. by the leffer and great councell.

At Bremgarten, the fixe first Cantons establish one of the two Auoyers: who (notwithstanding) is in number of the Bourgesses, onely of whome the other is elected.

At Bremgant.

Hee of Frawenfeld, is elected by the I tons. Councell generall but in fecret voyce. The Councell of these Townes doe elect Treasurers, Voyers, and other Magistrats: for the Townes have priviledges, to prouide for publike charges, and have likewife treasuries, and good round sums of ready gathered monies in them, for their condition and extendure, because the cuflomes, tolles, and taxes do belong vnto them. Neuerthelesse, in the towne of Bada, which is the passage of Germany into France, the custome belongeth to the towne; but the tolle for Merchandizes transported that way, appertaineth to the Cantons. The leffer councell of thefe townes, prouide not onely for the townes affaires, but also do decide suites: for they have no other Courts of inflice, except at Framenfeld, & they have likewise both ciuill and criminall iurifdiction.

Bremgarten commandeth ouer fome Villages neighboring to the town which they call the Bayliwicke of Cella . This country is in the government of the free Pronince, appertaining to the Cantons: but it was engaged sometimes to them of Bremgarten. VV hen the Emperour Sigifmand did put them of Zurich in poffession of the free Prouince, he gaue them priviledge to disengadge the country but they of Bremgarten entreated them, that in regard of the amity, which had til then continued betweene the two townes, they would leaue the country to them, which of Bremearten were put and confirmed in possession of the country, in the yeare one thousand, foure hundred, and eigh-The referua-Neuerthelesse, they of Zurich referued to themselves the soveraignty, & the punishment of Malefactours deserning was eafily granted them. Wherefore at that time, by the liberality of them of Zurich, who gave it them by Letters: they death. The years one thousand, fius hundred, twenty eight, a difference happened betweene them of Zurich and Bremgirten; to wit, about the causes of appeale, and to whom it belonged. The feuen Cantons ordained thereupon, that onof the fea-win Cantons. the Bayliwicke of Cella, might appeale to the councell of Bremgarten, and from them to Zurich: but as concerning fuites mooned at Bremgarten, the appeale was to bee brought before the eight Can-

The towne of Frawenfeld, befide Au affembly the councell apart by it felfe, hath an af- of xii. ludges fembly of twelue Indges, who decide fuites among the Bourgesses, and country people in the Villages, that are under the townes jurisdiction. But as for criminall causes, and variances touching inheritances, and fuch like things; the knowledge of them belongeth vnto the councell. These Judges execute their arrests, in condemning of certaine fines. and making feizure on the goods of condemned persons. Appeale may bee made from them, to the featien Cantons: but there is no appeale from the councels No Appeale

For the present, by permission of the tence. councell, the Amman of the country is cheefe of those Judges , but anciently, and about an hundred yeares fince, it was to the Apparatour of the towne, and afterward to the Agent or Prouost of the Empire. VVhen any Malefactour is to be con- When any demned to death, the ludges make choife one is fenten (as pleafeth themselves) of twelve other ced to death men of the towne, or of the villages reforting thether; and then these soure and twenty men may condemne to death. Frawenfeld obtained this priniledge of the Emperour Sigifmond; and therefore they have prisons purposely. From the time of the Austrian Princes, they hadde power to put criminall persons to death; now adayes the Cartons conferue and maintaine the rights to Mawenfeld: and although condemnation of death ap- Frawenfeld pertaineth to tenne Cantons, yet Fra- febetto the wenfeld stands excepted, which depen- Cantons, deth not neither is subject but to the feauen first Cantons, the priviledges referued. Moreover, this Towne hath some particular rights, touching testaments Particular and inheritances, and the Bourgestes rights belongmay exact their debtes thorough all the ing to Fracountry of Turgow (annual revenues excepted) according to the rights of Iuflice of the Prouince, and may (without punishment) lodge such as have beene banished by the lawes; but they cannot bee drawne into any strange inflice, but the demander must come and pleade at Frawenfeld.

The Abbey of Auge the rich, hath councels fen-

Care for Schol

written in the name of all the Councell.

Moreouer, if the voyces be equallyppon

cither fide : hee maketh that auayleable

where he ranketh himfelfe, and by that meanes enderhall variance. This Bay-and priviledges it hath at

Frawenfeld

Bourgesses stand obliged, and (anciently) the most part of them wer subjects to the Abbey: but afterward, they enfranchifed themselves from all charges of servitude, and now adayes, before gining any Oath vnto the Abbot, they receyue Letters from him, whereby hee promifeth them, not to fel, engage, nor alienate the rights which he hath at Frawenfeld, by reason of the Abbey; and besides, that hee will conserue and keepe all their ancient Priuiledges, Franchifes, rights, and good cu-

The ancient power in tin

Turgow at li-

Finally, in the times of war, anciently, the Seigneurie of Frawenfeld elected the Captaine, the Ambassador, the Enfigne, and other cheefe offices of warre: which all the countrey of Turgow followed, and tooke Oath to them . Also, the Standard of the Towne is adorned with Images of Saints, like to the Standardes of the Catholique Cantons, to wit, with a Crucifixe, and two croffed Keyes; and on the other fide, is the picture of Ielus Christes face, as in a Linnen hand-kercher. But within some sewe yeares they of the Prouince of Turgow obtayned leave to have their particular captaines and Standards. In meane while the Towne of Framenfeld, and the places that are ofher Iurisdiction, haue theyr Captaines. Enfigne-bearers, and their aunci-

CHAP. XV.

ent Standards.

Of the Baylywickes or Governments.

The custome obserued in most part of the Cantons for their Bay lywickes.

E have already formerly fet downe, how many Baylywickes or Gouernements the Switzers haue, to what Cantons they appertaine, and how they becam Lords of them. The Cantons do fend their Bayliffes turne by turne, and in the most part of the Cantons, the custome is ; that the charge is giuen vnto one of the Councellers of the leffer councell. The Bayliffe continueth in his charge two yeares, and then gineth place to him that is fent by another Can-

The Abbey of some rightes at Framenfeld, whereto the | ton. They gouerne the Bayliwicks according vnto the Lawes and customes of the people: neuerthelesse, in the Baylywickes on this fide the mountaines, the Bayliffe doth not judge alone in criminal causes; The custom but hath (as adjunctes or affiftants) the onthis fide Judges of the Province: in regard where- themountains of, they do call this course of Justice Ein Landgricht. They take knowledge of all fuites of importance, and especially, those criminall, and give sentence; Notwithstanding, the Bayliffe is soueraigne, for he fitteth Prefident, and hath power to moderate the fentence.

But in the Bayliwickes of Italy, or beyond the Mountaines, the bayliffes onely The cuftone condemne to death: they may vvell call in the Bayly fome learned men for councell, but those themountains Councellers have no power in the fentence. Finally, euery yeare about midde-Innerthey render an account of theyr administration; they on this side the mountaines, at Bada, they beyond, at Lugano; before the Deputies, which the tweluc Cantons then fend thither, and then they judge the subjects causes of Appeale. If fome straunge enemy make warre on the Switzers: all the Bayliwickes fend theyr Atrangent people, who march under their particular my wanted the Swinter Standards, and euery bayliwicke ioyneth with the Canton, under whose power it is that yeare. As in the warre of Bourgengne, they of the baylywicke of Turgow ferued the Canton of Zurich. But if ther e happen any ciuill warre in Switzerland because the baylywicks do stand as much Intime of de obliged to one Canton, as another : they will warrein are not bound to give fuccor, if the most Sw.tzethad part of the Cantons do not commaind

CHAP. XVI.

Of Bada.

HE Gouernement or Baylywicke of Bada, is much more magnificent then the other, because the dayes meetings and affemblies of the Cantons are held there: for the bayliffe of Bada euermore helpeth there demaunding for the causes in order, and

Chap.21.

Many villages and lurifdicti-

an com man

Two little Townes, be-liffe hath no authorities ouer the Towne of Bada, but over the Countie, which is divided into many Villages and fmall Iurisdictions; where hee hath his Lieutenants and Officers, who hold their pleadings with Judges of the Village in name of the Bayliffe , exact the Fines, and render him an account, and fometimes also himfelfe is prefent in those Jurisdictions. But when there is question of condemning a Malefactor vnto death, foure and twenty Judges of the whole Countie of Bada, meete together, and the Bayliffe electeth them : but the custome is, that after they have beene once thus elected, they continue all their life time afterward in that charge, if fome lawfull impeachment doe not preuent it : and when any one of them dyeth, or is dismissed, then the Bayliffe putteth another in his place. These Judges, give sentence according to the Lawes : neuerthelesse, the Baylisse (who hath the foueraignty in his hand) may mittigate their fentence. Next to this estate of the Bayliffe, is heethat is yof the whol called Secretary of all the Prouince : for, belide the dignity, hee hath profite, beecause all the Cantons serve him, so long as the daves are kept . Moreouer and beside, hee hath a Lieutenant, who is cheefe of al the Officers belonging to the The Bailywicke and Countie of Bada, hath two fmall Townes under it, the one deth Bayliffes thether, and hee of Bada hath nothing to looke to there, faue one-named Clingenow, and the other, Keyfernow, and Key. stoull; but the Byshop of Constance senly, the acknowledgement of causes criminall appertaineth to him, and the people of those places, are comprehended with the rest of the County of Bada, when they goe to warre, with, or for the Switzers. Betweene these two little Townes, is a great Village, necre vnto the Rheine, named Zurzach, inhabited as if it were a good great Towne, Subject vinto the Bythoppe of Constance, and depending on the Baylywickes of Clingenow. I must needes fay fomewhat concerning the po-fealeth with his Signet, fuch things as are liev thereof, because it is a place greatly renowned, in regard of two great Favres very goodly and commendable, which are there kept enery yeare. Many Metchants, not only of Switzerland and Ger- Faires yearly many, but also of France and Italy, meete at Zurzach. there, albeit each Fayre lasteth but one

Many do hold opinion, that this village is the place, which Psolomy calleth thefe Favres are very ancient, as having beene ordained by Tiberius. It feemeth to have taken this name of M. Junius Certius, a famous Romane Souldier, burved in that place, as is testified by an ancient inscription. The Iurisdiction of this village is one of the dependances of Clinge-

now: the Bayliffe electeth an officer yearly, in the Moneth of Ianuarie, and eyght

Senatours, foure whereof, are in feruice fucceede them, having foure Judges gi-together they doe; the party paying thirteene Shillings of the Money of Lu-

Bada, executeth the fentence, and puni-theth the faultie. But out of the Fayre times, Malefactors are examined, first at Clingenow; after they have confest theyr

fault, and are convinced of capital crime,

they are delivered into the handes of the after Pentecoft, the day before the Faire,

all the Iurisdiction of the Byshoppe ceafeth, and belongeth vnto the bayliffe of Bada, who hath fole power and authority of commanding and forbidding, even vntil the end of the Faire. For in regard that a great number of people doe affemble

there, our Auncestors were defirous, that these Fayres might be in the safegard and Forum Tiberij ; and that on this occasion, Foru Tiberii.

a whole yeare, and they are called fworne Swonie Se-Senatours and then the other foure doe nators.

uen them as affiftants. Thefe twelve, with the Bayliffe of Clingenow, who presideth, The Bayliffe iudge the raules, and meete once in xv. of Chogenow dayes; but if any man requireth (in the meane time)that the Judges thould meet

Moreouer the Bayliffe to the bythop Power of conof Constance, cannot condemn any grea- demning fines

ter fine, then the fumme of tenne pounds; or other wife. but if the crime appeare to deferue more rigorous chastifements, to witte, corporally; then the Officer to the Bayliffe of Bayliffe of Bada. At the times of the Concerning the times whe ber, and the first Holyday of the Weeke, kept.

The governe ment of Zurprotection of fuch as were foueraignes, and had me ues to bee strongest in these places then. In former times, the Princes of Austria, were Lords of the Countie of Bada; but now it belongeth to the eyght firft Cantons. As for the gouernment of Zurzach, it is managed by fixteene coun cellers, to wit, the twelue before mentio ned, and foure affiftants. But if there be any businesse of importance, it is referred to the councell generall.

The Gouernment of Turgovv.

CHAP. XVII.

Of Turgow.

Turgow the greatest of all the Bayliwicks

Mean Court

the villages of

Condemnati

The Ecclesia

Ricall persons and what Iurifdi@ions

they haue.

The Abbey of

Auge.

on of fines.

of iustice in

Turgow.

Mong all the Bayliwickes of the Cantons, there is not any more plentifully peopled nor of larger extendure then Turgow, which hath more then fifty Parishes. The seuen most ancient Cantons fend thither a Bayliffe; & to them appertaineth the Seigneury and ciuill Iurifdiction of the countrev. If Switzerland be affaulted by a stranger enemy, they of Turgow ranke themselves with the feauen Cantons: but the knowledge of criminall causes, and such as are capitall, belong to the tenne Cantons.

Beside, there are many Noblemen, & Ecclefiasticall persons, that have meane courts of Iustice in divers villages of Turgow, yet in such fort notwithstading that all the villages are subjects to the Bayliffe of the whole country. The inferior Seigneurs may condemne fines of twentie shillings, and sometimes so farre as tenne poundes: but the moity of the fines belongeth to the Bayliffe, according to the ordinances well understoode, and establithed among them.

All they that have Iurifdictions, are called Brichtsherren. The Ecclesiastickes, are the byshop of Constance, who hath his Prouosts in Turgon, to witte, at Arbonna, Tanney, Guttingen, and Gottliebe. The Chapter of Constance hath Iurisdiction within Altnaw . The Abbey of Auge the rich, nowe vnited and incorporated with the Byshoppricke of Conitance, hath great reuennewes, and many Iurifdictions in the countries of Turow. to wit, Stekbure, Bernange, Mannebach, Ermatingen, Tribeltingen, erc. Many Gentlemen are vatilailes to this Abbey. The Abbot of the Hermitage, is also Lord of Efchentz. In like manner, the Abbey of S. Gall, hath Jurisdiction in some Villages: as also the Abbeves founded in the countrey of Turgow haue, as Tobel, the Commanderie of the Knightes of Saint John, Fischinge, the Abbey of Benedictines, It- The Abbeyof tinge, Chartroufe, Munsterlinge and Ten- Benedictines. mikon. The Abbey of the Monkes of the Cisteaux order. Also Veldbach.Calchere Saint Katharine du Val, nere to Diffenhow; and some other Prouosts in one or two Villages, and fometimes in many, haue Jurifdiction.

There are great store of Castles, ap- Of Castles pertaining vnto divers Gentlemen, who Gentlemen dwell there, and enjoy their ancient Iurifdictions: the names of which Castles I will recite, together with the Lords vnto whom they belong. The Lords of Plane dwell for the present time at Wellenberg and Griefenberg. Herdere and Burgelle are to the Lords of Landberg. Wengie belongeth to the Lords of Giel. Spiegelberg, to the Lordes of Montorat. Vinfeld vnto the Lords of Schelneberg, and of Gemminge. Vpon the limites of the countrey, there is a Towne belonging to the Count of Oberstein. Nunenbourg and Mammer appertaine to the Lords of Tum. Salenstein and Blidec, to the Lords of Hanuille. Clingenberg, to the Lordes of Herdneheimer. Ottlishoufe, to the Lords of Schenck. Epifhouse, to the Lords of Hagenuille. Liebenfels, to the Lords of Lanz. Clinge, to the Lords of Brum. Neufere, to the Lords of Stocker. Sonnenberg, to the Lords of Gutenfon. There are many castles also ruined Castles ruined the most part of whose Iurisdictions, doe belong vnto Ecclesiastical persons: but other some of them belong vnto Gentlemen dwelling in other castles, and also vnto some particular men of the Coun-

Befide, the Abbey of Rinow hath itt- The Abbot flice both civill and criminal in the towne Rinow. of Rinow, which appeareth to be very ancient, although it hath no store of beautifull buildings. Some are of opinion, that the Romaines planted theyr campe there heeretofore, to encounter with the Germaines.

Chap.17. Of the gouernment of Turgovv.

The life with-Rheine, the Abbey of the Benedictines is to be feene, one of the most ancient in all Switzerland. The Abbot is Lord of the Towne; neuerthelesse, if any Malesactor be condemned to death the is deliuered vnto the Prouost or Amman of the Prouince, and his goods remaine feized and confiscated to the seuen Cantons. They The Standard of Rinow have their standard, under which they march in Warre for the Switzers. Moreover, there are some Towns in Turgon, which continue in the Switzers protection, and have their Franchifes & pri-uiledges verie ample, & Iurisdiction par-Epitcopalla.

There is another Towne, named Bif-Bischoffzel,or chaffzell, at the meeting of two Rivers, called Sittera and Tur, which is well into the countrey of Turgow: and it hath his Standard, where under the fouldiers goe to Warre for the Switzers. But the Gouernour of the countrey is onely but to bee seene there, and can commaund nothing of the inhabitants, who are subject (in some things) vnto the Byshoppe of Constance, yet hee gouerneth according to their ordinances. The Byshop hath a Bayliffe in the Ca-

ancient Senatours, that houerne the Common-wealth with the Councellers.

fes, and there is no appeale from the fenfile of the Towne, to whom appertaineth The Byshops Bailiffe in the the moitie of the Fines: but the Townestowne Caftle, men doe elect the Councel, and the two Presidents out of them, whom they call

The Councell One of the two, judgeth in criminal cau-tence of the Senate: neither is it lawfull to draw a Bourgesse before any other Iustice then that of the Towne. The Impost of Wine, and other Reuennews belong to the common-wealth. When the Byshoppe taketh his Oathe of the Founds-The Byshop men, hee promiseth first himselfe, neuer ukethoathof the townsmen to diminish in any manner whatsoever, their auncient Priniledges and Franchi-

Arbonna is an ancient Towne, on the The auncient Towne, on the towne of Arteninus Lake of Constance, whereof Antoninus onna on the maketh mention in his guide of the waies It is under the dominion of the Byshop of Constance, who hath there a Bayliffe: but they of the Towne doe elect theyr Amman and Councell, who manage civil causes. The Switzers have some Seigneuriall rights in that place: for the caltle is

In the Isle which is not within the popen to them in the times of warre, for best accommodating themselves; and the Inhabitants are theyr Souldiers for fer-

Diessenhow, a Towne vpon the Rheine, betweene Stein and Schaffoule, as also of Diesenhow the countrey of Turgon, and besides the of Rhe ac. feauen Cantons, who are Lordes of this countrey: Berne and Schaffouse have some right in the domination of Diesenhow. Neuerthelesse, the Townesmen give Oath to eight Oath onely to eight Cantons, and have great store of priniledges : their councel and Augrer have the Jurifdiction of fome Townes about it. But all are effeemed to bee under the government of Turgow, and goe to warre with the other for the Switzers: but yet under the Standard of DiesTenhow.

But besides the Jurisdictions of the Ecclesiastickes, and of the Gentlemen: there are many Villages, wherof the Cantons are entirely Lords, and they are called the Iurifdictions of the county of Turgow, and the Officers of the Bayliffe, do holde the pleadings in these Villages. Heeretofore there were divers formes of pleas, and manie customes: but the feauen Cantons (by aduice and confent of the Lords of the Iurifdictions) ordained fuirs and pleas and established a common manner of in Turgow. pleading, thoroughout the whole countrey of Turgow. Belide, if a particular man haue a fuite against the Lord of a lurisdictions he presents it to the Baylisse or mandeth instice. There are two kindes of Law and Iuflice (in the highest degree) in Turgowe: termed Profor they must pleade before the Iusticiary uinciall. bench of the Province, or elfe before the Bayliffe and his affiftants. The Law or Iustice Prouinciall, it appertaineth not onely vnto the featien Cantons, who establish a Gouernour in the countrey: but likewise they of Berne, Fribourg, and Solleurre, have therein their part, whereof wee have given a reason in our former booke.

Gouernor of the country, and of him de-

Sometimes this court of Iustice was held at Winterduer, when as the countrie of Kybourg was joyned to the countrey of Turgow; afterward, it was heldeneere to Constance, when the Emp. Sigi [mond had engaged Winterduer to the Bourgesses of Coffance, & fomtimes in other places: but

The lurisdic-

Order for the

Gg3

The election

in the Prouincial Court.

Power of the Plaintiffe in his plea.

Difference between the Bais liffes Court, & the Prouincial

Courts to th Cantons.

it is fully refolued on at Framenfeld, and I any man ylurge, encroach ypon, enclose, the Cantons have concluded that it shall neuer bee transported any whether else heereafter.

Twelue Iudges are chosen by the Bayliffe, foure of Framenfeld, and four of Turgow : the Bayliffe fits Prefident in name of xii.ludges, gow: the Bayliffe lits Preficent in name by the Bayliffe of ten Cantons; or the Amman of y country, established by the Cantons; or the Licutenantwhom the Bailiffe substituteth in his place. The causes of appeale, con-Causes ended cerning the whole countrey of Turgon, are decided in this Proninciall Court of Inflice, together with the fuits in matters of debt, the knowledge whereof may appertain to this court: also the causes of iniuries, crimes, and other offences deferuing death. The Bayliffe and his affistants (who most often are the Amman of the country, the Secretary, and the cheefe Vther) do censure also in the same suites: & it is at the discresion of the plaintiffe or demander, to make choise before which of the two courts he will pleade.

> The Bayliffe caufeth the fentences and ordinances to bee executed, with imposition of a fine of ten poundes, payable by him that fatisfieth not the fentence in ten dayes. The Provincial court of iustice, imposeth no fine of mony, but banisheth: onely referred, that it condemneth him in a fine that pleadeth his owne cause in person (because the custom is to take one of the ludges to declare the fact) and enters it into the Court where the Judges vie to fit. He that is accused to contemne the ordinances of the Bayliffe, is imprifo-

A man may appeale to the Cantons, Appeale from from the sentence given in either of the Courtes; and, according to the importance of the cause to the seuen Cantons. or to the ten in taking knowledge. Likewife al Fines (as the goods of persons put to death.confiscations, and fines imposed on fuch as are accessaries to crimes deferuing death) doe appertaine partly to the feauen, partly to the ten Cantons. Heere may be alledged (for example fake) mighty and horrid injuries, yet not meriting death: violence done by any man to him that is strictly commaunded to live in peace with his adverfary, outragious acts committed to a man vpon the publique high way, by wounding, robbing, or offering him any fuch like violence. Alfo, if or appropriate to himselfe any part of the high-way, transpose or alter boundes, markes, and limits; or change any goods layed to him by way of pawning or given him in trust to keepe, if he violate Fayth, or for sweare himselfe openly; or if he cary himselfe insolently toward the Bailisse or ludges.&c.

Besides, all such as the Prouinciall court of Iustice declareth guilty of death: Concerning arefent vnto the other Judges with theyr causes, to have the sentence pronounced on them. These ludges are in number foure and twenty, and heretofore the cufrom was, that the Bayliffe loyned twelve Iudges, to the twelue of the Prouinciall Iustice, and chose them thoroughout the countrey, at his owne discretion: but now A custom ried adayes (and oftner then any other) the informer Indges of Framenfeld doe pronounce the therwife pro fentence of death. This is to cut off charges, which would be farre greater vvithout comparison, if the Judges should bee called from divers parts of the country, it

There is no appeale granted from this fentence: neuertheleffe it is permitted to granted with Bayliffe. the Bayliffe, to moderate the ludges fentence, or to alter the manner of the punnishment upon the Offender; or else to faue the condemned mans life; but hee may not (by any meanes) aggrauate, or make heavyer the condemnation.

being of so large extendure.

CHAP. XVII.

Of Sargans.

Sargans, hath heere-the Original tofore had Counted of Sargans, in the Counted of it the name, and fold it vnto the Switzers Countrey . Those

Counts were of the house of Werdenberg, by reason of the Counties thereunto belonging, and also of Montfort, being then divided into many families; but the countrey standeth separated by a certain small River, named Sar. Part of it, aboue the River, hath fome villages; the cheefest whereof whereof is called Regatz, where the law pleas are held: as also the Abbey of Pfauertz, the Abbot where of hath jurisdiction in those quarters. It seemes that this part was heretofore divided from the other fo as the name of Sargans belonged to them that dwelt beneathe the River.

Chap.19. Of the gouernment of Rhinthall.

Of them beand whereof (vndoubtedly) they borrowneathe the River Sar. ed their name. For there is another nother Sal gans or Sa-

Sargans, or of Sarunets, whereof Pliny maketh mention, which at this day is called Engadin, and neere the fourfe or fpring of Rheine: but they which dwell aboue the River, may bee of the quarter of the Rhegusces and Rhucans, at this day tearmed Rhinthall and Rhuchenberg. They have their court of inflice by themselues, and other weights and measures, then they lower court of inflice belongeth to them of Sargans, as likewise the principall Villages have their Court. The last or latest appellations, for causes criminall and capitall, are held at Sargans; where Iudges are chosen, both of the Towne, and from the whole Bayliwicke. Oftentimes, in stead of the Bayliffe, the Amman is Prefident of the country. The Bayliffe himselfe pleadeth against the offender, and hath a Secretary and an Officer. If crimi-nall persons are prisoners at Walhenstat;

then judgement and execution to death is done there: but the Bayliffe fitteth Prefident, and not the Auoyer of Walhenstat.

CHAP. XIX.

Of Rhinthall.

beneathe the River. The towne of Sargans is finall, and hath a Castle, wherein the Baylisse dwel-Of the Bay-lifte & Coun-cell of Sarleth, and it is the cheefest of all the Bayliwicke. There is a councell at Sargans, and gans & their an Auoyer, whom the Switzers (beging Lords there) do establish : as also in another Towne of the same Bayliwick, named Walhenstat, on the Lake of Rive. But the

For crimina and capitall

The Amman gcuerneth

Rhinthall taeth name of he River of

'HE Bayliffe of this Valley (which taketh his name of Rheine, and is vpon the left bancke thereof, about his entrance into the Lake of Constance) maketh his abiding in a finall Towne, called Rhinek, fomewhat below the Valley.

The whole Bayliwick is divided into certaine portions or fee-farmes, which they tearme Hoaf, and these are their names: Alstett, alittle Towne, Marpach, Bernange, Taall, whereon Rhinek dependeth, and dions, Oberriede. Each hath his jurifdiction by it felfe, and two Ammans; whereof the one is enftalled by the Bayliffe of the cantons. and the other by the Abbot of S. Gall, The moity of the fines belongeth to the Abbot, and the other part to the Cantons. Neuertheleste, at Alftett the fines are di- The division uided into three parts, whereof the third appertaineth to the inhabitants. Some fay, that the higher and lower jurisdiction of this place, belongeth to the Prince of Austria. The lower court of justice of Lustenow (which is a Village in the Bayliwicke of Rhinthall) appertaineth to the Counts of Amifa. The acknowledgment of criminall causes, belongeth to the cantons: and their Bayliffe caufeth the fentences to bee executed in those places where the delicts were committed. hauing Ammans for their Judges.

The inhabitants of this Valley doe principally imploy themselves in husban- habitants of dry about their Vines, and spinning lin-nen yarne, which they sell at S. Gall, & line their time. very commodioufly by thefe meanes. Alfo they of S. Gall have flore of lands, and many vineyards in this Valley, with plenty of Vine-dreffers and Barne-keepers: in regard whereof, they fet a taxation on A taxe fet vp. the wine with the inhabitants of Rhin-on the wine to fuch as are thall, and fet downe a price to be payed by buyers before the Masters and others, who buy it before the vintage, vintage time at publike fale, and pay the mony to the Vinc-dreffers. This taxe bindeth not them who have not folde their wine before that time. When the vintage draweth neere, the Deputies of each Village do meete at S. Gall, and the Seigneury appointeth one or two of the councell to fit with them; and then they price vpon (altogether) fet aprice vpon the wines. the wines. the wines. If they cannot agree, but that there are as cluded by armany on the one fide, as on the other: bitration. then the Village, whose turne it is to bee Arbitrator, fets downe the determination. For every Village (in his rancke and place) hath the right and priviledge of arbitration, when as the taxers cannot, or will not agree together. The price agreed vpon, then they begin to cut and gather grapes for the vintage : but it is not law-

The Baylia and their teucrall jurifdi

Acknowledge

full to begin before.

CHAP.XX.

Of the Barons of Altfax.

Betweene the Bayliwicke of Rhinthall, and the county of Werdenberg, you may fee the Seigneury belonging to the Barons of Alt lax. Now, although the Barons are soueraigne Lords; yet notwithstanding, in regard of the scituation of Rhinthall, I was not willing to passe any further, without making fome mention thereof.

The race of the Lords of Altlax is rons of Altiax

So named

of the Porest of Hitcinia running tho-

Gentlemen

descended of

The scituari.

Seigneury of

on of the

The Antiqui- most ancient, and hee that hath written concerning Iustes and Tournaments, declareth, that the Emperour Henry, firnamed the Faulconer or Fowler, made choise among all the Gentlemen of Suabas of Frederick, Baron of Alt/ax, to prescribe to others, the order to be observed in those Royall pastimes. They of Mifauk in the Grifons country (whom Pliny calleth * Hir laces, at the Trophec of Auquitus) were fometimes subjects to the Barons of Monfax: to whom the Emperour Sigismond gaue the name and dignity of Counts, and Wolffe, Baron of Monfax was in the warre against the Obstrites, in the yeare nine hundred, thirty fiue. Some fay, that those Counts descended of the house of Altsax, and that there are many Gentlemen (of very ancient race) in the country of the Grifons, descended of the first Rhatians, who were of Tuscany, and vaunt themselves also to be iffued of the Romanes.

In Antiquity, the Lords of Altfax dwelt in the Grifons country. For neere to the Valley of Lengs, where they inhabite, who (among all other) vaunt and glorifie themselues, to bee of most noble and ancient race; there is the Village of Obier-fax, which retaineth yet the name of that

Family, and it hath a Castle of the same name. I am of the minde then, that the descended (with many other of the Gri-fons) of the Tuscanes, who were before the Romanes. Also the country, whereof they are Lords to this day, was heerethe firft Rhatians. The Valley of Longs.

The original house of Alufax is Grifon by originall, and of the house of Altiax of the Grisons.

tofore reputed to be of the Grifons: confidering, that Strabo extendeth the Grifons limits, so farre as the Lake of Con. This Baronny hath had heeretofore

Two ancient two ftrong Castles, to wit, Sax (which was Castles be. burnt before the warre of Appenzell) and longing to the Fortege, builded afterward, vpon the warranty of Virich of Altfax, Abbot of S. Gall, at fuch time as the Barons were in warre against the Counts of Montfort. There are many Villages in this Valley, fubice to the Barons of Altfax. If any warre threaten Switzerland, they chuse whenwarin their most valiant Soldiours, which they fend to their succour. Also Huldrich, Father to Huldrich Phillip, now Baron of Altfax, fought valiantly for the Switzers, in the warre which they had against the Emperour Maximillian, and the league of Suaba : and as a recompence and acknowledgement of his valor, the Cantons gane him divers peeces of Artillery.

It is a long time fince the Barons of of Altiax Altiax have beene Bourgesses of Zurich, Bourgeste d the rest of the Cantons never had any Zurich. dominion ouer the Barons of Altfax: but themselues were soueraigne Lords, and no man might appeale fro their fentence, to any other iustice. At this day, there is no more of this race of the Barons of Altfax left, but one, namely, the Lord Huldrich Phillip: but by the grace of God,it The now liis now augmented, because this lord hath had (by two wines) fine somes, already Bronof Ar of good stature, and which promise faire far. hope, namely, Albert John, Thibault John, Phillip John, John Christopher, and John Huldrich.

CHAP.XXI.

The Bayliwicks or Governments of Italy.

HE first and principall of Luganothe the foure Bayliwicks of 164- first Bayliwick by is called Lugano, and the Bayliffe is called a Captain, commaunding ouer all the

foure, if any warre doth happen vnexpe-

The second is that of Locarna, almost lecond of of as great and large extendure, as Lugano. I will fet downe in this Chapter, an exact description of the Bayliwicke and Towne of Locarna, made (at my request) by M. Thaddeus Dun, Physicion and a na-A má or great tiue of Locarna, my very good friend. For therby may be knowne, what the gouernment of the other Bayliwicks is which althogh they are not of the like extendure, neither have the same policy, vet not withstanding, they are governed in the same manner in respect of the Bayliffe, and dominion of the Switzers.

The Towne of Locarna, is called Lug-gari by the Germanes, and Locarno by the Italians. Some do hold it to be fo named.

country round about, there is no meane

number of cattell. It is feated on a plaine.

betweene the foote of an high Mountain, and the Banck of the Lake Maior . . Towards the East it hath the head and beginning of this Lake to the South, the neck of the Lake, and the high Mountaines. It extendeth and shooteth it selfe out along the middle of the Lake, to his fall, and towards the North are also very high Montaines. To the West, and against the lands belonging to the Bayliwicke of Bel-lizona, is a plaine of great length, yeelding

yearely a plentifull Hay-haruest, & thwart

it paffeth Thefina. Neere to the Towne, betweene this plaine, the Towne it felfe,

the foote of the Mountains, and the Lake bancks, is a fruitfull parcell of Land for Corne and Wine, and a great goodly field, abounding with graffe; which heretofore hath beene much more spacious,

but the neighbouring River (by vndermi-ning it)hath borne away a great part ther-

of. The Mountaines of long extendure, are very aptly husbanded, having goodly

carna is great, by reason of the Families therein, to the number of foure hundred,

or thereabout: and there is not any greater Towne about the Lake Maior, neyther are there more Gentlemen in any towne of that quarter, by which reason, it is the cheefe and principall Towne. This description doth demonstrate, how pleasant

the place is, the ayre also is there temperate, sweete, and healthfull, euen as much as can bee defired. The windes of the South do blow there very little, and even

Heereby we may conjecture, that Lo-and faire vineyards in them.

Chap.21.

onut Locarna.and how it as being a place of flesh : because in al the istrimated by enery way. The fleshy Territory,or ingreat plen-

The descripti-

ics in Locarf Gentleme.

Peaceth to h as tired, broken, and fpent, by reason of the Mountaines defencing before it. The North winde is there also sweet enough, because the high Mountaines doe couer the Towne. From the East to the West, the windes breathe at their eafe; and there is not a Pond, or Marthy plot in this quarter, fo that to fay all in a word, the place is fufficiently pleafing.

Heeretofore, the towne of Locarna had a great & strong castle, of very good- The ancient ly shew, in regard of the many Towers & of Locarna. Turrets, and well engire with fightly Ditches. It was sometimes the principall dwelling of the Counts of Rulques and the French were Masters there, the space of thirteene yeares, but yet could not expell the Counts. There is a Pallace within the faide Castle, which is the Bayliss house: there also abideth the Trucheman or Interpreter, and the two Switzer Ar- imployed. chers of his Guard, of whom wee shall make more ample mention hecreafter: within the walles enclosure of this Cafile, there was a goodly Hauen or Port, where the Ships for warre were kept.

The Castle was square and quadrangular beautified with Towers at each corner, and had avery fitrong wall about it. At cient Caftle. that time, the Lake Major washed the foote of the Castle fo that the Ships were casily sent forth vpon the Lake. But now, the River of Madia hath gathered such aboundance of fand and grauell, as the place is become farre enough off from the Lake. Since the yeare one thousand, fine hundred, thirty one, the Switzers wholly This goodly ruined the Caftle, except the Pallace ; the | Caftle was foundations are yet to be feene, and the by the Switwalles of many houses, for there was not zers. any castle so strong in all the country. Alfo it was munited with Artillery of all forts, and other furnishments for warre, in great plenty. Frances Guicchiardine maketh mention in the fift Booke of his Mi- Lib.5.11.12. stories, that fifteene thousand Switzers got themselves together, to go and assault this castle, thereof he speaketh againe in twelfth. Long fince in the times of the Dukes of Millaine, the whole country was com- The exten. manded by the Bayliffe of Locarna (ex- Bayliwicke of cept the towne of Brisag) and it was a Locarna. county, wherof the Rusques were Lords, they beeing Gentlemen of marke in the the eleventh Booke, and at the end of the Guicchlard in

The County of Locarna divided in rwaine.

Of the fertility of the country, and encreale of their Vines.

Of the Fields and Meddow grounds a-bout Locarna

Two harnefts yeare continually.

Masters sometimes, but after they furrendred it to the Duke of Millaine, in the veare one thousand, soure hundred and fixteene. But afterward, this county was divided in two parts, and the Vale Madia separated from the Bayliwicke of Locar-

At that time also, the Vale of Verza-Sche and Gambaron (whereof shall be spoken heereafter) obtayned leaue, to elect their Podestats. The extendure of the Bayliwicke of Locarna, may bee knowne by the Parishes, whereof there are twenty and more.

The foote-ground of the Mountains of Locarna, and a great part of the Territory, yeeldeth plenty of very good wines. In the Hilles and Mountaines, the Vines are bound high, and store of good grasse groweth under them. On the plaines they Thoote vp about Elmes and other Trees, as Hops do about Poles: also the twigs as being wouen together, and bound at the ends, are extended from one Tree to another. But if they stand too farre off, where the branches come too short, then they fixe poles in the midft, whereto they fasten the branches, for feare leste they should hinder the Cornes encrease, or the other forts of pulle, which are also there fowne. The Vines are of great and incredible yeelding, the grapes huge, and very ripe, which causeth an extraordinary plety of wine. The fields cannot be very spacious, in regard of the fo neere neighbouring Lake and Mountaines: yet notwithstanding, they are very fertile, by reason of the grounds goodnesse, which the husbandmen do fatten and labour very diligently. For because there are no great store of fields and meddowes, and the towne is fufficiently peopled; their paines are performed at the better leviures. Many times they render twenty graines for one, and they have two Harnests in one yeare. In the Moneth of June, they reape and gather Wheat and Rie: In the Moneth of October, they have the like of Millet, Panicke, and other Pulses fowed in Spring

The Mountaines and Vallies are furnished with cattell in great aboundance, especially Goates. Also there is plenty of Partridges, Phezants, Larks, Hares, Co-towne of Comma, whereof allo they were nies, Butter, Cheefe, and admirable ftore What fich, Marker Comerimes, but after they furrened of Cheftnuts, for the nourifhment of Foots, and butters are butters and butt country people. At the beginning, they ther helpful eate them rawe, then dryed, and after country should be ward boyled, rofted, and fried. Also they foordein make Meale of them for Bread, and that Meale serues the to divers vses : but Gentlemen eate chestnuts among their other delicates.

When therefore there is a good season of chestnuts, the dearth of other victuals is not great in that country: wher alfo is flore of good Figs, variety of Ap- kindes of ples, Peaches, Peares, Cheries, and other fruites, and dainty fruites, as Plums of divers kindes. dainty filh. Pomgranets, Citrons, Olives, Oranges, and other fruites in great plenty. The Lake aboundeth with Fish, dainty and good; especially Trowts, whereof store are brought & fold in Millaine. In briefe, the country is enriched with all good All bleffings things, for the maintenance of life; yet for the life fometimes there is fcarfity of Corne, by man, reason of the countries narrownesse, and Salt is brought thether from other pla-

Euery Thursday there is a great Mar- A market a ket at Locarna, where meete no meane Locarna euc. ftore of people. You shall see many boats ry Thursday, arrive there, from all the Townes of the Lake Major, from whence come divers Merchants, rather to buy, then fell. They come thether also from fundry parts of the Dutchy of Millaine, from Lugano and Bellizona, neighbouring Bayliwicks: as alfo from Milank, and the Valley of Liuiner not freaking of them about Locarna, and the vale Madia: It is one of the goodliest Markets in all those countries. There is a very spacious place neere to the Lake, where the Merchants fet vp Tents, to defend them from raine, and fuch like acci-

The people of Locarna are divided Noblemen, into three degrees, to wit, Noblemen, and Bourgefis, a cient citrizens, whom they call Bourgef-the three degrees, and the inhabitants, descended from greer of policy in the control of th to dwell at Locarns, more then an hundred yeares before.

There is a fourth race noble, as of A fourth dethe Aurelles, Muraltes, Magorians, and fcent of No Duns. That of the Duns is the most blemen. auncient, and before the other: their houses and goods beeing partly at Locarna, partly at Scone, which is a Towne

The Commisand authority.

lowedto he Commiffary to be his nterpreter. and speakes both the languages to whom uery Citty.

The peop!e to eled Ma.

The election

Of the government of Italy.

Chap.21. neere to Locarna, but not fo wel peopled, | who is one of the Bourgesses of Locarna, seated on a plaine neere to the Lake. At and continueth as long time in that Offuch time as the Counts of Rufque commanded, the Duns were fauoured and honoured, more then the other Nobles, and advanced to great estates. And the Arms of the Counts of Rusque, magnificently illustrated, are yet to bee feene (outward-Inmemory of ormer receily) on the Duns Pallace at Iocarna. Next vinder name of the people, are reckoned all them that dwell in the Vallies and Villages, dependants on Locarna. The whole body of the Seigneury or Bayliwicke, is

As for the Bayliffe, whom they call

Cantons, and fent to Locarna euery yeare, by one of the faid cantons, as it is then in rancke, according to their lawes and alli-

The Commission Commission, hee is chosen by the twelve eiseleded.

ances. This commissary is Soueraigne. and hath full power to chaffife the faulty; yea, to condemne to death, if the case do lo require. His custome is to take wife > his charge til he haue first solemnly sworn and promifed, to keepe the lawes and ordinances, which the inhabitants teatme municipall rights. Which being done the people there prefent, do acknowledge him for their lawfull Governor with lo-called the Comminalty.

lemne and publike acclamations, & fweat ring faithfully to obey him Now because the commissiony spear Trucheman keth the Switzers language and the people Italian; the Lords of the Leagues do allow him a Truchman, who vnderstands causes: which the Secretary or Prognotary writeth downe in Latine. The commissiary medleth not with the affaires of the common-wealth, because the people have full power to elect Magistrates and Officers, to ordaine of all things concerning the publike estate.

they pay wages. By entremife of the Trucheman, the commissive the parties that plead as Atturnies or Aduocates, do understand each other, and so debate the Moreouer, they elect an ordinary Atturney, who pursueth crimmall causes, & keepeth the fines adjudged to the common purfle, which they call, The fines Chamber The Lords of the leagues give order for the election of this Atturney;

fice as pleafeth the faid Lords. They establish also the Receivers of The Receithe taxes. For every yeare, in Summer, uers of the when the twelve Ambaffadours of the taxes & tolles Cantons come thether: they give the farming of the taxe (mittigating a certain fumme) to one, or to many Bourgeffes, who then also receive ample power, to exact the taxe, and at the yeares end they

The Commissary chuseth (often- The Officer times) a Switzer Officer, who walketh dai-ly attending on him, with an Halbert and its Commisa Sword. He is the cheefest of the Serieants, that arresteth men, and guardeth offenders. When the Ambaffadors come to Locarna, hee is their Viher: alforthey pay him his wages as well as the Truche-man. The fame Commissary electeth his The Lieure-Lieutenant fome one of the Bourgesles, nant to the & understanding men, experrin the lawes fitte to decide fuires and criminall causes. Commissary. and manners of the country, to bee his councellers ... Hee is norrectived into

This Lieutenant gives attendance in the Commiffaries absence, or when hee is with held by fickneffe, or any other hinderance: having (in those causes) the same power and authority as the Commissary

Moreover, the councell (of whom The Seriants we shall speake presently) makes choise of and Officers fome Sericants among the people. Their charge is to ferue the Common-wealth, and to execute the commands of the co-miffary. The Bourgeffes and inhabitants that Of the counare of this County and Comminalty, do cell their ma meete together according to their cuflome, which yearely is the first day of Iaders observed nuary, and then they elect the one and among them twenty councellers of the Common- on of coun. wealth. Twelue among them are of Zb- cellers. carna; three of the towne of Scone, which is neere: the other fixe are of the Vallies and Villages round about. As concerning the twelve of Locarna; fixe of them are Noblemen, foure Bourgestes, & two inhabitants vet fometimes three, and fine Nobles. The three of scone, there is one of the family of Gentlemen, called Duns, and the two other are of the body of the people. The other fixe, whom I have faid tobe of Villages and Vallies, are of fuch places, as acknowledge no other Gouernour, but the fore-mentioned Commiffarv.

A contrary kinde of gouernment & Officers.

fary. This I speake in regard of the towne of Brifag, the Valley of Verzasche, & Gabaron: which have their Podestats or Lieutenants, and fome rights apart by themfelucs, as we thall thew anon, and they do not elect any councellers.

What charge

Ofthe feuen

what their

The Secret

A Treasurer

euery yeare

Confuls appointed and their office.

ry or Chan cellor.

office is,

The fum of one of the leaft affeiffe. ments.

The councell of the Bayliwicke of Locarna, hath charge to watch and waite on the affaires of the common-wealth: to conclude on needfull expences & wages: to dispose and set in order, whatsoener feemeth for the good of the weale publike fit and convenient. Scuen Procurators or Atturnies are added to the one and twenty councellers; who give order, that the decrees of the councel may be effectually executed, and that eucry man do his duty thoroughly & faithfully. They stand also in stead of Voyers or Survayors: because they take charge of publike buildings. In like manner, there is a Secretary whom they call Chancellor; and he fetteth downe in writing, all things whatfoeuer that are concluded on by the councell.

And for a finuch as the Comminalty lockes not up any of the publike monies, there is yearely a new Treasurer elected, who exacteth and collecteth of confuls and communities fuch fummes of money as are imposed by the councell. For euery community or parish hath his Confull To called, because they councell and aduife that which is necessary for the communities welfare) and is in Office as a Receiuer. They leuye vpon euery Father of the Family, or on each house, the money whereat they are affeffed by the councel, and afterward bring all to the Treasurer. The manner of affeffing these summes, is according to the estimation of goods, & the number of housholds in every com-There is not any Parith nor Family

(how little focuer it bee) but justly knoweth how much it is valued at in the affeffement. One of their cottifations amouteth to an hundred pounds of the Empire: which make feuen and twenty Florins of gold, or thereabout. The Confuls do first collect this fumme of the Families, and then deliuer it into the Treasurers hands, and he afterward paies it to the Seigneurs of the annuall accounts. Then it is payed out in wages, to the Bayliffe, to the Phyfitions, to Masters of Schooles, Officers, and other persons, who are al at wages of the common-wealth: And beside, it acquitteth all other publike charges. The yeare being expired, hee yeeldeth vp his The Treasisaccount to the councell, or to the Procurators. If there be more omitted then re- cell. ceiued: his fuccessour disbursseth it himselfe. Contrariwise if the receipt doe furmount the ordinary charge, the remainder is deliuered ouer vnto his successour. Moreouer, the fore-named Magistrates make choise of two sufficient men to have a care of food and prouifion. And other two are elected by the councell to fee the waves and freetes duely and decently repaired and well kept.

Now in regard that the country is enuironed with Mountaines and Vallies, repleated with woods of extraordinary taul Forrest trees exquifite for their beauty and braue branching (among others the Pine, which produceth very excellent Agaricke, and the Firre-tree, notable for building, and whereof they of Locarna make very great benefit) the Merchant dealing in wood, do electa Judge or Master of the Forests, who decidethall differences proceeding Mafter of the in fuch cafes : When the taule trees are Forefi, whis cut, they bring knowledge therof to him. and then he ordereth their leffer cutting, for more commodious conuaying them through the narrow passages and vallies, as also the Rocky crooked windings, to the Lake Major. When they are there thipt in apt Barques and Boats, they passe along the Lake, and then on the The sina to Millaine and Pania, in great Trunkes; Beames, Joifts, and long Planks; together with great quantities of wood-coales, and other brush-wood, for heating Ouens. Afterward, they descend with them from Pania, by the River Po (wherein The sina dischargeth inselse) to farre as Cremona, and Plafentia, and may goe also to Ferrara, Mantua, Venice, and to the Adriaticke Sea. The trunks of the trees have their length and thicknesse inst, and the Merchants marks on them. The valley of Ver-their market zasche, the vale Madia, and other neight on the trunks bouring places, doe also send away Trees very aboundantly, when the Rivers fwell higher then their viuall wont.

The towne of Brisag, which is vpon the Lake Major towards the North, and ing to the Bar at the end of the country which the Swit- liwick of Lozers hold, is of the Bayliwicke of Locarna, caina.

Chap. 21.

The Locarni

uobio. It hath alfo to the East, the Vallie of Verzasche, taking his name of a River so called, and thence descending: Also Gambaron to the South, and on the Lake Maior. These places have their Podestats, who judge in civill causes: for as concerning them criminall, the knowledge of them appertaineth to the Commissary of Locarna. There is appeale granted from the fentence in civill causes, if it seeme good to the party condemned. They of the (Families: namely all fuch as would not Valley of Verzasche, and of Gambaron, do chuse (among themselues) such persons as they please, to be their Podestats: but the people of Brifag have not that authority, but yearely doe elect a Lieutenant, who is of the Family of the Aurelles. Gentlemen of Locarna. The Inhabitants of this place are not cottifed or feffed, as the other Communities be: but onely pay their part of rentage due, to the Lords of the leagues, and of wages to the Commissary. Beside, they furnish towards the charges that are in their Villages and Communities. Of this Towne of Locarna thus described, are descended the Locarnians dwelling at Zurich, and in other places. It is not about thirty yeares fince, that some Citrizens of Locarna, yet living, affected to the new Religion; tooke knowledge and is but foure miles diffant off from Ca- | thereof, by the reading of certain books, and afterward enstructed it to many of their Townesmen. From the yeare one thouland, fine hundred, forty two, vntill Religion the the yeare one thousand, fine hundred, fifty | movert is per foure, the zeale and number of them be- more it profgan to encrease, and notwithstanding the Pereth. perfecutions, embraced it the more earneftly. The most part of the Seigneurs and people, not willing to fuffer it, expulfed (in the yeare following) about thirty forfake that new opinion, and returne againe to the Romane Church. There were people of all kindes in this troope, Nobles, Gentles, and Yeomen; learned Perfecution and vnlearned; rich and poore; great and Christians fmall; husbands without their wives, and touch-ftone. wines without their husbands; fathers without their children, & children without their fathers. The men of Zurich received them very louingly, and did, and vet do many kinde courtesses to them: fo that divers of the are embraced as Bourgeffes, and the rest maintained at the expences of the Seigneury. At the beginning, they received a good fum of monie, fent by them of Berne, and another collected at Basile, and in some other Townes of Sauoye, where-with the poore people haue bene long time maintained.

THE

The End of the third Booke.

Salt digged

of Gold, Sil

Gold in Ri-

THE FOVRTH BOOKE.

CHAP. I.

Of the Kingdome and Court of Spaine; the Lawes. Customes, and manners of the people, as also the division and scituation of the Country.

> Paine, so tearmed of r aine, to tearmed of * Hispalis, or of * Hef-

Confines in this manner. On the East the Mediterranean

Sea: On the VVeff, the Ocean: On the South, the streights of Gibraltare: And on the North, the Pyrenean Mountains, which make division of France & Spaine.

The principall Rivers in this Province.

are fixe in number: Myuo, Duria, Traia,

Guadiana, Guadalquabir, and Iberus. This

Kingdome (by our Auncients) was diuided into three parts, to wit ; Batica, Lust-tania, and Tarraconia. At this day, Bati-ca contayneth three Regions, namely,

Granata, with her Citty Royall, which is called Granada; Andalusia, with the City of Sinill; and Estramadura, with the City of Menda. Lulitania hath two Regions to wit, Portugall, with the Citty Royall, named Lisborne : and Galicia, with the cit-ty that is called Compostella, where the body of S. James is faide to be. Tarraconia hath nine Regions ; as Arragon, with the citty of * Sarragoffa; Nauarre, with the citty of Pampalona; Cathalonia, with the citty of Barcellona; Bifcay, with the city of Viluero: * Castile the elder, with the citty of Burges or Braga; Castile the newer.

with the citty of Tolledo; Leupusca, with the citty of S. Sebastiano: Valenza, with the citty of Valencia; Murgia, with the cit-peria or Helperus, by being a part of Europe, and neerest to the VVest ; hath her

The Cirty Siuil in Bæti ca.
The West flar, and fup. poled to be Country Westward.

Rivers in Spaine.

Thefirft three divisions of Spaine, and how fince altered. Bætica. Eftremadura,

Called alfo Cæfar augu-

* Called also Viterior and Citerior.

the Ocean Sea, and in the Mediterranean there are three feuerall Islands, subjected to the government of Valencia, to wit Jeniza Majorica and Minorica. The East Indiaes; and the Spaniards of Sivill and Caliz, into the West. The chrcumfrence of Spaine is about 1893 miles. The kingdom of Portugall, fro the South part, beginneth at the citty of Leppe, and on the North it extendeth to Baiona of Galicia. The most notable Ports or Ha-Ribadeo: the Port Jeroll: and the Port delpart, are the Port di Monuedra; the Port of Portugall; the Port of Lisborne; & the Port Secuball. On the South part are the Port di Siluas; the Port of Sinill; the Port of Calax; and the Port of Caliz in the Spaine hath feuen Arch-Bifhoppricks, Archithopand the refidence is made in Tarracomia, pricis, Rain in Sarragoffa, in Tolledo, in Compostella, in vader their Braga, in Lisbona, and in Granata. Vnder commend the aboue-named Arch-Bishopricks, are many Citties and their Bishops; as Barcellona, Girona, Lerida, Tortofa, Valenza, Maiorica, Ostia, Monuedro, Burgos, Salamanca, Corduba, Legiou, Tariffa, Almaria, Siniglia, and others.

This Country (in many places) is not reduced to tillage & husbandry, because lage or husbandry the ground confifts of a very stony earth, places of the and is much squallide and filthy through Country. desertnesse: notwithstanding, in respect of Affrica it is very fertile, and this enfueth through the ouer-great heate which is ty fo called. In the kingdome of Granada, ther is an Island named Caliz, which hath of Islandin a citty also called by the same name. In the kingdom of Spaine. Portugals vie their nauigation into the Nauigation, uens of Spaine, on the North part, are S. The cheefe Sebastiano; the Port Galette; the Port An-urns in Spia drea; the Port di S. Vincenzo; the Port of Onthe north. le Grugne, or of the Groyne. On the VVeft On the Well On the South Island; and the Port Beger; & the famous Port Cartagenia. On the East part is Port On the East. Calibre, now called Porto venere.

rance and

The Spanish

that are necessary for man : as in VVine, Corne, Fruites, Oyle, Cattell, Line for all garments, yron mettals, VVaxe, Hony, VVaters well stored with Fish, and such other like things. They make no Salt by boyling or feething, but dig it out of the earth. And they have not fo many windes as France; neyther are they fo flored with marish and fenny grounds, whereby the ayre is much corrupted. There is not found any Gold, Silver, or Yron, fo good and approued, or in such plenty, as in Spaine, and the gold is taken not only out of the Mines, but also out of the Rivers, which when they encrease by much plenty of raine; they doe produce fandes of gold, & especially the Riner Tagus. There are found out in many places, divers wels and springs of hot and cold water; maruailoufly good for the helpe of divers & fundry infirmities, which happen to the bodies of men. There is likewife great abundance of Beafts, both wilde and tame; Swift maning and especially of swift horses, which were supposed by our Elders, to bee conceived by the windes. They have no hurtful creacontentainmentures in any great store, Conies onely excepted, who making their caues under the ground, doe much harme to the rootes growing in the earth. Their Rivers, glide away very gently, for hardly can their motion be differred and therefore they do not ouer-flow, or drowne the fields, being also well stored with Fith, because the Sea (by helpe of the Rivers) doth not fend any plenty on land . Galicia is much The gold Mines of Ga-kita commended for the Mines there breeding, and sometime it hapneth in this Region, that by plowing vp the ground, the people finde little graynes of gold. The language of the Spamards, is not much different from the Italians; from whom they received it, whe they were subjected to the Romane Empire. On the Northerly part, the Prouince is not fo colde as in that climate of France: for it fendeth into France, Oyle, Hony, Waxe, Saffron, Madder, Barly, dying coulors, Chuchinelo, Snger, Oliues, Lemons, Dates, Cedar, Pomgranats, and other things; but especially many thousand weights of wool,& muchwine, dried plums or pruins, rafines, almonds, chefnuts, bay-berries, faired falmon, and other things, which are fent into Italy, & fro thence transported to France.

in Affrica. It aboundeth in all those things

The temperature and complexion of the Spaniards, is much more hot and dry. The temper and their coullor more dun & foggy, the lof the Spani that of the French : because they are more ard, compacold and moift, having their flesh more red with the fost and their could are the french. foft, and their coullor whiter, & the French women are more gentle, and apt to conceine children then the Spanily are. The Spaniards are more raw-boned men of Their difpolibody, the the French, and in war they feed and approfile with councell and arte, being filent by na- to war. ture:as men that know most exquisitely, how to diffemble their owne intentions. walking very granely, and vfing much ceremonious behaujour in their customs & qualities. They drinke wine temperately, line with great respect & are of acute vnderstanding & knowledge in their words. In Spain there are a great number of Princes, Dukes, Marqueffes, Earles, & Barons, and Nobility and every one of them hath the revenues of Spaine, & and profits from 50. to 60. thousand Ducates yearely. The Marqueffes are 20, befide the like revenues. The Earls are 60. with revenues from ten, to twenty thoufand Ducates. Then there are Viscounts, Gouernors, and Barons, which are called The Adalan-Adalantadoes. There are great Masters of tad ies of the Orders of knighthood; as of S. lames, Great Maof Alcantara, of Calatrana, of S. John of Je- fters of the rufalem, of the Rhodes, of Montefe, and o- Orders of thers; who dispend (each one) about so. thousand Ducates in revenues yearely. The women go pompeoufly apparelled, The women wearing rich eare-rings of Pearl & Gold, of Spaine, having their garments plaited, after the their attire manner of Italy. VVhen they walk abroad our. out of their houses, the men-seruants goe before them, and the maids follow after. The most part of them do willingly drink water, and so paint their faces with white and red, that it is most lothsom to behold. They are discreet in speech, yet prettily wanton and lafeiuious, & deliuered with effectuall gestures, especially in amorous matters. It is not many yeares fince that the people of this Pronince, hath gotten The same for a great name of military feruice, as men Military ferthat are most patient in labors, surfering long antiquimost valiantly both thirst and hunger, and ty among the being matchleffe for subtilties in Soldier- Spaniards, like affaires, quicke and nimble of body, both for pursuit & flight. They have conquered many countries, bringing thence very honourable victories, especially vnder Charles the fift. Emperor.

the Moores

holly beate

of their kings

The birth of Portugall ad-

minion of

352

The loue and beneuolence of Subjects is much encrea led by the life according to his lawer.

Spaine fubiceted to the Moores for many yeares

Spaine in the gouernment of perty kings

I Tatracon. 2 Carthage. 3 Lufitania 4 Gallicia. 5 Bætica. 6 Tingitana.

The Vandale got the rule o Spaine.

No Kings of Spaine,but Kingsefthe

Of the Maiesty Royall. THE Kings of Spaine, as great in power, and valorous, in regard of Military pronision, were alwayes held in no meane reuerence among their people. For men bearing ordinarily affection to their Soueraigne, their beneuolence is fo much the more encreased, by how much the King lineth vertuously and justly, according to the ordination of his owne lawes, for fo shall hee be both loued and ferued. And in conclusion, the worthy deeds of his Lords, that are enriched with voderstanding and judgement, doe highly support him: even as the wicked actions of fuch as know not how to rule and gouerne, doth ruinate & ouerthrow him. The Kings of Spaine have poffeffed this Province many yeares peaceably. Moores; whom at length they expelled. and reduced the whole politicke body to a quiet condition, and greatly denoted to the catholique church, whereon the King attained to the title of Catholique King. The king then is the cheefe Ruler of the kingdome, and ordereth matters as beft him pleaseth: but heere it shall not much fome other observations, concerning the originall & fuccession of this kingdome. Spaine in her yonger daies was held by fundry petty Kings and Tetrarches, & at terward became divided into many commonwealths fix in number as fome have written. The Carthagenians, a people of Affrica, hazzarding their fortune thether held one part therof, and poffeffed themfelues of that V Citties, Townes, and places; vntil they were expelled thence by the Komanes, in the time of the Punicke wars. Since when, it was continually fubicct to the Roman common-wealth & reduced into forme of a Province onely in the reigne of the Emperour Augustus. So it remained till the Emperour Honorius in whose dayes, the Vandales (a people of the North parts) broght it vider their command. But they (were foone after) chased thence by the Gothes, who establithed there the feate of their kingdome; which they maintained (in that kinde) for the space of aboue 200 yeares. Nor were they then called kings of Spaine, but kings of the Gothes. In the reigne of Roderick, king of the Gothes, the Moores entred Spaine, in the year 715 they being broght thirher by one named Iulian; in very defpitefull indignation, and to shape out a The Moorfpitefull indignation, and to inape out a in polition way to his bloody relienge, because king of all space. Roderick had dishonoured his Sister, or as others fay) his Daughter, wherof heretofore we have spoken more largely. And fo did the Moores possesse themselves of all Spaine, feizing the citty of Tolledo, which was then the capitall citty. So ended the kingdome and name of the Gothes in Spaine. Nor rested they thus, but pursued on their conquest still, & there remained but Gallicia, the Asturies and Leon : Pelagius, Va which countries king Pelagius, Vnkle and ceffor to King Successor of Rodericke, had fled too for Rodericke refuge & there that up himfelfe, in regard that those places were enuironed with Mountaines, and might well defend and though it was (a long while) nefted by the fhelter him for fome time. But his Succeffors being hardly preffed by the Sarrazins, could no longer refift : wherefore, vader the reigne of Althonfus the fecond they were forced to craue the shelpe of Charlemaigne, king of France, by whose valour and vertue, the Moores were bea- king of France; ten thence a great way, and had bin quite againft the cast out of the country, if the Spaniards differ from our purpole, to fette downe mallice trad bene no hinderance thereto. Afterward, thekings of Leon and Gallicia (for fuch were then their onely titles) being for formerly preferred, began formewhat to efferease in power. And in regard of this expeditio performed by the French, the frength of the Moores was fo weakened & diminished, that many other king- much westdomes were eftablished in Spaine, as that ned of Wanter, by Enocho, Count of Bigorre, in the yeare 950. which hee tooke away from the Maores and Sarrazins by a very valiant conquest of them! And afterward, in the yeare 11 6. was Arragon reduced to domeso Ni a kingdome, by the will and testathent of warre and Ar Sanchio the great fourth king of Nanarre! 12800, for love to Ramy? His his nathfall Sonne. who was the first king thereof. "This was the fame Santhio who being Earle of Cafile in the kingdome of Leon; tooke on him fift the name of King of Castile, The firt king which he left vnto his Sonne Ferdinand.

The kingdome of Portugall was also conquered fro the fame Moores, by Earle Henry, Sonne vitto the Duke of Zorraine 3, the Moores who held it first of all vnder tytle of an Earle, in the yeare 1710 but quickly after, he brought it to be akingdome. Spaine did continue fo (in this kinde of state) for a long time, divided into many kingdoms: & the Moores had also their abiding ther, possessing still a great part thereof; till fuch time as Ferdinand, the fift, king of Arragon (who was married to Ifabell, the onely heire of Castile) wholly expulsed the Moores out of Spain, in the year 1492. In no great distance of time after, he posfeffed himfelfe of Sicily and Naples, inuading also the East Indiaes. But fraudulently he vsurped the kingdome of Nauarre, against John d'Albret, who was (indeede) the lawfull King. And it is this Ferdinand, and Ifabell his wife, in whom onely wee The begining may truly fay, that the kingdome of Spaine had her first beginning. They left one only daughter named toane, who was married to Philip the first of Austria, Sonne vnto the Emperour Maximillian, and Mary of Bourgundy: he fucceeded in this kingdom of Spaine, and other countries beside. He was likewise Earle of Bourgundy; of Flaunders, and Lord of the Low-countries, inthe right of his Mother. In this his marriage, was borne Charles the fift, who was afterward Emperour. He reigned nine & thirty yeares, preserving his Provinces very happily: and hee left for fuccession (both in Spaine, and the more part of his other countries) his Sonne Philip the fecond, who reigned three and forty years.

having joyned to his other estates, the kingdom of Portugallin the yeare of our Lord, 1580. and fo (confequently) al that which the Portugals held in the East Indi-aes, and elfewhere; as in Affrica and Brafile, which came vnto him by the death of Henry the Cardinall. He died, aged feuenty yeares, the thirteenth day of September, 1508. No long time before his death, hee had made peace with the mighty and most christian King of France, Henry the fourth. Philip the third, his Sonne, fucceeded him, and reigneth as yet to this a Sonne, in the Moneth of Aprill 1606. Now let vs returne where we left before, concerning the king of Spaine, who being a goodking, and living orderly aherfore on him doe depend the following coun-

day. He married Margret, daughter to the Arch-Duke of Austria, by whom he had cellers, who are speciall members of gouernement, both in the Court and elfe-Councellers of Estate Royall.

THE fupreaine affembly of Spaine, which is the very fame, that (in effect) hath the government of most impor tant affayres in their power; is the Royall The reason of or Kingly Councel, to tearmed of the vocable king : because they are samong all name. other councellers) as the King himfelte a. mong his greatest Lords. These councellers doe prouide for the peoples living, in The care and all things that appertaine to a well ordered state: because from them do proceed cell. all meanes and deliberations, concerning matters of Graine, taxations, customes, provisions, and other substantial occasions for fafe being; but euermore affifted by the Princes authority. These councellers are in number twelue, all principall men of the kingdome, & noble by blood, of the Counhaving a Prefident as their cheefe. And cell. from these Noble-men, being affembledtogether, do come all orders, wherby the whole Realme of Spane is governed; and the appellation of three Audiences, called the Chanceries of three kingdomes, do all refort to this councell. The Councell of Inquisition.

I In regard of the conquests which the Moores (informer times) made of this kingdome, reformation of the people was first instituthought most convenient, by bringing ting the counthem to holy Baptisme, and procuring by all careful meanes, that Religion might endure no danger throughout the countrythis councel was first created, and called. The facred Councell of Inquisition. Whereof there is a Prefident, and hee is alwayes an Ecclesiasticall person, as the Arch Bishop of Tolledo, or the Arch-Bishop of Sinill. He is affisted by twelve others councellers, who doe altogether deale in matters appertaining to religion. of Inquistion They give chastifement to heretiques; onely or Rehaue care of catholique affayres; and per- ligious oceasiuse all Bookes before they be imprinted, to anoyd them of offence or corruptions. Other the like businesses are referred to their charge, for the better preservation of holy faith.

The Councell of the Orders.

N Spaine there are three feueral degrees of Knights, all honourable gentlemen, Ordersof containing every one by themselves, one proper & peculiar Order of knighthood, introduced in former times by divers of Calatratia Kings of the Land. The first and principal Of Alcanicte. among all the other, is that of the knights Hhz

The Prefider

Knighthood

Calatrana: and the third, the Knights of Alcantara. These three Orders haue (each under their gouernment, gotten and ob-managing is great, and as if it were a kingdome within it selfe, therefore this Councel of these Orders was ordained. Wher-of there is a Prefident, with foure Coun-cellers, and these meeting all together, do provide Magistrates of the Orders, of Lawes, and of all other things that appertaine to the forefaid Orders. The King is the great Master of these Orders, & when any expedition is to be performed by the Order of S. lames, the King in his Letter, next vnto the ordinary fule or title that is viually given him, writeth; And perpetual

Administrator of S. James, &c. Next vn-

to the King, followeth the great Commendator of Leon, as being Commendator of the Order of S.lames; and after him, the Commendator of Castile. Thefe altogether with the King, do dispense the commendums of spiritual linings: but for that, looke in our Booke of the origi-

The Councell of the Indiaes. 7 Hen it pleased God, by the means which formerly was thut vp from all of vs now here dwelling, and whereof the kings of Spaine haue (in part) bin Patrones: for gouernment of that part (as necellity required) a Councell of the Indiaes was created, confisting of twelue Councellers, with one President. These then do attend

ypon all fuch matters, as appertaine to the governing of India. And therefore they haue their full power, fending thether

Gouernors, Officers, and all kinde of proof Don Christophero Colomba, to open (in our time) that part of the world.

nall of Knights.

The reason cels first ordi

The great Mafter of thefe Orders.

Their Office & authority.

Columbus the of the Indiaes.

Twelue coun cellers of the Indiaes, and

The reason of this Councels negotiation.

uition, as is fit for those kingdomes, which are under the Crowne of Castile. The Councell of Warre. Hen it so falleth out, that any matter of action is to be undertaken, eyther for defence of themfelues, or any new acquisition, the Councell of Warre do meete together: among whom are the Lords of the Councell Royal, the great Commendator of Leon, the Commendator of Castile, with other cheefe of S. lames: the second, the Knights of | Rulers.

The Secret Councell. Aft of all is the Councell for matters one to it felfe) many Citties and Caftles of fecrecy, wherin the King is prefent, the great Chancellor, the great Commétained in divers times : and because their dator of Leon, and the third part of the Councell Royall, with the President. Be- They have ing fet together, they give dispatch to the charged properly to the State.

matters of greatest secrecy, and which do most import the King, as appertaining ons.

Arragon the principall kingdome of Royes gouer

ning in their

teuerall char

Hispania Ci-

lections and

Three Indges, and the Rector. COr causes incident to civill and criminall judgement, three Judges are or- After them dayned in criminall occasions, who, as be- cient manuer ing Tribunes of the common people, do Tribunes difpatch all criminall occurrences. And when the ordinary Podesta, or cheefe Officers are there present the they attend on civill affaires : but if it fall out, that hee cannot be there in person, the three Iud. ges doe then take order in civill matters. These are alwayes in those Citties, where

The three Chanceries.

the appointed Courts are kept.

Over and beside the fore-named Cou-cels and Offices, the King bath three Courts of audience, called three Chanceries, placed in three kingdomes, divided the one from the other. One is in Vallidolid, confishing of twelve Councellers, and Galitie with one President. These do sit every morning separately in foure Halles, three in each Hall. The fecond is in Granada, the principall citty of the kingdome of Gramada, as being the first and cheese. The third and last is in Galitia, beeing neyther more or leffe in power, then the two former. To this Court of audience go all the causes of Spaine, and they may each of them (by themselues) expedite their caufes. without any interuention one of another. The appeales and chalendges of the Rector of Granada, doe patte to the audience of Granada, and those of Castila, to ges of each Kalidalla and fo from hand to hand . But Court. in regard that they have superiours, and some for the people, such as finde the inclues ground in the forenamed Audiences or Chaunceries, may appeale from them to the Councell Roy-the Royall. Moreouer, each of these fore-named Councell Chaunceries have Rectors or Commanders, with criminall jurisdiction.

Vice-Royes or Kings Deputies.

Because Spaine (as formerly hath bene faid) is divided into diverskingdoms, the cheefe or principall whereof is Arragon: the King hath and doth vivally fend into those kingdomes, Deputies, or Vice-Roves to gouern there in his name. They are elected and made choyle of by him, beeing first affirmed by the councel Royall, to be Princes of the country, men of vertue and valor, and deferting advancement to so high degree. Valencia hath her Vice-Roy, who gouerneth the kingdome of Valencia, by the fame authority as was received from the former Kings of Arragon, and by the ancient lawes and orders of the kingdome. In Barcellona likewife, the principall citty of * Catalogna, ruleth another Vice-Roy, making vie of the lawes, customes, and ordinances of the kingdome of Barcellona. In Arragon alfo is another Vice-Roy, who maketh his refidence in * Sarragoffa. This Vice-Roy gouerneth by the ancient lawes of Arra-gon (as other Vice-Royes do by the Castillian lawes) because it is the head of the other kingdomes. The kingdome of Nawarre bath also her Vice-Roy, abiding in Rampalona, who ruleth this kingdome according to the lawes thereof, and those Pampalona conquered by King Perdi-nando, of the crowne of Castile, because it was last of all conquered by Don Ferdinando, the catholike King. All the fore-named Vice-Royes, doe acknowledge the King of Spaine, and his councell Royall, in all their causes.

The Treasurer of Castile.

Aftofall, there liueth in Court the Treasurer, a most honourable degree, and of great importance, who receyueth the monies of all the kingdomes reuennucs. Hee hath foure Contadories or Auditors under his command, who doe gather and collect the monies from the people, and bringing them vnto the Treafurer, payments are continually made foorth as command is given by the King to the Treasurer.

CHAP. II.

Of the Kingdome of Portugall; the beginning continuance and prefent cleate therof with the Customes. Lawes and administration of Justice therein observed.

HE kingdome of Portugall began in the yeare of Chrift, How the king one thousand, fine hundred dome had her and ten, and after this manner. Henry Earle of Lor-ravae comming thither, performed many valiant deeds against the Sarrazins, and his high defernings mooned Alphon (us the fixt king of Castile, to give him a Baftard daughter of his in marriage, named Tirefia. And in way of dowry, he affigned alfo vnto him that part of Galiei a, which was then contained in " Lusitania.

Of this marriage was Alphonf us borne, part of Spaine who was the first that ever stilled himselfe Portugall, king of Portugall: and hee was the first parted on the alfo, that tooke the citty of Lisbone from Tarracon, by the Sarrazine. For he having conquered the River Du fine of their Kings in fenerall battailes; rus on the caused his Armes to bee adorted with Barica,b the fine fenerall Crownes & Coar-Armors, River Anas. which ever after continued the Bufigne of the kings of Portugall, in perpetuall memory of his valour. But he quickly stayned this faire fame, with cruelry vied by him to his owne Mothered For after her fecond marriage, he canfed her to be intprisoned, and albeit the Pope laboured the matter greatly, by the meanes of his Legate ; yet could he neuer compasse his grace and fauour for her delinerance. Which finne was feuerely punished on him afterward by his enemics, who tooks him in battaile. And then his Sonne Sanc-The fucceffisio fucceeded him, and after Sandtio, diuers other, to lohn, who was the tenth dominihe king king in direct and naturall line.

This John was (at the first) expulsed the first, made very honourable proofe of his va lohn of Icru he tooke from the Sarrazins the citty of which, Ferdinand (for integrity of life)

Alphonius

from his kingdome, and made a Knight of S. John of Jernfalem : but at length hee The King of was re-called to his kingdome, where hee knight of S.

> lour, and (among divers famous deeds) falem. Septia. Hee bad fenen Sonnes, among pulia, now cal-led Mens S.

A hìch moũ

taine in Por tugal, called

mentorium.

The fucceffi-

Kings of Por-

rugal,in their

Sebastian K.

of Portugal,

flaine in the battel of Alca-

on of the

was termed a Saint.

Henry another of his fonnes, was the first that found Noua Infula, in the Atlanticke Sea. Hee being very skilfull in the Mathematickes, lived continually without a wife, and made his dayly abiding in a Promontorie, which was called the Cape of Saint * Vincent, and there he died, in the yeare, 1460. But Edward, who was the eldeft Brother, was made King; and he added to the kingdome of Portugall, by meanes of his warres, Zelia, Teeea, and Alcazar in Affrica. Hee had two daughters or fifters (as fonce fay) named loane and Leonora; the first was marryed to the King of Castile, and the other vnto Frederick the third, Emperor, of whome was borne Maximillian the first, who was afterward Emperor, and Grandfather to Charles the fift He had also a fon, named Alphonfus, who fucceeded him in the king dome, and begate John and Emanuel, that right line and was the fourteenth King of Portugall. Emanuel had John, who tooke to wife the fister of the fore-named Charles the fifte. Emperour, called Katherine, and begate Lodwicke, that dyed an infant, and Mabell who was wife to the faid Charles, and had another daughter alfo, which was married to Charles Duke of Sauoy. After these succeeded Sebastian, who (in our time!) fighting against the Moores, was slain, & the King of Morocco with him, besides di-uers other great Lords of the Moores. Henrie, Vnckle to the deceafed King, followed him in fuccession, he being then a Cardinall, and very aged, holding the kingdome fome few months. But he dy-Philip the first ing, Phillip King of Spaine, entred on the kingdome; withstanding the claime and title of Don Anthonio, beeing a Brothers fonne to the dead King Henrie, & fo outwearied him with troubles, that he could neuer attaine thereto in full possession, and so it remaineth still in the Spaniards

there is a high Constable, and a Lorde power. Concerning the gouernement of this Of the order and gonernekingdome, it hath the very fame forme & observation as all the rest of Spaine hath, kingdome. as being a part of that Province . For,

Great Steward, with all other dignities elfewhere related. By the Title and name of great Lords, there is the Duke of Bra-Dukes. ganzia, the Duke of Colimbra, the Duke of vilco, the Duke of Trafcoffa, the Duke of Barcella and the Duke of Auaria. There is also the Marquesse of Villa Reale, the Marquesse Marquesse of Torra Nuova, the Marques of Monte Maggiore, and the Marquelle of Ferrira, with an infinite number of Earles. There is likewise the Order of Earles. Knight-hood, called the Knights of Christ, Order of honoured and esteemed much about all Knight hood

Among these honourable persons in this Order, as an appropued man of valour, most signale for many vertues, liberall minde and courteffe, befide fpeedveft intelligence in matters of Military discipline; is the Lorde Flaminio Zambeccaro. Lord of Castella in Campagnia, who liveth at this day in Florence, and highly affected other, and whereof the King is the Great

CHAP.III.

Of the Antiquity Originall Customs Lawes and administration of Iustice, observed in the king dome of Naples.

holdeth and poffeffeth, euen by hir owne proper name. Therefore wee may thence frame our argument, what the greatneffe of that Citty hath formerly beene, in regard that all the parts by it possessed, deriueth from thence the Title of a Kingdome : which I do not holde to be of any great antiquitie, because the Normanes tooke it from the Gracians, who possesfed the Prouince in divers partes thereof, and then it was tearmed the County taly, bording or Earledome of * Puglia, or Apulia, as some do yet call it.

Robert Guiscard, a verievaliant and Robert Gui worthy man, having expulfed (in a manner) all the Grecians thence, & taken Sicily also from the Sarrazins; would needes fivle himselfe Duke of Apulia and of Calabria, and Earle of Sicily. In no long time after this, his Nephevve Ruggiero or Roger, having conquered the Cittie

A litt'e I fle against the lus ioyning lexandria. The Sicilian Eucning.

of the whole kingdome in length and breath Kingdom, with the Sea-shores & stronds; Italy which is hetweene the description

nouths of Ti ber and the Circeians : 1 alled of Late mic In it Hati of Rome, whereof t is now called anpagna d the title of King of both the Sicillies, by Anacletus the Anti-Pope, in the yeare 1120, which afterward was confirmed to him in good and lawfull manner. And from that time, it was called the kingdom of Sicily, on this fide a Pharos; vntill the reigne of Charles the first, when it becam divided from Sicily, by occasion of that famous accident, called Velpro Siciliano, the Sicilian Euening, wherein fo manie of the French were flaine. I finde moreouer in many good Historians, that this kingdome hath had 3. fenerall Names, to wit the kingdome of Waples, the Kingdome of Apulia, and the kingdom of Sicily, on this fide Phares, the bounds or circumference whereof, at this day is thus described.

First of all, by Land-way, measure of the Line, and the Confines of the whole of Naples, which till that time had beene

in the Grecians government) obtayned as also Campagna di Roma, sometimes called Latium, which (at this day) terminateth the river of Offento, on this fide Terracina, and from the mouth of the fayde River, where it entereth into the Terrene Sea, proceeding on still towards the Apdeth the Citie penines, with Lattum, and part of Sabina: then paffing the Apennines, with part of Vmbria and of Picenam, now called Marcad' Ancona, vnto the Confines thereof, is the Riner Truentus or Tronto, where it enterethinto the bosom of the Adriatick maine. Which Scale or Lone, because it doth not directly extend it felfe forth, but passeth on by turnings and windings, enermore from one of the forenamed Riuers to another, by the terminations of those Regions, it containeth about an hundred and fifty miles in length . Paffing on thence from "Terracina, by the confines of the kingdome, to Ponte Corno, and Ceperano, and by the confines of Ajeti, thorow the country of Taylacozzo, to Interdoco, and Ciuita Reale, then to Matrice, and thence (by the river) to Afcoli. till we come to the mouth of Trente othe Line heere being directly extended, will contains about an hundred thirty miles Region's which lye berivene Tenere, Sain length, or little leffe. By the fea-coaffs along the banke and shore, the whole bing the Apennines, and Therecina, and kingdome winderh about, like vnto an Island almost round engirt with water, as towards the middest of the Terrhene Sea, and fo on to the Siglian fea. On the East fide, from the Adriaticke fea, and fo vnto the North, part of the Jonian fea, to farre as d Monte Gargano, or Santo Angelo, and d A hil in Apart of the Adriatick bosome, from Gargano to Tronto, the Kingdonie, extendeth Angeliit selfe, and imparteth her boundes with the faide fea: all which circumference, from Offento to Trento, and in length by the fea-thores, containeth in all 1418. miles, in this margner.

called . Lacinium, an hundred and ninety miles. From Capa delle Collona, to Taranmost confines, which is the river of Tronto, two hundred miles. All which fums

in this roundure (by the fea boundes) do make one thousand, foure hundred, and cighteene miles . Whereunto adjov-ning the forefaid bundred & fiftie miles,

which is the space of the Land by measured line, wherewith if we cloving to the other part of Italy, from Offento to Tronto, it furnmeth vp, one thoufand fine hundered fixty eight miles. And this is now (at this day) the dimension or measure of the Terracina, reaching to Garigliane .. I For, one part of the true Latio, which ancientkingdomes circuit.

From Terracina to Naples, are eighty The juff actwo miles. From 2 aples, to the heade of count or a.um being of the the gulfe of Policrasto, an hundred forcie feuen miles. From the head of Relievasto place to anoto Rhegium in Calabria, an hundred eighty. her thorough the kingdome three miles. From Rhegium to the head of Spartinento, fo to Capo delle Colonne, now

c A Promon torie in the furtheft part to, two handred miles. From Taranto, to of Italy, deui-Capo di Leuca, now called Salento, thirtie an and Adriamiles. From Cape de Leucasto Cape d'Otticke Seas, where Hercuranto, fixe and twenty miles. From Capo les built a Temple to lud'Otranto, to Capo S. Angelo, now called Gargano, two hundred two and twentie no and cald in miles. From Capo S. Angelo, to the ytter-

Recions and

f A River in Lixus that now adayes is called Garigliano, Campania, running by beginneth from Offenta vaporing Ter-binas, the Apennines, and Thereemas and termed by three seuer ill names, to witter ore Tylenor, Latio: Compagna di Roma, and Maremmat Hirrania, calyernotwithstanding, in elderdayes (to led allo Mare

A part off-

These following Regions and Prouinces are contained and embraced within | Provinces the whole bodie . Latia Maque, that is contayned in one part, fo much as is from the River of

ly extended it felfe fo farre as the Rater f there are three partitions made of all the

farre

Chap.3.

h Rordering

on the Same

wes & Ac.

Heere liue

bines and the Marlis

d Heere the n Apulia rih A River of Campania.rifing out of Sarnus, a hil in Picenum.

i A River of Lucania dia ding it from Picenum.

k Taking nam of Leda a Ci ty in Italie.

l People dwel

m A promontory of Rhegin That part of Italy,from Laurentum re Cumz.

o A Towne in Campania.

p People almoft enuiro ned with the fea,neere to Apulia.

Adriatick lea.

name, to wit, Latio Nuono, or new Latium. And in this Region the chiefe landes and Citties, are Formella, Fonds, and Ga-

Olde Campania, which stretcheth from Garioliano, fo farre as the river h Sarnus: therein is Naples and Capua, a most noble Citty, as well in auncient as moderne times.

Picenum, or where the Picentines inhabite, holdeth on from Sarnus, to the Riuer Silarus, and the most famous Cities therein, are Sorrento Nocera de Pagani, & Salernum.

Lucania, called fomtimes Sao, containes it felf betweene the river Silarus, and that called & Saprio. And therein the Cities of times also there were Pestum and Buxentum, and among the mountaines are many Castles.

with Lucania, and runneth along the river Saprio vppon the Terrhene sca, so farre as called " Capo dell'arme in the Sicilian Sea , nofa. umin Italy a. where the Apennine Mountaines do end. gainst Sicily. | which beginning at the Alpes, run all along through the midft of italy, and the veric toppe ouer the faide Cape, is now adayes called by Marriners, Punta di Tarlo, the point of Tarlo. In this part, the most principall places are Cofenza, and Rhegium on the Sea, otherwise tearmed Iunio, as a difference and distinction from that Rhegium which is in Lombardi, so named by Lepidus.

> " Magna Grecia, or Great Grecia, runneth along from Capo dell'arme, turning Capo di Spartinento, now called º Herculamium, by the Seacoast so farre as Taranto, where it entreth into the Adriaticke Chieti. fea. In it, are Squillace, Taranto, and Co-

The connerey of the? Salentines, is on the break of Taranto, to farre as Capo di torie. In ware scituated Callipolis and V. gento: "a abartica

Calabria it selfe, which hath so contig A cry of Ca nued turneth vnto Capo di Leuca Northnian fea. The famous Citties therein, are Lecci, Brundufium, or Brandizzaum, and farre as Garigliano) was called all by one Hydruntum, now called Otronto. These two Regions (I meane Salentinum & Calabria, which is that part of Land which extendeth towards the East between the Gulffe of Taranto and the Ionian fea;) being joyned together with one name, now adayes termed Terra d Otronto, was called by our forefathers) Lapigia and Mef- Wherely, Sapea. And it is an Island round engirte thipped into with waters ; for from Taranto to Brundu- conia, fum, which are voon the two feas, there is not in firme land about 35, miles.

Apulia Pucetia, betweene Brundufium t An Ilembo & Offento, vpon the Ionian Gulfe, is now mariow case. adayes (along the fea-coaft) called Terra wholedage di Bari, and Louenazzo, & lyeth betweene iourney. the fandy countries.

Capitanato, of plain Apulia, with his exmost note are Pontecastro & Saleo in elder | tendure betweene Offento and the River called Fortore, paffeth on, on the Ionian Gulffe, fo far as Capo S. Angelo, & thence vpon the Adriaticke bosome to Fortore. Where the Bruti do live, it confineth The places of most note, are Salupis, " Si- u Called the porto, and Manfredonia, anew citty builte Sepinor Sepi by King Maufred. It is also between Ter- the Same the Promontory of Lencopetra, at this day | ra Luceria, or Nocera de Saracini, and Ca. in Italy

> Frentani are a people living from Fortore to the River Sagrue, or Sagra, now called the bloody riuer, on the Adriatike raly, pung Gulfe, Chiefe cities therein, are Eilonni, the Pelgi fomtime cald Islamium, Larino, & Laciano, fond be Felgi

The Peligni dwell betweene the River Sagra, and that called Pefcara, sometime y A niet pf Aternus. The fairest citty, between Terra important *Sulmona, and Pentina on the feacoaft, is wher Oul Ortano.

The Marucini do inhabite from the a Aprophia river of Pefcara fo farre as Tronto, the vt- Italy. most ending of the kingdome, along the Northerly towardes the Promontorie of | fea-shore on the Adriaticke gulfe. There is a Sea-Cittie, which is called Francawilla or b Frentana, and a Land-city called Deuni and B

Aboue the Marucini, between the land of the Apennines, and where they do take best rooting, beginning at the confines of the Peligni, io now called, and tur-Leuca, now called the Salentine Promon-ning towardes Marca d'Ancona, are three the Math other people in order, to witte, the Ve-Stini, whose Citty was named Pinna, and now called the citty of Penna; the Amiterni and Furroni, of whose ruines the citie of d Aquila was builded, some smal di- Campania stance off.

The Westim, neighbor with the Precuti, of whom whom it is verily credited, that the name of the Bruty, now tearmed Abruzzefi, their Cowar was first derined. dice and base osnaci's.

The Marfi dwell more inward to the Mountaines, whose most famous place is Celana, with her Lake Lucina, now tearmed of the Marsi and Albi. These fixe forenamed people, are all called by one bodie of this kingdome, which circle, name, Abruzzest; but oftentimes by writers they are understood under the nomination of the Samnites.

" Samnio, from the point of Land, and he mountair almost to the middest of the Kingdome. seen the Sa- hath Latium and Campania in length, both on this fide, and beyond the Apennines. At this day it is called Valle Beneuentana. the valley of Beneuentum, which extendeth it felfe in length, fo farre as the River Silarus, eighty miles. Places of greatest name heretofore, were Efernia, Sepino, Te. lesio, Reneuentum and Bouiano.

The d Hirpini, otherwise called Samnites, do confine with the Picentines, Lucanes and Apulians, partaking at this day with Principate and Rasilicata. The most noted Cities, are now a Auallino and Ag.

I finde that all these Regions have (by our Moderne writers) beene divided into seuen seuerall principall partes or Pro-Stuen Princi-pal parts or duulions, after ward made 12 uinces, if we may fo tearme them, to wit, Terra di Lauoro, Principato, Bafilicata, Calabria, Terra di Otranto, Apulia & Abruzzo. Which Provinces have (fince then) according to order of later division, bene parted into twelue Regions, as I finde them in the Registers of Naples, in this Naples.

accounted the moft fertile & picalant in all

f Terra di Lauoro, which hath in lands Citties, and Castelles, to the number of 198.

Contado di Montisso, hath 108. Abruzzo the neerest, hath 155. Abruzzothe furtheft, hath 288. Capitanata, hath 96. Terra di Bari, hath 50. Basilicata , hath 103. Terra d'Otranto hath 172. Principato the neerest, hath 129. Principatothe furthest hath 164. Calabria the neerest, hath 162. Calabria the furthest, hath 147.

All which beeing fully fummed together, in Citties, Lands, and Caffles, as | The g neral hath formerly beene tayde, and all inhabited with plenty of people, and furnish ed with all thinges commodious for the life of man, do amount to one thouland feuen hundred, feuenty foure.

I here are certaine Islands also in the Islands in the neighbour, or are opposite : as on the Terrhene fea, directly facing Terracina & Gaeta, are the Isles of Ponza, and of Pal marola. And ouer-against & Mola, is the Ile Nolain Cam of Defente. At the encountering of Poz. h Putcolis 8. zuolo, is that of Ischia; neere to which is miles from Procida, or Prochyta, made famous by those yong Gallants that deniled & performed the Sicilian Euening befide Nifari and i Capraa, fo highly beloued of the i Beyond Sur-Emperor Tiberius, opposite to Capo della Minerua.

The three k Sirenussa do front Passita. no; one of them being called Gale, ano- befo.e Lucather Mona, and the third S. Pietro. There nia. is likewise the Isle of Lipara, which cir- | Containing kleth aboue ten miles, wherein are fome touen ifles be Citties. On the Adriaticke maine, right and Sicily. against Varano, are those of Rasata & Cargano; and the foure other called " Diome- m Ifles oppode, now adayes called Tremite, but they fire to Gargaare very little; and the two greater thereof are called, the one S. Maria, the other S. Doimo, and the two leffer are, the one Gatizzo, and the other Caprara. Thefe are Islands of some note and name, omitting other places, which bee comprehended within the confines of the kingdome of

With them might bee ranked that of "Sicily, an Italian Mand, great & wealthy: but that it is an Isle of it felf, & at this day deuided from the kingdome. Notwithstanding, it did somtime partake in name with the kingdome of Naples. For fome Kings, as Fredericke the eleventh, Manfred his fonne, Charles the first of Anion. and Alphonfus the first of Arragon, posses fing both the one and other, wrote their titles both on this fide, and beyond Pharos. Whereuppon, when we find it writ- |cily,cald alfo ten simply the kingdome of Sicily; it is Charybdis. meant of this Isle, & not of Sicily on this palle. fide Pharos in Italy.

In this Kingdome are twenty Archby shopprickes, to wit, of Naples: which hath fiue Byshoppes vnder it: Of Capua, which hath ten. Of Salernum, which hath and B) shops ten.

g The Citie Naples

k Three Iffes

n A famous ifle in the Yes thene lea, 618 miles abour, fometime per aining to the o A Gulfe of the fea by Sidangerous to How manie prickes are in 121, Byfliops

Archbythops.

Of the Prin-

Of the feurrall dukedom

being 23.in

Of the Mar

number.

cipalities in

Iten. Of Amalifoure. Of Sorrenzo three. I fold many Titles and Lordshippes in the Of Conzafix. Of Cilenzafix. Of Taranto two. Of Brundusium one, and hath conjoyned with it the Arch-byshoppricke of Oria. Of Otranto fix. Of Bari twelue. Of Tranifix. Of Hiponte one, and hath vnited with it the Archbyshoppricke of Monte de S. Angelo. Of Beneuentum twenty three. of Ciuita di Chieti three. Of Sanciano four. Of Rhegium cleuen. Of Cofenza one. Of Roffino, which hath no Byshops See vnder it. Of Saint Seuerina ten. And there is the Archbishoppricke of Matera be-

There are also an hundred twenty four Byshops, which are under the aboue named Archbyshoppricks; only the byshop of Bisignano excepted, who is not subject to any one.

It is also to bee noted, that the Title of Pri ce is greater in this kingdome, then that of Duke. And the Principalities ther the kingdome are ten in number, to wit, of Afcoli, of Bi-Genano, of Euoli, of Melfi, of Melfetta, of Monchercole, of Squillati, of Siegliano, of Sulmona, and of venofa.

There are likewife three and twentie Dukedomes. As of Andri, of Amalfi, of Artano, of Alu, of Boiano, of Castronillari, of Noseri, of Popala of Rocca di Mondragone, of S. Pietro in Galatina, of Seminara, of Seffa, of Somma, of Sora, of Tagliacozzo, of Termoli, of Terra nous, and of Traieto, together with those of Grauma di Martina, of Montalto, of Montelione, and of Nar-

The Marquelates are 29. of Anna, of Arienza, of Bellate of Bucchianico of Camquefats, to the number of 29 pania, of Capo Vrfo, of Castel Vetere, of Chierchiato, of Cinita'S. Angelo, of Corigliano, of Laina, of Lauro, of Sicito, of Miluraca of Oria, of Oriolo, of Padula Beruentana. of Pulignano, of Quarata, of Santo Lucito, of Terza, of Torre di Francolise, of Torre Maggiore, of Trinico, of Turfe, of Valle Siciliana, of Vasto, and of Vico.

There are in like manner, 54. Earles of State, 15. Lords, and 443. entituled Barons. And it is verily supposed, that in any kingdome of the world, there are not fo many great Princes and Lordes, as in this, because they are (by nature) of high and lofty courage. And nowe I call to minde, in this matter, that I have read in fome Registers, bearing date of the yeare kingdom, & that many Gentlemen fold their goodes at ten in the hundred, and bought these Lordships at three in the hundred.

1521. that the Emperor Charles the fifte,

Thiskingdome fo highly ennobled, full of worthy Princes, most rich and ferfull of worthy Princes, most rich and fer-tile, as more cannot bee wished; was for ples many long time gouerned by divers kings. For yeares beside the Normans, who helde it manie yeares, and (as hath beene fayde) wonne it the title of a Realme ; it fell at length to Fredericke the fecond, Emperour, who had it of Henry the fixte his Father : after whom succeeded Corrado Emperour, son The succession to Fredericke; and after him it came (by of the King reason) to Corradino, Nephew to Corrater the Notdo. But Maufredo the baftard fon to Fre- mans, dericke, feigning that Corrodina was dead vsurped the State, and made himself king. But Pope Frbane the fourth (beeing encmy to Maufredo) excommunicated him, and deprined him of the kingdome: inuefling therein in Anne 1266. Charles the 1. of Aniou. Brother to Lewes the eight, K. of France, who (first of all) flewe Maufredo, and afterwardes caufing Corradino to be beheaded, tooke it in full possession. Charles the second, Sonne to Charles Prince of Salerne had it next: and then fucceeded him, Robert the excellent Philosopher; who was a very louing friend to Petrach. After him, the succession fel to Joane, the Neece of Robert by Charls; and next succeeded Charles the third, K.

ofb Durazzo.

After his death there happened con-tention for the kingdome, betweene La-that part of diflates fonne to Charles the third, and Le- Macedonly wes of Aniou: but Ladiflaus remaining ful draucke Su Patron, held it till the yeare one thousand foure hundred and foureteene: and then fucceeded Joane the second, his fifter; in whose place (making himselfe King by force of armes) rose Alphonso of Arragon the sonne to Ferdinando, who left it vnto Ferdinando his bastard son. Next to him fucceeded Alphon fo the fecond, who trobled himfelfe not long in the Kingdome, by the comming of Charles the eight, K. of France into Italy, for recoverie of the kingdome, and then renounced it to Ferdinando the second, his son; from whom it came to Frederigo, Vnckle to the fayde

Afterward it fell to Charles the fifte,

A conflitution

Chap.3.

Pope Lee the tenth. For there was such a constitution betweene the Popes, Emperors, and Kings of Naples, that who foeuer was Emperor, he could not bee King of Naples: and therefore he gaue it ouer to Philip the first, King of Spaine, vvhose fonne Philip the second, now holdeth it. keeping there a Vice-roy, with most ample authority, and representeth there the Kings owne person. Whereby he is very much honoured and reverenced of all his subordinate Gouernors, according as he caufeth himfelfe to be efteemed, both by his valour and authority.

The High Constable. The Officers or Magistrates of the speaketh for all as chiefest Aduocate, is the Constable, or rather high Marshall.

He is the first man of the kingdome, and Captaine generall for all ordinances of warre. He (as Lieutenant to the king)ordaineth and provideth all fuch things, as ping men, prouiding tents and lodgings, appointing the Enfignes Royall, and (in breefe) hee hath the care for all matters that concerne Armes. In which place .

he hath authority to chastise, and to put to death such persons as commit Thesto,

Rapine, Homicides, and other milde-meanors in the Campe. And this Office continueth fo long as warres lasteth. When the King createth him in this dignity, delinering a Truncheon to him, he vieth the ords: Take this holy Weapon, wherewith thou shalt expell the adversaries

The Great Insticer.

The second Office, is that of Great

Inflicer, or Lord chiefe Inflice, who hath iurifdiction as well in ciuil causes, as those that be criminall; and under his authority are all the Princes, Dukes, Marqueffes, Lords, and Barons of the Kingdome; for

to him belongeth care of offences against the Maiesty Royall. His Vicar or Lieutenant, is called Regent of the Vicaria:

who hath his ludges both civill and cri-

Seuen feueral Kingdome, are seauen in theyr seuerall degrees; but he whom they terme Sindiraining to the, co, that representeth the whole City, and

The Office of he high Conthible or Mars. hauing charge of the Sentinelles, encamthe high Con-flable or Mar-

The maner of

the Confta-

bles creation.

The L. chiefe

luftice, the fecond Officer

of the King-dome, and his authority.

of my people.

minall, and his Tribunallis in the Court Emperor, who had the investiture from of the Vicaria, having allowed him for his yearely provision, fixe hundred Ducates.

The High Admirall.

The thirde Office, is that of Great or The Lillich High Admirall, who hath the charge of Sea causes, and such things as appertaine third Officer, & his authoto Nauall Art and profession. Hee loo- rity. keth to the making, repairing, building, and appointing of all Shippes for Royall feruice, and keeping of all fuch veffels as come into the kingdome, from vvhat parts focuer. VVhen occasion fo requireth, and that it is imposed on him by the King, he setteth forth the Nauall Army in order. He appointeth both reall & corporeall punishments for delinquents, and hath civill and criminall jurisdiction ouer the Officers and others, that attend on Sea affayres.

The Great Chamberlaine.

The fourth Office, is, that of Great The fourth Chamberlaine, or the Chamberlaine of officer, Lord State, choose yee whether : whose Deputie or Lieutenant hath his judgement his authoritie Seate, in the Chamber called Sommaria. His charge is to have care of the Kinges person, to prepare and adorne his bedde; as also his Garments, and to take order for all his vnder Chamberlaines, Guardians, and Treasurers . Hee keepeth all the customes of the kingdome, and taketh cognition of the matters belonging vnto the Royall Exchequer, the tonths, tolles, fines, reuennewes, and other things appertaining to the Kings person.

The Protonotary,

The fift Office is the Lieutenant, or rather Protonotarie. Hee standeth obli- The Protono ged to reade before the King, and to conferue the writings and registers. He hath his office authority to create Notaries, Judges, and to Legittimate Bastards. But the Catholike King hath (fince then) transferred the Office of writings, and of the Registers, to the Kings Chancery.

The Great Steward. The fixte Office, is that of Great

Of Earles. Lords, and Ba rons in their Generall num bers.

The Empero

Chap.4.

ingathered.

Seneschall or Steward, tearmed the Maiordomo or Master of the houshold. This man hath the government of the household Royal, and to prouide all things neceffary for life, as also garments for the Seruants in the Kings Court; having likewife absolute power, to correct & punish all the familiars of the Kings house.

Great Chancellor.

Lord Chiefe Chancellour the last office, & his charge

Their ordere fitting with the King.

The feuenth and last Office (of most importance in the kingdome) is that of Great Chancellor who writeth the kings Letters of secrecie, and sealeth al the priuiledges (graunted by the King) to any person. He hath also command ouer the walkers of Stations, the Beadles, the Studies, and fuch like things. It is also to be remembred, that the high Constable, the Admirall, and the Protonotary, do fit on the Kings right hand. And the Lord chief Iustice, the Great Chamberlain, and the Great Chancellor, on the left hand. But the Great Steward, he fitteth on a stoole at the Kings feete.

CHAP. IIII.

Of a Law observed amongst the Rhodians, which enjoyned and commanded Fathers ffetting aside all other businesse and affayres) to marry their daughters with all possible speed.

Greece the Mother of ancient Lawes.

The Rhodians citablifh manic good Lawes.

Here are very fewe people. (in mine opinion) that are ignorant of the Komanic Lawes, which came first forth of Greece, and are continued to this day; furpassing al other nations whatfoener, in the actions of Iustice and Policy, and among them have many Common-weales flourished, not onely in Military and warlike affaires, but have done, if they had remaind at liberty. alfo in good manners and policies . Among the rest, that of the Rhodians is to be effeemed; which not onely established great store of Lawes, to render enerie man what belonged to him, & preserve the weaker fort from oppression; but alfo concerning the marriage of their daughters, because no inconvenience should enfue to them, as to too many elfewhere happened. The Law then made for marriage of their daughters, was breefely fet downe in these words.

ME command, that a Father doe not torment himselfe one onely day, for the Words of the Rhoding the marriage of ten sonnes, if hee should have written Line Comany : but rather to labour and trauayle for the martitenne yeares, for the marriage of one onely age of Maides daughter, being vertuous. That hee stand in water up to the mouth; That he sweat great drops of blood, and labor in the ground, drawing like a Horse; That he do rather difinherit all his Male-children leaue all his welch and riches to otter abandoning, yea, and his owne proper life: onely to provide (afetie for his daughters chastity.

- This Law had bene worthy of obseruation in the countries heereabout, where if it had lived in the like force and vertues Averie gren fo many famous Families had neuer bin ertor and isdishonoured, by the shamelesse immode- intriein Faflies of ouer-many maidens, as hauere-their daugh mained to very wofull example. For it ters. hath bin noted, that Fathers (oftentimes thorow greedy couctouineffe) would not allow Dowries to their daughters, answerable to their meanes and qualitie: in regard whereof, they have caused them to be forfaken, and not fought vnto by any person. Sometimes also they have given them greater estates then either was conuenient, or flood with their owne power, to the ruine and ouerthrow both of the one and other. Wee haue observed likewife, some ill aduised fathers, who have neglected their daughters marriages, being ouer-swayed with affection to theyr fonnes, and bearing no respect at all to loue their their daughters; eyther fuffering them to fonnes more entertoo farre into yeares, or elfe to bee thentheir thut vp in Religious houses (by not affording them money meete for Marriage) where all their time they have lived miferably, and (many times) as vnchaftly, and with much leffe honour then they could

The common Prouerb is, that ther are A greatfault three things, which if men do them not, committedby they will be done of themselues: And the ouer-many third of them is, that if men'do not marry their daughters, then they wil marry thefelues, and oftentimes, to fuch as are of badlife, or poore, or not agreeing with their owne quality, to the great dishonor this doth happen in any Commonwelth, alliances loofe themselves, and there is nothing but reproch on the one fide and other; whereby(too often)great quarrels do arife fuites in law, and other desperate inconueniences.

To anoydall which dangers, Fathers ought to be advertised, that it is not good to keep their daughters too long vnmarried : For as one faieth very well: It is a merchandise, which beeing kept, there is nothing gotten by it. Prouision therefore (in this case) should be made, when theyr daughters begin to enter into their puherty, which is, at 13, yeares of age, or (at the vttermost)at 16.or 18, and to make no longer delaying if possibly it may be donfor then they are tipe, and ready to yeeld fruite. If they be kept any longer time for the most part they lose their beautie, and fairest graces. They affoord faccording to common naturall inftinct, as well in Themanie harmes that doen'ue, by the deferring temarrying beafts, as in men, throwing all reason and respect behinde them) their affection to fome fuch, whom their Parents doe not thinke meete and convenient, and/in the end) worke some taint or blemish vnto their owne modesty. Or if they doe not;

by reason of their frequent familiaritie

with men, they shall be fure talked of ve-rie strangely, which now adales is grown fo common and reproachfull, that even the verie chastest that line, have worke

enough to doe, to exempt and cleare themselues from badde fame and ill re-

Moreouer we daily behold that when Parents doe prouide for their daughters, fuch as are fomewhat entred into yeares, they will refuse the men that are thought meete for them, and made offer of to them in good discretion. Alledging that they have already given their liking vnto another, and (as many times it comes to paffe) to fuch a one as is ytter enemie to their house; compelling their parents either to forfake them, without any choise at all, or elfe (with much forrow) to confent thereto, onely to anoide the woorst, whereby both Fathers and mothers remainediscontented so long as they line . Thefe warnings do speake themselves, as well vnto great persons, such as are not onely Emperors, Kings, Princes, and other illustrious bloodes, but also to Ple-of themselves and their parents. When | beians, and men of vivall ranke, who do stand no more exempt from ill husbanding their children, then the other do, but are even as ready to faile therein, yea, and many times foonest. Which I will approduc by some Histories, derined from Bandelle the Italian, and the Annalles of rance.

Adelasia, daughter to one of the greatell and most vertuous Empergrs named of Adelifia. Otho, third of that name, that reigned af- daughter to Otho, third of that name, marrelline u.a. the Emperor ter Gharlemaigne, vntill his time, having Otho the s. listened vnto many, Kings and Princes, who fought his Daughter Adolasia in Matriage, as well for her extraordinarie beautie, as her other excellent Graces, and Royall extraction 1 yet hee aspiring (as it should feeme) at some greater and more nobler march, or a party of more worth (in his opinion) for his-daughter. by means of these delayes broght incomparable misfortune to his Imperial house which elfe had flourished in no meane happinesse, Adelasia grew enamored of a young youth, A Sonne to the house of Alerane, one young youth my worth of them being secretly of the young matried, furnished with some small flore Duke of Sax of money, befide a few Jewels and precia ony. ous flones, berooke themselves to trauaile, attired and disguised like Pilgrims. Adelafia in the habite of a youth with full deliberation, to make their abyding in fome ftrange countrey, far enough from Allemaigne.

Thus wandering as fugitives ito fatiffie their owne voluptuous defires; at the length, they were robbed on the Highway, and fo by that meanes were constrained (after long and importunate begging, trauerling manie Countreyes) to retire into a great Forrest, Scituated betweene Ast and " Sauona, in Italy, where (thorough great necessity) they Sabatia in Li began to exercise the labour of Colliars, guria, a hilly enduring many stormes and hard afflicition ching from ons, for the space of eighteen years toge Apeninus to ther. In the end, it pleased God to be satisfied with their humility & repentance, and from the and to make them better knowne, by the River Macra, meanes of one of their fons, named William, who following the nature of his extraction, betooke himfelfe to make one in the Imperial Armies in Italy, & greatly resembling in fauour the Emperour ver be con-Otho, whereby he was imagined to be if- cealed from fued of Adelasia: which being found to fall parance.

The H. Story

*Called alfo to Vatus, and-Naturall Nobility can nemaniteft ap.

Example of great Charle

out true, and the poore retreate of the Colliars (his parents) made knowne, the Emperor pardoned them; & calling them home into Allemaigne, gaue them great and liberall meanes; but much blamed himselfe, that he hadde not marryed his daughter in such time as was fittest for her. The like happened to that far more puissant and great Emperour his predeceffor) Charlemaigne, whose eldest daughter was found paillardising with one named Eginhard, his Secretary, or (as some

(ay) Chauncellour vnto the saide Charle-paved with coine of the same stampe, as well as these fore-named Emperors; wit-

Some Kings of France haue also bene

The history of Iudith, daughthe Bald, king of France.

of Flanders,

who had fe-neffe Indith, daughter to Charls the Bald fecond of that name. Her Father refused to give her in marriage to diverse young Allemaigne Princes, of great extraction, as Dukes, Marquelles, and others : affe-(ting (much rather) to give her in wedlocke to a King of England, who had for-merly beene an Archby shop, a man aged fickly, and impotent, with whome the remained eight months only, and without any hope of vilue. Repailing the fea, to returne home into France, the fent vnto Baldwine, Gouernor of the colliars countrey, then termed Pais Charbomieres, but Baldwin, Earl now adayes called the countrey of Flanders, a poore Prouince, wherto no other cretly promi-Lieutenants or Gouernours were giuen fed marriage to Iudith, be by the King, but fuch as were of smal and fore her going to England. flender renowne. This Baldwine had clandestinely promised marriage to Lady Iudith, before thee was fent into England, he being a goodly person, faire and of abfolute forme, as many of that country oftentimes are, yet of no great discent, a

Gentleman in the midft of many necessities, who furprized her on the feas (the being willing enough to be fo taken) & carried her home with him into his gouernment. The King was fo displeased heere-with,& that justly, that he appointed di-uers forces to goe punish the rauisher of his daughter,being his owne difloyal fubiect. But he was round engirt with fo many Wars, as well against his Nephewes, as his Brothers, and the Danes, that he was fod ainely enforced to defer his intention for that time, dying not long after, bearing no meane greefe for this rape

(with him) to his graue. By means wherof

Charles the Bald, molleft ed with many warres, dyed.

Baldwine & she lived a long while as priuate persons, not having any great store of meanes for their maintenance.

Lewes the stammerer, successor & brother to Charls the Bald, as much offended as the father of Indith, perfifted in refolution to punish these two louers. Neuertheleffe, by the humble entreaties made vnto him by diuers worthy Church-men, ot holy life & vnstaind fame, beside divers other great personages of his kingdome, (who deliuered lively representation to him of the yong yeares wherin they then were, subject to the propocations of nature, who hath not alwayes reason for her guide, and laying the blame on hir deceafed father, that would not admit her to marry, when the was fo fought and fued vnto:)he pardoned them, giving vnto his Neece Indith and her heires, the country and Forrest of the Colliers, whereof Bald- At white wine had formerly bin Gouernor; yet afterward depriued, & thus restored. And was brought albeit it was a matter of small moment in these times; yet he reserved the homage France. thereof to the crowne of France, which homage the kings of France fuccessiuely enioyed, vntil the taking of king Frances, first of that name, who quitted the soueraignty therof to Charles the fift, and Emperor. At this day it is a goodly & wealthy country, populous; having great store of The great faire Cities and Towns, and greatly merchandized; in regard of the fea, and divers faire ritters which adorne the Prouince . tion of His But let vs nowe fee, if Gentlemen haue derstoode free from this disaster, more then Emperors and Kings haue done; it shall not be amisse therefore to alledge some, as well of Italy, as of France.

In Verona, a famous City of Italy, lived ble historic a yong Gentlewoman, named Iulietta, of frirelulen the noble house of the Montesches, or Montant Montacutes. Her father being not willing Romeoth that the should marry, when both the de- Captien cency of time, and aptneffe of her yeares made tender of themselves: therefore (in her fairest flower) shee espoused her selfe. vnknown to her parents, to a gentlemans fon of another house and family, cald, the Capelets, whose name was Romeo, and the Capelets were mortall enemies vnto the Montesches or Montacutes. This mariage forted vnto the lamentable death of both the louers, as you shall briefly hear in this manner. They being fecretly maried, and

uengerpo Baldwing

holy Friar & Inlietta, what was to be don in tuch an VIent neceliit

Chap.4.

Verona, 8 grane of Inli-

of a feruant

Of a Lavy among the Rhodians.

by the hand of a Cordelier or Franciscan Friar, a man most expert in the secrets of nature, who tooke great compassion on their earnest reciprocal affection & dayly torments between them indured : it hapned on a certain day, that an vncle to Iulietta, in regard of the innetred harred between both the families, drew yppon Romeo, who (defending his owne body) flew the faid Vnckle, whereupon he was banished, or inforced (at the least) to be absent from Verona. The wofull Gentlewoman having made her moane vnto the honest minded Friar, vnder the (haddow of confession, concerning the irksom absence of her best esteemed friend; he gave her aduice to receiue alittle potion when shee went to bed, which should cause her to fleep for more then to houres, fo that the shold be verily supposed to be dead. She boldly aduentured on his counsel, & her parents imagining her to be dead indeed caused her to be buried in the Tombe or vault belonging to the house of her predecessors. From thence the Friar purpofed to fetch her, at a certaine houre of the night, & to conduct her (in the habit of a Nouice) to banished Romeo, who lived in the land of another jurisdiction, yet no far distance from the city. All this was possible & easy to be performed, for it was and is a common custome there, not to burie deceased bodies in graues, as it is obserued among vs, but in Grottes or vaulted caues. While these things were framing themselues according to premeditated purpofe; it fortuned that a feruant belonging to Romeo came to Verona, to bring Letters of recommendation to Julietta. & being returned back to his mafter reported the certaine ridings of her death, and that himfelfe was prefent at her interring. Romeo, confounded with greefe & extremity of paffions, found the meanes (in a disguised habit) before the shutting vp of Verona gates, to enter the city. In the dead time of night also hee compassed his intent, entering the Church with a lighted Torch in his hand, having opened the doores by the help of his feruant, and also the tombe wherein the lay inclosed. Hauing commanded the absence of his seruant, he entred into the vault, & after kiffes infinitly besto wed by him on Iulietta, whom he verily conceited to be dead, he dranke a most deadly poyson, which hee

had formerly bought of a very needle Apothecary, and which immediately fel to operation, to flept hee (for euer) by the body of Iulietta. After her drinke hadde wrought his full power, the awaked and by meanes of the burning Torch perceyned her Romeo to bee quite dead; whereat the death of luhetta, after enraged with greef, and fnatching a pon- the found Ro yard that hung at his girdle, the prefently meo dead. there slewe her selse. The honest Fryar came, and (as he thought) at fuch a conuenient houre, when Iulietta shold awake from her artificiall fleepe, that truely represented the shape of death; but when he beheld that tragicke wofull spectacle. ler his forrow be cenfured bythem of best indgement. On the morrow after, the death of these two Louers was discougred, and all matters rehearfed by Fryar Laurence, for fo was the Cordeliernam'd. Friar Laurece All which mournfull difafter happened, because Juliettaes father would not suffer of the tragedy her to marry when reason required. Now I will declare another French Historie, which happened within the compasse of mine owne memory.

Damoiselle Geneuiefue, Daughter vnto The history of Monfieur Megrelin, a Gentleman in ordi- tlewoman of nary in the Court of King Frances the 2. Paris. espoused her selfe by word onely, & without knowledg of any in hir fathers house, to one that was Schoolemaster voto her brethren, named Medard, a Piccard by nation, borne in Laon, a yong man of paffable handfomnes, and of indifferent knowledge for his time, being about 23, yeares old. She found her felfe to be conceined with child, and fearing the displeasure of her mother more then the frowns of her The Gentlefather, because the was a very somere wo- womans deman, forfooke her Fathers house, and the her Fathers goodly city of Paris, accompanied with House. none but her troth-plighted husband the schoolemaster. Tranailing thorow the countrey, they made their flay in a great Borrough town of Champaign, where likewife he becam schoolmaster, taking great paines to supply their necessities. Within fom few months after their residing ther, Medard dyed; and the fine dayes after the The death of death of her husband, one Euening after Medard the supper, in a publike place, declared to all fuch as gaue fauour to heareher, the whol Historie of their fore-passed Loue, her marriage by promife, her extraction want of gouernement, and the injurie done

The desperate death of Da neniefue.

ged her felfe that night, on a beame end of a poore Cottage, which they had taken vpon hire, of which mithap, the people of the Towne foon advertised her parents. For mine owne part, in the same manner as I haue fet it downe, it was reported to me by the forenamed Monsieur Megrelin, who made no small account of The death of her Father. greefe; often faying voto many, that this misfortune thus feel vnto him by refusing his daughters marriage with a yong Adnocate, one of sufficient wealth, and that had requested her many times to bee his wife, which still hee denied, intending to

In the Citty of Rome, no long vyhile bestowher on a Gentleman.

ry heartily) pardon both of God and the.

bed with her young infant, which was a-

hour fix weekes old . Thee went and han-

The history of crecio.two Roman louere

Another mar by his Father

Affection is fince, there was a young maiden (named Lucrecia, daughter to a rich Marchant)fecretly espousd to a yong man, called Paulo, sonne also to another Merchant, the two fathers beeing vowed enemies, and both alike enuious of each others Fortune. The father of Paulo perceiuing how falt aged yeares came stealing on him determined a marriage for his fon, acquainting him therewith, that he hadde made choife of one meete for him, commaunding him also to fashion himself to good liking thereof, because hee would haue it accomplished within very few dayes. The fonne deferred it off folong as well hee could vet to declare fome obedience to his father, hee craued respite to consider thereof: but in the mean while, it was generally noised thorow the City of Rome. that Paulo must be married vnto another. These newes comming vnto the eares of light credulity Lucrecia, the diffembled her inward conceyued displeasure, verily imagining the matter to bee already done. Paulo comming, as oftentimes he did when fit time fauoured him, to visit his Lucrecia in the night time, fo iocond and merry as at no time more; after accustomed kindnesses passed betweene them, Panlo fell into a very found fleep. Increcia beholding him in that fearlesse citate, with a great Knife

the gaue him to many stabbes and deepe wounds, both in the brest and belly, that he fell downe starke dead, and afterward

done by her to her fernants, defiring (ve- | committed the like violence on her felfe. This act, fo full of forrow and fadde mif-So, feigning as if the intended to goe to chance, came to the care of Pope Paulus the fourth, who would not allow them to have Christian burial. But a learned diuine, a Iacobine by Religion, made fo excellent an Oration to the Pope, agaynst the vikinde parents of the deceased Louers; that Obsequies were granted, & buriall given them. And an aged woman. a servant to Lucrecia, who had beene the meanes of their prinate marriage, was (by authority of luftice) burned aline, because my friendship, and dyed with verie great | she had not aduertifed the parents there-

If these Emperors, Kings, Gentlemen How all her and those of meaner condition, had ob-ferued the Law of the Rhodians, which I haue alledged in the beginning of this the alledged chapter; they never had falne into those hillories. dreadfull mischeeses, which they owne wilfull folly brought voon them. They may also serue as a good warning to Fathers at this inftant, and fuch as fhall bee heereafter, how to anoyde so enorme an error. I will give advice likewife to fuch Maidens, as having past the age of five to maidens and twenty yeares, if either anarice, orany other bad humor in their parents doe make them negligent of their marriages, when men of meet match and quality are offered to them, to be bold of their owne liking and choise in marriage; provided, that they first make it knowne vnto theyr parents. And then if they will not yeeld consent, they may proceed on further:al-wayes prouided, that they are equall in quality, and no way infamous. And least their Pathers should disinherit them, the Emperor ordained thus in the authenti-The like ordinance is to bee found in the dissibility of the control of the contr cal rule; Sed fi post. C. de inofficiofa testa . Marriages, made by king Henry the fecond. And there may bee noted another whenther inconvenience which inconvenience, which vnaduifed fathers do incurre themselues, that in due time, and vpportiust reason, will not yeelde to theyr daughters marriages.

CHAP

CHAP.V.

That Tyrants do line continually in feares: and that their ends are most miserable.

Tyrants at all emes and in all places are

Tyranny is

The Hiftory

his flatterer

feares.

Chap.5.

HE life of a Tyrant is full of hatred 3 euery man dete-freth him; all are offended at him, and he is fubied to infinite perils. What was the life of Aristippus, to whom the very walles were dreadfull? VVhat that of Alexander Phareus, who lived in an hourely fuspition of his ownewife? What that of Dyonisius the Syracusane, who never durst trust his Barber, for feare least in trimming his beard, hee should cutte his throat. Hee had the carnall knowledge but of two women onely, Aristomada and Dorida, and yet he would never let them come neere him, untill they had put off all their garments. The Chamber wherein he vied to fleepe, was round engirt with a wide deepe ditch, and there was no entrance to it, but onely by a draw-bridge.

All things whatfoeuer, are continually suspected so much by Tyrants, that it was not spoken without good aduice; That Tyranny is the Nursse of feare. For it the Nurfle of commonly cometh to to passe, that such Citero in Tufas line till men feare them, doe also feare them by whom they are feared. This kinde of life, so full of care and dread, Dyonifius the Tyrant discouered to his Oratour Damoeles, of whom the History followeth in this manner.

Damocles defending in an Oration, which hee delivered in the presence of king Dyonifius; that neuer was any man more happy then he, for his inumerable wealth & treasures, beside the abundance of all things in his kingdome. O Damocles (instantly faid the Tyrant) feeing my life is of Dyonifius he Tyrant, & fo well liked by thee, I defire that thou woldst prefently but taste and experiment my fortune. Whereto Damocles confenting the Syracufane king caused him to sitte vpon a stately & sumptuous bed, richly embroydered with gold: and before him flood Tables and Stooles in magnificent manner, all conered with veffels of Gold and Silver. He was ferued by many young children, endued with fingular beauty, & the feruice was extraordinarily magnificient, with all kindes of delicious and exquifite viands. The golden Hall, which gliftered round about him, was perfumed with vnguents of excellent odors, befide Flowers, Chaplets, and curious Notegayes. To be short, in this so triumphant and royall furnithment, Damocles helde fuch a proud, enflated, and (wolne vp countenance, euen as if in Maiesty Roycountenance, etten as it in Maietty Roy-all: King Dyonisius called to him, and bad all his pompe him lift up his head, to behold what was and price wa instantly ouer it. There he shewed him a dismared with fayre bright Sword, which he had caused to be fastened to the plancher, directly ouer the head of Damocles. He seeing the naked Sword, which hung but by one haire of a horses maine, ready to fall on the least occasion; considering thereon

with deliberation, and perceiuing that death was his prefent companion; he began to dispraise the royalty and riches of the King, desiring to bee deliuered from that kinde of felicity. Heereupon Dyonisius Said vnto him, Doest thou not see, O Damocles, how great-ly thou art deceived in thine owne opinion? Such is our life, which (not long fince) thou heldst to be so happy: but now thou plainly perceincft, that eminent death is alwayes attending. By which example we may eafily judge, that he can never be happy, that is daily afflicted with feare. To this purpole

Not the fine fare of Sicily, Will fauour sweet and daintily, Nor the rare found of the Lyre, Nor the fweet Birdes in their quire : All thefe affoord no pleasure can, To that wofull wretched man, That beholds aboue his head. A naked Sword to Strike him dead.

Horace writ thefe verfes.

And as Job faith, The found of feare and dreadful affrights is alwaies in his eares: and although peace be certaine, yet is hee daily doubtfull of close ambushes. Tyrants loue not any body, and therefore (vpon iust occasion) learned men tearmed them to be cruell beafts, and plagues to mankinde. In the human figure of who is fo much fauage cruelty, that Salomon faide directly; A wicked Prince is a roaring Lyon, and an hunger-starued Bearc over poore people. And

Prouer. 17.12

Verfes tranflated out of Horace,

both her hufband and her

Miserable & violent dethi of Tyrants.

permit that Tyrants shall reigne, for the chastisement of wicked men, saving; I wil take vengeance on mine enemies by mine eneman to reigne in regard of the peoples sinnes. And in Hofea God fpeaketh thus: I will give thee a king in my fury. And in Elay; Albur is the rod and staffe of my fury, I will fend thee to a deceitfull people. Neuertheleffe they are not acceptable to God, who throwes them at length into the fire, as a father doth the rod, when he hath therewith beaten his childe. And it hath alwaies fo falne out, that all thefe Tyrants, or the most part of the, have ended their lines miserably, & oftentimes by violent death.caufed by their owne friends: and approoued by confent of all the people. But because the examples of tragicall endes in fuch Tyrants, are handled in a number of other Treatifes & experience hath made it daily manifest vnto vs; I may the fooner conclude this Chapter.

CHAP.VI.

A most horrible cruelty wsed by the Numantines against the Romanes; and in the end wonthemselues.

Scipio having continued fiedge before the Citty of Numantia in Spaine, the space of a yeare and seuen Moneths, and neuer ceasing: munition and victuals began to fayle among the befiedged, so that very many died with famine. Wherupon they made a vow to the Gods, that the first morfell they would cate enery day. should be the sless of some Romane; and that they would drinke neyther wine nor water, till they had fwallowed the blood of fuch as they flew.

The Numantines having all sworne to this vow, they issued foorth of the Citty, and like men, more then desperate, chafed the Romanes, even as if they had beene brute beafts : and fuch as they flew or furprized immediately they killed and brovled inhumanely, or being fliced in peeces, they folde the by weight in the Shambles or Butchery. So that a Romane taken by

And yet God hath and sometimes doth them, or slaine, was of farre greater price and estimation, then to line and pay his ransome. Finally, the Numantines perceiuing, that they had no more meanes of mies. God (faith 10b) maketh the hipocriticall supportation, beeing oppressed with famine, and enclosed on every side : they confulted among themselves to kill all their aged people; yea, all the women & children in the Citty; which (without any feare or respect at all) they put in exe-

When they had done thus, all the wealth and mooueables of the Citty, the lewels & Treasures of the Temples, were broght together in spacious places, & there confumed with fire, yea, and all parts & quarters of the Citty without leaning a house standing, suffered the very same consummation; and enery man tooke a fudden & fpeedy dispatching poyson, whereby they might the foonest dye. Thus the Temples, houses, goods, and persons of the Numantines, which had continued in profperity foure hundred, fixty & fixe yeares, medallin had finall conclusion all in one day. A one day. fight most horrible it was to behold, that the Numantines did those things living, fo full of gastly terror, and not be remooued from them at their houre of death. For they left not to Scipio, any goods as booty or pillage, nor fo much as a man liuing, for a Trophee or Triumph.

Scipio feeing Numantia flaming, and afterward entring thereinto, beheld all the buildings demolished, and turned one vppon another, all the Inhabitants burned; he gricued very greatly, and being vnable to containe himselfe from teares, cryed out thus: O most happy Numantia, to whom The words of the Gods appointed, that thou shouldst rather Scipio on remaine destroyed then conquered! Numa ruined Numannia Pompillius king of the Romans caused this Citty of Numantia to be builded, & Scipio the Romane, being aged then but two and twenty yeares faw the ruine of it.

CHAP. VII.

That a valiant Generallor Captaine, ought first to embrace wisedome & providence, before he do make experiment of his fortune : and also that after victory be shold be milde and pittifull.

'O be a Captain or Generall,is an Of-To be a Captain or Generally of attended his Duties of a Captaine or Generall. Chap.7.

> by many dangers. Fot notwithflanding | of Piedmont, beheld the illustrious & maghe shall performe but what hee may and ought, yet if misfortune be present in giuing the battaile, and returne him off with out victory; hee shall never satisfie the vulgar, but the people will hold him in bad reputation, although it value his life in the adventure. Let every man bee of what quality and wisedome hee may, or would wish to be, & vie the best carriage he can possibly denise; yet we shall never heare a conquered Captaine called wife, or him temerarious, that gets the victory. It is a good thing that Captaines should be wife, but yet much better to be fortu-

Scipio Affricanus vied to fay: That all

A great difference in mens

in the Empe-tour Theodothings ought to bee effayed in warre, before they lay any hand to weapons. And (in truth) he faide well, because there is no greater victory in the world, then that which is wonne without effusion of blood. Cicero writing to Attica faith . That the Captaine which conquers his enemies by councell ought to be no leffe esteemed, then hee that did it by the fword. Silla, Tiberius, Caligula, and Nero, they never knew any other course, but to command and kill: whereas contrariwife, Augustus, Titus, and Traiane knew no better way, then to entreate fairely and pardon, fo that by pardoning, they conquered more, then the other could do by bloody fighting. If Captaines would but confider these things, perhaps they wold not be so ready, in opposing their Armies to fuch multiplicity of dangers: whence oftentimes enfueth, that in thinking to be reuenged on their enemies, they (in the ende) become vanquished them-

Theedofiss the Emperour, when hee bestedged any Citty, he would not suffer his Souldiers to erect any scaling Engines, or make any battery, vntill ten daies were fully past : during which time, hee offered no offence to the Cittizens, but daily admonished them-saying. I grant ye the tearme of ten daies, wherein yee may preuaile with mee by fauour and mildnesse, rather then hazard the triall of my power. When great Alexander faw the dead body of Darius: Iulius Cafar the head of Popey: when Marcellus burned Siracufa, and Scipio beheld Wumantia flaming; and in our later times, when that heroycall Emanuell Philebert, Duke of Sauoye, & Prince nanimous Prince Frances of Burban, Afine of a Duke of Anguien, lying dead upon the ble disposito ground at the taking of S. Quintins: All in luch Genethese great persons could not retraine from teares, although the other were their deadly enemies. For albeit their generous soules were well satisfied with obtayning victory, yet notwithstanding, fuch great and weighty loffes did much discontent them, considering their cases might have beene the like.

Pitty and clemency neuer loft the vi-Gory in warre; but on the contrary, the Capraine bloodily minded cruell, and reuendgefull, hath eyther beene flaine by the enemy, or betrayed by his owne followers. Therefore it was not without greatreason, that Iulius Casar carried immortall renowne among all Princes and Cafar was for Captaines of the world, not for beeing highly remore faire, more strong, more couragious, and fortunate; but onely because far greater was the number of enemies, to whom he frankly affoorded pardon, then those that hee had vanquished and slew with the fword. The famous Captaine Narfes, who fubdued the Gothes, vanqui- He was Genefhed the Battrians, and domineered ouer Emperour the Allemaignes, neuer vndertooke a daies Juftinian. fight against an enemy, but the night before, heekneeled and wept to himfelfe in the Temple. Trogus Pompeius recordeth, that the most signale victories of the Romanes, were not wonne in regard that their Armies were mighty and strong: but because their Captaines were dexterious, active, and gallant, in all services they undertooke. It is expedient also, that the Generall or Captaine (aboue all other things) hould be vigilant, & procure, that among | Secreev is the Captaines of his Army; affaires (con- moft necessa cerning warre) should be kept secret : be- ry in martiall cause the highest enterprizes neuer can affaires. have good fucceife, when they are discouered before they can be effected. Suetomus declareth, that it was never heard Sucton, in vit. faid to Julius Cafar : Must wee do this to It Leafar. day, or shall we do that to morrow? Only he would answer; Doe this in Stantly, & to morrow wee shall fee what is then to bee done. Plutarch writeth in his Moralles, Plut, in Moral that Lucius Metellus beeingrequested by one of his Captaines, to know on what day he would give the battaile; made him

Extremity fill waiteth vpon extremity, and be getteth daily worfe and worle courles

Extremitica

are the occa-

fion of delpe-

rate vowe; &

promifes.

lers in occasions of warre are fitte ft.and what men are to be flunned

A worthic

faying of Al-

not vnmeete

to be obfer-

How to make

vice of a victo

this answer. If I wist that my shirt knew the least thought of the things my hart intendeth. I would immediately burne it. It is wel done to confult on matters of war with many: but the refolution of them is not nevther ought to bee imparted but to very few; otherwise, they may bee published before they are fully concluded. And especiall care is to be taken, that no consultation be had with fuch men, as are evther obftinate in their councels, or rash and headstrong in their actions; for in cases which happen fometime in war, it is leffe harme to retire, then run wilfully on loffe.

Alcibiades, a valiant Captaine among the Grecians vied to fay : Men of magnammity and courage, should sometimes rather flye then tarry; because honour commands attendance and wisedome wils flight. For in greatestperils, it is better that men should fubmit themselves to reason; then that they should be commanded by fortune. A Captaine ought to be councelled in all things, except when he meetes with a dager not foreseene. For many Captaines at divers times in warre, have loft themfelues by no other occasion: but because at fuch time as they thould have brought to effect some notable deed, which admitted not the least minutes trifling they stood then musing, & idely called a councell to no purpose. It is necessary also, that a wife Captaine, after he hath obtained a victory, should understand how to vie and enjoy it. For if Hanniball, on the day at Cannas, could have told how to haue vied his fortune, Scipio the Affricane had neuer conquered him.

CHAP.VIII.

Of the Salique Law the original thereof, and who were the first Authors and Inventers

See a Tract written by John Ferald, and I.C. ther-

N the time of Pope Boniface,

I the first of that name, and of the Emperor Honorius, in An.
420. the Franconians having forfaken their Country, came to inhabite along the River of Rheine, which having passed, they remained for some time at Trenes. Now as these people were of barbarous manners; liming vncinilly & without law , Pharamond their first king. Son vnto their Duke Marcomir, chofe foure cheefe and principal men of the Sieunbrians, who by their councel and deremina tion, might give a law to the peoble. The names of those fouremen, were Vencalt. Lozocaft Salgaft and Vifoguft, who by authority of the king and people; fer downe came tobe a Law in writing, which Pharamond ap- called Sa. prooued and publified, caufing it to bee lique. called Salique eyther by the name of the place Saletham, whet it was made as forme fay of elfe by the hamle of the faid Salgaft, who was Chauncellor to Pharamond and cheefe of the fourc.

This Law contained the forme of fucceeding in the kingdome of France, & the and coddinamer of reigning; and it hath euer fince on ordics. bin observed by the kings of France, and lique Liw. their people untill this profent, "Among other articles therein contained women are declared viable to fule the kingdome. and deprived of faccession to the crowne. although they are the fole & only daughters to the King s nor can they have any portion of inhetitance in the Gallician Lands, but onely vio and profites by the owners confent, implying necessarily, that after their deaths, those allowances returne to the Crowne againe. And this Law is conformable to the Roman Law. reald Poconia, which was made at the time The Law Vo betweene the fecond & laft war of the Romanes with the Carthagenians, and which was pronounced by Voconius, Tribune of the people. And Mulus Gellins faith, that Aul, Gel in there is nothing more profitable to the Noth Allie. common-wealth, then the faid law, which debouteth women from fucceffion which Tit. Linius faith, Marcus Cato(a grave ma) Titus Linin perswaded in an Oration made by him.

And althogh it may be faid concerning this Law, that it containeth no courty be-This Law cause it toucheth the succession of prinate persons: yet on the behalfe of the king-dome, for which it was ordayned, it is full women. and reasonable, and by disposition of womens right, they ought not there to fucceed in the kingdome, nor rights of the erowne, except there be some priniledge or custome to the contrary. So noteth Iohn de Imola, on the Chapter Grands, tit. de simplici neglegen prela to the fixt. And in cap, Grandi for this was made the tenth chapter, Qui feoda poff. ff. hoc autem. C. dilecti, de arb.

Baldus is of the same opinion, speaking expressely concerning the kingdome of France, and faving, that the king of England, Sonne to one of the daughters of France, in regard of this law, might not pretend any right to the Crowne, and faith, it is cleare and certaine, as hee quoteth on the first law.ff.de Sena. And as I haue formerly faide, it hath euermore bin fo observed and held in France.

For example, when Lewes Hutin de-

The fucceffion in the Crowne of France, afte the death of ewes Hutin na continu Ra'dus in Leg.

Chap.9.

ceased, he left one daughter, wife to the Count d'Eureux : Philip le long, his Brother, succeeded him, (neuerthelesse) as well in the Crowne, as in all the Landes thereto belonging. And after the death of Philip le long, although hee left foure daughters; yet Charles le Bel (his brother) fucceeded him, as well in the Crowne, as other inheritances. And after the decease of Charles le Bel, notwithstanding hee left one daughter named Blanche, wife to Philip, Duke of Orleance, his coufin : yet Philip de Valois succeeded him. In like maner, after the death of king Charles the eight, Lewes Duke of Orleance, his cousin succeeded him, before Madame Anne of France, his Sifter, wife vnto the Duke of Bourbon, and this was king Lewes the 12. who although (by his decease) he left two daughters, Claude and Renee: yet neuertheffe, Frances Duke of Valous and of Angoulefme, the very neerest in the line collaterall and masculine, succeeded him as well in the Crowne, as also in the Dukedome of Orleance, albeit the faide Lewes the twelfth, Charles his Father, and Lewes Duke of Orleance his Grandfather, had held the Dukedome of Orleance, by the gift and inheritance which Charles the 5. had made to the faid Lewes, Duke of Orleance his Sonne.

For right and inflice requireth, that all Lands which are once vnited and incorporated to the Crowne of France, ate once vnishall be of the proper nature, quality and orporated to condition as the fame Crowne is: as well in regard of fuccessions and acquisitions. as other causes. For at all times, and as often as a Land is vnited to the Crowne, it taketh the nature of the kingdome, and must be gouerned in all things, according to the conditions thereof. For the kingdome is an univerfall thing, which comprehendeth many other in particular : as it is faid in the Law Peculium.ff.de Lega ij.

And not onely the Salique Law is kept in France, but also it is found in many ftatutes in Italy, and elsewhere, prohibiting women to succeed, which is done, faith the Text of the Law, Fauere agnationis Libs five conservanda, ve dignitas familiarum salua public fi de sit. And Baldus saith, that a woman is not the head or Prince of the Family but the ende thereof.

Paulus de Castra, on the Law Maritus, Paule Call in C. de procur. faith, that the linage and fami- 16 9. ly beginneth in the males, and is conferued by the males. And so it seemeth, that the Etimologie of the word Foror declareth, which Labee Antistius giueth in Aulus Gellius. Soror appellata est quod quasi fe- Ant Gellins in orfum nascitur separaturque ab en domo in lib.13.cap.10. qua nata est, or in aliam familiam transcreditur. That is to fay. A fister is fo called, as Be that is borne almost apart by herselfe, and is separated from the house wherein foce was borne, and changing the place, goeth to dwell in another family.

CHAP.IX.

Examples of some Letters contayning secrecie, and fent in (uch manner, as they might not be knowne, but onely to fuch whom they especially concerned.

Arpagu writing to Cyru, concerning the treason of in the belly of King Assigner, having cunningly vnbowelled a Hare, put his Letter therein, and after hee had ingeniously sowed it vp againe, delinered it (with the Hayes or Nets) to one of his Huntimen, the faithfullest of all his houshold, and hee carried it to king Cyrus.

Hystyaus, defirous to write to Aristagoras, did shaue the head of one that was his trustiest fernant, and wrote vpon the skull-skinne what hee would, containing of the head. three or foure Carracters, and afterward kept him in his house, untill the haire was growne ouer as thicke as before, and then he fent him to Aristagoras, willing that he (hould cause him to be shauen againe, so foone as he was come vnto him, and fo he understood the others minde.

Aulus Gellius reporteth, that Iulius

How Iulius Cafar wrote his Letters of especiall intelligence.

he had any vigent occasion, and to some peculiar places; and in them were letters formed onely, without any fillables annexed to them. So that when they were looks on and questioned, no word could be collected to any purpose, but by himfelfe, and him to whom they were intended, being a mute and fecret invention. ver familiar to fuch as vnderstood them.

Frontinus in lib.3.cap 13.

Many (faith Frontinus) being defirous n actions of warre to fend their letters miffi ne fecretly to have their inventions known, and yet to avoide all meanes of discovery, have written within the Scabbards of their Swords and fent them as acceptable prefent's whereby they have cleanly escaped.

Demaratus desiring to make knowne to the Lacedemonians, how king Xerkes Small Tablets of wood cowas armed and prepared for his journey uered with against Greece; did write the councell of Waxe. the king in small Tablets of wood, which he couered ouer with waxe, and in that manner fent them to the Lacedemonians.

> who taking off the waxe, read all the contents there written.

of Hirrius in conueighing his Letters.

Hirtius the Confull fent letters written voon Lead (but not knowne how to be read, being intercepted) to Marke Anthony, befiedged at Modena; they were carried by an honest Soldiour, who wore them as bracelets about his wrifts. & with them fwom over the River Scultena. The fame Hirtiss likewise tyed letters about the necks of certaine Doues, which hee kept close lockt vp in a contient place. where no light was to bee feene, nevener did he give them any food; that when he should let them loofe neere to the walles of the Citty (as eafily he could doe) they being greedy of light and food, might mount aloft vpon the houses, where beeing taken by Brutus, and by the meanes of food, purposely appointed therefor the. he understood what he defired.

Paradine, in his history of our times, A Letter fent writeth, that when as Rhodes was befiedginto the ene- ed by the Turke, a traytour named Friar Andrew de Meraill, a knight of Portugall, making a flew of carefull looking to the WV atch; fhot a letter (bound about an Arrow) into the enemies Campe, wherby he gaue them aduertisement, in what estate the Citty stood.

Frontinus hath many other examples of secret Letters, in matters of loue, of Cafar sometimes sent him Missiues, when | which I will relate two only, remembred by Aeneas Sylvius Picholiui Pope Pius the fecond . Pachorus a young man (faicth he) fent a loue-letter in a Nofegay of Violets to Lucretia, whom hee dearely affeeted. And finding no fuccesse, wrapt another in a pellet of waxe, which he coucred as a fnow-ball, and fo threw it in at his Mistresses Window.

CHAP. X.

A Discourise concerning the original of the Normanes, what valiant actes have bin performed by them: and of Robert Guifcardo.

HE Normanes are anciently deficiently deficiently of the Gothes, and viurped that great half-mia, and fines Dacia: where-nia, and fines Dacia: where he will be supposed to the supposed to th by the kings of that Province, were named kings of the Danes, and of the Gothes. They had a custome, that the kingdome came to the eldest Sonne, and therefore fent the other Sonnes to feeke their fortune. It came fo to passe, that Lutrocus their king (who was not a Christian) hauing two Sonnes; according to the precedent custome, sent the youngest named fent to select Biergost woout of the kingdome, albeit he his forunes loued him very dearely, and therefore co- abroad. mitted the care of him to a Gentleman of his Court, named Astengus, to whom he gaue in charge, that he should furnish him with a troope of valiant men.

An indifferent Army beeing given him, they came vppon the confines of France, and entring Picardy, possessed theselues of most of the Townes and Bourroughs, burnt Saint Quintins and Noyon, and for the space of forty yeares did infinite harmes to the Realme of France. For after that Biergostus was dead, they elec- The death ted/as their cheefe Commander & Cap- Biergoffun, & the electron taine) a very valiant and gallant Knight, of Rollo. called Rollo, who made three Campes, which entered France on three feuerall fides: the one mounted up the River of Seyne; the other along the River of Loyre; and the third by the River of Gerunda, fometime called Garona at Bourdeaux, and fo feattred thefelues throughout France, ranaging and burning wherefocuer they came. Which being perceined by Charles the third of that name, and called the finiplaking of France, and knowing also that he had no meanes to relift them; he treated a peace betweene Rollo and him, by the Arch-Bishop of Roane, named Franquon, which was concluded neere to the Riner of Epta, the King being on the one fide of the River, and Rollo on the other. Therein was an appointment made, that

Charles should give his Daughter, named Giletta, in mariage to Rello, to whom he affigned as her Dowry, and an inheritance for the children borne in this mar-of King Charles.

homely man-

he Simple.

riage, and not otherwise, the Prouince of That which * Newstria, which Rollo caused afterward is now called to be called Nortemania, which fignifieth a Northerne people. For Nort (in the Dacian tongue) is as much to fay as North. and man implieth Homo, fo, interpreted of it felfe, from whence, by a corrupt kinde of speech asterward, it was called 2Vortmandie. The king created that Country to be a Dukedome, and gaue his Daughter in marriage to the faid Rollo, as formerly it was concluded, yet with this condition, that Rollo Mould become a Christian: whereto he condifcending, he was bapti-Rollo is bapti. zed in the yeare 900 and 12. & by Franmed Robdert, quon, Arch-Bithop of Roane, beeing then marying with named Robert, by Robert, Count of Poidiers; who was Godfather to him at the Font Andby the example of Rollo, all the Normans that were Pagans, caused themselues to be baptized, which caused Duke Robert to do homage toking Charles, for the Country of Newstria, then converted to be Normandy. Historians doe report a pleasant and ridiculous acte, which Rollo did on the day when hee came to performe his homage to the king, for some adulfed him to kiffe the feete of his Maiefly, according to a custome in that case observed. But hee disdayning to fall on his knees. Duke Robert performed hishomage in tooke the kings foot, lifting it vp to reach his mouth, and fo ouer-high, that the king fell backward from off his feate. VVherat the Normanes fell into a great laughter; but the French were offended and vexed.

taking this behaviour in very ill manner. Neuerthelesse, this deed was imputed to fimplicity, because Rollo, in making his ex-cufe, auouched, that fuch kinde of kiffing the foote, had beene an ancient custome in his Country. About a yeare after, Rollo feeing himfelfe peaceably poffeffed of all Normandy, repudiated his wife Giletta, & The Duke puther to a pittifull kinde of death, not Wite, and having any childe by hersin which respect put her to as well by right of forfeiture, as by other death. conditions contracted in the marriage, without all question, the Country and Dukedome should have returned to the Crowne of Prance again, as at the first. Long time before Rolla became a Christian, hee had carnall knowledge of the Daughter to Berengariss. Earle of Beaunaus, the beeing named Pompeia, by whom he had a Sonne called William, that William afterward was tearined Long-Sword. Hee Long-tword being borne in vnlawfull and finfull copulation out of marriage, and the acte com- lo became mitted by a Christian with a Pagane, was his fucceffour confequently difabled from fucceeding dome. in the Dukedome. But howfoeuer it came to paffe, the Normanes finding thefelnes fo ftrong and dreadfull; poffeffed this William of the Dukedome, and the kings of France were enforced /by reason of hauing to flender meanes in those times) to endure and fuffer all. So that the Successors of Rollo or Robert, enjoyed ftill that Country, though by corruption of faith, and no true tytle thereun-

Of this William came Richard, firnamed The line and Long-shankes; and of that Richard a second succession Willam from Willam Longstyers. Richard; who was Father to Robert, that was Father to William the Bastard, which conquered England. Whereby it very plainly appeareth, that of the fore-named Three Eng-Rollo or Robert, the Dukes of Normandy, hishe Kings of and three Kings of England received ori-

Now concerning Richard, the Sonne to William, Sonne to Rollo or Robert, hee had two Sonnes, the one named Robert, and the other Richard also, who beeing defirous of glory and fame, went into Sicily with great troopes of men, and there they made war successefully many yeares together. These two brethren beeing dead, the Normanes beeing then in pay to the Duke of Salerne; made choise of a new cheefe Commaunder or Cap- Triftiam Citaine named Tristum Cistello, who ha- ftello Capuing flaine a Serpent, and beeing in- taine of the

fected

Frontinus in ib.3.cap. 1 7.

Tancred and his to fonne all worthy Warriors.

374

ter him succeeded Raymond, and some or ther (afterward) elected for their Captaine, William Ferrabach, Sonne to Tancred Conte de haute ville, who had twelue Sonnes, to wit, Sarno, Godfrer, Drogon, Tancred William, called Ferrabach, that is to fav , Armestrone, Haufrey, Robert, firnamed Guifcardo, Roger, Piccard, Godfrey the fecond or younger. Frumenting, and Ma-

Tancred with his twelve Sonnes.con tinued among the Normanes in the exercife of Armes, and Michael Catalaicus. Emperour of Constantinople, held then by viurpation Pouilla and Calabria, under the government of Malocco, one of his Captaines, and Lieutenant for him in those Countries. Some other places also were inuaded by the Sarrazins, who policifed sicily, continually molesting the faide kingdome. The valiant and generous William, being created Captaine of the Normanes, made a league with the Princes of Capua and Salerne, and also with Malocco, Lieutenant to the Emperour. All these passed together (with their Armies) into Sicily against the Sarrazins, and having vanquithed and expelled them thence, divided the prize equally among them. But Malocco furrendred the lands of that Isle to those Gouernors which the Emperour had fent thither before the warre. Whereat William being offended, yet diffembling his anger and intentions, marched with his Army to. wards Pouilla, where hee poffeised himfelfe of many places, and entring Melphes. there strongly fortefied himselfe.

When Malocco heard these newes, he departed from Sicily, and fuddenly went with his Army to Melphes; but William being come foorth of the Towne, gaue fuch a valiant affault vpon Malocco, that killing the better part of his followers, & chasing him from the greatest jurisdictions of Pouilla; hee fully enjoyed it, and made himfelfe Earle thereof . After the death of William, Drogon his Brother obtained the Seigneury of Pauilla, and being a man of great valiancy, as also very well experienced in Arms fought three times in one day against the Grecians, and ouercame them, encreasing his Countries daily more and more.

About seuen yeares after, Drogon died.

fected with her poylon, dyed thereof. Af- 1 and Haufrey or Hunfrey his Brother fucceeded; and after him, Godfrey, who left Balegard his Sonne successor in the Earledome. But Robert being a most valiant young man, displeased that his Brother Godfrer had not left the place to him after his death; expulsed his Nephew by torce | leth his No. of Armes, and so helde the Counties of | phew Bage. his death; expulsed his Nephew by force Robert exid. Pauilla and Calabria; annexing also Troy lard. thereto, which (till that time) had continued fubiect to the Romanes. This is that Robert, who for his excellent fpirit & wit- The voling ty prouidence, was firnamed Guifeardo, Robert, firmance Guifeardo, Brobert, firmance Guifeardo, Brobert which in the Norman Language, fignifieth do Duke of ingenious and cunning: although forme Calabra, others fay, that fuch a firname fignifieth errant and wandering, because the Normanes went wandering thorough many Countries. Afterward in the time of Pope Nicholas, feeond of that name, hee was created the first Duke of Calabria, & of Pouilla, in the yeare one thousand and

> In the ende Robert having by his proweffe, and with his Brethrens helpe, wonne (in eighteene yeares) the whole Isle of Si cily, and many other Regions in Italy; fought moreouer to make himselfe Emperour of Constantinople, for which he leuied a mighty Army, and fought with the felfet more of Conflate vanguished them. But being retired to Cassiopolis, a Promontory in the Isle of Corfue, and there furprized with a most violent Feauer, hee finished his dayes in that place, in the Moneth of July, in the yeare one thousand, eighty two, having lived gloriously (and won many victories) for the space of threescore yeares.

> This most noble Family of the Wormane Guiscardoes, had a lamentable ending, in the yeare one thousand, one hundred, ninery fiue, in William, whom the Emperour Henry the fixt caused to bee guelded, to the ende hee should have no clusion of the ability of producing any more iffue by Norman him. And moreouer he made him to lofe Guileardoe the fight of his eyes, by Basons extremely heated, which hee constrayned him to looke voon fo long, vntill the reuerberation of the hear, had vtterly depriued him of fight. This impiety, and more then barbarous cruelty, did the Emperour vie vnto him; because none of that race (afterward) should hinder his enjoying the kingdome of Sicily.

CHAP.

CHAP.XI.

Of two young youthes of Paris, that tranailed to the Indiaes, to cure themselves of the Neapolitane difeafe, or French Fox.

The Chapter heere mentioned, is infer-tedhereafter.

rom whence

Contradi&i-

The authors

ultification

Many haue

Chap.ii.

Nthony du Verdier. Lord of Vanprimaz, in his Booke of diuers Readings; hath
well deferibed the originall of the Weopolitane

Of the Neapolitane disease.

difeafe otherwife called the great pox, & how it was brought from the Countries of the new found world, discouered first by Columbus, in those Islands which the Indians call Haity and Quifqueia. And as this disease is very familiar in those lands; fo is the remedy therof also found there, Neapolitane by the meanes of a wood, called Guyaich, whereof there are divers Forests, and by the vie thereof it is easily healed. Many people in these parts, who have read the fore-named Chapter, haue highly contraried it: especially such as have had, and yet at this present, do finde no case thereby, albeit they have drunk every morning and evening of that decoction, having afterward foundly fweated twice a yeare, in those two temperate seasons, the Spring time, and fall of the leafe, nay moreouer, haue drunke no other drinke (with their meate, and without) for a whole yeare together.

For mine owne part, I dare maintaine, that the faid Lord of Vauprinaz, hath faid nothing but the truth, and if the greater part of ficke persons, infected with that disease, have found no remedy by the wood; the fault is in such as fell it, & hauc not wel ordered it, not having knowledge what kinde of Guyaigum should be vsed. northe place, northe climate, nor by whom it is brought thence, being ignobin deceived rantly perswaded, that there is but one in the Guyai. kinde thereof onely, against the opinion of some that will meddle with prescriptions, not having bin in the country where this wood naturally groweth. Wherefore I purpose to make good what I write, by a history of two Parisian youths, who were healed by the vie of Guyaicum; not fuch as is brought hither to vs, and how it happed. I will fet downe the whole discourse.

I being at Paris in the yeare 1563. I had great familiarity with the two youths, be- The Author ing both borne in the Citty, of good and freaketh this worthy houses; but I conceale their burney of the names, by reason of their infection with ledge. that veneriall contagion, it beeing most commonly taken by diffionest dealing with leud women, and so by confequent, carrieth shame with it. This sickness they concealed fo long as they could, but in the end, it made it felfe to be knowne, by loffe of their haire, by red puffies appea- Outward en ring in the fore-head, by aches in the parances of bones, both of their armes, legs, thighes, dileals, where and shoulders, as also in the former part by best note of their heads, from the beginning of of the ficknes night, till break of day the next morning, with other fuch like fignes; as paine in the throate, being scarfely able to swallow a. ny food. Now, albeit that all these cuidences are not feene, in all fuch persons as are touched with that difeafer yet it plainly appeared, that in both these young bodies, all the fore-named testimonies, and many more beside (which I let sleepe in filence) were apparantly noted.

In regard of these rehearsed accidents, which were so manifest, the Parents to them both had intelligence, that they Helpe fought were touched with this difeafe; and yet Physicions & for more certaine affurance therein, they Chyturgions. caused them to bee visited by very skilfull Physitions and Chyrurgions, who performed all that which arte could permit, and yet they were not able, neither could they cure them . A second time, other Physitions were called to this businesse, who applied likewise the vetermost of tempthy phytheir knowledge; but all in vaine, and the ficke, but pre disease it selfe grew worse and worse, ri- uniling like the first. fing into knots and tophies in the foremost part of the head, and in the bones of the armes, thighes, and legs, they procured insupportable nightly paines. For when night drew necre, and all the time Night time a while it continued, they cried and com- great enemy plained incessantly, so that the neighbors to the disease (on all fides) heard their pittifull lamentations, by meanes whereof, their bodies became wholly dried vp.

The Physitions alleadged, that there was fome great extraordinary matter in The Sarazins conquered & expulli d out of Sicily.

Melphesfurprized by Williams

The fucceffi am in the County of Parties of diuers comple Ctions may haue all one difeafe.

The judge-

ment of the

Phylitions

their dileate

The young

to be cured.

When the hope of man

keft, Gods

helpe is then came nothing neere to one another in confanguinity, but were of divers tempewas delicate, foft, merry, whitifh, and of blackish coulor, strong, hardy, and many times addicted to penfineneffe. Neuerof nature, and all the Apiomes in the arte of Phylicke; their diseases seemed conformable, which never hapneth to other persons, offended with the same contagion because some have accidents farre different and contrary to other. Heereupon the Physitions referred the cause of this difeate (fimpathizing fo directly, yet in fuch different bodies) to the venome of fome paillardizing women, that had infe-Acd them.

But to make fhort, after these youthes had endured much extremity of paines & anguish, as well by Physicions and Chimen giuen o uer.a. no way rurgions, as Empericks that had charge of them: the harme had extended fo farre in expences, and no meane heart-greening of the Parents, al which not with standing. they were given over as incurable, & because there was no likely-hood of theyr healths recovery, they daily defired the seizure of death. Matters standing in this lamentable estate, God tooke compassion on them and their Parents, because is at the wea they were denout persons, & gaue almes very liberally to the poore daily, presenting them remedy in this manner. The Lord of Chantonnay, a Gentleman of Burgundy, and of the Franche Comte, was fent (by the King of Spaine) Ambassadour to Charles the ninth, King of France, who ordinarily made his residing at Paris. This Ambaffadour was lodged directly ouer against the house, to one of the Fathers of the ficke yong men, and both their chambers being outward, on the streetes side: it caused the said Lord Ambassadour (who was none of the fleepiest men) to heare the greeuous moanings, which the poore fickly Neapolitan continually made whervoon hee entreated his Hofte to informe him, whence proceeded those wofull lamentations, thus nightly made by the fick young man. His Hoste hauing tolde him nothing but the truth, the Ambaffadour wrought fo by his Hofte, that hee might come to see the fickly youth; which ac-

the difease. For these two young men | cordingly he did, in the company of his Mother .

The Lord of Chantonnay, well vn- to write the ratures and complexions. For the one derstanding whence the disease procee- fickey only ded, & those nocturnall heavy greenings, tender disposition: but the other was of said, that he had seen many in divers Prouinces, as in Bourgundy, Germany, Flanders, Italy, & Spaine, afflicted with the felfetheleffe, contrary to the common order fame fickneffe; and notwithstanding all curious and carefull attending, yet they could not any way be cured, but onely by Cureobur going to the Indiaes. For instance hereof, to the Indiaes he called for his Secretary, who prefently came thither, and had (as wel as his Lord) passed the voyage, therefore hee was the better able to confirme his speeches, and related at large, how every thing happened.

The Mother to the ficke youth, after the had thanked the Lord Ambaffadour for his aduice, withdrew herfelfe, and acquainted her husband (who was Muster of the * Chamber of Accounts) with all that the Lord of Chantonnay had faid vnto her. He being a very learned and wife quer Chan-Gentleman, conferred further (concerning this matter) with the Secretary to the faid Lord Ambaffadour; whom hee found to be a man of good judgement, & one that had past through the Pikes, as we vie to tearme it.

The Sonne to the Master of the Accounts, imparted this matter vnto his Themanus fickly Companion, who advertised his fully related and acquain Mother also therof, and she her husband, ted to both who was a Merchant trading in filkes, and fidet. furnished the house of the Queene, Catherine de Medicis, then Regent in France; and heereupon both the Fathers conferred together. In breefe, they concluded to hazard their Sons in the performance of this voyage, perswading themselues. that feeing they reputed to bee incurableit might fo fall out, that changing the ayre of the climate, and by their paffage vnder the * Equator, vnder which, fuch as Or coulros fayle, doe oftentimes become ficke, and siall Circle, dyein the voyage, making the Sea their caually diftant from grave, as the most part doe, of them that the 2 Poles aduenture to the Indiaes, to which fortune they freely committed their Sons. But if it came to passe, that they might there be cured, as divers others formerly had beene; they flood bound in the greater thankfulnesse to God. For they being daily in their fight fo difeafed, to their

A ftrange reen Fathers.

> No paffage to the Indiacs, King of Spain ermiffion.

recouery.

from the King of Spaine: Queene Mother, understanding by her Mercer (Father to one of the ficke youthes) the purposed voyage of his Sonne; wrote vnto her Daughter, then Queene of Spaine, for her affiftance to the poore paffengers, to favour them with Paffe-ports, and recommendations vnto the Kings Lieutenants in the Indian Countries, to fuch as were Captaines of the Seas, and other. Being affisted by two men, who had formerly voyaged both by Land and Sea, and peace being accorded with the Prorestants and Catholiques, they transiled to Spaine, and there presented their Let-fide the charges attending thereon; they could not determine on any estate for them, nevther make mention for their marriage, the reason of their sicknesse

being to noyfed quite through the Citty of Paris. Thus thefe two Fathers refol-ued to fend their Sonnes to the Indiaes, evther for their vtter losse, or healthfull

any to paffe thither, without permission

Now because it was not lawfull for

Of the Neapolitane disease.

he arrinall of the young men in Spain

ters.

All the Frech in Brefile flaine by the paniards.

Good fortun in fo great necessity.

The arriuall of the two ficke young men in India and their

there.

courteous en tertainment

ted their licence and dispatch: but first they were visited, to know whether they were Spyes or no. For it was no long time before, that the Spaniards had flaine all the French, which were to be found in that part of Brefile, called by the Tononeinambouts, faying, that all the Indiaes appertained to them, by due right granted to them by the Pope. When they were found to bee diseased persons, they were discharged, and going on to the Port of Simila fortune was fo fauourable to them, that there they found a Fleet of Shippes, ready charged with men of warre & Merchandizes, bound also for that part of the Indiaes, whereto these sicke men intended to go; which was the Islands of Haity and of Quisqueia, named by Columbus, Hispaniola, and afterward the Isle of Saint Do-

The Queene immediately follici-

They went aboord a Merchants Ship, having agreed for threefcore Ducates. both for their passage thither, and their returne backe againe. The voyage fucceeded fo well, that although it contayned aboue eighteene hundred leagues by land; yet within two Moneths, they arri-

no little discontenument and shame, be- | ued there; landing in the Isle of S. Dominico, where the Vice-Roylay. To him they presented their Letters of fanour and recommendations, who gaue charge to a Gentleman of his Court, to fee that the young men and their company shold be kindely entreated, fending them vnto Physitions, that remained there in the Country at the Kings pay. But they thought it more convenient for them to Their remocpasse thence to another Island, which life of S John was called Saint John de Porterico: where de Porterico. the women there dwelling, were verye skilfull in curing that malady, and when they were come thither, thus it fucceeded to them.

First, the Governour of the Island. by commaundement given him from the Vice-Roy of the Indiaes, lodged the young men to well as hee could in that fauage Country: which was in a Lodging made with palifadoes, or a wall of of their lod-Pales, which beeing but badly joyned ging in s. tohn together, was filled vp with bundles of de Porterico.

The Roofe confifted of leaves of Trees, fo were their Beds also, and in stead of Feathers, they were filled with Cotten: their Sheetes being of plaine Fustian, and all their vtenfilles of wood, or of earth.

Their ordinary feeding was on Cowflesh somewhat tender, of great Serpents Their ordinaroafted, which ferued highly to their heather Ifle of S. ling, and also on strong Tortuics, as lohn, great as an indifferent Porket.

Their bread was Biscuit, and is much better in that Country, then elfewhere; for within the space of foure and twenty houres, it will grow mouldy, and if it be eaten hot, it is indigestible. But howfoener it were, the Spaniards gave them The kindnesse courage, not to greeue themselves, and of the Spanibrought a Musician vnto them to delight ards to them. them, whose Instrument was made of the bone of a mans thigh. They likewife fent a woman to attend them, that made little or no account of them; but tolde them, fo foone as they were cured, the did affure herfelfe, that they would very well content her. This Woman fo affrighted our young Parifians, that they could verye willingly there have dved, as never hoping of any helpe by her meanes. For the went starke naked, her skin being of an

The manner

The Lord of Chantonnay heareth one of the young mens hourely complainings The descripti beauty of a fauage woma

Such a fight ly pleafing to in a place fo defert and vnaffable enough for a fauage creature. This woman prepared a drinke, which of Guyacum, or Pockwood, by the fauage

The Parifi anhalfe pinte as our whole pinte.

Their manne of giving Phificke in the Cuftome to the Coun tries dyet.

dog: her breasts hung dangling downe, like to the dues of an olde Sow. Her head was shorne close before but behinde the havre hanged fo low as her heeles, all frifled, and like to the tayle of some ill-fauoured Cow. The nayles of her hands and feete, exceeded halfe a fingers length, and were bowing crooked. She had no haire where nature commonly affordeth. neyther in her arme-pits; and her teeth looked of a new betweene red & vellow. long, cleare, and wide enough afunder. At each of her eares hung a Stone of violet coulor, the least of them weighing aboue two ounces: her vpper lip was flit in the midst, in the top whereof stood another stone of grayish coulor, and thence passed her spettle continually. All the other parts of her body were round & far, and in indifferent fashion, sweete, faire, &

A drink made the made of the little loppings of a vong Guyaicum tree, hauing first bruised them betweene her goodly teeth, the afterward the boyled the in an earthen veffell, without any thing to couer it, and contrary to all courses observed in our Countries. This drinke the caufed them enery morning to take, each of them to the quantity of a * Paris Chopine, at two or three draughts. Then they must walke a while. almost as big exercise Fencing, or some other cheerefull stirring of their bodies; or elfe trauell to a Mine of gold, which was not far off fro the Village, fo to weare out the space of two houres. Then returning backe againe to the house, all sweaty, they would change onely their thirts; and going to dinner, they must drinke of no other water, but of a much-troubled standing Poole, wherein was nothing but rainewarer. The Spaniards would offer them Gallypands or Cocks of India, which they did eate fodden for the most part. But after they had benevied to it eight or ten dayes; they could eate Toads, Serpents. brought them and Lizards euen as well as other, and found them very fauory meate; befide diuers kindes of fruites, the like whereof hath neuer bene seene in these parts. About three houres in the evening, they Oline-conlour: flat nofed, like to a little (mony, remedy, or denifes yfed to them, they found themselues to bee throughly The young healed inft within the space of fix weeks: men were men onely their gums excepted, which were red in the become swolne and enflamed. But they space of fite were made found, with a inarpe-pointed then to men were made found, with a sharpe-pointed their former them therewith in many places, and they red. thus healed, were perfectly recourred. The knots and bumps on their bones. vanished away, all their nightly afflictions ceaffed wholly within fifteene daies: appetite came afresh to them both, and their haire being loft, was reftored againe in more firmer manner then before. And now there remained, not fo much as the print of any push or blaine, eviler in their fore heads, or on their breafts, likewife all vicers which they had in their fecret parts, dried vp and were gone.

They perceiuing themselves to be thorowly cured, were willing to content the full intention woman with golden coyne, as hoping towards the fausage woman they did well therein : and this they did, by the aduice of a cunning crafty Spaniard, relegated to that place, and to worke in the Mines. He very well knew, that the Indians, making no account of Gold or Monie; purposed to begge it of her, not doubting but easily she wold give it him. But it fell out farre otherwise, for shee re-fused the Gold, and would by no meanes of the cuted touch it, but ran into the house, and took young men, a Bow and Arrowes, intending to kill by the tree they or a them, but that they fledde away from her. Spaniard Perceiving this, they called another Spamard, who had alwayes made fignes of amity towards them, and caused him to fpeake to the woman because they underflood nother language. Conference by fignes having past betweene them, the Spaniard learned of her, that shee would be payed in some small wares or trifles. They not knowing where they should so prouide themselves, the Spaniard tolde Trifles and them, that there dwelt a man in the Vil-matters of lage, who made profession of felling such yet pleasing things; and of him, for the value of two to the cic, at Ducates (which amount heere but to best welcome twenty Solz) they bought these following trinkets. Six very bigge Combes, fix little kniues, fold for a Sol a peece in Paris, with their theathes, fix final looking-glaffes, a must drinke as much of the Guvaicum, as dozen of points, sixe needles, a glasse they did in the morning and vie the same | spoone, & a dozen of Ballads. Wherwith exercises. And without any other cere- | the was extraordinarily pleased, & tooke

Their coming o Paris, and welcomming by their pa.

Countrey.

her felfe highly beholding to them. She presently sung a Song, after her countrey manner, made them a Feast, wherin were ferued foure finall Guinny hennes boyled,

Their returning vnto the Vice roy at S. their fayling

Chap. 12.

The Sauage

romans thák inhelle to the

we young

two Toads very fat, vnbowelled and roafled. They dranke a Beuerage, made of Turky wheate, passable enough. And afterward, the gaue them halfe a dozen of Bowes, and some store of Arrowes, to beare away with them homeward beside the gaue to each of them, fine Hand-kerchers of Cotton, properly made. They returned thence to the Island of Saint Dominico, where they presented themselues ynto the Vice-roy, who was most joyfull to see them recovered; and there they remained one moneth more. not feeling any ficknesse by the change of ayre, or of the climate, whereat each one greatly meruailed. In this time, the Merchants made them ready for their return, and some bands of soldiers, who went to refresh themselues in Spaine. Being entred their thip, within two other months they arrived happily in the Port of Sinill. Thence they went to Madrille, humblic to thanke the Queene, who gaue them Letters and Paffe-portes, for their more fecure arriving in France. Being come to ned by their parents and friends, who did conceale their voyage and ficknesse, so much as in them lay.

It was my hap to finde them there, and to me they reuealed the whol aduenture euen in such maner as I haue set it down; to the end, that fuch as fall into the like inconvenience, & being forfaken of Phyfitians heere, may travaile for their recouery, as thefe two yong men did. At this day they are prouided of great and honorable Offices, the one being officer for the Finances, and the other a worthic Commander in Armes, having performed many fignal feruices, in the last wars of the vnion to his Maiesty. And because this Chapter should not seeme ouerlong: I will heereunto adde another Difcourse, concerning the Tree of Guyaicum, which healed these two young Parisians.

Paris, they were most louingly entertay.

CHAP, XII.

Why there is not found fo much vertue in the Guyaicum that is brought hither . as in that whereof the Indians them (elues do make vee, against the Neapolitane diseale, and the description thereof.

S God hath beene, is, The great and euer-more decla- to the natu. reth himfelte to bee rally infested good & mercifull.knowing the inhabitantes of the whole Countrie

Indian people

of India fore-named, to be naturally fubiect to this infection of the Pox: fo hath he given them the Tree of Guyaicum, by the meanes whereof they can cure themfelues, which they attayned vnto, onely by experience; for they have not anie knowledge of Letters. The Spaniardes which had conquered those countreyes, having co-habited carnally with the naturall Women there abiding; receyued from them this difease. For at certaine feafons, this malady possesseth the Indians; as Fellons or VVhitlawes, and Fea- Spaniardes ans; as Fellons or V Viitiawes, and Feawere the first uers do seize on vs. And having perceyth trooke the ued that they recourred themselves by pox of the Indian women. Guyaicum, our Merchants brought some of it hither; which in the beginning, rotted of it felfe, by reason they brought thence the very youngest: which to preuent, they brought then of the oldest that in regard of his folidity could not rotte or perifh. And our Phyfitians (by their own report) appointed the receipt of that, to fuch as (in these parts) were so infected; but to little effect, for beside the breuage knowledge it or drinke made thereof, they fayled in fom Philitians annointing (oftentimes) the diseased body, with hotte Oyntments, compounded with Quick-filuer, wherby fome of good habitude, perceived themselves to be cured and others not. Now, by that which I coulde gather, from the discourse of these two young observation Parisians, the olde Guyaicum, which is by report of broght hither to vs, is of the groffe trunk the two Pariand strong bodie of the Tree, that hath no vertue against the discase, neyther doe the Indians any way vie it. And our deceiued Physitians, appoint the receipt of onely.

The want of

India.

this blacke Guyaicum, which is of those great trunkes, and call it, the heart of Guyaicum. They also perswade theselues that there are two kindes of Guraicum, to wit, one that is wholly blacke, and the other nothing blacke at all. Neuertheleffe, they are both of one tree, infomuch as that which hath no blackneffe is of the branches, and enermore the oldest, albeit they take it for the yongest. These young Paristans, beeing of good and apprehen-sive spirits, did well perceyve, that that which men brought hither to vs. had very little power or efficacy ! for they had made many diets, without receyuing the least ease thereby.

Trial of Guy-But the other of India, which was yong, arcum by the fornewhat tender, having hardly attained Parifians exto two yeares growing, and no higher the petience both heere, and in the flature of a man, did heale very eafily. For in the making thereof, there would bee felte and perceived, avery delicate and Grape-like gumme, pleasing vnto the heart, which is not to bee found in that made heere among vs. And they conclu-ded, that the drinesse and coldnesse of the trunkes of the trees, then which there is no other brought to vs, is the only cause,

Yet do I not inferre heereby, but that

why fuch an irkefome difeafe cannot bee cured.

Some vertue in the olde Guyaicum, &

Some forfa-

ly currd by the olde Guy-

the aged Guyaicum brought hither to vs. hath some power and vertue: as in preparing the bodie (to receive the voguents applyed in that il difease. fit for the difease) that is of a cold or melancholly nature, and having made vie thereof eight or ten dayes, then to take the Vinguents. Or elfe, when one is fupposed to have that sicknesse, and there remaineth paines or aches in some parts of the body, or some V lcer is feared: some have beene observed, that by the vse of this old Guyaicum, within three weekes they have appeared to be found. Some also have beene fore afflicted, yea, divers ken, yet found times left in deploreable condition; yet having made vie hereof for a year or two. as in their ordinary drink, and their bread commixed with a decoction of Guyacum, and their meate boyled in like manner, they have bene cured, and (among other) an Atturney of the Parliament at Rouen : but this is very rare and extreamly pain-

> The voyage to the Indiaes feemeth not fo dolorous, nor yet so greatly chargeable: for these two young Parisians, of whome wee made mention in our precedent Chapter, it cost but three hundred charges in Crownes betweene them, yet each had a their voyage, man of honor with him, and a groome or feruant to attend them both.

The decoction of the Gayaicum which is heere among vs, doth not ferue onely the decocion for the Pox or those offended therewith; o' Guyakun, but likewise for all persons ouer-abounding in moysture, or that haue diseases caused by some cold humors. Also for cases before the pox fuch as have opilations in the Liver, Spleene, and other of the bowels, caufing them to sweate after the receite. Many haue found great comfort and ease also thereby; as some touched with palfies; others that have had fwolne legs; others with vicers fubicato certaine times; and defluxions, deafferes, catarrhes, theumes, and other imbecillities, they have found themselues thereby to be released. But people offended with hectique Feauers. must keepe themselues from any way yfing it. I will now describe the forme of this Tree.

The Tree of Guyaicum is great and groffe, as are the Oakes in these our countries having the Barke or Rinde of black- | led Guyairum ish coullor, thicke, gummy, and fat. The the diligent wood thereof is much harder then lbo-ny, and the rinde separateth it selfe very Author eafily from the trunke, when it is dry. The Leaues doe appeare like those of Plantaine, but they are much leffe, and more hard. It beareth a yellow flower, and the fruite is as big as a Nut, having within it stones, like to those of a Medlar: no vie hath beene made of the fruite, fo farre as I can learne, and yet there must needs be some vertue in them. Thus you perceiue what I know, and have vnderstood, concerning the Wood called Guyaicum. in the vertue whereof, many heere among ve haue found themselves to be deceiud; by thinking that it had the felfe-same faculties, as that which is young and tender, and found in the Indiaes.

CHAP.

The Patifians

Conie@ures concerning the long Kee-ping of Corn in Egypt.

CHAP. XIII.

From whence it proceedeth, that Graine or

Corne is not fo long time preferued in our Countries, as it hath beene, and still is in Egypt. Alfo in what maner our Lands and Fines Should be corrected and qualified, without dunging. With many remedies, for the preserving of our Corn from corruption, and being eaten with diners kinds of Vermines.

aduice of lofeph, to prouide agaynst the dearth of Grame, which should for seuen yeares after follow, according as he Prophetically foretold; came to passe as by matter of miracle, and extraordinarily. I must needs confesse, that there was there both great abundance, and as great sterrility of Corne, in the feuen consecutine yeares, and all thorow the extraordinary power of God. But for the confernation of them, it is a matter ordinary to Egypt, that Corne should be kept there five and twenty yeares in pure goodnes, yea much longer time. Alwayes prouided, that it gypt may bee bee not transported from place to place, ept found 2 5 and be not made subject to any heating : neither that it should bee eaten by anie Vermines, as many times our Corne is heere in our Countreyes, and the cause thereof I will declare vnto ye.

The reason for it, is, that the Egyptians never vied to fatten their groundes, but contented themselves with such manurage, as the foyle it felfe, and Nylus ouerflowing them, onely affoorded: neuer vfing any dung, as heere we do, neyther Vrines, Leystals, and other excrements of beafts, which is the onely cause, vvhy our Graine cannot be preserued; but is fubica to Wormes, VVecuilles, Mites, and other small creatures, that doe great harme thereto, whereby it yeeldeth no fauoury tafte , neither can bee kepte in goodnesse for any long time. Hippocrates Hip ml. s. 27 fremeth to be of the fame opinion, affirming, that fuch as vie breade made of Come, which any dunged ground hath veelded, they cannot live fo healthfully, neither follong a time, as others, feeding on the contrary.

Some one may fay vnto me, the what Lands that shall we do in these countreyes, where if are dunged, our fieldes be not manured and dunged, doe not yeeld the Land will yeelde nothing, or (at the fauoury, as o best) very little ? Is it not apparant every thers. where amongstvs ? That there are verie good meanes whereby to franke and fatten grounds, with other things then dung and filth, Hefod s plainly enftructeth vs; Hefod in lib de for in his Booke of Husbandry, he fayth: Agricult cap. 3. There is nothing better, to cherilb & fatten aleane and meager Land, then the Strong fram of Lapines, the chaffe of Chiches, of *A kinde of Beanes, of Tares, Lentilles, and other fuch Pulle, So called like vitterly rejecting all vie of dung, which many have charged with blamefull imputa-

Of this opinion also, Lieband appeareth to bee, in his Booke called Maifon Rustique, or the Countrey Farme, where he faith in fled of dung, they may we the lib d. M. fon stram of Lupines, backt or cut small. Or elfe Ruflique, cap. 10 to fowe the ground with Lupines, and other Pulses, and afterward when they beginne to grow to labour then the land ouer and ouer. and this will ferue for dung, much better then that of any beast. There is mention also made, of another kind of manuring the ground, which is not so good as the precedent, alledged her of manuby Hefiodus; but approaching fomewhat ring ground, neere it, as thus. To cut some store of by Heath, Heath, Broome, Briars, and Thorns, and all other kinds of shrubbes that have bufly stalkes, or vnder-woods, and then to couer all those Lands therewith, which are intended to be fowen : there let thefe feuerall matters ly drying about the space of ten or twelue dayes, or longer time if neede require it. Then in the night time, let them bee fet on fire, and fo carefully tended, that they may bee altogether reduced into afhes, by kindling the fire stil where it would not fasten. Afterward, let those grounds be Tilled after one maner onely, and then fowed and couered. This kinde of Husbandry wil cause great quantity of Corne, which the poore make vie of in many places, where they have no

The reason why our Corn

The Grain or Corne of E-yeares and

cannot be pre ferued for any

How the E. gyptians doc manure their grounds that are not neere to Nylus.

Dungs doc

many wilde

and vnwhol-

fome hearbes

by fmother-

ing the earth, rather then

nonrithing it

Knowledge

in the diuctli

tic of dungs,

for theirlgood

neffe or bad-

engender

to corruption. Here it is to be remembred, that where I fay in Egypt the grounds are not manured: I meane none but those that lye along the current of Nylus, on eyther fide three or foure Leagues in largenesse, or little lesse on either side . But in other parts, as in the mountaine countreyes, they manure their Lands, though they be greatly fruitfull: yet not with dung, but with straw of divers Pulles, according as I have formerly fayd. Howbeit they have great Heards of Oxen, and Flockes of Sheepe, also their fields are almost couered with flights of Pigeons, which after their owne manner) manure the grounds, and it is verie excellent good in that Na-

a great moyft graine, which is not fubicat

As for the dungs heere in our Countreyes, they are very laborious to bee made: for some dung must lye rotting a whole yeare together, before it can bee well imployed. And then it is (oftentimes) full of feedes of wilde or fauge Hearbes, which fall into the Hay, that beafts of labour cate, and fo paffe thorow in their excrements vndigested, or else are found among the strawe, whereof they make their litter. Whereby enfueth. that the earth (oftentimes) produceth more store of bad Hearbes and VVeeds. then of good Corne, because they take away his true vertue of nouriture, and do meerely fmother it.

Beside all these things fore-named, especiall care is to be hadde, in knowing what dungs are good or bad; and for certaine groundes, and for some peculiar feeds. For Horffe dung will ferue well in one place; that of Oxen and Kine in another; and likewise those of other, Cattle. Sheepe, Goates, Swine, Pigeons, and others beside. It may not be forgotten also that some grounds are to bee fattened in certaine quarters of the Moone, and others in other feafons : which is not any way to be observed in those other kindes ofmanuring, whereof I have formerly written.

Heere I must not ouer-passe, to write fomewhat concerning the husbanding of Vines, which some vie to dung, albeit to much leffe purpofe, then grounds bearing Corne. As about Paris, in the lower Ly-

Cattle : and it causeth the earth to yeeld | mosine; about Lymoges, and else-where, The dooing hecreof is a great deale leffe tollerable, because it is a matter very difficult, that a ground nourished and made fat with dung; should not still retaine in it, the fauour of the fayde Dung, and fo (in the end) impart it to the wine. For, our people are veric ill aduised, to charge their Vines enery yeare : by reason it is the cause, that their wines (for the most part) haue an unpleasing tast, and becom- Dungis vent part) have an empleating tait, and occount Dungin tait ming fat and Oyly, are caffeto turne of huntible wider. Vider, Vider, themselues. Moreover, dung maketh our Vines to waxe aged immediately, and foone to grow barren; because they are too liberall of their goodnesse in the first Seruius hath lefte written vnto vs. in those Commentaries which he made on Servininca. the ninth Booke of the Encides, that the P. Entident man was named Pituuius, who invented this manner of manuring groundes by dung. And therefore he was called Sterquilinium, that is to fay, a dung-hill carrier. It is to be presumed, that he was bred in the Latines countrey, in some place that was neuer fertile. These sew notes I haue selected out of verie good Authors that did well understand themselues in Husbandry, concerning the manuring of grounds & Vines, but they neuer approued the vie of dung.

Now, because I know verie well, that The Author whatfoeuer Hefiodus, those other authors excuse on and my felfe also haue written; that our grounds and Vines should no longer bee his Council manured in fuch shinking, foule, and grosse manner, but to follow those other instructions, most sweete and wholesome in excuse of their neglecting so good aduice I will fay with them, that that which hath taken roote for so many thousandes of yeares, can hardly be taken away vppon the fodaine.

Therefore, I wil now fet downe vnto you some certaine receipts and aduices, for the long confernation of our Cornes fafe and foundly, and that they may not bee any wayes bitten or eaten with Vermine, because it will bring exceeding great healthfulnesse vnto the people. For, without all doubt, when Corne and other nourishments of life haue any corruption whatfoeuer, they doe dailie encrease and augment diseases amongst the

Of bringing

Of places

Chap. 13.

fture. Next, not to lay them on the eur. then floore, without there bee some dry boards betweene the Corne and it. Then that there bee no muck hill, or lakes, evther in the Barne, or neere it : for ill fanor will foone communicate it felfe to the Gorne a and about all, let the Barne bee very well avrede. If it be in fuch a place, where they have no vie of Barnes, as in the most part of Languedorke i then order must be taken, that the Stacke of Corne be (at leaft) fo wel couered and enclosed, that no raine may get power of entrance. for otherwise, the Corne will foroute it felfe, and afterward rot, corrupt, and pu-

After that the Come is threshed and

erne blafts, and those leaning that way,

ouer-heating remooning and changing them from place to place, at two Months and two Moneths. The Garner must be farre enough from moist places respect-ally from houses of office, which yeeld a noyfome fauour, or any fuch vnfit being from Stables of Oxen, Horfes, Swine, &

circumfred, that before they bring their Corne in freques into the Bathe, the faid theaues be very dry and free from al moi-mecte to bee laide vo in the Garner or Corne-lofte, choife must be made of one that receiveth the bright fplendour of the East, breathed also moderately with the or Corne-loft North and West windes : but the Southby no meanes to enter it. The couerture ouer head need no great cost linesse; because of the ayres easier entrance thorow the Tyles or other shelving that the Corne may not be heated or chafed. The for the floo floore may bee of earth, or paning tyles;

and the walles of whited morter ... You must bee respective, that your Corneheapes bee not great or thicke to auoyde fuch like.

The planchers and walles of the Gar-Howto augyd ner, wherein you purpofe to house your vermine that Corne, must be washed with vineger, or fuch water, wherein hearbes, or fome bitter drugs have beene boiled: as Wormewood, Southernwood, the leanes of wilde Cowcumbers, the pithe or graine of Coloquintida, or of Lupines, or Oxe gaules; without all question to the contrary, these have bene truely tried, that no Weeuils,

Mites, or Wormes can bite or touch the Corne, where they have bene wied. And they that fcome to take this paines, may First of allithen, men ought to be very | lay fome wormwood vnderneathe, aloft, An eaffer was and about their Corne-heapes, or Sou- for such as eliernewoods or dried wilde Marierome. cantake no Or elfe antiothe the walles and planchers paines. of the Garner with Live made of the oyle of Olines; or if it may nor be had, with Sheeps wine. To falt-powder the ground underneathe the Corne, with afhes made of Oaken wood, it is the prefent killing of all Miter and VV ceuils.

Now to keepe the Corne from heating or warming ouer and belide our ferue the forenamed removing, let there bee layde Come from under every ten Buthels of Corne one of hearing and Miller or if it be mingled therewith, it is ealily separated afterward with a rannging Sine. Salt-Niter and the four thereof is very good for Corne heapes, and preserueth them wonderfully, as also fro forouting: many Sea-Merchants have niade vie thereof, to their no meane profire. In breefe, a good and charitable man shall never stand in need of so many remedies. It he keepe his Corne with intention, to helpe and lend to the poore. and without interest . For God faith by his Prophet Bachiell, That hee will pre- Ezek 27,10. ferue the goods of them that keepe them to helpe the prose. 14 And contrari wife; That he will juffer them to rot, and their Come firall Bee eaten with vermine, that hoorde them vp; to get great gaine by them, and hurt the people vexed with famine.

CHAP.XIIII.

of the great difference, which both Ancient and Moderne Writers have observed to be betweene the Royall title of a King, and the disgracefullesame of a Tyrant.

Efore I begin to describe the difference, that is betweene A necessary a King and a Tyrant; I hold observation it to bee a matter most conuenient, to set downe a definition both of the one and other, to the ende, that the deportments of them both, may the better be knowne.

A King is fuch a man, that yeeldeth himselfe as obedient to the lawes of Na-

Concerning the huthandrief at for Vines.

of a King, or cih the effate and dignity Royall.

The note or

marke of roy-

What things are possible in

The definition of a Ty-

the fignifica-

tion of the implyeth.

Who were word Tyrant

a King.

ought to bee obedient to the Royall Monarch to declare thereby that in him confifteth Soueraigne Majefty. The King. alfo ought to bee obedieut to the Lawes of nature, that is to fay to gouerne his to be seene as cleare and brightly. as the Royall marke or note, when the Prince the lawes of nature; as hee wither his Subicasto be obeyfant to him. Which be may easily do, if he feare God about all things be pittifull to the afficted, prouident in his enterprizes, hardy in exploits. modest in prosperity, constant in adversity firme in his word, wife in his councell.

carefull of his subjects, succourable to friends, terrible to enemies, courteous to good men, dreadfull to wicked persons, and just to all.

a propriety in the goods of any man . I

A Tyrant is fuch a man, as defileth the lawes of nature with his feete abufeth the liberties of free-borne Subjects even as if they were his flaues, and maketh the goods of other men to behis owne .. The name or word Tyrant, is Greeke, in his owne propriety, and was honourable, fignifying nothing elfe in times of antiquity, but a Prince that had possessed himfelfe of the State, without the confent of his Cittizens and Subjects, and of a companion, thad made him his Mafter. Such a man was called a Tyrant, althogh he were a most wise and just Prince . In like manner, Plato writing to Diony fine the Tyrant, gaue him this quality as his hocalled tyrants nour: Plate to Dyonifius the tyrant health. The returne and answer was : Dranifius the tyrant to Plate greeting. And to declare that the word tyrant, was as well attributed to just & good Princes, as them that were wicked, it enidently appearesh heerein: because Pittacus and Periander, two of the feuen Sages of Greece, were called tyrants, for having feized the Estates of their Countries. But such as eyther by power, or elfe were exposed to the mercy of their ene-ture as he defireth his Subjects to bee to- Unies ; were constrained (for the better ture, as he defireth his Subjects to bee to inses 3 were consumed (for the better wards him : forfaking naturall liberity, & fecurity of their lines and goods) to have including the limiting to Guards of flrangers about their perfons, mounting It observe in this definition, that Subieds & Atrong Garrifons in Cattles, for whose compelled paiment of wages and maintenance, great Guardifor rributes & impositions were leured. And their orne when they faw, that their lines could not latery. be feeuted, having but poore friends, and potent enemies; they did eyther put to Subjects, and to guide his owne actions death, or hanithed fome, to pleafe and enby naturall inflice, which maketh it felfe. rich others and they that flood in delverate condition, they made rape both of folendour, of the Sunne and his likewife at their goods and wines. And this was the The tast reason, that tyrants were extremely hat why Tyran theweth himselfe as milde and plyable to ted and maliced . Forwer reade that Dyonifius the elder tyrant, of one part of Sicily, had daily ten thousand Soldiers for his Guard, and ten thousand horsemen, and foure hundred Gallyes, readily hyred and armed. And when he could not make vp this account among fo few Subiects as were vinder his feruice; he wrang & griped his people in fo finall an Island, whereof hee governed but in part onely, and contained no more then fix hundred and fixteene Italian miles in all.

Now because every one hath not the iudgement to distinguish a good King Westresse from a Tyrant, calling him a Tyrant, that menube (for great flore of good reasons) maketh | tweenea | goodKingk | himselfe formidable, and stood in awe of, a Tyiam, beside that which I have already sette downe, I will make him fome-what more cafily to be knowne.

The most notable difference betweene a King and a Tyrant, is that the King coformeth himfelfe to the lawes of nature, and a tyrant trampleth on them with his The apparant feete, that one maintaineth piety, inflice, and bett no. and faith, the other hath neyther God, corbetweene Law, nor Faith. The one maketh whatfocuer he doth, ferue for the weale pub- in very fignal like, & tuition of his Subjects : the other observations. doth not any thing, but for his owne particular profite, renenge, or pleafure. The one enforceth himselfe to enrich his Sub- Of publike iects by all the best meanes he can deuise: benesit. the other will not build his owne house. but with the ruines of theirs. The one revengeth the injuries of the publike E. Pardoningin state, and pardoneth his owne: but the other revengeth cruelly his owne injutirs, and pardoneth them that are done to others. The one spareth the honour of of women madeft women : & the other triumpheth honour. in theirshame. The one taketh pleasure to be aduited in all freedome and liberty, life, and torne in peeces with thame after vertuous man.

Di generall

Of Louis

Of Feete.

The one friueth to maintaine his Subicees in peace and wnitie: but the other mooneth dayly divisions to make the one paractuinate the other, and then to fatten himselfe with their Confiscations. The one; delighteth to bee fometimes scene, and heard of his Subiedes, but the other etter-more hydeth himfelfe from them; as; from his enemies. The one, makethreekoning of his Subjectes Loue, but the other of their Feare. The one, neuer feareth, but for the wel-fare of his people: but the other dreadeth nothing more then them.

The one, will not charge his subjects more then needes mult, remembring alwayes the publique necessity; but the other drinketh their blood, gnaweth theyr bones, and ficketh the verie Marrowe of his people, onely to weaken them. The one fearcheth our men of best condition, to imploy in publike Offices; but the other imployeth none but Theeues, and most wicked persons in his service, like to Spundges. The one maketh free gifte of estates and offices, to avoide concussions, and crowdes of people ; but the other felleth them at as deare rates as hee can, for their betrer meanes of enfeebling the people by Thefts; and then (afterward) cuttes the Theenes throates for theyr vvealth, because he would be reputed a good Iu-

A King measureth his actions and mas ners, by the foote of the Law: but the tirant maketh the Law to serue his maners. The one is beloued and reverenced of his people: and the other generally hated of them all. The one hath no other recourse in war, but to his subjects : but the other, will make no warre but with them. The one, hath no Guards or Garrisons but of his owne people: but the others defence is onely in strangers. The one delighteth in an affured repose and tranquility; but the other languisheth in perpetual feare. The hope & expectation of the one, is euerlasting life in blessednes: but the other cannot agoid eternall punishment. The one is honored in this life, & defired again after death: the other is infamous in this and will be wifely reprehended when hee death. But because the continuation of faileth sout nothing is more irkefome to this chapter might feeme over-tedious to the other; then the counsell of a grave and the Reader, if I thould verify at these rela- The Conclutions by historicall examples I wil referre firch as are willing to take the paynes, to reade the histories themselves, both in Greeke, Latine, & other languages, wher they shal find that to be most true, which hath bin fooken of Kings and Tyrants.

CHAP. XV.

In what high account and esteeme. Philosophers of other men of knowledge (in what Sciences focuer) were held in elder times. by Emperors and Kings.

furney with more wary judgment, we that plainely perceiue, that there are learned A great cause memenow, who may inftly find fault, that of discoragement to learn neither they are in fuch effective, or any nedmen. way to well recompenced of Princes in these times, as many worthic men vvere hererofore by Emperors, Kings, Princes, and great Lords, in those famous daies of reverend antiquity. Infed of concluding, and acquainting yee with the inflice of their reason, I will lightly passe oner; & in fled of long speaking, onely remember ye with some histories and examples of Famous Potentates in former ages, who wer Friends, and Nursing fathers to Philoso-Porentates & phers and Schollers; to the end that their Princes of elactions beeing compared with those of der times, these dayes, it may bee knowne, whether they have cause to complaine, or no, in a case so highly importing.

And first of all, I will beginne with the Pompey, his excellent and renowned Captain Pompey, victory a-gantt Mithri-who (as we read) after he had vanquified dates. the puiffant king Mithridates, & obtained many other victories and aduentures in war coming to Athens with al his warlike furnishment, such as the Roman Confuls and Captaines vied to have borne before the:he was aduertised that Possidonius the

E need not now complaine, that in these dayes of ours, there is such want of excel-lent spirits, in all kindes of Arts and Sciences: but if we

by cunning had inuaded and obtained the Soueraignty, perceiving that their lives

Of a happy

Of Law.

Ofpeoples

Of Warre.

Of Guardes.

Of Peace.

Of happy life

Philosopher lay sicke in his bed. Being | ly dead before the hart of the mother bedefirous to go and fee him, he would not came fo ftrangely and passion at elymoued onely honor him with his personall Visitation that when he came neere the door of the house, he caused his Standards and Imperial Enfigns to march in before him. For it was euermore his faying: That Kingdomes and Empires ought to obey wertue and Learning. Thus he behaued himfelfe to this poore learned man, which hee would not have done to the greatest Potentate

Dionylius the Tyrant, king of Syracula, having obtained of Plato the excellent di-uine Philosopher, that he would come & fee him in Sicily; when hee heard of his

all, that no man should touch the house of tanianus, it is a matter fo.perfectly known,

that it needeth no report of mine, According to Pliny in his feuenth Booke, when-

to deliuer fome of his Verses, all the people would frand up on their feet, and offer

às great reuerence to him, as if it had bin to the Emperor. And that which is much more, Silius Italicus, a Spanish Poet, did yearly folemnize the day of his Natiuity,

and with farre greater denotion, then hee

did his owne. The gifts and prefents daily ginen him by Octavian, Mecana, and many more, were fo great, that Seruius

(who writeth of him) faith that his goods

(in very short time) amounted to the value of fixe thousand Sestertiaes, which a-rife vnto two hundred and fiftie thousand

Crownes. He had in Rome a very honora-his 7. Satyre faith, That he was one of the richest men in those daves.

focuer he entred into the Theater, there

Dyonifius the Tyrant,king oi Syracufa.

neere approching, he went to meete him on the way, causing him to sit with him in his owne Chariot, drawne with white Horsfes. Such was the reputation which wife and learned men had in those times. When Alexander the Great, had deter-Alexander mined the vtter ruine & subuersion of the the Great Thebans, he gave especiall charge first of the Poet 1 Pindarus, but to leaue it wholly I A famous poet of Theh standing. If I should tell yee, how highly Virgill was honored and effected by Oc-Plin.lib.7. Virgill was the must ex cellent of all Latine Poets. r) and Maia. anthorne in Mantua.

Invenin Sat. 7 ble Palace; in regard whereof, Invenall in mNot he who in.es Conful, but young hat fhould haue bin heyr o Octavian

Vpon a day, in the presence of Octauihad b ne fue an, and Linia his wife, the mother vnto m Marcellus, Virgill vttered certaine Verses of his bookes Aneidos, and comming to the end of the fixt Booke, where hee difcourfeth most elegantly of Marcellus Jatethereat, that the fell into a fwound, not having any power to heare the rest. But being reuined to her felfe againe, the comaunded, that for each of those whereof thee had loft the hearing, Virgill thoulde haue ten Seffertiaer given him. @ The remainder (which the heard not)being one and twenty verses in number; the valewation of his reward, contained the fumme of sooo. Ducates, of our instant money.

It is found faithfully recorded that the Syraculanes had fome Athenian prisoners. that could rehearfe (by heart) certayne verfes of " Eurivides the Greeke Poet, and dayly pronounced them; by which occa- Trigical part in the time of fion only, and in honor of the Poet, they Archelau E. were delivered, & permitted freely to go of placede. home to their owne countrey. Scipio the Affrican, during his life time, had alwayes with him (in his wars) the Statue of . Anmust and when he died, he tooke especial tine port, o Anolde La order, that it might be buried in his owne borne at Tr Sepulcher with him. The Emperor Domi- rentum, and tian: canfed P Silius Italicus (an excellent Romeby Ch Poet, and borne in Spaine) to bee made to the Center three times Confull of Rome, as Martiall p A woorking witnesseth in one of his Epigrams, begin-poet, bontes ning. Augusto Piathura.

derne and later times; or what our late liuing Princes have done, either to Politian, Pontanus, or Sannazar; and to speak of our Modern Frenchmen, as Ronfard, Bel. Poen of me derne & later Lay, and other excellent Poets. But per- times, where haps you will answer me, their hopes may mertyal liuing or did very lately. them are yet living, young in yeares, but old in wifedome and understanding, and worthy to bee equalled with many of former times. But because I see so little refpect, let vs goe backe againe to thole re- The low of nowned Ancients. King Mithridates hald K. Mith

For in those dayes, the greatest honour that could be, was (in publike places) to fome vertuous deeds or for his dignity in learning. For this cause the men of Athens made one of Demosthenes, with a title of

But I know not what to fay of our mo- Mari, in Epic.

Plate and his learning in fo high reputati- his learning on, being defirous to have his statue: fent to find out 4 Syllamion to performe it, be- 9 A famous cause he was a most excellent workeman.

ered Figures & Statues : yet none might The honout be permitted, except it were of some wor done to lear thy man, made famous, and knowne by elder times words of the inscription. If the power and The inferipti tue of Demo Ahenes. In fephus the Iew being one in number standing in regard of the Bookes hee had made of the lewes Antiquities, they renotable Philotopher. that for his rettues go-Athenians ten yeares. Atherens in

Chap. 16.

Gymnofe. lib. c Rewards ei-

Pin in l.8, ca.3

of Ariflotles book of crea mers Iliads.

A famous Philosopher o' Prufa,a thinia by O lympus.

Grecian Po-

ginen vnto any other; and thefe were the strength of Demosthenes had bin equal to his (birit, wifedome, and learning : the King of Macedon could never have surmounted the Iosephus lwas amonest the captines of Jerusalem, was ner to Rome. brought prisoner to Rome; & yet notwith-> puted him worthy to have a Statue. The Athenians confidering the wisedome of Demetrius Phalereus, scholler vnto Theophrastus caused his statue to be erected in thirty places of this City. Now if men of merit were so highly honoured, doubtles they were as well rewarded. For Atheneus writeth in the a book of his Gymnolophills that Aristotie for his Booke de Animalium received of Alexander 800. talents: which of the current money now in France, valeweth foure hundred & fourescore thou-fand Crownes, which is verified by Pliny in his eight book. There he declareth, that Alexaders defire was fo great to have this book performed by Aristotle, that he fent

many thousands of men thoroughout all carrell defire | Greece and Afia, with letters and expresse commandement, that they shold be obedient to whatforuer hee required, touching the manner of hunting and flying of Fowles, Fishes, and all the like exercises because they should know & understand the nature and properties of all kinde of Beafts, Birds, and Fishes, & then to aducrtife Aristotle thereof. Vindoubtedly if Ho-Homer the mer, the very best of Greek Poets, had libeft of all the ued in the time of Alexander, it is to bee prefumed that he wold have bin as bountifull and beneficiall to him, as hee was to Aristotle. Because when a chest or Casket was presented vnto him, wherein K. Darius kept his most precious Vnguents, the Cheft being very pleafing to him, he faid; I will make this Chest the keeper of far richer The words of Great Alextreasure: and presently hee did put there-into the Workes of Homer, which he euermore tooke great delight to reade in continually.

The Emperor Traiane, in regard of his learning onely, did to especially honour the Philosopher Dyon, that when he rode abroad in the fields to take the Ayre; hee would have him to fit neerest vnto him in | Crowne theyr Poets. Seleius Basius a Ly-

the very greatest honor that ever had bin | his owne Chariot, and so ride on along with him thorough Rome, making it as his tripmphall entrance.

In the warre which the Emperor Odlanius made in Egypt, against Mark Anthomy, hee fayde . That hee did forbeare to de-Stroy Alexandria, for the respect bee bare to Alexander, that builded it; but much more for his love to the Philosopher Arrius. The fame Emperor alfo anade Cornelius Gallus Tribune of the people; onely because hee Alexandria.

aWhofe birth

Plin in l.7.c.2

Greece, Scho

was a most elegant Poet. Suctonius in the life of Velpasian, theweth, what rewardes were anciently given to the Learned. For he fayth, Although Velbalian was taxed with conetou nelle : yet Of the Emperor Velpa fians rewards notwithstanding he greatly favoured exercifes and Artes, and gave as pensions to each to Learning. Master of them Such quantity of golden perces, as beeing reduced to the fummes of our moneyes (according to Beroaldus and Budaus) their stipends valewed two thousand and fine hundred Ducates, but as forme fav

By the Testimony of Pliny, in his scuenth Booke, and the ninth Chapter, writing of b Hocrates the Greeke Orator, b Afamous a man may very cafily perceyue, in what account and estimation the learned were ler to Plato. then. For hee fayeth, that this Ifocrates, having made an Oration for a certayne man; hee rewarded him with twelve Talents, which valew (according vnto our present computation) twelve thousand

Crownes. We finde it likewise written, in the Sucton in vit. life of the Emperour Antoninus, Some Imp. Antonin. vnto Seuerus, that hee gave to Appian, fo many Ducates of Gold, as there were number of Verfes in a great worke which hee had (at that time) made, concerning the Nature and property of all kindes of

The Emperour Gratian, knowing that Aulonius composed well in Verse : gane of Vigiles and him (onely for his defert that way) the Calindo, but Consulfhippe, which was the verie greater borne. test dignity, nay cuen next to that of Em-

Domitian, albeit hee was a most wicked man, yet he gaue great honors & gifts diffee wrote to the Poet d Euitathius. And in a folern the Hilloric Feast, hee caused him to fit at his Table, to Anastasius the Emperor. where-with all our grane Elders vsed to n trainin Po-

latte is faid to be very fami cero.

onely during

Anobication and answere concerning learned Se-

Honour not death alfo

ned men.

done to lear-

A true pronerbe.

liuing in ancient umes.

Those of more modeine dayes.

rick Poet, was much commended by Vepafian, with no lessehonourable wordes then others, and also had in giftes great fummes of money. h Arrianus for the historie which hee wrote in Greeke, of the actes of Alexander the Great, but more especially, because he was a very Learned man; was made Confull of Rome by Adrian and Antoninus. Nor were these learned men thus honoured during their life time, but a fo after their death. As may bee noted by Ptolomy, who was King of Egypt, who made a Temple and Statue to Homer, as he did to his other Goddes. For Virgillikewise, there was a Statue erected in Mantua, long time after he was dead. The excellent Poet Horace, althogh we are not certaine how wealthy he was ; vet notwithstandir g, he had great dienities of Octanius in Rome.

I could produce many examples vnto this purpose, which I forbeare, onely to auoide prolixity. But heere, if any man thall object vnto me, that wife and Learned Seneca dyed by the command of Wero; I answere, it was most bloodye Nero that did it, not any defect in his learning, and before his death, he attained to great dignities and honours in Rome, onely by the meanes of his Learning. It is an olde, but a true Prouerb; That Honors and gifts, are both the makers and maintainers of Arts. Therefore wee finde, that in those times when Emperors and Kings fauoured fludies and learning; there wanted then no store of Learned men. As in the daies of Octavius, Claudius, Adrian, Vefpafian, and Antoninus. For our modern times, when the Emperor Sigismund lived; Robert king of Sicily, Pope Nicholas the fift, King Al phonfus of Waples, and Matthias King of Hungarie, belide those of the house of Medicis in Florence. 'The flower of which Stemme, yet liueth at this day crowned in France, imitating the most gracefull steps of his euer-famous foregoers: but especially of good King Frances, in whose most happy time, France reached vnto fuch a height for Learning, that it might meritorioufly haue bene styled, another Greece or Athens.

CHAP.XVI.

That Learning is not onely necessary in Kinos and Princes: but also for Generalles. Captaines, and Commanders, that follow the Exercise and Art Military.

Could alledge manifold Could alledge manifold Histories, besides true, good, and sufficient Realions, that Princes (in ancient times) found no better forme, or directe guernement then indicates.

rule for their orderly gouernment, then Learning, and Knowledge. And because the euidence heereof remaineth so plaine and pregnant vnto vs, I will obserue some fewe examples, tending to this purpofe. When King Phillip vnderstood the birth of his fonne Alexander, and knowing A- Plutakinvi ristotle to line then in Athens, he fent a very notable Letter vnto him (recorded by in this 1, 243) Plutarke, and Aulus Gellius) wherein hee thanked the Goddes, not so much for the fafe birth of his fonne, but beecause hee was borne in the life time of Aristotle, By which few words, may be apparantly difcerned, how much the King thought lerning and knowledge fitte for his fonne, to the end, he might proue to be fuch a King and Captaine, as hee was indeede afterward. Whereupon, when hee grew vnto yeares meete for the embracing of studie; he made Aristotle his Mayster, sent him he made Artificile his Mayster, fent him Somedore great gifts, and (in mecre loue to his fon) put his deferoyed, and erected also a Schoole after the night his feather his made and the school after the night his feather his made and the school after the night his feather his made and the school after the night his feather his made and the school after the night his feather his made and the school after the night his feather his made and the school after the night his feather his fe (admired for cost and curious workeman- of Alexander (hip, fuch as no time before had afforded) wherein his fonne might receive inftru-

Antigonus, King of Macedon, knowing how needfull a thing Learning was, for his owne good gouernment: and beeing mightily prouoked by the continuall renowne of Zeno, a fingular Philosopher, grant Athons & and Prince of the Stoickes; defired ear-neftly to enioy his company, which hee further laboured by Letters, and manie Embassies. Of which Letters, Diogenes Laertius reciteth one, in this manner following.

Chap.16.

tigonus, to Zeno the Philosopher.

loue to learning, in io

Ntigonus a King , sendeth greeting to Leno the Philosopher, I know very well, that in worldly goodes, fauours of Fortune, and the reputation of fuch things , I doe farre exceede thee . Neuertheleffe, I know withall, that in true felicitie, knowledge, discipline, studies and liberall Artes, thou reachest a higher pitch then I can doe . In regard whereof I defire, that thou wouldest come and live with me, which I pray thee to yeelde unto; that I may entoy thy company and conversation. In the doing whereof, be well assured, that thou not onely shalt be masster of me; but shalt also be a teacher to all my Macedonians . For he that in-Structeth the King, making him to become Words befeevertuous and good: teacheth those vertues likewife to all his Subjects. To prooue the trueth heereof, it is commonly scene, that fuch as the King is , fuch are his vaffailes, and such as the Captaine, such his Souldi-Farewell.

These Letters being received by the venerable Philosopher; in regard of his deepe steppe into age, it was not possible for him to condifcend thereto, or (in per-What the phi-losopher himfon) to fatisfie the Kings earnest request. like couldnot But he fent him two of his Schollers, excelling the rest in knowledge & learning, doe, he did by

by whom he was worthily taught and infiructed.

The learning of Aristotle, under whom Alexander was rutourd five whole yeares together, tooke fuch roote and efficacie in the Scholler; that he became so excellent a King, as no one in the world was ahe made himfelfe a Scholler, before hee was a Souldier: and afterward as often as ble to compare with him. Being in the midft of his Armies, he would not gine he had any leyfure, he frequented the Academies of the Poets, and in walking, he ouer study, but enermore layd (with his Sword) on the pillow of his bed, the Iliades of Homer, and other bookes. And it himselfe from an imminent perill, he adappeared, that fuch was his loue to Learuentured (wimming, bearing the bookes ning, that he could as easily apprehend which he had written in one of his hands; ir, as he conquered kingdoms by force of Plutare, in vita Armes. Plutarke, Aulus Gellius, and Themistogles doe affirme, that Alexander had published certayne bookes of naturall and what his learning was, his Commen-Philosophy, whereof he had been an Auditor vnder Aristotle; in regard whereof,

he wrote a Letter vnto him.

The Letter of King An- | The Letter of great Alexander, to his Maister Aristotle.

fibly excell other men, when the Science and declaring wherein thou haft instructed me, commeth to Learning. to be common to all men? I would have thee to know, that I more couct to preceed all men in Learning and Knowledge, then in riches, pompe powver and dominion.

Farevvell.

When this was understoode by Ariflotle, to comfort and please so puissant a Prince, he commanded that his Bookes (formerly common) (hould be fo obleured, that it was not possible to understand them, but by his owne interpretation. Pirrhus that excellent Captaine, and king Pirrhus king or of the Epirotes, who maintained great an execulent warres against the Romaines, and diverse lover of lear times ouercame them; did exercise him ning, and a felfe, not onely in the reading of the Sciences: but also composed fundry books, among which was his precepts of warre. As the like hath beene done lately in our time, by that famous man, Guillaume du Bellay, Lord of Langey.

would both reade and write. Vppon a.

time, being at Alexandria in Egypt, to face taries (ver remaining with vs) can sufficiently witnesse.

What shall we say of Inline Cafar, the Iulius Cafar first Emperour, and (without all compari-fon) the very best Captaine of all them moustor learthat had the managing of war? We may ning, as to truely fay of him, that he was no leffe inclined to Learning, then to Armes. For want Mercu in declaring thereby, that he affected them | Cafarloued as dearely, as his owne life: having as learning as much care to faue the one, as the other; lite.

Alexander was Scholler to Arifforle five yeares to etther, and ued Learning earneftly

And Gellius in

The care of the Romanes

Not onely Cafar, but all the Romanes alfo, do beare witheffe of that which wee fay, who (in my poore opinion) were reputed and knowne to be good Captaines and Gouernors. For, the first thing which drens lerning they vndertook for their children in their infancie, was to have them well enftructed, and therefore provided good schol-

masters for them, which they chargeably fent for out of Greece. Both the Catoes were knowne to be excellent schollers, &

Cate Cenforinu

cato Vticensis.

A Philofopher and Poet of Sicon. a Ciry of Phænicia, by the lea fide not farre from Tyre. Cicero in Lib. de Finib.

Examples of Scipio Affika-Hanniball.

Plato febro mafter to D onyfius the Tyrant.

when he pleased. Scipio Affricanus, the victorious triumpher ouer Hanniball, was extreamely addicted to Learning, and euermore had the Poet Ennius with him. After all his Victories, he gaue himselfe againe afresh to Learning and reading. Hanniball his Competitor, although he was of Affrica, had alwayes bookes with him in his Tents and Pauillions: in the time of warre, hee would not give over reading, but in one place or other (howfocuer it were) hee would have Silanus and Safylas (two lerned Lacedemonians) with him, by whome he was well instructed in the Greck Language. We have formerly read, that Dionyfixs the Tyrant of Sicily, had Plato to be his Schoolemaster, and kept company alfo with many other learned men. Afterward, when hee was expulsed out of his kingdome, one (in mocking manner) demanded of him, whereto now ferued the Philosophy which he had learned of Plato, to whom hee returned this answer, It

ferueth mee to support my present necessitie with patience. Themistocles, a most excel-ent Captaine, declared himselfe to be no lessediligent in learning, then hee was in ! Armes : his Mafter was anaxagoras, the A Philos. Milesian. Epaminondas, and the other bloode, but Captaines of Greece, were all studious more noble and worthy Orators. Mithridates, in the wifedome. warres which he had against the Romanes, for the space of forty years together, norwithstanding all the furious assaults, desisted not from his studying, having evermore divers schoolemasters and Philosophers with him. Octanius Augustus, limited to himfelfe The lone of foldiers. The great Cenfor was wondercertaine houres in the day, onely for ftu- gustus to let fully addicted to learning, as the Bookes written by him do plainely testifye: hee dy; and when he was in warre, yet he kept ning. was a worthy Orator, Hiftorian, and enhis times of fludying still : having theredued with many vertues, and euen toward fore divers worthy Mafters with him, as the ending of his dayes, hee learned the Apollodorus of Pergama, the Philosopher Greeke tongue. The other Cato, styled of Asperarius, Asinius Pollio, Valerius, Messa-Vtica, though he was not of fuch a tharpe la, Virgil, Onid, and many other, And beindingenious spirite in apprehension of fore this Emperour, there was a famous Sciences; yet norwithstanding, hee kept Captaine, named b Lucius Lucullus, who b A Noblemi company with most excellent Schooleduring the wars, gaue himfelf to study; & of Romest-mous forler-when the wars ceased, hee applyed all his mafters; among whom was the Philofodiligence, in cherishing and maintaining provedend pher * Antipater. And he gaue his minde learned men. Paulus Amilius, victorious great taken fo much to fludie, that Cicero favth in his Booke De Finibus, he did nothing elfe but ouer the king of Persia, ouer & beside his reade; yea, whenfocuer he face in the Sebeeing a very learned man, endeauounate house, hee alwayes had some Booke redalfo that his children might bee the or other about him, to reade at all times like; fo that at his inftant request, the A- caPhilofe thenians gaue him Metrodorus to bee pher, Scholle their Schoole-master. But wherefore do I take so much paines, in naming so many one after another? Pompey, Quin. tus Fabius Maximus, Marcus Brutus Traiane. Adrian. and Marke Anthonie were al learned men, and compiled Bookes, Orations, and Letters of great learning, and in elder time memorable example. In briefe, if I errenot greatly in my famous for iudgement, it may plainly appeare, that few Captaines are found of ancient times who were excellent in nothing fo much as by their learning. There are two only, of whom wee finde nothing remaining written expressing whether they were lerned, or no: the one being named Caites Caius Marian Marius, and the other Marcus Marcellus. Marcellus. Marcellus And yet I reade, that Marcellus highlie loued and fanoured men of knowledge: whereby it is to bee' credited, that furely himselfe was learned, though nothing (to that effect) bee written of him. And it may the more manifeftly appeare, by the prohibition he made (as we have formerly alledged) at the furprizall of Syracufa,

that Archimedes should not bee flayne.

but they were

And althogh he miscaried, notwithstanding his ftrict command to the contrary: vet it was not without great greefe of the Said Marcellus.

Chap.17.

Let then the Captaines of these our The Authors dayes, fay what they lift, that learning is not fo expedient for them (I meane fuch as thrust the stile of Captaines on themfclues) coueting with their owne opinion, or rather obstinacy, to cloud and coner their dulnesse and ignorance. It is sufficient for vs, that wee fee how highly our grave Predecesfors esteemed Bookes and Learning, equall with the courage and manhood of infinite Captaines, worthily affected and addicted to learning: as we finde it ynpartially fet downe, in that

CHAP. XVII.

indicious Booke of warre, written by Ro-

Of divers secret maturall properties, being in the viver : and how he may be fed on, and eaten without am danger.

bertus Valturinus.

HE Viper is a kinde of Serpent, fufficiently knowne to many: and although it bee little, yet notwithstanding it is very venomous, for with a little pricking it can kill a man. But as our Lord God made not any thing but to things for the profitable al his venome, scrueth man for divers mevic of man. dicines and maladies, especially for any paine in the throate. It is a thing very ex-bealeth. Tiriacle, or Treacle, as we vie to Of the vertue terme it, is properly good against venom: of Titiacle or Treacle, and how at first but in the making thereof, and in the confection, there is necessarily required some part of this beaft, to the end it may be the more perfect, and of the greater efficacy. And it was named Tiriacle, because that the worde Thirien in Grecke, fignifieth a Viper or venomous Beaft. Some (and not vnfittingly) doe give another etymologye, and reason for this name. But before we report the benefits enfuing by the

Vipet,me-thinkes it were not amisse, to remember what is faid by Pliny, Isidorus, cellently good(by a fecret property in nature) to beare the head of a Vinerabout

aman: for huing, it killeth, and dead, it and Achanus. They report, that when this Plinin Lo. 62 Serpent concerneth, the Male putteth his 19der in lib 11. head in at the mouth of the Female, wher- de Etimolog.

deli nus in lib. by thee receiveth such immeasurable delectation; that with her ouer-tharp teeth, the byteth off the head of the Male, becomming thereby widdowed, yet violent in affaulting. The matter conceived by her, groweth to bee Egges, which forme of her brood.

themselves within her body, according Female Vipe as the spawne of fithes doth : and of those and delivery Egges do Vipers enfue, at fuch time as the is to deliver her young ones, yeelding enery day, one, till they amount to twenty.

Now because they are so many in number they which remaine behinde, hau ng no power to attend their fit time, do teare the belly of their Damme, so that by her death, they enter into the world, and line. If it be fo, furely it is a matter very mar-uarlous : for it should sceme thereby, that (cuen naturally) the children do reuenge the death of their father.

With this opinion of Pliny, do many | plut in Traft. other Authors confent; as Plutarch in cont. Illufor. his Treatife against Scoffers. Neuertheleffe, there are a great many other, who do contrary it, denying that the Viper dyeth in her teeming: with which opinion, I also rest resolued, because the other seemeth to menot naturall ; neyther have I seene the experience thereof, or know any person that hath seene it. In like manner, Philostratus is flatly againft it, in the Ph:loftratus in life of Apollo Thyaneus, introducing Apolvit. Apol. Thya profitable vie: euen fo this creature, with /6 himfelfe, who reporteth, that hee had scene a Viper, that after she had fully yeelded all her young ones; licked them very louingly, and lived healthfully. As much may be gathered from the words of Ari-

Dammes belly; they iffue foorth enery day

one to the number of twenty and more: thefe

Arift.in lib.c . forle, who fetteth them downe thus. The de animal c.9. Viper onely (among all other Serpents) deli-His words uerethher young ones, because she first formconcerning esh them in her body of Egges, as the fawne of Fishes is . Afterward, when they are formyoung ones. ed, they remaine three daies wrapped up in a tender thinne skin; which breaketh at the limitted time, and so affoordeth the young ones liberty (in regard whereof, Apuleius, in Apuleius in his Apologie, calleth them Outperes, and not Vipers, as much to fay, as engendered of Egges) and very often it happeneth, that that wrapper breaking (of it felfe) in the

are the very words of Aristotle. In anode Animal c. 12

conie@ure o

uerfed point-

4. Booke

Beafts, speaking of the teeming of Ser-Aill in lib.t.

pents he faith. Before the Viver veeldeth her young ones, the formeth them within her bodr of Egges. And I am perswaded, that hence ensueth those speeches, of the young ones tearing the belly of their Damme. For it seemeth to them that stand in defence thereof, that when Aristotle speaketh of this first fawning or teeming: hee purposed to fay, that they did then breake or teare the belly of their damme.

But leaving these circumstances, I fay that the viper, how dangerous foeuer it be, yeeldeth great helpe and fuccour to man. Dioscorides faith, that the flesh of a Diefcor.in bl viper, being boyled or fodden, may fafe-How the fl-(ly be eaten: being very medicinable for may be lately the nerues, and for the fight. But in preparation to the eating thereof, the head and taile must be taken away: then being fleaed and well dreffed, it is to be tempered with firong Annife-feedes. He faith allo, that there is made of this flesh, a certaine kinde of Salt, or falt-powder, excel-

A Salt or poudermade of the viper to procure a catin.

lently anailing to procure a good appetite, being prepared in this manner. You good appetite must take a new earthen pot, and put the viper thereinto, vied as formerly hath beene declared, then put Salt and stamped figges to it, with a competent quantiry of hony, and the pot being well couered, let it boyle and bake a long while in an Ouen. Which being done, beate and reduce it into a powder; and whofoener afterward will make vie thereof with his other meate, thall finde it very pleafant and profitable for the ftomacke.

Paulus Aeginetus faith alfo, that the flesh of a viper is singularly good against leaprousie and meazeldnesse; making

therefore great efteeme of the Salt-powder fore-mentioned, and affirming with

Plinius, that a certaine nation in India,

Paulus Aegines, in lib. s . cap. s 4

Plin Jib. 7. ca.

Diofor, in til

Theophraft.in lib.de reb 24 9

Galen in lib de

cateth the flesh of the viper. Diescorides auoucheth, that who focuer will cate the fleth of the viper, shall live long time, and very healthfully. Against the byting of this Serpent, there are store of remedies. whereof Theophrastus maintaineth one, faving, Wholoeuer is bitten thereby, mellodious sounds and songs doe greatly benefite him, because Musique is very medicinable, as we have already, and shall prooue hecreafrer. Galen faith, that this beaft ca-

ther place, I meane in his third Booke of | teth not any thing all the time of winter : but hideth her felfe (as dead) in the earth; and whofoeuer then findeth, toucheth, and handleth her, the cannot bite him : but when fummer cometh, the then refumeth all her forces. The like affirmeth Plinie, of Lizards, Snakes, and all other Plinin literal kinde of creeping creatures.

Aristotle faith that they containe them- drifted in las felues three or foure moneths, without de damade feeding on any thing . Aelianus auouch- Aelianus in in eth, that those vipers which breed in the de Animalio Provinces of Arabia, although they doe cap.4. bite, yet their biting is not venimous; because they doe feede on the Baulme tree, and fleepe vnder the shadow thereof. A- Arifetinis ristotle further faith, that they are very de- vbifupa. firous to drinke wine; and many people doe take them, by fetting veffells of wine in the places where they refort ; for they will become drunk by drinking, and after they take them fleeping. There are many things more to be spoken, concerning the qualities and properties of the viper, which I doe purposely omit for breuities

CHAP. XVIII.

Of the admirable property of a little creature. the biting whereof is healed by the found of Musique: likewise of many other instrmities, which are onely holpen by the fame Medicine.

Hat which we haue fayd in our precedent chapter, vnder the authority of Theephraftur, concerning the biting of the viper, and that it may be cured by Musique; will make our present report to be the better credited, because it tendeth to the same pur- alexander A pose. Alexander of Alexandria, in his book lexandinit. of Veniall dayes, and Petrus Gellius, a moderne Authour, doe affirme and fay, that in lib, de Rebni. in Apulia, a Countrey of Ibalie, there is a past in kinde of Spider, which the Inhabitants in libra-sept doctearme Tarantula. P.C. Rodianus calleth it "Phalangium", which at the beginning of furmer is fo venimous, that whofocuer is bitten or flung thereby , except knots, whole he be very fuddenly fuccoured; he loofeth fing is perillous & deadly.

Chap.19.

Of Romane Faustine.

stantly. But if any one (being so bitten) chance to escape death : vet he remaineth infenfible, and wholy voyd of any capacity: for which dangerous inconvenience, experience found out a remedy, and that is Mufique.

on of good ere-witneffes

med, the best helpe is, to bring instantly before him, fuch as vie to play on Vialles, Flutes, and other Instruments, to play diuers Leffons, & fing many Songs : which Musique being heard by the party wounded he will presently begin to daunce de-diffinated. Alexander Alexandrinus pro-Alexander Aceedeth farther affirming, that he beheld lexand in lib.1. one wounded by this Spider, to dance & Gen.cap.17. leane about incessantly, and the Musici-bene dead. The Musicians no sooner began to play againe, but hee returned to A ftrange and wonderfull himfelfe, and mounting vp vpon his feet, working in nature, by the danced againe as luftily as formerly hee had done, and fo continued dancing still, til he found the harme affwaged, and himfelte entirely reconered. Heereunto he addeth, that when it hath happened, that a

An excellent Physition of Prufa in ithynia.

A Mufitian

Theophrafing in Flutes. Theophrastus and Aulus Gellius lib de Reb. 9.2.7 fay; that Mussique appealeth the paine of lib.q.cap.y.

all fenfe and understanding, and dyeth in-

The judgement of Authours hereon, speaking as eye-witnesses, and having feene the proofe thereof, is thus, So foone

livering variety of gestures and motions with his body, euen as if all his life time he had well inured himselfe to dancing, in which fury and power of dancing he con-tinueth, vitill fuch time as the venome be ans (finding themselves wearied) gave ouer playing, whereupon, the poore offended dancer, hauing vitterly loft all his forces fell downe on the ground as if he had man hath not beene thorowly cured by Musique in this manner; within some fhort while after hearing the found of Infruments, hee hath recourred footing againe, and bene enforced to hold on dancing, and neuer to ceasse, till his perfect & absolute healing, which (questionlesse) is of Instruments, and voyces (weetly finging to them, bath wrought extraordinary cures on Lunaticks and mad men. We reade also, that * Esmeneas the Thehane, healed many difeases and infirmities, only by his sweete and melodious playing on the Sciatica, and of the Gout. We like.

* Asclepiades writeth, that the found admirable in nature.

The affirmati-(fay they) as any one is bitten or enueno-wife finde it recorded in the facred Scripture, that David (by Mufique) cafed Saul 1 Sam. t 6, 23. of the paffio, which the euill spirit wroght in him : fo great is this property, proceeding from the entire amity, which the nature of man beareth to Musique. And if good confideration be made heereof, wee hes cured by thall not account it ftrange, that infinite the meanes o infirmities have bene cured by the means Mufique. of Mufique. For it hath enidently beene feene, that there are divers beatls and other creatures, that kill by laughing, others by weeping, and others in fleeping;according as Plutar ch writeth of Cleopatra, and as divers other good Historians have faithfully affirmed.

CHAP. XIX.

Of a strange medicine, whereby Faustine of Rome, wife wato the Emperour Marcus Aurelius, was cured of an infirmity of dishonest love : and of many other remedies against that powerfull passion.

Oncerning that affection, or imprisonment of the will, as we may justly terme it, which thisldone of ordinarily is stiled by the the will. name of Loue whether it be a powerfull passion, working wonderfull effects in the foule or no : there need no further question to bee made, but examination of fuch mens indgements, as (by good experience) haue knowne it, and whose examples remaine notorious to vs. More effecially of very worthy and excellent persons, who have suffered their wils to be so strangely transported thereby that extremity of death hath enfued thereon. Iulius Capitolinus, among diuers other examples, reporteth what hap- limit in tive, a di pened to Faustine, Daughter to Antonius, Mem.cap. 3. and VVife to the Emperour Marcu Aurelius, who became fo excessively enamo- The Empresse red on a Fencer or Sword-player; that by extreme in ouer-abounding in defire to enjoy his attection to a on, as very greatly endangered her life. This beeing understood by Marcus Aurelius, immediately hee assembled a great number of Astrologers and Physitions, to finde fome aduice and remedy

Indian Capita-

company, thee fell into fuch a confumpti-

for this extraordinary folly. In the end, it | was concluded that the Fencer should be put to death, and some of his blood bee

fecretly given to Faustine to drinke, and after the had thus ignorantly drunke ther-of, the Emperour her husband should company with her in bed, This remedy wrought very wonderfully, for it quite tooke from her that fantasticke affection, fo that (neuer after) fice did fo much as once remember him. And the Hiftory faieth, that of this her companying with the Emperor, Antoninas Commodus was begotten, who became fo cruell & bloody, that he refembled rather the Fencer, of whose blood his Motherhad drunke before his conception; then any iote of Marcus Aurelius, to whom he was Sonne indeed; in regard wherof, Commodus was a daily companion with the Gladiatores or Fencers, as Eutropius witnesseth, in the Physitions among the Greekes and Arabes, do reckon this disease of Loue with the most greenous infirmities of the body, and thereupon haue disputed many remedies. * Cdamus the Milefian (according as Suidas reporteth, in his Booke of Collections) wrote a Booke discour-

fing on perticular remedy, whereby vtterly to expell this dangerous ficknesse of loue : as Ouid also hath saide sufficiently,

in his remedies against loue. Wherefore among all other remedies, which Physitions have adnifed against this infirmity, this is one; that the patient endangered,

should undertake some great affaires,importing highly his owne honour and pro-fite, onely to this end, that his spirit being busic about duscritty of things; hee may the better retire his imagination, from the party by whom he is offended. They do moreouer with him, to thun and for-

fake all embracings, or ouer kinde conuerfation with other women. Pliny fayeth, that against this enflaming heate, it is very good to obserue where a Mule hath tumbled or wallowed, and to gather the duft of that ground, which must bee cast vpon the amorous party, and powder his garments therewith, or elfe with the weate of a well heated Mule, as Cardanus life of the faid Commodus.

4 Booke

Chap.20. Of fond and ridiculous Love.

CHAP, XX.

Of the strange and furious love of a young Athenian : and of the ridiculous love of King Xerxes: and how Beasts have many simes affected both men and women.

Naturall loue s cutt allow-

The History

of the young Athenian

that it came

OR a man to loue a woman, and a woman a man, it is a matter, conformable to nature, and worthy to be beleeued and embraced: but whe

blinde-fold folly attaineth to fuch a head, as those things wherof I am instantly to speake; it may well appeare to be imposfible, and no way deferuing any credite. Very learned and good Historiographers. haue written and recorded for truth, that in the City of Athens there lived a young man, descended of anhonest parentage, of competent wealth, and sufficiently knowne, who having oftentimes carneftly obserued a Marble Statue, most curioutly and ingeniously wrought, and crected in a publike place of Athens, became fo extremely enamored thereof, as he had no power to absent himselfe fro the place ung loue, yet where it was fixed, but would hugge and embrace it very affectionately, & alwayes when he was not by it shee found himfelfe very ill and fickly disposed. At length, this paffion grew to fuch extremity, as hee ran to the Senate house, and there before the reuerend Senatours, he made very liberall offers of money, humbly entreating the fo much to fauour him, that hee might have the Statue in his owne possession. This feemed no way pleating to the Senate, neyther could their authority fretch fo farre, as eyther to give or fell a publike Statue. VVhenhe perceived his request to be denied, hee became much afflicted with greefe and anguish of minde, & repayring to the Statue, enriched the head thereof with a Crowne of gold, and the body with garments and iewels of vnvaluable price. This being done, hee would stand amorously beholding it, and many times fall on his knees before it, offering all worthip and adoration thereto: and fo conclusion of long he continued in this vireproueable abrain ficke folly, till (being strictly commanded the contrary by the Senate) he flew himfelfe before it with rage and anger.

Doubtleffeithis was a cale yer admirable, and yet I must acquaint you with another, much more thrange & ridiculous yet credibly anoughed by formany good Authors, conderning the loue of King The ridicu-Xerxes as irmay well be faid that hee ex-King Xerzes ceeded all men of the world in folly. He grew enamored of a Platanevor Planetree a Tree fufficiently knowne except in fome few parts, and he wouldkiffel&eni brace it with like affection, as if it had ben fhall we fay then of brute Beafts; that have Beaftsenaaffected both men and women, and the mored of men

395

lous loue of

haue power

this delight. But one time, the most vnhappy of all There is filother, the childe would needs put off his dome any de light, but it cloathes (as formerly hee had not done) hath fome difbecause he purposed to swimme farre in- ger attending Councell cinen by Afte logers and Physitian for astrange remedy.

The concep tion of the bloody Emperour Anto ninus Comodus.

Entropius in vis, Commond.

A worth Writer of Miletum. Saida in lib. a.de Collett. Quid in cemed Amor.

Remedies ad uifed against fond and foolifh Loue.

Plin.in lib. 10 CAP. SA.

a,de nat. fab.

alfo anoucheth, in his Booke of Subtil-Physitions likewise haue taught the meanes, whereby may be observed, which person is beloued of the amorous party. And that is the felfe-fame rule, whereby * Erafistratus, Physition to king Seleuchus, * Anexect. understoode the love that Antiochus did lent Phylice beare to Queene Stratonica, his step-moAustralia ther. For hee beeing ficke, euch to the vtmost extremity, and affecting much rather to dye, then any way to discouer the cause of this disease, and that it proceeded from the loue he bare vnto his Fathers wife: Vpon a fudden thee entred into the Chamber, even as the Physition was The extreme the feeling the pulse of his patient, which loue of Antimooued fo firongly vppon the Queenes entrance, that Erafifratus enidently gathered thereby, that not onely he was enamored of her, but alfo, that it was the maine cause of his desperate disease. Heerenpon, he practifed how to acquaint the King therewith: which at length /by good and acceptable means) he did, that would require too long time heere to relate, because the History is sufficiently

The case being likewise experimented The kinchin by the Father himfelfe, and he perceiting the danger wherein his Son was; thought Physicion good (although it went quite against his indgement Sonnes intention, who defired death, rather then to bee recourred by his Fathers losse) to deprive himselfe of his Queene. and give her vnto his fickly Sonne. And to speake vprightly, the age, beauty of the Lady, and equality for marriage, agreed much more conformably with the youthfull Sonne, then the ouer-aged Father. And this was the cause, that Antiochus liued healthfully and pleafantly (for many veares after) with his best beloued Stratonica; as the History more at large declareth, being recorded by Plutarch, in the Plutin with life of Demetrius. And this is the rea- Demetr. fon, why Physitions do aduise to raste the Why Physic pulse of any amorous person, and to re- onshale count divers names to him or her, among which, may be the name of the party affercled: for fo foone as that is once vnderstood, the pulse wil beate apace & strongly, by which meanes, the party beloued is knowne. By divers other fignes, it may be perceited, when any one is in lone, and to whom the affection tendeth: which figns I ceasse to speake of, because they are knowne to too many.

CHAP.

Fully excee-

A desperate

to the Banck, and thew himfelfe vnto the

childe, who (at the first) was much affrigh-ly made before him, hee waxed bold and hardy, and would venter into the water to him to land. In this pleasure and passime, diners dayes were spent, for the Dolphin enermore would be ready at the Bancke, when as the childe came to make vie of a beautifull woman. If these acciendents have happened among men endued with reason; what of brute fame confirmed by great and famous Hiforians? As of Glauce to extremely affeded by a Rammerthat it would never bee from her; and Dolphines also have bene very admirably affectionate towards mo. A lianue reciteth in his Booke of Beafts, a defigue in lib matter well deferring to be related? He 4.de animal. faith, a Dolphine elpying young children cap.10.

playing on the Sea-thore; one among all the ftrange

the reft, which feemed to him the most affection of a louely and beautifull, hee became fo ena- Dolphin to a mored of, that ar cuery time when the childer Dolphine faw him, hee would drawn bere ted,and fled away from him. But afterward, by the perfeuerance which the Dolphine vied from day to day, expressing manifelt fignes of entire love to the child, he grew the leffe timorous, and by the pastimes which the Dolphine continual-him not fearing to mount vpon his back, making a figne, and commanding (asit The childe were) the Dolphine, to fwim a great way feemed to into the Sea with him, and then (vppon a contrary figne or command, and when he ouer the Dolwas weary) to returne backe againe with phine.

The childe flaine moft vinhappily.

ting himfelfe on the Dolphines backe, or how to fir for his fafeft holding on in chaced, timpone of the flimp-pointed finnes, which riferhout of Dolphines wings (for fo are they tearmed by Plim, and others) ran fo for into the childes belly, & wounded him in such fort, twat instantly he fell dravne dead in the water .: Which when the Dolphine perceitled and the blood of the dead childe trickling downe his fides;

he tookenp his deare lou'd childe fo well

ashe sould, and returning backe to land

fuddenly, cuen as if hee intended to reuenge this offence vopon himfelfe hee

fwam furiously on land out of the water, and preferally dved by the childe: "...

The destrict the Dolphine

cap. 14. Another Hifluiry of a loueros childe.

Plin fecund in g.Lib.de Epift.

ad: This Hiftoric is also recorded by Pli-Pilmin lib 12. my withmany other examples of Doloffines that have declared great lone and kindunffebto men . Particularly heereporterhouse in the time of the Emperour Dalahim that a Dolphine fin the very like rosinndi)ttooke delight in an infant, on the Sea coast ricere to Puteoli, and whenweubrithischilde, beting halned Simon (for inisifaid, that Dolphines will suddenly runde to the very found of that name) came to the shoare; the childe would mountypon his backe; and be carried into the Sea, paffing and returning alwaies fafely to land . He faith moreover, that the childe dying by ficknesse, & the Dolphine often comming to the viuall meeting place,& not finding the childe there. dyed with greefe and forrow. The younged Pliny, Nephew to great Pliny, declareth many meruailes of a Dolphine, in the 9. Booke of his Epiftles: efpecially in that Epistle which beginneth, Indici in materiam veram.

CHAP, XXI.

Of a man, that by receiving a wound at his enemies hand was delivered from a dead. ly danger wherein he had long time lined: With fundry other examples to the fame parpofe.

TEc have formerly related, that Musique hath beene the meanes to the Seas and being not carefull in fea- | of curing fome difeafes, and no way to be reputed incredible: confidering that wee finde by other stranger meanes, very great infirmities haue likewise beene holpen. Plutarch, in a notable Treatife by him Plut invalle composed, declaring how men may deriue profite or benefite from their enemies reporteth; that a man had a certaine enemy, named Promotheus, who hated him extremely, and fought all the meanes he could denife to kill him. It fortuned, that meeting with him on a day, hee gaue him divers hurts, and among the rest, hee chanced to wound an olde vicer, that had long Iven in the flesh, couered ouer with skinne, a matter of great danger to his life, and (for which) all helpe was viterly

denved him. Neuertheleffe, this wound prooued the onely meanes of his helpe, may fomin and fafe deliverance from the former da- do a man ger: for in thinking to kill him, and fo to his will quench his malice, hee gaue him life and foundnesse of health: Valerius reciteth Valer Maria the very fame history (among other note- lib.de Mind worthy matters) in his Booke of miracles: but he affirmeth the mans name that was healed by this wound, to bee Isfon Phe-

Plim writeth of another man, named Phaintain Phalerens, who had an incurable difcafe, op it. in regard of a fluxe of blood, continually flowing out at his mouth, caused by breaking a veine within his body. And finding himselfe in desperate condition of any curing, he entred fuddenly into an Army, without any Armes for his defence, that Where help being there flaine among the enemies, his is leaflespe hope and helpe might both finish toge- acd,thereit ther. It came to passe, that receiving a dangerous wound vpon the breast, there iffued forth fuch an abundance of blood from that hurt that the fluxe (having formerly his vent at the mouth only) ceasted, and Chyrurgions afterward, with the aduice of skilfull Phylitions, confolidating the broken veine, hee remained foundly healed of all harmes. I finde it also recorded of Quintus Fabize, that he having had a Feauer quartane for many yeares together; giving battaile one day to the * Allobroges , now named . People of Sauoyans, the extreme heate in defire Sauoyend Daulphiny. which he had then to fight; quite expelled the Feauer, and it neuer sought him afterward.

I my felfe can teftifie, that I both faw,

Chap.22.

Of the Vine and of VVine.

Authors kno

and well knew the man, who had received a wound in his thigh, whereof he became starke lame, and voyde of all hope of any remedy, happening afterward into an vnexpected quarrell, he received an other wound you the fame thigh, and inft in the place where the former chaunced.

The Chirurgions in dressing this latter harme, did very well perceive that the nerues which had beene cut before be-ganne to firetch and restore themselves in such fort, that being cured of this fecond hurt, his thigh was foundly recouered, and hee went as voright as ever hee did, and without the least limping. So did it happen to Telephus, one of the A king of My-fis, Hercules fon by Auge. fonnes to Hercules, and King of Myfia, who being wounded in his owne Countrey by Achilles, could not any way be cured, till eight yeres after he was wounded agayne by the fame Achilles, and in the felfe same part of his body, before Trey, then belieged, and the rust of the fame Speare that formerly had hurt him,

CHAP. XXII.

produced to be his onely help.

Who weas the first that planted the Vine: And wwho beganne to put wwater into wine. To wohom, and in what maner the Romaines did prohibite Wine : With many other notable things tending to the same purpose.

Wine thepro-fitablest of all ther liquors.

A notable Philosopher borne in Sev-

F all the fruites which the earth yeeldeth (I mean those earth yeeldeth(I meanunch wherof liquor is made) there is none (in my indgement) more profitable then good wine; prouided, that it be temperately taken. For this cause was it that " Anacharfis fayd, The vine producesh shree Grapes: The first of Pleasure : The second of Drunkennesse: And the third of Teares and Sadneffe. So that hee which paffeth the first Cuppe, that is to fay, a little, and moderatly received; proceedeth on to shame and danger.

Prophane Authours, that neuer had any understanding of the facred Scriptures, doe name vs diverse inventers of wine. Diodorus Siculus in his fourth book! attributeth the inuention of wine, and Of the first infirst planting of the Vine, to Dionystus the uéter of wine. fonne of Jupiter, named Bacchine, and Liber pater, fo flyled, for the liberty of wine. For this invention a Temple was erected to him, underneath the Capitoll at Rome: where they celebrated his Feaftes, which were called Dionysians, or Bacchanalians, very diffioneit, and full of preat lubricity. That the inuention came from these Dianvisans, Virosli giueth affurance at the Vir.in Geort entrance into his fecond booke of Geor-Marcian Capel. gickes. Howbeit, Marcianus Capellus faith, that Dionyfius only instructed the Greeks.

Translated by in the manner of making wine. Others the Gods into fay , that Icarius father to Erigone , first heaven called taught the industry of making wine to the First. Athenians: and becomming afterwards drunke thereby, the people flew him. In Italie, they fay, that Saturne did first plant the Vine there, and brought the young fuckers and plants from the lile of Candie

Platarcin Ma. thither. And Plutarke writeth , that Ar- rat lib. 30cas,7 rus Hetruseus. brought Vines first into France. But the trueth of historic, is, and the first that made himselfe drunke therewith: whereof are Authours (befides that which is recorded in the ninth Gene.9 $1,23 chapter of Genelis) Lactantius, Firmianus. Lattant Fruit and Infephus. Noab; at his comming forth an in : , ib, de of the Arke, planted the Vine with his Inflit diain. owne properhand, and drunke the juyce of the raisin, whereby he became grunke: and discourring his nakednesse in sleeping, it happened to him by his fonnes, ac-

that the first inventer of wine was Nosh.

cording as we reade in the fame.chapter of Genelis. Afterwards, men attayning to know the fauour of wine, did drinke it, at the Wine drunke first, wholly pure of it felfe, and without at the first the commission of any water: for, as Pli- purc of it felf. my auoucheth, one named Stafins was the Who first min first that did put water into wine, to tem- gled water perate and quallifie it. By the meanes of with wine. which aduice, great good and healthfulnesse ensued to the world : because, wine being so made moderate, procured verie good and excellent effects. In like manner Plato, alleadged by Macrobius, in his M crobinsin fecond booke, favth : Wine moderately taken, strengtheneth the understanding of a man, augmenteth his force and vigour, ma. keth the heart chearefull and deliberate, and taketh away irkefome thoughts, and all offen-

1.Tim.5.23.

He of Prufa

wine by Phifitions in ma ny medicines

Plate in Secrat.

wine commen dedby natural philosophers.

Wine denied to women and Paler. Maxim Plindi, 14. ca.8

Fabius Pislor is

The causing of parents kil

Plunlib. 23 c.1. \ fine persurbations . Plinie (2vth, The wfe of) Wine, receiving it temperately, multiplieth our forces encreaseth bloud and colour in the face: The nerues are fortified by wine, fight strengthened, the stomacke made vigorous, and appetite awaked : It promoketh wrine. impeacheth vomiting, expelleth melancholie. maketh the heart Brightly, and serueth for many other good things. Asclepiades the Physition, wrote a booke by it felfe, wholy concerning the vertues of wine. And faint Paul writing to Timothy? councelleth him to drinke a little wine tempered, to Arengthen his stomacke.

Physitions do make vse of wine in many medicines, because wine restoreth all the humours, re-enforceth blood where it fayleth, gladdeth a melancholy dispofition, diffipateth and dryeth vo flegme. humecteth and helpeth to purge choller. Plate, introducing Secrates, fayth thus in commending wine: Like as moderate rains doe encrease our hearbs, and tempests and inundations of waters doe rent them up and destroy them: Euen fo, wine temperately taken , cheareth the fpirites , and fortifieth the vertues of the body, whereas contrariwife,ouer much, and intemperately received, destroyethall. Not so much as the very odour and smell of wine, but it is highly commended (beyond all other odours) by our naturall Philosophers : because it is very comfortative, giveth great vigour to the spirites, and is exceeding lively and piercing. But yet wee must consider withall, that the chiefe vertue of wine is cuermore understood, when it is qualified and made temperate.

The ancient Romanes did wholly take away the vie of wine from women and children: as Valerius favth, speaking of the customes and lawes of the Romanes, So that , as Plinie affirmeth, at fuch time as Romulus reigned in Rome, a husband flew his wife, because thee had drunke wine: and in regard that the murder followed vpon this occasion, Romalus pardoned it. The vice of drinking wine, was held to be so odious in women, that Pabina Pictor reporteth, because a Romane woman had deceived the Clarke of a celler, onely to drinke wine which was kept therein, her parents caused her to be starued to death. And heereupon grew the custome of fathers and mothers kissing fing their children on the mouthes; onely to perceive therby, whether they had drunk wine or no. We finde it in good record, that W. Domitius being ludge of Rome, he deprined a woman of her Dowry, because shee had drunke more wine, then was allowed her for her health . Salomon in his Proucrbs favth, It is not for Kings to Provided drinke wine, or Princes strong drinke, lest he drinke and forget the Decree, and change the judgement of all the children of affliction. And yet we reade, that the Kings of Ægypt were permitted to drinke wine, fo it were moderately, and in a certayne mea-

Vpon a time, Romulus beeing then King of Rome, and innited to a bountifull banquet: he would drinke but very little The worder a matter of great importance. Auicen faith; of Ross.

In giuino children mine. dition of fire to fire . Aristotle expressely Aristotle forbad the giving of wine to children, and Leep and Leep and likewise to the Nursses that gaue them fucke. Plate by the laws which he made in his Booke, for the common-wealth, although he feemes in the first book, to admit a tolleration of wines, yet in the fecond he fayth; A man ought to drink a little, a ice for dir and well qualified. This allowance stretcht not to any one, till he had attained to 18. yeares of age, and fo to continue till hee man were forty: but it must be alwayes doone in the presence of olde men, to the end that he might be reprodued, when in the least manner hee exceeded. From forty yeares vpward, hee permitted that a little more then hee had formerly demaunded, should be given him; to make the colde and melancholy disposition (of that age) the more temperate; and yet it must bee doone in a certayne measure too. It was Indge and his charge alfo, that feruants should drink Magistrate no wine, neyther Iudges, Magistrates, or wine. any that held any publique jurisdiction: and as for yong men that studyed, he aduised them, not to drinke any . Auicen alloweth Platees law, in this poynt, as a rule for Philicke : And thereto likewise Galen consenteth . Alexander Aphrodifeus fayth Alexan April in his Problemes , Hee which drinketh no- in Picitim thing but water onely, hath his fight and other lences more lively, then he that drinketh wine.

Now, as concerning in what fashion and maner, wine should be tempered and qualified, there are many rules, and diver-

Chap.23.

of water with wine. Heliadus in Li.3

Wine giuen for three fc. uerall purpo-

Apuleius Pani-

Temperance commended in Chriftian of place in tib.8

lihroni in cpi 9

fities of opinions. Hefiodus the Greek Poet faith. That in one quarte of wine there should be three quarts of water mingled. Atheneus favth, that the auncient Greekes vsed to put five partes of water into two partes of wine, and most times three parts of water, into one of wine, which is the rule of Hesiodus. Heere also is to be obferued, that the Greekes did not put water into their wine, but wine into water, and Theophrastus affureth vs, that ter, and Theophraffus affureth vs, that the one and the other are much the better mingled. Morsouer, auncient men did not onely moderate wine in this manner, but albeit it was thus tempered, they would drinke very little thereof. Eubulus the Greeke Poet doth affirme, introducing Bacchus, to Speake thus vnto the Sages : I will neuer make more then three giftes of wine: The first, for health : The Second, for taste: And the third, for flespe; the rest favoureth of diforder and drunkenneffe . Apuleius Pamiasis, who wrote of meates, deliuereth the like ludgement, attributing this maner to three feuerall daughters. The first, to the Graces : The fecond, to Venus : And the third, to shame and danger. Iulius Cafar was very temperate in drinking wine : as Suctonius witheffeth by the tellimonic of Sutt.lib.6.:a.z. Cato, who was vtter enemie to Cafar. Demosthenes, the excellent Oratour, was the like. And Apollonius Thyaneus of whom fo many famous things are written, did

> In our Christian Religion, temperance (in drinking) is much commended. Saint lames the leffer, did neuer drinke wine, or frong drinke, nor did euer cate any fleft; immitating Laint John the Baptift. Wee finde the like affirmed of Saint Stephen, King of Portugall. Infephus in his Antiquities commending the holineffe of the Effeans, (who helde one of the three Sects amongst the lewes, whereof the other two were Pharifes and Saduces) fayth : That the Effeans did neuer drinke wine. In an Epiffle Saint Hierome repropued Priefles, that addicted themfelues to drinke wine, telling them, That Saint Paul the Apostle didforbid it, and that in the ancient Law, fuch as ferued in the Temple, did not drinke wine, or any other drinke that might procure drunkenneife.

neuer drinke any Wine, or feede vpon

Such as are tearmed good drinkers, vse to fay, that good wine ought to have foure properties, to answere foure sences or vnderstandings of the body : To Fourefenerall the tafte, by fauour: To the finell, by a ceffarily reperfect odour : To the fight, by a neate quired to be in and cleare colour : And to the eare, by good wine. a good report of the Countrey where it was made. Of this good wine men vie to make vineger, which hath many good properties and inconveniences likewife: wherein I will be filent, because they are matters too vulgar and common.

CHAP. XXIII.

Of many dammages and daungers, which enfue by the immoderate drinking of wine. And how it bath beene held as a healthfull thing (by some Phisitions) to be drunke sometimes.

Lthough the liquor called Wine, be apt and whole fome for diuers infirmities: yet notwithstanding, so many harmes and annoyances do arife, from the excessive immoderate taking thereof, that the cuills doe finerabound all the goods enfuing thereby. So that it appeareth, that it were better not to know it . but rather to content our felues with water, which God hath ginen vs for our drinke; because hee thought nothing meeter for vs, and all other creatures doe well content themselves there- doe well fet's with. Hecreto also may be added, that fie themselues with the drinwine hath beene the onely occasion, by king of water. which many have become diffracted in their sences; some have lost their lines, and others not meanely endaungered the faluation of their foules.

Now, although the harmes enfuing to men (by Wine) are too apparently knowne: yet notwithstanding, they are fo far from thunning & anoyding them, that they daily fecke after new occasions, and Arange denifed appetites for drink-dailyinnented ing. And in our best French language, to procure apthese new appetites are titled by some; petitestor dinking. Mm 2

Plin.in lih G. cap.13.

The proper mong allother drinkes. Plana lb. zbi fupra.

The benefit of mmode rate drinking

The words o Cato. Plin.m lib,6. c.p.t 4. Sences in epift. ad Lucul.

Dyonif Arcop.

Ephcf. 5.18.

Prou.zu.1.10

by others, A thooing horne, to draw on a quart or two of good wine, fo that a flice of a Gambone of Bacon, is held (in this case) for a precious relique, and sew hours in the day or night doth passe ouer them, but the cup is kift with found denotion in drinking; fometimes taking fine or fixe cups more then are necessary. Pliny faieth there are some men, who will drinke before they be thirfly, and wine onely (among all other drinkes) hath this property, to cause it selfe to be drunke, before a man haue any need of it. He saith moreouer, that fome do drinke in such fort as they suffly deferue; for it gives them (immediately) the due punishment to such finne: for the vapour mounting vp into the braine, bereaueth them of all vnderstanding, so that they remaine as me senseleffe. And having plaid it off luftily (as they vie to tearme it) for fome quantity of time: it plaieth with them as the Cat doth with the Mouse, either kils them outright, or (at least) engendereth fo many harmes and infirmities, as are much worse then death it felfejas Gouts, Palfies in the head, hands and feete, imbrodering the eyes with a scarlet coulor, burning vp the Liuer, and fiering the face, belide divers other fuch undecent and fearle-grace-full qualities, no way fit to be yled among me indeed.

Cato faid, Drunkennesse is a voluntary folly. And Pliny laith, It confoundeth the meniory, and procureth dreadfull dreames. Seneca writing to Lucullus, faieth : Wine maketh the leages and armes impotent, and cauleth men to become luxurious . Dyonifins Areopagita, alleadging Plate to haue Spoken the words, faith : Drunkenneffe is a lively and merry Minitrill, and yet it makes our legges to faile under us, giving (as wee vie to fay in France) a trip to our heeles, and laying vs along on the ground. Saint Paul writing viito the Fphelians, adulfed them to thunne wine because therein is luxury. And Salomon in his Proverbs, among the imperfections of wine, faith; It is a deceiuer, and whosoener drinketh excessively thereof, cannot conceale a fecret faithfully. Heereupon then arole the ancient Proucrbe , That wine walketh without any thooes, that is to fay, It treadeth fecretly, foftly, and without any noyle, because no one thould perceive the power thereof,

A spur or pronocation to a cup of wine; I nor how it discouereth our secret and vicious qualities. To this purpose the Poet Æschylus faide: A Glasse or Mirrour ma. The word o keth knowne the gestures of the body, and Achille wine ferueth as a Glaffe to the foule or heart of a man. Plato likewise faid : Wine principally laieth open the manner and conditions Legib. of everyman. We have example thereof in Neah and Lot for Weah being drunk General with wine.discouered his parts of shame. whereby he became mocked and fcorned. And against Lot, Sodome could have no Gen, 19,33, power : but wine ouercame him, & made 34. him to lve with his owne Daughters : these are the benefits ensuing by wine.

Among the Lawes which Solon one Among the Lawes which solon one of the feuen grave Sages of Greece) gave the Athenito the Athenians: it was especially ordayned, that the Prince, when hee became drunke, should be flaine . Pittaciu, another of those wise men, ordayned, that a drunken man committing any delict or great offence, should bee doubly puni- gainst drunthed : once for the facte it felfe, and next kennelle. for drunkennesse, which caused him to do

Aristotle in his Problems , yeeldeth Ariftin Pul a reason, why such men as are ouer-much addicted to wine, are greatly difabled in the begetting of children: and likewife, why some drunkards are very pleasant in their drinke; and others terrible, some fad and weeping, others jocond and dan-

Neuerthelesse, some Physitions (among who are Auscene and Ralis) have helde opinion, that it is a wholfome thing to be drunke sometimes: but the reasons which they give in this case, doth not cotent me any way, neyther doe I allow of their opinion. And yet I must needes confesse, that very great personages hauc beene subjected to wine; whereas on the contrary, if they had stood cleare and free from it, their glory and renowne had bin farre greater.

Alexander the Great, was as greatly Alexander taxed with this vice, fo that (as divers being ouer good Historians do affirme) being over- come with come with this fury; he flew one of his most intimate friends; and comming (afterward) to acknowledgement of his fault he would have flaine himfelfe. Befide, it is further alledged, that the cheefest cause of his murders and slaughters, was onely this poyfon to all goodnesse.

thony one of the Romane Triumuiri-

Chap. 24.

Cleomedes King of Spar

> Archefilaus the Philotopher,

Dian fius the younger.

Anacteon the

The Emperor Bonolus, a great drinker.

Sing Antiothus the great dunker and Marke Anthony, who was one of the three Marke Ancheefe Commanders in Rome, and married with the Sifter to Octanius the Emperour: being addicted to wine, and (confequently) to lasciniousnesse, with Cleopatra Queene of Egypt; lost at length both his state and life, and was vanguished by Octanius, because hee suffered himselfe to be conquered by wine. The Emperour Tiberius was defectine in many things: Tiberius the but in regard hee was a great drinker, it great drinker was the fole cause of all his other imperfections: and whereas his name was Tiberius, as a nick-name, they would often call him Biberius, and his ende was mifera-

> Dionyline the younger, a Tyrant of Sicily was fo extremely affected to wine ; that it did eate his eyes, and made him to become starke blinde. Cleomedes, King of the Spartanes, would needs purfue and imitate the Septhians, in excelline drinking of wine: but in the end, he became a foole, quite infenfed, and without judgement. It is saide, that the Philosopher Archesilans died in notorious drunkenneffe.

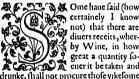

The Poet Anacreon was a very great drinker, and as he was drinking, he strangled or choaked himfelfe, with the stone of a Grape or Raisin, which entred into his throate vnadnifedly.

Flauius the Bishop, an Historian of worthy credite, writerh, that the Emperor Bonofus was fo addicted to wine that Anrelianus faid of him : Hee was not borne to line,but to drinke. And heerein hee had an admirable quality, for notwithstanding the immeasurable quantity of wine, which he dranke daily, yet hee was neuer drunke. I gueffe that this enfued, by his continuall anoydance of vrine, which went from him as fast, as hee tooke in his wine. Neuertheleffe, his ende was anfwerable to his deferuing, for beeing vanquished by the Emperour Probus, he was hanged or firangled. It is recorded that King Antiochus, who was conquered by the Romanes, vsed to drink so much wine, that he flept the most part of his time. In regard whereof, he gaue the cheefest authority of his kingdomes government, to two of his choylest favourites, and because himselfe was addicted to banquets. and the amorous embracings of a young Gentlewoman : when he came to fight against the Romanes, his Army became broken, and veterly vanquished. Athenew writeth, that Aclebylus the Greeke Poet, would divers times be drunk, wher- The proofe. vpon Sophocles faid vnto him. Aeschilus, to Aeschilus those things which theu dininest or writest, the Greeke are done by chance or at adventure : and not by any knowledge remaining in thee, or that thou dost rightly understand them.

CHAP. XXIIII.

Certaine aduites and enstructions, against (uch forward affection to Wine . And fome reasons delivered, why two things doe appeare to bee three, to fuch as bee drunke.

certainely I know not) that there are diuers receits, whereby Wine, in how great a quantity foener it be taken and drunke, shall not procure those vikesome effects, which are related in the former

Pliny and Solinus do both of them af- | Plin in lib. firme, that there is a blacke Stone, having on. 1. Vermillion coullored veynes in it, and named Dionife, which hath fuch a property, as if it bee layde in water, it yeeldeth the perfect fauour and rellish of wine; and whofoener drinketh of that water, euen fomuch as himfelfe pleafeth, thall neuer be drunke therewith. Physitions say, that if a man will preuent drunkennetle; The ludgehe must first eate Honye, or some other stionsfor the fweete things: And hee that is drunke, drunkennelle must be viged to vomite, and then give him a morfell of bread fleeped in Honye, which will immediately recouer him, because Honye hindereth all vapours from afcending vppc into the Head.

Drufin, Sonne to the Emperour Tiberine, had a Physition, who gaue him very Mm 3 admi116.5 cap.7.

The ludge-fomewhat of the argument, onely for the delight and contentment of fuch mindes,

as are enclined to the Science whereof it discourseth. Wherefore concerning our pose, the first and cheese Elements of such a Science: which because they are common, shal require the lesse labor to proue them. The first is that whereof wee are now treating, the greatnesse of the earth, carrying with it both Land and Sea: because God did dispose them in such manner, when he faid ; Let the dry land appeare,

for they both being vnited togither, made one body perfectly round. So likewise is it to bee vinderstoode in all those actions which are given to the earth, the Sea is also therein comprized : For, when a man

fayth, the earth hath fo many degrees in roundnesse, or it containeth so many degrees from one place to another; the fea

is therein as well understood as the land.

So in like manner are confidered the Ec-clipfes, heights and breadths, to hold one and the fame certitude : and yet notwithstanding, Mountaines, and Valleyes are not comprehended in this roundure, nor Woodes or Forrests likewise, which the earth contayneth in it selfe; because such things are not woorthie of any account,

with the greatnesse of this wonderful bo-

This rotundity of Land and Water is feated in the midft of the circuite of Heauen, in such manner, as the point & cen-

and Land, is likewife the center and number of the whole world, as well of heauen, as of the Blements. Quer and beside this definition, there is another, true and abfolute, to wit, that the land and water (in regard of the flarry heaven, which we call the Firmament) are fo little; that all thefe

two Elements ferue thereto but for a center, and is even but as a fmall point, in refoed of his circumference . So that in whatfocuer part thereof a man best liketh

to helpe himselfe, by meanes of a Quadrant or an Aftrolabe; his labour forteth for the center of the earth. For in whatfocuer place of the earth we are (prouided

that it be not in any deepe or hollow bot-tome) we shall discouer the moity of hea-

to the like effect, as if hee made the fame

Drulas,his Phylician. whole phyfich

drunker neffe

Bitter Almondian e-Speciall help against drun-

Pin in lib 12. (ap.14. The Radia) route.

Saffion.

Plin.in lib.z bi Jupra.cap.cod

Arift.in Problem.part.z. Ancene in lib. Animal.t.

The finewer which conduft the ver tue of feeing to the eyes.

admirable physick, to preserve him from | ry strongly and quicke; because the Orbeing drunke, albeit he daily drank more wine then any other one man of his time: for he could out-drinke all commers, yet never he drunke, or bereft of his judgement. But in the ende it was knowne, that (vfually) before hee entred drinking, he would eate fine or fixe bitter almonds, whose power and naturall property was fuch, as it impeached the wine from alienating his spirits. And experience thereof was afterward made, for when they abridged him from the meanes of eating bitter Almonds, and he vling to drinke as formerly he did; he became as foon drunk as any other man. That these Almonds haue this peculiar property, Pliny affirmeth it, adding further; that eating a Raddish roote before hard drinking, auoideth drunkennesse. He saith also, that Colewortes eaten before hand, keepeth a man from being diftempered with wine: and being eaten after drunkennesse, they remoue instantly the distemperature, as Saffron also hath the selfe-same power. Ther are many other remedies for this imperfection, wherein I will be filent; speaking onely of one, recited by Pliny. He faith, that taking a quantity of wine, mingled with the egges of a Chough, and, beeing drunke two or three mornings together, he that drinketh it, will hatewine in fuch fort, as he will neuer after drinke thereof. Herreto he addeth, that a Swallow being taken and burned to afhes, then beaten into powder and mingled with a little Myrrhe in the wine; whofoeuer receyueth a draught of this potion, shall neuer be drunke, for this was experimented by Horus, King of Affyria. Aristotle, in the third part of his Problems, and Auicenne, in his fixt Booke of Beafts, do yeeld a reason, why in drunkenneffe, when a man looketh vpon any one thing, it appeares to him as if it were two, and a beit they doe both produce divers reafons, yet will I alledge but one from each of them. The first shall be Aristotles, who faith, that thorow excessive heat of vapours in the wine, afcending up into the braine; the little nerges, called *Optici nerui, which go on directly to the eyes, do worke and moone with fuch power, that the vifiall vertue, and the spirits of fight (altering in their motion) do cause whatfoeuer drunken men gaze on, to flirre vegane of fight moueth it felfe in that manner and maketh the common fense to receiue the Images of things, in a multiplyed quality to the eye. For fuch kinde of motion, maketh fingle things to sceme double, and because this motion is so sudden and infenfible, it canfeth two things to feeme as one to the fight. As any man may eafily make tryall of, by laying Aprostees his finger vpon his eye-lid, and then re-mouing it thence, it will appeare to him, that it is the thingremoueth it felfe, which he beholdeth. Auicenne deliuereth another reason saving: The vapours of wine, Auicen in the which ascend up into the head of him that is drunke, are moist, and because the little nerves of wine mode. and muscles which reach to the eyes, doe en ting you grosse or well themselves by this humidity 3 drunken muscles To much more the one (then the other) doe thereby mount them selves the one higher and the other lower . From hence enfueth that the visible rayes do not equally divide them-Celues foorth-right from both the eyes neither by a direct or right line : which is the cause. that the Images of things visible, doe extend to eyther eye by them clues. In this respect only things fimple and fingle, appeare to be double, the commo fenfe receyuing & apprehending two images for one: and for the maintenance of this opinion, Auicenne yeeldeth the felfefame example, as Aristotle did.

CHAP. XXV.

In what manner a man may know and measure, the rotundity or round compasse of the whole earth: and how much it is reputed to containe, in the circumference or circkling round about.

VII well I know, that the fubicat of this Chapter, will By hardly feeme pleafing vnto all Readers; in regarde, that for the better vnderstäding ther-of fom of the principles of the Mathematicks, are necessarily

Principles of Irequired to be well apprehended. NeuerheMathema. theleffe, I am the more willing to speake

Chap.25.

The chiete !- | present purpose, it is needfull to presup-

Genelis 1.9.

Eccliples, heights, and breadthes, mountaines,

Adions attri-

bured to the

How the rouand least (ca. ter of that round body, composed of Sca

The Starrie heauen or fir mament.

licipe of a Quadrant or Aftrolabe to aman in chis uen; which proceedeth by reason of the incomprehensible distance, that is from hence beneath vp to the Firmament, with his incompareable greatnesse. That this The leaft Star must needs be true, it is most evident, that all the earth. the verie least Starre which we discerne in by enident heaven, is much more greater then the pione. whole earth; and yet neuertheleffe, it appeareth to vs but as a finall point, in regard of the heavens large spaciousnesse; by the least of which things, a man may make proofe in fufficient demonstration, but it sufficeth that experience hath apparantly showne the same.

Ptolomy approunth it, in the 10, chap- pages ballet ter of his first booke of Geography, Al- de Company phraganus, in his fourth Difference, Clea- 17,100 medes, in his first Booke ; Geber, in his te chounts that cond Book; and John de Sacrobofco, as the lead Sacrobof like do all other that have written on the Spheare.

This then being thus presupposed, let vs imagine in our mindes, that the vvater and Land do make one round circkle, and that heaven is another, but much more great, as indeede it is; and that thefe two How this matcircles have no other, but one common ter may bee center within them. Which being fo imagined, let vs lay two lines of equall great- minde of man neffe, which may extend themselves (in common) to the circumferences of al the two circles, according as Euclides enfirm-Acth, cutting and dividing the two Circles by equal portions, each portion being justly equalled, in regard of each one of them : that is to fay, that if those two lines paffe on right in such manner, they will make eight parts of a great circle, and fo shall make as much of the leffer, I vnderstand and meane each eight part, in refect of each ones greatnesse.

Our elders in former times, in theyr manner of measitring the world, gane adnice to divide the heaven into three himdred and threefcore equall partes, which we do now cal degrees, & by confequent, measuring of the roundnesse of the earth into as manie diusion of parts, by imaginations of lines, parting heaven, from the center, and making the dinifion in fuch manner, that the like quantitie which each one of the degrees hath, in refact of the whole heaven; the verie like thal be that of each one of the degrees for the earth, having regard to the roundure and circuite thereof. And as these portions or degrees, if you pleafe fo to terme

ned in the

Enclides in lib.

4.de E'ement.

The aduice of our Fore-Carbers, tor

them.

Concerning the nature of a degree, and how our Elders obserued thereof, acor ding voto the height of the scope of miles; the like may be easily gathered, by multiplying what distance is contained in all the reft. To know then the nature of a degree, they made this obfernation. The Pole is a fixed point in heaven, whereon the whole heaven mathe knowledg keth his mouing, yet it remaineth firme & stable. Therefore with an Astrolabe, or any other instrument proper therto, being in some apt vncouered place, they would take the height which the Pole contained about the Horizon, within the limite of the felfesame sight, and noting the place which appeared convenable to the eleuation or height of the foresaide Pole: they went directly on thereto, without wandering to the Meridian, votill fuch time (as with the felfelame inftrument) they found it in one degree more higher, then in the first place, and therby they knew, that they had gone one degree of the earth fro that place whence they first parted, just to that ground where they were arrived, confidering, that they had paced by the respect of heaven, in regarde of the fore-named rules of both the circles. Then they would measure that which this degree contayned, either by Stades, or thousands of paces; and this being thus knowne by them, they would make their account after this manner. It one degree contained fo many miles, the whole roundnes of the earth did containe as many: confidering, that therein was to be observed three hundred and threefcore degrees, fuch and as great as the fame were. This was the forme and manner by them observed, and it may wel bee continued to these times, for measuring of the whole earth, as being the most certaine and infallible. And yet neuertheleffe we are to know. what greatnesse each degree of the earth gree within it what greathen e cach degree of the earth felfhowmout containeth in it felfe, and fo (by confeit contained. (quent) how much it tendeth to in the rotundity, measuring it according vnto the whole greatnesse, answerable to the experience of both ancient and modern men. skilfull, and well studied therein. The most common opinion of all other, is: that each degree or portion of three hundred and threefcore, containeth fine hundred Stades of ground, and enery Stade is valewed to fix score and fine paces by our Geometricians, and according to theyr

The greatnes

them, are equal among themselves, so that | Geometrical paces, each pace containing | The know. fome one may appeare to contayne the as much as two of our common paces. So students that the degree containes fixty two thou- oneurical p fand and an halfe, which amount to fixtie co. two thousand Geometricall paces. Ptolomy auoucheth the fame; as the like doeth de Giaya k Martianus Capellus, and the most part of the wisest ancient Cosmographers: befide, this is the opinion in common, of the greater part of our moderne men. Orentius Phineus holdeth the fame judg-ment, and fayeth, that this may eafily bee experimented by traugiling from Paris to Tholouse. Glareanus, & Anthony de Lebrix, Glarinian, being both of them learned men, and diligent fearchers into these matters : they do both affirme, that they have made the like experience, holding the same for most certaine. Albeit Eratosthenes, and fome other Gracians hold opinion, that Theopinica all degrees had feauen hundred Stades: oftonica wheerin (it may feeme) they were abu- cians concufed, by measuring their places ouershort. ning degrees I fay then, that each of their degrees confifting of three hundred and fixty, far off from fine hundred Stades: the whol three hundred and fixty, wil containe togither, twenty two thousand, and fine hundred thousand paces, which do make an hundred and eighty thousand Stades. By the Aneflinate which account, the round compas of the of the whole whole earth, comprehending therein the compane of whole machine of water, beeing reduced press, and by to a thousand paces, will containe twentic two millions, and five hundred thousand paces. And if you would know how many French leagues or miles the whole Earth containeth, we must then allow vnto each

League, the length of two Italian miles .

Then, if we divide twenty two thousand.

fine hundred paces in twaine, we shal find that the circuite of the earth, contayneth

eleuen thousand, two hundred and fiftie

Leagues of France. And if we divide the by foure; all the enuironing of the Earth,

will containe fine thousand, fixe hundred, and twentie fine miles of Germanie; for Division ac four Italian miles, do make but one Ger- cording to maine mile. Thus have we discoursed on Octamine the earths dimension, according vnto the most common opinion received among

CHAP.

CHAP. XXVI.

Of the reason, why Snow (being covered with (traw) doth preserve it felfe in his entire coldnesse and warme water in his beate: considering, that two contrary effects are wrought by one and the selfesame thing: with some other secrets beside.

The works of Nature yeeld reat benefite

Chap.26.

Natures workes, nothing can fo lightly prefent it felf, or appeare to bee of fo flenons notable mat-🗹 O men of spirite, such as after or other may be found therein, to veild contentment to their mindes, after they haue attained to the knowledge thereof. No doubt but there are many men, of whom if it were demanded, vppon vvhat occasion, Snow (beeing couered with fraw) conferueth it felfe (for long time) in his true coldnesse, and without melting, they hardly knew how to make anie answer. Whereunto Alexander Aphrodidis Approvis. fers, that excellent Peripatetian, maketh this reply. Straw hath no manifest or known quality at all, for it is neither hot nor colde;

therefore divers have reputed and termed it,

anurall cold

Surwathing to be a thing without any quality. For this without any cause, beeing a matter fo fingularly temquality at all, perate and delicate, euen as reaching to yet apprehen delithe quast fuch a degree, that it may well be faide to hyof any hing there with conjoyteth it felfe into the quality of anie such thing, as is thereto annexed. So that couering or laying Snow therein, which is colde, the straw apprehendeth the colde quality thereof, and by that means is holpen and affilted, in the true coldnesse of Snow i guen as a thing of one qualitie aydeth another without yeelding any heate thereto, because it is not in it selfe. Therefore, frow being accompanied with his owne coldnesse, & defended against heat, which fraw preferheth against the left en-

effect wrought by the lame means to hot ing it in his not concred with ftraw at all. By the felfefame reason, a contrarie esfeet happeneth in warme or hotte water; defending the ayre that it cannot coole it, trance sit is thus conferred in his entyre condition for long time, cuen as if it were the strawe immediately entertaineth the quality of the warme water; and being fo fodainly heated, it helpeth & conferueth the water in his warmth, and keepeth the avre off, that elfe would coole it. The same reason guides vs to understand other doubts and difficulties, which fome curious questionists may impose vpon vs, like vnto those before alledged. I am sure wee are not to learn, that ouer and beside our more hote in inward naturall heate, that which occasi- all the yeare oneth our warmnesse in Summer time, is elie bende. the ayre onely, which (in that season) is much more hot then in any other time of the yeare; so that the warmer the ayre is, fo much the more are we fentible of hear. If it be fother, how commeth it to passe, that we feele more freffinesse and cooleneffe, and leffe heate, when wee take the ayre in Sommer, and in moning and walking to receive it; confidering, that (acking to receive it; confidering, that (accaufeth our heate to be the greater? For the ayre, by reason of this agitation, must needs cause the more warmnesse both in it felfe and vs. then if wee refted and fate for it being likewife concred with Strawe, in auicr. The reason ensucth thus: VVce have then more warmth in our bodyes, then there is in the ayrer as wel in regard of our owne naturall hear, as also that which the then is in the ayre worketh in vs. For the ayre coming Ayre. with a fresh and coole gale (I speake this because it is more temperate then we ate) it maketh vs fome-what the more temperate: but being ftill and neere vs, it warmeth it felfe in our heate. Euen in the like manner as we have spoken of straw; for fo How the quait conferreth (yea augmenteth) our heate his firm it as is firred, and freshly bodies. mooued, in comming more temperately voon vs. then we our felues are; that tem-aucilion. Neuertheleffe, it is to bee noted, that if Difference of we find an ayre more hot then that wher-in we dwell; agitation or fliring in fuch an ayre will not proone to good as our an ayre will not proone for good as our owne, becanfe wee shall therefeele farre greater heate, as in diners places oftentimes we do . An argument in this cafe, perature and difference which wee then feele of leffer heate, doth in the like manner qualific and moderate ours in vs. This is the answere of the fore-named Alexander, but especially of Aristotle, voto this

More heat in our bodyes in Sommer time

An infallable tule for meafuring by de-five fecto to the pace.

A measure of ground containing 125.

paces, al after

Example of manshand in hot water, for heate or temperature, the months o

lunc and July

Ariflot,in lib.2

if a man put his hand rashly thereinto, he can hardly fuffer or endure it. Notwithstanding, let him hold it firmely therein, and it veeldeth then leffe cause of passion then if he mooued it vo and downe. In regard, that the leffer part of the water enuironeth the coole hand, whereby it caufeth fome small temperature round about it: but being plunged and mooued about the water, it reneweth fresh heate, and at each time appropriateth new power to it felfe; for the more potent, must needes worke nouelly vppon that which is much weaker.

It may be likewise demanded for what cause it is more hot at the end of lune, & all along the moneth of July, the Sun being then the furthest off from vs, then it is at the beginning of Iune; confidering we more directly fmitten with his beames? Heereunto answereth Aristotle, in his second Booke of Meteors, and the ninth not the cause thereof, nevther is there any more heate felt by the Sunnes beeing necrest to vs, then when hee hath longest time to abide ouer vs. For in the months of lune and July, hee hath a great length of time in approaching towards vs 3 as al-fo in declining, hee caufeth the greater heate, because (in descending) here-heateth that part and tract of the ayre, which hee formerly had well warmed in mounting aloft.

CHAP. XXVII.

Of fodaine death hapning water diners great Rer (ons, that have thereto bene wilhed or threatned, by fuch as they have unjust lie put to death before, and their deaths have enfued to them in fuch manner . & at fuch times, as have beene assigned wnto them: With the notable history of an Archby shop of Mentz or Magonce.

God neuer failed in the luft caule of wronged inmocents, to lend his help. when al way er in man hath tayled.

may bee framed by hotte water, that | hath neuer failed them. And albeit it hath not enfued to speedily, or elfe to visibly as they could have wished; yet GOD, who knoweth both how and when to be auenged on them that are the oppressors of innocents, hath wrought fo graciouflie for his own glory that trecheries have come to light in due and meete times, & mens false judgements haue felt his seucre condemnation, and publikely enough for other mens forewarning. In this case wee could alleadge many memorable examples; but beeing loth to trouble you with ouer many, these few commendable Collections shall serue for this time.

I read of a Knight amongest the Templers (of whome wee hane spoken in our of skught former Volume) who beeing (in the opinion of many) fentenced to death verie todeadirevniustly; as the Officers led him towardes are then in the Solftice of the Sunne, and the place of execution, hee espyed Pope Clement, the fift of that name (by vvhoic meanes he was condemned to death)looking out at a window; and by him stoode Chapter, that the heate of the Sunne is Phillip le Bel, then King of France. The Knight being an Italian, borne at Naples, beholding the Pope with an vindaunted countenance, with a lowde voyce spake thus vnto him.

Most cruell Clement, seeing that there is no Iudge in this world, before whome a poore The Knighter innocent man may call in question the viniuft fentence which thou hast given against mee. Lappeale from thee, a most valust ludge, to France, ash the vprightest sudge of all other lefus Christ death himfelfe, before whom I give thee warning, and likewife King Phillip there by thee, to make your appearance, to answere the falle indgement of death which you have given against me. This appearance of yours before the Tribunall feate of God, I do assigne to bee made within leffe then a yeare, to do me right there, where I may fafely have my caufe deter mined, without any auarice or passion at all, as here you both have dealt with ma. The poore Knights defire forted with his wordes, for on the Kand about the same limited time the Pope be- Pope. ing pained with a great greefe in his flo-mack, dieds fo did K. Philip but howfocuer it hapned, it was thought to proceed from the just judgement of God.

The very like fortune hapned to Ferdinand the fourth, King of Gattile, who hauing caufed two worthy Knightes to bee executed, more by his owne wrathfull & Cathle & line of the cathle & line of the cathle & Cathle & line of the cathle angry spleen, then any warrant of inflice, Kinghi being no way to bee diffwaded from this violent cruelty, either by teares, intreats. or earnest solicitations; they (in very like manner) cited the King before the Tribunall of lefus Chrift, and to make his appearance within thirty dayes. And it is credibly auguched, that on the last of those thirty dayes, the King dyed. Retiff. Falgof.

The historie of a Captaine belonging the Genewayes, who cruelly put to her innocent Captaine

Chap.17.

The fodaine esth of the Geneway Captaine the der it.Fred. Wed Roif in Hiff de Keb.di

The history of Henry arch Minoppe of Menta in

The like lot also befell to a Captain of the Gallies, which belonged to the inhabitants of Geneway, whereof Baptista Fulgofo maketh this report. This Captaine making a fally forth vpon the Sea, tooke a Foyft or final Gally appertaining to them of Cathelegna; wherein there was another Captaine that never had done any injurie to the Genewayes. Notwithstanding, in re-These matters thus understoode by the gard of the malice which the Genewayes Pope, who alwayes thought him to bee a bare to the Cathelognians, hee gaue command, that this Captaine thus taken prifoner, hould forthwith behanged. The Captaine, shedding many teares, humbly requested, that he might not so shameful-ly be put to death, considering that he had neuer offended him, or his Nation. But in the end, finding no fauour or mercy in him, he made his recourse to the Diuine The wronged Ludge of 41 men, speaking thus to the cru-ords before ell Captaine; Secing show wilt needes exegreat dignities, as being a man of rich fpicute on me this most vniust fentence, I have no other friend but God to appeale unto who is the init avencer of insuried innocents. And therefore I humbly defire, that (this instant him, to yeeld an account for the warong thou hait done me, Not many houres, after the Geneway Captaine also dyed, and doubtleffe went to render a reason for his most extreme cruelty. I could alledge many examples more, aptly futed to this purpose; but for the strangest of all, I will relate what hapned at Magonce or Mentz in Germany, which

day) thy soule may appeare with mine before generally cost most deare voto the whole Citty, according as it is briefely reported by Gontier, that renowned Poet, who wrote the life and actions of the Emperour Fredericke, first of that name. Conradus alfo the Bythop, declareth the fame in his hiflory, among many things hapning in the time of that Fredericke, and of Hehrie the fixt his fonne, the Hiftory enfueth in this

In the Citty of Magonce or Ments in Germany, in the yeare one thouland, fine hundred and fitty, little more or leffe, ther man fingular in all vertues. This Archbythop, according to the duty and office of a faithfull Pattor, as indeed hee was, did fenerely chaftife publike finnes and offences because he was very lealous of Gods honour, and loue of one neighbour vnio another, the which made him to have the greater care of his flocke. Heereuppon wicked and dissolute persons growe hatefull against him, denising many false and cious enumies flanderous accusations, where-with the Pope was plentifully informed, imposing fo many crimes and delicts youn him, that he was reputed vnmeete for fuch a digniliued an Arch Bylhop, named Henrie, at Vertue neuer

iust and holy man; being no way able to deny audience to fuch a crowde of accufers as defired iuftice; at last he aduertifed the Arch-bythop of their foule acculations. The good reuerend man, to make The Pope accleare his innocence, elected (among all quantum the his other friends) a man whom hee most Archeythap affected, and on whom hee had beflowed cutations. more especiall fauours, then on any man elfe befide. Hee was a Priest by proteffi-on, named Aenolde, advanced vito many rite, eloquence, and abounding in the wealth of the world beside. Arnolde comming to Rome, beeing enftrnæed and pressed on by the divell; con-of Arnolde at cluded in his private thoughts, to deprive Rome, and has his Lord of fo high a dignitie, and make wickeddea. application thereof to himfelfe. Which his Mafter.

that he might the better compas, having brought great fammes of money thether with him, he suborned two wicked Cardinals, who, in fled of speaking in his Lords fauour, should enforce all matters more against him. For they affirmed that they floode more obliged to God and trueth, Inclie of two then to worldly refpects or fauors of me: and therefore maintained, that the Archbythop was apparantly culpable of all the crimes inferred against him, and thereby infly deferred deprination. The Pope being thus abufinely perfivaded by they report, thought to haue fent two Prieftes thether, to acquaint him with this information confirmed against him ; but (indeede) he fent the two Cardinals confederated with Arnolde, to perfect the Proceffe, by them concluded for prefent execution.

The wicked-

Chap. 28.

he Kings

The perfecution of the Cardinal'es with Arnold against the Arch bythop

Arnolde aduanced into his place, who had fold his Master, even as Indas did our bleffed Saujour. In pronouncing the judgement, the Arch-Byshop Henry then prefent, delivered these wordes. God knowthe Archbyfh. eth, that I am most unjustly condemned: neat his de priuerthelelle. I care not for making any appeale uation,before Arnolde and to the further censure of men : because I am the Cardinal assured, that lyes shall bee better beleeved among you, then trueth can be in mee. Therefore I receive this Centence. As Come just Dunishment for my sinnes, and yet doe appeale many, but they furnmoned the Arch-By-thop to come before them, wher his hearing was admitted in such fort, that sentence was given against him, whereby he was deprined of his See and dignitie, and ludge les Christ : before whom I adiourne

you three to appeare.

These words were no sooner heard by the ludges, but they fell into extremity of laughter, faying; That if he pleafed to go on thither before, they would follow him at their leyfure. This fentence was given in the yeare one thousand, fine hundred, fifty fix, which the depriued Archbyshop endured with admirable patience; & being retired into his Monastery, he ther remained the rest of his life, yet without acception of the habite. To conclude, God would not permit this wickednes to paffe vnpunished, to the end, that innocence might the better bee knowne : but about a yeare and an halfe after, this Henrie dyed in his Monastery in great holinesse, and doubtlesse attained the glorie long time

fromyour indirect doome, to the eternall inst

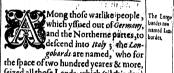

Newes of his death being brought to Rome, the two Cardinals being very merrily met together, one of them, faid : The Arch-Byshoppe Henry is gone, and must not we in halt follow him? Indeed (quoth the other) so wee made him promise; but let him tarry (wherefocuer he is) till wee come to him. Not many dayes after one of them, being fod ainly finiteen by one of his feruants upon the shoulder sel downe fo greeuoufly afflicted with paine, that his bowels and entrailes iffued out at his fundament, and instantly died. The other falling into phrenfic and madneffe, did cate off his owne hands, and dyed very firagely. Now as concerning falle Arnolde, hee exercised such cruelties and seditions a-

They were no fooner arrived in Ger- 1 mong the people, that he became so hated and despised of them all: as being one day befiedged in a Monastery, hee yvas there flayne, and afterward left lying naked in the common dirch of the Cittie: whereall the people, both men, women, and children, performed all cruelties vppon his body, that possibly could be deuifed by them.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Of the cruelty which Albouine, King of Lombardie, vied to his Queene de wife Rosamond : And by what meanes she reuenged her felfe on him at length.

feized all those Lands, which (til this day) is called Lombardie, and vntill fuch time as Charlemaigne expelled them thence, according as in the History is amply related, written by Paulus Diaconus, in the par- inthe MA ticular Booke which he made for that pur- Mundings. pose. He saith, that when they lest Hungary (where they had for fomtime dwelt) to passe into Italy, they had one named Albouine their King: a man of great fpirit, and verie valiant in actions of warre. For he conquered in battayle Cunimond, King of the Girpides, and afterwardes, of the Graufing his head to bee fmitten off, made pides ones a drinking Cuppe thereof. wherein hea a drinking Cuppe thereof, wherein hee wine, andhis vsed to drinke, and in triumph of his headmades conquest and victorie. At which time, drinking cop he detained (as his prifoner) a verie beautifull daughter to the fore named King, called Rolamond, whom he made his wife, and then afterwards hee went to fubdue Italy, carrying his Queene along with him, in the yeare, eight hundred, fixty

When he had conquered many towns and Cities, he came (at length) to the City of Paula: where (fince that time) the fueKings. ceeding Kinges vied to keepe their feate and continuall refiding, as the very principall Citty of their Kingdome. Hauing and being then at Verena; he appoynted a solemne feast, where hee drunke to his Queene in the Cuppe made of her fathers head, and forced her to pledge him: forced to drin whereat thee conceined fuch griefe and displeasure, that the intire lone which face had formerly borne him , was confahers head. uerted into deadly hatred, with an abfowhereupon h: conclude lure refolue and conclusion to kill him in inft renenge of her fathers death, & crueltv extended to her. And to affift her in this determination, the conferred with a gentleman named Hermigilde: who prefently tolde her, that to the execution of fuch an important busines, the should require the ayde of a valiant knight in the Court, called Paradine. Which instantly she did, but he would not yeeld thereto because he tooke it to be too horride atreason. Finding her hope frustrated. and fearing left hir intent would be difcouered, yet defiring nothing more in the world, then to compasse the height and pitch of her enterprise : the fet afide all care of honour and honefty, & being aduertifed by Hermigilde, that Paradine carneftly affected one of her attending Ladies, the deuised therby to effect her purpose. Being acquainted with the secret refort where Paradine & his louer alwaies met together; the found fome other emploiment for the Lady, & made vie of her place for the time, Paradine keeping her there company a long time, imagining no other, but that it was the mistresse of his affections.

The Queene, who had spent all this while in fost whispers and dalliance, not ving any one word whereby thee might be difcourred; perceining opportunity fo aptly to fit her, spake thus vnto him. Knowest thou Paradine, who it is that keepeth thee company? Full well(quoth he) with my Mistresse, and then named her. Thou lyeft (falfe traytour,) replyed the Queene, I am Rofamond thy Soueraignes wife, whom thou hast dared to abuse in this manner, and dye thou must by the inft wrath of Albouine , except thou faue thy life by killing him: aduife thee therefore, whether his life or thine owne is dearest to thee. When Paradine considered his dangerous estate, without any meanes of helpe or escape; hee resolued to kill the King: and for his better furthereigned three yeares and three moneths, / rance therein, both hee, the Queene, and Hermieilde tooke counfeil together, plotting the project in this manner.

The King vied to fleepe in the heate of the day, and all elfe auoyded the chamber, the Queene onely excepted, and he being a king of courage and high refolue, euer flept like a Souldier, with his Sword girded about him : which at this intended time of treason, the Queene had tyed fo fast in the scabbard, as hee could by no meanes helpe himselfe therewith. Paradine and Hermigilde waiting the houre, minedby the which was vppon the Queenes iffuing Queene, Pa. foorth : they entred, and for all their fort Heraugilde. treading, the King heard them, and started from his bed. VVhen he beheld two men armed with weapons, and at fuch a time of no fulpition: fury not feare made The valent of him take no knowlege of them, but foght to defend himfelfe with his weapon. VVhich failing him, by the meanes of fo in his death. falle a Queene, and they with their weapons every where wounding him ; hee caught vp a stoole, and therewith made his defence fo long as he could, till in the end they depriued him of life, yet neither noise heard, or any suspition of murther.

The king being thus dead, and all well carryed with a finoothe countenance: Hermigilde possessed himselfe of the Pal-Hermigilde lace, intending to make the Queene his marrieth with wife, as immediately he did. But notwithstanding all their close packing; the Lombardes (notlong after) came to the knowledge of their Kings death, and in what manner hee was murthered, which they purposed to reuenge with all possible speed. Wherein they were presented. for Rofamond and her complices having packed up most of her lewells & treasure Royall, fled away thence, carrying with The flight of them Alufinda Daughter to King Albo. Rolamond & wine, by his first wife. And for their fafer the numberer fecurity, they went to Ranenna, where then gouerned a Lieutenant of the Empire, named Longium, who kept that place for Tiberius, Sonne to the Empeperour Constantine of Constantinople, by whom they were curreoutly entertained.

Not long after , Longinus becomming Rolmond deenamored of Rofamond, & defirous to enioy her in mariage, whereto he found her by manying very tractable; conneclled her to procure with the Lieu the death of Hermigilde, & then he would chideth the marry her. She that had loft all lone and death of Her-Nn firous to adfeare impilde.

The maner of

Scotling left by the two Cardinale. deceated Henry.

offendett.

The death of the wronged

Henry.

The inflice o God on the wo wicked Cardinals,

A treaches

rous womans

wickedneste

met withall,

by her owne

deuise against her husband

dreadleffe of the shame of men, coueting withal to advance her downefalne estate, by marrying with the Emperours Lieutenant; gaue to Hermigilde an impoyfoned potion at his comming forth of his Bath. perswading him, that it was most soueraigne for his health; by which perswasion he dranke a good part thereof. But when hee found it afterward to afflict his body, so as he plainly perceived himselfe to be poyfoned; drawing forth his fword in extremity of rage, he compelled Rofamond to drinke vp all the rest that remayned in the Cup, so that at one instant time they both were justly requited for the death of Albouine. Tydings hereof being brought to the Lieutenant Longinus, he caused the young Lady Aluisinda to be (eized on, and fent her (with all her iewels and treasure) to the Emperour Tiberius, at Constantinople, with Paradine also as a prisoner: where having his eyes pulled forth, he lived a while, and then died most miserably.

CHAP. XXIX.

Of a pleafant witty and honest deceit, which a famous and vertuous Queene vfed to her owne husband ; whereby lames, King of Arragon was begotten, with other rememberances both of his birth and

The Authors induction to the enfuing History .

VVell remember, that in reading the Chronicle of the Kings of Arragon, I finde, that Don Peter, Count of Barcelonna, who was the feauenth King of Arragon, had Madam Mary in marriage, daughter to the Earle of Mount pefulin, Nephew to the Emperor of Constantinople, the being a very beautifull and vertuous Lady. All which notwithstanding, the King was much addicted vitto other women, and vied fuch flender testimony of loue towards his Queene, that hee refused to keepe her company, as (in the duty of an husband) he flood obliged to doe. This ftrange feare of God, respect of womanhood, and | behauiour in the King, did much as filica and greene the Queene, because they had no childe to fucceed in the Kingdome, the greateest misery (of all other) that can happen to a well fetled Estate. Heere- the greatest vpon, by aduice of one of the Kings Pa-ges of his Chamber, who (it may be) had kingdome. formerly done fernice in the like affaires; thee compassed the meanes (vnder title of some one of the Kings cheefest fauourites) to bee brought that night to lodge with the King. Such familiar entercourfes having paffed betweene them, as in Shamedate fuch wanton seasons are commonly re-quired, the King perceiving the day-light neere approching, in regard both of his owne honours fafety and hers, made meanes to her for her speedy departure, but the taking hold of to good an occasion fpake thus vnto him. My gracious Lord and husband, I am none fuch as (perhaps) you take mee The worded to be, but be well affured, that this night to the King, you have flept with your true Queene and before file VVife. Vse what violence you shall please would depend from higher to mee, for I purpose not to leaue your bed, untill fome man, well deferuing faith and credite, may be witheffe of my this nights keeping you company. To the ende, that if the fauour of heaven hath bin so gracious to me, that fruite (long desired) may enfue by this aduenture; the world thal take true notice, that it is your owne. The King perceiuing this honest deceit of his Queene, appeared to bee well pleased therewith, and called two Gentlemen of his Chamber, to testifie the truth, according to her defire, and as (indeed) flood best with his honour . It fo pleafed God, that at fit and conveni- The concepentrime, the Queene having at that intion & birth of lamt, frant time conceived with childe, at fuch King of Aire due feafon as the custome of women al- gon. loweth them for trauaile, thee was deliuered of a goodly Sonne, euen on the first day of February, in the yeare one thousand, one hundred, ninety fixe. Soone after it was borne, the Mother caufedit to bee carried to the Church, and (which is a thing deferuing memory) as they which carried the childe entred into the Church, the Priefts began to fing, The coning Chap.33.

The Custome of Carinthia.

Psalme of Benedistus Dominus Deus Ifra- | service of God. But weaknesse encreael : Bleffed be the Lord God of Ifrael; which gaue a great prognosticating & vindoubted hope, of some excellent vertues to manner of naming the Childe, by lighting of ches, tearme

The verruor

A ftrange

oualities re-

Ha winning Majorica and the Citty of Carthage.

feending fro lames King

Te Deum laudamu, Wee praife thee O of the this count from thence vnto another to the other characters.

fucceed in the childe. The Father and Mother, not knowing what name to give him, caused twelve Torches (of equall length and making) to be all lighted in one initant, the twelve Torches bearing the feneral names of the twelue Apostles. With this conclusion, that the name of the Torch which firft fayled, or became extinguithed; the selfe same name should bee given to the childe, which happened to be that of S. lames. Hecreupon he was named lames, because it was the name, which the men of Arragon gaue to that Apossle. Hee proued to be an excellent Prince, and of admirable gouernement, both in peace and warre, for hee made a cruell invalion vpon the Moores, being enermore very liberall to his Souldiers . Among other most notable matters, hee lenied a great Army, which he conducted into the Ifle of Maiorica, that then was in the Moores possession, where hee fought many flout battailes. But after he had a long while besiedged the City, he won it in the ende, and likewise other neighbouring Islands befide. Then comming into hiskingdome of the Moores, especially to the Ci-queror, and neuer fayled in any of his at-He had many children, as well formes as daughters, on whom (during his life time) he bestowed great gifts and goodly eftates. Don Peter, that afterwad was of Atragon, & King of Arragon, was his Sonne. Liketheir gracious good fo. tunes wife Don James, King of Majorica and Minorica. He had another that was Archbishop of Tolledo. Madame Tollant, who was Queene of Castile; and Madame Ifabell, that was Queene of France; and Madame Frraqua, who was married to Don

Emanuell, Prince of Castile; and Don Pe-

King of Nauarre. He lined fenenty and ty of Carthage, hee proued still the Con-two yeares, and dyed religiously, taking on him (before his death) the habite of a Monke. For he had a greenous difeafe, which made him renounce his royall fing more and more you him, he dyed in the Citty of Valencia, Anno 1266. and at the beginning of the Moneth of Au-

CHAP. XXXIII.

Ofan ancient and memorable Custome, obferued by the Inhabitants She Province of Carinthia, at the Coronation of their Prince : and how cruell their panifiment is to Theenes.

Ope Pius the fecod of that name. who was a man of great learning, & denem Splais a diligent inquifitour for the truth 147. of Histories, as weehaue in many places formerly alledged, faieth in his description of the world; that the Pronince of Carinthia, is enclosed within the territory, and vides the government of Austria. Heelikewife relateth a custome, which the Inhabitants of that Province have anciently observed, at the election and Coronation of their Princes; appearing fome-what strange, yet honest and very commendable. Which custome is also confirmed by A. Sabellicus, in his tenth Decade ; and by Sebastian Muniter, in his composed Douglift. Cosmography, which is after this man- Schult. Mange.

In this Prouince of Carinthia, there is a very great and spacious plaine of olde ruined buildings, which feeme to bee the foundation of fome former auncient Cit-ter, who espoused the daughter vnto the In which place also there is a great ftone, and when obeyfance is to be given at the new creation of a Prince; there is a day appointed, and a country labourer, or meane husbandman (allowed to Scepter, with deliberate purpofe, that if he might recoure his health againe, hee hath order to feare himselfe vp. would imploy the rest of his dayes in the pon that same stone. On his right hand

Preparation

A.S. bellins in Church, as they were entring likewife thereinto, the Priests began to fing the

The manner of the Princes comming to his election.

The Princes being at the Scone before him that mul eled him.

The seuerall questions of the poore husbandman

The Earle that carrieth he cheeteft Standard.hi a. iwer to th poore man.

The Prince created with boxeon th standeth a poore Cow, that hath lately calued, which hee holdeth fastened by a corde, and on his left hand flandeth a very leane and wretched Mare, tyed in like maner, and round about him is no meane crowd of labourers and country Boores. In this place, and at this Stone, the Prince that is to be enstalled, must make his apparance, attended with a great number of men on horse backe, ryding in very formall order, with twelve Banners borne beforehim: among which there is one more large and fightly then all the rest, carried by an Earle, thereto admitted by especiall priviledge. The Arch-Duke, Prince or great Lord howloguer ve meane to tearme him, clothed in a Shepheards habite, commeth to the Stone wheron the poore man fitteth, & as he perceineth him to approch somewhat neere, hee demandeth with a loud voyce, what he is, that commeth towards him with fuch glory and felicity? Answer is instantly made him, that it is the man, who commeth to bee created Prince of the Country. Then as it were with a voyce like thunder, the labourer cryeth out. Is he a just ludge? Will he wel maintaine justice? Will hee preserve the defence and fafety of this Country? Is hee a man franke, and free-borne? Is he valiant, vertuous, and worthy of honour and reuerence? Is he a Christian? Is hee a Defender of the faith of Iesus Christ? And all the company maketh answer, that he is fuch a man, and will fo continue. Then he beginneth againe, and maketh another demand. By what right or reason cometh he to dispossesse of this place, which belongeth onely to me? To which question, the Earle that beareth the cheefest Standard replyeth thus. If thou wilt quit and fortake this place, threefcore Ducates of gold shall be frankly given thee, & this Cow as also this Mare shall both be thine owne, befide the rich Robe, which our

King did last of all put off, shall also bee thine: moreover, thou and thy family fhal bee free, from paying any manner of tribute. After these words, the Prince approcheth necre to the Stone, & the poore man giveth him a gentle blow on the checke, commanding him (in any case) to be a good Inflicer : & fo descending from the Stone, he leadeth along with him the Cow and Mare, and departeth.

Then the Prince dismounting from his horse, ascendeth vp, and sitteth vpon the The Prince stone, where drawing foorth his Sword, the Stone, and turning to each fide of the stone, still flourishing the weapon round about him; hee maketh a folemne promise before all the people, vttering the words as loud as The Princes he can speake, that he will be a just Judge, promise beand a good Prince. This done one bringeth him (in a Shepheards bonnet) a finail quantity of water to drinke; and fo descending from the stone, hee re-mounteth on horsebacke, and rydeth on to a Church with all his company, there to heare Mas. Which being finished, hee changeth his former plaine and rurall garments, to very Royall and Princely habites: and after humble gara pompeous Dinner with his whole train, ments. hereturneth againe into the open fielde.

the viual ceremonies, observed at the creation of enery Prince. There is another custome in vse among these people, for the punishment of thests and robberies : which I hold to be vniuft, A cruellene and ouer-cruell, especially to bee vsed a- mony, for the mong Christians. For having but some of threeter & note or apprehension onely, that such a robbers,100 man flandeth in repute to be a theefesthey where hee heareth all the Officers of Iuflice fpeake vnto him, to enftruct him in the lawes of the Country: and these are forthwith fend him to execution, without Russ. any other proceeding against him. Then three dayes after his death, they examine the witnesses with all care and diligence; when if it shall appeare by solemne inquifition, that he proueth to be guilty of the crimes alledged; they fuffer him to hang vpon the Gibbet, vntill his limbes fall peecemeale from him. But if he be found to be innocent, they take him thence, and gine him honourable obsequies and funerall, with many prayers and almes-deeds, the lost of a for the faluation of his foule. With this fenerity doe they chaftife theenes and robbers neverthelesse, I read of some other Nations, that greatly have supported and countenanced them therein. As the Egiptians, of whom Aulus Gel. Aut, Gellinia lius writeth in his Attick nights. And Notl. Aliu. ib. the Lacedomians likewife, who permitted their children to beetheenes, and learne climbing in at windowes, and wandring abroad in the night feafon, that they might be the more bolde and hardy for warre. Notwithstanding, Drace, hee that gaue

Chap. 34.

_{Oraco} his fe-

A poorere.

The benefit tion and frud inhigh and difficult mat

Menare naturally defi-rous to know

all things

Lawes vnto the Athenians, made one a: | mong which is comprized my prefent in. mong the reft; wherein he commanded, that every kinde of theft should bee punithed with the penalty of death. In regard whereof, Solon faide, that hee had written that Law with blood, which made him (afterward) to allay and mitigate it. The custome which yet to this day is obferued for hanging of theeues, was full of all appointed by the Emperour Fredericke the third of that name; according as Lodonicus Vines, that learned man in all Artes and Sciences, writeth in the third Booke of his Disciplines.

CHAP. XXXIIII.

In what part of the Zodiaque the Sunne and Moone , and likewife the other Planets were, at their first creating. Also of the beginning of yeares, and the course of times.

HE learned Philofophers tav. that men are naturally curious & couctous of knoledge.Morcoucr, fuch is the zeale of their affection the bent of humane understanding so full of strange questionings, as they cannot content themselves to know such things as they may with some ease comprehend onely : but ouer and befide, they are ferutinous and fearthing (through bold prefumption) to know fuch causes as are very hard, and almost impossible. Nor hath this painefull defire beene altogether fruitleffe and vaine, though many times it fayled, and came farre thort of expectation; because by contemplation and continual fludy, they have found out fuch matters, as feemed before veterly impossible and fupernaturall, or that they thould any way be attayned voto by the capacity ofmen. As namely, the motions of the Heavensithe course of the Planets and other Scarres, with their fenerall influences and power, and the like things befide: a-tended argument, and what in this Chap. The Authors rer I purposed to discourse on to withow purpose in to know the beginning of times & yeares; his Chapter. and on what day the world began, or to focake better; when, or in what fcalon tions, et ca-God created the world; when began the ucted to be yeare and times, and where was the Sun, or where God placed it at first, when hee began his courfe; & likewife the Moone, with the other Starres and Planets.

Aristotle did little care for thefe queflions, and infinite other Philosophers be- Arifode and fitons, and infinite other Printosophers ber the other Phi faith, did verily beleeue, that the world pinion of the was eternall, without any beginning or wald. ending. But fuch as have declared themfelices not to be ignorant in thefe things, but verily beleeved the beginning of times, feeme to fland divided betweene Two opinions two opinions. There are fome among them, who fay, that in the initiant when how a still a stil the world was created, the Sunne was worlds creafound to be in the first point of dries, or to in the Ransne, which is in the Equinoctial Regionalism of Summer, the time comming then to the elementh day of March. Others fay, that the world began, the Sunne then being in the first point of Libra, or the Ballances, which is the other Equinoctiall of Equin Giam Winter, commonly happening in thefe data waste. our dayes, on the thirteenth or foureteenth day of September. Of this opinion were divers Egiptians, Arabes, and Greekes likewife ; according as Lincolnien- 4. Lived vin fis reporterly, in a Treatife of the world, Touth. Naved which he wrote to Pope Clement ; & Vin- Miran, orale, gentius in his hilloricall Mirrour.

Such as have followed this opinion, A reasonal alledge a reason for it, which (in my indg- ledged or the ment) is very weake, and of no force. For emperie they fay, that then the principall fruites of beginning. the earth were fully ripe, and in the very best of their fanour, because it was most requifice, that (at the beginning) the earth should present it felle in the height of perfection. To this purpose, they produce authority out of Denteronomy, Denters, where it is faid; That God made all times perfect and complete. There are forme others, who affirme, that the entrance of The corrance times, and of yeares, was on the very great of times and tell day of all other; which was then, when the Sunne entred into the figne of Cancer, as now it is the elementh or twelfth day of Inne. Inlins Firmiens, an ancient Noz

Int.Firmicus in lib.3.de crest.Mund.

The figne Leo the house of the Sunne.

der and degrees.

The most pro bable opinion of all other.

S.Hierome. S.Ambrofe. S.Bafile.

The ful agree together,

neth of the

Containing pare of March and part of Aprill

Vincent in Mir,Hift.cap. 1.

Astrologye, in the beginning of his third Booke, which he wrote of the worlds creation, faith: That when the world began, the Sunne was in the fift degree of the figne Leo; which is the figne wherein hee hath most dominion, because it is called the house of the Sunne: the like he saieth, in discourring the other Planets, by their or-

But that which rellisheth of most reason in all these opinions, and appeareth most conformable to truth, is that when both time and the heavens began to bee mooued; the Sun was in the first point of Aries, which is (with vs) in March, and at which time is the entrance of Summer. This is affitmed (beside all other reasons that we can alledge) by the greater part of Historians, as well Christians as Heathens; among whom are S. Hierome, S. Ambrose, S. Basile, and others, who doe all maintaine, that the beginning of the world, and likewise of the yeare, was in the Equinoctiall of our Summer. And although there may appeare some difference among them, because some will haue the worlds begining to be in March, and others in Aprill: it may well bee endured, for they all agree together, that it was in the Equinoctiall, which now is in March. Notwithstanding, as wee have formerly affirmed, the Equino Ciall is not alwaies firme or constantifor Jesus Christ On what day fuffered his passion on the fine and twen-Equinoctiall, and now it is the eleuenth day of the fame Moneth, whereby may well be prefumed that heeretofore it was in Aprill.

For this cause, some would have April to be the first Moneth, and others March; This opinion is grounded on the Scripture, especially on the twelfth Chapter of Exodus, where it is faid : The Moneth * Nifan (which is March with vs) is the entrance to your yeare. Vincentius, in the beginning of his historicall Mirrour, faith : The Hebrewesbegan their yeare in March. because in the like Moneth was the Equinoctiall, when as the world began . This opinion was likewise helde by some of the Gentiles; as Elpacion in his Astrologicall

Treatife, where he faith: The Chaideans being very great A Brologers, beleeued like. Correcting the beginning of the year ancient Author, and of great authority in | Treatife, where he faith: The Chaldeans made the Sunne entred into the first point or degree of Aries: and this is also confidently maintained by the most part of Astrologers, both ancient and moderne. Therfore when the Sunne came in his course thither, or to that Signe; then was the beginning of the yeare, and thence enfied the principall or beginning day. For it is a matter most manifest, that the first day wherein the world began to be made, was also made the first day of the yearesconsidering, that till then, there was neyther time nor yeare. And therefore the figne of Aries is reckoned (about all the reft) in order a to be the first in order among the twelue mong the is.

Now, as when we come to judge of the revolution of yeares, and things to happe therin as of necessity we must equal the figures, by the beginning of the world; cuen foit is as casie to prooue, that God placed the Sunne in the first degree of this figne, at the beginning and creation of the world. And this may bee coniect ured without any great labor, by our profe and day what made in the fixt Chapter of the fettenth as Chiffel Book, in our first Volume, where discour-fing on the time and day, when as our red with the bleffed Lord and Saujour fuffered; it is day of the affirmed, that the Sunne was in the felfe- worldien fame at the creation, as it was when the great Sunne of righteousnesse made the tieth day of March, which was then the regeneration of the world, suffering death and paffion in humane flesh, and that happened (as is formerly faide) in the Equinoctial of Summer, which is an argument and presupposition, that even so hee placed it, when as he created it. Moreouer, it appeareth very crediyet notwithstanding, they all say, that ble, that it was so made, because such as At what the whe the Sun enters into the first point or know any thing in Astrologye, and in the Junior the degree of Aries, then is the Equino Ctiall. | Sphere, do well perceive, that the Sunne | the world to entring into the degree of this figne, and the cleare is making his revolution by the space of a diance of his wholeday: there is not any part of the beamer. world, which he leaueth vinlookt on with his bright splendour . And this he doth not in any other place of the Zodiaque, because in what place else socuer hee is there are some parts of the earth where he is not feene that day; but beeing in this first degree, as we have faide, there is no place where he is vnfeene, as hee walketh

Aries the fut

Marc. V arre in lib.9 Mecrob.im lil u. Ozid in Fast.

> The firft fca. fon that Ada and Eue faw in the world was the Spring time,

4. Booke hap. 34. ney. And it standeth with good reason and conveniency, that the first day of the Sunnes fetting foorth on prograce, hee should begin in such a place, where hee may best visite the whole world with his beames. And that it should bee in the figne Aries, rather then in that of Libra. appeareth plainly by our former relation. that on the day of our Lords passion, the Sunne was in the felfe-fame place, therefore there is some particular power in

Holding this opinion then for the most certaine, I say that the reason alledged, by fuch as would have the beginning of the world, to bee in the Equinociall of ripe and mellow; in regard it is no vni-uerfall rule : for when the fruites are ripe-

September, is very weake. For it is not sufficient to say, that all the fruites were > ned towards the Northerne latitude, they are not fo in the South, but wholly quite contrary. And therefore I craue no helpe of their reason, who say, that the Equinoctiall of March (already prooued) is the beginning of the Spring-time, & of flowers ouer all the earth, all things beeing the in procreation; for if with vs it be the beginning of Spring time, it is then winter in the Southerne parts. Let our reasons then suffice, & the authority of such worthy men, to cleare all other doubt or feruple , although the Romane yeare, now in vie, feemeth to begin the first day of Ianuary : for this matter came fo to paffe, onely through the superstitious denotion, which the Gentiles had to their God Idnus, coucting to have their yeare beginne

The Romanes (in like manner) began their yeare in March, according as Marcus Varro writeth, and Macrobius in his first Booke, Ouid in his Fasts, and many more belide. Also God shewed his immense goodnesse, in placing our first Parents Adam and Ene, in the Northerne parts of the earth, when he banished them out of the terrestrial Paradife, & that the first scason which they faw in this world, was the Spring-time, finding the earth to be greene & flowry, with the ayre milde, fweete and temperare, which was done for the confolation of their mifery and with his name, as the Christians began theirs with the Natiuity of Ielus Christ, albeit the yeare doth not then begin.

along in his diurnal course, or dayes iour- | nakednesse, and so they could not sigue found it, if it had not beene Spring time.

This marter being sufficiently prooned, wee must know that there are other Planets, and especially the Moone, as be- conjunction ing one of the principall, whom some do with the Sun ather creation. on with the Sunne, on the first day of her creation. Others fav. that the was in opposition, and at the full . Saint Augustine reporteth thefe two opinions, in his booke Augin Gin. ypon Genesis, the fift Chapter, saying further, that such as maintaine her to bee in opposition, and at the full; do alledge for Others ho'd their reason; that it was very inconueni- opposition. ent, that at her beginning, God should create her any way defectuous. Others vrdge the contrary, and fay it is more credible; that the began her first day in coniunction, encreasing in her age answerable to our account. But to quiet this controuerfie, I fay (in mine opinion) that The Authors God at fuch time as he created her made this cate. her at full, and in opposition of the Sun. And it feemeth, that this judgement is the most received, as of S. Augustine, in the place before alledged, and Kabansus Rakans in Ex on the twelfth Chapter of Exodus, faith the very same. This appeareth conformable to holy Scripture, where it is faide: God made two great lights, the greater light Gen. 1,16. to gouerne the day, and the leffer light toilluminate the night. Now in the very fame inflant as the Sunne began his light, hee Offices of the gaue splendour to the moity of the world, Sunne and because in that moity or halfe part, hee Moone tor made day. But the other moity could have no light of the Sunne, by reason of the earths shadow; therefore it seemeth inftant. confonant to reason, that in the other moity of the earth, where it was night, the Moone should extend her office of this ning. For like as they were both created at one inftant; fo fhould they both fulfill their offices in one and the fame inftant, and the one to gouerne the day, as the other the night, according to the words of the Text, verefied apparantly, that the world was wholly lightened at one & the fame time.

Contrariwife, if the Moone had bene in conjunction, the light common and veconjunction niuerfall could not have come till fifteene dayes after; and befide, three or foure at that time. dayes must needs have passed, before the could lend any light to the earth, and that

Of her then being in op-

we see her to be but sour or fine daies old. Therefore it was very convenable, that these two famous lights shold illuminate the earth at one instant. I say moreouer, that the Moone then being in opposition with the Sunne, fhee must needs haue her being on the other fide of the figne Libra, for in her fo being, the performd the fame day the effects as the Sunne did, illuminating all the world, by her measurable pace of that dayes journy; which elfe the could not have done, if the had bin in any other place of the Zodiaque. Heereby it appeareth, that this opinion is the most likely although Iulius Firmicus will needs fay, that the Moone (at the time of ber creation) had her first scating in the fifteenth degree of the figne Cancer, where shee affecteth most to be: & of this opinio is Maerobius, in his first Book of Scipios dreame.

As for the other Planets, it is very difficult to certific them, and leffe profitable to know them : in which respect, I am willing to bestow the lesse paines on them. Neuerthelesse, Inlius Firmicus, in his second Booke before alledged, is fo bold as to name the places where each of them is feated, faying: Saturne should bee in the figne Capricorne; Iupiter in Sagittarius Mars in Scorpio ; Venus in Libra; & Mars in Firgo; which are the fignes wherein they have most power, and being signes likewise appointed to these Planets. Elpacus himselfe maintayneth as much, according as loannes Apricanus declareth in his Summary, entitled Agricano; with Macrobias in his fore-named Booke of Somno Scipionis, and thereunto confenteth Iulius Firmicus, naming expressy the same figns; yet there are others, who have thought, that in the recited inftant, all the Planets were found to be in conjunction with the Sunne. Ganltierus the Monke, in his book of the Ages of the world, faith, that the ancient Indians held firmely this opinion. As for my selfe, I amof the minde, that God did then fet the Planets in fuch distant places, one from another, especially from the Sunne; that on such a chosen day, each one of them might illuminate the earth with his beames. V Vhich could not be, they beeing in conjunction with the Sunne, becaufe his prefence, within a ny certaine space or proportion, so hinderech the greateft lufter of their light, that must be but very little too, euen as when they cannot bee discerned on the earth. Notwithstanding, beeing created according to the will of God; It Sufficeth (faith Augustine) that they were made, in beeing Augin Gu. perfected by the hand of God, whose workes 49.6. (in what kinde foeuer they be) are perfect.

CHAP. XXXV.

That men may learne examples by Birdes, Flyes, Wormes, and other Creatures, to leade the course of a vertuous life.

Te haue already declared in our haue enfructed men in a great part of the hand properties appertaining to Physicke, by purging and preserving themselves from harmes: now I am briefely to entreate, how their example may bee profitable to vs, both in body and foule. And vndoubtedly, who focuer wil confider & contemplate, on the nature & properties abiding in beafts; shall not onely thence derine good enstructions for life and fafety of our humane bodies; but rules and examples beside, of good, commendable, and vertuous mainers. VVhy do not men ftrine to purchase peace with their neighbours; Concordant amity among brothering what concord and amity is among brothering. Beafts of all kindes, and how they keepe exampled to company, vnite themselves together in each kinde, and stand defensive one for another? VVhy fhame they not to bee flothfull and negligent, perceiuing & ob. | Slothfulnefe ferning the care and follicitude of the and negligite Ant, and after what manner thee maketh the Ant. her prouision in Summer for VVinter? VVhat vaffals and fubicets are they, that will not serve and honor their good Prin- to frinces ees;noting with what loue and obedience poore little Bees ferne and honour their King, and that which they doe for him befide? In which respect, such Commonweales as have no Prince, but enjoy all Against com things in common; may not they learne mon weaks an example of living in peace and concord, by imitation of the poore Ants, who are fo great in multitude, and yet preferue an order of peace & inflice among themfelice ? And why do not great Lords and Princes confider, what manfuetude and of clemeny clemency all of them are obliged vnto; and mude.

who doth no offence, nevther worketh any displeasure to the very meanest and sillieft of his Subjects?

Our great Seigniors and high-mindedmen, may learne humility of the Camell, who falleth on his knees, to accept a heavy and over-chargeable burden. I rue and loyall married couples, may take example by the good custome among some Birds: especially Pigeons and Turtle-Doues, noting both in the Male and Female, that nothing but death can impeach their continuall companying, or hinder eyther from their first choyle. I finde written moreouer, concerning Turtle-Doues, that the one dying, the other remaineth in the condition of a widdow, & finisheth the remainder of her life in widdowhood. Saint Ambrofe writeth, that widdowed women may learne chastity of the Turtle-Doue. As touching continency, all beafts (well neere) do letion vs therin: for after the Female hath conceived, the neuerfecketh, or hath any appetite to the Male, till her full time be determined. They are likewise examples of temprance in all vices ; because they eate no more Examples of Temperance then sufficeth to maintaine life, neyther sleepe they any more then necessity requireth.

To keepe our selues well and discreetly gouerned, the Peacoke may be our direction. For desence and maintenance of our houses, as also to line liberally among For good and our people ; what better enstructer can we have then the Cock? For he will part with the food out of his owne Beake, to giue it to his Hens, and when need requireth, he will expose himselfe to all perils in their defence. The great obligation, wherein children standeth bound to their uten towards their parents, and how they ought to ferue and assist them, the Storke plainly witnesseth; by nourishing their aged Parents in their owne nefts, as they fedde and maintayned them in their youth . Why should not men blush and be ashamed, to commit Sinne comfrailty and finne through feare, knowing mitted thorow feare at the inuincible courage of the Lyon? Faithfulnesse, friendship, and acknowledgement of received benefits, wee are Faithfulneffe. friendfhip,& notably taught by the meere behauiour good turnes of Dogs; that neuer forget the Masters they have ferued, but continually loue them, neuer ceasing to bee thankfull for

For good or der in beha-

when they but behold the King of Bees, I the poorest bread they cate. If a man would benefit himfelfe by the vie of another mans goods, yet without any harme or injury done him; let him fo carry him felf in that case, as doth the little laboring Bee, who draweth hony out of the faireft flowers, and yet no wrong at all done to > VVhat meanes and order we should daily observe for healthfull conservation of our lives, we are not to learne it of any one beaft onely, but of many, that know what food doth foonest offend them, as alfo in with-drawing from one place to another, according to the mutation of times. Moreover, they will live in such foyles, as are answerable to their complexions and natures: excelling men herein as well as in all other things beside. VVhy (hould not men be absolutely learned, and ignorance in any thing quite remoued from them, beeing endued with derftanding. hearing and understanding: considering that an Elephant learneth whatfoeuer is fhewne and taught him; a Dog attaineth to many familiar qualities; and Birds can speake, being thereto enstructed? He that Skill in Muheareth the Nightingales fweer Songs. and some other mellodious Birds; how can he but defire to fing mufically? VVhy couet not men to be excellent builders, Arte beholding the Swallowes skilfull enftruction; what arte thee declareth for her owne dwelling, and with what divertity of matter it is composed? What better Geometry. Geometry, then that of the Spider? What better Astrologye, then that of the Ante, & Astrologye. & likewise of a Fish (according to Galen) are meerely ignorant in these Artes? How many other industrious and excellent perfections are in brute Beafts, which men either hane, or elfe may learne of them? Paffages under ground, making of Caues in the earth, and knowledge how to dwell in them; came they not first from the Mole and Fox? There are certaine little VVormes, in Latine called seres, that enftructed the meanes and manner to fpin and make Silke. Next, the Spi der taught how to fpin thred for cloth, & fo to make Nets, whereby to eatch Birds. Catching of Men learned of Beatls to fwim in the water, for there is no one of them but can do the water.

Renefit receip: ciudice.

preferuation

none and vn

called " Vranofcopos, that having but one * A Fish cyc, yet lookes continually vp to heaten? whote eye Haue men reason and judgement, and yet der ground.

Making of Makingof cloth. Swimming in the Sunge.

Iul.Firmic in lib.2 de creat. Mund.

Macrobin Lb.

de Somn. Scio.

Places in Trall. Aftrolog. Ivan. Agrican. in Sum. Agric. Macrob in lib. de Som. Scip.

Gault.in lib. de Mund.cap.s.

not then in coniunction with the Sur

The Planers

Rules for philedge in wea-

Our wearing garments and

The cheefeft Support of our Examples conceining the foule.

All moral Paded on beafts.

Beafts comin holy Scripture, for our imitation.

Reafonabl: ed by example of bruice

August in lib.

it; yet men cannot attaine thereto, but by | word. practife and learning. What Physicall rules they have taught men, and knowledge in the changes of weather hath elfe where bene handled; and yet notwithffading we make fuch provision of them, for fupply of hunger and other necessities, as I know not how wee could line without their helpe. Our garments are made of theirs, and their flesh is our best Foode: both beeing brought home to vs from far remote countreyes, and whatfoeuer is needfull for vs, or elfe we fend abroad to feeke after them. They labour, and make the earth plyable for our vie; whence we get our bread, and the best fruites of fustentation, so that they are the principall maintenance of our lines. And although they are fore laboured, purfued, and euill entreated by the spleenes of men : yet are they still obedient, both knowing, following, and euermore dooing them fer-

Come wee now to examples concerning the foule, as a matter of higher Argument, and much greater importance. Whence can a man derine more worthie examples, both for vertues and good manners meete to bee in men, then from beafts? All those Vertues which naturall Philosophers hath perswaded vnto vs. are grounded on the fimilitudes and parables of Beafts: Oratours serued their turnes with them; and all that have spoken or written elegantly.

God and his Saints have oftentimes in facred Scripture, instructed and perfwaded vs, by the properties & conditions of beafts, for the perfection of our lines : And the rules of vertue and civil manners do tell vs, that we should be wife like Serpents, and fimple as Doues; milde, like Lambes, and strong and constant as Lyons. In like fort, by the example of bruite beafts, and voide of reasons we are taught to become men reasonable, and spiritually affected. We finde many Offices & estates in the Church, applyed and figured by beaftes, and according vnto theyr properties. By Oxen (according to S. Augustine, writing on the fecond Chap. ter of S. John) fuch men are fignified, as doe publish and preach the holye Scriptures : for they till and plough vppe the knotted furrowes of our foules, fowing therein the feedes of Gods most glorious

Saint Paule, and Salemon in his Proverbes doeth say; Thou halt not muexle the mouth of the Oxe that laboureth, Rom. o. verse 7. Prouerb. 12. chap. 14. The holy Doctors and Preachers of the Church. that with Doctrine and good Lawes doe Gregorials gouerne and defend it, are termed Dogs. Saint Gregorie speakes it on the wordes of 10b : Quorum non dignabar patres ponere cum cambus gregis mei . The same Saint Gregorie, inuiteth men vnto a contempla. Contemplatiue kinde of life, by the immitation of life, life, Goates, that alwayes climbe vp to high places, spending there their time in contemplation as it were: the wordes in Leuiticus feem his motiue thereto, Leuitic. chapt. 14. verfe 12. Out of the Herd let the Goate be offered.

Moreouer hee fayth, that Preachers Grigo, in 18. should immitate the Cocke; as ground- vbifepre. ing on the words of 10b, who fayde; Who Preathers hath given under standing to the Cock? Ad- compared to ding withall, that (like vnto the Cocke) the Cocke. they proclaime (in the dimme darkeneffe of this life) the glorious light that is to come, and awake vs with their thrill voyces, out of fleepy finnes, faying with S. Ephel 3,0 Paul, The night is past, and day approacheth. And againe, It is time for vs to arife from sleepe looke abroad yee just, and sinne not. Phil.1,12.

The Church her felfe, pure, holy, and The Church immaculate, is compared to a Doue, as refembled to Salomon declareth in his Canticles, faying. Beholde, thou art faire my Loue, thine Cant 3,14. eyes are like the Doues. And againe in another place: Omy Loue, Omy Done. We fee likewise, that of the foure Euangelists three are figured by three beaftes. If I wold continue longer on this argument,

I could finde matter enough to discourse But about all other, that of our Sa- Ichis Chill uiour and Redeemer Icfus Christ, is the ingured by moft notable, who would bee figured by a Beaft, as Saint Iohn speaketh in his Apocalypse, chapt. 7. verse 14. The Lyon of the Tribe of Indah hath beene victorious. And Danid fayeth in his Pfalmes, Rouze Pfalme 110,1 thee like a Lyon: and fo in many other places, which were too long to rehearle. Befide, in S. Mathew, he tearmeth himfelfe Matthal, 37 a Hen, faying , O terufalem, terufalem hore kens under her wings, and ye would not.

often would I have gathered thee & thy children together as the Hen gathereth hir Chic-

Chap.36. Of Neglect in Military Discipline.

Christs works (Seeing then, that Christ compareth t his workes to the properties of Beaftes; the proper. men may doc well to receive instruction from them, in leading a good and holie life. And contrarywife, what shame and confusion is it to vs, to see and know, that all kinde of Beafts do follow they rnature perfectly, and men (onely made reasonable) vie their owne fo badly, abusing that fuper-excellent gift very vilely. For, he that ought most to honor God, dothmost of all offend him, and farre beyonde all other creatures, dayly peruerting and adulterating his works. So that there are some beafts, of whome men may learne much better examples, then from fome kind of men among whom they line. For they haue more apprehension of instice, and offend farre leffe, then men that knowe what is their dutie, and yet do it not. And examples to m.n, then bruite beafte der Stand him.

his other cre-

CHAP. XXXVI.

therefore, God deliuereth it by the mouth of the Prophet Elay : The Oxe knoweth his Master, and the Affe his Cribbe; but Ifrael

knoweth him not neither will his people vn-

Of neglect in Martiall Discipline: and of an Army of Christians, that lost all their lines thorow drunkennesse, and wwant of following such courses, as are to be obserued in Military affayres.

In the eight chaps of the 1.800k in the

EE haue already declared, how Bayan Chinjan, Lictus nant to the Tarrarian Em-peror Cubley, and directer of his Military forces, tooke 12

arriuall, for conquering the great Prouince of Maugy, before all the reft would yeeld themselves tributary. One of them was veterly ruined to the very foundation and worfe vied then any other known to be, during the Empire of the faid Cublay, which was aboue fixe and thirtie yeares. This City being called Cinguinguy, was the second in wealth, greatnesse, and multitude of inhabitants, in all the rich Kingdome of Maugy, and the reason why it was wholly ruined, followeth thus.

Bayan Chinfan Durfuing his Conquests, was much withthood by a ffrong Caffle, builded vpon a fmall mountaine, very potent by naturall fituation, and artificiall constructure. For therein continued a powerfull Garrison, that prenayled with great advantages on his Army, passing along the foote of that Mountain: and this Bayans pafwas the reason that he would proceed on lage. no further, till hee had derived fome better correspondencie from the people of this Garrison. And yet he durst promise to himfelfe, that (within some finall distance of time) he should preuaile against them, as afterwardes it prooued true ininftant, the explorators or fcoutes vvere Return of his come backe againe, which he had fent to foutes from furueigh the effate of Cinquinguy, who made knowne vnto him, that the people of the Citty appeared, to knowe nothing of his comming, neyther flood vpon any guard, or preparation to expect a befiedging. This was the cause (to the end hee might the better preuent them) that hee forthwith dispatched a squadron of thirty thousand men, armed at the lightest, and very good foldiers, all of them being chri- that Bayan flians (which came among the Tartarian gaue to his Idolaters in open liberty, as the Iews haue Christians, done from all times of antiquity, and dayly yet doe) to possesse themselves of the Citie, and hinder the entrance of any fuccour, either by way of power or victuals, affuring them likewife, that he would follow them with all convenient speede that might be.

In the meane while, and at the felfiame

This warlike band of Christians, made the Christifuch speedy diligence, that (within three ans arrivall dayes) they arrived before the Cirty, and before Cinlodged themselues on the Ditches side, before any in the Citty took notice therof. They made the scalado in so many seuerall places, and disposed their Archers fo conveniently, as no one durft peep out at any of the battlements, or elfebe feene vpon the wals. At length, the beliedged (imagining the army that had thus engirt the, was of far greater ftrength then it was indeed) being ouercome with feare, rendred themselues to the discretion & mercy of the affaylants, to the end, they might | Chiffians, finde the more humanity at their handes. The gates being fet open, the Christians entred taking vp their lodgings in feue-

The men of

The careless negled of Christians in their victory. continuing full in furfer and drunken neile.

Christians

flame in their drunkenneif:

and thaine-

the Inhabi-

fully vied by

The strong

Caftie taken

by Bayan,& tydings brought him

querors, without any other care of military discipline, finding the Citty well furnithed with victuals of all kindes, & whatfocuer was needfull for the life of man, but (aboue all) plenty of rich wines; fell to making themselves good cheere, and drinking hard, after the German manner, till they fell afleepe with the pots in their hands.

Heereuppon the Inhabitants finding themselves deceived in yeelding to so final a number of people, that had no better understanding in actions of warre, neither knew how to vie the fortune fo fairely befalne them; began to confult heereon with themselues, and how to worke their deliuerance with as much speed, as they were ouer-hasty in losing their liberty. The Christians continuing in this drunken behaujour, without any feare at all of the Inhabitants, that lodged the Soldiors in their houses, though not halfe fo many as they were able to receive: in one night it was fully concluded, that euery host should kill his guest, and so it was The Army of accordingly performed. Afterward, they threw their bodies into the great River, which runneth through the midft of the Citty faving: These are the renegadoes and faith-breakers, men of Christian Religion, of whom the Emperour Cublay made no great account, but fuffered them to carry croffes in their Enfigns, to fhame them the more in their least ill demea-

Bayan Chinfan having furprized the foresaid castle, commanded the Captains to be hanged, and the castle quite ruined; but pardoned all the Soldiours, journeying afterward on to Cinquinguy : but within leffe then two dayes journey, hee heard how all his men were flaine, therefore hee brought a ftrong fie ige before the Citty. The lubabitants were not a little amazed, beholding so powerfull an Army to befet them, and conducted by a man fo highly renowned: and therefore defired to have a Parlee before any farther proceeding, which accordingly was granted. The fumme of the Oration propounded by the Deputies, was thus. That they could not deny a manifest truth, but that they had flaine a number of runnagates, mafterleffe mendeeming to haue no faith or honefty, neither thewing any open ap-rall houses. And these indiscreete con- | parance of their power; but suddenly surprized their Citty. Moreouer that they were all Christians, more addicted vnto wine and gourmandizing, then any re- Wine and fpect of valour or manhood: in which rethe deferued ouerthrow of fuch careleffe people, and they humbly defired pardon, if in this case they had transgressed.

Bayan returned his answer brauely Bayans reth and fuccinctly, faying. His men were to the men o warriours, that had no other direction in Cinguinguy, this bufineffe, but commaund from his mouth onely, and he had beene well enformed, that they tooke the Citty by faire order of warre; without offending any one in their goods, or violence offered to wines or mayds, or difarming any Inhabitant, but suffering them to continue in their wonted liberty. And in being Christians, they did not therefore deserue The Christians death, because he could as well tollerate ans defended them, as his Master the Emperour, who in their pro not onely suffered them to line in all his whole king Countries, without the least iniury done domer converto them; but having conquered king-minted to the domes, wholly Christian, he neuer inno- loy the bore uated any matter touching their Religion. Moreouer, the greater part of Officers in his Court, and the very worthiest of his warriours, were all Christians, being men more faithful, and of better conuerfation, then any other Religion what-

As for their neglect in martiall discipline, he did not allow it in them, but confessed, that they deserued death therein, which (doubtleffe) himtelfe would have inflicted on them; condemning them for beeing so forward, in executing any authority belonging onely to him. For which boldnesse (with an absolute deny- Bayandeniall of pardon or fauour) he vowed to bee fauour, you reuenged on the men of Cinquinguy; be- ing death sel cause (against all fidelity) they had slaine bloody rehis men, and declared monstrous ingratitude for their extraordinary manfuetude, and thence hee pretended to deriue his reason.

Hauing thus spoken, hee would see them no more, but in this rough manner In what mer dismissed them. About an houre after, he caused his Rammes and other Engines of battery, to bee mounted, for guinguy. destruction of the walles and houses, and within few dayes after, tooke the Citty, without any great refiffance, putting all, whereof Anne de Montmorance, Confta- Thefault of the men to the fword that were about 14 veares of age. Women and maides went whither themselves pleated; but for their children, they were fold at the Out-crie, at the Outery to fuch as would give the most mony for them: for there were certaine merchants of Bengala, which followed the army that did trafficke onely in such kinde of merchandife, and fo do yet to this day. Afterward, vittailes beginning to faile, & the warlike enemy, having emptied the cittle of all the wealth; he commanded it to be fet on fire, and that the Army should not boudge thence, vntil it were intirely con-

This Citty was feated on a goodly ri-uer, large and nauigable, whereby, the comerce which it made with other conn-

In it was made the richeft & faireft works wrought with the needle, both in cloth of golde and filuer, as no other Citty in the world belide had the like. There were alfo made fumptuous veffells (for all vfes)

both of gold and filuer, by most admirable cunning, and in great plenty : befides

costly clothes of fine Cotten, gold, filuer and filke. In briefe, it was the fecond or fince when it was neuer rebuilded, or inhabited. The ruines thereof may bee

feene to this day, whereat full many haue floode amazed, it being scituated in so potent a territory: but it was thought to proceed from the just displesure of God, and for the bloudy mail acre of fo many

We may now come homeward, and nearer to our felues, and speake of the Christians.

gamguy, and tries, returned infinite profit and wealth.

third Citty (as then) in all those parts: which was thus destroyed, thorow the drunkennes of Nestorian Christians, and by the perfidy of the Inhabitants, even as althofeparts. Troy in Illiam by luxuric & whoredome.

ble, was commanded, putting the 2 15/16- in the batt. If zers to flight, and the fayde Constable at Dieux. taken prisoner. Heerenpon the Protestants becomming infolent, and vtterly vnmindfull of Militarie Discipline : left their rankes, brake their order, gaue the chase, pursuing after certayne runawayes, and, before they had fully conquered all their enemies; they beganne to gape after pillage with the Swart-rutters and Launce-knights. During this diforder. Monfieur de Guyfe, a most wife and valiant Captaine, hauing yet left him a band of braue men, beganne to fet vpon those worthie and negligent fellowes with his troupes, and wied warrier running on the Protestants (who ima- protestants gined they had the whole victorie, which and tooke the they knew not how to holde) got the Prince of Co better of them, and tooke their Leader the Prince of Conde, becomming fole mailter of the field. Thus, not knowing how to vse Militarie Discipline, by breaking their rankes, following the chafe, and scraping for pillage, when they had gotten the better of their enemics fafe and foundly, yet not having wholly ouercome them : did they not declare themselves very vnaduised, becomming guilty and well worthie of death? I am perswaded, that all good warriours are of that opinion. And fo it happened, for thus the Protestant Armie was vtterly

They that (at so cheape a rate) tooke What the the Citty of Cinquinguy, should have Chastians difarmed the Cittizens, seazed the fron- ought to have pest places into their owne power, plan- done, victorie ted Courts of guard in all the most fre- at Cinguinquented parts of the Citty, imprifoned guy. the chiefett persons, expelled out of the Citty, a greater part of the youthfull and ledge, how to make vie of victorie: most forward men, if they would not As not long fince was feene in Fraunce, kill them, without vling fuch courtefie after conquest. In fo doing, they had kept Martiall discipline on foote, and anoyded the loffe of their owne lines, befides the reproach, to their great infamie. But ouer and aboue all the reft, Wine most they should (as much as in them lay) hurtful to any haue abstayned from wine : For there is good Souldihappen, where Military discipline is not obserued.

Oo

foyled, which was (wellneare) equall in The Proteffat great Captaines and good men to the Armyvicely Royall . But fuch loffe doth almost daily forled.

part of the royall Catholique Armie, not anie thing, that fooner bereaueth a our.

view of for

fach diforder

like faults, as were among thefe Tartarian Christians, thorow lacke of knowin the first battaile given neere to Dreux, betweene the French Protestants and the Catholiques, in the yeare of our Lord God, 1562. vnder Charles the ninth. The Prince of Conde, being chief of those Protestants, overthrew with his horsemen (wherein he was flrongest) a great flaughter.

A Parlee required before further proanfwer retur ned by them of Cinguingood Souldiour of manly indgement, and maketh him merely brutish in beha-

CHAP. XXXVII.

¶ Of the miserable ends, and other strange tranerses, endured by dinerse Kings, Emperours, Dukes, and other great Princes, within an hundred and fiftie yeares of these times.

The Authour thapeth his courle in this argument after Petraike. Ccording to the imitation of Petrarke, I am desirous to describe the vnhappie ends, and other aduersities, happening vnto diuerse famous Christian Princes; as Kings, Emperours, Dukes, Popes, and other Prelates, lining within an hundred and fiftie yeares of these dayes, some of them being familiarly knowne to vs; omitting fuch as the Greekes and Latines have set downe in their writings, because I would not be troublesome to the Reader, by repeating Histories esse-where to be read; (and perhappes) knowne to him before. And if it come to passe, that any worthie person, constituted in some eminent dignitie, chaunce to feele the ficklenesse of Fortune, by fuch occasions as shall ensue in this Chapter; let him take comfort, and forfake all sadnesse; for it is no meane confolation to the miserable, to have store of companions ranked with them in their disasters.

George King of Bohemia IN ANNO 1466.

Aduice to perfons of honor and eminence

> We will begin then with a king of Bohemia named George, who lived in the yere 1466, who was reputed to be a man of great wisedome, and was elected (in sede vacante) or inter-regnum after the death of Ladiflaus, who dicd on the very day of his marriage, folemnized at Prage, the capitall cittie of his Kingdome, hauing taken in marriage Madame Magdalen, daughter to Charles the seauenth King of Fraunce. This George hauing obtayned the amitie of many in the Kingdome, and making himselfe much seared beyond many other; was installed King, and gane his daughter in marriage, to Mathias King of Hungarie. In his elder yeres

Ferdinand King of the Romaines, bro ther to Charles the fifth, Emperour, possessed himselfe of his Kingdome, he holding then but a small portion thereof, because hee was molested many yeares before, by the Kings of Poland, Hungaria, and some Emperours, by the solicitation of Pope Paule, the second; King George for favouring of the Hussites Doctrine, in which cause he was so vehemently afflicted, that it shortened his dayes. He dyed much bemoaned; for in his youth, and while his body held the strongest vigour, hee performed many notable and worthic exploits in warres against the Turkes.

Another Prince, some short while before, Charles Bourgony, Sonne vnto Phillip, one of the most potent and vndoubted Christian Princes, that was in those times, beeing in the yeare of our Lord God, one thousand source hundred and two and twenty. Hee vnderstoode himselfe to be so rich and mightie, that hee pretended to create himselfea King. But Fredericke the third of that name, beeing then Emperour, would not admit such an advancement of his Countrey. His father left him great store of coyne, and many large renenewes of diverse Seigneuries: having lent foure hundred thousand crownes to Charles the scauenth, holding all the Townes and Countries, on, and about the river of Somme; as Amiens, Abe- scauenth. uille, Saint Quintines, and others beside. Hee held also (by way of mortgage) of Sigismund, Archduke of Austria in Germany, the lands to him belonging, both on this side, and beyond the River of Rheine, and the Earledome of Ferrat, for three score and tenne thousand florins: whereby enfued, the Gouernour which he placed ouer those Lands, was the cause of diverse mis-happes and ignominies, that followed vpon him very he was Lord fuddenly.

Moreouer, hee was Lord of fourcteene goodly Prouinces; as the Dutchy of Bourgogne, the French Court, of Flanders, Brabant, Holland, Zeland, Frizeland, Henault, Artois, Namures, Gueldres, Luxembourg, Verecht, and Embourg, all which Countries valewed well a large Kingdome.

And in regarde of his pompe and ion to Philip.

What fate hethordayned to a man cannot be auoyded.

Of Charles

the eight, K.

of France.

His conquest

Calabria and Apulia.

of Naples,

Charles the

had of to famous a King, The greatnes & in lo great an extremity, Charles duke to let him die of Burgogne, with the leuein so stanking a place. rall lands that

Little care

King George

Hussites reli

Charles duke

of Burgoine,

ion to Philip,

one of the

gion.

that these things happened in the yeare,

one thousand sourchundred fifty three,

what Beds of state, the noble Kings of

I am sure few people are ignorant, in about the Moneth of May.

Of Charles the eight, K. of France.

> His conquest of Naples, Calabria and Apulia.

What fate hath ordayned to a man cannot be auoyded.

100000-thou fand crowner lent to King (harles the (cauenth hc

but

be-of er-

bth

Little care of had of to farat, mous a King, flo-The greatnes & in lo great and riches of an extremity, our Charles duke to let him die in so sunking was of Burgogne, with the feue. iga place. rail lands that ery he was Lord

France vse to take their rest, and vnder what rich Pauillions; yet the inquity of our times hath beene such, that a Kings lodging hath bene more vile then a laxe. I speake of King Charles the eight of that name, who returning home to his kingdome, having beene in Italy, where hee conquered the kingdome of Naples, and the great Dukedomes of Calbria and Apulia, and wonne two famous battailes in those countries: vpona Palme Sunday Ecue, being the scuenth of Aprill, one thousand source hundred ninety eight, leading his Queene by the hand, Anne of Bretaigne, to sce certaine Gentlemen play at the Tennis, in a Ditch belonging to the Castle of Amboise, entrea into an olde, broken, vncouered Gallery, where he gaue his head a great blow against the vpper part of the doore, albeit himselfe was but of lowe stature. Taking hold vpl pon some stayes for his recourry, neere vnto a noysome place, where enery one that would (by custome) vsed to let passe their vrine, and other uncleannesse of the body; he was contented to endure it, and stood there merrily discoursing with the Queene, and other noble persons there present, judging who deserved best of them that played. Suddenly hee was ouercome with a rheume or catarre, which taking from him all his strength and motion in euery part of his body, he

Heelanguished in this manner, for the space of nine houres, and dyed there in that noysome place. Is it not a matter descruing admiration, that so worthy a King should dye in so vile a place, being in his owne house, among his Officers, and many of the Nobility ? Hee that was King of the sweete smelling Floure-de-Luce, to expire and ende his dayes, not among hearbs or flowers of pleafing fa-was deprined likewise of his speech. This was perceived by all there-about him, and how he lay vppon the ground, in such a

foule, stinking, and vnscemely place; yet

no one had the care, or subject-like affe-

Gion, to beare him thence to his royall bed, which was not aboue twenty paces

uour: but in a place full of filth, then which, the whole world could yeelde no

And to thew yee, that great Princes are as subject to dye in battailes, as the simplest Souldiours: Immes, King of Scottes, may ferue as an example, for hee was slayne in the field, with twoo Bishoppes, a great part of his Nobility, and many men of warre, that hapned in the yeare of our Lord, one thoufand fine hundred and thirteene. the year's following, John d'Albrot king John d'Albret of Nauarre, lost his Kingdome, which King or Nawas feazed by Ferdinand King of Spaine, warre lott his because her floods accorded by R. R. kingdome, because hee stoode accursed by Pope Iulins, for affifting King Lewes the twelfth, in warre against him; and aboue all, in the battaile of Rauenna, which vitill this present his Successiours neuer enioyed.

And Lewes sforza, Duke of that rich and goodly Countrey of Millaine, was led prisoner into Fraunce, flying before the French to Nanarra, a Citty of his Dukedome; hee was confined to imprisonment, within the great Tower of Bourge, where (in great want and pouertie) hee finished his dayes.

What shall wee say of King Francer, first of that name, the Father of Learning, whose wisedome and magnanimitie, could not warrant him against the Ambuscadoes of Fortune, no more then any of them before remembred? Hee fell into the hands of Charles the fifth, Emperour, envious of his greatnesse, and had beene his competitour in the Empire, opposing himselfe against many of his dessignes. Hee detayned him prisoner aboue a yeare; during which time, hee had a most yrkesome disease, which compelled him (for enioying of his liberty, to yeeld to many hard and gricuous conditions. As, to renounce and disclayme a multitude of rights, which hee pretended to many Dukedomes, Earledomes, and Kingdomes.Belide, he gaue fo great a quantity of money, as well for his expences, as difcharge of martiall affaires, and his ranfome withall, that his kingdome (for cuer after) felt the smart thereof.

And not onely have temporall Princes felt the rigour of inconstant Fortune; but Ecclesiasticall persons also,

Iames the fourth, King of Scots, flain in battaile.

ion, where he

firft, King of France, the patrone

The hardenforcements of King Frances.

Oog

, all irgc

Irc-

chy ize-

ires

:of

and alth

An olde Ci ty of Mauri-tofore called

King Sebafti analwayes

feeking opportunity to enter Affrica

of Christian

The Author speaketh now of Spirituall

Pope Iohn

howfoeuer high and great degree they haue carried in the world. For in the year 1410. Pope John was put in prison, flying from the Councell of Constance, and was giuen in guard to Lewes, Count Palatine, deposed from his Office, and one called Martine, fifte of that name, feated in his place, being likewise very inhumanly entreated, for the space of three yeares. Afterwardes, by the humanity of the fayde depoted and imprifoned. Martine, he was fet at liberty, and created Cardinall: whereby euery man may perceine, how farre this John was falne from his former degree.

The hishop of Liege,Bro-Duke of Bour gongn, a lord both (piritua)

In the yeare 1466, the byshop of Liege brother to the fore-named Duke of Bourgongne, by his wife, who was of the house of Bourbon: beside his Office, hee was a Prince of the Empire, a Lord both spirituall and temporall, and holding fo great and rich a countrey, as that of Liege. He was taken prisoner by his subjectes, and a great fort of his friendes and officers (among whome were ten Abbots and Protonotaries, or Canons, al of worthy houfes) maffacred in his prefence & himfelfe kept prisoner for long time, and in great milery. At length hee got fafely away, hauing (by money) won his Guards confent thereto.

ing of an arch by thop, and 4. Cardinals.

At Florence, in the yeare 1448.the arch-Bythop of the faide place, being cloathed in his habiliments of Priest-hood, and saying Masse, was sodainely surprized, and hanged or strangled at a Window, by the hands of the hangman sbelide foure Cardinalles massacred by the people, and many other Ecclesiasticall persons beheaded.

And although Popes (as hath beene held) by their great and spiritual authority, might impose silence vpon Christian Princes, from undertaking warres, but to keepe themselves in quiet, and likewise to take armes at his command, for the affairs of the Christian world; yet it came so to passe, that Pope Clement was taken prisoner, and locked up feuen months space in his castle of S. Angelo, kept by a guard of Spaniards and Germaines, and all of them Heretikes (wel-neere) about him. The City of Rome was greeuoufly pilled, the Tem ples ranfacked and prophaned; all which happened by the Souldiers of Charles the fift, a Catholike Emperour, in the yeare 1527.

After these men of Ecclefiasticall profession, it shall not differ much from our purpose, to conclude this chapter with the death of three potent Kings, that died three kings, all three in one day: to the end, wee may all in one day obserue how vnhappy it is for Princes, to thinke that they can well manage their affaires, in medling amongst the quarrels of other Princes, as puisant enery way as thefclues.

It came to passe, that two Princes contended for the kingdome of Fez and Marocco, fituated in Barbarie of Affrica: the Muley Mahaone of them being named Muley Mahu- met, & Abdel met, Nephew to the other that demaunded thefe Realmes, called Abdelmelec. This Mahumet, who enjoyed those Kingdomes ten or twelue yeares, was affayled three or foure times by Abdelmelec, having gotten affiftance of the Turke, and wonne stil the best in foure fought battailes . So that in the end, the inhabitants of Fez and Marocco receyued Abdelmelec: because Maley Mishmet humet was a Tyrant, had very few frends, Marocco. contemning every one, and trufting altogether in his strength and Treasures, after all his loffes in those former Bat-

Sebastian, King of Portugall, made offer Sebastian K. to him of his ayde and friendfhip, but hee offereth aide refused it; vntill such time as hee had ney- 10 Mahumer ther place or person to retire vnto, nor any to follow him. Moreouer, he had spent the great heapes of money which hee had gotten together during his reigne,& now withdrew himselfe into the Mountaines, which are fixe Leagues off from the Citty of Marocco. There hee lived about sea- The miserauen or eight months, like a theefe or rob- ble effate an ber, with some few companies of needie Muley Mapersons, which yet againe were cut off by humes the troopes of Abdelmelec; and Mahumet constrained to wander in the most vnaccessable places of the Mountaines, where he endured a million of miferies, for the space of a whole yeare, living in continuall feare and distrust, onely thorough his conceyued opinion, that hee should bee taken, or betrayed in his fecret walkes.

In breefe, necessity compelled him to repent his former denials, and to require the friendly succour offered him, by that request the braue King of Portugall, Sebastian: vnto and formerly whom he fent an expresse Messenger, and (afterward) two of his Captaines. In the meane while, he found the means to defcend

The Army in field from Portugall.

King Sebasti an pasted into

Affrica a-

nion of all

Abdelmelee (wee may well perswade The care of Abdelmelec, our felues) flept not all this while carelefly, for hee brought threefcore thousand men to the field, as well Pykes as Harquebuziers, and twenty fixe Pecces of Ordecend from the Mountaines, by wayes of little or no refort, and fought for his fafe. ty in * Tanger, a Towne which the Portugales held in Affrica: where hee was well entertained by the Gouernour, who knew some part of Sebastians minde towards him, and therefore furnished the two Captaines with well armed horsemen, for the dispatch of their Embassie in Por-King Sebastian was very joyfull to fee these Ambassadors because he was naturally addicted to Armes, and the disposition of his person (ioyned with his height of courage) incessantly spurred him on to this businesse. And in this respect, hee tence, for the did but awaite fome apt ouerture, for making his paffage into Affrica, forming his pretext, vppon an earnest desire (as hee would alwayes fay) which hee had to aduance Christian Religion, and to extirpate that of the Mahumetifts. Whereuppon he fuddenly promifed (without any better confideration of the businesse) to fuccour Muley Mahumet, and to re-feate him in his kingdomes againe: hee made promise (I say) to such a one, as himselfe had before fought vnto, for this effect, by fo large a passage ouer the Seas, and two scuerall times had beene misprized by him. The Pope, the King of Spaine, and many other great personages, could not dissiwadehim from this enterprize, but still he perfisted in treading the path vnto his owne death, death that followed him fo hard at the heeles. So did hee fet on into Affrica, with thirteene hundred fayle, as well of great as finall Vesselles in that Fleete, the very fayrest and goodliest that had bene seene in those times. His Army was composed of Lance-knight, Spaniards, Italians, Portugales, and some small number of Affricane Moores, which took part with the Portuguizes, and thirty fixe Pieces of Ordenance for the fielde, well fitted and furnished. In all, there was not aboue fixteene thousand men of warre; fetting afide the Soldiours boyes, Waggoners, Strumpets, Castadours, and other fuch like people very unprofitable for the nance for the field, well appointed & gouerned by most expert men. Abdelmele. was very forry, that hee should have any conquest against Christians, in regard he bare them much affection; not because he feared the Portuguezes, but as fore-feeing, that Barbary would proue the graue to the King of Portugall; who (indeede) was too weake to encounter with him. that went fo farre beyond him in power. And in due confideration of the case, hee would oftentimes thus fay to himfelte. King Sebastian should bee more respective, then fo unadwifedly to runne upon his owne tunines com ruine: for he would take two king domes from me, which in right and tustice doe appertaine Sebastian. to me, and give them unto a Negro, wherein Christendome can no way be eased or accommodated neyther is it a thing which God (being iust) will permit.

The report and rumors foread abroad,

kinde well-willer; efteeming themselues happy in his acquaintance. So that from divers places, great store of Christians

How Abdel-

of Abdelmelecs valiant carriage, was the cause that euery one came to offer him feruice and obeyfance; and from enery ches, and fer Province they brought him goodly prefents and gifts of inettimable value. Many Christian Kings tooke pleasure in his by Christians friendshippe, and embraced him as their and others.

tranailed into his countries, where they received gracious entertainment, and hee shewed them much better countenance, then to any other men that reforted thither, helping them liberally in their necesfities. On the contrary part, Muley Ma- Muley Mahuhumet oppressed the Christians all the mets opprestime of his reigne, or else permitted, that flians. all greefes and molestations should bee done vnto them wherefore King Sebastian(in this respect) did greatly forget him-

Now to deteine the Reader no longer in suspence, the two Armies disposed the- How the two felues for the encounter, and mette in a Armies came field, which contained about two miles in the field. in spaciousnesse, so enen and plaine, that there was not any tree, graffe, brambles, or stones, to offer the least hinderance. The Army of Sebastian, had the River of Arache behinde it, and that of Abdelmelec, the River of Alcassar. Muley Mahumet, for whom this Tragedy was to bee acted, The trechery contrary to his oath and promife, did not with King bring with him any ayde for Sebastian; Schaftian, hauing

Pope Clemen ner,& Rome pilled by gree dy Soldiours.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

That Princes are commonly (uch in their a-

Etions, manners, and pietie, as they per-ceque their Kings, Princes, and Rulers ledged: That the course of Nature shoulde sooner faile, then people bee any other then their Princes. This is not onely to bee vn-derstood of their vertues and vices; but likewife of the gesture of their bodies, yea

euen fo farre as to their wearing garmets.

This may easily be prooued; for Alexander the Great but bending his Neck a little towards his right shoulder, al his yong

Princes, and other cheefe followers in Alphonfus King of Arragon and Sicilie, having a wry necke, all fuch as followed and affected him, inforced to wry theyr neckes like his; as being perswaded, that it was most commendable in them, because their King and Maister carryed his

necke fo: as wee finde it recorded in the Booke of the Courtier, and in the life of King Frances, the first of that name, v-fed continually to weare his haire verie

long, and (as it was faide)looking out at a Window, he received a wounde on the ced to cut his lockes, and weare them a great deale shorter then formerly hee had done. Many of his Courtiers, especially fuch as wore their haire as he was wont to do, caused their long locks to be cut like-

wife, and ware them in the same manner as he did. Heereupon afterwardes, diners

Noble and high descended French-men, left off from longer wearing falle Lockes and Periwigs, or Gregorians, which they reputed as a figne of Nobility and come-linesse, for holding some place of emi-nencie in the Commonwealth, & thence-

Here neede no doubt to bee made, but that it was verie true which Theodorick, King of the Gothes (writing to the Romaine Senate) al-

Muley Mahu met flying from the figh in the River of Arache.

King Sebafti an flaine among his own Souldiors, bu hardly known Abdelmelec fell deadly ficke fome $ dayes before the battaile. and dyed in his Lutter in the midft of the fight.

Three Kings ended their liues in one day diuerfly.

The death & buriallof three Kings bodies very strange as fi dome the like hath beene heard of.

having formerly made him beleeve, that more then halfe the Army of Abdelmelee, would come and joyne with him: which came not so to passe, for both the Armies meeting together, each fide fought valiantly for it felfe, and the Christians sustained the worse. Muley Mahumet was one of the first that fled, shaping his course towards the river of Arache, where thinking to passe the foord, & it being choked with mud and flime, and his horse sticking fast therein, he gave him the four fo furioufly, that lofing his stirrops, and not knowing how to helpe himselfe by swimming, hee fell into the water, and so was both drowned and suffocated in the myre. As for K. Sebastian, after that all his men were flain. or (at least) put to flight; he was affayled on al fides (having but 7 or 8 knights with him) among whom alfo he was flaine, & lay on the ground among his owne people, that fought for their lines as much as men could do.

Now concerning Abdelmclec, some 8 or 10 dayes before the battaile, he fell into a greenous ficknesse, by eating a messe of milke in a neere adioyning Village, which so curded on his stomacke, as hee could not compasse any auoydance of it. Neuertheleffe, on the day of battaile, hee would needs mount on horse-backe, and prease into the thickest of the fight, where finding himselfe more weake then euer; he was conuayed into his Litter, wherein he died immediately. But his death was very closely concealed, vntill the battaile was finished, and won on his side. Thus we may fee, that (in one day) three Kings died by three seuerall meanes: for Muley Mahumet was drowned; Sebastian finished his life in fight; & Abdelmelee dyed by ficknesse. Their bodies also received diucrfity of handling or viage : for the body of Mahumet was flayed, & the skinne fluffed with haire, was carried thorow all the Citties in the kingdomes of Fez & Marocco, in figne of open infamy. The body of the king of Portugall, Sebastian, was buried in the Town of Alcassarquiber, without any Priest for the funerall obsequies. or any sheete to couer his body; but stark naked, according as it was found, when acknowledgement was taken of it among the other dead bodies: yet one of the groomes of his chamber, despoyling himfelfe thereof, gaue him a poore paire of linnen breeches, & a most wretched doublet, which was no way difliked by the Mahometanes. The fore-faid groome faued himfelf miraculoufly, for of the whol Not two hun-Christian Army, either Soldiors or other, all the Chris there did not escape 200. Abdelmelec was fian Army, carried away dead in his Litter, royally burallof Abdelmelee. off from that place, hee was buried in a costly Sepulcher, among his Predecesfors, and there was granted rents and reuennues, to divers Priests of the Mahometane Religion, to pray to God (after their manner) for his foule.

Their successors also were as strange and divers; for to Muley Mahumet, succeeded his mortall enemy, Hamed. To werall Kings Abdelmelec, not his owne children, albeit nitheir don nions, after he had divers; but his bastard Brother, the their deaths, faid Hamed, for the father would have it fo. To king Sebastian, Philip King of Spain, who was (a farre off) a kinefinan to him, yet then the necrest that could bee found. because the other was never maried. Here we may apparantly perceive, how fortune playeth with miferable life, or vnfucceffefull ending in the very greatest, or of highest aduancement in this world, as well as those of much meaner condition, & that thorow some secret judgement of God, lethofall who can & will dispose of all things, according to his owne good will and pleafure. These matters happened in Affrica, in the kingdomes of Marocco and Fez, on Monday, being the fourth day in the Moneth of August, and in the yeare 1578.

I could heere alledge many other examples of Christian Kings and Princes, whose endes haue bin scarfely honorable wade in tedi or happy, and that within thirty yeare of our relation this instant:but because I know that these times do affoord some passionate spirits, who take no delight in fuch fad relations, and others are of a freer temper, but as void of pitty, as the other are too forward in compassion, not carrying any meane betweene fuch two extremities; I will forbeare to proceede any further in this argument, & enter into some other more apt discourse.

CHAP.

Chap.38.

Theodoricks

K.of Gothes

writing to the Senate of

to bee.

Make, and of Princes, and other cheese kind his Court, did bend theirs also in the very

Frances, King of France did westelong hare, and cut head; by meanes whereof hee was enforinto his fashio Plut in vit Pyr.

Palfe locks &

forward esteemed it as a ridiculous fashi-

Charles the fifte, Emperour, wore his beard long, but cut round below, in shape Charles the 5 of a pouch or purse. In imitation of him, ner of beard. the Noblemen of Spaine, Italy, Flanders, Germany, and Bourgongne, with fome other that were his subjects, hadde their beards after the felfesame fashion, which Beards Impethey tearmed to bee an Imperiall Beard. the Imperiall King Charles the ninth, King of Fraunce, fashion being at Metz, where the Count of Manffeld, and Marquesse of Baden came to see him, because he should shew them a gracious countenance, he tooke off the Marqueffes Bonnet from his head, and put on with the Mar-(insted thereof) his owne, which he com-, queste. monly vsed to weare, that was a German cap, great, thicke, thrummy, and flat, in forme of a Cheefe. In regard whereof, all the attendants in his Court (which was a great company at that time) would needs weare Bonnets after the same sashion. And it grew to fuch an extremity in affection, that such Cappes and Bonnets, as were viually fold in Metz for "thirty Sols, "Ten French within three dayes after, could not bee Sols, make an English shil. bought vnder three French Crowns; and ling. yet (at so deare a rate) they were not to be had, albeit the Bonnet-makers laboured night and day in making them, the crowd and preffe for them was fo great, without any other profite or commoditie Thekings faenfuing by them, but only that they wold great matter. be in the Kings fashion.

King Henrie the third, by reason hee had fome Vicers in the fore-part of his head, was subject to a continual paine & whose Courgreefe: therefore he wore thicke gummy tiers imitated haire, bound vp behinde (like womens) to his gunmed haire, like vncouer that defect. The Moblemen and to Womens. Gentlemen of his Court, had their hayre gummed and bound vp in like maner, although no paine thereto prouoked them: whereupon some were verily perswaded, that men would fall likewise to weare womens garments, they were fo forward in the fashion of their haire. If I would insert all the courses and behauiour of the people, in imitating their Princes fond fashions and habits, I must needs be too troublesome to the Reader : therefore I will now discourse on their vertues and vices, with as much breuity as I can.

The onely cause why men trauailed into Egypt fro fo many parts of the world,

The K. chan

Henrie the 3.

The cause why fo manie men requalled into Egypt.

The example of a Learned mean motiue to his Subjects to affect lear-

The words of Plato the great Philoso pher-

King, is no

nirg.

Manfor, Emperor of Affrica, and all the Spaines.

Great vertues in Manfor a louer of Learning, & a famous example to his fucceffore.

Leo Affrican.in Hift de Temp. Of the wo men of Lybia.

and from Greece more then any other | country (as did many great and excellent Philosophers, amongst whom were Plato, Democritus, and others) was for no other end; but in regard of a King of that Countrey, named Ptolomy Philadelphus, the onely louer of Learning, and seeker after such men as were learned. And in imitation of him, the Egyptians his subiects addicted themselves so studiously to ground their understanding in the most laudable Sciences, and that for fuch long continuance of time, as a man was reputed to have scene nothing, if he had not trauayled into Egypt. Whereuppon, it is fayde, that Plato (admiring their wonderfull erudition) cryed out by way of exclamation: The Greekes are no better then Children in knowledge, beeing compared with the Agyptians. Heere we may obserue, what honour this good King Philadelphusiwon to his subjectes, because by his immitation they made themselues vertuous, and given to all commendable qualities. The like happened under the reigne

of Mansor, Emperour of Affrica, and all the Spaines, who gouerned in the yeare of our Lord, one thousand, one hundred, & This King was such a louer of learning, that he caused all Bookes written in Greeke, cyther concerning Philosophie, Physicke, or Historie, to be translated into the Arabian tongue. He founded many Colledges, wherto he gaue very great rents, for the maintenance of poore Students, and professors of learning, whereof a great many are at this day to be seen, in the Citties of Fez and Marocco in Affrica, in Treuissen, Tunis, Argiere, Hippona, and else-where, although he was a Mahometane in Religion, yet many other of his successors, that afterwardes followed him, and the people themselues (to this day) in those Affricane countries, doe rellish of the good conditions, maners, and vertues abiding in that King, addicting themselues to Learning. Nor appeared this in men onely, but likewise in Women, according as Leo Affricanus testifycth, faying; The Women of Lybia, in thefe our dayes, are very Learned and Studious, and aboue all thingselfe, they are sooner busiedin good Bookes: then medling with cloathes, Garments, or other Vtensels belonging to houshold. And I dare boldly maintaine (with many other Learned men, well read in Histories) that but for this King Manlor, and his Arabian fuccessors: | fed. Physicke had neuer beene halfe so fertile in remedies, as we finde it now to bee in these our daves.

Garcias d'Horta, Physitian to the Vice- Garciald'Han roy of the Indiaes, who lived within leffe then thirty yeares, fayeth, that hee had conferred with many Kings both of the Arabes and Affricanes; and found them to bee learned, as also notably skilfull in in these dairs the Mathematikes. The like is affirmed by him that hath written the generall historie of India, that Almansor, King of Tidora, one of the verie greatest Islandes of the Moluccaes; was one of the greatest Astrologers in our times, and that the people are not fo rude and barbarous, as heere among vs they are reputed to bee. Before Mansor, none of them had ever seene the Bookes of Aristotle, Plato, Hippocrates, Galen, and other Greeke Authours, in any other Language then the Grecian.

In the time of this King, Manser, flourished great store of Learned men and Philosophers: such as were Auerroes, Me-(uus, Rasis, Rabbie Moses, and divers others, whose workes (at this very day) are reade in our Vniuersities, and Commen- Manfor. ted voon. by diverse and sundrie great Schoolemen, and it is not to be doubted, but posteritie (for euer) will rest beholding to them.

The manner of founding Colledges, wherein to instruct poore youths in good Letters; Hospitalles, for the lodging of Kings & Im maymed, fickely, and needie persons; Conuents and Abbeyes, for the dwelling of godly and religious men, wherein to pray for the augmentation of the Church, and prosperity of Christian Princes; beganne first by Kinges and Emperours, and in their immitation, Dukes, Earles, Barons, Popes, Cardinalles, and Byshoppes, besides other rich men (among the common people did the like As Charlemaigne, Lewesthe ninth, Phillip Duke of Bourgongne, and divers other: which is a most plaine and manifest Reafon, that all Christendome remaineth yet to this day, embellished with so manie faire and rich Arch-bythopprickes, Byfhopprickes, Abbeyes, Priories, Colledges, and Hospitals.

Phyfick plen-

Chap.3

Lewes the e-

leuenth im.

prisoned by

duke (barles.

The bold pre-fumption of

Charles duke

Peter de He. genibach

Count of This

eifteine,De-

putic to Duke

hi

th

35 09 8₹

Charles in

Aultria, degra

ded and be-

headed.

of Burgogne.

ſ'n

chi lig his

in

the

| 3. Ol

Affrican and Arabian kings earned nowe

and worthy men flourish daies of King

Christian

The beginning of the Dukes downfall and mifformnes.

gious houles.

King

An Armie affembled by the Duke.

A most inhu-manadaed of the Dake.

Physick plen. cifully increa-

Garcias d'Har ta in lib de diwerf.Geft.

Affrican and Arabian kings earned now in these daies

> The bold prefumption of

putic to Duke

Charles in

Aultria, degra

ded and be-

headed.

Chap.37.

Lewes the eleventh im.

prisoned by

duke (barles.

ed in the daies of King Manfor. Peter de Hegenibach ount of Thieifteine, De-Christian Kings & Emperouisfift founded Colledges, Ho pi tals, Abbeycs & Monafte ries.

What learned and worthy

men flourish

The beginning of the Dukes downfall and mif. fortunes.

wealth, he became so proude, that hee durst vndertake the boldnesse (vpon some small suspition conceiued, that Lewes the eleventh King of Fraunce, had intelligence with them of Liege, beeing then his enemies) to imprison the fave King in the great Tower of Peronne, where they met both together, under the colour of friendly conference. And there he made him condificend to follow him (like a water Spaniell) in the warres, which hee had against the Inhabitants of Liege, euen vntill hee had ruined theyr Townes, and all the Countrey: Heere seated Edward king of England, beeing expelled from his Kingdome; giving him mony, and an armie by Sea, to bring it to passe.

Afterward, hee would needes coape in Armes with the Emperour, and (almost) all the Princes of Germanie: besieging the Towne of Nuz (which is not farre numption of Charles duke from Coloigne) for the space of a yeare. of Burgogne, but all in vaine. Euery one reputed him to be great, happy, and inuincible: but we shal soone perceive the contrary, and how (by little and little) heertrode the path to his owneruine, as briefly I purpose to relate. It fortuned that this Charls had instituted as Gouernour ouer those Lands, which he held mortgaged by the Arch-Duke of Austria: a thiefe and tyrant, named Peter de Hagembach, Counte of Thierstein, who (so much as in him lay) tormented both them of Mulbuse, and the Smitzers: whereupon, they took him prisoner, and having proceeded against him by due forme of Lawe: they degraded him of his order of Knighthoode, and afterwards beheaded him in the open Market place.

> Next, the seauenty thousand florins were configned ouer to a Banquer of Bafile, and to the Duke it was signified by an Herald, that hee held no more right ouer the Country, then what the Arch-Duke had mortgaged vnto him. Hereat hee grew verie highly offended, and fought all meanes how to be reuenged; especially for the death of Peter de Hagembach. Then hee affembled an Armie, being affisted by the Duke of Millaine, and the Dutchesse of Sauoy; taking Lausanna, which was confedered with the Switzers.

Thence hee went and besieged the Duke commaunded foure score of them with an Army belonging to the Archhung vp as many Bourgognions.

The moueables of his house, which hee would alwayes have carryed along with him, were of extraordinary valew: with himin for among them were so many rich tents, water. all of costly silkes, and vessells both of golde and filuer, embellished with store of precious stones, that it would require too long time to recount them. There were some Switzers, that sold great store of filuer plates, for two great blankes a peece, not knowing their valew and estimation. A Diamond, thought to bee the greatest and clearest that those times affoorded; and, esteemed more worth then fiftie thousand crownes, was solde for twelue Sols. A faire bathing tubbe of filuer, richly guilded, wherein he vsed treasured to bathe himselfe, was solde for source pounds. I cannot heere set downe, the rich clothes of Tapistrie, wrought with vn-ualuable workes of filke and golde for him to treade on wherefoeuer hee went. To be briefe, the Reader would be wearied in rehearfall of the incredible wealth and riches, which this vnfortunate prince

Then falling into a long and greeuous sickenesse, at the length hee recouered, and taking courage to himselfe againe, hee returned the second time against the power and force of the Switzers. Hee had formerly taken Nancie from Rene, Duke of Lorraine; wherefore the fayde Duke of Lorraine forthwith loyned his forces with the Swit-

lost, and whereof his greatest enemies

made their triumph.

O0 2

The

Towne and Castle of Granson, Solliciting them to yeeld themselves. They hauing humbly fubmitted themselves, the to be hanged, and an hundred more to bee drowned, in the nearest Lake adioyning to the Cittie. This inhumane act did not onely moue the Switzers; but likewise them of high Germanie, who Duke of Austria (whereof Harman d'Extingen was the conducter) expelled the Duke from Granson, and flew a great part of his Army; taking beside, his Artillerie and furniture for warre, which was, great and rich. Afterward, taking downe all their friends, which the Dake had caused to bee hanged; in their places they

The Duke chased from

Granson, and historioure for watre ta-

The great implicitie of he Switzers, of the Dukes

All Christen dom beauti fied with reli gious houses Fascic.Temp. Mater Hiller.

Rene Duke of Lorraine.

A third battel yndertaken. by the Duke of Bourgongn and lost also.

The vanity of c'ie Bourguignont concerning the Dukes death.

Naucler. in lib. 7.64P.10.

The vnfortunate end of so great a Duke.

Vladiflaus K. howe little a while hee en. ioyed both thorough his owne folly.

The Duke of Bourgongne being before Morat, the people of the Towne yssued forth, and so beset the army of the Bourguignons, that twenty thousand (according to Fasculus Temporum) or twentie two thousand, and seuen hundred (according to the Mother of Histories) were ther The spoyle was left to the Duke of Lorraine, who likewife recourred Nancy againe afterward.

A third time likewise, the Duke of Bourgongne, being not a little offended, that he shold be vanquished by so mean a Prince as the Duke of Lorraine, and hee recouering the Towne of Nancy; returned with fresh forces, and besiedged it againe with fourteene thousand able fighting men, beside some other bandes in expectation. The Duke of Bourgongne was discomfited, and all his army; but by no meanes could his body be found. The Bourguignons could not be perswaded that hee was flaine: but having escaped from the field, hee had retyred himselfe into Germanic, where he had vowed to liue in seuen years penitence.

There were some Bourguignous, that made sale of precious Stones, Horses, and fuch like things, to be paide againe upon his returne, and namely to Brachelles, in the Diocesse of Spire. There was a poore Begger, immagined to bee the Duke of Bourgongne, because he lived in the like estate of penance; which made verie many trauaile to see him, and bestow very liberall almes on him. Nauclerus reporteth that he faw the poore man begging in the same place. The King of France, hearing the Duke was dead, seized on Montdidier, Roye, Peronne, Abbenille, Monstreul, Arras, Hesdin, and the two Bourgongnes, to wit, the Dutchy and Countie. The men of Gaunt tooke his Daughter, that gouerned his estates very poorely, and marryed her as themselues pleased; she having put to death the Chancellor, and other of his best officers. Thus you see how this great Prince ended his life, accompanied with many misfortunes.

Vladislaus, King of Poland, a young and of Poland and gallant Prince, was called by the Hunga-Hungaria, & rians to be their King, in the yeare 1440. He conceined fuch glory by feeing himfelfe King of two fuch mighty Kingdoms, his kingdom. that he thought himselfe to be inuincible. Whereuppon, being defirous to imploy his valour in warre against fome enemie, that might take notice of his courage and power; he brake faith and Truce, which the Hungares had made with the Turk the yeare before. In the first battayle: hee gaue, he was quickely flayne, and hadde but a short enjoying of his two Kingdomes; for, thorow the inconstancie of Fortune, his pretended felicity was soon cut off, and all his supposed power veterly quailed.

The Emperor of the East, Constantine Paleologus, some fifteen yeares after, went Paleologus, to keepe company with this young King the Eaft Vladislaus, in the other world. For Con-Stantinople, the Metropolitane Cittie of his Empire, was besiedged and taken by Mahomet the second, sir-named the Great, thorow the negligence and treacherie of Iohn Iustinian of Geneway; Mahomet hauing 300000. able fighting men, and Thepower of fourehundred Cannons, and the fiedge continued threescore dayes. The Empe- tinople. rour (in flight) was met withall, and murthered neere vnto the Gate: his head being carryed vppon a Launces point, and so conveighed quite thorow the Cittie, while his bodye was trodden vnto dirte den vnder with their feete. Mahomet also caused a Crucifixe to bee erected, and wrote vppon it (in scornefull derision) these words: This is the GOD of the Christians: commanding likewise, that every one should cast dung and filthe uppon the fayre Image.

The wife to the Emperour, with her | The Mame daughters, and the very Noblest Ladyes attending on them, were brought before he, daughten Mahomet; and after all reproach was done unto them, even the verie greatest Villa nies in the world, their bodies were hacked and hewne in peeces.

Some few dayes after, there was another King (but of three dayes standing) put to death likewise. VVhich I may by no meanes omit because it was the forenamed Iohn Iustinian the Genouese, a trayterous Villaine. For hee had concluded with Mahomet, that if he would make him King, he would yeelde vp Constantinople, or be the meanes whereby hee shoulde surprize it. Mahomet kept promise with standing. him; for hee constituted him a King for three dayes space: and on the fourth day, hee commanded his head to bee finitten off. So sayerh Fasciculus Temporum; and Frances, King of Frances fiftet that name,the iather of learning.

> rei Ofhonorable and learned w Ladies, befi le Wd two famous Queenes of As Nauatre. b¢

hi re

